As for the place and time when he ended his career, that's something no one has ever been able to say. to discover... (P L. FIGUIER, Alchemy.., p. 309.)

Like Cagliostro - who would lock himself away for two days a month in his sumptuous hotel in the rue Saint-Claude, supposedly to manufacture the gold with which the Back Lodges supplied it for through their shady dealings, the Cosmopolite and the Philalethes claimed to turn everything into gold

---

7 History of the French Revolution. Brussels edition, 1848, vol. II, p. 85.

Abbé Léman, The Entry of the Israelites into French Society. Paris, Lecoffre, 1886, p. 531.

metals. In fact, they amazed observers with their "transmutations" of lead into gold. those most prejudiced against them.

Like Cagliostro before him, the Cosmopolitan and the Philalethes were certainly working for the account of mysterious agitators. We know very well, from Cagliostro's own confessions, that he was the agent of the Illuminated Lodges. In the 16th century, it was for the Rosicrucians that he traveled the Philalethes who travelled all over Europe and as far as America.

It is also known that these Rosicrucians, elder brothers of the Freemasons, had vowed a A death hatred for Catholicism and the entire Christian society:

In 1623, Naudé noted that, in their manifestos, they claim "that by their means the "The Pope's triple diadem will soon be reduced to dust."

Campanella, for his part, in the German edition of his book, also dated 1623, says that the Rosicrucian Brotherhood systematically pursues the upheaval of Society. (See Cl. Jannet, Précurseurs.. 1887, pp. 18-20.)

But who would benefit from this potential upheaval in Christian society?

Here is the tip of the Jewish ear: just like Cagliostro, Philalethes had for the Jews a marked predilection.

It appears from his writings, said Langlet-Dufrenoy in 1742, that this follower had a strong an inclination towards the Jewish people; his zeal concerns them no less than the Christians; it is a affection of tenderness which he expresses in several places in his works; a wise man The rabbi would not testify to it any more than that. (Quoted by C.I. Jannet, Précurseurs..., p. 53.)

Looking back into the past, the F Figuier adds:

"Philalethes, in general terms, paid homage to the religion of Christ." The Christianity he professes is even allied with a very tender and very frequent interest demonstrated in favor of the Israelites. We had already noticed the same characteristic in Nicholas

Flamel. » (F Figuier, L’Alchée..., p. 318.)

He, too, was filled with love for the Jews, the alchemist Nicolas Flamel, this a living enigma who played a mysterious role during the reign of Charles VI – before falling prey to a sudden madness, no less mysterious - drove Israel out of the kingdom of France three times?

And how strange it is, the story of the Adept Flamel who became incredibly wealthy after that he had bought the old grimoire of Abraham the Jew, which he said he had leafed through in a dream Prophetic!

In the 14th century Nicolas Flamel, in the 17th Philalethes, in the 18th Cagliostro - all three alchemists, kabbalists, and so-called possessors of the Philosopher's Stone that cured all miraculously prolonged human life and transformed base metals into gold, - All three, finally, full of tenderness for Judaism! All three together, according to using different methods but animated against the Church by the same breath of death, they spread Everywhere the same feverish, hallucinatory lust: the same thirst for supposedly born Gold through the prestige of their Jewish Kabbalah.

But their apostolate for the "Great Work" of the Philosopher's Stone is merely a mask:
It conceals their centuries-long effort towards the Great Work of the ruin of Christianity. The destruction the complete Church, that is what the Judaizing and Kabbalistic Rosicrucians who dream want to "reduce to dust the triple diadem of the Popes".

This same dream is still that of Freemasonry, which emerged fully armed in the 18th century from limbo, where she was held captive by those same Rosicrucians who had said (strange thing!) to Beginning of the previous century: Our Brotherhood must be celebrated for one hundred years.

Here, we must incorporate a profound observation from the great scholar Claudio Jannet:

"The very curious book by Philalethe the Younger, The Long Livers, dedicated in 1720 to the Great-Master, Master and Wardens and Brothers of the Lodges of London clearly state in his preface that there existed, above the three traditional degrees borrowed from the Freemasons" a Illumination and a hierarchy whose nature he does not reveal. The language he uses is all
He did the same for alchemy and the Rosicrucians. The most authoritative historians, Mackay, Whytehead and Yarker are unanimous on this point. (Cl. Jannet, Precursors.... pp. 22, 23.)

Isn't it astonishing, this key cover name Philalethes resurrected, after a century of burial, by the first of the Doctors of the Masonic Church? And isn't it not curious to see him revived in the Judaizing Freemasonry of the Philalethes of Martinism, which gave rise to the Lodge of United Friends, from which emerged, in June 1789, the system of the Terror?

This mysterious Illumination of the banal Freemasonry of the lower degrees, this hierarchy whose secret Philalethes the Younger jealously guarded, these Unknown Superiors, venerated by the Martinists and Judaizing Philalethes who claimed domination over the common Lodges,
- Isn't all this the unbreakable chain that binds Jewish Kabbalah to France?
Freemasonry? Shouldn't we already have the right to suspect the Occult Power?
hidden behind the Masonic Lodges is the brain of Judaism that wants to conquer and Dominate the entire world?

However, regardless of Copin-Albancelli's irrefutable and unrefuted arguments, a confession of Brother Ragon (called by the Grand Orient of France the Sacred Author of Freemasonry) French) changes our suspicion into certainty: the F Ragon, in fact, recognizes and proclaims that Freemasonry was born in London in 1717 from the union of workers' guilds "Masons by trade with representatives of the Rosicrucians?" But these Rosicrucians (we (as we have just seen) were bitter enemies of the Christian religion and society: by-Above all, moreover, they were Judaizers infected with all the poisons of the Talmud and the Jewish Kabbalah.

It is therefore clear that, through its mother the Rosicrucians, Freemasonry is essentially Jewish.
The Occult Power that leads it is therefore Jewish.

V

THE NECKLACE TRIAL

We have already mentioned the scandalous success that greeted the memoirs of the lawyers of the various accused in the Necklace Affair. How superfluous, then, were the fears expressed a moment by Cagliostro and by the secret societies for which he was the emissary! The poison Masonic influence had penetrated so deeply into the heart of the country that the memorandum in praise of the F
Cagliostro, despite the follies and shameless lies with which he was riddled, did not attract to the Grand Copt, with a smiling and amused benevolence, when it wasn't a ridiculous one enthusiasm. So much so that Father Louis Blanc was able to write:

---

* The old guilds of stonemasons mixed with benefactors. (LD)
F##* Ragon, Masonic Orthodoxy. - Paris, 1853, pp. 29 and 99.

"This memoir, in which some grandeur was mixed with vulgar artifice (!), increased the number supporters in France of philosophical Freemasonry represented by Cagliostro. (History of the Revolution, Brussels edition, 1848, vol. II, p. 128.)

That a collection of shameless impostures such as that presented in the memorandum for Cagliostro has
He was able to attract an army of recruits to philosophical Freemasonry, that says it all.
A long discussion on the degree of Freemasonry in France in 1786!

Besides the lawyers' brochures, distributed in the thousands, a swarm pamphlets further inflamed public opinion. But when one has seen, as we did, during The Dreyfus Affair, the whole world risen up against France by the scribes of Israel, we are in one might well ask whether, in 1786, gold and the intrigue of the Occult Power did not play a major role role in this extraordinary foliage of printed leaves.

The emotion was intense, in France and across Europe. Parisian Hardy observes this in his memoirs; he wrote on September 5, 1785:

"This trial, which is currently capturing the attention not only of the whole of France, but of All of Europe.

Furthermore, we read in the Gazette de Leyde of June 28, 1786:
"This great play, whose plot keeps Europe attentive to its denouement."
(Quoted by M. Funck-Brentano, The Affair of the Necklace, 6th ed., p. 281.)

The Queen Implicated.

In reality, in the trial submitted to Parliament, the deceived Cardinal, his oracle Cagliostro and
The Valois daughter, a forger and thief, was only in the background: in the foreground was...
They found an august and innocent accused, Marie Antoinette. She was not seen in the dock.
Yet she was there, "invisible and present." The reputation, the virtue, even the probity of the
The queen was handed over to the magistrates of Parliament, Freemasons and Freemasonry enthusiasts, even more blindly.
even though hateful.

The feeling that the real accused was the Queen - and that it was she who was going to to condemn him most harshly - was very much alive on May 30, 1786, when at the end of his deposition
In front of the entire assembled Parliament, Madame de la Motte directly implicated Marie-Antoinette.

"Mrs. La Motte," noted one of the assistants, "appeared with an air of confidence and With fearlessness, with the eye and demeanor of a wicked woman whom nothing surprises... She focused more on probabilities than on facts, and especially on the impossibility that is at the heart of the trial of to show letters, writings, and all the material evidence one might wish to see there. I do not I don't think this woman, who has poise, grace, and refinement, could have been of interest. no one, because her trial is too clear.” Suddenly, Jeanne changed her manner: to When asked about an alleged letter from the Penitentiary to the Cardinal, she replied that she would remain silent so as not to offend the Queen.

“One cannot offend Their Majesties,” objected the President, “and you owe the whole truth to justice.

Then she said that the letter in question began with the words: "I'm sending you," adding that the Cardinal had shown him more than two hundred of them written by the Queen, where she addressed them informally, and several of them arranged meetings where the Queen and Rohan would have actually met.

At these words, there was almost a clamor among the magistrates. Although most of the judges such remarks, coming from "the opposition", revolted their conscience as men and citizens. And it was, barely, that they could contain their indignation when the Countess, upon withdrawing, a succession of bows, with provocative and mocking smiles. (Mr. Funck-Brentano, The Affair of the Necklace, 6th ed., pp. 327, 328.)

It was Freemasonry that provided the leaders and slogans to this "opposition". of which the majority of judges were members. To be convinced of this, one only needs to look at the eyes on the alphabetical chart of the Lodges of the correspondence of the Grand Orient of France, of which a copy dated 1788 exists in the National Library: it is frightening to see how many people in the legal profession were among the Freemasons who represented to the Grand Orient the 689 Lodges then open in France.

But however deep the Masonic influence over the members of Parliament, however enraged Whatever their desire to lower the Crown and humiliate the Queen, they had (as we have just seen) a shudder at the infamous accusation leveled against Marie Antoinette by Madame de la Motte. The fact is that French Freemasonry was then at the stage of unconsciousness where...
Even today, Freemasonry exists in Protestant countries. One can also compare the mentality from the Lodges of the Grand Orient of France in 1786 to those of our centre-left Freemasons in the early days of the present Republic, when the laws of persecution and theft—those vipers
The ideas emerging from the Lodges were still in their infancy. But the suggestions from the Occult Power, at the moment of the Necklace Affair, quickly accentuated the anti-Christian tone and revolutionary of French Freemasonry. Moreover, the lines of Brother Louis Blanc quoted
The points above clearly indicate that a large influx of advanced newcomers has just entered the fold.
The Lodges. They, like the Freemasons of Parliament, will no longer be capable of indignation.
Faced with such filth as the accusations of Madame de la Motte: on the contrary, they will feasting with ferocious joy on the new pamphlets against the Queen, all of which will have based on the viperous slander that the necklace thief had hurled on May 30th, before to leave the dock of infamy.

Strange! Throughout the entire, very long trial, the Countess protested her respect for the Queen. And on the last day, at the last minute, while Parliament was suspended With her lips, she spits out, in an ironic curtsy, her accusation against Marie Antoinette!
Why is she inflicting this poisoned wound on the Queen at an hour when the slightest Could his clumsiness land him on the gallows? - Because his life was at stake: Beugnot believed firmly to his death sentence. - Why, in an extraordinary about-face, Is she risking terribly worsening her situation by such a challenge to the conscience of Parliament?
and from France, stating that the Queen and the Cardinal had numerous meetings night-time?

There cannot be two explanations for this enigma; there is only one: that Madame de la Motte had made a pact with the masked agents of the Occult Power where his life would be spared.
was promised, whatever happened to her before the law, on the condition that through her the Queen was severely damaged in her honor as a woman.

The wretched daughter of the Valois cruelly trampled underfoot the lilies whose whiteness shone forth in her coat of arms so shamefully displayed, when she thus insulted the Queen of France. Until-There, the pamphlets we know of smeared Marie Antoinette with mud. But never the No slander had ever had such an impact. And it will be much worse when the wife of La Motte, Once condemned, she will have become the victim of an alleged plot by Marie Antoinette and The pseudo-martyrdom of the reason of state!

But who will accomplish this transformation of base lead into pure gold, this transmutation to the In the manner of old Philalethes and F Cagliostro? Always Freemasonry!

The Condemnation of Marie Antoinette.

After Madame de la Motte, the Cardinal was questioned for two hours. He was listened to with much goodwill from the magistrates, most of whom were favorable to him by hostility towards the Court, influenced as they were by Freemasonry, all-powerful in the world of Parliament and the legal profession.

The appearance of the lovely Nicole d'Oliva, the extra who had portrayed the Queen in the The scene in the Grove shows the Parliament filled with "sensitive" men, as we will see especially during the Terror, such as the FF Robespierre and Saint-Just.

When Nicole d'Oliva was called... the bailiff returned alone; the accused was breastfeeding her newborn. She humbly begged Our Lords of Parliament to be patient. a few minutes after his son had finished his meal. "The law fell silent before nature," they say. the minutes. The Grand Chamber and Tournelle hastened to reply that they They granted the young mother all the time she deemed necessary. Finally, she entered. The the disarray of her simple attire, her long chestnut hair escaping from under a small bonnet round, and her tears, her distress, her surrender, enhanced her grace and beauty... Also, at

No sooner did the beautiful child seem to feel unwell than most of the members of The austere tribunal stood to receive her. It was, moreover, impossible for her to pronounce She offered only one word in response to the questions put to her: her sobs were stifled. in his throat. There was more than enough there to abundantly convince the magistrates of her innocence. She rose to withdraw "and was accompanied," says Mercier, by Saint-Léger, signs of the keenest interest.” (M. Funck-Brentano, The Affair of the Necklace, 6th ed., pp. 329, 330.)

The clowns whose strings are held by Freemasonry today are generally gloomy. On the contrary, the brilliant clown that was F Cagliostro was of the most cheerful kind:

Finally, Cagliostro appears. With him, the scene changes. He is proud and triumphant in his attire. Green taffeta embroidered with gold.

To the first question:

Who are you, where do you come from?

"A noble traveler," he replied in a trumpet-like voice.

And, amidst the bursts of laughter, every face relaxes. He doesn't wait for a new question, but he had already launched into a thunderous improvisation, recounting the story of his life with outlandish features, in a jargon where all languages intertwine, Latin, Italian, the Greek, Arabic, and other languages that never existed. His manner, his gestures, his vivacity - a veritable fairground charlatan spouting his spiel right under the noses of the blissfully unaware onlookers - amuse the Parliament as much as its jokes. When the President adjourns the session, he is about to... to offer congratulations on his wit and good humor. (M. Funck-Brentano, Id., ibid., p. 330.)

Already, like Parliament, the street has reached the point where Freemasonry wants it: when the accused On the evening of May 30th, they were escorted back to the Bastille, where the Cardinal and Cagliostro were acclaimed with a violent enthusiasm. The Cardinal greeted everyone, quite embarrassed. But Cagliostro, for his part, was at his affair. He bustles about, raises his arms, throws down his hat which a thousand hands fight over, amuses prodigiously, the crowd, through all sorts of contortions. (Funck-Brentano, Id., ibid., p. 331.)

The following day, May 31, 1786, the Parliament's decree was issued.

Jeanne de Valois de Saint-Rémy, Countess of La Motte, was unanimously condemned by the voice to be whipped naked by the executioner, branded on the shoulders with the letter V (thief),

She was confined to the Salpêtrière hospital for the rest of her life and had all her possessions confiscated.... Her No one doubted his guilt. Count de la Motte was sentenced to the galleys. perpetual, Rétaux in exile outside the kingdom. Nicole d'Oliva was banished from court: it was the acquittal with a nuance of blame, expected, the minutes note, that, Although fundamentally innocent, it was considered fair that this stain be imprinted upon him. for the purely material crime she had committed by impersonating the person of the Queen in a scene of swindling. Cagliostro was cleared of all charges. (M. Funck-Brentano, Id., ibid., p. 333.)

Unlike out-of-court proceedings, the discharge of charges was a complete rehabilitation of the accused. Thus, "neither the notoriety of the fables he accumulated in his research on the Affair Neither the Necklace nor the vigorous contradictions of his opponents could prevent... the "declaration of his innocence," quite rightly said the Roman writer who, at the trial of 1790, seen the real F Cagliostro, stripped of the dubious prestige with which he had been saddled by Backstage areas...

And here he is, white as snow, the swindler chosen as an agent by High Freemasonry! the one about whom the German Meiners had just said that he was probably paid by a company occult, to aim for a goal that is very interesting to her!

The case of Cardinal de Rohan was hotly debated. His conclusions were also moderate. that equitable, Attorney General Joly de Fleury had asked:

"that, within eight days, he should go to the Grand Chamber to declare that, Recklessly, he had believed in the Bosquet meeting, which he had helped to induce. misled the merchants by letting them believe that the Queen was aware of the deal. declared that he repented and asked forgiveness of the King and Queen; that he should also ordered to resign from his positions.

The Attorney General stated in his indictment:

"The Cardinal alleges what happened in the garden of Versailles as being able to fueling his illusion. But could he afford to believe in a false nighttime rendezvous? And supposedly on the terrace of Versailles? Could he afford to go there and, by going there By doing so, has he not committed a most punishable offense against the Queen?

... This audacity to dare to show such disrespect to the sacred persons of the King and the Is not the Queen a crime that demands the most authentic and most solemn?.. » (Extract from the Joly de Fleury Manuscripts, Bibl. nat., 2089, folios 28, 34.)

The opposition parliamentarians – dominated by the Masonic spirit – rose up violently against Joly de Fleury. Finally, Parliament rejected by 26 votes to 42 the conclusions of the Attorney General and cleared Rohan of all charges.

This acquittal, this complete rehabilitation of the Cardinal, whose role in the scene of the Bosquet had so gravely insulted the King and Queen, it was in the eyes of the simple-minded crowd condemnation of Marie Antoinette.

Freemasonry had won a decisive victory.

The blood of the Valois flows, awaiting the blood of the Bourbons...

Ms. Campan, who better than anyone was able to know the heart of the matter, wrote in his Memoirs on the life of Marie Antoinette:

"It is easy to link this adventure (the Affair of the Necklace), as fatal as it was unexpected, as viciously combined as they are weakly and dangerously punished, the disorders which "They prepared so many resources for the party hostile to authority."

...The Cardinal was fully acquitted and left the Bastille; Madame Lamotte was condemned. to be whipped, branded, and confined. As a result of the misguided views that guided the actions
At the Court, it was found that the Cardinal and Madame Lamotte were equally guilty and judged unequally, and they wanted to restore the balance of justice by exiling the Cardinal and by allowing Ms. Lamotte to escape a few days after being admitted to the hospital.

This new mistake confirmed the Parisians' belief that this vile creature, who never had not been able to penetrate even as far as the Queen's women's chambers, had truly interested
"this unfortunate Princess." (Mme Campan, Mémoires... Paris, Didot, 1849 edition, p. 461.)

What pernicious influences, what counsels of treason drove the Court—and the Queen—to to help the wretched woman escape who, on May 30th, had leveled the accusation against Marie Antoinette
What murderous information do you have? - We'll see in a moment.

“As for Madame de La Motte, upon learning of her fate, she fell into inexpressible fits of rage. While the sentence was being read to her, she had to be held in the air, no one having been able to force her to her knees. Bound with ropes and Dragged into the courtyard of the Palace of Justice, she began to scream, not of terror, but In a fit of fury, addressing the people, he said: "If the blood of the Valois is treated this way, what then is the fate of them?"
Reserved for the blood of the Bourbons? As she struggled desperately in the hands of the
The executioner, the iron that was supposed to brand her on the shoulder, instead branded her on the breast. She was taken to the Salpêtrière, disheveled, her face covered in blood, half-naked, and exhaling in imprecations what he still had some strength left.” (F L. Blanc, Hist. de la Révol., Brussels edition, 1848, vol. IX,
p- 132.)

This execution took place on June 21, 1786. But the magistrates had announced it. for the 13th and, learning that it was delayed, the opposition (that is to say the Maponnerie) began immediately, in favor of the hussy whom Parliament had just condemned to Unanimity, a concert just like those heard during the Dreyfus Affair, a century later :

"And the news writers kept repeating that the Countess would be pardoned by the King; that the Court had" decidedly ashamed of the injustice committed, the Queen blushed to let a innocent - her victim. The wind is now fixed in her direction. Whatever the Queen does or "Whatever happens, the wind will blow against it." (M. Funck-Brentano, The Affair of the Necklace, 6th ed., pp. 363, 364.)

Public opinion was so skillfully manipulated that, as early as the day after the execution
After the arrest, the necklace thief became sympathetic!

The details of Madame de La Motte's execution had been horrific. They spread in Paris. The crowd was impressed. They repeated their imprecations to the Queen and to the Cardinal de Rohan, his accusations against them, his reproaches to Parliament, all honey and indulgence towards important figures, always ready to serve the Court, the nobility and the clergy. "No sooner had the sentence against the lady of La Motte been carried out, Hardy wrote, a certain audience, moved with compassion, perhaps because they looked at her as a victim of a court intrigue, already dared to blame the Parliament that was believed to be able to accuse of excessive severity in this circumstance. They were trying to spread
"He was odious about his judgment and railed against the violence that had been forced upon them."
(M. Funck-Brentano, The Death of the Queen, 4th ed., p. 13.)

In the beautiful work we are quoting, one must read of "the admirable features, enough to make one weep," which people then began to spread about Mme de la Motte:

She had written a letter to the Archbishop of Paris, a letter "sublime in its depiction of suffering."
that she traces there, and by the piety and resignation that she displays there." (M. Funck-Brentano, La Death..., p. 16.)

Madame de la Motte persisted in this hypocrisy and later, in her Memoirs, she will mingle the most vile calumnies against the Queen with pathetic acts of faith in the Divine Providence: this woman was truly worthy of serving as she did.

Freemasonry, Queen of Lies.

Similar to the Dreyfus Affair.

When we remember the Dreyfusard music played simultaneously in the newspapers from all over the world, under the bow of the invisible conductor of whom Liebknecht spoke,
It is interesting to hear the same refrains in praise of Mme de la Motte, sometimes in the Leiden Gazette, sometimes in the Utrecht Gazette, etc., etc.

This, for example, makes a remarkable parallel with the articles about Scandinavian fjords
All the way to the banks of the Mississippi, publicists lamented in all sorts of languages about the dreadful double loop inflicted on the traitor of Devil's Island:

"The Countess's situation," says the Utrecht Gazette, "is beginning to interest even the..." people who were most insensitive to his punishment. It is quite wrong to believe that this unfortunate woman enjoys some preference over her in the house where she is confined.
companions. She lies stretched out on a bed of pain, which she soaks with her tears. It is true that Benevolent hands came to his aid; but the custom in this house of to extend to all individuals the kindnesses that charitable souls intend for one Because of them, she barely feels the effects of the kindness of those who want to relieve her.
Her complexion is yellow. She is extremely thin. She is mistaken for a crowd of women, refuse of nature and society, withered like her, and yet who have consideration for this unfortunate woman whom they call "the Countess" and whom they seek to
"To console. The lady of La Motte weeps only for her lost honor, not for her dreadful condition..."

"The lady of La Motte," notes the Gazette de Leyde, "is becoming increasingly stoic and resigned to her fate, she spends most of the day reading and meditating on the book.
ascetic of the Imitation of Christ... »

“...Most of the day spent meditating on the ascetic book,” and the Queen dared To call her a criminal! She was a saint.” (M. Funck-Brentano, Death... pp. 15 to 17.)

Who was leading the movement of public opinion aimed at getting Mme de la Motte out of the mire while
That the Queen would be plunged into it? - Freemasonry:

"The Duke of Orléans, who led Freemasonry and was preparing for his revolutionary role,
He then saw the advantage he could gain from the adventure, and the Duchess of Orléans took the lead in this
A beautiful gesture of compassion. (M. Funck-Brentano, Death..., p. 18.)

Even more duped than complicit with the Occult Power, the future F Equality was suffering the suggestions from High Freemasonry that will lead him straight to the scaffold. His wife, the Most Serene Sister Duchess of Orléans, and her sister-in-law, the unfortunate friend of the Queen, the Her Serene Highness Princess de Lamballe, set the example of visits to Madame de la Motte, and
The parlor of the Salpêtrière became the meeting place for women of the highest nobility, including Most of them, alas! were enrolled in women's Freemasonry. - In this regard, we recall from the letter we quoted, that heartbreaking letter in which the Queen congratulates the princess of Lamballe, the charitable works she carries out "through her Masonic Lodges," without suspecting that, Hidden behind these Lodges, mysterious villains are undermining his throne and working to... dishonor!

If we consider that by collaborating in the intrigues of Freemasonry, the Brothers and the Sisters of the French aristocracy were digging their own graves, at the same time as the tombs of Louis XVI, Marie Antoinette, the entire Monarchy – one sees to draw in letters of fire the cruel lines of F Louis Blanc:

"Thanks to the institution's skillful mechanism, Freemasonry found in the princes and the nobles were less enemies than protectors. It happened, through a just and remarkable by the grace of Providence, even the proudest detractors of the people were brought to to cloak with their name, to blindly use their influence to serve the latent enterprises directed against themselves.” (F L. Blanc, Hist. de la Révol., t. II p. 71.)

How could the gentle Princess of Lamballe have guessed the sinister plot of which her Would Angelic Goodness make her the instrument?... Her imagination soared at the thought of a miscarriage of justice and, thanks to the skillfully orchestrated reversal in favor of Ms. de la Motte, through Masonic machinations, had no difficulty persuading the Queen that he was skillful and wise to satisfy public opinion by helping the condemned woman escape, who had been sentenced too harshly punished while the Cardinal had escaped all punishment.

And Jeanne de Valois, once free, will make things even more difficult than they already were. until now the painful path that leads the Queen to the scaffold.

Proof that the Mac Press was lying.

Numerous visits from high-society ladies to the Salpêtrière where she was confined, mournful elegies in all the Masonic-controlled newspapers of Europe about the abominable fate of the condemned woman, everything was marvelously employed to elicit public pity on behalf of the thief and forger, promoted to the rank of martyr, because that was the right thing to do pleasure - and interest - of Occult Power.

"Lying with three others (as the Utrecht Gazette also reported), she rests on a very hard mattress. Most of the time, she is forced to spend the night on a bench, where Awake, she does nothing but moan in a room where the windows are ten feet from the ground. There, one She never sees light, except for the half-intercepted daylight. She wears the clothes of the house. She only has a few bad camisoles and a few round bonnets, but after "They will be worn out, she will have to make do with rags of coarse cloth..."

The Utrecht Gazette lied shamelessly, as is the business of every newspaper. Masonic lies, in order to deceive and panic the masses – like the Jewish press and Freemasonry from all over the world lied during the Dreyfus Affair.

A lived proof that the harsh treatment inflicted on Madame de la Motte was illusory and invented by the scribes of the Lodges is found in the curious account of a journey made to Paris in May 1787 by three young men from Lorraine. It should be noted that they were deeply imbued with the ideas ambient revolutions and that at least two of them were Freemasons.”’

“We went to visit the Salpêtrière, and upon entering, we promised a reward to a a door to take us to all the places we can enter. The prostitutes are numbering 2,400; the famous Mme de la Motte is listed among them in the registers;

---

*! "From there (writes the author), Jacquinot and Thiry went to a Masonic Lodge and I to the French" p.
73).

but she has a separate room and is not dressed in the same costume, which is a fabric crudely cut into a bag. Our porter, for an additional fee, showed it to us;
... she had the manner of presenting herself of a woman of quality; she seemed astonished by our visit; but as this was probably a distraction for her, she wasn't offended and ready to chat with us; her outfit was that of a lady in a negligee and she was busy browsing when we entered.” (Parisian Life under Louis XVI, by François) Cognel, pp. 49, 50.)

How far removed we are from a bed shared with three prisoners and "rags of coarse cloth"! But the Freemasonry thrives on lies, and to achieve its goals, it was necessary that... the alleged mistreatment suffered by Mme de la Motte in her prison increases against the Queen of necessary hatreds. Thanks to these calculated lies, when later it's her turn of Marie Antoinette being locked in a dungeon, the Masonic brutes in charge of her surveillance officers will believe they are making him atone for the alleged tortures inflicted on his orders.
Jeanne de Valois.

The Countess's Escape.

Freemasonry wasted no time in working on the Countess's escape.

Towards the end of November 1786, a sentry on duty in one of the hospital courtyards, passing his rifle through a pane of broken glass, woke Angélique (the prisoner who (served Jeanne). The soldier informed her that they were considering her release and that of her mistress.
The next day he handed her a note written in invisible ink. A correspondence ensued. committed himself. "The important thing," said the strangers who had taken Jeanne's fate to heart, Valois's goal is to obtain a model of the key that opens the door through which the prisoner must escape.
(M. Funck-Brentano, Death. 4th ed., pp. 23, 24.)

But this escape presented many difficulties. To ensure it, what a masterstroke!
to obtain the Court's complicity! Furthermore, it was tantalizing for the Occult Power to do so.
cooperate with the Queen, whom Madame de la Motte has already harmed so much and whom she will do even more.
even more so once free.

Suggested "in her dressing rooms," poor Mademoiselle de Lamballe—completely beside herself at the idea of a miscarriage of justice, as were some naive individuals in the Dreyfus Affair - served without question doubting the Masonic designs so terribly hostile to his dear Sovereign, that she betrayed them thus with a naive unconsciousness.

Urged on by Madame de Lamballe, who was in turn urged on by the Lodges, the Queen finally helped the escape of the prisoner: on June 5, 1787, Madame de la Motte, equipped with a key that had been passed to her and disguised as a young gentleman, opened the door that led into the courtyards where she mingled with the crowd of visitors, accompanied by her attendant.

"They knew they had to reach the Seine where a boat, manned by two men,
They were waiting for them. They found the boat and took their places in it. The men rowed until...
Charenton: on the riverbank there is a cab to take the fugitives to Maison-Rouge where They spend the first night. (M. Funck-Brentano, Death..., p. 26.)

After long journeys through France, Luxembourg, and Flanders, Jeanne de Valois joined her husband in London on August 4, 1787.

VI

THE TWO "JUSTIFIED MEMOIRS"

The war waged by the Occult Power against Marie Antoinette becomes even more bitter. after Jeanne's escape. The role played by this schemer in the Masonic plot against The Queen only takes on her full sinister dimension when the worthy spouses of La Motte are gathered in London: it is from there, in fact, that the Justificatory Memorandum of the Countess of Valois, written almost entirely according to her instructions; it is also from London that the Second Justificatory Memorandum etc. would be published (in 1789). But the latter was published completely separate from the tragic heroine of the Affair of the Necklace, despite herself, one can even say.

We must plumb the depths of this new "Mystery of Iniquity" where the action of Power Occult is evident.

Overview.

The opinion of her contemporaries, as we have seen, was that Marie Antoinette herself - practicing forgiveness of insults in a very imprudent way - had generously favored the escape of Madame de la Motte. Madame Campan, the Queen's reader, was convinced of it, and she He certainly had good reasons for it. For its part, Freemasonry, naturally, made itself with joy a cruel weapon of the aid lent by Marie Antoinette to the escape of her so-called "Victim": after Madame de la Motte had, a few months later, published her Memoir A second copy of the document, already filled with infamies, was printed in 1789 without consulting her.

A memorandum of support that was attributed to her, but which she disavowed (no doubt because it was wrong to the sale of his true and authentic work.) There, in this second memoir, ON
He adds even more to the accumulated garbage in the first one, and they make him say:

“(Providence) used the very authority of the guilty Sovereign to me to remove from a place of horror from which I would never have been allowed to make my voice heard.
By facilitating my escape, Antoinette seemed to want to avenge me and order me to go and breathe some fresh air.
open air and daring to publish truths that force had buried in the archives impenetrable, like the Bastille. Let us bless the just being, the supreme judge who sometimes punishes the Guilty by his own hand! Let us bless him again for having let me live long enough to shed light on the mystery of so many heinous iniquities, and to give a great and A memorable example for the world.” (Second Justificatory Memorandum of the Countess of V., London, 1789, p. 65.)

This passage is quite clear - it was indeed to throw (under the guise of the Countess) a mountain of new abominations about the Queen that High Freemasonry had pushed to the escape of Mme de la Motte; the rest of this story will demonstrate this.

Until then, the vile pamphlets had only been able to build the edifice of calumnies that attributed all vices to the Queen. Until then, it was Cardinal de Rohan's responsibility.
It was only Madame de la Motte who had managed to make people believe that the Queen was stooping to exchange with
He received suspicious correspondence. Now, it's the entire part of France that the Freemasonry has already infected those who will believe that "the Queen is a whore," as well as the Four years later, he would spit in his face the newspaper L'Orateur du Peuple.

And this is the publication of the first Justificatory Memorandum of the odious liberated woman with the help of Marie Antoinette who will begin to give to the simple-minded and the malicious individuals eager to be convinced, purportedly documentary evidence (a series of (vile falsehoods!) establishing the unworthiness and infamy of the Sovereign.

What a dreadful comedy—but how superbly acted! The Justificatory Memorandum is accompanied by letters supposedly exchanged between the Queen and the Cardinal - and what letters!
Madame de la Motte explains that she took advantage of her role as a messenger to copy things in passing the tickets that passed through her hands. Then, with a diabolical scheme, she made sure that His entire pamphlet appears to be a logical development, a detailed commentary on the a few words she hurled like venom at the head of Parliament on May 30, 1786: “Seen "More than two hundred letters. The Queen addressed the Cardinal informally... Numerous meetings..."

Aünsi, the insults that Jeanne de Valois hurled at Marie Antoinette - at the risk of her life in appearance - at the last minute of his appearance before Parliament, this garbage that the press and pamphlets have spread throughout Europe will serve as the basis for calumnies intended to destroy the Queen's honor.

Can we, after this, doubt the premeditated role played by this woman in the conspiracy?
Masonic against Marie Antoinette?

"It's those people..."

The insults addressed on May 30, 1786 by Madame de la Motte to Marie Antoinette had penetrated the French population to its very core. This leaven set the poisons spread for thirteen years by all these pamphlets we have mentioned and, in May 1787,
The seeds of hatred were so rampant in Paris that it was necessary to abandon the idea of exhibiting at the Salon.
From that year came the beautiful portrait in which Madame Vigée-Lebrun had just painted the Queen surrounded from her children: there were fears of a storm of jeers directed at the Sovereign.

Hatred against Marie Antoinette grew even more when, shortly afterwards, the Justificatory Memorandum Madame de la Motte came to add her terrible, freshly poisoned concoctions to the rancid poisons of the old libels: all these horrors - dictated by the Back Lodges as are today the
The affairs of the "Flamidians" and "Flamidiesses" formed something like one of these mixtures.
nameless, where some blacks dip their arrows, rotting corpses stuffed with plants poisonous and macerated with snake heads.

In London, writes Mr. Pierre de Nolhac, Madame de la Motte publishes her odious Memoirs, made of rage and lies, which drag the Crown through the mud of infamous streams. Between the Between the Queen's word and that of the young girl, France hesitates. Soon she dares to choose, and these are the pamphlets of this woman which definitively established the legend of Mary's vices Antoinette. This is where Fouquier-Tinville will find his arguments and arm his justice.

Let us immediately reveal the hand of mysterious scoundrels, guiding the hand of the bastard of the Valois.

The unpublished correspondence between Madame de la Motte and her sister Marie-Anne is preserved.
at the National Archives. It opens up profound horizons on the insidious suggestions that had transformed into an instrument of crime the daughter of the ancient kings, enraged by her decadent and thirsty for pleasure and ambition.

Speaking of the Count de la Motte and his friends - whom she does not name - Marie-Anne de Valois
He wrote to his sister in a poignant, heartfelt letter:

"Poor unfortunate woman! It's those people, their bad company, their bad Advice that ruined you! And the memoirs they just made you write, that Your husband had you sign them without signing them himself, so he could disavow them and you could...
Letting the odious things slide has done you great harm. Many people, like me, have...
They believed her to be innocent, as you had assured me at the Bastille, and were astonished by these Memoirs. I don't believe my sister capable of the horrors they contain, especially since they "contain horrors against my father and are filled with falsehoods..." (Quoted by Mr. Funck-Brentano, Death... pp. 125, 126.)

In another letter, she wrote to him:
"Let the past be past! But it is the present that must guide the future. I do not blame"

"In your errors, you are the unfortunate ones who plunged you into them." (Ibid., pp. 129, 130.)

And the mind returns to the enigmatic page where Abbot Georgel denounces the Egyptian Lodge de Cagliostro as the instigator of the Affair of the Necklace, while declaring that he does not believe We must unravel this mystery!

Jeanne had never seen the Queen!

It was in 1788, as we have said, that Madame de la Motte published her Mémoire - and carried through it
The scandal reached its peak – after the Queen's friend, the Duchess of Polignac, came expressly in London, she had gone so far as to negotiate with the thief of the Necklace so that this abominable
The pamphlet was never published.

However (we will prove this with concurring statements), Jeanne de Valois had not I've never seen the Queen, whom she's going to try to smear by recounting her relationship with her! Not even up close.
From a distance, she had no personal reason to hate her.

On the other hand - and this is further proof that occult influences were at work around Madame de la Motte - to counterbalance the Queen's offers of money brought by Madame de Polignac, he was forced to accept that other offers would be made by enemies of the Crown to This greedy woman. Moreover, once the last diamonds that escaped seizure were devoured...
Due to legal issues, she had fallen back into abject poverty.

Surely "those yens," as poor Marie-Anne was talking about, those wretched advisors continued to push Madame de la Motte to ever more atrocious infamies, because, in The slander against the Queen, doomed to dishonor and death, was what the Occult Power wanted.
inexorable crescendo, a deafening rinforzando, like the one described by Basil of The Marriage of Figaro, on the stage of the Théâtre Français.

We do not want to plunge into that cesspool of lies and filth that is the Memoir

Madame de la Motte's justification before returning the unjustly dragged Queen in the mud a sorrowful tribute, demonstrating the absolute, glaring falsehood of accusations made against her by the thief of the Necklace.

First of all, Marie Antoinette, let's reiterate, never had any relationship with Jeanne de Valois is lying when she says in her Memoir that she entered the most close intimacy with the Queen.

Let us affirm, writes Mr. Funck-Brentano in a very convincing passage, that she never had with The Queen of reports of any kind, at any time. The Queen never saw her. Marie-Antoinette wrote to her brother Joseph II on August 22, 1785: "This schemer of the lowest order has "No place here and never had access to me." - "At the time of the trial," said Ms. Campan, the Queen sent for some of the engravings depicting Mme de la Motte. She did not remember seeing her pass through the public gallery at Versailles, and where Madame de la Motte had often been seen.

What did Rosalie, the Countess's chambermaid, tell the investigators?

“I have never heard anyone in the house talk about relationships that Mrs. de la Motte could have had with the Queen.

What did Mile Colson, her lady-in-waiting, say?

"I spent two years with Madame de la Motte (precisely at the time of the plot of the Collier) and have never seen or heard anything that would lead me to suspect any connections between the Queen and the Countess.

What does Marie-Anne de Saint-Rémy, sister of Jeanne de Valois, declare to Abbot Bew, who immediately sent word to his cousin, the bookseller Bew, in London, publisher of the Memoirs of Madame de la Motte?

“Yes, sir, my sister herself told me that the letters in her Memoir had been forged and that most of the Memoir was false. As for me, sir, I confess to you with, "I trust that my sister never had an interview with the Queen..."

And what does Madame de la Motte herself declare in her letters, in her interrogations? in her confrontations, in the memoirs she had her lawyer write? "I have never had the honor of seeing the Queen.” (Interrogation of May 8, 1786.) – “I have never boasted of having influence with the Queen.” (Ibid.) – “I don’t know anyone who was attached to the Queen.” (Letter written at the Bastille on August 29, 1785.) — “The lady de la Motte,” said Ms. Doillot, her lawyer, despite having a genuinely recognized name, was ignored at Court and had no relationship with the Sovereign, either public or private. And, further on: "Should we to speak of another fable, of these liaisons with the Queen, which, it is claimed, the lady of La Motte... Was it done, honor, as well as a secret correspondence? The Countess de la Motte would be She is indeed guilty, if the allegation were true, since it is an honor she has never received. humbly begs his judges to listen attentively to the reading of the depositions on this fable, to pay close attention to the firm tone with which she denied it."

After these multiple and consistent testimonies, can there be any doubt whatsoever? (Mr. Funck-Brentano, Death... pp - 119 to 122.)

With the fundamental lie of the existence of relations between the Queen and Mrs. de la Motte, in his explanatory memorandum, contains a particularly abominable lie: it is the Queen, wrote the thief, who took the Necklace! - At the Bastille, she had claimed that the thief It was Cagliostro. Then in Parliament, she declared that it was the Prince of Rohan.

Furthermore, on the eve of appearing before her judges, she had written:

"It is a constant fact that the King and Queen had refused for several years." to acquire the Necklace. If it is true that the Queen had formed a new vow for this jewel, she could obtain it easily using the funds at her disposal.

What Madame de la Motte doesn't say (and for good reason!) is that she is the thief. However, later, she involuntarily wrote the formal confession in her own handwriting. January 11

In 1790, in fact, she wrote to her husband:

"And don't forget that funny girl from Surmont. (Mr. de la Motte's aunt. It was she who, at Bar-sur-Aube, had handed over to the police the diamonds of which she was the unwitting receiver.
For, my friend, oh yes, she is the cause of our misfortunes. Do not spare her, in the name of Good God! If I could, I don't know what I would do to her! Understand well, my friend, that if she hadn't given, yes, given everything in its own time, our diamonds, alas! my friend, on what would we have-
Were we condemned?

From the depths of her abjection, the thief who made this confession, filled with regret and rage, triumphed.
of the Queen of France! It was she who definitively crushed her under the weight of slander. accumulated in his Justificatory Memorandum. And this pamphlet, whose action was decisive on the Marie Antoinette's fate appears just one year before Freemasonry unleashes the Revolution—the Revolution, which is her own work, she boasts of it now that she has returned in power and holds us under its yoke.

The Collaborators of Madame de la Motte.

Marie Antoinette, who from the very first day had felt that the Affair of the Necklace was the fruit of a plot hatched against her, who later understood all too well the terrifying role played out in his life - and especially in his death - by the Justificatory Memorandum, the earliest of the pamphlets launched in the name of Madame de la Motte. Two days before the terrible night of August 10th 1792, which saw the fall of her throne, the Queen sent to the Viscountess of Fontanges" by the in the hands of the Abbot of Montesquiou-Fezensac, to be preserved for him until better times, the manuscript of this abominable memoir, the non-publication of which Madame de Polignac had negotiated in vain.
appearance; this is enough to show how much importance Marie Antoinette attached to these pages cursed, born of the most monstrous of collaborations. The Justificatory Memorandum, indeed, is not the original work of Mme de la Motte: it has been revised, almost on every page, by Louis XVI's former minister, Calonne, who came to London to nurse his hatred against Marie-Antoinette, whom he accuses of having brought about his disgrace. Moreover, as Madame de la Motte wrote in with an improbable style, Calonne brought him Serre de Latour, a French publicist, who had having taken refuge in London with the wife of the intendant of Auvergne whom he had abducted, he was writing the Courier of Europe...

“I can attest,” wrote Madame Campan, “that I saw a manuscript in the Queen’s hands.” Memoirs of La Motte's wife, which had been brought to him from London and which was corrected, in the very hand of M. de Calonne, in all the places where total ignorance of The Court's practices had led to some very serious errors.

“Mr. de Latour,” wrote Count de la Motte, “handed the manuscript over to Mr. de Calonne.” who made countless changes, corrections, and additions to it, almost at every page; all these corrections were in his own hand and, for the most part, in pencil.

For her part, Madame de la Motte declared: "It was Monsieur de Calonne who corrected the Memoirs.” (Life of Joan..., Vol. II, p. 167.) This threefold testimony is further confirmed by that of Cahisse, who was then in London as an "observer" for the French police and in contact with Calonne....

"I had handed it over to the Marquis de la Luzerne (French ambassador to London)," wrote the Count de la Motte, the manuscript of M. de Calonne. He had sent it to Cardinal de Loménie de Brienne. He and his brother, who was then Minister of War, had taken it upon themselves to to conclude. The aim was to buy the silence of the de la Motte couple and prevent the printing a pamphlet. It was this manuscript that Mile Campan saw in the Queen's hands. (M. Funck-Brentano, Death... pp. 113 to 116.)

When one considers the combined efforts of the Queen's friend, Madame de Polignac, as well as by the French Ambassador in London, who himself was informed by the best police officers

#2 Lafont d'Aussonne, Secret Memoirs, vol. II, pp. 136, 137.

Called from Paris, one can appreciate the interest that High Freemasonry had in getting the Lodges to act.
women approached the Queen to urge her to facilitate the escape of Madame de la Motte.

But if the Crown had its agents in London to try to subdue Madame de la Motte
In the face of silence, one can consider how much, on the other hand, the brown-shirted journalist Serre de Latour was in the hands of the Occult Power a skillful instrument!

Later, we will see that, a few months apart, the condottieri of the same Courier of Europe, Serre de Latour and Morande, mortally wounded the two principal agents of the High Freemasonry in the Affair of the Necklace, Madame de la Motte and Cagliostro, the first in him playing – for the benefit of the Occult Power – the very nasty trick recounted below, and the second in the forcing, through overwhelming revelations, them to leave England in shame.

Indeed, Cagliostro was now good for nothing but compromising his masters.
secrets. They made sure he saw them! They shattered him like glass.

At the same time as Cagliostro, Madame de la Motte, too, once her pocket was ripped open at bile, became useless to the Back Lodges: consequently, it will quickly disappear in the mud whose flow she stirred up. Far from compromising herself by lending her support in her In her distress, the scoundrels whose mysterious plans she served will let her die.
miserably.

We will describe in detail the harm that the publication of her Memoir did to Madame de la Motte justification, the first of his books. But our readers will guess it in advance by reading a a very curious page from his second and last work, the Life of Jeanne de Saint-Rémy de Valois. In it, she recounts how much she suffered from being forced to dishonor the Queen and the Cardinal, for whom she had "so much respect and gratitude" (!) and how much this The arduous task was beyond his capabilities:

“I resorted,” she said, “to the assistance of a man of letters (we saw above that it was Serre de Latour), who was recommended to me by the former minister (M. de Calonne), and I entrusted him with to put the main facts in order, and to give voice to the outpourings of my heart.

Overconfident in her loyalty and talents, I didn't think I should dwell on the
the first parts of the work, and I focused all my attention on the presentation of the facts relating to the Necklace. Satisfied with its accuracy in conveying my ideas on this important point, I thought I paid little attention to the rest, and completely ignored his description of my second interview with the Queen.
where, I suppose, through a misguided desire to give more energy to my speeches, he... exposed to suspicions that my soul abhors.

The work was published, and the watchful malice of my enemies rejoiced, no doubt, at They found an aspect of my defense that, according to them, lent itself to further attacks. When I Having read it, I could not resist a feeling of surprise and indignation; I called the writer and I overwhelmed him with reproaches mingled with tears. He replied that it was impossible to find any criminal in meaning to the words he had used; but his explanation could neither reassure My grief, number one, is to repair the damage done to my reputation. Several people of integrity recognized witnesses were present when I formally protested that I had in no way authorized such language, and I recommended that the entire article be restored to its original simplicity.
in the translation (understood to be: English), it being then too late to correct the original.

... The subtleties of legal wrangling will no longer be able to claim a perversion of meaning. "Some indiscreet, ambiguous, ill-considered, and even disavowed expressions..." (Life of Jeanne. 2nd ed. in Paris, year 1 of the French Republic, vol. 1, pp. 11-13.)

We will speak later, as discreetly as possible, of this so-called "second" interview with the Queen,” whose odious and mendacious account was surreptitiously slipped into the First explanatory memorandum by Serre de Latour. But we must already point out that the latter is clearly acting under the influence of "carefully selected individuals" covered," as Mme de la Motte had done, according to the express statement of her own sister.

As for the Life of Jeanne de Saint-Rémy de Valois, this new book, as treacherous as its the elder brother, as dangerous as he to the Queen's reputation in some respects, was written to a At this hour, Madame de la Motte, abandoned by all, is in a terrifying distress. Her husband - her accomplice - left her all alone in London to return to Paris, where he plots Joyfully with the protagonists of the Revolution, many of whom are certainly not worth dearer than him. Misery and despair are consuming this woman. Her new pamphlet is her only hope of profit: either that she sell it to the public, or that she sell it to the Court of Versailles, before or after its printing, has no chance of success except through perfidy and... the horrors it contains; the more they are likely to grievously wound the Queen's honor, the more They ensure a profitable business for Mme de la Motte.

Well! In the crescendo, the rinforzando of the calumnies raised against Marie-Antoinette and tenfold by the appearance of the justification from Mme de la Motte, her second The book, The Life of Jeanne de Saint-Rémy, is the only one to make a singular exception: instead A step down into filth is a step backward! Instead of adding fuel to the fire with these revelations contained in his first book about the alleged vices of "Marie Antoinette," we see On the contrary, Madame de la Motte denies the authenticity of his so-called confessions! She disavows the The layout artist of his book!

The necklace thief was acting in a way diametrically opposed to the plans of Occult Powers realized at that time in a terrifying avalanche of pamphlets vile pamphlets against the Queen, even more vile than the Justificatory Memorandum of Madame de la Motte, but all based on the apocryphal confessions that this Memoir gives her attributed.

It follows from this that, in all likelihood, Jeanne de Valois the liar did not lie when She reproached Serre de Latour and old Calonne for having, outside of her, "inserted into his manuscript of indecent expressions relating to the Queen." (Life of Joan, vol. II, p.

267.)

On the other hand, the introduction of this garbage into the Justification Memorandum has served the designs of the Back Lodges so that the proverb is not applied to them here: 1s fécit cui prodest: it is the one who benefits from the crime who committed it.

The False Confessions of the Countess.

The two symbolic pillars of Freemasonry are called Jachin and Boaz, but their The names should rather be Lies and Falsehoods, since falsehood and lies are at the root of everything she says and everything she does.

We have shown that Madame de la Motte was the main false witness of the Power Occult campaign against the Queen, first in the deposition before Parliament, then in the two Supporting memoranda including false confessions and letters forged to be attributed to the unfortunate Sovereign flooded France and Europe. But upon reading the Jeanne de Valois protested, and it was understood that the Back Lodges had falsified the documents. poisoned in the most infamous way the false testimony of the wretch of which they had makes their instrument.

At present, thanks to the progress of modesty in Christian souls, certain The paintings are too repugnant to honest people for it to be possible to reproduce them here. perfidious expressions which Serre de Latour, the collaborator of Madame de la Moite, had used to describe the authoress's second imaginary interview with the Queen. We Therefore, to inform our readers, we will simply refer them to the first chapter of the Epistle of Saint Paul to the Romans. The great Apostle did not use circumlocutions there. But if Mrs. de La Motte wept over the stain on "his reputation" caused by the abusive insertion

=

"indecent expressions relating to the Queen" made without her knowledge in the manuscript of her Supporting memoranda, it is nonetheless proven that it is there - in the deadly venom of these apocryphal confessions - which from then on all the pamphleteers in the pay of the Lodges have dipped their arrows before riddling Marie Antoinette with them.

It is in this dark perfidy of a mendacious and supremely abominable confession, added to the abominable lies of a forger and a thief who, better than anywhere else Elsewhere perhaps, High Freemasonry has shown that it knows its craft inside and out. of a poisoner of souls and a masked murderer. Indeed, through various testimonies, we will establish that the slanderous accusations of immorality leveled against the Queen are at first among those who killed all pity for her in the hearts of her Temple jailers and the Conciergerie. It was they again who aroused the righteous fury of the monstrous assassins of the Princess de Lamballe, the pure and unfortunate friend of Marie Antoinette.

Ah, the Occult Power sees from afar! It defiles and kills from a long distance!

The alleged confessions of Madame de la Motte concerning her relationship with the Queen,
This is the basis of the vile calumnies that plagued Marie Antoinette until her death!
"The infamies and crimes of the Queen"—that is the odious leitmotif of the infernal music.
hissed in every tone by the Masonic reptiles immediately after the appearance of the Memoirs supporting documents, in 1788.

We heard the same masterful ensemble when, with the same stroke of the bow, the
The mysterious conductor Liebknecht spoke of had the same psalm sung.
Dreyfusard to all newspapers sold to Israel, in every corner of the globe...

More pamphilets against the Queen.

When Beaumarchais depicted, with his well-known vigor, the crescendo in the slander, reinforcing him in the outrage, he proved the profound knowledge he had of his an era when the power of the philosophical Lodges was at its peak. But we had never heard a more terrifying crescendo than that of the pamphlets that screamed in the ears of the Queen the alleged revelations of the Justificatory Memoirs, amplifying them in a concert resounding insults like cymbal crashes!

In the first year of the Republic, Madame de la Motte wrote in the preface to her second and latest book:

"It is important to warn the public here that they must be on guard against the various productions that my enemies (!) circulate under the seal of my signature; and, among others, a purported continuation of my Memoirs, as well as an address to the National Assembly, etc., which are all equally fake pieces and whose sole (!) purpose is to try to make me to incur the contempt and indignation of the public.” (Life of Joan... 2nd ed. Paris, year 1, vol. I, pp. 13, 14.)

The vile creature is strangely deluded when it attributes (or pretends to attribute) to its own enemies whose sole aim is to harm him. These enemies are, in reality, the terrible enemies hidden from the Queen of France, the Monarchy, and Christian Civilization all together, These are the Freemasons; the ignominious pamphlets that we are going to analyze are not something other than "Architectural Planks" drawn in their Lodges on a program determined. One only needs to glance at it to see the Masonic bile oozing from it with the stupid and redundant Masonic phraseology that still abounds today (after a hundred twenty years!) the "radical and radical-socialist" eloquence of the electoral committees in the hands Lodges.

® See Life of Jeanne de Saint-Rémy de Valois, vol. II, p. 267. - However low a human being falls, there is always a limit to his fall into infamy, and his abjection always remains an ermine purity in comparison to the unspeakable abjection of Secret Societies, which are by their very nature devoted to Evil. We therefore believe in the sincerity of the horror expressed by Jeanne de Valois for the infamous story put in her mouth by Serre de Latour.

The authors of these various pamphlets falsely attributed to Madame de la Motte were very concerned little to overwhelm him with an additional dose of contempt; their true aim only becomes apparent all too clearly when we consider the fact that we have just read: all the pamphlets of which The appearance immediately followed that of the supporting documents, which insist in the terms the most cynical about the false confession of Mme de la Motte inserted outside of her in these Memoirs; everyone comments on it and develops it with shameful refinements in the seeking scandal. We are quick to gloss over these things.

However, it is necessary to say a word about this: the latest pamphlets in question are far more ignoble than Madame de la Motte's Justificatory Memoirs! And Yet to what degree of abjection had the latter already fallen, along with her collaborators?
mysterious, in the infamous letters attributed to the Queen and the Cardinal, in the
The terrible accusations leveled against Marie Antoinette! We shall see.

Here, in the collection of forgeries published by Mme de la Motte, is the seventeenth letter.
The Queen supposedly wrote to the Cardinal:

"...Put on the clothes of a messenger, a package in your hand, and walk around at eleven an hour and a half under the pillars of the chapel (of the Palace of Versailles); I will send the Countess, who will serve as your guide and lead you up a small hidden staircase into a "Apartment where you will find the object of your desires." Justificatory memoir. London, 1788, appendix.
p. 30.)

Reading this garbage—so utterly stupid, yet all the more capable of impressing the brains of the hallucinating and the hypnotized fools in the Lodges - let us remember the cry treacherous, pushed on May 30, 1786 before Parliament by Madame de la Motte, at the last minute of, his appearance: "I saw more than two hundred letters!... The Queen addressed him informally in them."
Cardinal!

Regarding letter no. 22, Madame de la Motte writes:

"The Queen, in handing me this letter, seemed indeed more than worried; I conceived that these were papers of extreme consequence... I began to fear that the Cardinal would not have embarked on any act of treason. This idea affected me deeply.
(Men. justif....., p. 74.)

Here, in addition to the calumnies about the alleged vices of Marie Antoinette, is one of the impious accusations that most hastened her march to the guillotine: "The Queen betrayed the "Nation! The Austrian woman is selling France to her brother!"

When we get to the unjust trial where Marie Antoinette was condemned to death
Through the Revolutionary Tribunal, we will bring to justice all forms of calumny.
gathered against her; we will then prove that far from being biased in favor of her country Originally, she was, on the contrary, ardently attached to France, the homeland of her children. Let us limit-
For the moment, we are considering the Affair of the Necklace and the Dreyfus Affair side by side.
These machinations of the Occult Power, which seem like twin sisters: we will measure
Thus, the depth of the fall that France has been made to make over the past century; in 1788, one aroused the furious anger of the French nation with this crazy idea that the Queen (his Queen!) betrayed, while in recent days a whole clan of poisoners had emerged and of poisoners to claim that the treason of an officer is not even a venial offense.

Blood mixed with filth.

Maurice Talmeyr masterfully demonstrated that one of the objectives of the Occult Power to The present time is to corrupt the French nation to its very core. The same was true in on the eve of the Revolution, and one of the methods then followed with infernal perseverance
It was, as we know, the incessant distribution of vile brochures. They aimed at a dual purpose:
to defile imaginations with filthy paintings and to debase the Queen by attributing to her all the possible vices.

With the immediate approach of the Revolution - and this observation alone would suffice to to prove that the explosion of 1789 was not spontaneous but caused by machinations of a conspiracy - the pornographic pamphlets against the Queen are complicated by accusations of increasingly violent attacks on the alleged crimes of Marie Antoinette: assassinations, poisonings, plans to massacre citizens, betrayal of France for the benefit of Austria.

Moreover, this literature of lies and mud continues today in the history textbooks that serve the Occult Power to successively poison all the French generations. It is the hatreds sown by the implacable enemy of France that hiding behind the miais and the fanatics of the Grand Orient are incredibly hateful tenacious. Marie Antoinette, dead for 117 years, is one of those dead people who must be killed, in the eyes of those who incite these hatreds, no doubt because they fear that traditions represented by the Queen-Martyr will not one day rise again. Likewise, our readers have surely the scandal caused some time ago by a certain schoolteacher is present in mind that there are no words to describe: she showed, as we recall, to her young pupils a An engraving depicting the death of Marie Antoinette on the scaffold, with this commentary:
The bitch's flat tire.

Judging by the care taken to tarnish the memory of Marie Antoinette, after 117 years, one can judge the the desire that was there to bring it down, in 1788!

As the time is up, as the race to the abyss will become increasingly precipitated, for France as for the Queen, - once the first Memoir had appeared Proof from Mrs. de la Motte - the mysterious ringleaders are beginning to mix blood with the mud, so that the populace starts seeing red when Marie Antoinette is mentioned! And the pamphlets in which the Occult Power had the first Memorandum summarized and commented upon at the same time Justificataire combines a tragic leitmotif with the infamous leitmotif of the Queen's vices! Thus, at the end of the apocryphal Second Justificatory Memorandum, one reads these lines which reek of The perfidy of the Freemasons, intent on stirring up bestial fury against Marie Antoinette ferocious:

"May fear work in Antoinette's soul what love and adoration never could." of 24 million individuals; may an absolute Queen remember that her crimes alone could to raise against you (Louis XVI) the most servile, the weakest, the most loving people of the earth and expose her to seeking half-naked salvation in the arms of a husband whose The day before, she had, it is said, ordered the assassination... May the unfortunate wife soon deserve... the wishes and blessings of a people whose blood she sought to shed. (Second Memoir) (justification..., p. 66 and last page.)

We will return to the cruel incident to which this pamphlet alludes. Let's just say Here is the odious invention of the assassination of Louis XVI ordered by Marie Antoinette.
accompanied by the double accusation of having poisoned Ministers Maurepas and Vergennes. We will pass over the infamous motives attributed to these alleged murders.

Throughout this document, the Queen is described as: a fierce woman, the fierce Antoinette, who could have been the idol of 25 million men and whom 25 million men have made into a habit of despising and abhorring, placing her between Medici and Fredegund. (Second Memoirs) (justification..., p. 3.)

Further on, the scoundrels who hid behind the usurped signature of Mme de la Motte
They reproach the poor Queen for her supposed thirst for blood and gold, her insatiable need to do harm, to conspire against everything that is good and useful. In short, it is their own flaws that...
Men from the Back Lodges accuse Marie Antoinette of wearing!

At the same time as the Second Memoir, ON - this mysterious ON bent on the destruction of the Queen - Another pamphlet was published: The Queen Unveiled or Supplement to the Memoir of The Countess of Valois... It's a series of letters attributed to various people from the Court. These forgeries are astounding in their stupidity and vulgarity, which testify to profound contempt in which the Occult Power held its dupes... "What wouldn't I make them believe!" he exclaimed Weishaupt. What absurdities the Backrooms made the French believe before Throw them into the abyss of the Revolution! Here is a sample of these murderous insanities:

"The Queen's heart is perfectly known to me," wrote her secretary, the Abbé de Vermont, to the Archbishop of Toulouse. I know all his inclinations... He's a singular character.
of what immortalized Medici and Messalina." (The Queen Unveiled, p. 11.)

Here, the Fredegund of the previous pamphlet is replaced by Messalina. Later, it will be Agrippina! ...

I'll skip over the obligatory allusions to the vices of the Queen and her friends (we've had our share).
carefully sprinkled this pamphlet); and I come to the Letter of Countess Valois of the Motte to the Queen of France, also falsely attributed to Jeanne de Valois as the Second Memoir. Madame de la Motte supposedly reproaches Marie Antoinette – with more violence More insulting than ever - to have "taught" her her vices! This thief is made to say... unfortunate Queen (who has never seen her):

"Bold and barbaric woman. Hateful and disappointing woman. How could you possibly blush, you who, having been so long familiar with crime and shame, commits the one, exposes herself to the other with the cold-bloodedness of the most calculated barbarity... My first Memoirs and the two Parts of the historical essays on your life are enough to convince the multitude of what she had already harbored such strong suspicions, your abuses, your boundless depredations, your dissipations Outrageous, your nocturnal and clandestine escapades; some indiscretions of your Mercurys had France had already learned that Marie Antoinette was becoming a monster of lust and shamelessness and that she added to this title that of a true scourge of the people.

What follows is an inconceivable "Piece of Architecture" where the Masonic forger attributes to Madame de la Motte, a horrifying painting of the Bastille (she knows it well, doesn't she?) (since she herself groaned there for many long months!) and a furious diatribe on the cruelties of the Queen towards the unfortunate people thrown on his orders into "this tomb, dreadful to humanity".

"And when, like the Grand Seigneur (cries the pseudo-countess to Marie Antoinette),
You sent them, through Le Noir's ministry, your hired executioner, the fatal cord, the noose murderers, they accepted the death you inflicted upon them as an end to their torment.
"How awful the suffering you made them endure!" (Letter from the Countess... p. 7.)

The results of these abominable impostures - results that have been long and cruelly expected - we know them: the charitable, the delightful creature that the people of France had The idolized woman was prey, in the Temple prison and in the dungeons of the Conciergerie, to tortures both crude and refined, inflicted by infamous brutes whose Cruelty has dishonored the human race.

But if these beasts with human faces deserve to be forever reviled by anyone carries in his breast a French heart, of what brazen must our hatreds against the Occult Power and its monsters, whose patient machinations preemptively extinguished all pity.
in the dark soul of Marie Antoinette's executioners!

VII

INSPIRED HATRED AGAINST THE BASTILLE

If, on the eve of the Revolution, Marie Antoinette, daughter of the Catholic Caesars and wife of The Most Christian King, symbolized France as the eldest daughter of the Church; the Bastille, she also, in the eyes of the sectarians, was the symbol of royal power that had long been Enemies of Christian civilization tried to make it odious, portraying it as "tyrannical".

"Speaking of the Sovereigns (written in Rome by the author of the Life of J. Balsamo, written in 1790)" (on the documents from his trial), when speaking of the Sovereigns, Cagliostro accommodated himself to the genius of his listeners, sometimes insinuating subordination, more often independence, and having "The custom of calling sovereigns tyrants." (French translation, 1791, p. 170.)

In the discreet quotation we made from the Second Justificatory Memorandum, one thing has What will certainly strike our readers is that two deadly ideas are coupled in this libel, like the coupled cannonballs of old: the Second Memoir has for their manifest mission is to sow these two lies together among the masses: the lie of Marie Antoinette's unspeakable vices and the lie about the tortures inflicted by her order on prisoners of the Bastille.

As noted by the anonymous author of a curious Authentic History (sic) of the Revolution, written day by day from 1789 to 1792*:

"...the Queen was already very odious; it was necessary to make her execrable..." (Authentic History, vol. 1, p.
342.)

Like the converging fire of battalions commanded by a single leader, it is always to the same end – the downfall of the Queen and the French Monarchy – as the efforts of scribes of the Occult Power, whether they attribute the apocryphal Second to Mme de la Motte Justificatory Memorandum, either that they inspire the writings of Cagliostro which we have to discuss NOW.

If the Grand Copt, Founder of Egyptian Freemasonry, was ever a being instrumental in the hands of hidden powers, it is indeed in the Supplication that he addressed (or (which they pretended he had sent!) from the depths of the Bastille, on May 29, 1786, - two days before the pronouncement of the verdict in the Necklace Trial. At that date, when it was still in the hands
judges, and where he should not, in sound reason, risk diminishing the impression wildly favorable that Masonic suggestions imposed in his favor in Parliament as well as in the crowd, - a memorandum is filed with the clerk in his name: in it he dares to accuse the Marquis of

This was the preparation for the night of October 5, 1789. (LD)

Launay, Governor of the Bastille, and Commissioner Chesnon (who had stolen it during his Arrest!

Here the French translator of the Roman book The Life of Joseph Balsamo will shed some light on the matter. greatly, in his notes written both to execute the burned Masonic agent that was Cagliostro and to divert attention from the serious denunciations of the Papal Court against Freemasonry. First, he quite rightly states that Cagliostro was not capable of writing with elegance "neither in French nor in any other language." (Life of J. Balsamo, Paris, 1791, note by (page 95.) This opens the door to many assumptions about the things that ONE might have put in writings falsely bearing the signature of Cagliostro!

Regarding the alleged theft committed by de Launay and Chesnon, the French translator writes:

"He could not commit any infidelity with regard to the prisoners' effects" prisoners at the Bastille; when a prisoner was brought to this castle, an inventory was taken of Everything that belonged to him was entered in the register of entries and he signed it. At the time Upon his release, everything was returned to him, and he signed the receipt in the exit register.
formalities were constantly observed and were not neglected n1 for Cagliostro n1 for his women.

Cagliostro, upon leaving the Bastille, had shown the Marquis de Launay the most vivid
He acknowledged the good treatment he had received and asked for his apologies.
regarding the denunciation that had been made in his name to Parliament, disavowing this denunciation with all the expression of sincerity. However, no sooner was he in London than he attempted an action to this same man to whom he had shown so much gratitude. As he was Outside the kingdom, he ran no risk whatsoever, whatever the event, in his actions. (Life by J. Balsamo, p. 66, footnote.)

If we recall the terrors that had driven Cagliostro to the brink of suicide, during his entry into the Bastille; if we compare them with the very natural joy he feels in escaping the perils he so greatly feared; if, finally, one compares Cagliostro disavowing the Memorandum filed against Mr. de Launay, with Mrs. de la Motte disavowing the Second Memorandum
The justification falsely attributed to him – we will conclude, as we did, that Cagliostro,

In this instance, he was telling the truth, as was Madame de la Motte. He was sincere and truthful.
Cagliostro, that professional Masonic liar, when, upon leaving his prison,
He thanked the Governor of the Bastille for his kindness and apologized for the odious denunciation.
that had been launched against him in his name. Likewise, she weeps real tears of shame.
the shameless Jeanne de Valois, when she is indignant about the filth that has been signed with her name in his first memoir.

But the execrable Sovereign who commands Madame de la Motte and Cagliostro, the Freemasonry, Queen of Lies, had a huge interest in the French Monarchy and the Queen who embodied it and the Parisian fortress that symbolized it became all a collection of objects of horror and hatred. As the anonymous historian we quoted earlier...
The Queen's writings at the time, after October 1789, stated: they were already quite odious; they needed to be...
To render all together, the Royalty, the Queen, and the royal fortress, utterly detestable!

Also, consider this double result:

Despite Madame de la Motte's modest protests, the calumnies of the Second Memoir Justification will make its way against Marie Antoinette! In the eyes of the foolish crowd, Are these calumnies not authenticated by the so-called confession of the descendant?
of the Valois, "the Queen's favorite"?

Despite the outpourings of gratitude shown to M. de Launay by Cagliostro; despite his disavowal of the Petition to Parliament, the lies accumulated in this Petition to The alleged horrors of the Bastille will become the truth! Thanks to the magic of this Signature: Cagliostro, these lies will spread. These are the lies - falsely attributed to Cagliostro by his unknown superiors - who, three years later, on the 14th July 1789, they will cut down the bloody corpse of the Governor of the Bastille at the feet of winners of the great Masonic Day...

And it is – as is logical – in imposture that we see the greatest
The so-called French Revolution is a modern-day mystification.

The High Mason Ximenes.

If the heavy grip of the Occult Power on its slave "the Grand Copt" appears constantly in her story, for those who know how to open their eyes, she lets herself be seen. particularly in a visit that Cagliostro received a few days after his release from the Bastille.

Before leaving France, from which Louis XVI had banished him, Cagliostro went to Passy. Now,
As we recall, it was already in Passy, in the Hôtel des Boulainvilliers, that the Loge des Martinist Philalethes, The United Friends, and Strict Observance Freemasonry (penetrated by The Illuminati of Weishaupt had orchestrated the Affair of the Necklace (see above). It was from Passy that Jeanne de Valois, the little beggar girl picked up in the street by the Countess of Boulainvilliers had taken flight like a bird of prey! It was in Passy again, and probably under the aegis of the Count of Boulainvilliers, which, among many other visits (the author writes (Roman, according to the documents of the 1790 trial), Cagliostro received a visit from Thomas Ximenes and another high-ranking Freemason. "They asked me," he said, "a thousand questions about the affairs of France," about the mistreatment I had suffered in Paris. They added that, as Prime Ministers Masons of the Strict Observance, they made many efforts to avenge the Templars, that they primarily directed their views against France and Italy and in "particularly against Rome." He held a Lodge of his Rite in the same village... Thirteen days Afterwards, he headed towards Boulogne (and from there crossed into England). (Life of J. Balsamo, 1791, p. 149.)

Now, here is what Cagliostro said about this Ximenes in 1790, in his confession to the judges of Rome.
(judges with far greater foresight than the Freemason-affiliated judges of the Parliament of Paris): their describing his visits to Saint Petersburg "in the Lodges of the High Observance which, from even those of the Strict Observance, are very numerous there," he adds that the sectarians of this Observance (the Strict) directed mainly their attacks against France and against Rome, and that they were led in this plan by a Spaniard who called himself Thomas Ximenes. He continually traveled throughout Europe and, in order to achieve his goal of projects, he spent a lot of money which was provided to him by contributions from the Lodges.
Cagliostro said he met him in different cities, but always under different names and...

different clothes. (Life of J. Balsamo, Paris, 1791, pp. 125, 126.)

Let's just say this in passing: forgetful of the dangers that certain Judaizing sectarians had created In the 15th century, Empress Catherine II, running to Russia, long favored propaganda. of Judeo-Masonry. But when the French Revolution unleashed its horrors, Catherine she immediately saw that the criminal hand of the Freemasons was there, and she immediately had the Lodges throughout her empire. It is to this gesture of the great Tsarina that the Russians of today They owe their current victory against the Revolution, daughter of Freemasonry, because within In a people untouched by Masonic cancer, it is in impotence that the vibrios stir. of social disorganization like the Ximenes and the Cagliostros - agents of all the Bund Jews of yesterday and today.

83

Linguet the Anti-Mason and the Bastille.

He is a man who played, in the storm of popular fury against the Bastille, the role of These sorcerers, whom the Romans called fempestatorii, "storm bringers." His name was Linguet. His story will show the power of Masonic ideas. already possessed, fifteen years before the Revolution, since they were able to expel this from France a great journalist, because of his anti-Masonic stance and despite the protection of the Queen who, In his foresight, he appreciated in him a valuable champion of monarchical traditions.

A tenacious lawyer, Linguet, through his impetuosity, quickly managed to exasperate his colleagues against him. colleagues in Parliament where Freemasons were beginning to proliferate. Such a tough competitor was quite troublesome, with his violent attacks launched entirely independently: he was struck off the list. of the bar. This was one of the first Masonic excommunications in France.

Linguet's renown called him to the French Academy: but the F d'Alembert - the all-powerful maker of Academicians, just as Warwick had been "the kingmaker" - he turned him away on the pretext that "Mr. Linguet had made countless enemies and that he had even within the French Academy a party furious against him." (Quoted by E. Hatin, Hist.

(From the Press in France, Paris, 1859, vol. II, p. 332.)

Linguet took his revenge by writing a letter to F d'Alembert in which our readers will see How far-sighted was this precursor of modern Anti-Masons! As early as 1774, he discerned in
In effect, the lie of Masonic tolerance, the fanaticism of the Masonic sect, the absurdity of its old, poorly "refurbished" systems which reissued, in Freemasonry Encyclopedia, full of errors (large with bloody cataclysms!) by so many heretics antisocial and anti-Christian sentiments had accumulated over eighteen centuries.

Today, the conquest of the French Academy by the Judeo-Masons is a fact accomplished, as we know. Therefore, one will read with interest this letter in which, in 1774, Linguet... whipped, in the most august person of F d'Alembert, hypocrisy and tyranny Masonic groups that had invaded the French Academy before invading the whole of France and... erecting the Holy Guillotines, less than twenty years later:

“If men who loudly demand tolerance in favor of their aphorisms erupt in fury the moment one dares to even pretend to discuss them; if they look as a dangerous enemy, if they try to subject to a stigmatizing excommunication the man who lives alone, uncovers what he believes to be true... whose only crime is refusing to enter for Nothing in their fanatical conventicles, indeed, sir, too bad for them. And if it's me
I, the target of these dishonorable cabals, far from being distressed by them, will make them glory; far from abandoning the conduct and principles that have led me to it, I will cling to it More than ever.

It would be very surprising if I didn't have the freedom to indulge in my own extravagance, when all
The philosophical musings of the century abandon themselves without danger to the most absurd delirium. It is true that I
I haven't given my new releases an encyclopedic veneer, a passport to all scrap metal re-whitened with which so many criers of old philosophical hats we stun...

With regard to the Academy, I am well aware that you and Mr. Duclos dispose of it like despots.
places in this literary Senate; I know perfectly well that you are the Saint Peters of this little Paradise: you only open its gates to those marked with the sign of the beast. I am not one of them.

Neither angry nor jealous. I don't know if I'll ever feel the urge to try to be admitted; but I know although I gladly renounce it if it is absolutely necessary to bear a seal of disapproval;
If anything other than being firm, upright, and naive is needed, respect what is respectable, and despise

What is despicable is to disdain sects and their fanaticism... (Letter from Linguet to F) d'Alembert, quoted by E. Hatin, Hist. de la Presse, vol. II, pp. 332, 333.)

"To disdain sects and their fanaticism, to refuse to be marked with the sign of the beast" - the Masonic beast – it was very dangerous for Linguet, while the Parliaments and The Academy was already so heavily Freemason-controlled! He became a journalist; he accepted from Panckouke the editorial staff of the Journal of Politics and Literature, known as the Journal of Brussels, whose first issue appeared on October 25, 1774. But Masonic hatred...
She continued in her new career as she had pursued it in her career as a lawyer.
In less than two years, the situation became untenable for him after his audacious attacks against "all the powerful people in Paris, ministers, parliaments, philosophers, d'Alembert and the his own." (Memoirs and Correspondence of Mallet du Pan, Paris, 1851, vol. 1, p. 219.) Now, let us note the Good: too often ministers were already nothing more than puppets in the hands of the Lodges. As for Parliaments and philosophers, some were filled with Freemasons, others were all Freemasons: the "philosophical nonsense" was nothing other than Freemasonry, which preluded the the Reign of Terror, supported by the despotism of sabers, pikes, and scaffolds.
Ferules and writing desks: this prepared that!

Assuredly (said Mr. Sayous, the editor of Mallet du Pan's Memoirs) there was much to to speak about society as it was then, about the conduct and maxims of the men in power, and especially on the growing despotism of literary figures subservient to the party of The Encyclopedia. Linguet. often had the fault of being too right. (Sayous, Memoirs of Mallet du Pan, vol. I, p. 30.)

To be right against Freemasonry, what a crime! They took advantage of a storm raised against Linguet, on the occasion of his attacks against La Harpe who had just been admitted to the Academy, to force him to leave the Journal de Bruxelles, which he had made a success. Outraged by this veritable Linguet wrote to Louis XVI requesting judges. This was in vain, despite the the urgent intervention of Marie Antoinette, who, then at the height of her influence, had taken the

He left the party of the defrauded journalist and wanted him to return his property.

Outraged, Linguet took refuge in London and founded the Annales politiques et littéraires there.
dedicated "To His Majesty the King of France." He later moved the seat of his new newspaper in Brussels. It was from there that, on August 15, 1778, he addressed another letter to Louis XVI dedication with a Public Warning that has now become singularly relevant. that the inner circles are drowning France in the filth of pornography without name :

"For twenty years," wrote Linguet, "the presses of Geneva have been constantly producing works the most revolting, the most likely to alarm decency and the authorities. Joan of Arc, Emile, the System of Nature, etc., have been reprinted there a hundred times. Currently, one In Lausanne, a new edition of this immense collection is being openly sold.
"incomplete," of this motley compilation which would be infinitely dangerous if it were not ridiculous, but the audacity of an intriguing sect and the foolish credulity of the public have the fortune.

... Logic in this world has little influence on events. What good did it do me to say to Economists: You preach freedom; therefore, do not be despots. You want everything
The world speaks; so don't silence me.

---

* The Encyclopedia, a work of Freemasonry. (LD)

What did I gain from shouting for three years to the inhabitants of the Palace: You call yourselves the interpreters of the laws, defenders of property; do not take away my property, my status, my "honor, without hearing me out, or at least without giving any reasons..."

Here, we note yet another striking resemblance which testifies to the Judeo-Masonry is still theft, in the 20th century as in the 18th. Nowadays, in fact, Drumont is stripped of ownership of his book exactly as Linguet was once expelled from his Journal! Here, moreover, is a passage that shines with the foresight of this great Anti-Mason. who, as early as 1778, understood by what weapon Freemasonry would triumph: the Lie repeated indefinitely:

"When we despise them (the Freemasons), we are odious (they say) to everyone." of merit. By dint of repeating with tireless consistency and impudence that this is the case, they often succeed in making that happen.

Starlings only repeat songs they have heard whistled at their schoolteachers." (Linguet, quoted by Hatin, vol. II, p. 359.)

Let us now mention the Secret Correspondence: there is no mistaking the major role that Linguet was capable of playing. How useful he would have been in the defense of the Monarchy! French against the forces of destruction wielded by Freemasonry! Unfortunately, the King Deceived by certain Ministers (half-traitors suggested by the Lodges), he abandoned Linguet to his enemies.

"The King and Monsieur (the future Louis XVIII) read exactly all of his papers (of Linguet).. It's a long-toothed bulldog that the ministry has unleashed against philosophy... » (Secret correspondence, November 9, 1779.)

The Brothers of Parliament and of the "Philosophical Society" returned to the attack. After having Having brought an absurd lawsuit against Linguet, still in Brussels, they lured him to Paris through a series of Masonic betrayals and, on September 27, 1780, the Anti-Mason Linguet, the fiery defender of the Throne and the Altar! On May 19, 1782, Linguet emerged exasperated, trembling from prison, he exhaled his cry for vengeance in his Memoirs on the Bastille, "the first blow of the pickaxe struck (writes Hatin) at this old fortress of the despotism.

In 1787, Cagliostro and the vile pamphleteers hid behind the skirts of Madame de la Motte Their lies about the Bastille will do nothing more than awaken the powerful echoes from Linguet's Memoirs.

The F Cagliostro and the Bastille.

Freemasonry has been preparing its moves for a long time: we have ample proof of this. with all these laws of theft and hatred voted on by the Fifteen Thousand, but first fabricated in the Lodges! The storming of the Bastille (the great Masonic coup of July 14, 1789) was of even prepared well in advance. It is not for nothing that in June 1786, Cagliostro had Received in Passy, upon leaving the Bastille, a visit from the High Freemason Ximenès!

The Grand Cophte will render the Occult Power another service by stirring up the stupid popular fury against the Bastille, which would transform it into a hated symbol of royal power.
those who plotted the ruin of this fortress along with the ruin of the monarchy.

On June 16, 1786, Cagliostro embarked at Boulogne for England and, upon his arrival at In London, he published his famous Letter to the French People, dated June 26th. The capture of the Bastille, the abolition of lettres de cachet, the convocation of the Estates-General, the Revolution there are predicted with extraordinary accuracy. The alleged horrors of the Bastille there are painted with all the cunning and hypocrisy of Freemasonry:

"Are all state prisons like the Bastille? We have no idea of the horrors."
of this: cynical impudence, odious lies, false pity, bitter irony, the Unbridled cruelty, injustice, and death hold sway there. A barbaric silence reigns.
least of the crimes committed there. I had been fifteen feet away from my wife for six months and I didn't know that. Others have been buried there for thirty years, presumed dead, unfortunate not to have been found.

the being, having, like Milton's damned, only enough daylight in their abyss to to perceive the impenetrable power of the darkness that envelops them. I called him captive, and I He repeats, "Free": there is no crime that is not expiated by six months in the Bastille. Someone... asked if I would return to France if the defenses preventing me from doing so were raised: Certainly, I replied, provided that the Bastille has become a promenade public!

You French have everything you need to be happy: fertile, sweet soil climate, good heart, charming cheerfulness, genius and grace, suitable for everything, without equal in the art of pleasing, without masters in others: you lack only a little
The point is: to be sure of sleeping in your beds when you are irreproachable.

It is worthy of your parliaments to work towards this happy revolution. It is not difficult than for weak souls.

Yes, I tell you. A prince will reign over you, and he will glory in the abolition of... letters of cachet, at the convocation of the Estates-General... (Cagliostro, Letter to the People) François.)

These lines, dated 1786, are truly astonishing, writes Mr. Funck-Brentano. We are talking about sometimes predictions from Voltaire and Rousseau. "We are approaching a state of crisis and "of the century of revolutions," wrote Rousseau. "Everything I see will sow the seeds of a
"A revolution that will inevitably come," wrote Voltaire. Vague remarks that needed to be drawn out.
endless writings filling fifty and sixty volumes. Voltaire and Rousseau were men of letters who wrote admirably well and developed very interesting considerations; but what a lively, concrete, precise intelligence, with the
With an immediate sense of reality, Cagliostro needed to tell the French of 1786: "Under No sooner are your Estates-General convened than your Bastille will become a public promenade and your lettres de cachet will be abolished." (M. Funck-Brentano, La Mort..., 4th ed., pp. 35, 36.)

What a prophet, this F Cagliostro!

We know the words of Mr. de Giers, the Russian ambassador: "The war of 1870 was a
"A war of the blind against the sighted." If the French of 1786 were as blind as

Those of 1870, on the other hand, Freemasonry saw! He too, Cagliostro, his agent, saw what his secret Masters were preparing in the shadows and the prophetic tone adopted by this Masonic charlatan in his Letter to the People, Francis was well chosen to strike the imaginations in a century that had been driven mad by morbid mysticism and spiritualism derangers of the theosophical FF of Swedenborg and of the Jew Martinès de Paschalis.

Cagliostro's letter was a terrifying success. It was snatched up in the streets of Paris and the The calumnies with which she was filled so thoroughly poisoned the French, already drunk on lies. Masonic groups that Minister de Breteuil, specifically targeted by the secret agent of Back Lodges, never recovered from the blow that letter had dealt him: Breteuil became For the people, he was a bogeyman, and the announcement of his return to power would later unleash a torrent of anger. the riot that will overthrow the Monarchy.

While the demolition of the Bastille was prophesied in Cagliostro's Letter to French people, the Occult Power was setting in motion another war machine which She, too, was targeting the Bastille and its governor, the Marquis de Launay. In this regard, we have cited the curious note in which the French translator of the account of the trial brought in Rome by the Papal judges report that Cagliostro had testified to the same de Launay his vivid acknowledging "the good treatment he had received," and asked him to accept his apologies. on the denunciation that had been made (against him) in his name to Parliament. (Life of J. (Balsamo, p. 66, in a footnote.)

A docile instrument in the hands of the Back Lodges, Cagliostro was no sooner in London than he took legal action following this denunciation, which he had so formally denied. As early as the 21st In June 1786, he was represented in Paris by lawyers and launched an attack against M. de Launay and Commissioner Chesnon was summoned to appear before the Châtelet court. He was claiming 200,000.

books, both to compensate him for the thefts he claimed to have suffered at the hands of these two agents of the King, that to compensate him for the harm caused by his imprisonment: the orders of his Secret masters had prevailed over his gratitude towards the Governor of the Bastille!

Based on memoirs that had the same tremendous impact as the others factums published in the name of Cagliostro; (who was incapable of writing two lines in (French!) This request sowed seeds of discord against the Bastille, against its governor (who would be massacred on July 14, 1789) and against the alleged royal arbitrariness, frenzied, savage hatreds.

Everything in these Memoirs was a blatant lie, a gross imposture: what did it matter! Printed in thousands of copies and devoured avidly by the crowd, The Lie as it became a reality, popular fury gathered like storm clouds over the head of the Marquis de Launay, the future victim, on the Bastille and on the Monarchy of which she symbolized every day more "arbitrariness" and "tyranny".

A year later, on May 15, 1787, three young men from Lorraine, one of whom, François Cognel, had written a An interesting picture of Parisian life under Louis XVI, they arrived in Paris where they came to do a pleasure trip." One of the first visits of these young people, at least two of whom were Freemasons, it was for the Bastille, and here are the thrilling terms - with words that seem to echo the very Masonic personifications of Cagliostro - François Cognel describes "this place designed to arbitrarily steal citizens away from society":

“We went from there to the Bastille; that monument erected and maintained by despotism where Its very appearance inspires terror, the freedom of its citizens expires; its walls dark, the mysterious sadness of its towers, the isolation left by the wide ditch that The surroundings make it frightening, and one can only groan at the thought that in the middle of the capital "In France, there is a place designed to arbitrarily remove citizens from society." (The Parisian life under Louis XVI, p. 19.)

Shortly afterwards, our travelers visited Versailles and Trianon. There, on two occasions they saw the Queen whose appearance made a great impression on them:

"The Queen (Cognel wrote) appears more beautiful than any lady of the Court, because of the

"Nobility of his countenance and nobility of his gait..." (La Vie, p. 59.)

Alas! The Masonic lies about the Queen's squandering, about the vices of the Queen, had infected hearts. Almost on the same date that Cognel contemplated Marie-Antoinette, with admiration, was greeted at the Opera by this cry repeated a hundred times: Here is the Deficit! (June 1787, Memoirs... Mallet, vol. 1, p. 142), and these verses were displayed everywhere:

Louis XVI forbidden, Antoinette in a convent.
From Artois to Saint-Lazare and Provence regent.

---

* See above, p. 158.

Parliament is crazy, I think.
Because he will lose his bearings there.
Wanting to settle the expense
From a drunkard and a...

VIII

THE END OF CAGLIOSTRO

That a Cagliostro could, for years, appear as a demigod in the eyes of Hypnotized Europe, before suddenly collapsing into the mud from which it had been pulled, is clearly bore the mark of the Occult Power that had made him its instrument.

As long as the Occult Power needs him for its criminal tasks, no attack - However skillful and justified it may be, it cannot unseat Cagliostro. On the other hand, as soon as this

The buccaneer, descended from Sicilian Jews, rendered the services expected of him, the Occult Power
He withdraws his protective hand and the demigod collapses.

He has now retired to London: from there, he immediately publishes his Letter to the French People (June 26) 1786) and brought the aforementioned case against the governor of the Bastille. The confessions he made, Four years later, the papal judges exposed him in his role as an agitator.
revolutionary. Indeed, the Roman author of the Life of Joseph Balsamo... extracted from the
The proceedings brought against him in Rome in 1790 show Cagliostro "heating his head" of his disciples who came from Paris to London and urged them "to shake off the yoke of France" of royal authority." He told them that: "just as the Templar disciples had Having avenged the death of their grand master, it was their responsibility to take revenge for the injustices.
that he had received in France... » (Life of J. Balsamo, Paris, 1791, p. 67.)

But if the Occult Power was in control of its agent Cagliostro when, on orders
On purpose, he would have a specific document drafted by one or another carefully chosen disciple; he did not was even more so when the Jewish showman accumulated blunders in his conversations more fantastic. God knows that the Grand Copt had not hesitated to tell his followers, During its heyday, the craziest things happened! But it was then effectively protected: such fine work was expected of him!... In 1786, in London, he finished injecting his poisons in the veins of France; his Letter to the French People will be his song of Swan: it's time for him to disappear.

Indeed, Cagliostro had just exaggerated the dose of absurdity tolerable even for the brains most accustomed to extravagance.

Jewish extremism—which Cagliostro had in his blood—played a cruel trick on him: he pushed too far the note; that ruined him.

The "Arsenic Pig".
Of all the medical and chemical nonsense that Cagliostro spouted, the least egregious was not that of the pig (as recounted by the Roman author of the Trial of Rome). He himself confessed, in his Letter to the English People, which was published at about the same time, that he had said in a society that the inhabitants of Medina freed themselves from lions, tigers and leopards in fattening the pores with arsenic. (Life of J. Balsamo, 1791, p. 69.)

It is appropriate to give the floor here to Morande, the editor of the Courrier de l'Europe (newspaper French from London), who toppled the idol erected by the credulity of the faithful of France-Egyptian masonry:

"Arsenic has been considered a poison until now; but the Sieur de Cagliostro has succeeded to make it a succulent food, having accustomed a pig to eat it gradually, in his food, a considerably larger quantity from one day to the next." (The Principals Events from the Marvelous Life of the Famous Count of Cagliostro, London, 1786, p. 13.)

It was in Arabia, in Medina - during the time of his fabulous travels, including the Parliament of Paris, during the Affair of the Necklace, had listened to the twists and turns with scandalous glee - that the The pseudo-count had situated this adventure of the "arsenic-laced pig".

"Wanting to convince the unbelievers of Medina of his skill (Morande continues), when The count had, after poisoning the victim, had her throat slit and ordered that the remains be scattered members in the nearby forests. The next day they were found littered with corpses of lions, tigers, leopards, and all the ferocious animals that inhabit the forests of Medina filled. (Les Princ. Évén., 1786, p. 14.)

Such was the grotesque nonsense that Cagliostro had the unfortunate idea of telling to his flock in London to enlighten them about his thaumaturgical power. One can judge from the point that the impulsive polemicist Morande made from this madness! He tore it to shreds his opponent with his pen. From then on, it was all over for the "Divine" Cagliostro. In vain, He poses to Morande a challenge even crazier than his story about the arsenic-laced pig, to try to win over the laughter:

On September 3, 1786 (according to the account of his trial in Rome), he had printed a cartel in which he invited Morande to eat with him, on November 9th, a suckling pig fattened in the style of Medina, he bet 5,000 guineas that Morande would die and that he, Cagliostro would remain in good health... (Life of J. Balsamo, 1791, p. 69.)

Morande retaliates – and with good ink:

"Not wanting nor needing to debase myself to the point of comparing myself to a Cagliostro," he wrote to her.
Morande), you will have to choose as a commensal some carnivorous animal that you You will desire; I will bet on him. You will have lunch with the companion you have chosen, coram populo..." (Les Princ. Évén., 1786, p- 31.)

Cagliostro, in another printed placard, basely insulted Morande and brought these back to light.
two placards in his Letter to the People (English). Then Morande lost patience and showed Cagliostro to the public in his true form. (Life of J. Balsamo, 1791, p. 69.)

Morande versus Cagliostro.

Morande's new pamphlet was entitled: Continuation of my correspondence with Mr. Count of Cagliostro, containing anecdotes about his trip to Paris in 1772 and 1773, in which it is proven that Count Cagliostro and Mr. Balsamo, painter, are one and the same and even no one.

Everything that the Parisian police had long since discovered concerning the gentleman Cagliostro, formerly Balsamo, was brought to light by Morande with a devilish verve: the the most extraordinary scams, the most outrageous swindles, not to mention the evidence that the future Grand Master of Egyptian Freemasonry was the most infamous of husbands. But none of this had been made public, as long as the Occult Power had an interest in it.

to ensure that the reputation of "Monsieur le Comte de Cagliostro" remained untarnished, as long as this
The agent of the Back Lodges had been in a position to strike blows against the French Monarchy Dangerous! Masonic activity is there, visible. The French monarchy was betrayed, delivered by a swarm of agents - conscious or unconscious - of Freemasonry.

When we read the overwhelming pages where Morande, in 1786, lays bare the villainies of Cagliostro
According to investigations by the Paris police, it is astonishing that these investigations were ineffective.
a few months earlier, to nip in the bud the abominable intrigues in which Cagliostro,
The "oracle" of the Grand Almoner of the Crown, monitored on behalf of the Power Conceal the correspondence that Cardinal de Rohan believed he had with Marie Antoinette! And This apocryphal correspondence, let us not forget, will serve as the primary basis for the accusations.
of immorality perpetrated against the unfortunate Queen by the hidden enemies of Civilization Christian and French monarchy who sought to strike Marie Antoinette dead because they knew, said Mirabeau, "his character, his soundness of mind and his firmness";
"So it was she," Mirabeau said again in an extraordinary passage that we will quote in whole)" which would be the first target of the attack (by the conspirators), like the first and the stronger barrier of the throne and like the sentinel who watches most closely over the safety of the monarch.

But when Mirabeau sends to the Court the notes from which we extract these lines where painted all the admiration he felt for the unfortunate Sovereign, - when he tries to stem the torrent which he had, alas! so greatly contributed to causing to overflow, - it will be too late...
The Queen has long been engaged in the painful path that leads her to the guillotine: nothing can stop its march...

In his Letter to the English People — which is the factum in which Cagliostro gathered all his correspondence with Morande and sought in vain to parry the blows of this tough jouster - the Grand Copt is forced to be on the defensive: a deplorable attitude for an individual of his species, which sustains itself only through audacity in lying and falls back down crushed by its lies as soon as they come to light! He throws all the he may find insulting accusations, but none of them carry any weight: what can he do to the public that Whether or not Morande is a sorry figure, as long as he victoriously demonstrates that Is Cagliostro the most shady of adventurers?

And then Cagliostro, or rather (since Cagliostro was unable to write in French) the
The scribe of the Occult Power who wrote this letter for him feels compelled to speak at length on Freemasonry, but it is with such a weakness of argumentation that one feels although the Grand Master of Egyptian Freemasonry and his secret Masters consider the
The game seems lost: Cagliostro is now nothing more than a burned-out agent defending himself half-heartedly, or rather than defending it out of obligation and for appearances' sake, to save face. Our readers will be the judge.

Morande had rightly mocked Cagliostro for his visits to the temples of Egypt and even inside the Pyramids – a cruel way to undermine the prestige of the Great Copt, founder of the Egyptian Lodges! Here is the very bland reply from the "Divine" Cagliostro:

"Mr. Morande appoints himself judge of my knowledge of Freemasonry; he maintains that I have never in my life approached the Pyramids of Egypt, and only the Freemasons who have embraced the Rite Egyptians are all fools and dupes, false brothers who must be excluded from Lodges of the Ordinary Rite.

The evidence he provides seems irrefutable to him.

“In 1777, in London, at the Lodge of Hope, I received the four Apprentice wardens, Fellow Craft, Master, and Scottish Master. This Lodge, if we are to believe Mr. Morande, is composed of Valets de Chambre, Wigmakers, Craftsmen, in short, Serving Brothers, and Such was the illustrious company where I first saw the light.

*7 In a volume that will follow this one. (L. D)

Answer. Mr. Morande is most certainly unworthy of being a Freemason. But anyway, he is
He is either a Freemason or he is not. If he is not, he should not have spoken of what he did not know; if he is, he has
He probably didn't talk about what he knew. In any case, his way of expressing himself on the account a respectable Society must bar him from entering not only all Lodges of Freemasonry, but also all Clubs and all assemblies where honesty is counted for something.

I had long been aware of the English zeal for Freemasonry; my first My care, upon arriving on their island, was to visit their Lodges. I inquired about the names of those of them where French was spoken. I was told about the Lodge of Hope as one of the most regular. - This information should have been sufficient for a true Freemason, and it did not occur to me in the idea of informing myself about the civic qualities of each of its members.

In order to learn the English method, I wanted to be introduced as Recipient. I confess that I was completely satisfied; that I found in the Lodge of the hope of excellent Freemasons and that, whatever rank they hold in the Society brave people of whom it is composed, I will always be honored by the title of their Brother.

With regard to the Egyptian Rite and the Freemasons who have embraced it, Mr. Morande may freely pursue his career. Science and students are far above him and his the same applies to fearing its effects.

Since my return to London, I have been invited to visit the oldest of the Lodges founded in England. I was received there with the most marked respect and the most distinction.
flattering." (Letter to the English People, pp. 69, 70.)

The massive architectural document that is this Letter to the English People ends with the
In the most pitiful way: Cagliostro writes (or is made to write) that he will not prosecute Morande in court, so as not to ruin his opponent's poor family! Such magnanimity!
Isn't that Masonic swindler wonderful?

"Morande can continue to insult me freely. I will not summon him to the Tribunal of Laws."
The unfortunate man has a wife and is the father of ten children; his ruin is inevitable if I attack him.

(!!!), would entail that of his large family. I entrust my revenge to
He who does not punish children for their father's crime. It may be slower, but It will be no less certain. My trust in this Supreme Being has never been misplaced.
I have always seen His justice manifest itself sooner or later, and the wicked end up miserably. If the
Mr. Morande could not doubt for a single moment this truth, terrible for them, but comforting.
Let good people reflect on the fate of those whose cause he defended and surpassed.
the horrors." (Letter to the English People, p. 74.)

Here, in the final lines of the scribe of Occult Power, suddenly appears the Bloody Freemasonry, the Mafia of poisoners and assassins that has killed so many since two centuries and against whom Leo XIII, in his Encyclical Humanus genus, brought these terrible accusations:

"To chain men reduced to the state of slaves; to employ them in all sorts of ways" of attacks these passive instruments of a foreign will; arming, for murder, hands
"which ensures impunity for crime!"... reminding us of the word
Recent: "The fate is Dreyfusard" (or Jewish, or Masonic, as you prefer), the scribe
The Occult Power, which holds the pen for Cagliostro, cites ten people who had had dealings with him to leave with him, in the trials he had supported during his first stay in London, and he He follows the brief mention he devotes to each of these enemies with these three words: He is dead, or: She is dead. For four others, among these former enemies of Cagliostro, "their "Life has become such that death would be a blessing for them." One is in prison, two of them suffered the punishment of the pillory for the crime of perjury. (Letter to the English People, p.

76.)

It's over: by thus threatening Morande with the vengeance of the Back Lodges, the serpent
The Masonic order has just spat out its latest venom: the "Divine" Cagliostro is now nothing more than a a human wreck who will atone in a long and lamentable journey across Europe - where we will
We shall see him ignominiously driven from everywhere - the villainies and crimes of which he was the instrument, as long as mysterious hands protected him in the shadows. To compensate for the silence that Cagliostro, now reduced to impotence, will henceforth keep the scribe of the Occult Power in his possession.

had this postscript written, which marks the end of the reign of the Grand Copt:

Postscript. - I don't know if my enemies will retaliate or if they will side with the Silence. Whatever the case may be, I declare to them that this Letter will be my only response to all their past, present, and future calumnies. And I give my word of honor that, No matter what they might say or do, I will not write another single line for my justification. (Letter to the English People, p. 77.)

The word of honor of F Cagliostro! The scribe of the Occult Power wanted to laugh, when He put such a word in the mouth of the pseudo-Italian count! Morande had taken it upon himself to to show what the character's word of honor was worth, in his libel: Continuation of my Correspondence with Count Cagliostro.

We know that he had simply recounted some of the great deeds of the former Signor Balsamo, forger, swindler, etc., according to police investigations in Paris, which had been carefully suppressed during the Necklace trial. The effect was decisive: as indeed it had been
As announced in the postscript to the Letter to the English People, Cagliostro did not reply.
Nothing—and for good reason! Abandoned by the masked villains who had launched the attack.
of the French Monarchy, the man who had been able to predict, three years in advance, the fall of the Bastille and the Revolution, he fled from England like the criminal he was.

The comedy is over! Now comes the bloody drama: it will begin in France.

The Exodus of the Jew Cagliostro.

There is one point beyond doubt: some followers and admirers of the conman delegated by the
The men behind the scenes, involved in the immediate preparation for the Revolution, were undeniably men of value: the learned naturalist, Ramon de Carbonnières, is an example of this, he of whom we have demonstrated the enthusiastic and blind devotion to Cagliostro during the Affair of the Necklace.

The spell that held so many otherwise intelligent men bewitched was broken by the factum of Morande, and the former Initiates of Cagliostro, disillusioned, but poisoned with hatred against religious and social order will find in revolutionary frenzies the use of their forces gone astray...

Stripped of his halo, the former founder of Egyptian Freemasonry is being prosecuted before the English courts by "a crowd of people whom he had duped," writes his Roman biographer.
Then he is soon forced to flee London, taking with him (adds the writer of the Saint-(Office) a large sum that he had received from the Parisians. (Life of J. Balsamo, translation)
(French, 1791, p. 70.)

Here begins the lamentable exodus of this new Wandering Jew. He left his wife in London.
and went to live in Basel. This lady, finding herself at liberty and listening to the voice of her conscience who reproached him for the mistakes of his life, confided in a few people and even left them

=

He glimpsed her husband's crimes and lack of religion. He knew this and immediately summoned her to his side.
him, and compelled him to make a declaration before the magistrate of Biel (near Basel) by which,
By revoking all the crimes she had attributed to him, she asserted that he had always been a
An honest man and an excellent Catholic. (Life of J. Balsamo, 1791, p. 70).

It should be noted here that, on the island of Bienn, Cagliostro lived "on a pension provided by Mr. Sarazin,

"from Basel," Morande tells us, who boasted "of having succeeded in driving this out of England."
"Charlatan." (Courrier de l'Europe, August 24, 1787.) Now, Mr. Sarazin was one of the bankers of Cagliostro, confessed by him during his stay in the Bastille, when he was asked where he came from money.

It is certain that the mysterious funders quickly grew tired. Indeed, their
The burned agent was no longer of any use to them. Cagliostro therefore remained in Biel for a few months;
Then "he went to Aix in Savoy... and from there to Turin. He had barely set foot in
He was ordered by the King to leave this city immediately. He then stopped at Roveredo, but there was no better fate, for the late Emperor Joseph II made him to defend the practice of medicine to which he had devoted himself. It was therefore necessary for him to dislodge himself and for him to
He went to Trento. Some time ago, a small book entitled: Liber memorialis de Caleostro dum esset Roboretti, and which gives details of many schemes, impostures and of the misdeeds he committed in this city... This same Cagliostro, during his interrogations, was forced to confess the truth of the facts contained in this book." (Life of J. Balsamo, pp. 70, 71.)

The vigilance of the Prince-Bishop prevented Cagliostro from finding resources in Trento the usual things he had obtained until now from his Egyptian Freemasonry and his swindles of a sorcerer. (We are leaving aside his biggest former income: subsidies from the Power (Occult.) Very short of money, he is reduced to Vicenza, hiring one of the last men to live. diamonds he possessed. He was looking for a place to find refuge. But where was it possible? He was too known! In Palermo, in France, and in the states of the King of Sardinia, the sovereigns have hunting :

"Everywhere else, the memory of the treachery that had forced him to flee was still fresh. Those who had been gambled away and robbed by him (and they were numerous and in many parts of the world) would have torn him to pieces. Perhaps he intended to return in Germany; but... the Prince-Bishop of Trento received a letter in which he was warned that the Emperor was very upset that he had received such a subject into his states; and that "That was enough to make him lose the desire to see Germany again." (Life of J. Balsamo, pp. 71, 72.)

Cagliostro, filled with anguish, sees only one option left: to return to Rome where his wife she desperately wanted to join her parents, driven as she was by the need to end her life shameful and cruel, which her infamous partner had been imposing on her for many years.

"She had always lived in an unhappy state, forced either to commit the crime or to..." exposing herself to her husband's cruelest outbursts if she showed any repugnance in doing so to lend credence to his criminal insinuations...

She therefore extolled to Cagliostro the advantages he could derive from his return to Rome, and above all, she secretly conferred with some of the Prince's principal courtiers. Bishops who were friends of the husband." (Life of J. Balsamo, pp. 73, 74).

Using lies once again—like a true Freemason—Cagliostro "appearing to repentant of Freemasonry, he went to throw himself at the feet of a confessor to whom he showed the most great desire to return to the bosom of the Church and to reconcile with Rome." (Life of J. Balsamo, p. 74.)

Then, back with his wife, he said to her, "I really caught that priest!" His hypocrisy This earned him letters of recommendation from various people in Rome, where he arrived at the end of May. 1789. But abandoned as it was by the Occult Power and under the scrutinizing eye of The Romans, suspicious of him, could no longer find anyone to pay for his charlatan's tricks: he suffered as a healer, the most pitiful failures, and he found himself in abject poverty when the The papal police arrested him on December 27, 1789.

After a long and meticulous trial, Cagliostro was, in April 1791, sentenced to death under "Censorships and punishments pronounced against the masters and disciples of magic" superstitious... against those who, in any way, favor and form societies and lodges of "Freemasons..." (Life of J. Balsamo, pp. 220, 221.) The Pope commuted the sentence to life imprisonment and Cagliostro died a captive in 1795, after his Secret masters had just finished covering France in ruins and a deluge of blood.

Cagliostro therefore did not have the joy of trampling the felled lilies himself underfoot, as

He ordered the motto L D' P###% on his patent of Lyon. He did not have the joy of seeing his eyes fell, the head of the good-natured "Tyrant" against whom he had stirred up such hatred stupid as they were fierce, nor the head of the unfortunate Queen that her wicked hands had bound in a terrifying web of infamy.

“While he was still in Rome, before his imprisonment, he had sent to the States General a petition in his favor, or, asking them to return to France, he said, among other things things, that he is the one who took such an interest in their freedom.” (Life of J. Balsamo, 1791, p. 68.)

It was in vain that the Founder of Egyptian Freemasonry, the Prophet who had predicted the the fall of the Bastille and the convocation of the Estates-General, sent a petition to the same States-General, which he had announced three years in advance! The reign of the Grand Copt was finished.

In 1786, Morande wrote to Cagliostro, mocking him: "I read with great sorrow this sentence from your letter, in which you inform me that our capital will not... will possess more than when the Bastille becomes a public promenade.” (Ma Correspondence with Count C., p. 3.)

Who then would have believed the prophecy of the vile agent of the Illuminati Freemasons? - Three years have passed: the Bastille is demolished, its stones are scattered; a promenade, a public ball replaced the state prison that collapsed amidst assassinations and cruelties without name !...

We will see in a moment that if Freemasonry is behind the plots that have prepared The Revolution is also behind the coups d'état that brought it about, as is logical from the outset. when she is there.

However, while we have shown how Cagliostro atoned for his crimes, we have not He told what became of Madame de la Motte: her expiation was terrible. But from the depths of the garret where She ended her miserable existence – in London, in 1791 – amidst suffering.

atrocious where she expired, she played a disastrous role against Marie Antoinette, a role which was fatal to the unfortunate Queen, whose events we cannot anticipate here. We are therefore forced to The death of the thief of the Necklace, the protégée, will be reserved for a later story.
of the Masonic Boulainvilliers family.

IX

1789: THE GREAT MASONIC YEAR

In his seminal work, which marks a turning point: The Occult Power Against France, Copin-Albancelli shows the Secret Societies superimposed one on top of the other in the Freemasonry so that the rabble of pseudo-initiates below can receive suggestions descended from the true initiates from above.

He is a striking example of these higher Masonic orders within Martinism and Weishaupt's Enlightenment, the two great sectarian waves which, in 1789, submerged the France before clashing amidst a deluge of blood. A learned Brother painted them.
in a striking way on a page that is worth quoting: indeed, our readers will see there the name of Cagliostro is mentioned one last time.

In his very rare pamphlet, "On the Role of Freemasonry in the 18th Century," the F Brunellière outlines the considerable role played in the preparation of the Revolution by the Martinism and German Illuminism, these two Freemasons side by side - side by side in appearance only.

After recalling the enlistment of a large number of mystics in Martinism who practiced magic and spirit evocation, F Brunellière writes, speaking of The Tluminism of the Bavarian Weishaupt:

"This sect became so formidable in such a short time that it almost precipitated the advent of..."
of the Revolution. Weishaupt... aimed at nothing less than the complete overthrow of authority, of nationality, of the entire social system, in short, to the abolition of property, etc.
As for the principle, it was absolute and blind obedience, universal espionage; the end justifies the means.
the means.

This highly organized conspiracy system, which could have roused the world, spread throughout Germany, where he seized control of almost all the Masonic lodges. Weishaupt sent Joseph Balsamo, known as the Count of Cagliostro, to France to bring Franc-French Freemasonry in Illuminism; finally, he convened a Congress in Willemsbad in 1782, where he convened the German and foreign Lodges. But in this Congress, Illuminism had difficulty fighting against Martinism, whose pure and mystical idealism was better suited to the majority that the fierce fanaticism necessary for Illuminism"".

The struggle existed between the two parties when, in 1785, Illuminism was revealed to the Bavarian government, which, in a panic, appealed to all governments; the Protestant princes showed little eagerness for repression. Weishaupt even found refuge with the Prince of Saxe-Gotha: he had been careful not to tell the princes, and even many of his
He had hidden from them the call to the strength of the masses, he had hidden from them the Revolution! (From role, etc., Report read at the Plenary Meeting of the BR LL Peace and Union and the Free Conscience at the O of Nantes, Monday, April 23, 1883.)

These last lines, which we have underlined, are clear enough that any comment is superfluous.

A few years later, the Jacobin Freemasons showed the horrified world how it was
It is possible to combine the pure, mystical idealism of the Martinists with the fierce fanaticism of Weishaupt's Illuminati.
(LD)

1789: Overview.

Here we are in 1789, the Masonic year of the highest degree. But how many minds even excellent, driven by intentions they believe to be very righteous, imagine - naively - that 1789 is the pure and sublime antithesis of 1793, the execrable, bloody year! This error, or rather This Masonic lie has so thoroughly permeated French intellects that it is necessary to to prove in detail the Freemasonry of all of 1789, from its first to its last day.

Yes, everything in 1789 is Masonic; all the plots directed in 1789 against the France, as it had been shaped by ten centuries of glory, against the King and Queen of France are Masonic conspiracies.

As for the reforms – accepted in advance, passionately desired by the King and the Nobility, The clergy – they acted as screens, as masks concealing Freemasonry, the living soul and active in the Revolution, which it pushed towards mysterious goals, to serve interests hidden from public view.

The Masonic conspiracies of 1789 form a single and indivisible bloc, just like the bloc Revolutionary 89-93 is one and indivisible. And these blocs were cemented with lies.
Masonic as well as human blood.

The year 1789 is truly frightening to anyone who looks at it in the light Anti-Masonic: In January, the King regulated the order and form of summonses to the Assemblies. primaries, in preparation for the elections to the Estates-General. And "everywhere, it's the very day of the electoral assembly that the people rise up in.” (Taine, La Révol., vol. 1, p. 23.) It will be It is essential that we provide some details on the Masonic preparation for the elections at the Estates-General, this fundamental basis of the 1989 bloc; previously, Let's lift a corner of the veil that hides the criminal Freemasonry lurking behind these riots. that we suddenly hear rumbling in all four corners of France. Extolling the role
A revolutionary of Freemasonry in Rennes in 1789, Brother Jouaust wrote:

“Let us first note that the whole, hitherto misunderstood, with which all the Cities in Brittany are rising up to act simultaneously, with the same goal, he explains easily through the constant correspondence of the numerous Lodges in this province.
(The Masonic World, December 1859, p. 419.)

The riots that had been shaking all of France since the beginning of 1789 had as their

the secret leaders, the Freemasons, whom F Jouaust here declares to have been the secret leaders of Breton uprisings. In short, throughout France the Freemasons were the secret leaders of this countless number of wrongdoers who, without apparent leaders, seem to be of intelligence to indulge everywhere in the same excesses, and precisely at the moment when the States-Generals are about to enter the session. (De Montjoie, A Contemporary, quoted by Taine, Revol., vol. 1,
P. 13.).

The same slogans, the same lies, sparked insurrections from one end to the other.
the other one in the country.

This is not an isolated riot like usual, (the troops commander wrote) tasked with containing the insurgents); here the party is bound and directed by uniform principles;
The same errors are widespread in everyone's minds. The principles given to the people are that the King wants everything to be equal, that he no longer wants lords, bishops, or ranks, no tithes or seigneurial rights. Thus these misguided people believe they are exercising their rights and to follow the King's will. (Taine, from the National Archives, Revolt, vol. I, pp. 23, 24.)

Similarly, in all the troubles of recent years that the Jewish Bund has fomented in
In Russia, the muzhiks believed they were fulfilling the Tsar's will.

These riots, which everywhere shook the multitudes, in France in 1789, "it's a
The movement of a brute, exasperated by need and terrified by suspicion. - Was she stung in underneath, by bribed hands that hide behind the scenes? Contemporaries are convinced of it, and the "That's probable," wrote Taine. (Revol. vol., t. L. p. 37.)

The day after Thermidor, Cadet de Gassicourt showed that the hand of the Initiates Freemasons were there: "Explain to me (he wrote) by what means, if not by espionage and rapid, secret correspondence among the Illuminati and Initiates... by what means?
By unfortunate coincidence, Normandy, Provence, and Brittany rose up on the same day, at the same time as the Parisians who marched against the Bastille? Explain to me why the Revolutionary movements have always been related to time and motives in the different points of the Republic. (The Ancient and Modern Initiates, Sequel to The Tomb of Jacques Molay, year V, p. 25.)

These insurrections – widespread everywhere – had the desired result, premeditated by the conspirators in the shadows to shake love everywhere at once, among all French people for the King who until then embodied France in their eyes.

France (writes Mr. Funck-Brentano) was a federation of a thousand and a thousand republics, with, as their only link, the gaze that all citizens directed towards the Crown. (Legends and Archives of the Bastille, Paris, 6th ed., 1902, p. 278.)

It was these thousand and one republics that the cunning of Freemasonry turned against the Traditional power, amidst bloody riots, along with its propaganda The occult inoculated the masses with the poison of its ideas, in order to fill them with followers. of the Lodges the Estates-General.

After the flames rose from the burning castles across the entire kingdom, as well as sinister rockets, here is the grand finale of the Masonic fireworks display, the capture of the Bastille, predicted three years in advance by F Cagliostro and celebrated in the Lodge, as early as July 23rd 1789, as "the triumph of Liberty and Patriotism"!

The storming of the Bastille – orchestrated by Freemasonry – was for the Initiates of the Lodges and the fanatical rabble, indoctrinated by them, signaled a war of knife-point against Catholicism and the Christian Monarchy

For any impartial man (as one of the most insightful contemporaries, Malouet, wrote), the Terror dates from July 14, 1789.

The fall of the Bastille triggered a tremendous upheaval throughout France in this immense wave of terror known as the Great Fear. We will show that "Mysterious ringleaders" spread this Great Fear throughout the country at once. And we will prove that Freemasonry was the infernal sower of this universal panic, as She had just been – by F Jouaust's own admission – the instigator of the riots which, at the beginning of In 1789, "all the towns of Brittany" rose up.

Then, when all of France gasped with terror, when it was ready to hate madly the first enemy anyone would point out to him, rightly or wrongly - it was a new great Masonic coup – the night of October 5-6, 1789. After this fateful night, Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette will enter the Tuileries Palace as a prisoner, as will the Kings of France had lived until then as sovereigns! And this will be the end of the traditional monarchy.

Freemasonry and the Elections of 1789.

1789 was a Masonic year of the highest degree, as we have said. From its very first weeks, a vast net - the network of electoral maneuvers of the Freemasons - covered all of France with invisible meshes. It was then, in fact, that the Brothers began to rig, to fake the elections at the Estates-General, just like us
Let us see today how to rig, to disguise this shell game called Universal Suffrage.

The admission was made (in discreet but very clear terms) by two notorious Freemasons, the F
Jouaust and the Amiable F. And this admission is all the more valuable given the authority of the F
Amiable – speaking ex cathedra at the International Centenary Convent of 1789 – was very "great in high Masonic circles"?

Likewise, after having considered, as we have done here, the infernal trick deployed by the Freemasonry in the plotting of his conspiracy against Marie Antoinette and in the stages
In the successive stages of its march towards domination over France, one should have expected an effort superhuman efforts by the Lodges to fill the Estates-General with their initiates, in order to establish the bloc revolutionary on this first and unshakeable foundation: Freemasonry of the National Assembly.

Let's listen first to the F Amiable:

"When the year 1789 began, France was preparing for the elections for the Estates-Generals: the Nation was preparing to reclaim itself. The Grand Orient, not he should not enter the political arena; but (!) he could not remain indifferent to patriotic sentiments and aspirations for renewal occupied everyone's minds. By a Circular of January 4th, sending the semester notice to the lodges, made an urgent appeal to the duties of a citizen towards the nation. A few days later, on January 19, another

The circular reminded the Lodges of the regularity of the powers of the Grand Orient, and highlighted on this occasion the conformity of his government with representative principles and the the character of its purely democratic constitution. Therefore, the Freemasons adopted a Their active part was in the great and beneficial movement that took place in the country. Their influence was preponderant in the primary and secondary assemblies, known as the Third Estate for drafting
The notebooks and the selection of elected officials. They were, to a very large extent, honored by the vote.
of their fellow citizens. They naturally played a less significant role in the Assemblies.
of the two privileged orders: and yet the influence of Freemasonry is recognizable still to quite a few reform proposals, in the Cahiers de la Noblesse et du Clergy. They had this advantage over other citizens: they had been prepared to substitute the such simple and clear forms of government of the Workshops, of government of the Grand
The East, with its complicated and oppressive institutions that were beginning to collapse. Also did they enter the national representation in large numbers; and to mark the place that they took from the outset, it suffices to name three of them: Lafayette, Mirabeau and Sieyès.. » (Speech delivered on July 16, 1789, during a session of the International Masonic Congress by the F Louis Amiable, member of the Grand College of Rites, etc., pp. 38, 39.)

Masonic hypocrisy shines through in this tirade: "The Nation (said the Amiable F) was preparing to regain possession of itself." However, it was from 1789 onwards, on the contrary, that the France becomes the property, the possession of Freemasonry. "The Grand Orient should not to descend into the political arena; but...! » This is the customary Masonic deception: the Freemasonry, by its very statutes, forbids itself from engaging in politics and religion; but She is trying to kill Catholicism and enslave the French people!

The Amiable F*# indicated the historical sources he had drawn upon. He is
It is interesting to go back to these sources: the works of F Jouaust. In one of them, the History of
In the Grand Orient, we find historical evidence of a great intensity of life Masonic in 1789:

"While it is true that the approach of serious events slows down the work in the Lodges Masonic, it is also true that the Grand Orient, as a governing Senate, fought bravely against such a state of affairs—And if all my predecessors have concealed their ignorance of contemporary documents, invoking the influence of approaches to the Revolution, they have

---

* We have proof of this in what Copin-Albancelli reports about the role played in relation to himself by the F Albancelli (The Occult Power Against France, pp. 239, etc.) (LD)

all were served with an excuse more convenient than real; for the year 1789 must be counted, at On the contrary, among the most actively employed, as evidenced by the analysis following the work accomplished during this year.” (Hist. Du GO, Paris, 1865, p. 241.)

This is followed by an analysis of the extensive work of the Grand Orient in 1789. Brother Amiable noted therein the two very important circulars of January 4 and 19 which launched into the "political arena" the champions of Freemasonry, eager to replace the tutelary Capetian monarchy by "the government of the Grand Orient", "simple and clear" like a guillotine blade well polished. - But in the "Plate" of January 4, the Amiable F omitted a few words; That's a shame! The circular, in fact, made an urgent appeal "to the duties of the citizen." to the Fatherland and the Freemason to suffering Humanity.” This appeal will be heard: it is he who will rally the Judaizing and Masonic troops in the fourteen assaults that the Franks-Freemasons of the Constituent Assembly will give to French society, before succeeding in bringing the Jew, through the breach opened, in the name of Human Rights!

Another page from F Jouaust (we have already quoted the beginning) perfectly illuminates the Hidden mechanisms of the Masonic conspiracy of 1789:

“...The whole, hitherto misunderstood, with which all the towns of Brittany...” raising the issue to act simultaneously, for the same purpose, is easily explained by the incessant correspondence from the Lodges so numerous in this province.

The charts that the Lodges exchange reciprocally each year give everywhere the Masonic names and titles which we have rightly described as the flower of the Third Estate.
The names of the people from Rennes who are leading the movement in the capital, from the provinces, thanks to these Tablets have long been known in the towns of Brittany; and likewise, when he Instructions must be given in these cities; the leaders of the movement in Rennes know where.
to seek out men who share the same feelings, who possess the same firmness. The military lodges created within the regiments that travel through the different The garrisons of the province still contribute to the knowledge of Freemasons from the various Orients, increase the circulation of Masonic ideas and contribute to the unity of view and spirit of various Lodges.

In Rennes, the entirely benevolent, entirely humanitarian character of the early days of the Revolution! is especially remarkable because of the extensive participation of our Brothers in the city's governance (and as a result of the whole of Brittany) during these difficult times.

The three mayors who succeeded one another from 1781 to 1792 were either stonemasons before their appointment or... eager to be initiated. In July 1789, the Municipal Body, which already counted among its members Several of our FF deemed it appropriate to enlist the help of a number of the most active and the most patriotic, to share with them the many tasks that must be done to deliver in order to prepare for any eventuality, to create everything, to organize everything, to ensure sustenance, to calm the people, arm a national guard, correspond with all of Brittany which is asking without ceases giving advice and follows the movement that started in Rennes.

Well! In this committee of about fifty members, more than thirty are French-Masons and the majority are workers from the Lodge La Parfaite Union.

... Everywhere and always (in 1789), we find at work the energetic workers of this great generation!

The hatred of our enemies was therefore well-founded when they accused us of having guided the Nation in the greatest historical event of modern times.” (F Jouaust, La Maç..... à Rennes until 1789, - Le Monde Maçonnique, December 1859, pp. 479 to 481.)

Freemasonry is so truly the Queen of Lies that it is of paramount importance to Never accept a Brother's statements except with the benefit of inventory. Wouldn't we have-

The humanitarian nature of the early Revolution! And the horrors committed throughout the France in July 1789, what do we make of it? Here shines the sinister truth of Freemasonry! (LD)

We weren't the most naive and easily fooled, if we had taken the F at his word.
Tierce, the infamous hypocrite who portrayed the Freemason of 1740 as "a fearful man" "God, faithful to his Prince," while he was precisely working to tear down the Cross and break
The lilies of France?

But in the present case, it turns out that, for once, F Amiable and Jouaust, Those who were liars by design did not lie. We will find proof that they told the truth in them.
confronting Taine – the Seer whom Mr. Aulard wants to pass off as blind – and also with Messrs. Cochin and Charpentier, the authors of a remarkable brochure on the Countryside the 1789 election in Burgundy. And we will be able to, in full awareness and safety
In a spirit of deceit, to assert that it was indeed Freemasonry which, through perfidy and lies, made
The elections of 1789: they served as false keys for him to gain access to the heart of the city, in treason.

The Notebooks of 1789.

From its very inception, Freemasonry has spread its poisons throughout France, through the channel of its Lodges built everywhere. Similarly, in 1789, it gave to the Revolution was the initial impulse.

It would therefore be of paramount importance to conduct research, in all provinces, on the methods of disseminating revolutionary ideas in 1789. There is no doubt whatsoever about to have: those French people faithful to the dual worship of Christ and the Fatherland who would indulge in these investigations, through which the study of the past illuminates the paths of the future—those, certainly, would accomplish a supremely useful task. Furthermore, their efforts would be very quick and They would be rewarded everywhere, because everywhere they would find the trail of sly and hypocritical agitators.
like those that Messrs. Augustin Cochin and Ch. Charpentier discovered in their
"A masterful inquiry into the 1789 electoral campaign in Burgundy." Messrs. Cochin and Carpenters do not explicitly denounce Freemasonry as the instigator of these Agitators. But they discover behind them a hidden Mafia that our readers will identify of their own accord with Freemasonry, when we have further confronted certain confessions Masonic, with the substantial pages of The Electoral Campaign of 1789 in Burgundy.

In 1888, Mr. Auguste Carion published an excellent pamphlet in Lyon (Vitte Bookstore): The Truth about the Old Regime and the Revolution. We find there this passage which enters into the line of thought so happily developed by Messrs. Charpentier and Cochin:

“It can be found in certain notebooks (of grievances of the Third Estate in 1789),” writes Mr. Carion, proposals in which the revolutionary spirit shines through. Mr. Taine provides an explanation for this.
Lawyers, prosecutors, and notaries from small towns had written grievances on their own initiative.
and presented these notebooks to the chief town of the bailiwick, without even having assembled the community to read it to him.” (See Taine, The Old Regime, p. 519; Carion, The Truth About
(The Old Regime, p. 68.)

We particularly recommend this work by Mr. Carion to anti-Masons of the the Lyon region because of the documentary pages it contains about the atrocities committed in Lyon by terrorist Freemasons. As for the special acts of sleight of hand sectarianism reported in the leagues we have just cited, they have been observed, for the region Pyrenean, by Abbé Ricaud in a book of great interest: Bigorre and the High Pyrenees Pyrenees during the Revolution.

Librairie Honoré Champion, Paris, 1901. - Extract from L'Action Française, of November 1st and 15th, 1904.
® Paris, Librairie Honoré Champion, and Tarbes, Librairie Croharé, 1804.

101

Examining the grievance notebooks of the Third Estate preserved in the department's archives
In the Hautes-Pyrénées, Mr. Ricaud researched how each municipality had drafted its own.
and he finds that these notebooks were in no way written by the municipalities.

“Here, first of all,” he said, “are the notebooks from Argelès-Bagnères and Bonnemazon. Firstly At first glance, we notice that neither was composed in the village whose identity it expresses.
grievances. Both, in fact, are conceived in the same terms and written almost entirely by the same hand. This indicates a common origin; for it is It is impossible that these two villages, separated by a considerable distance and with no connection, could be related.
neighbors, having had the same ideas, at the same time as two writers, to express them in the same terms and with the same handwriting. Moreover, the author of both plays had left blanks so that the name of the village, and the names of the deputies who would be appointed, could be inserted, thus that the date of the day when the community would meet to sign its notebook and choose its agent. » (La Bigorre... pp. 12, 13.)

In the Hautes-Pyrénées, eight or ten neighboring villages sometimes deposited the same notebook written on the same paper with the same handwriting, whereas for other groups of localities,
The peasants simply copied general formulas that had been given to them. (The Bigorre.., pp. 12,13)

Below, we will detail the methods used to sink all the electoral notebooks of 1789 in the same mold. In the meantime, let's just say that some facts entirely

Similar events to what happened in Argelès have been observed in the most diverse regions and that these facts reveal the same hand everywhere engaged in the same task: the conquest of the future National Assembly by Freemasonry.

The investigation by Messrs. Cochin and Charpentier.

Without naming Freemasonry, as we have said, Messrs. Cochin and Charpentier have given a remarkable overview of the Masonic conspiracy that filled France with its machinations hypocrites during the first six months of 1789.

“In ’89 (they write) the nation seems to rise up of its own accord, to act of its own accord, owing nothing to anyone's talents or authority. (The people) assemble without being summoned, signs petitions without anyone knowing where they come from, appoints deputies without Having heard from the candidates, he rises up without following anyone.

And yet this army without officers maneuvers with astonishing cohesion: we see the The same steps are taken at the same time in provinces separated by customs and interests. dialects themselves, not to mention customs and bad roads. In November 1788, the entire France demands the doubling of the Third Estate's representation; in January 1889, voting by head; in March, All of France sends grievances to the Estates so similar that one would think they were written on the The same framework, by the same philosophical pamphleteer: for the peasants, too, speak philosophy in their notebooks, to remain in unison. In mid-July, at the time of the "Girande Fear," all of France believes itself threatened by brigands and takes up arms: at the end At the end of the month, all of France was reassured: there were no bandits. But the National Guard was Having sprung up from the ground in five days, it obeyed the clubs' watchword, and the municipalities remain armies.

And these are just the major steps of the movement: even together in the details. We see a commune signing a petition to the king, "this new Henry IV," and to Mr. Necker.

“On the other hand, we previously discussed Mr. Cochin’s brilliant discoveries, in that, which concerns the Sub-Masons of the 18th century: Reading Societies and Academic Societies. (L. D.)

Further on, we dedicate a chapter to the Great Fear. (LD)

102

"Our Sully," we can be sure to find the inhabitants of such and such another town, at the other end of the kingdom, busy drafting the same request preceded by the same compliment.

The French of that time seemed to obey a kind of pre-established harmony that made them do the the same actions and uttering the same words everywhere at the same time; and who knows the facts and the actions of such bourgeois from Dauphiné or Auvergne, the history of all the cities of France at the same time.

Thus, in this singular campaign, everything happens as if the whole of France were obeying to the slogan of the best-organized party, and we don't see any parties... There was a conspiracy. How and by whom was it formed?... (A. Cochin and C. Charpentier, The Electoral Campaign of 1789 in Burgundy, Paris, 1904, pp. 5, 6, 7. - Study published in L'Action Française.)

Brother Jouaust has already answered this question from Cochin and Charpentier - in what concerns Brittany - when he wrote these lines that we have already quoted but which he is It is necessary to reproduce 1ci:

"The whole, hitherto misunderstood, with which all the cities of Brittany are rising up" to act at the same moment, for the same purpose, is easily explained by the correspondence "The incessant activity of the Lodges, so numerous in this province." (Le Monde Maçonnique - December 1859, p. 479.)

Messrs. Cochin and Charpentier speak of "such bourgeois" who "in all the cities of France, at the same time, are doing the same jobs. We know them, these bourgeois: in Brittany, it is the FF "who lead the movement" and who train, says F Jouaust, "the flower of the Third Estate." As for the mysterious "party" that makes "everywhere at the same time the same acts to all French people and which makes them "pronounce the "Same words everywhere at the same time," that's the Masonic party whose leaders Apparent at this moment in our history are the bourgeois of the judicial careers. lawyers, notaries, prosecutors, etc. The very clear proof of this emerges from a simple reading of the Masonic almanacs for 1788: They are filled with men of the robe.

It was these Freemason lawyers who insinuated the word to all of France at the same time. of the order of the Lodges. (There were then nearly 700 French Lodges). To convince oneself once Moreover, by exception, Brothers Amiable and Jouaust spoke the truth, and that "the influence of Freemasons were predominant in the primary and secondary assemblies of the Third Estate
For the drafting of the Cahiers and the choices of the elected officials (1), it suffices to see, with Taine,
"How the Third Party Notebooks were made":

"He's the lawyer," said 11, "the little country prosecutor, the envious and theoretical lawyer." who led the peasant. He insists that everything be recorded in the Notebook and put in writing at length his local and personal grievances... The other, who suggests and directs, wraps everything up in "Human Rights and the Sieyès Circular." (Taine, The Old Regime, p. 518.)

Now, Brother Sieyès is one of the three demigods of the revolutionary Lodges that Brother Amiable, on the centenary of 1789, offered for the veneration of his Brothers!

Eye Witnesses.

Throughout France at once, insightful observers discerned, at the beginning of 1789, the machinations of the lawyers:

“For two months now,” wrote the Marquis de Fodoas, commander, to Prime Minister Necker, “for two months now...”
military of Armagnac) the lower judges, the lawyers from all the towns and countryside swarming, with a view to being elected to the Estates-General, have rallied around the people of the Third Estate

Speech by F Amiable at the International Masonic Congress of 1889.

the State, under the pretext of supporting them and helping their ignorance. They have striven to their to persuade that at the Estates-General they would be the sole masters of settling all the affairs of the Kingdom, which the Third Estate, by choosing its deputies from among the legal profession, would have the
the right and the power to prevail, to abolish the Nobility, to destroy all its rights and privileges, which it would no longer be hereditary; that if the people elected them, they would secure the Third Estate's rights.
anything he wanted, because the priests, members of the Third Estate, having agreed to detach themselves from the High Clergy, and to unite with them, the Nobility and the Clergy united together would make but one voice against two from the Third Estate. If the Third Estate had chosen wise bourgeois or merchants, they would have united without difficulty with the other two orders. But the assemblies of bailiwicks and of The seneschal's courts were filled with legal professionals who absorbed opinions and wanted to take precedence over everyone else... (Letter from the Marquis de Fodoas to Necker, May 29, 1789; quoted)
(by Taine, The Old Regime, pp. 518, 519.)

Are not Fodoas's last words, which we emphasize, echoed as a echo in the speech of the Amiable Brother... "the influence of our Brothers was predominant in the primary and secondary assemblies of the Third Estate...?

After Auvergne, here comes Touraine and the Bordeaux region:

"In Touraine," wrote the intendant, "the opinion of most voters was commissioned or begged for."

At the time of the vote, the cronies would place pre-written ballots in the hands of the voters, and had provided them, upon their arrival at the inns, with all the writings and advice likely to exalt their heads and to determine their choice for people from the Palace" (implied: of Justice), (Letter from the intendant of Tours, March 25, 1789.)

"In the Sénéchaussée of Lectoure, a number of parishes and communities have not
They were assigned, notified, to send their notebooks and their deputies to the assembly of the
The seneschal's court. For those who have been notified, the lawyers, prosecutors, and notaries of the small Neighboring towns voiced their leader's grievances, without convening the community... On a single
They made drafts of identical copies for everyone, which they sold at a high price to the councils.
of each rural parish." (Letter from Lectoure; quoted by Taine, The Old Regime, p.
519.)

Freemasons haven't changed in a century as handlers of dough electoral: when one reads the letters written in Lectoure and Tours in 1789, wouldn't one swear...
Are we witnessing modern-day electoral manipulation?

All of this would be laughable if thought did not immediately turn to the immense and terrifying stakes of the grotesque shell game where, throughout France in 1789 at the same time, the FF men of The law "handed the map" right under the peasant's nose: the stakes were hundreds of castles, lands, Forests, Church property to be stolen! The stakes were thousands of human beings.
"Shortening" by guillotine in honor of Holy Masonic Equality! The stakes, It was the blood of Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette that the same Freemasons would to try to spread in Versailles, on October 5, 1789, to obey the Occult Power anti-Christian and anti-French, of which they are often unwitting slaves...

Plans and Resources.

If we read, so to speak, with anti-Masonic lenses, the study by Messrs. Cochin and In Charpentier, the conspiracy of the Lodges is revealed on every page, and with obvious clarity.
such that our readers would accuse us of wasting their time and ours commenting on this a work whose clarity is so luminous in itself. The highest praise we can offer it.

What we can do is ensure that it fits wonderfully with the operational details of the Masonic conspiracy in 1789, as F Amiable proudly described it to the Congress Masonic Centenary of the Revolution.

Let us return to the page by Messrs. Cochin and Charpentier cited above:

"There was a conspiracy. How and by whom was it formed? We will try to find out."
to get an idea by following the progress of the Revolution in Dijon and Burgundy step by step, during the six months preceding the Estates-General. (La Camp. élect.., p. 7,)

We first see the emergence of the instrumental role of certain characters who,
Far from leading the charge, they were treacherously led by the Occult Power to their own loss: the magistrates of the Parliaments whom Masonic trickery had led astray in large numbers in the Lodges.

When the King had consented, at the end of 1788, to the meeting of the Estates-General, "the members of the
The Parliament of Paris, exiled for five months, returned triumphantly to the Palace. Their desires They went no further; there too their role ended. It then appeared that these proud magistrates were nothing by themselves, and that they unknowingly served as instruments for bolder aims.
than their own. Indeed, these supposed leaders, unarmed, and their troops continued the battle. with the same unity and the same fury. The Estates-General had been convened; it was a matter of now to impose the law, and the storm of anonymous pamphlets begins to blow again with renewed intensity. beautiful.

Election by ballot, the doubling of the Third Estate, voting by head, these are the new Demands from the Third Estate (read: Freemasonry). As we can see, the Revolution was lifting the mask; Parliament has suddenly become more subdued (it, full of FF from the old team, from the old ship!)
shuddered with indignation: the demands of the Third Estate threatened to... ruin the balance of the State, to shake the columns of the Monarchy...

The King, on Necker's advice, sought the opinion of the Notables. Consult the Notables, this was to acknowledge the inadequacy of the old forms and, more seriously, the right of the
The nation to change them. This principle accepted, the revolutionary party took it upon itself to draw the consequences.

Then a strange spectacle unfolded: at the end of November 1788, disturbing noises rumors circulated about the decision of the Notables who had supposedly voted against doubling the Third Estate.
General Dishes. Immediately, in hundreds of cities and towns, the Third Estate assembled; and of Hundreds of requests, conceived in the..., arrive in Versailles from all corners of the Kingdom.
same terms and asking for the same things: election by ballot, doubling, vote by head.
This is the first episode of a campaign that will give no respite to the government, until the triumph of the Third Estate, the storming of the Bastille (the great victory (Masonic!)

Around this time, in the city of Dijon, a group of about twenty people...
This group is notable for its great concern for the interests of the Third Estate. However, it is very discreet.
He has no name, no known status, and never informs us of his meetings or projects.
never puts himself forward and never risks a public action without covering his tracks.
the authority of a constituted body. But since it is very active, nothing actually happens without him, that all the ideas come from him, and that he somehow finds himself always in charge to carry them out; as it corresponds, finally, with many other groups of the same kind
"As a species found in the cities of the province, we can follow its trail without too much difficulty."
(Cochin and Charpentier, La Camp. élect..., pp. 7, 8, 9.)

The few underlined words that we have added in parentheses to this text mark
The stages of the Masonic conspiracy sheltered behind the complicit Freemasons of Parliament unaware before becoming victims - and served in provincial towns by what the F Jouaust calls it "the flower of the Third Estate." Like the groups that led the Revolution in In Brittany, under the impetus of the Lodges, the Dijon group "consists of doctors, of surgeons, and especially legal professionals—lawyers, prosecutors, notaries—all petty bourgeois obscure figures, several of whom had themselves appointed as deputies of the Third Estate to the Estates, but none of whom left a name...

Like all similar groups, it was in the first days of December 1788 that He is beginning his campaign.

This involves having the mayor propose to the corporations, then sending to the King in the name of the Third Estate of the city, the petition we discussed. Now, the first condition for becoming to hear from authority and opinion was to speak on behalf of a constituted body; Individuals are nothing then; only bodies are listened to.

The lawyers of the cabal therefore convened their bar association with the president of the bar on December 3rd. One Among the leaders, Volfius takes the floor: a major trial, he says, is underway between the Third Estate and the privileged; all provinces take part; the Dijon bar association cannot remain indifferent. We must act, imitate Metz and the Dauphiné, stir up and direct public opinion.” (Cochin and Charpentier, La Camp. élect...., pp. 9, 10.)

When Freemasonry, a few months later, had become master of the country, its The first priority will be to destroy the corporations that formed the backbone of France: so that His tyranny could last; it was indeed necessary that no living organism remain. facing the Masonic organization - this horrible cancer that will claim to play within the body of the French nation, the role of all vital organs criminally removed! But, before Freemasonry deceived them, precisely to prepare for the demise of the corporations. - everywhere in France as in Burgundy - as is its function to deceive, while waiting that she steals and that she murders.

The plan of the conspirator Volfius is put into action by the committee of lawyers from Dijon: on simultaneously drafts a petition to the King and a summary of the steps to be taken to to obtain the province's support.

Returning once again to the universality of the conspiracy, Messrs. Cochin and Charpentier They write: "The request is similar in form and substance to those that were being drafted in the same way in all the cities of the Kingdom." (La Camp. élect.., p. 11).

When we consider the existence of nearly 700 Lodges in France at that time, and when

We remember F Jouaust's remark about the uprising of all the cities of Brittany, at the same time, is very well explained, he said, by the close relations of the numerous Lodges Breton women, it is impossible not to see in the nameless group of Dijon bourgeois the revolutionary action union of the Freemasons of Burgundy.

This revolutionary action union of the Freemasons of Burgundy, moreover, resembles like a brother in the revolutionary action union formed in Rennes by the Lodges of Brittany, with at least thirty Freemasons out of fifty members, writes Brother Jouaust.

Masonic hypocrisy oozes from the lines of the Petition to the King written by the Dijon committee: there, a bitter but skillfully contained hatred was expressed against the nobility and the clergy; an overflowing admiration for the Third Estate; a declamatory pity for the wretched of the people - whose suffering the Freemason Third Estate wants to exploit.

"And these general ideas lead, as everywhere, to four specific demands: doubling of the Third Estate; voting by head in the Estates-General; the same reforms in the Estates of the Province; and in the elections of the Third Estate, the prohibition against appointing a lord, or even a farmer or an agent of a lord." (La Camp... p. 11.)

Here we see, once again, the cynical impudence of Freemasonry. From the outset
In 1789, she cut and eroded the rights of popular suffrage in order to distort the votes.
his profit. This prohibition against the Third Estate voting for a lord's tenant farmer does not-Isn't she an admirable example of the current ban on multiple applications?
The most remarkable thing is that it was never forbidden – and for good reason – to the deputies of the acquired nobility.
Freemasonry is being forced to transition to the Third Estate, lock, stock, and barrel! That's how it was at its cradle.
Even Masonic equality asserts itself by creating new inequalities.

One must see, in the fascinating pamphlet by Messrs. Cochin and Charpentier, what hypocrisy!
The Dijon conspirators, eminently Masonic in nature, implemented a plan to achieve their goal.
to adopt their plan and their request by all the corporations of the city, successively!

Before giving some interesting examples of the dishonest tricks that were employed for this purpose, let us quote a profound remark by Messrs. Cochin and Charpentier:

"The 'plans' and 'means' of these lawyers are more cleverly combined than simple and natural. One cannot imagine the initial efforts of an exasperated people to break their chains. And yet these same complicated "means" were employed at the same time and for the same purpose, on the advice of the Dijon committee, by other similar groups of lawyers and doctors in about fifteen towns in Burgundy. » La Camp. élec...., p. 15.)

If our readers would be so kind as to refer once again to what we quoted from F Jouaust on Masonic activities in Rennes in 1789, like us they will conclude that it is In reality, Freemasonry, which throughout France has rigged elections for its own benefit, is responsible.
at the Estates-General, from which the first Republic emerged, how it distorts the elections under the Third Republic.

"How public opinion is manufactured."

This title of an eloquent brochure by Maurice Talmeyr is entirely appropriate here.

We have seen that the combined "plans" and "means" in Burgundy for the rigging
The elections to the Estates-General of 1789 were intended to conceal the actions of the ringleaders.
behind the Corporations, the Aldermen, the Third Estate.

Just a century later, Freemasonry made a new collective effort to subjugate the France under his domination and what was accomplished around 1889 with the wish of FF Pochon and Cocula is identical to the Masonic push for the insertion of the so-called wishes of the Third Estate in the Cahiers of 1789.

From 1888 to 1891, as we recall, the wish of F Pochon, deputy of Ain, underwent a
A long incubation period in the Lodges. Then, this hidden life of the Pochon vow soon blossomed.
in a large number of General Councils which adopted it simultaneously. This resolution opened the path to a state monopoly on education and demanded that Catholics be reduced to a caste of outcasts unfit for public office; yet this criminal wish stemmed "from the "within Freemasonry itself, the Convent and the Council of the Order," said F Blatin to Convent of 1891°7.

It was also "from within Freemasonry" that the demands had emerged - all of them the same from one end of France to the other - which were formulated and inserted into the Notebooks from a thousand and one communes. It was within the 700 Lodges of France that they were nurtured the Cahiers of 1789, conceived in the same terms in all four corners of the country: it was as many "Architectural Drawings" drawn by the Brothers following a common model.

In his book already cited: La Bigorre... pendant la Révolution, Abbé Ricaud studied near the 260 notebooks contained in the Archives of the Hautes-Pyrénées department. He has showed that general formulas had been drawn up, and the peasants were simply using them transcribe...

A very large number of notebooks, at least half, come from these models or types common. Each part, each corner of Bigorre generally had its own type. (Bigorre... p. 17.)

---

*7 Report of the Convent of 1891, p. 451.

And Mr. Ricaud cites nine municipalities in the Barèges valley which have a similar notebook.
Eighteen municipalities located in the valleys radiating from Argelès "have copied literally or were inspired by a common type"

I have cited (adds I) eleven communities in the vicinity of Tournay who had declared, in same terms, suffering from the same ailments.

In addition to these formulas specific to a particular region, the Notebooks reveal the presence of a formula general that can be found in all parts of the province. (La Bigorre.., p. 18.)

That formula was the original Architectural Plank, the one that the "Enlightenment" of the

The Grand Orient of France had sent a message from Paris to the "Enlightenment" members of the Lodges of Bigorre.
as in the "Lights" of the Lodges of Dijon and Rennes, where we have already seen the Brothers*#*,

For Dijon and Burgundy, Messrs. Cochin and Charpentier provided the most detailed information.
precise details of the always hypocritical and often revoltingly dishonest schemes (Masonic in a word) which in 1789 were used to manufacture opinion.

It was – as we shall see – a breach of trust that gave the Dijon town hall to the
A Masonic group as the basis for its operations in Burgundy. What could be more natural when one Think of the monstrous thefts and pillaging that fill the annals of the Revolution. This does not
It was only a beginning.

Once the petition to the King was drafted, the Masonic Mafia of Dijon decided:

"to have it approved by the Aldermen and the Viscount Mayor, and to send it in their name to King, to Mr. Necker, to the intendant, to the military governor, and on the other hand to the cities of the province and kingdom which will be asked to make a similar one and spread it from
In the same way.

With these points established, the other Corporations are approached: the plan and request are adopted by the doctors and surgeons on December 5; by the prosecutors at the bailiwick on the 6th; by the notaries on the 8th; on the 9th by the prosecutors to Parliament, the prosecutors to the Chamber of Accounts, the tanners and the writers; the 10th by the apothecaries, the watchmakers, the grocers, the Wigmakers... We can see the tactics the party used from the very beginning: naive people would have asked the Mayor to assemble the City Council and submit their draft request to him.
But the Mayor could refuse; moreover, a large gathering has unforeseen consequences and... is going badly. The lawyers' committee prefers to call the bodies one by one, quietly, in beginning with those where he has the most friends, the doctors and the people of the Palace: from this
In this way, significant minorities, even majorities, can be surprised and eliminated.
discreetly, without having had time to recognize each other or unite. Then, the beam of

As membership grows, insurance increases: corporations less closely related to the Palace, and in greater numbers; they find themselves faced with a ready-made and already prepared request voted on by influential bodies; some members are in league with the lawyers; one weighs on the decision of others, with all the weight of the support obtained; and they vote: that's the snowball tactic.

By December 10th, thirteen Corps had joined. That was a small number in a city that had so many More than fifty. But Parliament was waking up. The lawyers judged the moment had come.

'8 It was in Brittany as in Bigorre. Let one rather confront the statements of F Jouaust on the preponderance of his FF in the 1789 elections in Brittany with an article by Mr. Sée (Professor of History at the University of Rennes). Published in one of the many journals responsible for distilling the Jacobin poisons and entitled: The Parish Notebooks of Brittany in 1789. There too, he The issue is one of general grievances that were reproductions of a model. (The French Revolution, (No. of June 14, 1904.) (LD) to address the second part of their plan. Until then, the assemblies of the Bodies are supposed to individual and spontaneous. They are undoubtedly provoked by the lawyers, but unofficially; they do not wish to give themselves an illegal importance that would have made people jealous and worried the authorities by proposing their own plan. This consultation of the Body of In the city, only the Mayor and Aldermen can do it.

However, at City Hall, the cabal has Trullard, the Prosecutor-Syndic, one of its leaders. Viscount Mayeur, Mr. Mounier, is wholeheartedly with Parliament but he is afraid of lawyers and decides to feign illness. As for the aldermen, Trullard summons them to the Hôtel-de-Ville on Sunday, December 11, and submits to them an insidious draft request, all similar to that of lawyers, with one difference: the most important article is omitted, one does not The vote by head was mentioned. The aldermen approved. Immediately the deputies of the bar association present themselves at the door of the hall, followed by the delegates of the thirteen consulted corporations days before and seven others, won that very morning. They were not summoned and the

The mayor was absent; yet they were admitted, pell-mell with about fifty zealous citizens.
Trullard rises and proposes, on behalf of the City Council, the abbreviated petition he had just made to sign at the Aldermen's. Arnoult, the lawyers' representative, then spoke on behalf of the bar association, declares his support for the Aldermen's project and, under the pretext of repeating it, completes it by adding to it handing over the article on voting by head. The trick is done. The assistants cheer wildly.
The lawyers' committee receives full powers to execute the decisions of the assembly and the
The aldermen dare not say anything.

Not a single article of the petition nor a single member of the committee had changed; but the petition ratified, however reluctantly, by the Aldermen and the Corporations, it had become "the vow freely issued by the Third Estate of the City of Dijon," and the committee of lawyers sent it, under this imposing, to the other towns of the province, by inviting them, on behalf of the Viscount Mayeur (!) to follow the example of the capital. (Cochin and Charpentier, La Camp. élect...., pp. 11
(at 14.)

Viscount Mayeur, hostile to the "plan" of the Freemasons, was then suffering from an illness Diplomatic. But what did one more act of treachery matter to the forgers of the Lodges!...

Such were the lies, the breach of trust, the forgery (all very Masonic!) on which built the electoral propaganda of Freemasonry in Burgundy. Moreover, as Messrs. Cochin and Charpentier have said it repeatedly, following Taine, and the same was true in France.
throughout France as well, the actions of Freemasons in assemblies
The elections signaled the start of the unrest:

"In the four months preceding the storming of the Bastille, one can count more than three
"Hundreds of riots in France." (Taine, La Révol., I, p. 13.)

In Normandy, in Touraine, in Orléanais, "throughout the kingdom the spectacle is the same," of riots "barely contained by the troops and the constabulary," thus that Baron de Besenval, military commander of the central provinces, wrote to Necker April 20, 1789.

In Provence too, political innovations are the spark that ignites the mass of powder; everywhere it is on the very day of the electoral assembly that the people rise up; in In less than fifteen days, there were 40 to 50 insurrections in the province. (Taine, La Révol. (p. 23.)

The time has come when, under mysterious suggestions, the Lodges, hitherto filled with Dupes and smooth talkers will open their complacent breasts to men of plunder and Murder. After saliva, blood.

Masonic Purification.

It was through a transmutation worthy of the most powerful adepts who have ever possessed the Philosopher's stone, which the Occult Power has changed the Lodges - assemblies of chatterers suggested – in dens of assassins. But through what learned gradations!...

In 1789, Burgundy and Brittany, at opposite ends of France, made us grasp The process of the Occult Power, in real time, was busy modifying the state of mind as it unfolded. with the composition of the Lodges, in order to constantly adapt the Masonic instrument to the task expected of him for a specific time.

Burgundy and Brittany, indeed, at the beginning of the election campaign for the The Estates-General were together the scene of the same fratricidal war: the war of the Freemasons. of the revolutionary lawyers against the Freemasons of the legal nobility and the Parliaments. And This war, here and there, in these two provinces so far apart, is being waged with the same weapons, on a clearly common plan.

We are witnessing (write Messrs. C. and Ch.) one of those purges which mark

The different stages of the Revolution. (La Camp. élect.., p. 26.)

It is by purging the Lodges – in favor of a growing fanaticism against traditions – that things are happening.
Catholics and royalists - that proceedings were initiated to lead them out of the factious opposition but relatively innocuous of the Freemasons of Parliament (after the Trial of the Necklace), up until the time insurrections, when Freemasons spread into the clubs to become the
the most active catalysts of the Revolution.

And this terribly clever "ON" is the secret organization that, unbeknownst to them, is leading these clans.
Masonic groups destined to tumble one another. This "ONE" is Power.
Occult, the mysterious Bund that operated in 1789 in the underground of the French Revolution, as it will act, in our time, in the basements of the Russian Revolution.

We have not yet had the opportunity to mention that in May 1788, when the Ministry wanted
By abolishing the Parliaments, unrest had already broken out everywhere at once, so that in June
The King had been forced to yield to the coalition of the FF of the Basoche and the FF# of the Parliaments. Now, when the coterie of lawyers from Dijon tried to persuade the parliamentarians to
To sign his famous petition to the King, his orator told him:

"Remember last May 28th: 'what you did last year foreshadows what "What you are going to do today..." In May 1788 (write Messrs. C. and Ch.), the party was headed by a general staff that he lost, or has since excluded: it was that same legal nobility, those same parliamentarians, so badly mistreated six months later, drunk with popularity, and using themselves for to shake the authority of the King with the same men, the same cadres, the same "means" secret and powerful things they considered so dangerous in December. Thus the parliamentarians had conspired with the lawyers; before fighting them they had campaigned for their sides. That's why parliamentarians see so clearly through the lawyers' game, and are so afraid of them: they played the same game six months earlier, know its complex rules and hidden, the first of which is to never say where one is going, and suspect the lawyers of wanting to go very far; that is why, finally, the people, the clergy, the most wholesome part of the nobility,

The king himself is not afraid and sees nothing: they are not initiated. (Messrs. Cochin and (Charpentier, La Camp. élect..., p. 25.)

Let us comment on these insightful remarks about the Revolution in Burgundy with the help of some contemporary texts about the events and relating to Brittany. There, as in Burgundy, the
The members of Parliament who had opened fire against royal authority enjoyed very little of the time of their popularity: purged, excommunicated by the new Masonic team - that

---

* The Masonic Action Committee in Burgundy. (LD)

Notebooks and State Elections - here are the parliamentary FF cruelly attacked in enraged pamphlets. For these anonymous libels, younger brothers of filth Collected against Marie Antoinette, we know the workshops where THEY manufactured them: they are part of the arsenal of shameful weapons wielded by these Freemasons who, according to the F Jouaust were the true leaders of the revolutionary movements of 1789 in Brittany.
as elsewhere!

We read in the authentic (sic) and continuous History of the Revolution (London, 1792):

"It was especially in Brittany that the fires of discord began to ignite: Event all the more remarkable given that this province had been the first to oppose it just a few months ago.
previously under ministerial despotism, to unanimously demand the return of Parliament, which had become, Since then, horror, execration, and what is worse, contempt and the fable of the Third Estate." (Hist., t. 1,
p- 88.)

I don't need to point out how bright the light is that the confessions of Brother Jouaust concerning Freemasonry during the Revolution in Brittany, the mere statement of this Historical fact: it was primarily in Brittany that the flames of discord began to ignite!

People's decrees.

Following the passage above, the author of the Authentic and Continuous History published the following in a footnote:

"one of those essential pieces to preserve," he said, "and whose rarity would make it suspect, if
It was not possible to verify its accuracy on the spot. It is a Decree of the People, of the January 9, 1789, posted in Rennes on the same day and on the 10th at all crossroads and gates Churches of Nantes and Saint-Malo" (volume I, p. 88).

Masonic cunning and hypocrisy shine in all their splendor in this "Stop of the Self-"
This saying, "People," was written by the Freemasons of Rennes. It also appears to be a paraphrase of the lawyers from Dijon reminding the parliamentarians that they had conspired together, in '88. In vehement terms, the so-called People reproach the members of the
The Parliament of Rennes seems to forget that "without popular enthusiasm" last year, they were lost. He stigmatizes their ingratitude, he lashes out at their bias which leads them to deny the the right of assembly for ordinary people, while he, Parliament, properly assembled when It was no longer a unified whole: it paid no heed to the blows of an authority that separated it. After Having shown himself that unjust laws cannot enslave, can he hope that his Will stopping have any effect?

For all these reasons, the People, by virtue of the authorization always given by the Justice and Reason quash and annul the said judgment, and forbids all its deputies to have any regard for it...
(Volume I, p. 89).

If we want to measure at a glance the immense distance traveled (in the space of five months!) by Freemasonry on its way to Terror, it is necessary, after this placard posted in the name of the
The People, on January 9, 1789, considered another People's Decree: it was Arthur Young who... reported in his letter of June 9, 1789, where we read:

Three days ago, a four-year-old child, but intelligent and well-mannered, went around from the garden (of the Palais-Royal) in broad daylight, at least twenty times, carried on the shoulders of a
The porter. He shouted: "Decree of the French people; Polignac exiled a hundred leagues from Paris!"
Condé the same; Conti the same; d'Artois the same; the Queen. I dare not repeat it to you.

Arthur Young was a distinguished agronomist from England who, for his scientific studies, travelled all of France in July and August 1789. His letters form a remarkable picture of the state of kingdom at the beginning of the Revolution.

X

THE QUEEN AND THE ESTATES GENERAL

As we have just seen, in the middle of 1789, Freemasonry had a double victory to its credit.
The elections have just filled the Estates-General with its insiders: now it is in a position to seize power in France. Furthermore, Marie Antoinette – who alone is a serious obstacle to the the success of her plots - is everywhere loathed, reviled, and the hatreds sown relentlessly since Fifteen years against the Queen will manifest themselves one after another, in the cruellest way, at at the very moment when the Estates-General were meeting.

"So far," writes M. de la Rocheterie, "despite the passing clouds that darken his Blue skies, despite dark forebodings and suppressed sadness, we saw the Queen relatively, happy: she still has the dazzling beauty of youth and the majesty of the Crown. If one walks toward the abyss, one walks slowly, and the splendor of the Throne, the
The radiance of motherhood half-conceals the gaping abyss. Today, the veils are they tear apart; the danger appears, pressing, inexorable, and on the very brow of the mother a

A new ray will extend. The Queen of Trianon has disappeared; the Queen of Versailles will disappear; here comes the Queen of the Tuileries, awaiting the Queen of the Temple and of the Concierge. The sovereign divests herself of her possessions, but the woman grows; her character is strengthened and The ordeal transfigures her. All the vigorous qualities, contained in germ within her nature, and that good fortune had, as it were, hidden beneath the more seductive veneer of amiable qualities, proud dignity, fearless valor, disregard for danger, drive, indomitable fortitude of spirit develop and become more prominent; the elegant woman gives way to the strong woman.” (M. DE LA ROCHETERIE, History of Marie-Antoinette, Paris, Perrin, 1892, vol. I, p. 2.)

“...In the spring of 1789..., everything was hopeful; people dreamed of a golden age. It is difficult today, it's possible to get an idea of the tremor that had gripped France, as it approached The Estates-General... On all sides, this new era was enthusiastically hailed which was opening...

...Amidst this general satisfaction, there was one dark spot: the Queen. The cheers that greeted the King fell silent before his wife. Slander had done its work. work, and all these provincial nobles, these country priests, these bourgeois of small towns, which made up the vast majority of the states, came from the far reaches of France imbued the most detestable prejudices against the unfortunate Princess. The pamphlets that malice had vomited against her, these vague and mysterious rumors that circulate everywhere, spread to in low voices, whose origin was unknown... had so often repeated that the Queen was the author of all the evil, which people had grown accustomed to seeing in her, along with the cause of the deficit, the only a serious obstacle to effective reforms. "The Queen is plundering on all sides, even sending, "It is said, to his brother the Emperor," wrote a priest in his parish register in 1787. Maine...”' If, as early as 1787, such rumors had penetrated to the depths of the countryside and found Given the belief held by enlightened men like Father Boucher, one can judge what it must have been. Two years later, when the convocation of the Estates-General had inflamed passions. The announced reforms failed; it was Marie Antoinette who bore the brunt of the impatience of public opinion was expected to be blamed; all the harm done, all the good that was not, would be attributed to him.

 Review of Historical Questions: Th. Meignan, Parish Registers of Civil Status; Jan. 1879, p.
149. (Register of Father Boucher.)

would not happen. » (M. DE LA ROCHETERIE, Hist., t. II, pp. 2 to S.)

The suspicions and anger that Freemasonry has gently brought to a head... demonstrated from the very first days of the meeting of the Estates-General:

“The deputies of the Third Estate,” recounts Ms. Campan, “arrived in Versailles with the strongest Prejudices against the Court... They believed that the King indulged in the pleasures of the table.
to shameful excesses; they were convinced that the Queen was depleting the state's treasury to to indulge in the most unreasonable luxury; almost all wanted to visit the Petit Trianon.
The extreme simplicity of this pleasure house, not corresponding to their ideas, some Some insisted on being shown even the smallest rooms, saying that things were being hidden from them the richly furnished rooms. Finally, they pointed out one which, according to them, should be everywhere adorned with diamonds, with twisted columns set with a mixture of sapphires and rubies. The Queen did not could come back from these crazy ideas.” (Mme CAMPAN, Mémoires..., ed. Didot, Paris, 1849)
p. 229.)

A few days later, it will be one of those Third Estate deputies (imbued with Freemasonry!) who will send to Alsace the hateful letter of which Arthur Young heard an echo in a conversation at a communal table where it was claimed that the Queen was at the head of a conspiracy, that it was certain, that a member of parliament had written it.

Madame Campan was careful not to omit from her Memoirs an anecdote "which proves," she said, that a faction had plotted against the Queen:

“During the procession of the Estates-General (May 4, 1789, in Versailles), women from the
The people, seeing the Queen pass by, cried "Long live the Duke of Orléans!" with such factious accents, She thought she was going to faint. They supported her, and those around her feared for a moment that... was not obliged to stop the procession. (Mrs. CAMPAN, Memoirs..., p. 227.)

For his part, Governor Morris, the United States ambassador, noted that "not the
"Not even the slightest acclamation greeted the Sovereign":

“I could not help,” he wrote, “feeling the affront to the poor Queen, for I do not see
"In her, that woman, and it seems cowardly to me to be harsh towards a woman." (Diary) (Gouv. Morris, 1789 to 1792, Paris, Plon, 1901, p. 26.)

The American Morris spoke as any Frenchman would have spoken before the invasion of the Masonic plague. But the abominable treatments that will soon be inflicted on Marie-Antoinette, through the servants of the Back Lodges, will give us too cruel a proof of the
The truth of Abbot Le Franc's words: Freemasonry has changed the morals of France!

The speech delivered by Louis XVI in the Chambre des Menus, at the opening of the Estates-Generals, is interrupted, writes the republican Morris, "by applause so
So warm and engaging that tears flooded my face despite myself. The Queen
She cries or seems to cry, but not a voice is raised for her. I would certainly raise the My own if I were French; but I have no right to express my feelings, and it is in vain that I ask my neighbors to do so.” (Gov. Morris’s Journal, p. 28.)

Difficulties began immediately after the royal session. The Third Estate refused to
To return, like the other two Orders, to the premises designated for it; it remained in the
The Chamber of Menus, thus seeming to claim to personify, all by itself, the entire Nation.
The colossal firebrand of discord long kindled by Freemasonry - the question of vote by head - then did its work.

"Thus began to widen the gap between a monarchy that seemed powerless and a
An assembly that clearly aimed to seize power, the abyss into which the Monarchy.

In the following chapter, we will quote the letter in which Arthur Young recounts this infamy.

This situation deeply saddened Marie Antoinette. Her efforts to to win the sympathies of the deputies. In vain had she ordered that her gardens at Trianon, Those at Versailles, the Palace was open to them at all hours. In vain she had done to give each of them a card which gave them free entry to the city's shows and the Court. The few deputies who had believed they could respond to these advances were denounced to popular vengeance as henchmen of the Queen and enemies of the Nation. The poor Sovereign was distressed, and I know not what sinister premonitions stirred within her his mind." (M. DE LA ROCHETERIE, Hist..., t. II, p. 12.)

It was Freemasonry – the queen of lies and denunciation – that thus designated the popular fury that she cowardly stirred up in the shadows, men brave enough to to show some sympathy to the Queen of France! Can we doubt it when we know that in these
"On those very days, a deputy, F Adrien du Port," explained his lodge, Les Amis Réunis.
system of terror and, for its part, singled out Foulon, Berthier as victims to be sacrificed, and others...

The System of Terror and the Lodge "The United Friends".

Indeed, there is a proven historical fact: the apparent organizer of the first massacres intended to subdue France through fear was F Adrien du Port, of the Parisian Lodge Les Friends Reunited.

As early as 1800, a former minister of Louis XVI, Bertrand de Molleville, revealed the horrific combinations that the F of the Port had designed and had adopted by the Propaganda Committee from the Lodge Les Amis Réunis, at the end of June 1789. Bertrand de Molleville reports as it follows the speech given by the F of the Port to his cronies:

"It is only through the means of terror (F Duport had said in his own words) that one manages to take the lead in a revolution and govern it. There isn't a single one in no country whatsoever that I cannot cite in support of this truth. Therefore, it is necessary, whatever repugnance that we all feel, to resign ourselves to the sacrifice of a few people striking.

Duport (adds de Molleville) suggested that Foulon, the comptroller general of finances, He was naturally expected to be the first victim. He then pointed the finger at the intendant of Paris, Berthier.

"There is only one cry," said Duport, "against the intendants; they could put great obstacles to the revolution in the provinces. Mr. Berthier is generally hated: one cannot To prevent him from being massacred, his fate will intimidate his colleagues; they will be lenient. "like gloves." (B. DE MOLLEVILLE, Hist. de la Révol. franç., t. IV, p. 181, Paris, an IX.)

The Propaganda Committee of the Lodge Les Amis Réunis (center of the Masonic conspiracy) adopted the plan of the Port's F and the criminal means he proposed.

"The execution followed closely," continues Molleville; "the massacre of Messrs. de Launay, of Flesselles, Foulon and Berthier, and their heads paraded on the end of a pike" (1), were the the first effects of this philanthropic conspiracy. Its successes soon rallied, and for For a long time, the various revolutionary parties were beginning to distrust each other.

Du Port, deputy of the Nobility of Paris to the Estates-General, was one of the magistrates of Parliament that the Lodges most strongly suggested. He was one of the 46 nobles who joined the Third Estate in June 1789; but Upon his return from Varennes, he repented! Outlawed in 1792 as a royalist, he died in Switzerland, in the misery.

% The following month, in July 1789. (LD)

others, but who, seeing all obstacles removed by this horrible measure, gathered together to to reap the benefits. (Ibid., vol. IV, p. 181.)

From May 1789 until Thermidor, France invariably used terror to rule.
Freemasonry establishes and maintains its domination: it is fear, which at Versailles, in May, removes to the Queen, a few possible defenders; it is fear (the Great Fear!) which, in July, will to blow across all of France at the same time the same wind of insane panic.

But—let's repeat it ad nauseam—it was between the two previous dates, in June, that the F
Adrien du Port dogmatized the system of terror and designated the victims who, three Weeks later, they will be butchered alive by the Lodges' henchmen. Such is the odious unity of views and action that Freemasonry has imposed on the entire period revolutionary.

The Death of the Dauphin.

We know this: this unity of vision and action had been aimed at the Queen for fifteen years. Every day
She felt the darkness thickening around her, the hatreds growing and intensifying. And the sorrows too.
The stinging blows that were inflicted upon her one after another in May 1789 were they for Marie-Antoinette foresaw that terrible misfortunes were being prepared for her by her hidden enemies.
in the shadows. And gloomy forebodings gripped him.

“The Queen,” wrote Madame Campan, “went to bed very late, or rather, that unfortunate princess.”
she was beginning to find no rest. Towards the end of May, one evening when she was sitting in the middle From the room, she recounted several remarkable things that had taken place during the during the day. Four candles were placed on her dressing table; the first one went out on its own-even; I relit it; soon the second, then the third went out too; then the Queen Squeezing my hand with a gesture of terror, he said: Misfortune can make superstitious; if this fourth candle goes out like the others, nothing will be able to prevented me from viewing this as a sinister omen. The fourth candle went out.

It was pointed out to the Queen that the four candles had probably been poured into the same mold, and that a defect in the wick had naturally been found in the same place, since The candles had gone out in the order in which they had been lit. (Mrs. Campan, Memoirs... Paris, Didot publisher, 1849, p. 228.)

Vague explanations! They did not deliver the Queen from the waking nightmare in which she lived.

His premonitions, moreover, were not mistaken: a few days after this scene of the Four candles later, the Dauphin died at Meudon.

Quite different from his younger brother (the unfortunate Louis XVII), the first Dauphin was sickly, frail. Already in 1788 his back was stooped and his legs could barely support him. But In 1789 the illness worsened; gangrene spread to his spine, and although his intelligence remained sharp, His character had become sour.

"At least there remained a touching tenderness for his mother. It was as if before the Leaving him, he wanted to give her all the affection he had in his heart. He begged her to to stay close to him, and to please him, she sometimes stayed for dinner in his room. Alas! The poor mother swallowed more tears than bread. (M. DE LA ROCHETERIE, Hist...., t. II, p. 16.)

On May 4, 1789, it was only from a balcony, where he was kept lying on cushions, that The heir to the throne was able to attend this procession of the Estates-General which marked the the beginning of the agony of the French monarchy, during which the Queen was the object of cries of hatred that we know. A month later, the Dauphin in turn entered his death throes.

While the predatory beasts of Freemasonry sharpened their claws and stopped their Massacre plans, this is what was happening in Meudon: the Duke of Harcourt, governor of The Dauphin sent his secretary, M. Lefèvre, to beg the King, who was arriving from Versailles, not to do not enter the Prince's room.

The King, Lefèvre recounts, stopped immediately, sobbing: "Ah! My son is dead!" “No, Sire,” I replied, “he is not dead, but he is very ill.” His Majesty let himself

She fell onto the armchair near the door. The Queen entered almost immediately and rushed down to her knees.
among those of the King, who, weeping, cried out to her: "Ah! my wife, our dear child is dead, "Since they don't want me to see him..." The Queen, shedding a torrent of tears and still with both arms resting on the King's knees, he said to him: "Let us have courage, my friend; Providence can do all things, and let us hope that it will preserve our beloved son for us." (The Government of Normandy, vol. IV, p. 387)

The following day, June 4th, at one o'clock in the morning, the Dauphin died and, that very morning, Bailly, the dean of the Third Estate, came to present the King with the meager condolences of his order and to him requesting at the same time to receive a delegation from the Third Estate wishing to present him with Clean hands, an address on the situation.

Bailly insisted in such an imperious tone, says Weber... that the King, wholly absorbed in his grief, had to give in to these demands and receive, as early as Saturday, June 6, even before the funeral of The Dauphin, the deputies of the Third Estate; but few encroachments on his authority affected him as much that this violation of the intimate sanctuary of his regrets: "Therefore, there are no fathers in "The assembly of the Third Estate?" he said with a bitter pang of regret. (M. DE LA ROCHETERIE, t.
(I, pp. 17, 18.)

Were these Freemasons of the Estates-General not then as odious as the a policeman who insisted on not letting the Queen change her shirt without witnesses, before leaving His prison sentence to go to the scaffold?

On June 17, 1789, Freemasonry took another leap towards sovereign power, and Here are the plots revealed for Burgundy alone, which have reached their premeditated conclusion.
by Messrs. Cochin and Charpentier - but plotted throughout France. On June 17th, in fact, the Freemason whom the Amiable Brother solemnly appointed at the Masonic festival anniversary of the Revolution, as one of the three Brothers who, from the outset, marked the

To better understand their place among the elected representatives of the Lodges at the Estates-General, Brother Sieyès had a vote held at a
An overwhelming majority passed a motion by which the assembly of the Third Estate declared itself the Assembly National.

Fear at the Estates-General.

From the day when the Third Estate – so profoundly Masonic – as well as Brothers Amiable and Jouaust
They proudly proclaimed it – the National Assembly had declared itself, and Freemasonry was in charge.
sovereign in France. From then on, the famous remark by F Sieyès about the Third Estate, which was nothing and what was supposed to be everything appears to us as a Masonic lie intended to conceal this
A lamentable truth, as true in June 1789 as it is today: (The State is us, the Freemasons!

The followers of Brother Sieyès, these Brothers whom Brother Jouaust calls the flower of the Third Estate
The State used the most shameful means to establish their "Holy Revolution":
worthy ancestors of today's Freemasons who steal Church property and throw people out onto the street With nuns dying, the Freemasons of 1789 employed the vilest weapons: against the
The noble Queen Marie Antoinette, the most filthy calumny; and against noble France, yesterday Fear, still so full of manly courage, that infamous gag!

Faced with the revolutionary audacity of the Third Estate, claiming through its disastrous split" of
On June 17, to represent all of France, the government could not remain silent; it announced a session royal decree for June 22nd and closed the Menus room until that day. On the 20th, the Third Estate found the the gate guarded by soldiers and meets at old Versailles, in the Jeu de Paume room.

There, the visiting Freemasons of the Back Lodges had a field day, in the feverish atmosphere.
to exasperate this crowd with the lies of these "thousand dangerous conspiracies" supposedly orchestrated by the Court (by the Queen, behind the Court!) - criminal lies of which the Freemasonry was deceiving the whole of France at that moment.”

They were cleverly manipulated by the High Masons who led them without their knowledge, and despite their apparent leaders, despite Malouet, despite Bailly, despite Mirabeau who was afraid and did not try Not even to assert their feelings, the deputies of the Third Estate swore not to separate before having given France, with or without the King, a constitution. By this fatal oath,
As Mounier said, Freemasonry terribly accelerated the march towards the abyss...

At the same time, all the cosmopolitan riffraff that we had seen entering Paris from the end "of April"? is up and running. On June 22nd, d'Epresménil and Abbé Maury narrowly escape being knocked unconscious; the
On the 23rd and 25th, the Archbishop of Paris was stoned in the streets, his residence besieged, until he promises to meet with the deputies of the Third Estate.

Today, the Grand Orient's influence is exerted below ground, at the Palais-Bourbon, so that that it not be seen. In 1789, the henchmen of the Lodges terrorized, in the so-called National Assembly, the orators trained in their attire to push them forward, ever onward, until they stumble upon the steps of the scaffold.

Although our hall was closed, said Bailly, there were still "more than six hundred spectators,” not respectful, silent, but active, mingling with the deputies, raising their hands to motions. Collateral assembly, which often imposes its will on the other. They note and they take down the names of the opponents; these names are passed on to the chair-bearers who are now the names of public enemies. Lists are drawn up, printed, and in the evening,
They hold guards at the entrance to the hall, and from there, all the way to the crowd waiting for the deputies at the exit.
At the Palais-Royal, lists of proscriptions were drawn up. - It was under this crude pressure that several decrees are passed, including the one by which the municipalities declare themselves National Assembly and seize supreme power. The day before, Malouet had proposed to first check which side held the majority; in an instant, all the No votes, in the number of More than three hundred people gathered around him; then, "a man rushed from the galleries, melted on him and grabs him by the collar, shouting...: "Shut up, you bad 'citizen'." Malouet is being removed;

But terror had spread through the room, threats followed the opponents "and the
The next day, Malouet adds, there were only ninety of us. Likewise, the list of their Names had been circulating; some, deputies from Paris, came to see Bailly that very evening. One of them... had been warned that his house was to be set on fire; but his wife had just given birth, and The slightest disturbance in front of the house would have been fatal for the sick woman. (Talne, The Revolution) Hachette, 1878, t. I, pp. 46, 47.)

"Such arguments are decisive," Mr. Taine adds ironically. And here are the means. which gave the Freemasons of 1789 pseudo-majorities in the so-called Assembly National. Compare these methods to the various manipulations that today give great-nephews of the great ancestors of majorities that are just as deceitful, just as far removed from to represent the true wishes of the Nation, and we will see that it is always the same thing,

---

5 This word is from MALOUET, Mémoires, 2nd ed., vol. L, p. 283.)

56 See, regarding these alarming rumors, the letter from Mr. Turckheim, deputy for Alsace, to his constituents, As of November 23, 1789, Young had already heard about these things in July. We will discuss them further.
far.

°' Taine, La Révolution, t. I, p. 33, according to the documents of the time. We will elaborate on this below.

with the aggravating circumstance that the baseness of soul of modern Freemasons is even more sickening than that of the Brothers of 1789 - and that's saying something.

The "decisive arguments" reported by Mr. Taine, according to Malouet, were very real those who gave the Occult Power its two victories in the votes for the transformation of the Third Estate into the National Assembly and for the Oath of the Game

Palm. Here is irrefutable evidence:

“Three days after (the threats against Malouet), at the Tennis Court Oath, only one Deputy Martin d'Auch dares to add "opponent" after his name. Insulted by several of his colleagues, "denounced on the spot to the people who had gathered at the entrance to the hall, he is forced to escape through a side door to avoid being torn to pieces,” and, during a few days, to no longer return to the sessions. - Thanks to this intervention by the galleries, the a radical minority, about thirty members, lead the majority, and do not allow it "is freed." (Taine, The Revolution, vol. I, pp. 47, 48.)

Three days have passed since the fateful Tennis Court Oath. The session takes place on June 23rd.
The royal ceremony was announced for the 22nd. There, the King made a statement that achieved a considerable amount reforms demanded by the Cahiers.

"If we look at the declarations of Louis XVI on June 23rd, we will see the principle there, the the very development of all the political reforms that have been written since then in the editions so often renewed of our constitutions and charters.” (DE LARCY, Vicissitudes of France, p. 11. Quoted by M. DE LAROCHETERIE, Hist. of Marie-Ant., t. II, p. 23.)

Arthur Young, an avowed but loyal opponent of the Ancien Régime, also wrote these lines, at the very moment when Louis XVI had just spoken:

"Everyone knows the proposals made by the King; the plan was good; it was agreed much to the people on essential points. (Travels in France 1789, 1790, vol. 1, p. 349.) The Communes, by stubbornly refusing what is being offered to them, are abandoning to chance certain and immense advantages, at the risk of posterity cursing them, at instead of honoring their memory as that of true patriots.” (Ibid., p. 355.)

Yes, posterity will curse them, the criminals who made the Revolution, because they made it not as French patriots, but as enemies of France, as instruments of Freemasonry, execrable daughter of the execrable Kabbalist Jews, secretly and relentlessly devoted for centuries to the destruction of the Christian faith and monarchy, those two bulwarks of the nations of Europe against the Jewish conquest.

Here we are in July 1789: everything we have said so far was only the prologue to this drama: the Masonic conspiracy against Catholic and royal France and against Marie Antoinette.

Now the drama itself begins.

July 1789.

"There's the victim!" exclaimed Mirabeau, one of the conspirators in the Masonic plot, in referring to Louis XVI, on the day the Estates-General opened. This terribly The prophetic was not invented after the fact: Weber relates it in his Memoirs (vol. 1, chap. IX, p. 335) and "Weber was present at the meeting," writes F Louis Blanc after quoting this passage. (Hist. de la Révol., t. II, p. 264.)

At the point we are in our study, in July 1789, Louis XVI made a great not towards sacrifice. But, on several occasions, Marie Antoinette strove to make it prevail Advice that might have saved the King's life and his own. Alas! Fate had intervened. revolutionary then, just as today she was a Dreyfusard for so long.

Inevitably, the Lodges and their secret agents were weaving this plot right into the palace. of Louis XVI: thanks to her, Marie Antoinette's opinions were never heeded; blind men mixed with traitors who advised the King pushed him onto the path of his agonizing Calvary.

As for the Queen – resolved to martyrdom – she will soon pronounce her will, when she is begged to to distance myself, these admirable words: "On reflection, I will not leave: my duty is to die at the King's feet."

Lies and betrayal, all of Freemasonry is contained in these two terms. To what extent does the King was deceived, betrayed; a few words from contemporaries will tell us.

Necker

The main relay horse of Freemasonry at that time was Necker from Geneva, prime minister, whom the Lodges had made an idol of the people. The double game of this agent of the Occult Power has been unmasked in these short lines concerning him, his sister, and his brother-in-law, member of that monstrous Back Lodge known as the Club of the Propaganda:

Germain, Necker's brother-in-law, received the bodyguards the day before the massacres, on the 6th
October 1789, in Versailles, a letter from his sister sent him: "Be calm, everything will be alright
"Well, we can neither speak nor write"; and while her worthy husband remained hidden, she,
A quiet spectator of the brigands' fury within the very galleries of the castle, she said:
"Let these good people do as they please! There is no danger!" (Memoirs of Barruel, vol. IV, p.
305.)

For her part, Mne Campan writes in her Memoirs:

"The all-too-memorable oath... taken at the Jeu de Paume in Versailles, was followed by the session"
Royal address of June 23rd. The Queen regarded Mr. Necker's actions as treason or criminal cowardice.
for not having accompanied the King (to the session of the 23rd). She said he had turned into poison a salutary remedy; that, possessing all the popularity, the audacity to openly disavow the His sovereign's actions had emboldened the rebels and drawn the entire Assembly into his conflict, and that he was all the more guilty because, the day before, he had given her his word to accompany the King to this session. Mr. Necker tried in vain to excuse himself by saying that his opinions had not been heeded.
(Memoirs, ed. Didot, 1849, p. 252).

The King had already heard all too much of the opinions of this half-traitor—if he wasn't a complete traitor.
Listened to! At the beginning of June, Augeard, delegate of the General Farm, had presented to the Queen
(She immediately informed Louis XVI) a remarkable work on a sure way out financial difficulties of the time. His memoir was, quite rightly, in opposition to the Necker's subversive ideas, which, in order to overwhelm his King, played (virtuously) on the deficit - the

A meager deficit of a few million that the Revolution will transform into a colossus!
Will she not, in fact, go bankrupt by thirty billion, after having ravaged and ruined the country?

"Necker wants to deceive us!" said the Queen to Augeard. "He wants us to play our
"A kingdom of all or nothing..." (Augeard, p. 183.)

Of course, lulled to sleep by the treacherous Genevan (whom Freemasonry was leading, to no end) doubting, through his brother-in-law, the High Mason Germain) Louis XVI disregarded the advice d'Augeard. And on June 23rd, Necker's treacherous abstention nipped the proposed reforms in the bud.
by the King at the Estates-General, - these reforms whose wisdom had wrested Young from the English a cry of approval for Louis XVI and of disapproval against the Third Estate.

---

8 Cited by Augeard, secretary to Marie Antoinette's Commandments, Secret Memoirs, Paris, Plon, 1866,
p. 205.

The Beginning of the End.

Ms. Campan summarizes the account of the dreadful days that followed in these terms:

Soon, the uprisings of July 11, 12, and 14 opened the course of disasters which France was threatened. The massacre of M. de Flesselles and M. de Launay caused widespread fear.
Queen of bitter tears...

The uprising no longer bore the sole character of a popular insurrection: the words "Long live the Nation! Long live the King! Long live Liberty! had cast the greatest light on the extent of the

The reformers' plan. However, the people still spoke of the King with love and seemed to... to consider, by its very nature, as conducive to furthering the Nation's wish through reform what were called abuses; but it was believed that the King was restrained by the opinions and influence of the
The Count of Artois and the Queen, and these two august persons, were then the object of hatred.
dissatisfied people. (Memoirs, p. 243.)

A month earlier, Arthur Young had already seen with his own eyes the infamous comedy that we
We have said, this child being paraded around the Palais-Royal on the shoulders of a porter and shouting:

"Decree of the French People: Polignac exiled one hundred leagues from Paris; Condé likewise; Conti
"Same; d'Artois same; the Queen." I dare not repeat it (added Young).

Here we see with what diabolical cunning the Occult Power fanned the flames of the wrath of the mob against the unfortunate Marie Antoinette - and what a mob! Down in the mud of the low-Parisian funds, he had mingled with the most foul dregs of cosmopolitan vagrants, - worthy ancestors of this international rabble that Maurice Talmeyr was showing us very recently, widely hospitalized in Paris today:

During the last days of April (1789), the clerks saw people entering the city gates (Parisian women) "a frightening number of poorly dressed men with sinister faces."
(BEZENVAL, Memoirs, vol. I, p. 353.)

From the first days of May, one notices that the appearance of the crowd has changed; it mingles
"A number of foreigners, from all countries, most of them ragged, armed with large sticks" and whose very appearance announces all that one should fear from it." (Taine, The Revolution, vol. I, p.
33.)

"We never imagined we'd see faces like that in broad daylight... Where did they come from? Who brought them here?"
From their shadowy hiding places? Some almost naked, others strangely dressed in rags.
Disparate, "horrible to behold"—these are the leaders or accomplices of a riot, paid 6 francs a head.
behind whom the people will march." (Taine, Anc. Rég., p. 508.)

On July 11, the King, in very gentle terms, dismissed Necker's services. Immediately, General commotion... - Emissaries enter public places, theaters, which They will empty out in a few moments: there, they cry out in a mournful voice that the Fatherland is in danger.
now that Necker, the friend of the people, is no longer there to protect him. At the Palais-Royal, district
The general of the rioters, "the Count of Artois and the Queen are covered with curses to whom one "attributes the dismissal of Necker."

Thus, on July 11th, we find in the howls of the fanatical plebeians what ten years earlier, the infamous verses dictated by the Back Lodges were screeching: the accusation criminal love affairs linking "Toinette" to "Charlot"!

Camille Desmoulins, who, influenced by the calumnies with which Freemasonry had saturated the France, in a dreadful poem, had just called the Queen a "Messalina," the F
Camille Desmoulins leads the wild beasts of the Palais-Royal through Paris. The Guards-French women, "most of whom made a living as pimps," and who—moreover—had entered Ÿ de la Rocheterie, Histoire de Marie-Antoinette, t. II p 28.

% M. Funck-Brentano, Legends of the Bastille, p. 261.

They flocked to the Lodges, joined the riot, and marched against the royal troops. And Here comes the Talmudic chaos unleashed upon France by the rearguard.
Lodges, daughters of the Kabbalistic Rosicrucians.

XI

THE STORMING OF THE BASTILLE AND THE GREAT FEAR

In his Report read at the Plenary Meeting of the RR*# LL Peace and Union and the Free Conscience in the East of Nantes, on Monday, April 23, 1883, F Brunellière characterized the final action by which Freemasonry set the Revolution in motion, when he said that "Weishaupt had concealed from many of his initiates the call for the power of the masses." (Report .... p. 7.)

The Call to the Force of the Masses.

A century earlier, Abbot Barruel expressed the same idea as the F Brunellière, when he recounted the illumination of the French Lodges by the deputies in charge in February 1787 to give them a new rank:

"But these were few of those Brothers who had embraced illuminism in the old Lodges; The Epope of Weishaupt exhorts his followers to strengthen themselves through numbers. This was also at the time of the new rank and the departure of the Deputies, which can be seen in Paris and in the Provinces Lodges are multiplying more than ever, and the Freemasons' system is changing regarding the choice of Brothers. However debased Freemasonry may already have been, its assemblies were composed Rarely. From the dregs of society. So the suburbs of Saint-Antoine and Saint-Marceau filled with porters, Freemasons. Then the followers spread throughout the Towns and villages began to establish lodges, where the last of the artisans and peasants came to hear talk of equality, of freedom, and to get their heads heated about Human Rights. Even then, Orléans called for the mysteries and received Freemasons up to these legions French Guards intended for the siege of the Bastille and Versailles. Ask the Officers of these legions, and they will answer that at that time they left the Lodges of Equality, by seeing them fill up with their subordinates.

It was during this same period that a multitude of clubs were established in Paris... They were no longer Simple lodges are clubs, regulatory committees, political committees. All These clubs deliberate; their resolutions are brought to the correspondence committee of the Grand-East, and from there they go to all the Venerable Ones of the provinces. This is the chain of Weishaupt; it is the art of stirring up peoples in a single day, from East to West, and from South to South in the North...

The instructions reach all the way to the extremities; and all the Venerable Ones are warned of them.
acknowledge receipt, and attach to their reply an oath to faithfully execute and punctually all orders arriving via the same channel. Those who hesitate are threatened by the aqua tophana and the daggers that await traitors.

The Brothers, frightened and outraged by these orders, have no other recourse than to leave the Lodge and the gavel, under all the pretexts that fear and horror can suggest.
More zealous brothers take their place; orders follow one another and press on until this
The moment the Estates-General arrive. The day of the general insurrection is set for July 14th.

1789. On this day, cries of liberty and equality are heard from outside the Lodges; Paris is Bristling with axes, bayonets, and pikes: the Bastille has fallen; the messengers who...
They carry the news to the Provinces, returning and saying that everywhere they have seen the villages and the Cities in insurrection... On this day, there are no more Lodges, no more Masonic dens. You no longer
You will find more true Followers than in the Sections, Town Halls, and Committees. revolutionaries. As they dominated in the Electoral Assemblies, they dominate in the National Assembly." (Abbé BARRUEL, 2nd ed., 1803, vol. V, pp. 97-100.)

The research of Messrs. Cochin and Charpentier, the confessions of Brothers Amiable and Jouaust - not to mention MG Bord's study on the Freemasonry of the storming of the Bastille - present With this page from Barruel, the most overwhelming concordance for Freemasonry. The three the hundreds of riots that preceded July 14th; the fires, the murders that then covered the France; the hideous massacres with which the assassins, who were decorated with the title of Conquerors of the Bastille; the appalling tortures endured by de Launay, Foulon, Bertier de Sauvigny, - this bloodshed, these demonic tortures inflicted, all this is the work of Freemasonry! And today it boasts of these crimes, after having hypocritically... she shrugged off responsibilities, as long as she didn't believe she was the one to impose her will on France the worship of his cruel infamies.

At the same time as, in the words of Brother Brunellière, "the Freemasons (in 1789) dispersed into clubs, into political life, etc. »°', grassroots anarchists joined their their effort pays off, and they help these anarchists at the top to put their theories into action.
death. Indeed, from the very beginning of 1789, a large number of foreigners flocked to Paris.
from all countries, most of them ragged, armed with large sticks, and with a frightening appearance was enough to demonstrate what one should fear from it. (Memoirs of Baron de Besenval, (with notes by Messrs. BERVILLE and BARRIERE, Paris, 1828, vol. II, p. 349.)

On April 28, 1789, during the riot in the Faubourg Saint-Antoine, the house and the Réveillon factory, the simultaneous action of mysterious leaders and the rabble cosmopolitan bribes are obvious to Besenval, who commanded part of the troops tasked with suppressing these disturbances*".

All the police spies, he said, who brought us news, agreed on to say that the insurrection was caused by foreigners who, in order to swell their numbers, they forcibly took everything they encountered; that they had even deputized, on three occasions different, in the Saint-Marceau district to recruit, without having been able to determine who that it was to come and join them. These spies added that people were seen stirring up a commotion.
and even distribute money. (BESENVAL, Memoirs, vol. II, p. 351.)

Regarding the same Réveillon case, we read in the General Directory of Sources handwritten copies of the History of Paris during the French Revolution, by M. AL Tuetey:

On April 30th, M. de Villedeuil wrote to the King: "I have recommended to the King's Prosecutor from Châtelet to leave no stone unturned in discovering the driving forces and instigators of the incredible
"The frenzy of the day before yesterday." That there were ringleaders seems beyond doubt, the authority itself...
even acknowledges it and puts all its efforts into searching for and finding these agents provocateurs.
This is how Mr. de Villedeuil wrote to the King, in that same letter of April 30th:

"I was informed that the day before yesterday, a man with two crutches, dressed in a black velvet suit, wearing a silver-cloth jacket embroidered with gold and the cross of Saint Louis, had uttered the most arsonists, inciting the people to overthrow the entire army opposing them, saying that the

'| On the role of Freemasonry in the 17th century, report read at the Plenary Meeting of the RR LL, etc. Nantes, April 23, 1883.

® Besenval died in 1792. The pages he devoted to the events of 1789 were surely written shortly after he had been a spectator.

The Parisians were cowards, being so numerous, for not crushing the regiment of guards. adding that bread should cost 2 sols, etc."

This enigmatic figure remained untraceable. (AL TUETEY, vol. I, Introduction, p. XLI, Paris, 1890.)

The Predictions of F Chamfort.

At the beginning of May 1789, a few days after the Réveillon affair, an incident occurred between two members from the French Academy, Marmontel and Chamfort, an extraordinary conversation, echo direct evidence of what the Back Lodges were plotting. The hatred that Chamfort exhales there against the Catholicism and the Monarchy, that's Masonic hatred. The plans he reveals there to Marmontel was horrified; these were Masonic plans. Chamfort was a member of the Lodge Les Nine Sisters - that of Brother Voltaire - and there he meets Brother Condorcet, Brother Brissot, the F Garat, the F Desmoulins, not to mention the F Danton. (BARRUEL, Memoirs... 1803, t. V, p. 83.)

Our readers will no doubt find it interesting to hear F Chamfort describe
In May 1789, the maneuvers which, a few weeks later, would serve to overthrow Paris, and all France after Paris, in "a delirium of fear and rage".

“We had at the French Academy (Marmontel wrote), one of the most outrageous supporters of the Republican faction: it was Chamfort, a sharp, witty mind, full of a very sharp sarcasm when he he amused himself with the vices and absurdities of society, but with a bitter and biting humor against the superiorities of rank and fortune that wounded his jealous pride... » (MARMONTEL, Memoirs, vol. II, p. 281.)

At the Academy, after a session, Marmontel and Chamfort were left alone. The F.-.
Chamfort congratulates his colleague on his defeat in the elections:

"Excellent for building up," he told him, "you are worthless for destroying."

"You frighten me by talking about destroying," Marmontel retorted. "It seemed to me that..." he only wanted to fix things.

"Yes," Chamfort replied, "but repairs often lead to ruin: by attacking"
An old wall, you can't say it won't crumble under a hammer. You would be sorry-you no longer want to hear talk of Eminences, nor of Greatness, nor of titles, nor of coats of arms, nor of nobility, nor commoner, nor of the high or low clergy?

"By wanting to abolish everything," said Marmontel, "it seems to me that we are going further than the nation..."
She hears it, and goes further than she asks.

"Well!" (Chamfort resumed), "does the nation know what it wants? We'll make it want it and we'll..."
will make her say things she never thought; and if she doubts it, she will be answered like Crispin in Legatee: It's your lethargy. The nation is a large flock that only thinks of grazing, and With good dogs, shepherds can lead them as they please. After all, it's their own property that they want. to do without his knowledge; for, my friend, neither your old regime, nor your worship, nor your customs, nor all Your antiquities of prejudice deserve to be treated with care. And to draw up a new plan, we has every reason to want to clear the decks.

- A clear space? (Marmontel insists) And the Throne? And the Altar?

"The Throne and the Altar," Chamfort told him, "will fall together; they are two flying buttresses." supported one on the other; if one of the two is broken, the other will bend.. (/d., ibid., t. II, pp. 282 to 284.)

Brother Chamfort knows full well that his brothers and friends have the right to count on the inertia of those whom we call wise and moderate men, entirely preoccupied with their private interests or with their pleasures. And besides, he counts on the support of "the class of people who have nothing to "Losing due to change and gaining everything":

"To incite them," he said, "they have the most powerful motives: scarcity, hunger, money, the sounds of alarm and terror, and the delirium of fear and rage with which his mind will be struck. Know that all our orators are nothing compared to the Demosthenes at one one crown per head, which, in taverns, in public squares, in gardens and on the quays, They foretell devastation, fires, ransacked villages, flooded with blood, and conspiracies. to besiege and starve Paris. That's what I call eloquent men..." 1d., ibid., t. II, pp. 285, 286.)

This conversation, as one might well imagine, made a profound impression on the mind of Marmontel, frightened by this destructive fanaticism:

"The unfortunate Chamfort," he adds, "punished himself by slitting his own throat when he..." "Knowing his mistakes." (Ibid., vol. II, p. 288.)

Indeed, F Chamfort, however ardent he was for the Revolution, no longer counted the day where the team of intellectuals of his kind was replaced by one of the teams of assassins who, They worked successively in the Masonic slaughterhouses of the Terror. Thrown into prison, he could not to escape the guillotine only through suicide, while the Occult Power of Freemasonry continued to bleed France dry while waiting for the liars in the pay of this

The same Occult Power "declares to the people that it is the greatest of all peoples since 89, whereas it is precisely on this date that its decline begins." (Ed. DRUNIONT, Jewish France, vol. 1, p. 495.)

The Means of Terror.

Our readers are familiar with the horrific remarks made at the end of June 1789 by Brother Adrien du Port, in front of the propaganda committee of the Lodge Les Amis Réunis:

"It is only through terror that one can come to power in a revolution."
and to govern it. There isn't a single one in any country that I couldn't name.
in support of this truth. Therefore, however repugnant we all may be, we must resign ourselves to it.
to the sacrifice of a few prominent individuals.

Duport (adds de Molleville) suggested that Foulon, the comptroller general of finances,
He was naturally expected to be the first victim... He then pointed to the intendant of Paris, Bertier.
(B. DE Molleville, Hist. de la Révol. francç., t. IV, p. 181, Paris, an IX.)

Such was the theory of the Terror system, a theory put into practice as early as July.
1789 with the assassinations - perfectly Masonic since premeditated and plotted by the Freemasonry - whose first victims were Foulon and Bertier de Sauvigny.

If we compare the words of the F du Port with those of the F Chamfort that we Having just mentioned them, we can now grasp at a glance the entire range of criminal methods that have served Freemasonry to perfect the Revolution.

Aïünsi, while the F of the Port, of the Lodge Les Amis Réunis, formulated the theory of the Terror in June 1789, as early as the month before, F Chamfort, of the French Academy and of The Lodge Les Neuf Sœurs had, in a way, prophesied what is called the Great Fear, six weeks before this "delirium of fear and rage"°* (2) struck the French crowds.
Moreover, we remember that F Chamfort had very clearly announced how we would provoke this frenzy! But that will not stop the evangelists of the revolutionary Church and

We said that the F of the Port was a deputy of the Nobility. He signed his name with two words. His contemporaries
They mistakenly wrote his name as one word.
% see above the predictions of F Chamfort.

Masonic practice of accumulating volume upon volume to make people believe that the Great Fear was spontaneous.

And that's precisely how history is written.

says a well-known verse.
We will see in a moment to what extent Masonic history lies.

Fear in Paris

Among many others, three contemporary works from the events provide us with testimonies completely opposed to the thesis of official historians of the Revolution, for that the spontaneity of "fear and rage" in 1789 is an unassailable dogma.

Interestingly, one of these works is praised by Mr. Aulard as providing "Information that is often precise and almost always curious." (Aulard, The Society of Jacobins, t. I, p. XXXL.) This is the authentic (sic) and continuous history of the French Revolution.
(2 vols. in-80, London, 1792.)

We read there that in July 1789:

"obscure agents spread among the gatherings of the lower classes and there
They recounted graphic details, all the more easily to these crude listeners because they were more frightening and even more absurd. Troops were only withdrawn from one side to be brought back in from The other one; he came from the Saint-Martin gate, from the Saint-Antoine gate; we could see him arriving artillery trains, bombs, cannonballs, and even grills to heat them." (Hist.

aut...., t. I, p. 166.)

The result of this lying tactic - so often used nowadays in the Masonic documents, with the countless plots against the Church, with these Slanderous accusations made against priests, nuns and monks - here is the result:
at the time when the "victims" marked for death by the High Freemasons like the F
women from the Port will be delivered to their "assassins disguised as judges," as one said.
contemporary®: "the people, whom the factious, by dint of repeating it, had persuaded as a proven truth the conspiracy against the capital, its bombing its
"The pillaging and, above all, the massacre of all his people, he breathed nothing but vengeance..." (Hist. aut., 1792, vol. I, p. 208).

In his Second Letter to My Constituents, published in January 1790, one of the deputies of the Count Lally-Tollendal writes:

"Paris had long been filled with troublemakers; corruption was rampant there," Money was being sown there as early as the Réveillon riot (p. 66)

...We already had news that the shock felt by the capital had been felt not only in neighboring towns, but in distant provinces. Saint-Germain and Poissy had witnessed bloody scenes; Pontoise was threatened with the same unrest;
They were making their presence known in Brittany; they existed in Normandy and Burgundy. They threatened to spread throughout France. Emissaries, obviously departing from one point central, they ran along the roads, crossing towns and villages without staying there, making ringing the tocsins, sometimes announcing foreign troops, sometimes brigands, shouting everywhere To arms! And many were scattering money. The plundering of grain, the burning of

---

5 Abbé Morellet, of the French Academy, Unpublished Memoirs on the 18th Century and the Revolution, Paris, 1822, 2nd ed. t. II, p. 36.

houses, the murder of the owners was to be the consequence of their dreadful passage.” (LALLY-TOLLENDAL, Second letter, 1790, pp. 77-78.)

Marmontel was currently living (July 1789) in the hamlet of Grignon located near Choisy-le-Roi° (1), four leagues south of Paris:

“Indeed (written to corroborate, regarding the “emissaries” of Fear, Lally’s statements) Tollendal (whom he quotes in his Memoirs), I myself saw him riding through the hamlet where I was there then, shouting to us that around us hussars were wreaking havoc and setting fires the harvests; that such and such a village was on fire and such and such a flooded with blood. None of this was true, but "In the soul of the people, fear stirred fury, and that was what was demanded." (Marmontel, Memoirs, vol. II, p. 383.)

Given these concurring texts, how can one not be struck by Le Franc's foresight?
destined to be massacred on September 2, 1792 by Masonic killers under orders by the F Maillard - when he cried out in pain:

"Who made the French fierce, always ready to take the lives of their fellow men and to
"To feast on the image of death? Shall I say it, and will anyone believe me? That's Freemasonry."
(LE FRANC, The Veil Lifted, 1791, p. 67.)

For a long time, based on the faith of the lying Freemasons for whom History is nothing but a conspiracy against the truth, I believed there was a chasm between 1789 and 1793. I am I was wrong. I now only see a slight difference between these two dates: if the Freemasons Those from 1793 were thieves and murderers, their elder brothers from the Masonic team of 1789 had, just like them, stolen and murdered; only, those who were the executioners of their
In 1789, those who had been targeted by fire, theft, and murder were called "emissaries".
whereas in 1793, it was the "Hard-Headed" thugs and the judges of the revolutionary tribunals. But
The name matters little, and they were always scoundrels in the service of worse scoundrels.

Again: the members of the Occult Power.

The Great Fear.

Three years before the start of the Terror, this Masonic nightmare, the whole of France had been shaken by a kind of gigantic tetanus attack. It lasts about ten days. Late July 1789. It's the Great Fear. For the peasants, it's the Great Plague here, and there... Grando Paoû etc. Even today, in Auvergne, 1789 is called l'Annada de la Paou, "The Year of Fear"°".

Men who have a cult-like devotion to the French Revolution have said of the Great Fear that it became, through its consequences, one of the greatest events of the Revolution'; that it can be considered one of the most significant events of the Revolution'".

Finally, Mr. Aulard, the High Priest of Revolutionary Religion, insists on the importance The Great Fear:

% Abbé Morellet of the French Academy, Memoirs,

M. MÈGE, Historical and Scientific Bulletin of Auvergne, Clermont-Ferrand, 1900, p. 141.

Mr. Marcel BRUNEAU, Academy Inspector, The Beginnings of the Revolution. Cher and Indre, thesis of doctorate, Paris, 1902, p. 63.

® Mr. Georges Bussière, Historical Events of the Revolution in Périgord, vol. II, The Bourgeois Revolution, Spontaneous Organization, Paris, 1908, pp. 73, 74.

"This Great Fear (he said), from July to August 1789, which is perhaps the most important to the French Revolution. (Review: La Révol. franç., June 1904, p. 556.)

In the same issue of this Review, we read these suggestive lines:

If revolutionary propaganda was the work of the bourgeoisie, if the latter, obeying a the general watchword, spread everywhere models from which the notebooks of parishes. (M. SÉE, The Parish Registers of Brittany in 1789. La Révol. franç., June 1904, p. 501.)

This "general watchword" which, at the beginning of 1789, "spread everywhere "Parish notebook models," where did it come from? Who had given it? What was the giant whose
Was the voice loud enough to make this slogan echo through all the echoes of France at once?
Who was this giant, if not the Occult Power of Freemasonry?

MH Sée's sentence becomes rigorously accurate from the moment that at the word
The term "bourgeoisie" is simply replaced with "freemasonry".

Certainly, to all those who have eyes to see, the electoral propaganda from which emerged
The National Assembly of 1789 appears to be a Masonic creation of the highest degree.
The same applies to the Great Fear.

Here too, a "general watchword" circulated.

In Alsace, they show an edict from the king, stating that it is permitted to take justice into one's own hands;
In Burgundy, they print and post decrees saying: "By order of the King, permit from the 1st "August to November 1st, to burn all castles and hang anyone who contradicts it."
In Auvergne, the peasants have "opinions that say that His Majesty wants it that way."

There are also opinions that say France is being invaded; in Brittany and Normandy, this are the English; in Dauphiné, the Savoyards; the Imperial troops are marching on Alsace; the Spaniards crossed the Pyrenees. Spies and accomplices of the foreigner”.

To add to the public's terror, rumors suddenly spread that an army of brigands was roaming... the countryside, ravaging everything in its path, pillaging, burning, massacring. Couriers, Coming from who knows where, they travel across France, carrying the fatal news everywhere. (Pierre DE WITT, Fear in 1789: The Day of the Brigands in Limousin, based on documents communicated by Mr. Baron D'AUZERS, Caen, 1887, pp. 7, 8.)

And Mr. de Witt adds:

"Many historians have seen this as proof of a sophisticated and comprehensive party organization." revolutionary, whose agents, in all parts of the territory, would have obeyed a word of order. (Id., 1bid., p. 8, note.)

...On July 28, fear spread throughout the region (of Saint-Angel-Limousin); on the 29th, at
At noon, the tocsin is rung in all the bell towers, the cry to arms is heard, the general alarm is sounded; the men
They gather to defend their homes, the women hurry to hide their most precious belongings precious, and flee into the woods with their children." (d., ibid., pp. 17,18.)

Now let's listen to Mr. Bussière:

"We observed (in Périgord) the first panic on the morning of the 29th, at approximately the same time while it was falling on Limoges. It is clear that Angoulême was the initial focus. » (G. Bussière, Étud. hist., t. III, p. 94.)

Mr. Bruneau, for his part, says that:

"It's from Angoumois and Limousin, around Ruffec, Saint-Claud, Rochechouart" and from Confolens, that the upheaval began which radiated over several provinces.

7 It was with exactly the same method that, in September 1792, the Parisian populace was incited to massacre
"Suspects". (LD)

It began and spread, as elsewhere, without reason! Meulan d'Ablois, the intendant from Limoges, could discover nothing more than the passage through Ruffec of six people disguised as Capuchins. From the banks of the Charente and Haute-Vienne rivers, the shock spread through the Limousin region.
northern and the Marche; on the evening of July 29, it reached Berry. (Marcel Bruneau,

The Beginnings of the Revolution, p. 56.)

Who were these "six people disguised as Capuchin friars"? - Mystery and Freemasonry!

The Man with Hair Tied in a Ponytail.

At the very moment when the pseudo-Capuchins and their acolytes were revolutionizing Angoumois, Limousin and Berry, another hotbed of fear was igniting far away, in the Dauphiné. Here is one of the thousands of statements made during the investigation that took place immediately after the events:

"There appeared Sir Antoine Thomas, notary and castellan of Saint-Pierre de Chandieu" who told us that at the time of the last harvest and shortly before the robberies that were committed, several people, including his two younger brothers and the Maurice and François Maret, who were harvesting for him, came to report that a foreigner dressed in bourgeois clothes, with his hair tied in a ponytail and claiming to be from the Côte-Saint-André, passing near where they were, within reach of the main road, called to them, as well as many other people, to tell them that he came from Paris, that he was a deputy, and that he had left that capital with eighty other deputies to announce throughout France there was an edict that allowed the pillaging and ransacking of castles, even to burn those who were removed from the villages. As he said this, he pointed to a sign. which he did not allow to be read and which he said he was going to have printed in Grenoble." (Detailed memorandum and by order of the March of Brigandages which were committed in Dauphiné in 1789. Official document of the time, published by Mr. Xavier Roux, Grenoble, 1891, p. 176.)

In the remarkably insightful Introduction, which precedes this document, Mr. Xavier Roux exclaims:

"The leaders! That's the word on which we must focus our observation when studying the Origins of the French Revolution. Looting, arson, destruction, in any form that it occurred, did not erupt, at that time, like an indignation too long contained. The people were suffering, they were not exasperated; they wanted change, they did not He did not want a revolution; he expected reforms, he did not desire ruins. No. But, while discontent was widespread, some men—the leaders—were studying the party and the profit they could derive from it. Calling on the people to revolt against the King would not have not succeeded; raising it against any constituted authority, however unpopular, to Overturning it would have been impossible. Yet that was precisely what had to be achieved. And so it was achieved.

by way of a detour. Indeed, a plan was adopted and implemented across the entire territory.
singularly bold. It can be summed up in these words: To rouse, in the name of the King, the people against The Lords; the Lords, once overthrown, rush to the throne, now without defense, and break it.

The minutes we are publishing clearly attest to all of this: the existence of the ringleaders - mysterious, - the destruction of the lord's property in the name of the King... » (X. Roux, Introd., pp. I and IV.)

---

7 This is the thesis of spontaneous generation, in other words, effects without cause. (LD)

Anyone who has given even the slightest thought to the tactics of hypocrisy and lies employed, at throughout the last two centuries, through Freemasonry, there is no doubt whatsoever about this: the "Mysterious ringleaders" who sowed the Great Fear, "the foreigner", the fake "deputy" seen at Saint-Pierre-de-Chandieu, as well as the fake "Capuchins" of Ruffec, were none other than agents of the Lodges.

The Alleged Spontaneity of the Great Fear.

Above, we quoted some apostles of the Revolutionary Religion who agree with to see in the Great Fear "perhaps the most important event of the Revolution" French. (M. AULARD), La Révol. Franç., June 1904, p. 556.)

Strangely enough, it seems that in the eyes of these pious worshippers of the Revolution, this would be a

It is sacrilege not to believe in the miraculously spontaneous birth of the Great Fear.
a sinister dawn from which their idol emerged, reddened from the very first day by the glow of fire and by blood.

Thus, for Mr. Conard, author of a monograph on Fear in Dauphiné, the
The Great Fear is "the most spontaneous and consequential popular movement" which stirred up the countryside during the Revolution." (M. CONARD), Fear..., Paris, 1904, p.
3.)

Speaking of Messrs. Bruneau, Bussière and Mège who studied (as we have seen) the same Regarding the question for other provinces, Mr. Conard adds: "No more than they do for Auvergne, the Whether it's Périgord or Berry, I don't accept that the alarm in Dauphiné was the result of... machination. » (Id. ibid., p. 4.)

Thus the Great Fear would have been spontaneous! No plot would have brought it into being!

As expected, Mr. Aulard showers Mr. Conard's orthodox monograph with flowers, “A truly remarkable monograph,” he said. Something our readers will find quite What is remarkable is what becomes of those of depositions from the September 1889 inquiry, in which the "ringleaders" are particularly implicated mysterious” who led the wave of looting and fires.

Our readers have seen (p. 308) the deposition of the notary and lord of the manor Thomas, which we have reproduced in part, and the suggestive story of the so-called deputy tasked with announcing everywhere that there was an edict that allowed the pillaging and ransacking of castles. Furthermore, Mr. Thomas "notes that this man's remarks had caused much surprise and seemed to make several people were taken in by this sensation, but he tried to disabuse them by saying that it was only one
"Crazy, he should have been arrested and brought before him..." (Roux, ibid., pp. 176, 177.)

The notary Thomas – this is quite evident – considered the foreigner in question to be a dangerous leader, in full possession of his intelligence.

However, Mr. Conard analyzes Thomas's deposition, which is overwhelming for his thesis of the spontaneous generation of the Great Fear - in the following note:

"It is possible," he said, "that the rumor of the King's orders stemmed from the words of a madman who had spent ten or twelve days in Saint-Pierre de Chandieu before the alarm. Among other things incoherent, he had said "that there was an edict that allowed the pillaging and ransacking of the castles". (Roux, Deposits... Thomas, p. 176. - M. CONARD), p. 81, in a note.)

Isn't this way of interpreting a deposition that contradicts the thesis one is defending... singular?

But it was not only in Thomas's deposition that the pseudonym was staged.
the deputy with his hair tied back in a ponytail, and one wonders if Mr. Conard was not suffering from unfortunate visual disturbances occurred when certain official documents were brought before his eyes.

7" The French Revolution, June 1904, p. 556.

Again, "The Man with the Hair Tied in a Pony".

Without the aid of glasses, we read, in the official document uncovered by Mr. Roux,
Several depositions that strikingly corroborate the statements of notary Thomas:

On the seventh of the said (September 1789), we went to Eyrieu"* (1), to the inn of the widow Brehier. First to appear was Marie Ferra, wife of Pierre Colère, innkeeper at Eyrieu, who told us that at the time of last harvest, about fifteen days before the alarm and the ensuing robberies, a stranger wearing grey clothes, jacket and breeches, his hair tied in a ponytail, no more than five feet one inch tall, looking old about 40 years old, brown hair, pale face, stopped in the cabaret of the defendant to have dinner there. After he had had a few drinks, he addressed her in these terms: "You You'll understand why I'm going through this. I'm one of the deputies of the Third Estate. There were seven of us who we arrived together from Paris and separated at Moulin à Vent, each of us

We go around to different places to give the opinions we are charged with giving.
We must meet in Grenoble where we are to be issued patents, to announce that if the lords did not first side with the Third Estate and if they did not pay like everyone else
The King allowed the pillaging and ransacking of the others' castles, but he forbade that... set it on fire." This is what the stranger repeated several times. He added that he would return in three days.
then to give one of these patents to the parish priest, so that he could read it from his sermon and that he reserved the right to post one himself at the church door... The woman appearing before him having observed that he did not appear to have the bearing of a deputy, he replied: "We are seven, all roughly in the same condition and appearance. They are not "It was not our wealth that made us choose, but our intellect and our knowledge."... The
The woman appearing added that her husband had asked this foreigner if he had papers for to show what he was, and to serve as his passport, he immediately produced a large sheet of paper of paper and presented it, saying, "Can you read? That reveals what I am," but The husband of the woman appearing in court was unable to read and therefore could not obtain any clarification from it.
(Roux, Doc. off., pp. 169 to 171.)

It is inexplicable what Mr. Conard could have seen here that would have led him to decree that the pseudo-deputy who came to Heyrieux and Saint-Pierre de Chandieu was "a poor man" demented »"* (1).

On the same day, Anna Couchon, wife of Jacques Merlin, a merchant, also appeared in Eyrieu; François Blanc, a farmer in Eyrieu, and his wife; then Michel Bouvard and Jacques Merlin. Their statements all agree with the previous one.

Anna Couchon also heard that: "this same man announced that the King allowed to plunder and ransack not only the castles but also the barns and everything else belonged to the lords." (Roux, Doc. off..., pp. 171, 172.)

Another deposition. It proves what a concern for the most meticulous accuracy was inspired to the defendants by the investigating commissioners:

"On the eighth of the said (September 1789), Pierre Colère, wheelwright in Eyrieu, appeared, who

He gave us an accurate statement, consistent with the one given to us yesterday by Marie Ferra, his wife.
except that the foreigner mentioned there, instead of saying that he was going to Grenoble to look for

In other words, Heyrieux, 23 kilometers from Vienne (Isère). (LD)
P. Conard, Fear in Dauphiné, p. 39.

patents to display, said that he was going to have them printed there” (2), and that instead of leaving his
"He had a large piece of paper in his pocket to serve as his power of attorney, but he only took out a sealed letter." (Roux, (Official document, p. 174.)

A strange spontaneity indeed, this movement of brigands where we see them operating in
In Dauphiné, this individual disguised as a "Third Party deputy," and in Angoumois, the six characters disguised as "capuchin monks"!

We will return to the crucial inquiry of September 1789 and to the "ringleaders" mysterious things she encountered along her path. But already, the devotees of the Goddess Revolution appears to us in a peculiar position within this.

Why do historians of the Aulard school go to such lengths to avoid acknowledging that
The Great Fear – that elder sister of Masonic Terror – was, like its younger sibling, spawned by scoundrels sent across France by other scoundrels? These historians Do they fear that criminal traces of the sacrosanct Masonry?

The Leaders.

On many occasions, we have shown Freemasonry at work, since 1735, to undermine the religious and political foundations of France. Would we suppose that in 1789, at the time where its subversive designs will triumph, the Occult Power that leads Freemasonry will do everything To suddenly cease acting? That would be far too improbable! Besides, despite all the supports which Official historians of the Revolution support this, the thesis of the spontaneity of the Great Fear is unable to stand up to this simple fact: to ignite the Great Fear, Fake edicts from the King ordering peasants to ransack castles were spread throughout the France. These false edicts did not write, print, and circulate themselves. Someone... had written and printed.

Someone was having them peddled. And we saw that someone at work for half a century. during, under various masks, including the mask of the perfidious F of the Third, who, from In 1745, he protested that it was quite wrong to believe that Freemasonry was plotting "I know not what "Revolution," he said.

For this Revolution, his work, Freemasonry needed an immense army. Great Fear gave it to him.

On July 23, 1789, at the National Assembly, Malouet said:

“...By opposing the bourgeois militias, there was a fear of general arming, and this fear is justified... When a great interest has caused a great uprising, then the slightest A pretext is enough to awaken the people's anxieties and drive them to excesses. It is such misfortunes that it is urgent to prevent.” (Summary in the Brussels Political Journal, July) 1789, p. 42.)

These excesses and misfortunes could no longer be opposed, for already circulating in the The veins of France are poisoned by Masonic lies. Already, there are "mysterious leaders." were spreading in the Dauphiné region - where they were seen in the act fifteen days before the events, - in Angoumois, etc., the panics which, precisely, were to provoke this general armament dreaded by Malouet.

At the session of July 23, the National Assembly was presented with complaints from neighboring villages. from Pontoise, who are requesting troops against eight hundred brigands. At the session of July 28th,

® Same thing in Thomas's deposition. (LD)

We read a letter from the municipality of Soisson begging the Assembly to send them some troops because "nearly four thousand brigands" are ravaging the countryside at Crépy, Villers-Cotterets.

There were no more brigands around Soissons than around Pontoise, no more than there was a Savoyard invasion of Dauphiné, nor an English invasion of Maine and in Angoumois. But everywhere, through this same fear of an imaginary enemy, the Power Occult armed arms and filled souls with bile and anger.

"While in the villages near Lyon, people were saying that the king had allowed..." destroying the lords' castles; around Bourgoin, the destruction was organized by The following was said by the leaders: "The Savoyards have invaded the land; gather together and "Face the enemy." The frightened people rushed to arms at a meeting place. They had barely arrived when the alarm was proven false and the lords proclaimed responsible for all the harm the country was suffering. From there to burning their homes, there was only the distance from the meeting place to the castle. Most of the populations in the surrounding area Bourgoin had taken up arms to repel the Savoyard invasion; they did not employed only to burn and set fire to the burrows of their lord.

The leaders had therefore succeeded. In less than six days, the part of the Dauphiné that goes from Grand-Lemps, beyond Crémieu, saw its castles devastated and property titles destroyed. by fire. But who were the ringleaders?

Our readers know that the same destructive movement had cast terror into the most of the other provinces of France; they remember that the National Assembly was moved of such a widespread and seemingly well-coordinated action, decided that an inquiry would be made in the entire nation.

Our records contain this investigation for the Dauphiné. However, despite the
the most pressing and insightful interrogations, addressed to a very diverse crowd of Despite witnessing the devastation, the investigations never managed to identify a single leader.

"It was one, or two, or three strangers we had seen one day and never seen again," who had stirred up alarm or transmitted the king's alleged orders against the lords. They had come, had set everything ablaze: anger, appetites, vengeance, and, when he did not All that remained were the ashes of the old houses and the old property deeds; they had vanished like smoke. We hadn't known their names and we had obeyed an authority they had announced it without ever justifying it! They had appealed to passions that did not
They don't reason, and we followed them!

The reality of these leaders and their fleeting passage, which can be seen everywhere, on traces that lead nowhere, are the two mysteries that guide the readers' attention through our Minutes... We are sure of it: this document will be added to others and will lead to more being put in place.
new to the Day. At some point, historians will discover the faces of these men, still nameless, who conceived and brought to completion the work of the Revolution... (Roux, Detailed memoir... Brigandages in the Dauphiné in 1789, Grenoble 1891, Introduction, pp. IV and V.)

These men, the Superior of the Eudists, Abbot Le Franc, had already identified them in 1790 and 1791, when he declared the Freemasons responsible for the bloodshed that had been pouring out from the very beginning of the Revolution.

But since, according to historians of the Aulard school, Xavier Roux was mistaken when he attributed to "mysterious leaders" the development of the Great Fear, - while it is necessary to consider it spontaneous if one wants to remain within the orthodoxy of Religion revolutionary - it is necessary that we quote some more of the official texts of the Dauphiné investigation. Our readers will tell us if, in their eyes, "the reality of these leaders" is not
It doesn't come out as clear as day:

7% That is, the titles to landed properties. (LD)

“On September 16 (1789) appeared Mathieu Belmont, gardener of the castle of Montcarra, who told us that on Wednesday, July 29th (while they were forcing open the archives of the castle) he found himself near the chapel with a man dressed in hazelnut-colored clothes, wearing a hat and dressed rather neatly and quite small, with a rather thin face and a black beard, to which he asked if the disturbances that were taking place could not be stopped. This gentleman said to Appearing before the court: "We are only here for the papers and the looting is not done that by the local people who follow us and whom we cannot prevent from doing this that they want. We use them when we are not strong enough, but when we "There are enough of us, we can do without it." (Roux, Mémoire..., pp. 85-87.)

There appeared Mr. Joseph Génin, farmer of the Count of Bally, at Montcarra. He noticed very clearly, among these brigands, a short man wearing a jacket or a short, hazelnut-colored coat, who appeared to be one of the gang leaders and another A tall young man in a blue jacket and those two saying that they were after the papers. (d., ibid., p. 89.)

On September 21st, in Saint-Pierre-de-Paladru, François Bonnot, gardener of the castle..., heard from Mr. Joseph Guilloud... that having come (on Tuesday, July 28th he was arrested in the woods above the castle by several people, who asked him where he was going. that he had not known any of these people who seemed well-dressed and above the common.

...François Morand also appeared, and made an absolutely similar. And that Mr. Joseph Guilloud had also told him that he had been arrested in the woods by several men, all of whom were bourgeois and whom he did not know. (/d., ibid., pp. 104, 105.)

(Three days before the movement) in Crémieu, at a peasant assembly, a man wearing a red cord, who had said that, in accordance with the King's orders, it was necessary to plunder or sack all the castles... (1d., ibid., p. 196.)

Often, in recent years, the Occult Power that renews itself against The Tsars, in the 1789 assault against the Bourbons, made use of the Russian peasants of the
The same tactic was used: many castles were looted in Russia in execution of assigned orders.
falsely to the Emperor!

We leave it to our readers to draw their own conclusions from these comparisons.
include.

The Results of the Great Fear.

In Mr. Bruneau's doctoral thesis, the colossal consequences of the Great Fear are listed in these terms:

"She planted a formidable seed of suspicion in the minds of the masses. She stirred up..."
On all sides, municipal committees, national guards, the first organizations revolutionaries. Distrust remained after the fear, ready to believe anything, even the unbelievable.
a ferment of anxieties, vague apprehensions, and unconscious hatreds persisted, which They embittered hearts against the supposed enemies of the Revolution.

This revolution was taking shape. The fear of brigands gave it its first impetus in Berry.
form, the municipal form. In this province, the creation of the permanent committee of Paris and
The storming of the Bastille had prepared the ground for the upheaval, but it was the panic of the end of July 1789, which determined it... The first two permanent committees that were formed, at La Châtre July 30th and in Châteauroux on the 31st, were the origin of the defense and resistance committees against the brigands.

By September 1789, the municipal revolution was complete. In almost
In all the towns of Berry, the standing committees were in full activity.

Already, in several cities, they were beginning to renew themselves, to purify themselves...

In Vierzon as in Bourges, the "regeneration" of the committee was done in half every months. It was primarily the fear of bandits that gave rise to the national guards as well as the standing committees. At the news of the danger, bourgeois and peasants rose up to repel the enemy. Once the terror had passed, they remained standing and armed. (M. Bruneau, The Beginnings)
(of the Revolution..., Cher and Indre, Paris, 1902, pp. 63, 67, 74.)

In short, the Great Fear determined the mobilization of the army, of which Freemasonry had needed to conquer France.

But if we want to convince ourselves once again that "the ringleaders" who plotted the Panic was indeed emanating from the Lodges; one only needs to refer to the F Brunellière pamphlet.
full of confessions:

"It was between 1772 and 1789 that Freemasonry developed the Great Revolution which was to to change the face of the world.

It was then that the Freemasons popularized the ideas they had drawn from their Boxes...

After 1789... the Freemasons dispersed into clubs, into political life, into the national representation and in the army; we see Lodges transforming into clubs without even changing their name, among others the lodge Le Cercle Social which became one of the most influential.

The time for discussion and study was over; action was needed; but these are the major Masonic ideas that will be applied as events unfold will march." (On the role of Freemasonry in the 18th century... Plenary session of the RR LL...., Nantes, April 23, 1883, pp. 8, 9.)

We know where the "great Masonic ideas" have led France: to the "butcheries of "human flesh" of 1793, as the Girondin Vergniaud said.

Four Testimonies from Contemporaries.

Four eyewitnesses to the Revolution corroborate our statements – regarding the non-spontaneity as well as on the Freemasonry of the Great Fear. On the other hand, these men—who have seen from their eyes, heard with their ears - are of a completely opposite opinion on this matter to the opinion of Mr. Aulard and his disciples.

In 1797, Sourdat (who wrongly attributes to the Calvinists the main role in the Revolution) (in our opinion) declares that it was Freemasonry that sowed the Great Fear:

"It was," he wrote, "through the Freemasons that the same [event] spread in July 1789." that day, at the same hour throughout the kingdom, the alarm was raised by the alleged brigands; this was, by the Freemasons established a general correspondence and organized fundraising. necessary for the party.” (SOURDAT, The True Authors of the Revolution, Neuchâtel, 1797, p. 452.)

Lombard of Langres - the very well-informed author of Souvenirs which were "clandestinely" "Put to the shreds" by the Jacobin police officers who had taken refuge in the imperial police, because we dreaded his revelations about the revolutionary underbelly - Lombard of Langres denounces as organizers of the Great Fear, the High Freemasons who met "at Ruel and at Passy”, a Passy” where the Collier affair had already been plotted!

---

77 Secret Societies in Germany..., Paris, 1819, p. 186.

Mirabeau, (written by Lombard de Langres), Dumouriez, d'Aiguillon, Le Peletier, Lameth, d'O..., Danton, Dubois-Crancé, Sy... Men..., Laf..., and a host of other followers were then their nocturnal chapters in Ruel and Passy; they led the Brothers of the Third Order; ... and through their networks in the Lodges, they accomplished, on the same day and at the same time hour, the spontaneous insurrection of 1789. (Secret Societies in Germany, Paris, 1819, p. 180.)

In his Memoirs, the Minister and Count Beugnot (the former confidant of Madame de la Motte) has he painted a picture of the Great Fear with extraordinary vigor; he was living in Choiseul at the time, at his stepfather's house; they laughed at his apprehensions caused by the events of the 14th July :

“I admired,” he wrote, “how happy the life we led there was, when Paris was so cruelly agitated. News that struck France like a thunderbolt, that bandits, which jeopardized our safety. On one of the beautiful evenings of August, we We were supper quietly... when a farmer from Choiseul suddenly appeared, quite agitated, and told us that the brigands were widespread in the region and were advancing towards the castle to plunder it. Everyone exclaimed, "But how could they be bandits? Where did they come from?" I won't push the Further on, I only want the farmer to say whether he saw these brigands; he affirms that he did. and that he recognized a first strip running alongside the Montot wood, another along the wood of Pennecière, two clumps of wood not far from the castle. I'm beginning to believe, especially better than this farmer lacks sense and that he was the trusted man of the Mr. Morel, convinced of the truth of the story, does not want to waste time deliberating; His old courage reappears in its entirety; he orders the weapons to be loaded, and makes me notice that the arsenal I had so ridiculed is not superfluous today. He places three men in star. with the order, at the first appearance of the brigands, to fall back on the body of the He garrisoned the two entrances through which the castle could be approached with armed men, and warned These ladies, at the first gunshot they will find it pleasant to go down to the cellars... The night passed without the patrol boats retreating, without the guard being attacked, and without The ladies had taken the path to the cellars; the next morning, they laughed heartily at their own fear and the military apparatus of the previous day. However, Mr. Morel did not judge It was prudent to lift the state of siege again. The brigands had not, in truth, shown up on the points indicated the day before, but they had undeniably appeared and even operated in the surroundings. There were reports of burned castles, others still burning... The state of siege, which

It lost its strength every day, and only disappeared completely at the end of the week.

I then did what was in my power to clarify through which channel this announcement of The brigands had succeeded. Because from the clearly observed effect, one could have traced it back to the cause. I I found nothing but doubt and uncertainty there. The plowman from Choiseul who had brought us He said he had received this news from a resident of Collombey, a neighboring village. He was full From this idea, upon arriving at Choiseul, and by the uncertain light of the moon, he had seen or thought he saw the brigands at the two points he had indicated; I went back to the inhabitant of Collombey, and He told me he had gotten it from a resident of Montigny. I neglected to investigate further. later because I clearly saw that I would only end up with instruments that had been passed down This news and mutual fear, in the best of faith. I then had the opportunity to read letters from deputies of the Third Estate who, in effect, were demanding that brigands were roaming France and it was necessary to arm ourselves to repel them: these deputies, who were otherwise obscure, were still only front-line instruments; but it was not known where the "My first thought about this strange method..." (Count Beugnot, Memoirs, 3rd edition, Paris, Dentu, 1889, pp. 111-113.)

See the article by MG BORD), cited above.

Let us remember that F Chamfort had clearly predicted the use of "this strange "medium," in his memorable conversation with Marmontel.

"This fear of brigands gave birth to brigandage (Beugnot continues). Every man who had A weapon was seized; he who did not have one was given one, and, in a moment, France was overrun with armed gangs, armed at random, without discipline or restraint. This institution of a The internal military force has since been organized as a national guard; but in its early days, it was nothing but a blind force. Like the Estates-General, which became the National Assembly,

And where committees multiplied daily, every city and every town had its own oversight committee, its standing national guard committee; and the movements
The irregularities of these newly manufactured bodies served marvelously to paralyze the action of the former authorities.” (Beugnot, Memoirs, pp. 113, 114.)

All the foregoing sheds a brilliant light on this page by Beugnot. One grasps there the the externalization of Masonic Lodges in 1789, and the formation of these "bodies of new factory”, the Surveillance Committees, the Standing Committees of the National Guard, under the secret direction of Freemasons whom the Occult Power had spread throughout this but out of their caves. The details that Beugnot gives on the first great deeds of the
The sub-Masons of these committees do not fall within our scope. But we refer to Memoirs already cited, those of our readers curious to see up close the workings "of "engines of anarchy that had been sown across France with a fair degree of symmetry," he added.
Beugnot (p. 119).

Who had sown these engines of anarchy everywhere? Freemasonry, said a man who,
As a young boy, he witnessed the day of the Great Fear: Boutillier de Saint-André. His testimony has all the more weighty as his perspicacity had matured early under the heavy sun of the misfortune. His mother, thrown into the Château d'Angers as a suspect, died there on March 12, 1794. His Father was guillotined in Nantes on April 11 of the same year:

They committed a crime against his humanity, and when he appeared before the revolutionary tribunal from Nantes, that he had saved the lives of many prisoners of the Vendéans, and in particular his Accuser: "You saved my life," he replied. "Well! That's where I was expecting you. You You saved my life! This proves you were a royalist, since it was at your request that the "Royalists have pardoned me."

We dedicate this episode, which is repugnant to any truly French heart, to the official manufacturers.
History textbooks.

The young son had until then served his father – confidant and historian of the chiefs

Vendéens - a copyist and secretary. In turn, he left remarkable legacy to his children Memoirs in which we read:

"The real motive (for the meeting of the Estates-General) was to change the government of France; but only the followers, the leaders of Freemasonry, were initiated into the mystery; the others, and this was the majority, believed that it was not a matter only to eliminate some abuses and restore order to the state's finances.

... We were destined to see the magnificent and ancient edifice of the noble dynasty of Bourbons.

...The time had come when ambitious and wicked men who wanted to overthrow a a government which, for fourteen hundred years, had brought glory and happiness to France, for to erect upon the ruins of our kings' thrones the monstrous edifice of the Republic,
The intrigues began and the unrest stirred up, which was to lead to the most terrible events. disasters.

© Page X of the Introduction written by Abbé Bossard for the Memoirs of Boutillier.

To gain the support of the people, it was necessary to make them aware of their strength, to rouse them, to arm them.
to organize it, to incite it against the established power...; it was finally necessary to give it a movement of energy that he could not draw from himself. But to achieve these ends, it was not enough not to offer him doctrines, to proclaim his sovereignty, to call on him to break his chains, to rush upon the tyrants. Philosophical principles would have had little effect on his crude senses; it was more expedient to shake him with a sudden jolt, and to to take up arms under a plausible pretext, that of personal defense, in sight of a great and imminent danger, in order to suddenly exert general power over minds and to make all arms work at once.

This extraordinary movement, this sudden upheaval, carefully prepared in advance and in The secret had been passed on in advance and confidentially to the followers in each province... He

It erupted on the Feast of the Assumption, July 22, 1789... I will remember that fateful day all my life.
or all the French rose up at once and armed themselves, obedient to the impulse of revolt, to to serve as instruments for the projects of the factious. This day, forever fatal among those consecrated by The history of revolutions prepared the way for the fall of the throne and the death of the King... (Memoirs of a Father) to his children. - A Vendée family during the Great War (1793-1795), by BOUTILLIER DE SAINT-ANDRÉ, with Introduction, Notes, Notices and Supporting Documents by Father Eugène BOSSARD, Paris, Plon, 1896, pp. 26 to 29.)

With the day of July 14th and its gangs of Freemason assassins, the day of the Great Fear, "that fateful day," opens the period when Freemasonry begins to "act" (according to the (word from F Brunellière!) while waiting for the guillotinings and massacres of the Terror mark the height of his ignoble and cruel dictatorship.

More than ever, Malouet's words appear to have a profound truth: "For every man "Impartial, the Terror dates from July 14, 1789."

The Queen and the Great Fear.

At the same time, Freemasonry was pushing the French nation, panicked by the Great Fear to tear up the pact of trust and love that had bound her to her Kings for so many centuries Capetians, the same Freemasonry was sowing the same seeds throughout France, at the same moment.
deadly lies against Marie Antoinette. Why? We've said it: because the Reine was the most feared obstacle for the Lodges during the Revolution.

“On July 24, 1789 (wrote the Englishman Arthur Young in his Travels in France), the great
The news at the Colmar guesthouse was curious: the Queen had hatched the plot, which she was on the verge of executing, of blowing up the Assembly with a mine and at the same time to send the army to massacre all of Paris. A French officer who happened to be there allowed himself
He doubted it and was instantly silenced by the chatter of his opponents. A member of parliament

He had written it, they had read the letter, there was no hesitation. Without letting myself be intimidated, I I maintained that it was an absurdity visible at first glance, nothing but an invention for to make odious people who, in my opinion, deserved it, but certainly not by such means. The angel Gabriel would have come down expressly and sat down at the table for the to dissuade them, that it would not have shaken their faith. That's how it happens in revolutions:
"A thousand fools are found to believe what a scoundrel writes." (A. YOUNG, Travels in France, new translation, Paris, 1860, vol. [, pp. 250, 251.]

These few lines are characteristic enough to make their appreciation sufficient.
author, the learned agronomist A. Young, a devout admirer of the English Constitution and a fanatical anti-papist, who traveled throughout France to study its agriculture, during the early days of the Revolution." Because of the sharpness of his vision – and also of his animosity towards the French Court and the Ancien Régime - the testimonies he provides on the subject

The plots hatched against the Queen are particularly valuable.

It was upon arriving in Strasbourg on July 20th that Young learned of the events of the 14th. The following day, the 21st, he witnessed the siege and sacking of the City Hall – a siege carried out at like that of the Parisian fortress and, without a doubt, like it, directed by the Freemasons:

"I noticed (Young wrote) several soldiers with their white cockades in the middle of the crowd they were stirring up under the eyes of the officers of the detachment (charged with suppressing (the riot!) There were also people so well dressed that the sight of them caused me quite a bit of surprise. » (See en Fr., vol. I, p. 249.)

From Strasbourg and Colmar, Young reached Franche-Comté via Belfort. Everywhere he found the looting and arson:

"Some people," he said, "informed me at the dinner table that letters received from People from Mâconnais, Lyonnais, Auvergne, Dauphiné, etc., reported events similar. France is incredibly behind when it comes to communications. From Strasbourg to here, I haven't been able to see a single newspaper. (Besançon, 27 July 1789, vol. I, p. 256.)

But the tongues of the Masonic vipers were responsible for spreading the poisons useful to the Victory of the Occult Power:

“No one in Dijon had heard about the looting of Strasbourg City Hall... If the True news takes a long time to spread, but people are quick to find out what did not happen. The rumor currently circulating, and gaining credence, is that the Queen was convinced of a plot to poison the King and Monsieur, and to give the Regency to the Count "d'Artois, set fire to Paris and blow up the Palais-Royal with a mine!" (A. YOUNG, Dion, July 31, 1789, vol. I, p. 263.)

Thus, just as in February 1789, in the north as in the south, in the east as in the west, The peasants of France declared, in the same terms, that they suffered from the same ills, - of Even in July of the same year, in Dijon as in Colmar, there were murmurs against the Queen the same hateful and deceitful remarks intended to incite anger against her everywhere. wild.

While there were no newspapers to spread the news from province to province "True," the false rumors against the Queen were circulating by post! They were heard in at the same time - hundreds of leagues away - in Alsace, in Franche-Comté, as well that in this Burgundy where Messrs. Cochin and Charpentier showed us a certain coterie mysterious woman who worked in all the corporations, all the towns and all the villages, with meticulously coordinated "plans and means".

In Moulins, the capital of Bourbonnais, as later in Le Puy, Arthur Young continued to to note that newspapers are not found in cafes or hotels; thus it is not the press that spreads fake news in major cities. On the other hand, in two villages where a newspaper never reaches, in Royat, in Auvergne, in Thuytz, in Velay, here that Arthur Young intends to accuse the Queen of being the instigator of the same plot of which one He was accused in Alsace and Burgundy...

On August 13, in Royat, dissatisfied with his guide, Young dismissed him and took over. a local woman who takes him to the hot springs:

“Upon our return,” he wrote, “she was arrested by a soldier of the Bourgeois Guard (for this (the wretched village itself has its own national militia), for having acted, without permission, as a guide of a foreigner.” (Voy. en Fr., t. I, p. 282.)

#0 We have already quoted a letter from Young.

He followed her to get her released.

"The entire village population accompanied us," he said, "as well as the children of this..." women who were crying, fearing their mothers would be imprisoned. Arriving at the castle... He ushered us into the room where the city council was meeting. The accusation was heard: all agreed that, in such dangerous times, when everyone knew that a no one of the Queen's rank and power was conspiring against France, so as to cause the The most alarming signs were that it was a very serious crime for a woman to act as a guide for a foreign, especially a foreigner who had gathered so much suspicious information: she had to go in prison. (See en Fr., I. p. 2821.)

In trying to demonstrate to these panicked people of the Great Fear that this woman was innocent, Young began by drawing a full-blown interrogation: "since his only goal was to see The sources, why the multitude of questions about price, income, and land value? etc., etc.), He replied that they only had to send someone to Clermont to gather information about him among such and such, and that if the woman were put in prison, he would follow her, returning the The municipality was responsible. Finally, the unfortunate woman was released after a reprimand, and "I resumed my path, Young wrote, without being surprised by the ignorance (!) of these people, which makes them see the Queen conspiring against their rocks and their springs; I have long since grown weary of that chapter. I saw my first guide in the midst of the crowd that had overwhelmed him with so much questions about me that I had asked him about the harvests. Two opinions were oscillating: the The first time I was a commissioner, come to assess the damage caused by the hail, the other that the Queen had charged me with mining the city to blow it up, then sending to galleys for all the inhabitants who might survive. The care taken to tarnish the reputation The way this princess is perceived by the people is something incredible, and there are no such things as crude absurdities, nor impossibilities so blatant that they are not accepted everywhere without hesitation.” (See (in Fr., L. I, p. 283.)

On August 19, 1789, a similar event occurred in Thuytz, Velay. Young's questions about the The price of food worries his hosts, who refuse to provide him with guides and mules for to visit the nearby mountains. The Marquis de Deblou, lord of the parish, sends him obligingly request:

“I explained to him,” Young wrote, “the difficulties I had encountered: he then told me that My questions had inspired the most absurd suspicions among the locals, and that the The weather was so critical that he advised me to refrain from any excursions outside the main road... At another time he would have been happy to drive me himself; but at "At present, one cannot be too cautious." (Voy. en Fr. t. I, p. 291.)

The marquis walked Young through his garden and a neighboring plot of land, where Young took notes. and soon returned to the inn.

“My actions,” he said, “had more witnesses than I imagined, because at eleven o’clock, a An hour after I had fallen asleep, a detachment of twenty men from the bourgeois militia, Armed with rifles, swords, sabers, and pikes, they entered my room and surrounded my bed. following the orders of the chief, who asked me for my passport... then, that not being enough for them, my papers. I was told that I was surely part of the conspiracy hatched by the Queen, the the Count of Artois and the Count of Entragues (a large landowner here), and that they had sent me as a surveyor to measure their fields, in order to double the taxes. Which saved me The problem was that my papers were in English. Finding neither maps nor plans, nor anything but their Their imagination could translate into a land registry of their parish, and this made an impression on them. Seeing that they

They were still hesitating, so I opened a packet of sealed letters, saying, "Here, gentlemen, are my Letters of recommendation for various cities in France and Italy; open the one that suits you. It will please you, and you will see, because they are written in French, that I am an honest farmer.

"of England, and not the villain you imagined." Then, a new debate ensued. which ended in my favor; they refused to open my letters and prepared to leave me. My many questions about the land, my detailed examination of a field... all of this had raised suspicions which, they pointed out to me, were very natural when one knew without knowing to be able to doubt that the Queen, the Count of Artois and the Count of Entragues were conspiring against the Vivarais. To my great satisfaction, they wished me a good night and left me to struggling with the bedbugs that swarmed in my bed like flies in a jar Honey. » (See en Fr., vol. I, pp. 291 to 293.)

In 1791, less than two years later, France was already covered in blood and ruins; Abbot Le Franc published his courageous book: The Veil Lifted for the Curious, or the Secret of the Revolution revealed through Freemasonry: "Europe is astonished by the change which has taken place in customs, he writes. Which has made the French fierce, suspicious?... Shall I say it, and will anyone believe me? It's Freemasonry." (p. 67).

The actions of the Lodges – denounced by Le Franc, Baruel and many others, proclaimed by the F Friendly, etc., - such is the key to the double mystery which is expressed in these terms: How to Is it the case that in so many parts of France, the peasants have declared, in the same terms, suffering from the same ailments?

How is it that Arthur Young heard the same accusations made against Marie Antoinette in Alsace, Burgundy, Auvergne and Velay, a few days from distance ?

"The Royal Spittle."

As early as January 1789, the Queen was aware of the harm done to her in the eyes of the Nation.
On January 27th, she wrote to Count Mercy-Argenteau, the Austrian ambassador:

"You know the prejudices against my brother, you know how we overcame them" to persuade half the population that I was sending millions to Germany." (Letters) authentic of Marie Antoinette..., t. II. P. 130.)

A particularly abominable pamphlet appeared in 1789; it summarizes all the infamies Thrown in the Queen's face for fifteen years; it is, in a way, the outline of the Plates of Architecture that the most infamous Initiates of the Lodges will soon "design", in order to to complete the work of hatred against Marie Antoinette. The Patriot Confidant, such is the title of this filth, a worthy younger sister of the filth we've already had to stir up.

The Patriot Confidant, a sad ancestor of our Freemason informers, does not wield only lies and slander. Masonic progress has intensified: this Confidant The back rooms mark the victims for assassination, who will soon perish under the sabers of fanatical killers or those facing the guillotine. And among these victims, the Queen is the first designated:

1 - You will know, writes the Patriot Confidant, the daily intrigues of the Court...

2 - The Queen's extravagant hopes, her plans, the motives for her implacable hatred For all the French over whom she has the honor of reigning, here are a few singular traits of her private life, the secret conversations she has with traitors we have the imprudence of suffering among us, but which you will hasten to exterminate, in order to that they do not have time to carry out the infamous plans they are hatching against us... (The Confid. Patr., 1789, pp. 4, 5.)

The words aristocrats and hypocrites intertwine under the pen of the scribe of Power. Occult: it was not the Throne and the Altar together, but rather the Secret Societies had resolved to destroy? On page 13, a note indicates "the Queen's Apartment" as "the

"the capital of the aristocracy." On page 20, Marie Antoinette is called "this proud woman" and perverse, which has caused all our woes." Then begins a chapter where outrage is lavished.
The Queen, at the same time as Louis XVI, is the object of insulting compassion:

The Royal Spittle: "Hatred, among women, was never stifled: a sad consequence whose cruel effects the French nation has unfortunately experienced all too often. 0 mon King! You who should have seen your days flow by happily and serenely; you whose rare and sublime virtues led to the appointment of the greatest of Monarchs, should you have expected not to encounter, in the Princess with whom you deigned to share your crown, a haughty, vindictive woman Excess, libertine by temperament, and which poisons the dawn of your beautiful days? No.

Who would have thought, the day you deigned to raise her to the supreme rank of your wife, and the day the
Your life is more beautiful, through the authentic testimonies of love and loyalty that your people show you.
gave, that it would at the same time be the end of your happiness, by associating with your virtues a woman who carried in her heart all the German ferocity she has since displayed against everything that bore the name of French.

In vain does this naturally wicked woman try every day to animate us with traits of her fury, capable of driving us to the brink. No, she will never succeed in tiring We will always respect our patience, despite it, because Louis XVI is our King.
beloved.

This is a distant echo of the royalist protests of the Freemason Tartuffe of the Third Estate. In 1742: "The Freemason is a God-fearing man, faithful to his Prince!"

"Frenchmen! (continues the hypocritical F of 1789) you were worthy of a better Queen;
Don't expect to soften the heart of this fierce German woman; no, it's impossible.

Answer, Marie Antoinette, what have the French done to you to deserve being pursued with a Unprecedented cruelty? Their crime is having adored you as much as your august husband.
for having sacrificed everything to your absolute whims, for having lavished their gold born of tears, of blood of the poor farmer, to satisfy your pomp, your pride, and to relieve the indigence of your tyrant of a brother.

When all these sacrifices cost our hearts nothing but regrets for not being able to fulfill Your insatiable desires, unjust Queen! As a reward for so much generosity, you overwhelm us.
every day of your implacable hatred; you have done everything in your power to oppose the views beneficent acts of our august King;... each day is marked by some new trait of your wickedness or your perfidy.

At a time when citizens are rushing to gather all the approvals it can
This wicked woman, desiring to live in her husband's new palace, outrages us.
publicly, by outraged citizens with her contempt. She pretends to cast glances haughty, threatening, towards this loyal people... His heart rises with resentment at the sight of a citizen French, she unleashes her aversion, and ends up spitting on him, as irrefutable proof of the hatred she swore to us!

This latest act of his malice was recently committed in the Tuileries Garden, at to escape these filthy orgies that she herself so lightly outlined for us... (The Patriarchal Confidence 1789, pp. 20-24.)

Here, the infamous worker who signs himself The Patriot Confidant borrows a stone from the edifices of lies fabricated by the forgers who published the Essays on the Life of Marie Antoinette, "Based on manuscripts in his own hand," they dared to write. For we are approaching the hour where the impostures of the Queen's pseudo-confessions will be spread by the thousands, in order to to exacerbate the fury against her! The Patriot Confidant has just forged, right before our eyes, a the mesh of the monstrous net that is tightening around the Queen-Martyr.

What stupidity this "Royal Spit" is! And what abysses of contempt for the people of France – deceived, mocked before being tortured – is revealed by this trait of the vile criminals who served the designs of the Occult Power!

But let us not forget that among the streams of Masonic light spread since the glorious year 1789 in the French populations, hitherto plunged in the darkness of Obscurantism and the shackles of Tyranny, yesterday he still found key "enlightened" voters and

"free" to give their trust to a certain member of parliament who earned his sinecure by promising the suppression of the red moon.

Are the citizens who, in recent years, have believed the word of this imposter more
How unreasonable were the citizens of 1789 who believed in the story of the Royal Spit?

How many French people, blinded by Freemasonry, believed the lies at the time?
Less stupid than the lie of the Royal Spit? And among these French people – deceived until the hour when they place their heads on the scaffold - how many of these members are there?
of the so-called National Assembly, whose election Freemasonry had rigged before making them Obey like slaves?

XII

EPILOGUE

We have spoken of the great assault which, in July 1789, was launched against the Monarchy of the Most High Kings Christians through Freemasonry. This assault so strongly shook both the Throne and the Altar at once - as F Chamfort had predicted - that if the dismantled Old Regime still remained Standing upright, his collapse was now only a matter of days.

In his war against France, the eldest daughter of the Church (against France, perpetual field of battle and perpetual stake of the Secret Societies, enemies of Christendom!), the Freemasonry has just conquered the strategic positions that guarantee it a victory.
imminent: the Masonic conspiracy is on the verge of succeeding, and the first cycle of our
The study is complete.

But to link this book to those that will follow, a brief foray is necessary.
among the events that will be the immediate consequence of those we have outlined.

The Night of October 5-6, 1789.

From August to October 1789, the Sect prepared for a new assault. It gave this assault took place during the night of October 5th to 6th. It was then that she launched an attack against the Palace of Versailles the abominable armies that she patiently recruited, trained, and hardened in multiple riots.

If the coup had been completely successful, the King, the Queen, and the Dauphin would have perished, disemboweled.
by the hags who were shouting, "We want Antoinette's guts!" It was a close call.
It is unlikely that this blow will lead to the annihilation of the royal family, as happened in 1908 (of
(by Freemasonry, always!) for the King of Portugal and his eldest son.

Finally, immediately after the night of October 5th, after Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette had made the crucifying journey to the Tuileries, at the end of which Freemasonry will hold them under his control, in a narrow and humiliating captivity from which they will never emerge alive - a
A new wave swells and surges forward, even more ignoble than the human tide of the fishwives.
and bandits sent by the Lodges to storm the Palace of Versailles: the infamous tide of pamphlets more numerous and more monstrously obscene than all those we have mentioned so far...

And this tide multiplies its waves of garbage to defile the Queen with their scum, because "The Queen (as Mirabeau so magnificently put it) is the first and strongest barrier" of the throne, and like the sentinel who most closely watches over the monarch's safety."

The Queen accuses Freemasonry.

We have reproduced a fragment of the letter, dated February 26, 1781, from Marie Antoinette wrote to his sister Marie-Christine: "The art of government is to let France-Freemasonry will expand, for it is merely an association of charity and pleasure.

But look: the Bastille has been taken; the fateful night of October 1789 forced the royal family to leave Versailles, and here is "after a few months spent at the Tuileries under the watchful eye of Barbarians of Freemasonry, the Queen knows! She knows that she is the source of the Lodges Calamities have just befallen France and the monarchy! We have an irrefutable Proof that enlightenment had dawned in Marie Antoinette's mind. It's a letter! addressed by her to her brother, Emperor Leopold II, on August 17, 1790 - here are the last ones lines:

"Goodbye, my dear brother, I must count on your friendship so as not to fear of abusing it, but on the other hand, count on all the tenderness of your unfortunate sister.

I send my love to my sister-in-law and your children; be very careful there of any association of Freemasons (sic); it is by this route that all the monsters here intend to arrive in All countries with the same goal... (Marie Antoinette, Joseph II and Leopold II, Your Correspondence)
(their correspondence published by the Chevalier) Alfred von Arneth, p. 135.)

Nine years earlier, as we have said, far-sighted servants of the Catholic cause and French people had urged the King and Queen to "beware of any association of French people"
"Masons"... Alas! Their warnings had not been heeded. When the Masonic peril was seen in all its horror by Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette, but it was too late: the France was prey to the Back Lodges; the royal family was their prisoner.

For three years of anguish and terrible torture, Marie Antoinette would feel the
The cruel hand of Freemasonry weighed on her more and more heavily. For three years, the Reine will await the death that the Back Lodges have in store for her. What agony! For three years, she will be under the sway of that poignant regret expressed by Louis XVI in 1792, after the Return from Varennes: "Why didn't I believe, eleven years ago, all that I see today! I am
He had announced it all from then on!

All that had been announced to the King and Queen, as early as 1781, was the plan for the Lodges, finalized by them so long before, when Pope Clement XII and then Pope Benedict XIV had in vain addressed the most urgent appeals to the Christian world to be vigilant against the danger Masonic!

$ Cuique suum. We have become aware of this very important page from Marie-Antoinette by an article by MG Malet, in the Gazette de France of May 9, 1910.

In a few lines, impressive in their conciseness and full of unspoken reproaches (all too justified, alas!) against the blindness of Catholics, Pope Leo XII listed the alarm bells rung by his predecessors:

"The danger was first denounced by Clement XII in 1738, and the Constitution promulgated by this Pope, it was renewed and confirmed by Benedict XIV. Pius VII marched on the traces of these two Pontiffs; and Leo XII, confirming in his Apostolic Constitution Quo he engraver all the acts and decrees of the previous Popes on this matter, ratified them and confirmed forever. Pius VII, Gregory XVI and on several occasions Pius IX spoke in the same meaning. » (Encyclical Letter of His Holiness Leo XIII on Freemasonry, Coutances, Typography by Ch. Daireaux... 1884, p. 5.)

Christian nations and Christian governments continued to misunderstand the august voice of the Popes. The result of this criminal ignorance is well known: always the first to be struck because of her place at the head of the Christian peoples imposes greater duties and heavier responsibilities, - France, after the The human hecatombs of the Revolution and the First Empire saw the emergence in 1830 of a new Revolution, Masonic like the previous one. Then, almost all of Europe was shaken by the upheavals of 1848 (Masonic upheavals, too!) We also know what part Freemasonry was taken over in the Commune of 1871. We finally know under what yoke each day More crushing and more degrading, Freemasonry has succeeded in bowing the head of France.

Let us compare this deplorable picture with the chronological list of the Encyclicals Papal forces against Freemasonry: we will see that each of the revolutionary movements prepared by the Lodges was preceded by several Bulls in which the Sovereign Pontiffs were striving to warn Catholicism against the new storms that threatened it, - storms that could have been averted, if they had been willing to listen to the Word of Rome!

A terrible lesson seems to emerge from the historical facts and observations.

which we have just discussed in this book:

All Christian nations—but foremost among them the Catholic nations—and France is at the forefront of these latter – all Christian nations are threatened by an enemy as formidable as it is mysterious.

This enemy is the Secret Society with a hundred names, with a hundred successive incarnations, which Under different masks and coats, the fight has been "without truce or mercy" since the Calvary, against the Church of God and the Civilization born from the Church.

But in the Secret Society referred to by Leo XIII, Freemasonry should not be considered.
vulgar: this refers to High Freemasonry , the kind whose agents of execution
They are called Weishaupt, Nubius, Piccolo-Tigre, the one that Copin-Albancelli named by a name which will remain for him: the Occult Power.

Alas! In the 18th century, France stubbornly refused to listen to the voices of the two Popes Clement XII and Benedict XIV, who implored him, as well as all of Christendom, to open the eyes to the sectarian peril and to resist the Freemason enemy. On the other hand, she drank To the very dregs, he was poisoned by the Lodges, instruments of Occult Power. Also from
From the bottom of the ladder to the top, by 1789 there was no longer a class of French society that was deeply marked by the Masonic Sign of the Beast. They themselves, the King and Queen of France, had been deceived by the Secret Society: in supremely impious opposition with The Papacy (he, the Most Christian King! she, the daughter of the Apostolic Emperors!) there they are!
voluntarily lend a hand to the progress of Freemasonry, while this progress will be accomplished on the ruins of the French Monarchy! "The Art of Government," is it not No "letting Freemasonry expand"?

This blindness of the royal couple came at a very high price! We will say later, at the price of What tears and what sorrow! But, in closing, we offer a suppliant prayer.

to the true French who respect the past just as they respect their fathers, and because the Past of the Fatherland is made up of the Past of all those who preceded them here below.

Certainly, these French people know that the Catholic faith is so deeply ingrained in our nation.
They felt so deeply that to tear it away would be to kill the Fatherland. Therefore, they necessarily felt towards the Popes, supreme guardians of this Faith, the most filial veneration.

On the other hand, these French people venerate Marie Antoinette as the Queen with a big heart and the powerful intelligence, the Wife and the Mother of whom one can speak as of another Mother who is above all mothers: "Consider and see if there is any pain comparable to her Pain!

These French people worthy of the name French, we implore them, both as Catholics and as a son of the land of France, to take care not to abuse the patience of Him who with His own hands gathered the Christian nations around the throne of saint Pierre. We also implore these French people to remember the cry uttered by Marie-Antoinette in 1790.

Having ignored for nearly two centuries the urgent appeals of seven Popes - having despised the orders contained in seven Encyclicals directed against Freemasonry, - didn't he
Not enough? Isn't it too much?

But, moreover, on August 17, 1790, Marie Antoinette, belatedly enlightened, proclaimed it in her turn to Christendom at the same time as to his brother Leopold IT: "Be very careful of all Freemasons' association!... That's how all the monsters around here operate.
to arrive in all countries with the same goal... »

May devout and repentant France - Gallia poenitens et devota* - finally listen to the voice of Sovereign Pontiffs at the same time as that of the Martyred Queen!

May France finally draw the sword of the Crusades against the Freemason, her worst enemy.
than the Saracen and the Albigensian!

END

CHAPTER 1
WHO CHANGED THE SOUL OF THE FRENCH?

Introduction of Freemasonry in France; the first encyclical against the sect. - The Lies, the main weapon of Freemasonry. - The workings of the lying machine. - The The King's Ministers and Freemasonry. - Magistrates and Freemasonry. The Church of France and the Masonry.

CHAPTER II

THEIR WEAPONS: LIES AND SLANDER

Occult Power and the Grand Orient. -- An edifying parallel. - Basil. - "Why didn't I believe it eleven years ago?" years !.. "

CHAPTER III

THE NECKLACE AFFAIR

The Jewish F#*# Cagliostro. - The weaving of the plot... - The Grove of Venus. - The Necklace of Diamonds. - The Paris Convent. - The Initiate of Saint James. - The Queen Weeps. - The Mystery of iniquity. - The Queen had to be eliminated. - The Queen's forged letters. - Cagliostro is afraid.

- Cagliostro's Revelations on Freemasonry. - The Freemasons of Parliament against the Crown.
- The Memoirs of Lawyers.

CHAPTER IV

Jewish Occult Power and Revolution

The Intimate Committee. - The F*# Cagliostro, agent of the Jesuits! - The Jewish hand. - Lilia pedibus destroys. - Continuity of the Jew's revolutionary action.

CHAPTER V

THE NECKLACE TRIAL

The Queen implicated. - The condemnation of Marie Antoinette. - The blood of the Valois flows. While awaiting the blood of the Bourbons. - Like the Dreyfus Affair. - Proof that the press Masonic lies. - The Countess's escape.

CHAPTER VI

THE TWO SUPPORTING MEMORANDA

Overview. – “It’s those people...” – Jeanne had never seen the Queen! – The Madame de la Motte's collaborators. - The Countess's false confessions. - More Pamphlets against the Queen. - Blood mixed with filth.

CHAPTER VII

INSPIRED HATRED AGAINST THE BASTILLE

The High Mason Ximénès. - The Anti-Mason Linguet and the Bastille. - The F Cagliostro and the Bastille.

CHAPTER VIII

THE END OF CAGLIOSTRO

“Arsenic Pork”. - Morande against Cagliostro. - The exodus of the Jew Cagliostro.

CHAPTER IX

1789, THE GREAT MASONIC YEAR

1789: Overview. - Freemasonry and the Elections of 1789, - The Cahiers of 1789.

The investigation by Messrs. Cochin and Charpentier. - Eyewitnesses. - The "plans and resources".
"How opinion is manufactured" - Masonic purge. - People's decrees.

149

CHAPTER X
THE QUEEN AND THE STATES GENERAL

The System of Terror and the Lodge "The United Friends". - The Death of the Dauphin. - Fear to the Estates-General. - July 1789. - Necker. — The beginning of the end.

CHAPTER XI

THE STORMING OF THE BASTILLE AND THE GREAT FEAR

The appeal to the power of the masses. - The predictions of Brother Chamfort. - The means of terror.
Fear in Paris. - The Great Fear. - The Man with the Hair Tied in a Ponytail. - The Alleged
The spontaneity of the Great Fear. - Again, the man with the hair tied back in a ponytail. The leaders. - The results of the Great Fear. - Four contemporary accounts. - The Queen and the Great Fear. - "The Royal Spit".

CHAPTER XII

EPILOGUE

The night of October 5-6, 1789. - The Queen accuses Freemasonry.

AUTUN, Pernot printing house.

LIBRARY OF SECRET SOCIETIES

ANDRE BARON

SECRET SOCIETIES

THEIR CRIMES

From the Initiates of Isis to modern Freemasons

"To chain to oneself... men reduced to the state of slaves;
to employ these passive instruments in all kinds of attacks of a foreign will; to arm, for murder, the hands of with the help of which one ensures impunity for crime, these are the of monstrous practices condemned by nature itself.
(Leo XIII, Encyclical “Humanum Genus” against Freemasonry, April 20, 1884.)

1906

+

In some scandalous trials, the judges demand a closed hearing. In the trial of the So-Secret Societies, which is described below, there are crimes that are both so repugnant and so abominable, that not all eyes are made to see the details.

Therefore, this book will be read behind closed doors.
by those only who desire to know, in knowing full well the facts, to what extent the Secret societies deserve hatred and contempt.
honest people.

Digitized by Google

TO GENTLEMEN

THE SENATORIAL DELEGATES
LANDES

GENTLEMEN,

I am honored to be a candidate for the Senate for the -Landes department.

It would have been impossible for me to summarize, in a single visit
'(however long it may have been) made to each of the Electors, the serious and numerous reasons that make me consider
-as a duty to submit this application
-fight against the S currently reigning.

These are the very reasons that make me hate and despising the Sect, the criminal coterie in the process of to kill France. But to explain the whole picture to you, there is only one process (which is also capable of leaving in people's minds a more lasting trace than a pro-(quick tour through our beautiful department):
This process is the book.

I therefore ask the Electoral Body of Landes, whose I appreciated in 1902 the high degree of independence manifested celebrated in defiance of shameful official pressure, to accept Phommage of this book, which is the fruit of prolonged research over many years in order to to enlighten any citizen of good faith regarding the Secret Societies, these cancers of the people.

I believed that, in these serious times,
'experienced by our country, nothing could be more worthy of the voters, nor bear witness with greater strength of my devotion: to France and to the Landes, to my both to the great nation and to my small homeland.

Anyone who has taken the time to look at the documents that I have accumulated and reading the conclusions-forced sions that result from them of their own accord, fear-dra to vote for Freemasons, for fear of being.
one day assailed by terrible remorse.

For a day will come when, after stealing the reliquaries gieux and the priests, after having further increased your charges by the new Masonic law of the Sepa-the relationship between Church and State, the reign of France Freemasonry, if it continues, will inevitably lead to a new 1793, to a new Terror i.

And the Terror was the blood flowing from the guillotinestines at the same time as misery in all homes.

Please believe, gentlemen, in my devotion patriotic.

ANDRÉ BARON.

1. Messrs. Cabanès and Nass have just published, with a preface by Mr. Jules Claretie, of the French Academy, a work where we read:

"Out of twelve thousand victims (of the Terror), there are not three "a thousand belonging to the first two classes of the old society:" "nobility and clergy. All the others were from the Third Estate, or even the "fourth, since the guillotine claimed the heads of 4,000 peasants" "and 3,000 workers." (Drs. Cabanès and Nass, La Névrose) Revolutionary, p. 101.)

FOREWORD

The history of Secret Societies is filled with enormous and numerous books in all languages. And despite Secret Societies know how to exert a sugmanagement so skillful on the best minds, that they have managed to make it completely neglected, by almost all historians, their influence in the world, as well as their villainies of every kind.

Yet how great this evildoing is! health power of Sects that the disclosure of files written by informers from the Grand Orient of France came to finally make the more closed until then!

Secret Societies have always exercised -devastation; they were harmful and criminal in other waystimes, as they still are today, – immutable in the Mystery, immutable also in Crime. But honest people from all parties

They have no idea of the harm they are doing, the harm even greater than they can do, – because that they are unaware of the mountain of crimes they _accumulated in the past.

That is why we thought it appropriate to give An overview of the nefarious role of Secret Societies across the world and through the ages, going back with a meticulous attention to the most historical sources pure. |

Thanks to the efforts of persevering workers, applied to piercing the veils with which France surrounds itself Freemasonry, the commotion has begun; in France, the Masonic question is now of interest to An increasing number of citizens. The time seems therefore came to gather, into a single bundle of light, the scattered rays that each and every one have projected, for centuries, into darkness Secret Societies.

This is the bibliographical work that we have believed useful to the country to light its path strewn with obstacles tarpaulins by sectarians of all kinds.

Likewise, a fortunate incident has powerfully... encouraged in our project to write a book which would summarize it clearly – in the French style – what has been said, what is known about the harm done by Secret Societies: we were in the Quarter Latin with an hour to use; well done to us to enter the Sorbonne, for we had the pleasure to hear the friendly dean speak there that day,

Mr. Alfred Croiset: to speak, with precise eloquence the frequency for which he is known, of the very large and very pernicious practice played in antiquity, among the people Athenian, through the Occult Associations. Mr. Croiset asserted that the so-called Revolution of the Four Hundred, at Athens was the work of the Secret Societies called Hetairies. There, as always, these oligarchic groups The sweets played their eternal role, that is to say, they They oppressed the people with baseness and ferocity.

A few years later, according to the great historian Torian Thucydides, these are still the Secret Societies who armed the Thirty Tyrants in Athens: However, it is these men who, among so many others Less illustrious victims, legally murdered Socrates, because Socrates was the declared enemy of Criminal hypocrites lurking in the Lodges of this at that time.

Thus, the domination of these Terrorists of it twenty-four centuries ago was in a way a pre-Masonic tyranny, as heavy as the east today, the domination of the Lodges.

How much the yoke of Secret Societies always was degrading, that's what we're going to prove below.

1. Monday, February 20, 1905. — Public lecture; Attic speakers:
Andocide.

Digitized by Google

THE ISIAC MYSTERIES

The oldest secret societies of which we the traces found in history were formed by the Initiates of the religious Mysteries and it is in this Egypt, whose civilization is of such a prodigious age-
It was after this significant retreat that the Mysthe elements that have had the most profound influence, the longer duration with the widest distribution.
We therefore begin this study with the Socié-Egyptian initiation rites, dedicated to worship of Isis, the great Nature Goddess.

If there is one historical fact above all controversy and the subtleties of discussion
No matter how ingenious they may be, it's good the one that Mr. Maspero explains in these terms: "The Ancient magic was the very foundation of religion.
"gion!" Consequently, the Secret Societies of essence

1. Maspero, member of the Institute, Studies in Mythology and d'Archéologie égyptiennes, Paris, Leroux, 1893, p. 106.

religious figures who first appear to us in at the same time as the most powerful must, of every necessity, to have as its principal basis Witchcraft, with its attendant cerebral defects, disorders of all kinds which, throughout history, were the inevitable consequences of the branes magical.

In Egypt, says Mr. Maspero, "Witchcraft makes-
"It's part of everyday life." Magic, he wrote François Lenormant, "held a pivotal position"
"in the concerns of the Egyptians!"
Secret Societies of Initiates, which formed the elite thinking in Egypt, therefore, must have been naturalsteeped in witchcraft, and it is natural to
To find the magic at the heart of the Mysteries of Isis.
In fact, it is she whom we are going to discover there, and it is which constitutes the first flaw of the Egyptian Initiates-hold on, like most other Initiates of the Old World.

The existence of religious associations that enjoin
The secret to their members is, among the uncivilized, a roughly general corollary of faith to the practitioners questions of witchcraft.

In Polynesia, a corporation held this sacred position.
Dec: with witchcraft. Was it the Areoi brotherhood? dedicated to the worship of the god Aro. It comprised seven de-initiation rites, whose adepts were distinguished by tattoos and distinctive adornments. To be

1. Franç. Lenormant, member of the Institute: Ancient History of the Orient, Paris, Lévy, 1883, vol. III, p. 126.

2. The Areoi were devoted to the practices of sodomy.
more shameless. See the paragraphs below regarding the immorality of secret societies.

To be admitted into the Order, one had to have provided evidence of divine inspiration, ecstasy, etc. The novitiate was very rigorous; new tests were imposed steps to move from one degree to another. The Order given-born from stage performances where he put into action

The legend of the god!

It is easy to see that the purpose of these associations is everywhere the same, putting the Initiates in contact with the superhuman power and revealing secrets to them that allow them to command destiny.

(Count Goblet d'Alviella, Eleusinia, Paris, E. Leroux, (8vo, 1903, pp. 32-33.)

All the Mysteries of classical antiquity had originally intended to put the initiate in contact with certain deities, in order to procure for him advantages of which these deities were reputed to be the dis-female thinkers. (Ibid., p. 117.)

Tripia, a characteristic of ancient secret societies

Magic is not their only flaw. By exalting at the heart of the Initiates, in the Secret Societies of the old world, a pride that elevated them to their eyes far above those of other men, the vul-secular generals, and which placed them in an almost-Divine magic exacerbated two of the species' scourges.
human: the taste for lust and the taste for blood.

And we will see what immorality, what dean unprecedented shamefulness of the senses was, in most of the initiatory societies of yesteryear, the counterpart na-

---

1. W. Ellis, Polynesian Researches, London 1853, t. I.
p. 229 et seq. — It is precisely such representations scenic elements that we will find again in the Mysteries of Isis in Egypt and in those of Eleusis in Greece.

the turrel of the debauchery of the frantic human mind witchcraft. As for the taste for blood—which marries too good for the taste of lust — it is also he who we will find this in many of them.
And we will see that human blood was tasted.
with delight by certain ancient initiates, or that he was involved in simple private murders, to the benefit of their personal passions with impunity-their desires were satisfied thanks to their formidable privileges.
legends, whether it was offered as a holocaust or to the interests of caste, in political assassinations, or to the Gods, in these human sacrifices which we rightly call Religious Crimes gieux, Ritual Crimes.

Thus, we claim that the old Societies Initiatory practices were marked by these flaws: the Magic, the most degrading immorality, the Assassin-nat. All of them wear at least one of them when It's not all three at once.

The documents and historical facts will tell if we are right.

Initiation in Egypt.

Although very reserved about the secret part of Mysteries of Isis, Apuleius! left us a cua curious picture of the ceremonies they included.
Here it is, summarized in the letter from Messrs. Da-Renberg and Saglio:

First, in the presence of a large procession, Purification by water: Lucius (the hero of Apuleius) is 4 leads to a basin near the temple and the mysta-

---

1. 114 to 190 AD.

Gogue, after saying a prayer, pours him some Skin on the body. He is brought back before the image of Isis. where he remains prostrate. Then comes an interval of ten days devoted to fasting; the neophyte puts himself in The state of receiving the great revelation. When this
The new preparatory period has expired, his friends they bring him gifts in the temple;

Soon after, the laypeople having withdrawn, Lucius celebrated- the great vigil, the essential and decisive part of the initiation; amidst sudden flashes of light that illuminated In the darkness of night, he attends shows marvelous, where all the secrets of the Isiac religion. (Art. Isis, the Mysteries, by G. Lafaye).

MP Foucart, of the Institute, gave in 1895, to the Academy of Inscriptions and Belles-Lettres, a A very remarkable report on the Eleusinian Mysteries:

> The existence of representations in the vigils of the sa- The creation of the initiation is beyond doubt, he writes: one he performed before the mystics the legends of the deities of mysteries. This substitution of action with Narrative and song are not unique to Eleusis: In Egyptian religion, the misfortunes of Osiris, the pain of the Goddess and her races in search of the members Her husband's actions were put on display for the faithful...

(MP Foucart, Research on the origin and nature of Mysteries of Eleusis, Paris, 1895, pp. 43-44).

Further on, in the chapter devoted to Greece, we will see how solid the arguments are by which Mr. Foucart establishes that the Mysteries The Eleusinian Mysteries were directly derived from the Mysteries Egyptians arranged and simplified to suit the taste of the intellectuals Hellenic ligations.

But in the meantime, a few borrowed lines

Herodotus will be enough to shed a bright light on this lineage as well as on the representation a scenic depiction of the suffering and death of Osiris – representation that plays such a large role in the Isiac Mysteries. Five centuries before the Christian era yours, Herodotus, initiated into the Egyptian Mysteries and to the Greek Mysteries, he spoke indeed, with the most scrupulous precautions to avoid violating his oaths, from what he had seen in the great temple d'Isis, à Sais:

> CLXX. He also said that the tomb of the one shown there is also shown. which I do not feel permitted to name in this occasion. He is in the sacred precinct, behind the temple of Minerva, adjoining the wall of this temple which It occupies the entire length. There is in the room earth', large stone obelisks, and near From these obelisks one can see a lake whose banks are reve- stone walls. This lake is round, and, as far as it seemed to me, it is no less large than that of Delos, which one called Trachoid.
>
> CLXXI. At night, accidents are depicted on this lake arrived at the one I did not think it necessary to name. The The Egyptians call them Mysteries. Although I have a very extensive knowledge, I will be careful not to... reveal; I will do the same with regard to the initiations of Ceres, whom the Greeks call Thesmophoria, and I don't know I will only speak as much as religion allows.
>
> The daughters of Danatis brought these mysteries from Egypt and taught them to the women of the Pelasgians...

(History, by Herodotus, trans. from the Literary Pantheon, Euterpe, book II, p. 92).

1. That is to say, within the sacred precinct surrounding the temple. (AB)

Herodotus' religious respect for the Mysteres does not prevent us from seeing that this Dead Man, whose Passion was celebrated at the Temple of Isis consacred to the Mysteries, was Osiris, brother and husband of the Goddess. That's what will come out with evidence from the rapid exposition of the Myth of Isis and of Osiris.

The Myth of Isis and Osiris.

Osiri (writes M. Maspero), solar god..., is the en–eternal enemy of Set, the god of darkness and night. After his disappearance in the western sky, "the king of the day, sovereign of the night, who advances without stopping or resting–"che," did not stop its course. It went "on the way mysterious of the western region," "through the darkness of hell which no living being has ever penetrated "trées," and traveled for twelve hours to rega–To gner lorient and reappear in the light. This birth and this daily death of the sun had suggested to Egyptians have the myth of Osiri. Like all the gods, Osiri is the sun: in the form of Ra, he shines in the sky during the twelve hours of the day; in the form From Osiri–Oun–Nofri, he rules the earth. But, just as Ra is attacked and defeated every night by the night which It seems to engulf him forever; Osiri is betrayed by Set. which tears it to pieces and scatters its limbs to prevent it from reappearing. Despite this momentary eclipse–Neither Osiri nor Ra died. Osiri Khent–Ament, the infernal Osiri, sun of night?, is reborn as the sun in the morning under the name of Har–pa–Khrad, Hor child. Har–pa–Khrad, who is Osiri', fights against

---

1. See further on a curious quote from Apuleius (AB).
2. Osiri, in a way reincarnated. (AB)

Set and beat as the rising sun dispels the shadows of the night... This struggle, which begins again every day and symbolized divine life, also serving as a symbol of the Human life... The birth of man was the dawn of the sun in the east; its death, the disappearance of the sun at the west of the sky. Once dead, the man became Osiri and sank into the night until the moment when he was reborn into another life, like Hor–Osiri into a another day. (See Ancient History, Lenormand, vol. III, 198).

Note these words: once dead, man became Osiris; the theology of the Mysteries of Isis is entirely built on that. But, the generation divine being among the Egyptians modeled on the From the human generation, Horus (or) needed a mother. Osiris reincarnated): this mother is Isis, goddess personnifying the fertile Earth, and, on the data which preceded, a whole legend was formed at Egypt was chosen as the setting for this drama.

François Lenormant, from the Institute, summarized this legend in these terms:

... (Osiri and Set) were brothers... They had married their two sisters, Isis and Nephthys. Osiri, the eldest of the brothers, had first reigned over Egypt, over which He had spread all the benefits of civilization. But Set, jealous of Osiri and wanting to usurp his neck–Ronne had treacherously murdered his brother in a banquet, had cut his body into pieces and locked them in a chest that he had thrown into the Isis, informed of the assassination, had long searched for the remains of her husband's body, had gathered, gathered together, and by her kisses and her tears had warmed them so well that this lifeless corpse had made her the mother of a son, Hor, who was none other than Osiri himself reincarnated... (Francois Lenormant, Ancient History of the Orient, Paris, 1883, Volume III, p. 203).

But the Isiac myth contains a crucial detail–tai from which will arise the abuses which, later, will make Egyptian mysteries (with all the mysteries) (from their source) odious to the Church Fathers ` Christian as well as to certain pagan philosophers themselves.

Plutarch and Diodorus Siculus will enlighten us... rer on that.

The only part of Osiris's body that Isis did not find No, it was the male member, since it had been all immediately thrown into the river, and the lepidote, the sea bream and the oxyrinque had devoured him there: hence the horror particular inspiration given to these fish. To replace the member, Isis had an imitation made of it and she consecrated—thus created the phallus, which the Egyptians, even today...

Today, they celebrate the festival. (Plutarch, Moralia; On Isis and Osiris, chap. xviii, t. II, p. 239.)

Regarding that part of Osiris's body that Isis did not
It was possible to find it again, it is said that Typhon, (that is to say Set) had thrown her into the sea;... that Isis nevertheless, having made a performance, made her honored like the others and even attributed to him a Cult and Sacrifices particulars from the Initiates. Hence the Greeks, who borrowed the Mysteries from the Egyptians and The Orgies of Bacchus have a similar Idol to them they call it Phallus, about which their initiates do grand ceremonies during the festivals of this God.
(Diodorus Siculus: Universal History, Book I, Section I, Chapter XI, translated by Abbot Terrasson, of the Academy—French bread, Amsterdam, 1743, t. I, p. 36—37.) —

Let's leave that aside, to address them in a cha—
'next clown', the comments that are demanding these documents, so old and so important; containing—let us for the moment note that we We have, to begin with, among the many in—interpretations given to their myth by the Egyptians hold :

Isis, Earth Goddess, and Osiris, Sun God.

According to the most re— Egyptological studies centes, it is likely that on the banks of the Nile (as well as at Eleusis, as we shall see later) far), it is through a worship of the Earth nourished—candle of men — to the Good Earth Goddess who gives the wheat — which the Isiac rites began.
At that time, Isis was the Earth of the Delta, fecon—conceived by Osiris, the Sun God, his brother and his husband.

But when considering things from a point of
From a more general perspective, the theologians of Egypt considered
They later referred to Isis as fertile Nature.
(while Osiris became the fertilizing principle of Nature, the Male Principle.)

Plutarch, initiated into all the Egyptian Mysteries.
And the Greeks, he said it formally:

From Nature, capable of receiving all generations, Isis is the feminine part. It is in this sense that Plato names it "nurse" and "universal receptacle". (Plu—(tarque, On Isis and Osiris).

Therefore, from this point of view, we have:

1. See further: Immorality in the Mysteries of Isis.

Isis, Nature fertilized, and Osiris, Fertilizing Principle.

Because of the prevailing anthropomorphism
In Egyptian thought, it was natural that the emblem of Isis thus conceived was the fe—minin, the Cteis, while the emblem of Osiris was the male organ, the Phallus. Moreover, Plutarch and Diodorus Siculus told us earlier that Isis had dedicated to the Phallus festivals which had
They have not ceased to be famous.

An Egyptian hymn of great pantheistic inspiration reflects these ideas. Mr. Brugsch translated it onto the walls of the temple in the oasis of 'El—Khargeh. There celebrates the mysterious names of God, who is immanent in all things...

It is the body of the living man,

The creator of the tree that bears fruit,
The author of the fertilizing flood.

Without it, nothing lives in the Earth's cycle.

Either to the North or to the South;

Under his name of Osiris, the giver of light,
He is the Hor of Living Souls,

The living god of future generations.

He is the creator of all animals,

Under its name of Ram of the sheep,

Goat of the goats, Bull of the cows.

...I am the god of those who rest in their
He is the great architect, [tombs.
Which has existed since the beginning...

(Cited by Francois Lenormant, Hist. anc., t. I, p. 279).

Osiris and Isis, king and queen of the Manes.

We have just heard someone named in this hymn to the god of those who rest in their tombs: it is still Osiris, the infernal Sun, the Sun shining in the night of the tombs. Here, we are touching on the very essence of the Mysteries Isiacs.

Mr. Maspero told us:

For the Egyptians, the birth of man was the sunrise in the east; his death, the disappearance of sun in the west of the sky.

The Sun personified in Osiri provided the theme of all Egyptian metempsychosis. Of the god who sustains and animates Life, he had become the moving god-nurturer and savior. We even came to look to Osiri as accompanying the dead on their pilgrimage infernal, as if seizing the man on his descent into the Kher-ti-noutri and leading him to eternal life.

Having risen first from the dead, he was to resurrect the righteous in their turn, after having helped them to triumph over all trials. The dead man was finishing by identifying completely with Osiri...: also, from at the moment of his death, every deceased person was called “the Osiri such and such” (François Lenormant, Hist. anc., vol. III, p. 233).

But the Afterlife always existed — and from the beginning the most remote ages — the great preoccupation-tion of the Egyptians. Also, for centuries, their Did the priests apply themselves to composing incantations? tions, to provide the Dead man with the means to escape

First, to the attacks of the larvae, the monsters that populate the underworld, and then of to reach the Paradise of the Great Goddess Isis, sovereign of the Realm of the Dead, "Queen of "Manes," as he was called.

The Book of the Dead.

Before reaching the Gardens of Iaru, one had to confront-to find dark caves and deserted or populated places of ferocious beasts, crossing torrents of boiling water and lakes blocked by nets, crossing pylons, of castles whose gates were guarded by hungry demons.

The soul had no hope unless it knew how to oppose each of these dangers, the appropriate talisman better to escape the poison of snakes, to the tooth crocodiles, caught in the nets, with greedy hands malevolent geniuses (Mr. Maspero, of the Institute: Studies) of Egyptian Mythology, Paris, 1893, vol. I, p. 347).

The mystical conceptions of theologians Egyptians becoming increasingly bushy,

(their science from beyond the grave) had become so complex, there were so many countries to learn about, so many words magical to pronounce without changing a single letter.
that it was no longer possible to restrain them; and the danger was terrible: one mistake, one omission delivered the poor soul to his enemies. Also, provisions had been made for the deceased, a kind of memento: it was the Book of Dead people, whom the mummy carried with it. At every ins-so much so, the deceased could open it and consult it in complete

---

1. The Gardens of Iaru are the Paradise of Isis; compare the Champs-Elysées of the Greeks (AB).

occurrence; at each stage of his perilous journey,
He was learning the path he should follow; he was conjuring, by addressing them by their true names, the deities enemies who wanted to annihilate him, and the magic formula it put them to flight or rendered them powerless;
called upon the followers of Osiris, or the God, for help.
himself, and they could not refuse to obey a
A well-executed incantation. In short, thanks to this manual, a summary.
discoveries that Egyptian theology had pursued for centuries, the deceased provided with the Book of the Dead, he set out certain of escaping the furnace-naises and places of annihilation (MP Foucart, of The Institute: Research on the Origin and Nature of Mysteries of Eleusis, Paris, 1895, p. 62).

Purpose and Rites of the Mysteries of Isis.

May the deceased have this saving Book at his disposal
In his hellish journey, it was good. But what During his funeral, the pious service was rendered to him.
the vice of telling him over and over again so that he wouldn't come
4. Forgetting to use its magical powers,
It was better:

The different chapters of the Book of the Dead formed so many liturgical lessons, which were recited by the priests during the funeral ceremony, during the preparation of the amulets that were placed with the dead in his tomb, and that these prayers consecrated They feared, to whom they bestowed their virtue... The "lessons!"
that were taken from the Book of the Dead during the ceremonies-nees, are always placed in the mouth of the deceased.
who is supposed to pronounce them during his pilgrimage

---

1. In the liturgical sense, lectio, that is, readings (AB).

infernal; they were recited near his mummy for the teach him and give him the opportunity to repeat them.
(Francois Lenormant, Hist. anc., t. III, p. 257).

All these precautions are aimed at ensuring the safety of the deceased.
a happy journey to the afterlife, were still perfected and augmented when the most deots to Isis, the most concerned about their second life meant they were led to learn – from their very existence – tence on land and in supremely challenging conditions imposing – the words of the Sacred “Book” with the circumstances in which they were to be said.

And that was the purpose of the Mysteries of Isis. They had its mission to bring the de- closer to the divine votes to his worship and to teach them the practices and the prayers capable of ensuring them Paradise of the Queen of the Manes. That is what emerges, for Mr. Foucart, like most Egyptologists:
gues, from the confrontation of all the Egyptian texts-Greeks and Greeks: The Recipient of the Mysteries
Isis was present, during the great vigil, at a Representation of the Isiac Myths. View of the lake
At Sais, according to Herodotus, they mimed the Passion of Osiris. Then came, before the eyes of the future Initiate the spectacle of the Sacred Sin, by Isis, of the mem-scattered branches of God.

A remarkable Greek inscription, proven-member of an Isiac Brotherhood of Gallipoli, made allusion 4 this part of the Mysteries: we see to depict the Nile, a pond made sacred by some drops of Nile water that were poured onto it, and on this
The pond represents the sacred fishing of the members of Osiris dismembered. (MP Foucart, Research on (the origin, etc., Paris, 1895, p. 37).

1. Cited on page 6.

Having thus been instructed in the Mysteries of his religious faith, the Recipient – becoming by anticipating death, "Osiris the so-and-so" – played himself a role in moving scenes who taught him about the life of the soul beyond the tomb, with the dangers to be avoided there.

Apuleius, in this second part of the Mysteries, an allusion as clear as one could hope for, when he puts these into the mouth of his Initiate words :

“I touched the very edge of death; I trod the threshold” from Proserpine's palace!, I returned through all the elements; in the middle of the night, I saw the sun to shine with a bright light; I arrived before the Gods of Heaven and Hell; I saw them face to face and I "I adored it up close." (Apuleius: The Golden Ass or the Metamorphosis) phose, trans. by J.-A. Maury, Paris, Didier, Librairie Academic, 1834, volume II, p. 207).

The new Osiris, the future Initiate, had everything. to expect kindness from Isis: it was she who had God, her beloved husband, had risen from the dead: it was she who would ensure the salvation of the Recipient, Dead living, aspiring to eternal happiness.

Magic in the Mysteries of Isis.

From all the foregoing, it already follows that the The mysteries of Isis were essentially magical. But Egyptian and Isiac magic played a role in the entire Old World played such a significant role- the need to dedicate to it minus a few pages to give an idea succinct.

1. Proserpine, that is to say Isis, considered as Sou-Queen of the Underworld, Queen of the Manes (AB),

Ancient magic was the very foundation of religion. Mr. Maspero said. The faithful man who wanted to obtain something favor from a god had no chance of succeeding except by condition of laying hands on this god, and the hand-implementation was only carried out by means of a certain number of rites, sacrifices, prayers, songs that the god himself had revealed, and which forced him to do what was-sent word from him. Now the voice, especially the human voice, is the quintessential instrument of the priest or Fin-singer. It is she who goes far and wide to seek the Invi-possible sounds that we call, and each of the sounds that it emits has a particular power that eludes the common mortals, but known to the followers and whose They use it for their operations. Such a note is irritating. spirits, one soothes them, another attracts them. and by combining the notes with each other, we composes these melodies that the magicians intone during their recollections. I don't need to to recall here what importance Carmen had in the religion and law of ancient Rome; he was all powerful in Egypt, and the sorcerer, the priest, individual Anyone addressing a god had to have the right voice if he wanted to get what he asked for; he had to be fair of voice, “Mà-Khrôou”.

(Mr. Maspero, of the Institute, Studies in Mythology) Egyptian... Paris, 1893, Volume I, p. 106).

Even more than the living, the dead needed to be fair in voice. He had no chance of escaping the dangers of the other world that if he succeeded in de-

1. Carmen, in Latin, sacred song, incantation. (AB)

to turn by his incantations, and his incantations have not-were only of virtue if they were recited in one voice accurate, without any intonation errors. (M. Maspero, ibid., p. 109).

A remarkable thing, which we note here by anticipation because it is crucial in our eyes: while, in the Egyptian language, the words Ma-Khroou means the man of righteous voice, — capable because of the accuracy of his voice and his intonations to make himself heard by the gods when he addresses them with the consecrated words — in In Greece, we will find as ancestors of the Eumolpides (the priests who initiated into the Mysteries) of Eleusis) a priest named Eu-Molpos, in Greek The one with the right voice. We will also hear Mr. Foucart insists on the secret words, the sacramental chants, incantation formulas tion necessary for the soul's journey after the death, as it was depicted in the Mysteries of Ceres, which Herodotus claims to have brought? in Greece by the daughters of the Egyptian Danais.

Thus, whichever way we turn, — Egypt or Greece imbued with Egyptian ideas — we always end up with the magic incantation, the power of sacred words and talismans on The Invisibles.

In each talisman, the magic formula that consecrated, enclosed something of the absolute power-divine wisdom. Through their virtue, man laid his hand on the gods, he forced them into his service, he compelled them to to work and to fight for him...

(François Lenormant: Ancient History, vol. DI, p. 134).

1. M. Foucart, Recherches. p. 59, 63, 76.
2. See p. 6.

From this, we understand the importance that taken, in the magical religion of Egypt and in the Mysteries that were its soul, the knowledge secret and incommunicable names of the gods.

Two special chapters of the Book of the Dead... have the purpose of instructing the deceased in the many names of Osiri as an all-powerful aid in his journey hellish... Not only, said Mr. Birch, it is indicated on some monuments of the 12th Dynasty that they are dedicated to certain gods "under all their names," but We also find tables of names of the god Phtah, the demiurge, and of the god Ra, the solar principle, on monuments from the reign of Ramses II... Gnosis or the knowledge of the divine names, in their external sense-laughing and in their esoteric sense, was in fact the great Religious mystery or initiation among the Egyptians.

The formulas in the Harris papyrus are filled with al-illusions about the magical importance of names gods:

I am the chosen one of millions of years,

Emerging from the lower heavens,

The one whose name is not known.

If his name were spoken on the riverbank,
Yes! It would consume it.

If his name were spoken on earth,

Ouil, it would make sparks fly.

And this other one which contains a formal evocation:

Come to me! Come to me!

O you who are permanent for the millions of thousands years,

O Khnoum, only son,

Conceived yesterday, born today!

The one who knows your name

He who has seventy-seven eyes and sixty-seventeen ears.

Come to me! Let my voice be heard...

(François Lenormant: Ancient History, vol. III, p. 135.)

One of the fundamental points of Mysticism Egyptian tradition held that the god was invoked and evoked.
in the forms required by the sacramental words such were forced to obey. Alfred Maury, of the Institute, provided some interesting documentation on this.

In Egypt, he said, called by his true name, the god could not resist the effect of the evocation (lambic: De Mysteriis Ægypt, VU, 4-5)... (This opinion is ` recorded) in the writings of the hierogrammate Chéré- my friend who had composed a treatise during the Alexandrian period on the sacred science of the Egyptians... Not only will we called the god by his name, but if he refused to appear He was threatened with repression. These coercive formulas The Greeks called theons, those in regard to the gods. anakgai. (Alf. Maury: Magic and Astrology in Antiquity and the Middle Ages. Paris, 1860, p. 41.)

I don't need to dwell on the consequences- these demoralizing factors that stemmed from such situations beliefs, since they attributed a 'power without limits to men whose vices can- would compel divine power and majesty to to commit shameful acts on their orders or criminal. We will see the Greek philosophers to rely on this fundamental absurdity to com- to challenge old beliefs. But he left- It's particularly striking to hear the Neoplatonist

Porphyry, himself a magician, disavows this the fundamental and essential doctrine of the ancient initiates and sorcerers of Egypt on the gods forced to to submit to the orders of their faithful.

Porphyry, in fact, in his Letter to Anebo, in- worthy of such a foolish claim among the magi- ancient Egyptians, with such blind faith in the The power of words.

I am deeply troubled, he wrote, at the idea of to think that those whom we invoke as the most powerful people receive injunctions just like the most faibles, and requiring their servants to practice However, they show themselves willing to do justice. They themselves are subjected to unjust things, when they receive them. the command, and while they do not fulfill the © prayers of those who would not have abstained from pleasures of Venus, they do not refuse to serve as guides to immoral men, to the first person who came along, in illicit pleasures. (Porphyry, quoted by Eusebius: Pre- (parat. Evangel, x. XX.)

It could not be demonstrated more forcefully than The magician Porphyry does not do it, how much magic is a crazy thing and how terribly it is dangerous for morals, for social health of a people. And it is the great Porphyry who speaks. Thus, that is to say, a fervent supporter of the theories magical practices perpetuated until him within the Mystères, and one of the most dangerous adversaries- The cleverest of early Christianity! It was him which contradicts the age-old tradition on a crucial point Name of the Secret Initiatory Societies!

---

1. Porphyry, born in Tyre, in 233 AD.

But in the eyes of the Sectarians, his contemporary, such a fundamental disagreement — on the very essence of the secrets that were entrusted to Initiates of Isis — between the initiated theurgist Porphyry, Prophet of Initiatory Societies in their decline, and the Egyptian pontiffs of all ages! Such great contradictions do not hinder further- Tag the modern sectarians: that's how we

we shall see, in the 18th century, the Freemasons Mar– Spiritualists and magicians – to make cause com– a commune, within Jacobinism, with the Illuminati of Weishaupt, atheists and materialists. That's just one A powerful link united Martinists and Illuminati: the hatred of Christianity. And it was that same hatred.
hatred that united all the Initiates to Porphyry his time, whatever their opinions on the coercion of the gods through sacred words!
Together, they detested Christianity.
a staunch enemy of Magic, so dear to conspirators of Isis, and no less implacable adversary of Immorality, so flourishing, too, in their Mysteries.

Immorality in the Mysteries of Isis.

The Christian Eusebius called Porphyry "an ad–
"A marvelous theologian!" Saint Augustine said of this Highly initiated, he was "the most learned of philosophers"

+

"Sophies?" These tributes paid to an enemy

1. Prepar. Evangel., book IV.
2. Civit. Dei, book. 19, chap. 22.

formidable aspects of Christianity give value capital to what we just quoted: "I I am deeply troubled, (Porphyry wrote), to the idea that the gods do not refuse to serve as guides to immoral men, firstly "came, in illicit pleasures."

By making this admission, so characteristic of a great intelligence tossed between ideas con– traditional, but enamored of Justice and Truth, this champion of the Mysticism of the old Ini– Temples Tiatics himself put the red–hot iron in the.
a raw wound; he himself pronounced the condemnation–
tion of those he was nevertheless striving to defend.

Because the Initiates of the Secret Society isia– that they believed they possessed, through magic, the power to extort their all–powerful help from the gods with a view to shameful and unjust things, everything is...
This was followed by: gradual demoralization of the classes enlightened, instructed in the Mysteries, as well than the mass of the Profane!, and with the demo– realization, abuse, crimes of all kinds.

On page 9 of this volume we quoted Diodorus Siculus and Plutarch, concerning a a certain part of Osiris's body, which Isis had not could find in the "Sacred Fishing" mem– her husband's breast. It's time to revisit this myth.

Isis (as Diodorus and Plutarch wrote), Isis did to make a representation of this member, and "she thus consecrated the Phallus, which the Egyptians still

1. Remember the adage here: "Fish rots by the head ".

"Today they celebrate the festival." (Plutarch, On Isis) and Osiris, ch. xviii). |

However, the myth of the dismembered god, the Sacred Peach,
This is the foundation of the Isiac Mysteries. From which it follows that the cult of the Phallus of Osiris is the primordial cult dial of the Initiates of the great Egyptian Secret Society– yours which – we shall see – was a model for several of the Secret Societies of the Old World.

We will then say whether we are right to pre–
. to suggest that immorality is at the very root of Mysteries of Isis.

We did not torture the texts for their to make them express a meaning they did not have; but Here are some more old documents that prove until the truth of our thesis became evident.

Another Initiate into all the Egyptian Mysteries and Greeks, the great Herodotus, who was nicknamed the Father of History, wrote nearly five centuries before our era:

...The Egyptians celebrate the rest of the festival of Bacchus in much the same way as the Greeks; but instead of a phallus, they invented figures about a cubit high, which are made soft-to see by means of a rope. The women wear in the towns and villages these figures whose mem-
The virile penis is hardly smaller than the rest of the body and that they make things stir. A flute player walks... the head; they follow him, singing the praises of Bacchus. But why do these figures have the same-virile breast of such disproportionate size and Why do they only stir that part? We'll see gives a holy reason; but I must not recall it-to carry. (Herodotus: History; Euterpe (book II), ch. xuv.

Translation from the Literary Pantheon, Paris, 1837, p. 63).

This last formula of discretion, usual to all attentive members of Secret Societies not to violate the Sacred Mysteries, no longer hide for us nor who in reality the Egyptian Bacchus was-neither the "holy reason" concealed by Hero-dowry, for, eight centuries after him, Plutarch, another Initiate wrote:

This identity of Osiris and Bacchus, which must be better educated than you, Cléa, since you preside the Thyades of Delphi, since your father and your Did your mother initiate you into the Mysteries of Ostris?... (Plu-Tarque, On Isis and Osiris, ch. xxxv, trans. Bétolaud, Paris, 1870, p. 254).

When the Pamylia festival is celebrated (in Egypt) which, as we have already said, is that of the Phallus, a statue is displayed and paraded about, which
The male member is three times its ordinary size.
For God is the supreme principle, and every principle multiplies, generation after generation, everything that comes from him...
(Ibid., ch. 36, p. 256).

The confrontation of these words from the two Initiates Herodotus and Plutarch therefore demonstrate in this way the most irrefutable one that:

1° The phallus displayed during religious festivals
Egyptians believed it was the Phallus of Osiris;

2° the worship rendered to this emblem was not only by the flock of vulgar profane people:
he belonged to the most sacred Mysteries of the So-Secret chapel of devotees to Isis.

Let us hasten to say it: in the thinking of Egyptian priests and initiates, this brutal symbol concealed and simultaneously represented the fecal energy Dante of the Sun, who, in turn, was for the Egyptians, one of the faces, images and manifestations tions of the supreme God, the one whose hymn of The temple of El-Khargeh sang of the sublime in this grandiose language:

Ammon is his image, Atum is his image.

Khopra is his image, RA' is his image.

He alone creates himself through millions of ways!

He lives forever!

He is the Old Woman...

Permanent and lasting,

It never passes.

For millions and muons of endless years, I] traverses the heavens.

And he travels through the underworld every day...

He travels in the cloud

To separate heaven and earth...

Hidden permanently in everything,

He, the Living One

In whom all things live eternally!

(Quoted by Francois Lenormant, Hist. anc. t. III. p.

279, 280, and by F. Vigouroux, Bible and discoveries mo-(dernes, vol. III, p. 20.)

The idea of the deified Sun is intertwined here with that of the supreme God whom he depicts and represents, while that, in the same hymn, another passage that we have already quoted (p. 11) which evoked the idea of the divine generation, assimilated to the generation human and animal:

1. Ra, the sun of the day, Osiris being the sun hidden during at night.

dem me es se.

He is the living god of future generations.
He is the creator of all animals,

Under its name of Ram of the sheep,

Goat of the goats, Bull of the cows.

Now, we have touched the point of the esoteric symbolism so complex of Egyptian myths from which a blossoming was to spring forth dense with more naturalistic and more each one more obscene than the last — and it was inevitable. Indeed, highly superior minds and those inclined to to consider in the ceremonies of their worship only, the lofty theological conceptions which there were hiding, could at a pinch not have to be poorly impressed by the emblems of the Universal generation thus shown in the Isiac and Osirian processions, among the Initiates, closed doors, just like in the towns and cities Ages of Egypt for the throng of the profane. But, it is clear that for the vast majority of

Egyptians of all conditions and genders, of Such exhibitions could only tend to becoming unwelcome stimulants to a uni-

_ Verselle. That's what happened next.

Let us add that, from the earliest ages of Egypt, | the sacred tributes paid to the Generation don-four of the true religious events took place very licentious and such as the Priests and Initiates (well-known Roman Augurs!) they could hardly look at each other without laughing, when, They attended it devoutly.

Here is first a very suggestive scene from major annual pilgrimage to the temple of Bubastis:

We get there by water, recounts Herodotus, the Initiate, a man-my and women jumbled together and confused with each other the others; in each boat, there is a great name-a group of people of both sexes. As long as The navigation is difficult, some women play castagnettes and a few flute players; the rest, so much Men and women alike sing and clap. During-When passing near a city, one brings the boat from the shore. Among the women, some continued-Some start singing, others shout at the top of their lungs.

and hurl insults at the women of the city; these women _they start to dance, and those ones, standing up, roll up-indecently dressed them. The same thing happened. It serves every town one encounters along the river. _ (Herodotus: History, Euterpe, book II, chapter LX, trans. by Mr. Larcher, of the Academy of Inscriptions and Belles-Letters, Paris, 1786, t. II, p. 50, 51.)

Diodorus Siculus reports a more sinGulier again: he recounts that the divine Bull Apis, newly discovered, was fed penforty days in the temple of Nilopolis. There, women were allowed to come and worship him.

They lift their robes in front of him, adds Diodorus. and pudenda ei ostentant. (Diod. Sic. Hist.-Univ. Liv. I. Sect. 11, XXXII, translated. of Abbot Terrasson, of Aca-French Demie, Amsterdam, 1743, p. 141.)

We find something even better in Herodotus:

The Mendesians, he said, sacrifice neither goats nor goats. Here are the reasons: they put Pan in the namebr of the eight great gods... Now, the painters and the sculptors depict the god Pan, as do the Greeks, with a goat's head and a goat's legs; It's not that they imagine he has such a thing figure; they believe him to be similar to the rest of the gods; 'but I would feel a sort of scruple about saying for-that's how they represent it.

The Mendesians have great veneration for the goats and the sheep, and even more so for those than for these. They especially hold them in great veneration a goat that they value more than all the others; When he dies, the entire Mendesian Nome is in mourning... Something happened while I was in Egypt astonishing in the Mendesian Nome: a goat had publicly trade with a woman and this The adventure became known to everyone. (Herodotus: History of Euterpe, Book II, Chapter 11, translated by Mr. Larcher, of the Academy of Inscriptions and Belles-Letters, Paris, 1786, t. II, p. 41.) |

The great Hellenist Larcher has commented on this. (Vol. II, pp. 254 and 255) some very curious notes. first notes Herodotus's scruple not to reveal the reasons behind these animal members attributed to the god Pan. This insider's discretion, Jealous of keeping the secret, we already have it as seen in Herodotus. At every moment he employs this formula: "... reasons that I keep silent about scru-"Pule, although I am not unaware of them..." But we know the background of this perfectly A pious mystery by Diodorus Siculus:

The Egyptians, Diodorus writes, put the goat in many of the gods for the same reason as the Greeks They honor, it is said, Priapus; I mean because of the member that serves for generation, this animal being very inclined to love. They want us to give back appropriate honors to this part of the body which is the instrument of generation because it gives the Life to all animals. (Diod, Sic., Hist. Univ., Liv. I, Sect. 11, ch. xxxu1, trans. Terrasson and Liv. I, ch. LXXXVIII, ` (edit. consulted by Larcher.)

However, "the astonishing thing" reported by Herodowry, "the goat having publicly traded "With a woman," that was part of the "honors." suitable” rendered to the god of Generation! Plutarch, another Initiate, indeed recounts this particularly excessive devotion of the Egyptians yours: |

Animals, he said, stick to pleasures and loves that they can experience with those of their own kind. Therefore, there is no reason to be struck with admiration if, as in Egypt, the goat of Mendes, locked up with a A large number of the most beautiful women do not experience no desire, and feels much more ardor for his goats... (Plutarch: Moralia, trans. Bétolaud, Paris, 1870, t. IV, p. 300).

Nothing is so certain, comments Mr. Larcher, that the detestable custom of locking women up with the Mendes' goat. The same thing was happening in Thmuis! A thousand authors have spoken of it (Herodotus's History, translated) by Mr. Larcher, of the Academy of Inscriptions and Belles-Lettres, vol. II, p. 255).

In order to show what hideous depravities had become commonplace in Egypt — in this beautiful country governed by wise, devout Initiates to the Phallus of Osiris — we must mention one last trait: | |

For the corpses of women of quality, says Herodowry, they are not immediately handed over to the embassy die, no more than the dead who were beautiful and which were given great consideration, but only three or four days after their death. We take this precaution, for fear that embalmers might abuse bodies entrusted to them. It is said that some were taken one about the fact with a woman who recently died, and that on the accusation of one of his comrades (Herodotus, Hist., Euterpe; Book II, Chapter Lxxx9, translation by M. Larcher, of the Academy of Inscriptions and Belles-Lettres, Paris, 1786, vol. II, p. 68).

---

1. St. Clement of Alexandria, Exhortation to the Nations, p. 27, l. 37; cited by Larcher.

Absence of Human Sacrifices in the Mysteries of Isis.

It is to the worst debauchery of the senses and the worst intellectual debaucheries of Witchcraft, which abouthey wove learned and proud theogonies, the majestic rites of the Egyptians, we come to observe it.

On the other hand, we must note, in their Mysteries, the absence of Human Sacrifices, so far away that we go back in time.

Herodotus, nearly five centuries before our era, already emphasized this fact in chapter 45 of book II (Euterpe) of his History. Further on, in chapter 19 from the same book:

Menelaus, he said, having landed in Egypt, imagined imTo murder two local children... Having become odious to This happened to the Egyptians, and he was forced to flee.

This ritual murder was the counterpart to the sacrifice of Iphigenia by her father, the King of Kings, Agamemnon. Larcher, the translator of Herodotus, says to

This statement was undoubtedly intended to appease the Gods of the Winds, like Menelaus (as well as Agamemnon) had sacrificed two little Egyptians:

These kinds of sacrifices, he adds, were ordinary in Greece, but odious in Egypt (Herodotus, trans. Larcher, t. II, p. 395).

This is because the ancient Egyptian civilization had was the first of all to become humanized. The neoThe Platonist and occultist Porphyry provides one interesting testimony, according to the Egyptian priest Manetho, better qualified than anyone to to talk about the primordial rites used by his ancestors:

Pharaoh Ahmose abolished human sacrifices. in Heliopolis of Egypt, as Manetho testifies, in his book: On Antiquity and Piety. We find them sacrificed to Juno'; they were examined to see if they were without imperfection, as if they had been calves, and they were marked with a seal. They were sacrificed three. Amosis ordered that three be substituted for them Figures of men, made of wax? (Porphyry: Treatise on abstinence from the flesh of animals, book II, chapter Lv).

On the other hand, in the dictionary of Messrs. Da–
Renberg and Saglio, we find in the article Hiero–
Duli, these lines that illuminate our path:

Going back even further, we realize that the hierodulism (that is, sacred slavery of men) and women devoted to the gods in their temples), is

1. That is to say, to Isis, queen of the Gods.

2. The civilizers of peoples thus endeavored to attain– to combat ancestral barbarities, while respecting traditions.

a softened form of Human Sacrifices, commonly used first used in certain cults, then fell into disuse with the progress of manners... (J.–A. Hild.).

But if the progress of morals in Egypt erased early on, the marks of the heinous murder Ritual, this was not the case for civilizations Chaldean and Canaanite sisters of civilization sation that emerged in early times, on the banks of the Nile. In Asia, on the contrary, Human Sacrifices continued to display their hideous purple, until– than in more recent times: there, the blood human continued to flow into the religious Mysteries gieux, at the same time as all the depravities together and all the practices of Magic continued to defile them.

There, in the cursed lands of Byblos, of Tyre and of Sodom, we will find joined together, within The Mysteries of Old Secret Societies, the three flaws we were talking about at the beginning: the Sor–
The maddening, the Debauchery in all its forms that degrade, and the Human Sacrifice that lowers man below the beast, below wolves that, at least, don't devour each other them.

Digitized by Google

H

THE ORIENTAL VENUS

The Mother Goddess, the divinized Feminine Principle who in Egypt bore the name Isis, was called in Asia, known by many names including Astarte, Baaleth, Mylitta, Cybele.

The role of this myrionime deity has not been less considerable than that of its sister on the banks of the Nile, moreover confused with it from from a certain era in the same adorations.

The global importance of the Mysteries of Astarte– Mylitta, the great eastern Venus, was put in light by Mr. Lajard, member of the Institute, in a series of reports to the Academy of Inscriptions and Belles–Lettres 1.

Everywhere, he said, one will find symbols, emblems
My, the attributes of the goddess linked to various cults public as well as the ritual of the Mysteries... Everywhere

1. Research on Cult, Symbols, Attributes and The Figurative Monuments of Venus, by Félix Lajard, member of the Institute, Paris, 1837.

Finally, one will easily recognize the traces of this high and ancient civilization which was imported from Asia in Africa and Europe with this same cult; for it does not Make no mistake, in ancient times, the im– the introduction of a new religion, that was... the import– tion of an entire civilization, that is to say of all the

of all the arts , since theology or the universal science encompassed all the arts, all the sciences. Also these Chaldeans, renowned as inventors of the Cult and Mysteries of Venus, these Chaldeans whose Theology was given the epithet "perfect" by the Greeks.
other traditions show them founding astromie, teaching all the sciences, pa A the priest-doce...

In Western Asia and Northern Asia, they present themselves to us as the teachers of The most famous peoples of these lands, the Assyrians, the Arabs, the Phoenicians, the Phrygians, the Medes, the Persians... The cult of Venus had even cast some roots so deep in beliefs and customs of these various nations that we see the pro- dogmas ready for this cult to serve as the foundation for most of the religious or philosophical systems which, in the antiquity, took hold in the East... Later, they become the basis of the doctrines professed by the various Gnostic sects... (Introduction, pp. xxij)
and xxii). | :

The influence of the ancient theology of the Chaldeans has survived all political and religious revolutions from Asia... it encompasses a period that already exceeds a period of five thousand years... Several Asian peoples tics, notably the Phoenicians by founding colonies nies in Africa and Europe, had brought there, with the Cult and the Mysteries of Venus, the new civilization to which Western Asia was indebted to the science of Chaldeans. (Introduction, p. xxv).

Material civilization, prodigiously then-
The health tradition that originated with the Chaldeans branched out, it is true, among a hundred different peoples at the same time that the Mysteries of the Great Nature Goddess: That's the good side of the coin. But it has its reverse.

Getting to the heart of the matter that interests us, Lajard envisions the institution of the Asian Mysteriesques as born from the desire to keep pure the truths acquired through centuries of meditation wise men, without risking putting them in the hands of men perverse instruments of formidable domination tion:

The teaching of theology and uni-
Verselle, he said, was not public; it became the privilege Exclusive to the sanctuaries... Initiation into the various grades established in the Mysteries was the open door to all men whose minds, judgments, and necks moral rage and even their physical strength led them to judge specific to contribute to the purpose of this institution and capable-able to keep the secret inviolably... (Lajard, Research... p. 5.)

Here we have, in a condensed form, the complete thesis.
affiliates of today's Secret Societies as well as before, — all together hypocritical exploiters and masked tyrants of the mas-their people enslaved by them, the so-called benefactors of Humanity whom they claim to be civil-to read without her knowledge, and against her will, if necessary.

One remark of crucial importance must be made.
therefore to our readers, all more or less at current affairs of Freemasonry mo-last: that's what Freemasons of today and Initiates of the past had one thing in common: 1° Initiation to Mysteries where they only progress if super-

1. Unknown people judge them worthy; 2. the oath sworn to "inviolably guard" secrets which will only be revealed to them later — something criminal as these secrets may be.

These are the foundations of the Initiatory Mysteries of past as well as present. It remains to be seen how it will be appreciated.
Chaldean Proto-Masonry (like us we did it in the Proto-Masonry of Egypt), the true value of the treasures that the Initiates kept jealously guarded in the shadow of the Sanctuaries.

Nature, an androgynous god.

At the heart of all the Asian mysteries, one finds the cult of Nature considered as embracing together the creative principle with the creatures and consequently considered as an android god Universal gyne. Nature, supreme god, fertilizes-both father and impregnated goddess, such is the fundamental dogma of religions originating from Chaldea, along with the great secret of Initiates composing their Priesthoods and their Third Orders Orders.

“At the heart of the Kushite religions!” said Mr. Maspero, we find a god who is both one and many: one,

1. After the Turanian Akkad and Sumir, the Kushites The Hamitics are the oldest peoples who dominated in Chaldea. (AB)

— because matter emanates from it and it merges with it with matter; multiple, because each of the acts that it accomplishes within itself on matter is considerelict as produced by a distinct being and carries a special name. At first, these distinct beings... coexist without being subordinate, and each of them is adored by preference to all others in a city or by a People: Anou in Uruk, Bel in Nippur, Sin in Ur Marduk in Babylon, Anu, Bel, Sin, Marduk are but a single substance and yet the substance unique, of which they are the names, possesses a dual essence: She combines the two principles in one person necessary for every generation, the male principle and the female principle. Each god splits into one The corresponding goddess, Anou and Sin, is the goddess Nana. Bel in Belit, Marduk in Zarpanit. The divine beings do not are conceived more in isolation, but in pairs and chaone of the couples they form is only an expression sion of the one primordial god...

Each of these gods splits into a single deity. female which is its 'passive' form and as its 'reflounder » Anat (Anaitis), Bélit (Béltis, Mylitta). Anat, Bélit... easily get lost in one another and most often come together in a single one which represents feel the feminine principle of Nature, Matter moist and fertile. (Mr. Maspero, member of the Institute: Ancient History of the Peoples of the East, Paris, 3rd ed., 1884, pp. 148, 149, 150).

If from Chaldea, where the divine couples reigned Anou and Anat, Bel and Bêlit, we are passing through Syria, And in Phoenicia, we find there a divine family. identical to the previous ones: in addition, it will prompto evoke similarities in our eyes deep connections with the couple Isis-Osiris:

(The female divinity), says Mr. Vigouroux, is often named in the Bible alongside Baal; she is called Astoreth, the Astarte of the Greeks... Just as Baal is sometimes the Sky, Astarte is also the Earth fertilized by Heaven. But many signs showThey also say that she is often the Moon... She is the Passive and productive principle, the mother, like Baal, is the active and generating principle, the father...

We read in an Assyrian hymn addressed to the new moon:

Light from the sky that appears like a flame in (the region,
Fertile one on earth, your disappearance is like a
[the journey you are undertaking...

Bring on the day of the bride, 6 heavens!
On the day of the bride Istar t, bring him forth, O heavens!

The Bible, particularly the Book of Judges, names several times the goddess Asherah, "the good or Pheu"reuse goddess"... She is the inseparable countryside of Baal. Where there is an altar to Baal, there is also a image of Asherah, a symbolic stake representing her and which is the object of an impure cult. (F. Vigouroux, La Bible and Modern Discoveries, Paris, 1884, vol. III, p. 278 to 281.)

Asherah, the symbol of Astarte in the shape of stake or conical cippus? is found in the

1. Ishtar, daughter of Anat, consubstantial with her mother; she is the same name as Astarte in the twin dialects, (both Hamito-Semitic) of Assyria and Phoenicia (AB)

2. On the occasion of Emperor Titus's visit to the temple Tacitus describes Venus (Aphrodite or Astarte) in Paphos. Thus the singular divine image: "The idol of the goddess has not The human form, he said, is a round column whose The base is wider than the top, like a boundary marker. (Hist. II. 3.)

most depictions of the Nature Goddess. Perhaps- Isn't being something other than the lingam-yoni? Hindus, fetish of the supreme androgynous god. In any case, this symbol is definitely phallic: Indeed, the Bible (III, Kings, 15, verse 13) shows the pious King Asa removing the regency from his mother Maacha, because it was devoted to a shameful cult, – in Sacris Priapi, says the Vulgate – and the text The Hebrew correspondent said that she had consecrated an "asherah" which Asa had broken and burned near the Cedar stream.

It is therefore easy to glimpse the abysses of demoralization in which such a symbol lism, of the most brutal obscenity, had to forcehow to train populations, burning with all the flames kindled within them by the Eastern sun.

From Rhea-Cybele to Istar-Astarte,

Bel, Baal, Moloch, etc., that is to say under these di_ towards names the Sun-God always personifying the Masculinity of Nature, and Ishtar, Astarte, Cybele,

1. We read in the Kama Sutra (translation by M. Lamairesse, Paris, 1891): “... the lingam-yoni, a kind of amulet appearing verenda utriusque sexus in actu copulationis..." (Introd. p. xii). |

As early as the 17th century, J. Selden, the great English scholar, was Note, according to Macrobius (see: Saturnalia, III, 10), that at In Cyprus (colonized by the Phoenicians), it was believed that Venus Astarte was both male and female. Selden recalls in At the same time, Venus, armed and bearded like a man, who was worshipped by the Greeks and the Romans. (Selden: De Diis Syris. p. 239, Lipsiae, 1672. New edition with commentaries (by Andreas Beyer).

personifying the Femininity of Nature, such are, –as we have just seen – the two deities of which the couple forms, in all the theogonies of The ancient Asian god, the primordial androgynous god.

Astoreth is "the inseparable companion of Baal 1”. Similarly, the Eastern Venus (for lap(peler, its most general name) is the companion inseparable from the male and solar god in all the Cults and in all initiatory Mysteries appearreturned to those of Chaldea, the chosen land of sorcerers and enchanters, sa- prostitution human creations and sacrifices.

Also, so as not to risk repeating ourselves, we are bringing the various closer together Mysteries of the Near East, and we consider themrons as forming simple variants of a same type of practicing wizard brotherhoods They all share the same dark magic, the same rituals. infamous and cruel at the same time, in other words as forming autonomous lodges within the same Freemasonry from its earliest days.

Mr. de Vogué (of the French Academy) has montre in the female divinity with a hundred names:

... the great Syrian goddess of Hierapolis (see Lucian: from Ded Syria, ch. xxx1) the Phrygian goddess bas-reliefs from Yazikeni (see Texier: Description) of Asia Minor, I, pl. 78), Rhea Cybele, mother of gods, Venus-Urania of Phrygia and Asia Minor, the Tanit or Celestial Artemis of Carthage, the Juno that Diodorus (II, 9) associates Jupiter-Baal in the temple from Bel to Babylon, the Syrian Atergatis, the Anaïtis Assyro-Chaldean cylinders... (Count of Vogué:

[1] M. Vigouroux, Bib. et Découv. Mod., p. 281.

Mélanges d'Archéologie orientale, Paris, Imp. Impériale, 1868, p. 45.)

This divinity, continues M. de Vogué, is none other than the great goddess of Nature, the Great Mother, desiknown by the very vague name of Eastern Venus, that of which Lucian (De Ded Syriä, ch. xxx) said that she had something of Juno, Minerva, and Venus about it, of the Moon, of Cybele, of Diana, of Nemesis and of – The Fates, thus involuntarily bearing witness to the unit of the starting point (ibid., p. 48).

But, in his Tenth Book, Strabo, who was one of the greatest geographers of Antiquity, exprime, therefore, concerning the Mysteries to which prewere astounding the Curetes, in Crete, in Phrygia and on the Mount Ida, in honor of Rhea-Cybele:

Some assume that the Curetes are the same thing that the Corybantes, the Dactyls Idaeans (that is to say of Mount Ida) and the Telchines. Others say they all from the same family; that there are only a fewwhat a difference between them. In general, they all look alikeblant about the enthusiasm, the Bacchic fury, the noise they made with their weapons, with the timbales, drums, flutes, and their extraordinary criesdiners in their sacred festivals. (Translation given by de Sainte-Croix, of the Academy of Inscriptions and Belles-Letters: Mysteries of Paganism, Paris, 1784, p. 562).

The Berecynthians, a people of Phrygia, continue Strabo, and all the Phrygians in general, as well as the The Trojans, neighbors of Mount Ida, also honor Rhea and celebrate-They celebrate her parties with orgies, calling her the Mother of Gods and the Great Phrygian Goddess (/d., Id., p. 567).

Strabo also speaks of the Cabiri of Samothrace. (from the Phoenician Cabirim) priest-magicians of Cybele.

[1] Strabo, born around 50 BC.

We will find further on, in the texts chalDeans and Hebrews, these strange pontiffs of the Eastern Venus, which "were writhing furiously", as Strabo notes (/d., Id., p. 576).

What we have just quoted demonstrates sufficientlysavante that close ties linked to the Myslands of Cybele and all the other Mysteries of Crete, of Phrygia, of Samothrace, etc.

The national religion of Phrygia, famous in the entire ancient world, said Mr. Babelon, and propagated to far removed at a certain time, was a gross pantheismsier who had, in his fundamental ideas, a great similarity with the Chaldean-Assyrian religion... Cybele and Attis, with the monstrous legends that... had given rise to their cult, were the deities national (The Phrygians: Ancient History of the Orient, by François Lenormant, of the Institute, continued by M. Babelon, Paris, 1887, t. V, p. 460).

In the midst of Cybele's festivities, the Welsh, her priests sacrificed their virility to him, in fanatical transports whose hideous description cannot be given here! As such, we have Too much to say on these sad subjects, and we move on. to the fundamental myth that is found everywhere even, in the Initiatory Mysteries that we we have just listed: the Chaldean myth of Ishtar and by Tammouz.

[1] With his charming and profound irony, Lucien of Samosata (born around 137 AD), spoke about it in his book By Dea Syrä (See Œuv. de Lucien, trad. Talbot, Paris, 1874,

t. II, p. 447, and Dialogues of the Gods, XII, § 1).

The Myth of Tammuz and Ishtar (Adonis and Astarte)

Ctesias and Nicholas of Damascus collected a a fable that puts into action the antagonism of forces enemies clashing in the universe, forces personalnified by the male and female deities of Chal-Idea: on the one hand, the Sun, the Day, the Vegetation, Life; on the other hand; the Moon, the Night, Winter, the Death. We report this fable from François Lenormant (Origins of History, vol. I, p. 161):

The Sun god has his twin brother as an enemy, the moon god. The latter seizes his brother, the holds him prisoner and makes him lose his virility! It's a way of expressing that the Sun is dying every night, and that he dies every year, in winter, under the blows of the nocturnal oracle, to resurrect soon.

But among the various ways of looking at the Sun, there are two more where the Sun is in antagonism with itself: it is fertilizing and invigorating; but also, in the excess of its strength, it becomes malevolent and destructive. The myth of Tammouz stems from both of these ideas.

Alongside the gods representing the sun in its power sance, there is one that represents the sun in its deswink... Tammuz, the Chaldean Adonis, the dying god at the flower of his youth, mourned by his wife Istar and resurrected in its original beauty...

1. In the Phrygian myth, certainly derived from this myth In Chaldean mythology, it is the goddess Rhea-Cybele who emasculates her lover. Atys. (Lucian of Samosata: De Dea Syrd, trans. Talbot Paris, 1874, p. 447).

(A. Loisy, Studies on the Chaldean-Assyrian religion, Review of Religions, Paris, 1891, p. 53).

Tammuz (in the Akkadian or Proto-Chal- language) Deian: the Son of Life, Tammu-zi) is the sun spring vegetation and personification of the awakening of nature.

Perhaps, Mr. Loisy continued, he was supposed to die in the month that bore his name and in which com-The intense summer heat is beginning. It would be the sun burning with the harvest that would kill the tender and green Spring. A lament on the death of Tammuz has been preserved for us, and the sun is indeed designated there. like the perpetrator of this sad event:

Tammuz has gone away; he has gone down inside of the earth;

Samas (the burning sun) Ya made disappear in the land deaths

Among the moans, on the day he struck her...

To the distant and invisible land, the noble Tammuz He's gone!

How long will he be prevented from germinating?
Plants?

How long will he be prevented from germinating?

the earth?
(A. Loisy, id., id., p. 55).

One of the oldest centers of the fstar cult was the Chaldean city of Erek. There, Istar, also called and perhaps-First, Nana was the daughter of Anu and the wife of Tammuz. She was honored primarily as a goddess of

* fertility. Legions of women devoted to prostitution sacred tution served his temple. (A. Loisy, id., ibid., p. 103).

But if, as a fertility goddess, {star is wife of Tammuz, the god who makes "the sprout" "Earth," Ishtar is also Belit, mother of the gods, and As such, Tammuz's wife happens to be his mother.

This multiplicity of aspects of the female divinity is clearly expressed in a hymn to the planet Istar or Venus, where androgyny is celebrated at the same time essential nism of the female divinity, and the notion of the divine incest of the god Tammuz, husband of his mother: data that have not been disseminated in the Greek world than by the Orphics and the Neo-Platonicists, but which, more than two thousand years before the Christian era, were professed as formal dogmas in the Chaldean-Babylonian priestly schools:

> The female celestial body is the planet Venus; it is female at sunset;
>
> The male celestial body is the planet Venus; it is male to sunrise;
>
> The planet Venus, at sunrise, Samas (or Tammuz) is the name of its owner at the same time and his offspring.
>
> ...The planet Venus, at sunrise, its name Is Istar among the stars?
>
> ...The planet Venus, at sunset, its His name is Belit, among the gods.
>
> (M. Babelon, Hist. anc., t. V, p. 260.)

In Phoenicia, the same myth is found with Baal-Tammuz or Adon (Adonis), the god pro- detector of beings, while the same male god, considered destructive, he was called Baal-Moloch, instead of Samas:

> (Adonis) was, in reality, PAdon Adonim, the Lord Lords, the greatest of the gods of the land of Canaan and part of Syria whose cult was celebrated with the greatest pomp in Byblos...
>
> The women who had refused to devote themselves (to Mysteries of Adonis) by cutting their hair were delivered to foreigners; the virgins had to perform the sacrifice- the value of their honor to the god, and the price of prostitution Sacred tuition was poured into the temple treasury...
>
> The famous reserved doctrine from which one received the The secret, when one was initiated into these Mysteries, was lex- symbolic pressure of the union of Heaven and Earth, the ancestors of all living things, of their union and of their separation... The religious action corresponding to this dogma was the representation of this conception childlike cosmogonic sacrament that assured sons of men, the benefits resulting from the union of Heaven, father of all that is, and of Earth, the mother universal. (M. Tiele (of Leiden), Rev. de l'Hist. des Relig., Annal. from the Guimet Museum, Paris, 1881, t. III, pp. 185, 186.)

Istar is now called Astoreth or Baaleth; She is, as in Chaldea, the lover and mother of Tammuz-Adonis, as well as Cybele, the great Phrygian goddess, is the lover and mother of Attis. In Gebal (or Byblos), center of the mysteries of Adonis and of Astarte, the latter figure itself, in a stele dedicated to him by King Jehawmelek, under the figure of the Egyptian goddess Isis.

Thus, all the Asian Mysteries and Egyptians eventually became indistinguishable from one another.

a mixture of murders and incest between mother and son when it is not between brother and sister, while that cosmological abstractions, which are at the origin the origin of these legends, such as the Sun of the Prince-Time and the fertility of nature were transformed in the long run into anthropomorphic beings of which we He located the adventures here and there. The city of Byblos, among other things, boasted of having been the scene of the death of Adonis, the god of his Mysteries, who became Lately, a simple Syrian hunter, lover of his mother Astarte. ©

One day, while Adonis was hunting in Lebanon, near of the city, the god of war (replacing here Samas, the destructive Sun of Chaldea) had having taken the form of a boar, rushed at Jui and had gutted him. But that he should be considered as god-man in the prime of life, handsome husband of Venus, goddess of love, or perhaps like the Sun In the spring, Adonis's death was mourned at the altar. falls into gloomy celebrations. Ezekiel! reproach to the daughters of Israel for having taken part in these lamentations Then, in the spring, when Adonis resurrected- The city was returned to the kisses of Astoreth, the return The birth of the young god was celebrated with orgies. monstrous, the usual procession of the cult of the Nature Goddess in all pagan religions.

Magic in the Chaldean-Syrian Mysteries.

That Magic was the foundation of the Initiatics practiced by the Secret Societies of The former Asia, that is what clearly emerges

1. Ezekiel, VIII, 14.

studies by all linguists and all ethnographers.

It was a myth invented by the priests of Accads, the Turanians of Chaldea 1, this myth fundamental of Tammuz – the Akkadian god Tammu-zi, "God of Life" – who became the center of the Venusian Mysteries of which Asia was defiled throughout its entire extent. And these are the old brotherhoods of these Accads, with their brothers Of the race of the Magi? From ancient Turanian Media, who poured poisons upon the entire ancient world witchcraft.

The Turanian cult is indeed a true form of magic. where the hymns to the divinity all took on more or less the incantation-like aspect and where the priest is less a priest than a sorcerer. (Mr. Maspero, of the Institut, Ancient History of the Peoples of the Orient, Paris, 1884, 3rd ed., p. 145).

Just as the Egyptian Initiates affiliated themselves with their Mysteries to ensure themselves through magical rites that a good death and a happy life beyond-tomb, likewise the Initiates entered the Asian mysteries for protecting oneself against

1. The Touranian people of the Accads were related "to the nations that stretch from the marshes of Finland to the banks of the Amur still inhabit northern Europe and Asia today. (Mr. Maspero). The Accads, brothers of the race of the Finns and the The Turks were the first civilizers of Babylonia. After the Hamitic and Semitic conquests, they maintained their intellectual supremacy in the priestly colleges from Chaldea, up to Cyrus. (See Oppert, Bullet. Archéol., 1854; Fr. Lenormant, Hist. anc., t. IV, p. 39).

2. It was these Turanian Magi who gave their name in Magic (AB)

legions of invisible beings who, in their minds struck by a constant terror, they threatened them A thousand dangers loom at every moment.

The magic of the Assyro-Chaldeans is based on the belief in countless spirits spread throughout all places in nature, directing and animating all the beings of creation... All the elements are rem-Folds, air, fire, earth, and water... We need help to man against the attacks of evil spirits; against the plagues and diseases they unleash on him. This help is found in the incantations of which the The priest-magicians hold the secret; it lies in their rituals. and their talismans that he may find it. (Fr. Lenormant and M. Babelon, Ancient History of the Peoples of the Orient, vol. V, p. 194).

In Nineveh, in the ruins of Ashurba's palace-Nipal, king of Assyria, thousands have been discovered of clay tablets that made up the biblio-Royal tea. The largest number of them constituted a colossal work of magic:

.. [it is written in Acadian, that is to say in the a Turanian language related to Finnish and Tartars, the language spoken by the primitive population of the plains. marshy areas of the lower Euphrates. An Assy- translation nothing placed opposite accompanies the old text Akkadian. For a long time now, when Assour-Banipal, in the 8th century BC, had a copy made which reached us, we no longer understood documents of this kind only with the help of the version Assyrian, which dates back to a much earlier date high. (Fr. Lenormant, Magic among the Chaldeans, Paris, 1874, pp. 2-3).

(From this great magical work), the scribes of As

_ Sourbanipal had executed several copies according to the copy existing since ancient times in the library of the famous priestly school of Erech, in Chaldea. (/d., id., p. 13).

'Now, it is precisely in Erech, one of the oldest centers of the cult of Ishtar, which, according to all proba-From these bilities, the myth was born (so important and so fruitful). of Tammuz-Adonis, origin of all the Mysteries which were celebrated by the Asian secret societies.

The great magical ritual of the Pontiffs of Erech consisted of three books; the first (under the (title: The Evil Spirits) was exclusively filled with incantations and imprecations intended to repel demons; the second contained the incantations to which power was attributed to cure various diseases. Finally, the third contained the hymns of four certain gods, songs magical beings that were believed to possess supernatural.

It is curious to note that these three parts correspond correspond exactly to the three classes of doctors chaldeans that the book of Daniel lists alongside the astrologues (kazdim) and diviners (gazrim), that is to say, the khartumim or conjurers, the hakamim or medecins, and the asaphim or theosophists. (Franc. Lenorm. La Mag. Chald., p. 13).

Let us mention in passing that this remarkable concordance-Comparable between the Books of Daniel and the ancients documents unearthed from the ruins of Nineveh constituted-kills yet another piece of evidence for the true authenticity from this part of the Bible.

Alongside the Kasdim, one would be surprised not to to meet the Seers of the Spi- in Mesopotamia Ancient ritism. Here they are:

The temple of Ishtar at Arbela was served by a col- a council of priestesses exercising the prophetic ministry and that we see in regular correspondence with 'Asarhaddon. The king consulted the goddess about his military operations; Istar responded to him through intermedium of a clairvoyant:'

“I, Ishtar of Arbela, say to Esarhaddon, king of Ash-on: I will give in Assur (Nineveh), Kalah, Arbela, . long days to Esarhaddon, to the king whom I love. Fear not, O king, I tell you!... I will destroy your enemies- "made with my own hands!" (Rev. des Relig. A. Loisy, Etud. on religion. chald. assyr., Jan. 1891, p. 107-108).

This is what our modern magicians call a Spiritual dictation.

Cuneiform texts attest to the existence, among the Chaldeans, of an extremely demonology rich and refined. They believed in the Alap and the Nirgall, guardian spirits in the form of bulls and winged lions; to the Utug (all the harmful demons-bles in general); to the Labartu (ghosts), to the Labassu (spectra) (Franc. Lenorm. La Mag. Chald. pp. 23-24-35). The demons are accused oo all sorts of villainy:

They, the products of hell,

At the top they bring trouble.

Down below they bring confusion...

They go from house to house;

They slither through the doors like snakes;

They prevent the wife from being impregnated by the husband;

They snatch the child from the man's lap;

They drive the free woman away from the house where she has born...

They drive the son away from his father's house;
They are the voice that screams and pursues

the man.
(Ibid., ibid., pp. 28-29).

...The belief in the dead who rise from the grave-beautiful in the state of vampires (or Akhkharus) existed in Chaldea. In the fragment of mythological epic which tells of the descent of the goddess Ishtar to the Immua- Lands Bles, the goddess, having reached the gates of the dwelling "Infernal!" she cried.

Guardian, open your door!

If you don't open the door, I'll break its bars.
I will raise up the dead to devour the living;
I will give power to the dead over the living.

The formulas then mention, by placing them in a separate class, the demons... who abuse sleep to subdue the woman or the man to their embraces, the incubus and the succubus, in accadien gelal and kiel-gelal, in Assyrian lil and lilit. (The lilith) plays a major role in Talmudic demonology; The Kabbalist rabbis forged an entire legend where She disappoints Adam and unites with him).

(Franç. Lenorm. La Mag. Chald., p. 35-36).

Bewitchment using incantations and potions, bewitchment (practices revived by Modern Magi depicted in elegant figures, in the heart of Paris, at La Bodinière) were a common thingrent in Babylonia. These magical rites, of which we traces are found throughout Europe, have persituated on their native soil with prodigious vitality.

According to the writer Ibn Khaldun, who lived in 14th century AD, this practice of Fen-Voting was (in his time) still very much in vogue use among the Nabataean sorcerers of Lower Euphrate. (See François Lenormant: Chal- Magic (Déenne, p. 58.) .

And this Arab historian, describing the same bewitchment-a phenomenon that can be found in all European countries to this day, seems to have translated texts

Assyrian cuneiforms that had been dormant for some time two thousand years in the ruins of the palaces of Nineveh, which has only just been unearthed.

...Of all the means the sorcerer can employ,
The most powerful, the most irresistible is the imprecation.
The imprecatory form not only unleashes,
Indeed, the demons; it acts upon the heavenly gods themselves, and, leading their actions to his words, the turns to evil. (Ibid., p. 59.)

Here is one of those imprecatory formulas intended forborn to attract the wrath of divine powers on the heads of humans:

May the Great Gods Anou, Bel, Nouah and the Lady [Supreme

They cover him in utter confusion...

Let them erase his legacy!

May the Sun, the great judge of heaven and earth, [pronounces his sentence!...
May Ishtar, Queen of heaven and earth, strike him,
And in the presence of Gods and Men leads | [His servants are doomed!]
(Ibid., p. 61).

He is one of those Chaldean sorcerers, skilled at compel the gods by their powerful imprecations heavenly beings to curse, it is the Chaldean Balaam who the princes of Moab and Midian called for that he came to bring misfortune upon Israel on the march

Towards the Promised Land. The Bible provides us with this information. further evidence of close family ties which united the magical Mysteries of Chaldea to the magical Mysteries of Syria and Canaan. And after attempting to satisfy through its imperfectionstions the hatred of the Moabites against the children of Jacob, Balaam gave them, to overcome the resistance Israel's adversary, the council so treacherously clever which We will talk about this later:

“And initiatus is Israel Beelphegor?” » said the Vulgate, that is to say: "And Israel was initiated into the Mysteries of Beelphegor”, the male and solar God of the Moabites, the god closely related to Bel and Tammuz, themselves brothers and husbands of the Istar-Baaleth.

Having reached the point where we are in our study, it is impossible for us to separate one from the other, the flaws of the Canaanite secret societies, the same flaws that, across worlds and islands ages, taint most secret societies: the Magic, debauchery, cruelty. As well as, Numerous biblical texts unite them in the same anathemas. Among other things, these passages from the Book of Wisdom, of such powerful concision:

3. You abhorred, Lord, those ancients inhabitants of your Holy Land,

4. because they were doing detestable things to your eyes, through enchantments and unholy sacrifices,

5. mercilessly killing their own children, eating

---

1. One of Balaam's imprecations begins like this: “Balah, king of the Moabites, brought me from Aram, from the mountains "People of the East. Come," he told me, "and curse Jacob." (Numbers. XXIII, 7.)

2. Numbers, XXV, 3.

from the entrails of men and by devouring their blood, initiates that they were involved in abominable Mysteries (Wisdom 12).

23. For either they sacrifice their own children, or They celebrate secret Mysteries, or they take part The night has orgies full of madness. (Wisdom 14)

These Mysteries, full of madness, blood and Debauchery, it was Magic that instituted them; they are the myths of the sorcerers of Chaldea and Canaan who threw themselves into cesspools of bloody mud, the brilliantly gifted Hamito-Semitic peoples, so energetic and so strong.”

Besides the mystical reasons (under color to honor the male and female generative deities female) who incited the magician-priests to pushing devout men and women into all kinds of depravity, well They quickly understood what advantage they had corruption, on a degraded human herd, dulled by vices of every kind. And we live, under their impetus, the gigantic rise of the Sacred prostitution, daughter of secret societies tiatics, at the same time as Magic inspired also the monstrous human sacrifices, thanks to this dual and universal belief, that blood man's libation is the only one capable of appeasing the divinity angered against man, and that all the beings of the Afterlife, gods, demons and souls of dead, hungry and thirsty for blood.

(Chaldean theology) assumes that the human being is not entirely destroyed, and its shadow languishes in an endless night. This ghost is hungry, he is hungry for flesh and blood. If the dead returned, this They would be vampires who would prey on the living.

Their appetites sharpened by the fast of the sepulchre. offerings and funeral libations are intended for To satisfy the hunger and thirst of the dead. The fate. of the shadow is linked to that of the corpse; it is usually on the grave of the dead man let libations be poured; whoA conch shell, deprived of burial, is wandering and unhappy. in the other world...

When Ashurbanipal had conquered the land of Elam (Susiane), he took revenge on the old kings who had soThe wind worried Babylon and Nineveh by violating their tombs: "I broke," he said, "I destroyed the coffins" ancient kings who were enemies of kings, my ancestors; I deprived their spirits of shelter and made them languish after the libation.” But if he pursued his enemies untilthat in the grave, they were interested in their deceased parents It was with human blood that he quenched the angered soul of his ancestor Sennacherib. When he had taken Babylon, He reserved a fairly large number of captives who were brought alive to the place where Sennacherib had been assassinated: there, he had them slaughtered as an offering to his grandfather'. (Rev. des Relig. A. Loisy, Etude relig. Chald. Assyr. Jan. 1891, pp. 126-128).

1. It is ideas of the same nature that have given rise to the Horrific human sacrifices in Dahomey. They took place during these times. In recent years, and here's how – according to a witness ocular – they carried out in August 1860:

"The 5th is reserved for the king's offerings. Fifteen women and Thirty-five men are pictured, gagged and tied, their knees folded up to the chin; arms tied at the bottom of the legs and each one kept in a basket that is carried on the head... The king lit his pipe, gave the signal, and immediately everyone The machetes were drawn and heads rolled... The blood it flowed from all sides; the priests were covered in it and the unfortunate prisoners who were waiting their turn at The base of the platform was as if dyed red.” (Quoted by the Dr J. Ch. M. Boudin, Etud. anthrop., Paris, 1864. p. 76, 77.)

SACRED PROSTITUTION AND HUMAN SACRIFICES

Magical incantations in the acca- language The dienne that we have cited dates back to, we As we have said, to a prodigiously distant antiquitytaine. François Lenormant pointed out the imcapital load of one of them:, to demonstrate how ancient was the filthy place in Chaldea institution of Sacred Prostitution of both sexes which, from the banks of the Euphrates, covered with its mud The whole of Asia. Here is the text:

I. The evil god, the evil demon,
The demon of the desert, the demon of the mountain,
The demon of the sea, the demon of the swamp...
The evil demon that seizes the body, that shakes the body,
Spirit of heaven, remember! Spirit of earth,

Remember that!

1. François Lenormant: La Mag., p. 4.

II. The demon that takes hold of man,
The possessing demon that seizes the man,
The gigim that does evil,
Product of an evil demon,
Spirit of heaven, remember! Spirit of earth,
Remember that!
III. The sacred prostitute! with an impure heart who abandons
the place of prostitution
The prostitute of the god Anna? Who doesn't do her service...
_ The hierodule that, through fault, does not go to its place,
He who does not slash his chest,
Spirit of heaven, remember! Spirit of earth,
Remember that!
(Francois Lenormant, La Mag. Chald., p. 3-4).

Alongside the sacred prostitutes who served At Erek, the temple of Ishtar, here they are, practicing their priesthood of shameful debauchery from the earliest times ancient Akkads, the same hierodules whose Lucien described the bloody fanaticism in the Cybele's festivals +; the same as Jehovah's forfollowed so often by his anathemas; the same who, numbering 450 for the male deity, and of 400 for the female deity, were piously fed at the expense of Queen Jezebel, the ardent propagator among the Hebrews of the cults of Moloch and Astarte.

1. In Assyrian: Qadista, meaning "Consecrated".

2. Anna, the Akkadian name of the god who, in Assyrian, was called Anou (François Lenormant: La Mag., p. A).

3. See above, pp. 46-47.
4. See above, p. 44.

#

They cried out loudly, says the Bible, and they made themselves incisions with knives and lancets, according to their custom, until blood was shed upon them. (II, Kings, xvii, 28).

While the main female devotion consisted of the sacred prostitution of the hierofemale dules (in Assyrian Qadista, in Hebrew Kedeschot), the devotion of the male hierodules was double: by the sight of their blood, they aroused the the frenzy of the Initiates to prepare them for the accthe unfolding of human sacrifices, and... they delivered their bodies to the worshippers of Astarte, for the most singular works of piety that the Secret Societies of Chaldean Sorcerers.

The Phoenician inscription found in Cyprus in 1879, near Larnaca, we are presented with a monthly account which includes the staff of a temple of Astarte!; we see mentioned the prize won by sacred courtesans (Alamot, the almehs) and also the men designated as Dogs. (Mr. VigouRoux, Dictionary of the Bible. Astarthé-)

... There we find (line 14) the Kelabim, literally "The Dogs." In the context in which they are named, it It is certain that the Kelabim refer to the boys who engaged in shameful prostitution in the sanctuaries of the Phoenician Astarte. It is no less certaintain, therefore, that the Keléb, mentioned in the Deuteronoma (XXIII, 19)... is the equivalent of Kadesch, of even that Alamot responds to the Kedeshah of the verse previous. (J. Derenbourg, Revue des Etudes juives. Paris, 1881, p. 126.)

1. Corpus inscriptionum semiticarum, Paris, 1881, t. I, No. 85 pp. 96 to 99.

Thus, male and female prostitutes, "consasacred" to the Eastern Venus, are called the KaDeschim and the Kedeschot. It's basically the same title. that Kadosh with which our gloriously adorn themselves Freemasons of the 30th degree; they have ancestors there. and grandmothers of whom they can be proud.

To accompany the two forms of prostitution, here is Human Sacrifices in Chaldea:

On an Assyrian cylinder (published by J. MENANT, Re(see research on oriental glyptics, vol. I, p. 151) figure the statue of the god, seated on a throne. The priest He seized the kneeling victim and struck him with his sword... Further on, the pontiff with his long fringed robe, his a tiara adorned with horns... The Bible explicitly states that even in the seventh century BC, the inhabitants So many from Sippara (Sepharvaim) sacrificed their sons and their daughters to honor Adrammelek and Annamelek. We can cite a fragment of national literatureNational law relating to child sacrifices. The child's head was given for the man's head; the child's chest for the man's chest has been [data.

(See Franc. Lenorm., Etud.accad., vol. III, p. 142).

Another inscription reads the following:

For Raman to be favorable and bring prosperity,
On the hills, a child is burned alive.
(Franç. Lenorm. et Babelon, Hist. anc., t. V. p, 308).

With Chaldea, here is Phoenicia and the Land of Canaan.

In the third century AD, the neo- occultist The Platonist Porphyry wrote:

"The Phoenicians in times of great calamity, whether of war, whether from drought or famine, sacrificed what they held most dear to Saturn; and this sacrifice was done as a result of a public deliberation. Phoenician history is full of such sacrifices. Sanchoniathon wrote it in the Phoenician language, and Philo of Byblos translated it into Greek in eight books... » (Porphyry: De abstinentia, liv. II, chap. Lv1).

The Canaanite and Phoenician religions were characterized by a particularly licentious cult and bloodthirsty. The orgies, the debauchery, and the prostitution The sacrifices there were considered sacred. Humans were allowed there.

In case of danger, the king and the nobles providedknow... all those of their children whom the god claimed. They were burned alive before him and the smell of their flesh appeased his anger. For the offering to be valid, the Mother was supposed to be there, impassive and dressed in her finest. (M. Maspero, member of the Institute, Hist. anc., 4th ed., p. 342).

What was particular to the Canaanites was the charactera period of atrocious cruelty permeated the ceremonies of their cult. No ancient people approached them in this mixture of blood and debauchery by which they believed they were honoring the divinity... "Their religion imposedknows how to remain silent in the face of nature's most sacred feelings. she corrupted souls through superstitions in turn atrocious and dissolute, and one is reduced to wondering what moral influence could she exert on the "The customs of the people." (Creuzer)

… The most dreadful rite was these sacrifices in honorthe temple of Baal–Moloch, where children were burned alive by their own parents. (Franç. Lenorm. and Babelon, ©) Hist. anc., t. VI, p. 577. Paris, 1888).

The most frequent form of this mode of sacrifice was the sacrifice of the firstborn and more generally newborns. (Mr. Ph. Berger, of the Institute, senator-author, art. Phoenicia, Encyclop. of religious sciences, published under the direction of MF Lichtenberger, dean | (from the Protestant Faculty of Theology of Paris, p. 545).

+

We know that human sacrifices also had their place in the worship of the great gods of Babylon, of Anu in Assyria, of Kamosh among the Moabites, of `Melech or Moloch in the Bible, etc. That's the custom that the Old Testament refers to by the expression "to do to pass their children through fire" and whose Yahwists mo-The saists speak only with the greatest horror... The main victims of human sacrifices among the The Phoenicians were... the children, especially the dearest ones, the firstborn, the most beautiful, sometimes young Nubile girls. (Mr. Tiele, of Leiden). Annals of the Museum Guimet, REV. OF HIST. DES RELIG., Paris, t. III, p. 207, . 208).

Indeed, they were supremely abominable degree, these [Initiates of the ancient Mysteries whose doctrines were translated into the Prostitution Sacreates male and female at the same time as by the Human sacrifices! But the Initiates of the Mysteries Are modern ones much better? — Well! the stupefaction of the people, their corruption of... read, favored, becoming for the Secret Societies of the past, hideous instruments of rule, we We will find all of this codified and systematized in the secret papers of the Weishaupt Illuminati (1778) and members of the Haute-Vente (1846).

Furthermore, if for many centuries the Initiates of Babylon, Tyre, and all the Sodoms Canaanite women sacrificed blood to their gods thousands of men, children and

1. That is, the Orthodox Israelites. (AB).

Young girls, what then are the thousands of beings humans, harmless old men, old women my burdens of years, of young girls barely pubescent boys who were sacrificed during the Terror at Freemason Moloch and the Goddess Guillotine, this modern Asherah, no longer erected on a altar — on a scaffold?

The Complete Crime.

To the immortal honor of primitive Judaism and pure, that an abyss separates from the adulterated Judaism of According to the Talmud, Moses is almost the sole legislator of Antiquity' which vigorously proscribed the three stains, including the Secret Societies of Ancient Initiates sullied their Mysteries: magic, unnatural vices and human sacrifice; magic, which withers the spirit; — sodomy, which defiles the flesh; — human sacrifice, which makes blood flows, the vehicle of life, the blood whose The Bible says it contains the soul?

To combine these three crimes against the flesh, the spirit, and that which seems to infuse the spirit in the flesh, isn't that committing the Crime

1. Solon and Lycurgus did nothing against sodomy. neither mine, nor against human sacrifices, which continued to flourished in Greece long after them. As for Zoroaster, he has made commendable efforts, but how inferior to those of Moses!

2. “For the life of every flesh is in its blood…” (Leviticus) that, ch. xvir, 14).

The ultimate crime, the ultimate crime? Yet, never have peoples © did not commit it as much as the Chana- peoples thanks to the terrifying demoralization where the had thrown the Lodges of sorcerers, of Initiates, of Kedeshim and of Kedeschot.

And with what vehemence the Law of Moses forbids the Hebrews the triple crime against the Es-It took, against the Flesh, against the Blood! Three cha-clowns from Leviticus intertwine with rules of simple social morality, the admonitions of Jehovah against these three Canaanite flaws which we appear in biblical texts as closely united.

7. And that they no longer offer their sacrifices to the de- ` mons to whom they prostituted themselves; let it be to them a perpetual prescription through the ages...

10. If anyone from the family of Israel or from the strangers-Gers who stay among them, eat some blood be it, I will put my face against him who will have eaten the blood, and I will cut him off from the midst of his people.

11. For the life of the flesh is in the blood... (Levi-tic, ch. XVII).

1. The Lord spoke to Moses and said to him:

2. Speak to the children of Israel and tell them: I am the Lord, your God.

3. You shall not act according to the customs of the land of Egypt where you lived, and you do not know-you will not conduct according to the customs of the land of Canaan into which I will bring you; you will not follow their rules.

HUMAN SACRIFICES 64 |

21. You shall not give any of your children for the pass through the fire in honor of Moloch and you You shall not defile the name of your God. I am the Lord.

'22. You shall not commit this abomination where
'We use a man as if he were a woman...'

23. You shall not approach any beast and you You shall not defile yourselves with her. And the woman shall not prostitute point 4 an animal, for it is an abhorrent crime.
pathetic.

24. You shall not defile yourselves with any of these infamies with which all the peoples that I
I will hunt before you;

25. Who have dishonored this land; and I will punish the the detestable crimes of this earth and it will vomit forth its residents...

28. But beware that if you commit the same crimes they committed, this land will not... vomit in your turn, as she will have vomited the nations Phabitant before you. (Leviticus, ch. XVIII; for For bibliographical notes, see Holy Bible commentary.
tée, abbé Fillion, t. I, p. 384).

After the prohibition laws, here are the laws that...
neles:

2. ... Whoever of the children of Israel... will give of of his children to Moloch, will be punished by death: the people
The country will bury him with stones.

6. If a man turns away from me to go and seek-Dear magicians and soothsayers..., I will exterminate him from among his people.

68 SECRET SOCIETIES

13. If someone abuses a man as if he were a woman, that they both be punished with death, as having committed a heinous crime: their blood will fall back on them...

27. If a man or woman has a Spirit of pytuna or divination, let them be punished with death; they They will be stoned and their blood will fall back on their heads. (Leviticus, 20th century).

But he was very powerful over the heart of Israel, the dizzying allure of what lies hidden in the avenir and the commerce of the Living with the Dead, Mortals with these immortal Spirits that sawere supposed to evoke the sorcerers of Canaan! — Forso much so that the voice of Jehovah has risen again:

9. When you have entered the land that the Lord even God gives you, you will not imitate the abominable ones .nations of those nations. |

18. And let there be no one among you who nor a soothsayer who no one who presumes to reveal the future, nor anyone who makes predictions nor those who use spells;

11. Neither an enchanter who uses spells, nor a man who consults the mind of Python, nor anyone who questions the Dead;

12. For whoever does these things is in abominationnation to the Lord, and it is because of these abominations that the Lord your God may drive out those nations from before him you. (Deuteronomy, XVIII).

Let us not be quick to smile at the thought of these "weaknesses" (as the geniuses of the Free Thought, the Ferdinand Buissons, the Homais and the Cardinals): predictions, bewitchment, coninteractions with the Dead, all things which constitute They are killing spiritualism, both today and in the past. because they are not only poor people of estaken those who use it: the great, the upright, the incorruptible F.-. Maximilien de Robespierre had indeed close ties with the Martinist Lodges!

Or, according to Dr. Papus, Grand Master of the Marmodern tinists, the work pursued by his Brothers of the 18th century focused "on the study of the Ceremonial magic, on the ritual of evocations of spirits*." The companions of Brother Willermoz — the high-ranking Freemason from Lyon, organizer of the Martinism as well as several of the Masonic conventsniques who prepared the bloody Saturnalia of the Terror — Willermoz's companions, I said, and F.-. Willermoz himself were, written Mr. Papus, in frequent contact "with beings strange, of a different essence from nature human*.

Thus, some of the Freemasons who have unleashed the terrorist brutes had been the deVotes of the most fantastic spiritualist practices: It was through magic that they had preluded the sahuman cries, just as two thousand years earlier, the Canaanite nations.

Nothing new under the sun.

_. 1. Fe. Henri Martin: History of France, 1860 edition, vol. XVI, p. 531. |

2. Dr. Papus: Martinès de Pasqually, his life, his practices magical, p. 150.

3, Dt Papus: idem, p. 74.

The Witch of Endor.

We will return to the sorcery of Martise-
more than one might generally think. But here's the thing, in the Bible, an episode that characterizes the Spiri-ancient ism, with its necromancy:

5. And Saul, having seen the Philistine camp, was struck of fear, and his heart was seized with anguish...

7. He said to his officers: find me a wife who I have a spirit of python; I will go find her and I will know through her what must happen to us. The servants told herrent: there is a woman in Endor who has a Spirit of python.

8. So Saul disguised himself and went away, accompanied by Just two men. They came to this woman's house at night.
woman and Saul said to her: Reveal to me the future by your spirit of python and evoke for me the one I you I would say...

11. The woman said to him, “Who do you want me to give you?”
"What do you mean?" He replied: "Bring Samuel here for me."

12. The woman who saw Samuel appear threw a large
He cried out and said to Saul, “Why have you deceived me?” You
You are Saul.

13. The king said to him, “Do not be afraid. What is the matter with you?”
"See?"—"I saw," she told him, "a God coming out of the earth..."

15. Samuel said to Saul, “Why have you troubled me?”
By bringing me here? Saul replied, "I am in great distress, the Philistines are waging war against me and God has withdrawn from me...

16. Samuel said to him:

17. For the Lord will treat you as I have treated you said on his behalf; he will tear your kingdom apart from among your hands, to give it to another, to David...

19 ... Tomorrow you and your sons will be with me...

20. Saul immediately fell face down to the ground, for the Samuel's words had terrified him... (I, Reges, XXVIII.)

Baal-Phegor.

Attracted by spiritualist divinations, the Mys-Canaanite territories joined, as we have said, the attraction of sensual pleasures.

The Bible provides us with documentary proof of this.
to be silent when she shows by what calculation of a per-profound university the high Initiates, like the sor-Chaldean priest Balaam, knew how to advise the aid from Sacred Prostitution to train to the Mysteries new proselytes.

1. At that time, Israel was living in Settim, and the people fell into fornication with the daughters of Moab.

2. They called the Israelites to their sacrifices and They ate it and they worshipped their gods.

8. And Israel was initiated into the Mysteries of Baal-Pegort.

6. ... It happened that one of the children of Israel entered into The tent of a Midianite woman?

8. ... Phinehas, son of Eleazar, ... entered after the Israelite in the tent and pierced them both, the man and the woman, all at once in the hidden parts.

1. Baal-Phegor was a phallic god, and the mountain (of Phegor) was regarded as the phallus of the sky god who,
On this point, it united with the earth to fertilize it. (M. Tiele, of Leiden, Rev. hist. des Relig., Annal. du Musée Guimet, Paris, 1881, t. III, p. 178).

2. Moabites and Midianites were allies, of neighboring races and of the same faith. (AB)

> 15. And the Midianite woman who was killed was named Cozbi was the daughter of Sur, one of the greatest princes among the Midianites. (Numbers, ch. 25.)

It is clear that if a tall girl tents (as they say among modern Arabs), a The princess thus gave herself to strangers with her companions, it could only have been under the empire of an infamous but ritualistic superstition. We We therefore have before our eyes a scene of Prosti- Sacred tution; the Bible testifies to this in fact. these verses, at the same time as she points to Balaam as having advised this method of proselytism:

> These are they (the women of Moab and Midian) who, according to what Balaam had said, gave the opportunity to the children of Israel to sin against the Lord at Peh-gor. (Numbers, ch. xx1, 16).

These are, in fact, the Canaanite princesses. entries into the harem of the Hebrew kings who were later, according to the Bible, the main causes of the apostasy of their husbands, drawn to Astoreth's sensual cult before being mired in the bloody ceremonies in honor of Moloch, the cruel male of the goddess of pleasure 1.

---

1. 1. Now, King Solomon loved several foreign women-besides Pharaoh's daughter, – Moabites, Ammonites, Idumeans, Sidonians and Hetheans.

2. From among the nations of whom the Lord had spoken to the children From Israel: You're wired point towards them... because, certainly, They would turn your heart away to follow their gods. Salo-My son became passionately attached to them...

5. And Solomon followed Astoreth, god of the Sidonians, and . Milcolm, idol of the Ammonites. (1 Kings, XI).

Astoreth, the androgynous Venus. – Milcolm, “Our King,” or Moloch “the King”, or Baal “the Lord”.

4

The Sacrifice of Mesha, king of Moab.

It was certainly necessary that the proselytizers of this religion bloody gorillas were panicked beforehand (and the Kedeshim with the Kedeschot were made for (That!) Otherwise, we wouldn't be able to understand this scene of dramatic horror: Mesha, king of these same Moabites that we have just seen ritually prostitute their daughters to the Hebrews, was besieged by the kings of Israel and Judah; the the city was about to succumb: but, to force its gods to lend him aid, to defy also the besiegers to perform a higher sacrifice, more capable than his of deserving victory,

> Mesha took his eldest son, who was to reign after him, and He offered it as a burnt offering on the wall, and the Israelites They were horrified, and they returned to their country. (IV, Kings, ch. 11, v. 27).

Israel won at the Canaanite Mysteries.

The cult of the shameless Astoreth, to whom honor-The mother of girls and women was sacrificed, that's it The bait. Then, once the human beast is caught in the net. of lust, the sight of human blood flowing in ritual immolations and magic with all its The prestige was enough to drive people mad. to newcomers.

The Mysteries of Baal and Astoreth had

They subjugated the Canaanite nations. They conquered in turn, and for long intervals, almost all the Israelites.

"And they forgot their God, worshipping the Baalim" and the Astaroths! (Judges, III, 7.)

All the crimes against which Moses had Warned, they committed them; the sorcerers, the Necromancers proliferated in the land of Israel, and Indeed, Scripture adds,

There were effeminate men (Kedeshim) in the land and the
The children of Israel committed all the abominations of the peoples ples that the Lord had crushed before their face.
(III, Kings, x1v, 24).

On almost every page of the Bible, a recurring theme appears an accusation like this:

(The children of Israel) had also erected Ham–
Manim and the Asherahs... (IV, Kings, XVII, 10), that is to say, stone stelae in honor of the Male and solar god (Baal, Moloch, Adon) and of wooden stakes dedicated to Astoreth; that was how it was, a Lucian of Samosata recounted that at the temple of In Hierapolis, two colossal phalluses were visible.

dedicated by Bacchus (Adonis) to Juno (Astarte).
(Lucien, De Dea Syra).

The children of Israel also sent their sons and They burned their daughters by fire; they practiced divination.
and to enchantments (IV, Kings, xvii1, 17).

1. The Vulgate reads Astaroth, plural of Astoreth; the text Hebrew gives Asherot, the plural of Asherah. We have seen (p.40) that the Asherah was the symbol of Astoreth, represented in the form of a wooden stake or a conical cippus rock.

In short, all the kings of Israel except Jehu, and fifteen kings of Judah out of twenty-one (three-quarters!) were more or less devoted to the obscenary Mysteries the bloodthirsty and wicked of Astoreth and Baal.
For example, among the Canaanites, "Kedes–" were installed
"chot" and "Kedeshim" even in the courtyard of the temple of Jehovah!, thus becoming like to this temple of the Venus of Cyprus where the prostitutes Those killed, of both sexes, worked to increase the treasure of the goddess, |

As for human sacrifices among the Hebrews Apostates, they were so frequent, so generous of the flesh of the firstborn which, according to the strong expression– sion of Psalm 100:15, "the earth was infected with blood" (v. 38). Two kings of Judah, all Molochists Secondly, Ahaz and Manasseh set the example and themselves committed a ritual crime similar to that of Mesha, king of Moab: they burned alive two of their sons in honor of Moloch, in the Topheth valley, at the foot of the mountain of Zion.

The Rabbis assert that the statue of Moloch was of bronze, seated on a throne of the same metal, adorned royal ornaments; his head was like that of a calf and its outstretched arms as if to embrace what– than one. When they wanted to sacrifice some children to him, The statue was heated from the inside by a large fire and when she was still burning hot, we put between her
The unfortunate victim's arms were soon consumed.
by the violence of the heat. (Vence Bible, 1820 edition)
t. II, p. 44).

1. IV, Kings, 21, 7.

In his magnificent language, Jérémie la sung: it's for having accumulated these crimes of all sorts (inspired and multiplied by the Mysteries) (Canonians) that the ancient Jews were taken enslaved, their cities burned and razed,

30. Because the children of Judah did what I have in horror, says the Lord; because they have set their abminations in the house where my name is invoked...
(Jeremiah, VII).

5. And because they built high places to Baal, to burn their sons in the fire and make them into burnt offerings to Baal... (Jeremiah, XIX).

Contagion. — Heredity.

How many are evocative of visions and pen-the passages from the Bible that we have quoted, with Balaam and the daughters of Moab, Solomon and his a harem filled with foreign princesses, — and the Children burned alive in the valley of Topheth!

If we reflect on the voluptuous empire of the Mys-Canaanite leaders, to the strength with which they enslaved the Initiates through terror, — terror inspired by magical practices and even more so through human sacrifices — we are.
amazed that the Jewish people did not succumb to still in idolatry, by confusing himself with 'never with the rotten nations that penetrated it from all sides.

That he allowed himself to be corrupted many times and
In any case, it's a fact:

The Bible, says a prominent criminologist, is full categorical admissions or innuendo that prove the Jewish people's surrender to suggestive solicitations - ves of a perverse neighborhood. (Dr. Corre: The Mur-Ritual Cannibalism and the New Society,
1893, p. 13).

But what is truly prodigious, miraculous, is that he has always been found, within the nation Jewish, an irrepressible minority to preserve pure of its tradition and faith, an elite "at the neck
"stiff," as Scripture says, inaccessible to the madness of the love of blood and debauchery.
Let's not forget, the whole world was covered of blood and filth, while, alone among all the of the peoples of the earth, the Jewish people kept intact a centuries-old cult, free from the defilements of the mountains concealed on the dung heap of initiatory secret societies ticks.

In particular, it is with an extraordinary vigor that Phoenician shames — Magic, Sacred prostitution, human sacrifices — have proliferated in all the colonies of Tyre and Sidon: these trees with bad fruit sank in the soil roots so vigorous that, at-even today, where the Canaanite merchants simultaneously set up their counters, their Bloody Molochs and their sacred brothels, we finds traces of their customs.

Indeed, without a doubt, it is a survival-the rise of the cult of the Carthaginian Venus, which the Prostitution of girls from Ouled-Nails, in Algeria.

We have even more striking proof at to provide evidence of the distant persistence of practices established by the old secret societies.
This time it concerns the worship of the female organ — in Greek, “the kteis”. This is the counterpart to the cult obscene, which the Egyptian Mysteries honored Osiris' phallus.

On an engraved stone of Syrian origin, Mr. La-Jard, from the Institute, notes indeed the presence of "the very organ of female generative power", among the attributes placed around an image of the androgynous Venus, Astarte-Mylitta. He gives several examples of the same symbolism.

Another cone, he said, which was published by La Chausse', even offers us the representation of a priest dressed in in an Asian costume and performing an act of adolescence ration in front of an altar on which one sees a ctéis and The star Venus or the Sun? Here, the cteis seems to become the emblem of the goddess herself, and makes us think of Ctesulla's nickname, under which she was worshipped Aphrodite in Julis, and Artemis in the other cities of City of Ceos.

These Assyro-Phoenician doctrines, through a long series of centuries and religious revolutions or civilians, left behind on the soil of West Asia

---

1. Michelangelo de La Chausse, Grand Cabinet Romain, traFrench translation by Dom Joachim Roche, Amsterdam, 1706, t. I, sect. I, folio 30. — Pierre de Chalcédoine.

2. Compare Rempham's star and the solar stelae or Hammanim, among the Jews won over to the worship of Moloch.

traces so deep that the adoration of the cteis has not ceased to be used among certain sects of the East and especially in a locality once famous for the cult in which Venus was honored there. Nowadays, in Indeed, the Druze of Lebanon, in their secret vespers, they practically worship the sexual parts of the woman;... (for the Druze), the greatest of all Sins include fornication with the "Sisters" or Initiates. But among the Nozairians, who have also preserved the ceremony of the adoration of the ctéis, the cohabitation carnal is considered the only way by in which the spiritual union may be perfectly accomplished tuelle. (De Sacy, Journal asiatique, 1st series, vol. X, pp. 334-335. — Félix Lajard: On a Representation depiction of the androgynous Eastern Venus, memoir read on December 13, 1833 at the Academy of Inscriptions and Belles-Lettres, Paris, 1837, pp. 52, 53, 54.)

We will discuss the role played by our ancestors. of the Druze and the Sect of Assassins (or Hashi(chim) to the corruption of the Templar order in which some learned Freemasons like to We will thus recognize our ancestors. And we will see, through an unbroken chain, the doctrines of our Brothers, followers of Malthusianism and of Free love, connecting with love — no less | free although salaried — which they practiced in the Phoenician temples, the male prostitutes and females. That's also how we'll see them. the cult of so-called Hebrew thought to be attached to the ancient cults of the phallus of Osiris and the ctéis of the goddess Astarte,

But if the trafficking of women's modesty is a a crime that marks with a shameful stigma

Ancient Asian Secret Societies, The Sacrifice human, their other fundamental flaw, was more Still odious.

Scenes of lust like those that are repeated were constantly in the courtyards of the temples of Astarte, were soon followed by the mournful strains of a barbaric devotion and deadly self-immolations that they provoked. (Messrs. Perrot and Chipiez, History) (Art in Antiquity, Paris, 1885, vol. III, p. 75.)

For the study of Phoenician Ritual Crimes, = we could not address ourselves better than to Philo of Byblos, the Neoplatonist philosopher who was called the "Jewish Plato" and who studied, in Phoenicia itself, the old books of the colleges priests:

That was the custom among the ancient Phoenicians, he said. written, amidst the great calamities that struck the city or the nation, and with the aim of redeeming a disaster imminent public, to dedicate some as sacrifices to the infernal gods. (Philo, Book I, quoted by Eusebius, Prepar. Evang., IV, 16.)

Human sacrifices in Carthage.

The Phoenicians and the Canaanites were not content- they will not "infect their land with blood," as says the Bible; their sailors spread the crimes rituals in honor of Moloch on all the beaches of Asia, Africa and Europe, at the same time time as the rite of sacred prostitution. Frene-born proselytists, both from a religious point of view from an industrial point of view, Tyrians and Sidonians were, in the words of Mr. Ph. Berger (of the Institut), “the traveling salesmen” of the ancient world, 'In religion as in commerce.' We shall see. What was their bloody contribution earlier, in Greece and Italy. But we need to expand on the terrible importance that the Sacrifices hu- | hands had so long in Carthage, the principal-pale Phoenician colony, which was, 2200 years ago, the great fortress of Semitism opposite the Aryan races ever growing.

In the first century AD, Diodorus of Sicily wrote:

> There was a statue of Saturn (Moloch) in Carthage in bronze, which extended its hollow hands towards the ground and in such a way that the child placed on their palm in rolled into a pit filled with fire. (Book XX, Chapter XIV.)

Plutarch, Initiated into the Mysteries, and as such An expert in religious matters said that the Carthaginian

> . sacrificed their own sons... and those who did not children had not bought any to be sacrificed to the poor... The mother of the sacrificed child was pre-she felt; she was not to cry or moan. And before the statue of the god, trumpets were sounded and the drums so that the cries of the victims could not be heard to be heard. (Plut. On Superstition, ch. xu, ed. Firmin Didot, p. 203).

---

1. Encyclopedia of Religious Sciences, published under the di-direction of MF Lichtenberger, Dean of the Faculty of Theo- Protestant logy of Paris, Phoenicia, p. 537.

In his "The Late Vengeances of the Divinity" (ch. vr), Plutarch recounts that Gelon of Syracuse granted peace to the Carthaginians only on the condition-tion that they would no longer sacrifice their children to Saturn.

The historian Justin, in the time of Marcus Aurelius, reports that Darius, king of Persia, forbade the Carthaginians to sacrifice human victims. (L. XIX, ch. r).

Two centuries later, Carthage, defeated again-calf by the Sicilians, immolated five hundred children including two hundred chosen by lot from his families the most famous. (Diod. de Sic., L. XX, ch. xrv).

Seven centuries later — according to a witness — these Abominations are still being committed in Carthage:

> In Africa (written around 200 AD, the Cartha-(Ginois Tertullian) children were publicly sacrificed to Saturn until the proconsulship of Tiberius: he made atta-dear priests of Saturn to the very trees of Temple that covered up these awful sacrifices, as a so many votive crosses.... I call upon the solemn witnesses-officials from my country who carried out the orders of the proconsul. However, these execrable sacrifices continue still in secret. (Tertull. Apologét., ch. 1x. Edit. Literary Pantheon, pp. 15, 16).

Implementing with marvelous artistry the historical data from old authors that we As we have just summarized, Gustave Flaubert, in his The admirable novel "Salammb6o" depicts one of the sacrifices which the Carthaginians made, according the expression consecrated by the Bible, "to spend their "Children by fire," in honor of Moloch. He

Their goal that day was to obtain help of the god for their city plagued by famine and to sufferings of a horrible siege.

However, a fire of aloes, cedar, and laurel burned between the legs of the colossus. Its long wings they plunged their tips into the flame; the ointments the fluids that were rubbing against him flowed like sweat down his brass limbs. Around the round slab where he He rested his feet on them, the children, wrapped in veils black, formed a motionless circle and his arms deform-Surely long, they lowered their palms towards them, as if to seize this crown and carry it off into the sky.

The rich, the elders, the women, all the multi-The crowds gathered behind the priests and on the terraces. houses.... An infinite anguish weighed on the poitrines... and the people of Carthage gasped, absorbed in the desire of his terror.

Before undertaking anything, it was good to try the arms of the god. Thin chains extending from his fingers reached his shoulders and came back down behind where men, firing at it, were making monter, up to the height of his elbows, his two hands open spaces which, as they drew closer, came up against his their bellies; they moved several times in succession, with small Staccato blows. Then the instruments fell silent. The fire He was snoring.

The pontiffs of Moloch were strolling on the aid slab, examining the multitude.

It required an individual sacrifice, a complete oblation voluntary and which was considered to be leading the others...

But no one has shown themselves so far, and the seven paths leading from the barriers to the colossus were completely empty. So, to encourage the people,

The priests drew awls from their belts. And They were slashing their faces. They were brought inside the compound The Devoted Ones... They threw a bundle of horrible iron-They mocked each other and each chose their own torture. They passed the buck. With brooches between their breasts, they split their cheeks; they They placed crowns of thorns on their heads; then they They embraced each other and, surrounding the children, they formed another large circle which contracted and was widening.

They reached the balustrade, threw themselves back back and always started again, drawing to them the crowd overwhelmed by the vertigo of this movement, so full of Blood and screams... |

Finally, a man who was staggering, a pale man and hideous with terror, a child shrieked; then they saw In the hands of the colossus was a small black mass; it plunged into the dark opening.... Arms The bronze ones went faster. They never stopped. Each time a child was placed there, the priests of Moloch stretched out his hand over him, to charge him with crimes of the people...

The victims, barely at the edge of the opening, disappeared they rose like a drop of water on a plate reddened, and white smoke rose into the great scarlet color...

Then worshippers arrived in the aisles, traitheir children who clung to them; and they were fighting to make them let go and put them back to the red men.

The instrument players sometimes stopped exhausted; then we could hear the cries of the mothers and the the sizzling of grease falling onto the char-

1. Compare the Hierodules (Kedeshim) of Chaldea (p. 60) and those of Judea (p. 61), as well as the modern Aïssaouas, in Algeria. (AB) good. (Gustave Flaubert, Salammbô, Paris, Charpentier, 1887, definitive edition, pp. 295–298).

In the plains where vanished grandeur sleeps from Carthage, the memory of the atrocities that defiled seems to have, to this day, trapoured forth through the centuries. Indeed, we read in the British Review:

A Belgian scholar, Mr. Vercoutre, had the opportunity to study dier, in Tunisia, the tattoos of the nomadic tribes cover their faces and limbs... He was able to observe that most of these tattoos depict some kind of doll, arms outstretched, perched on a kind of Grill, under which a fire is sometimes seen burning. (Pierre) Guerraz, Rev. Brit. Jan. 1893, p. 431). |

Digitized by Google

IV

IN INDIA AND PERSIA

Our study has so far focused on the two civilizations Egyptian and Chaldean–Syrian stations, which were the elder sisters and educators of civilization of the Greco–Latin Japhetites. But this one had its primary source in the old traditions of the Aryan race from which the Greeks and Romans descended, Gauls, Slavs, and Scandinavians. We were busypons now of the ancient Aryas of the plawater of Iran (Persia) and India. Their languages were related to Greek and Latin; their religion, that of the Vedas, "was the starting point of all. all the mythologies of the Indo–European peoples, particularly that of the Greeks. "(Lenormant and Babelon, Hist. anc., t. V, p. 365).

The religion of the first Aryans, says Mr. Vigouroux, was in every respect far superior to Brahmanism and to Greek polytheism which came from it (Bible and Discoveries). mod., t. III, p. 15).

The Supreme Being was called "the Living One", Asura Among the Indians, Ahura among the Iranians. One of the hymns of the Vedas sing his praises with these expressions of almost biblical grandeur:

"He fills heaven and earth, he gives life, It gives strength;... death and immortality do not are but his shadow... Heaven and earth tremble with Fear is in his presence. He is God above all the gods. » Only the Hebrews spoke in these things nuns a more sublime language and such a high conception of divinity juxtaposed with the crude naturalism of the most famous sanctuaries of semi- Asia tick or hamitic shows in a brilliant way the moral superiority of the race of Japheth over the races Semitic and Hamitic. (Len. and Bab., Ancient History, vol. V, p. 366).

The Aryans' contact with different races, of earlier material civilization, but of Their very low moral standard produced among them 4 very interesting modifications to consider for us: indeed, the virus of the Caste system, of religious brotherhoods and Secret Societies of Initiation members constituting their Third Orders, powerfully contributed to degrading the primitive character of the Aryan race, in India as well as in Persia.

The Brahmins of Linden.

Meanwhile, from the high plateaus of Central AsiaTrale, some Aryan tribes were heading towards lecouchantets'établissement, par étapes successive, in Media and present–day Persia, other push-

They knew in the East and invaded India. There, these Aryans defeat the black Daysous of the mountains (the Paryas (of Dravidian race) and the yellow Daysous related to the Turanian Akkad of Chaldea. These people, whose civilization was very advanced, had founded, in Hindustan as in Mesopotamia, considerable cities, of which holy citadels. When they were subjugated, the priestly class of the Aryans (the Brahmins) their borrowed the worship of Spirits, which was their religion, – a close relative of the magical religion of proto-Chaldean sorcerers. Thus, from the beginning of the conquests made by the Aryans, in the rich valleys of the Indus, their corrupt priests- They uphold the pure and lofty doctrine of the Vedas[1]; they did the spiritual directors or gurus of Rajahs, and gradually seized all the powers. Soon, they formed a brotherhood usurper like that of the Priest-Initiates of 'Babylonia and Egypt; traitors to their own blood, They appealed against the men of the Aryan race, to the vanquished yellow and black whom they flatter and They became attached, adopting their superstitions magical beings and their gods. With the support of the people conquered, the Brahmins exterminated throughout the South India, the Kchatryas, the Aryan warriors, and became the exclusive owners of all of this which was related to worship.

= Mr. Lamairesse, the learned translator of the Kama-Sutra (Rules of Love), from which we borrow

---

[1] The Vedas are the sacred hymns of the conquered Aryans rants of India.

this striking account of the detestable work accomplished by the Brahmins, continues in these terms: |

The culmination of their work is the Law of Manu which establishes the supremacy of the Brahmins in all things, and completes the physical and moral degradation of the classes servile women devoted, even in their own eyes, by the metempsychosis, to an irremediable decline. By the fear, through corruption, and thanks to the dogma of obedience-blind adherence to an immutable custom, the Law of Manou lasted longer than any other, and no one can To predict the end... Never and nowhere has anyone pushed as far back as the Brahmins the theocratic skill for enslavement (Kama-Sutra, trans. Lamaraisse, Paris, 1891. – Introd., p. x1 and x11).

Thus, the organization into separate social classes was codified by the Brahmins in the inexorable Law from Manou, with the logic and consistency that characterizes the Aryan race, and they forged there the instrument of the cruellest tyranny that ever weighed down on humanity, compressing the whole of man – Body and soul–as if in a vise. They penhouse the human livestock in separate sheepfolds, with a prohibition against crossing its walls, under the the most terrible temporal and spiritual punishments They were foolish. They used everything to stupefy and assServing: The fear of infernal spirits pushed at its peak, the most blatant corruption infiltrated into the veins of the population, Metempsychosis, finally, which kills the feeling of Human personality and its tendency towards disorder the most depressing sexual acts, by this madness: desames who were female in their previous lives older women, uncomfortable in male bodies, and reciProcedently!

Now – and I cannot stress this enough – this confusion of all powers in the hand of the Brahmins, this frightening clericalism that dominates through terror and corruption, that's what we we saw in the Secret Societies of Egypt and of the Near East; but this is also what we we will find, many centuries later, in the Masonic clericalism of the Weishaupts and the Nubius, Robespierre and Marat, like in the hypocritical and sickening imposed servitude to France through the current Lodges.

To break through the stupefying domination the Brahmins, who crushed the Hindus under the triple yoke of magic, of sacred prostitution and human sacrifices, the remains of warriors and Aryan farmers (Kchatryas and Vaysias) united in Buddhism which initially such a favor that everything that had value Morality took refuge in Buddhist convents.
But their austerity measures against debauchery Brahmanical was exaggerated; the Brahmins returned to the rescue; through sheer talent and ingenuity, they drove Buddhism out of India, which, moreover, in turn, he became adulterous by borrowing from the old Turanian funds, all his mad demonomania. More. than ever, the Brahmins accentuated the depravity their religion, where everything ultimately comes down to to the adoration of the lingam-yoni (verenda utriusque sexus in actu copulationis) (Kama-Soutra, trans.
Lamairesse, p. XII).

And here we are back to this cult of the Phallus and.
of the Ctéis whom we saw defile the Mysteries Secret Societies of Egypt and Syria.

In the Vedic religion of the pure Aryans, there is no had no phallic worship. Moreover, Stevenson and Lassen', demonstrated that the fetish of linga (phallus) comes from the Dravidian Tamils (Malabar coast) which is associated with the Kushites
Hamitic peoples who have dominated in ancient times
Chaldea, with the Turanian Akkad.

All the magical, obscene, and cruel rites that we meet have, in short, their commune originating from bloodthirsty sorcerer brotherhoods and depraved Hamitic and Turanian nations who corrupted the Semites and Aryans. But it is necessary.
admit that the Brahmins of pure Japhetite race have considerably improved the demo- tool lisation and enslavement forged by their dismissal Black or yellow-skinned women: it is enough to be convince them to read the advice in the Kama Sutra of exorbitant pleasure and colossal hypocrisy given 2,000 years ago by the Brahmins to the high Hindu society. One is immediately enlightened.
Their Tautras — books of eroticism and magic both are also very informative.

Let us add that the Sakti — the feminine counterpart of Shiva (god of one of the great Brahma sects) nists) as Astoreth is the female counterpart of Baal — is represented by a naked woman on a altar. The initiates gorge themselves on meat and one of them consummates the sacrifice through the carnal act

---

1. Kama-Soutra, trans. Lamairesse, p. xiii.

with the priestess who represents the goddess, L'accougeneral supplement of all male and female initiates-"Them," says Mr. Lamairesse, "ends the ceremony."
(Kama-Sutra, p. XX.)

To complete the picture, let's say a veil of Mystical piety masks this eroticism, while other devotees of Brahmanism indulge in same acts of bloody madness that we have seen practiced by the priests of Astarte, Baal and Cybele; some slash their flesh, suspend themselves teeth with hooks that go into their backs to be tossed in the air; others specifypitent beneath the wheels of the divine chariot — wheels which are also adorned with figures of incredible obscenity? — while on the other hand the authorities Europeans are experiencing the greatest difficulties efforts to prevent Hindu widows from being burned
Long live in honor of their deceased husbands!

_ After having touched these repugnant and These odious realities, one is stunned to hear the affiliated with certain modern Indianist sects

---

1. Compare with the ritual copulation of the Nozairians of Lebanon (p. 78). —

2. Kama Sutra, ibid., p. 95.

On the senseless debauchery that has developed among their flock by those shameless corrupters, the Brahmins, see also Richard Payne Knight's (extremely rare) work: The Cult of Priapus and his relationship with the mystical theology of the Ancients Translated from English. Luxembourg, 1866. Erotic Monuments from the temple of Elephanta, near Bombay, which are reproduced there– products, are particularly likely to shed light on the unconscious– science (or the love of mystification) of Indian sectarians nists bold enough to place Brahmanism above the Christianity.

to speak with pious reverence and admiration vehement opposition to Brahmanical Esotericism, to the
The Gurus' "Secret Doctrine." The system of Theology of the Brahmins is so fallen from the elevation of ideas to which the old Aryas of the Vedas, which Mr. Silvain Lévi, director–
Assistant to the School of Advanced Studies, was able to write:

Morality has found no place in this system:
the sacrifice that governs man's relationship with divinity is a mechanical operation; hidden within of nature, it only emerges under the magical action of than the priest. The worried and malevolent gods see themselves forced to capitulate, defeated and subjugated. by the
the very force that gave them their greatness...

In fact, it's hard to imagine anything more bru– more material and more tangible than the theology of the Brahmins;
the notions that usage has slowly refined and that he has clothed in a moral aspect, they surprise by their savage realism. Sacrifice is a magical operation.
that; the initiation that regenerates is a reproduction faithful to conception, gestation and childbirth– ment; faith is merely trust in the virtue of rites; the passage to heaven is an ascent by stages; the Ritual accuracy is good. (S. Lévi: The Doctrine of Sacrifices among the Brahmins, Paris, 1898.)

It's still the old Acadian sorcery whom we find again, accompanied in India, as well as on the Euphrates and in the Land of Canaan, through human sacrifices and prostitution ritual tutions.

It's the same old sorcery – tainted as always of debauchery and bloodshed – which was practiced – rent the Secret Societies among the Iranians.

The Magi of Iran.

After their brothers, the future conquerors from Persia, the Aryans had separated from them Irania moved westward, subjugating along their route, they encountered peoples related to the Turks.
modern as well as the old Akkads of Mesopotamia–
My. It was indeed this so–called Turanian race that formed the basis of all the populations of the Susiana (or the land of Elam), of Media and of the Modern–day Persia. But we have seen that religion of the Spirits with human Sacrifices and the Pros– sacred institution was all–powerful among these na– tions; by contagion she won over the Aryans. The nation Aryan of the Medes especially was profoundly contaminated; their old religion similar to that The Vedas were altered; their priests did as The Brahmins: they borrowed the tool from the Accads perfected from sacred lust to emasculate and dumbed down the people and became predominant under the Aryan name of Magi. It is even from them, we find knows, that the word Magic came about, so many of these Aryans Turanized and Hamitized pushed the occult sciences.

The idea always dominated the world: today,
This is the anti–Christian idea of Freemasonry who is leading France as it was three years ago

1. Mage, in Persian Magus, in Sanskrit Magha, means the saint, the sacred. (Francois Lenormant, The Origins of History, (t. IJ, p. 490, note 2.)

For a thousand years, throughout Asia, the idea of the anti- Initiates ques, ruling through corruption and fear.
However, the religious rites of a people infused with 4 a neighboring nation, four, are willing to submit in all things.
to a greater or lesser but certain degree,
the influence of this people of overflowing vitality.

Thus, for many centuries the Aryan soul was-she oppressed by the Turanian soul at the same time while the Aryan tribes were under the yoke so heavy with these Turks of ancient times, experts like the moderns in the art of torturing the Rayas.

Old Iranian traditions have preserved
The memory of those gloomy times remains very vivid.
personified in the conqueror Zohak.

"Bloodthirsty tyrant, corrupter of morals, propaproponent of an obscene and monstrous religion against which provoked a rebellion among the tribes' moral instincts Japhetics: this Zohak reigns for a thousand years, and like the = Phoenician Moloch and the Adar-Melek of Sepharvaim in Chaldea, he constantly demands human victims born to feed the two snakes that stand on his head. (Lenorm. et Babelon: Hist. anc., t. V, p. 375).

A tradition even older than the one that concerns the Turano-Hamitic conqueror named Zohak shows us in the Vendidad-Sadé — a the most important books of the Avesta, the Bible Iranian — the various plagues that befell the-during their migrations, on the Aryans of the west.
In the land of Knenta, it was, said this old man document', the unnatural vices, and in the

1. Quoted by Lenormant and Babelon: Hist. anc.; t. V, p. 380.

"Land of Haetumat, the key to the sins of magic," all things that characterize the Hamites and the Touranians.

Zoroaster.

The Aryans' energy was too great to not not reacting against the viruses of corrupt peoples who oppressed them and had even conquered them the soul of their Magi. A movement took place, nationalist liberation movement at the same time time of religious reform, embodied in the Zoroaster, the lawgiver.

We agree, writes Mr. Lamairesse, to recognize in Zoroaster a reformer who wanted to raise his countries succumbing to the exploitation of the Magi and to liner-tie, and regenerate it through work, especially agricultural work, and through population development based on the marriage, good morals and ideas of purity.
Zoroaster recommends pure medicine and forbids the Magic... Its code is merely a moral therapy and Physical. After lying, the greatest crime (in Zoroaster's law) is libertinism, (Kama Sutra, translated. Lamairesse, p. VII.)

Here again we find the two major flaws of the Chaldean-Syrian Brotherhoods of Initiates and Proto-Hindus: magic and immorality.

After Moses and to the brilliant glory of genius Zoroaster, the Aryan, is the ancient lawgiver with ideas the highest and most moral. Moses and him are the only ones in all of antiquity who have se-these two scourges have been fought so often associated with witchcraft and sodomy — scourges whose intensity was a hundredfold due to the prodi-grievous extension that they gave them, out of love pleasures and power over the Abéti people,

The infamous Secret Societies of yesteryear.

Anyone who knows how to open their eyes to look Those around him will tell if modern Secret Societies are, alas! not too similar to the old ones by their corrupting and cruel tyranny!

We observe, in the way the evolved
Aryas from India and those from Iran, a perfect parallelism. Penetrated by the Turano sorcerers-Hamites, their priestly classes corrupt both practice traditional religion a violent tyranny, relying on the enemies of their own race! The pure Aryans, in the west as in the east, they reacted against their im- clergy pure; and it is in India, the Buddha, son of a king, who carries out the reform, while it is in Persia
the great Zoroaster who rejects depravity and
The sorceries of the Magi to found Mazdaism.

The doctrine codified in the Mazdean books, written
Mr. Babelon is undoubtedly the most powerful effort of the human spirit towards spiritualism and the truth of the soul taphysics, on which attempts have been made to found a religion outside of revelation;... it is the doc-the purest, noblest and closest to

1. A very striking fact proves this: Iranian tradition reports that Zoroaster was killed in an invasion of Turapeople who desecrated the Temples of Mazdaism, the truth among those of Asia and the whole world antic, apart from that of the Hebrews based on the word divine. It is the reaction of the noblest instincts of the The Japhetic race, the spiritualist and philosophical race par excellence among the descendants of Noah, against the naturalistic pantheism and polytheism... (Lenorm. and Babelon, Hist. anc., t. V, p. 384.)

Let us add that the fortress, the culminating dungeon of naturalistic pantheism, with the Phallus for supreme god and Cteis as primordial goddess,
These were the ancient Secret Societies, and we sa-Luons in Zoroaster, one of the first adversaries of the tyranny of the Initiates who defiled the little-ples, three thousand years ago, like the Lodges Modern-day Masonic practices corrupt them and They dumb them down in order to better enslave them.

But Mazdaism or Zoroastrianism was of a Morality too high for peoples already weakened by Asian defects. It hardly existed except in the state a small but powerful sect with sudden victories due to exceptional genius of Cyrus and Darius, leaders of the Persian nation remained of Aryan blood, purer than the Medes.
The conquests of Cyrus, who became master of the As-Syria and Babylonian Chaldea, brought a momentary triumph of Mazdaism against the Magic of the Aryan Medes, deeply penevery many Hamitic and Turanian elements. But we knows how Gaumates the Magician usurped the throne of Persia before being defeated by Darius.

The rocks of Béhistoun have preserved the lower gigantic reliefs where the latter engraved the epi-the consequences of his wars, both racial and religious.

gions! Francois Lenormant gave remarks-several pages on these struggles in his book The Magic among the Chaldeans? We refer you to that, everything by summarizing them here. The Magi, having escaped from the mas-the coronation that had accompanied the accession of Darius, found natural allies in the baby priests Ionians whose ancient sacred language, that of Accads, and the oldest rites of witchcraft were of Turanian or Turco-Finnish origin, as well as the language and religion of the proto-Medes.

The Magi entered the Court of Xerxes and of the Artaxerxes, who succeeded Darius.

These Semitized Aryan rulers had a dou-
They have a vested interest in promoting corrupting Magic: they hoped, by spreading his doctrines, to diaries between Aryan ideas and cha- ideas Mito-Semitic, cementing the diverse foundations of their immense empire. On the other hand, the old kings Nineveh and Babylon had drawn a great strength in the titles of Vicars of the Gods: the

---

1. The rocks of Behistun are in ancient Media (Persian Kurdistan). Their colossal bas-reliefs have been translated by Messrs. Oppert and Rawlinson: one finds there this crucial passage in the mouth of Darius, champion of the Aryans against the non-Aryans and avenger of Mazdaism: "The empire that had It was torn from our race, I restored it... The altars that Gau-The mage had overthrown them, I restored them as saviors. of the people... » (Lenormant and Babelon. Ancient History, vol. VI, p. 19).

2. Pages 191 to 219.

3. Ammien-Marcellin, the very precise historian who was the general chief of staff of Emperor Julian the Apostate, knew that the Median magic was very similar to Chaldean magic. (Amm.-Marce., XXIII, 6). See Francois Lenorm. La Magie chez . the Chald., pp. 214, 215.

Persian monarchs aspired to take advantage of the theocratic powers offered to them by the syncre-religious ism preached by the Magi. The latter therefore prevailed and Artaxerces Memnon cra the definitive victory of Magism over the Zo-Rotterism, that is to say, a corrupting religion on a moralizing religion, exactly like we have seen Brahmanism expelled from India Reformist Buddhism.

The masterpiece of the Magi of Media and of The allied Babylonian Kasdims aimed to blend the religious-Aryan region with Chaldean religion, in reguant Ahoura-Mazda, the supreme god of nations Aryan, in an inaccessible sky, and giving all his powers to a mediating Spirit, Mithra, whom they married to the Semitic Anahita (Anaitis or Istar-Astarte or Cybele) after divorcing this last with Tammouz (Adonis or Attis), the unfortunate god doomed throughout the ages to the worst accidents, sometimes castrated by his own wife, sometimes disemboweled by a wild boar!

Such was the end of Attis-Adonis. But it was also the birth to the glory of the resplendent Mithras, whose Mysteries later acquired an immense development, and which we will see delivered to Christianity: The Last Battles of the Old Guard Extinct secret societies.

Digitized by Google

IN GREECE

The Egyptians on one side, the peoples of Asia-On the other hand, the educators of the minors were Hellenic tribes, and Roman civilization is the younger sister of Greek civilization, which had a great influence on her.

It is therefore necessary to find the largest ones similarities between the Initiations of Greece and the Initiations from Egypt and Asia.

The Eleusinian Mysteries.

We saw the Mysteries of Isis in Egypt, Earth Goddess and protector of farmers in at the same time as the dead who were faithful to his cult: it's exactly the same roles as played Ceres in the Eleusinian Mysteries.

Among the Egyptians, Isis, the passive principle, was the Sister and wife of Osiris, the active principle. The Theo-Greek gonies also made Ceres sister of Jupiter, by whom she had Proserpine, who was abducted by Pluto. The consequences of this abduction... are the foundation of The entire story of Ceres, which, celebrated in the Mysteries, had an entirely Egyptian origin, which he did not. It will not be difficult to see, by comparing it with that of Isis taken for Earth... Herodotus, Diodorus of Sicily and all the authors of antiquity admit liden-title of these divinities. (From Sainte-Croix, of the Academy) Inscriptions and Belles-Lettres, Research on the Mysteries of Paganism, Paris, 1784, pp. 94, 95.)

Plutarch? assures us that the history of the voyages of Ceres, in her search for her daughter, does not differ.
of what was said in Egypt about Isis in search of the scattered members of Osiris. It's the same myth, arranged, transposed so to speak.
In Egypt, Herodotus, initiated into the Mysteries of Isis, saw (as we reported) the Passion of Osiris on a sacred lake (Hist., II, 171), and there he compares the Greek festivals of Ceres called Thesmophoria.
Ceres is indeed, at Eleusis, the Goddess who brings the Laws (thesmo-phore), at the same time as she is the Goddess who brings wheat (karpo-phore), and,

---

1. (In Egypt), says Herodotus, the main festival takes place in the city of Bubastis in honor of Diana; the second, in The city of Busiris, named in honor of Isis. In this city, there are which is located in the middle of the Delta, a very large temple con-
"Sacred to this goddess. In Greek, she is called Demeter..." (Herodotus, Book I, ch. rx). We can therefore clearly see the identity of the Earth Mother (Demeter) or Ceres with Isis. (AB)
See also Diodorus Siculus, Book I, chapters x1 and xm.

2. Plutarch: On Isis and Osiris, § 25.

Before her, Isis was called in Egypt "the Lady of the Bread ".

The most curious and most convincing parallels between the Mysteries of Isis and those of Ceres were done by several authors, including, in recent years, by MP Foucart, of the Institut, in two major works, which we quote further on. We refer the reader to that and we Let's summarize in a few lines the myth that serves as based on the Eleusinian Mysteries.

The Myth of Ceres.

Zeus (or Jupiter) abducts Ceres (or Demeter) who gave birth to Kore (or Proserpine). Kore is in turn abducted by Pluto, which leads in her subterranean kingdom. Ceres, distraught,
He sets out to find his daughter. During his errands,
She finds a pious welcome in Eleusis, a small town neighbor of Athens. Isocrates (4th century BC) written on this subject:

Démêter having arrived in our country when she wandered after the abduction of Korah, wanting to bear witness to his kindness to our ancestors, in reward for their good offices, good offices that only the initiated can hear.

It was shepherds who welcomed the goddess fugitive, and among them Eumolpus, ancestor of his Eleusinian pontiffs. A woman from Eleusis, Baubo, received her at her home.

---

1. Isocrates: Panegyric, 28.

She then offered him a mixed beverage (Cycaeon) which the Goddess refused because of her extreme grief.
Baubo took this refusal as an act of contempt; and, by revenge, he lifted his clothes, so as toto cover the mark of her sex. This sight did not irritate her at all.
Ceres, who immediately swallowed the drink that was offered to her.
(From Sainte-Croix, Recherches... Mystères, p. 100.)

As for the indecent gesture that cheered the grieving goddess and decided her to accept the Cyceon; he appears to be a a memory of the attitude of Egyptian women at the festival of Bubastis t. In the Ptolemaic period, the person-Baubo's visit was favorably received by the Egyptians.
look, as if they were connected to their national religion, and the figurines that represented her have been found in large numbers in the Nile Valley. (MP Foucart, Research into the origin and nature of the Mysteries

(of Eleusis, Paris, Imprimerie Nationale, 1895, p. 46.)

The myth, continuing to develop on the obscene fashion, so well characterized by the gesture of Baubo then presents the goddess indulging in her Host Celeus, king of Eleusis. An Orphic hymn He named the child born of this union Euboulos.

As in Egypt and Syria, the priests and the priestesses represented, in the Mysteries of Eleusis, the scenes of the sacred drama of which we seeno, to give a quick analysis.

Tertullian reports that the priestess who played the Ceres' role was to be forcibly removed, as had Ceres herself was there. To represent the union of the God and of the Goddess, the two sacred actors, the pre-

---

1. We have cited this curious episode from Bubastis, according to Herodotus. (II, 60.)

braid and the Hierophant! representing Zeus descended they lived in an obscure retreat. (Tertullian, Ad gent., Il, 7 and Asterius, Egkômion IMart., p. 113,B, — Foucart, Recherches. p. 48.)

In more than one Hellenic cult, adds Mr. Foucart, the union of a god and a goddess was the subject of the most grand celebrations. (Foucart, Research, p. 49).

What the Greeks had reduced here to its simplest form The expression, it was, in the Mysteries of Astarte, the countless sacred prostitutions, accumulated to imitate the divine wedding and to glorify it.

The Hierogamy or sacred marriage of Demeter and Celeus was, in turn, represented by living characters, to the great scandal of saint Gregory of Nazianzus:

"It is not in our religion," he said, "that a Korea..." is abducted, that a Demeter is wandering and stages Celeus and Triptolemus with serpents; that she She does some things and suffers from others; I have it is indeed shameful to expose the ceremonies to the light of day nocturnal initiation rituals... Eleusis knows this, too. that the witnesses of this spectacle, which we keep and We are right to remain silent. (St. Gregory of Nazaire) Oratio XXXIX, 4).

In fact, a secret cult that staged the successive rape of the goddess Demeter by the god Zeus and by King Celeus with, in the meantime, the abduction The behavior of his daughter Kore may not have been entirely

---

1. Hierophant, the head of the Eleusinian Mysteries; his name si- It means: "He who shows the sacred objects." We are speaking further away from these objects.

ement worthy of inspiring Cicero with this qualification laudatory description of the Eleusinian Mysteries: "The most fertile institution of Athens. » (De legibus, book II, ch. xiv, § 36.)

If indeed the Eleusinian rites were relatively chaste men in a very distant past, they divined itrent infinitely less when Orphism, from the in the 6th century BC, introduced itself into the The Eleusinian Mysteries.

Orphism, a method of pantheistic synthesis, Count Goblet d'Alviella tells us, came to accomplish in your Eleusinian Mysteries "what the Jacobites tried-English bites, when they layered the new Scottish degrees in Freemason organizations ques of Great Britain. Orphism concentrated its innovations in a third degree of initiation placed After the Great Mysteries, the Epoptia. (Count Goblet) d'Alviella, Belgian senator, Eleusinia, Paris, 1903, p. 89; 99; 100).

Let's mention in passing that the remarkable study of Count Goblet d'Alviella on Eleusis is all the more more interesting from the point of view of rapprochement-

4 things to do between the ancient Secret Societies and the modern ones, whose author is in Belgium one of the leaders of Freemasonry, of which he possesses the 33rd and supreme degree.

However, F.:. Gobletd' Alviella notes that at Eleusis "No detail was spared" for the viewer, in the sacred representation of "forced love" and brutal” of Zeus in the form of a bull with Demeter, and in the form of a serpent with their daughter Coré. (Cte Goblet d’Alviella, Eleusin., p. 101). | |

This passage from a modern High Initiate does not justify– Doesn't he brilliantly refute the vituperations? burning Saint Gregory of Nazianzus and of other Fathers of the Christian Church against the Turks Pities of the ancient Initiates?

Sacred Objects.

In our necessarily very brief analysis of In the Eleusinian Initiations, we have only spoken in passing through the two successive grades where it passed The Initiate, by entering the Lesser, then the Greater Mysteries, before reaching the Epoptie'. But we we have not yet said that after the representations tions of the sacred drama with which the pre– The first nights of Initiation, then came the ceremony where the "Sacred Objects" were revealed and displayed to the assembled Mystes. It is even from this cere– the august monastery from which the Hierophant derived his name, King of Mysteries.

But, if we remember the role that played The Phallus of Osiris in the Isiac Mysteries, we will not be at all surprised to hear Tertullian exclaimed about Eleusis:

All that is most holy in these Mysteries, which is hidden with such care, what I am allowed to admit to know that very late, what the ministers of religion called Epoptes, they are so ardently desired, it is the simulacrum of the virile member. (Tertullian, Adversus Va– (lentinianos.)

1. Brother Weishaupt, leader of the Illuminati of the 16th century, has resumed this initiatory rank.

In his book: The Great Mysteries of Eleusis!, Mr. Foucart, from the Institute, also emphasizes this The fact that Egyptian influence dominated at Eleusis. These are statues of Isis, he observes, that are watching over them. on the deceased in most E– burials Egypt, and the same is true of Isis, from whom we have discovered green a statuette in a woman's tomb Eleusinian, that this Greek woman had entrusted her Hello. It is therefore very difficult, said Mr. Foucart, to denying the influence of the Osirian belief on the Mysteries of Demeter. – Now, it is proven that the public worship of Demeter, like the worship of Isis, Did it involve the exhibition of the phallus? We have consequently the right to grant full claim to to say of Tertullian.

: After the male organ, here is the female organ.

At the festivals of Ceres called Thesmophoria, the Athenian women carried cakes in procession round or oval ones called "mêlloi". They were per– placed in their middle to present, says Chaussard, "the characteristic form of the feminine gender at".

Aristophanes, in his comedies, never runs out of things to say about the lewd practices attributed to women women from Athens initiated into the Mysteries of Ceres:

They would believe, said Agathon, one of his characters, that I have come to steal a part of these works from them

1. MP Foucart, Les Gr. Myst., Paris, Imprim. Nationale, 1900, p. 152.

2. Cte Goblet d’Alviella, Eleusinia, Paris, 1903, p. 53.

3. Chaussard, Fêtes et Courtisanes de la Grèce, Paris, 1801, p. 275.

at night and in this way to enjoy the pleasures of Venus which belongs only to their sex'.

In his work: On the Cult of the Phallus..., the F... J.-A. Dulaure adds, according to Castellanus (From Festis Græcorum, Eleusinia, p. 143-144):

Theodoret (bishop in Palestine) said that one venerates- would also, in the secret orgies of Eleusis, the image of the female sex.

It's the same obscene ritual we saw perpetuated among the Druze, since the times when the The mountains of Lebanon were the scene of the Pros- Sacred institutions in honor of Astoreth.

With such objects of worship, there is no It is astonishing that, near the Hierophant, the Dadou- that and of the Hieroceryx?, who were the chiefs of Mysteries, there were Initiates called Hierophantides, whose admission included a detail singular:

They were led by a Priestess, drawn from the fa- a thousand of the Phileides, whose job was to initiate the people of her sex, forced to be naked in this ceremony; which must have caused a great deal of disorder, as Saint Epiphanius seems to suggest? (From Saint-Croix, Rech. Myst., p. 149.)

1. Cited by Chaussard. Fêtes, etc., p. 278.

2. It is with laughable satisfaction that some historians Freemasons find a resemblance between the functions of these High Initiates and the no less august functions of the Venerable Brother (Fr.:. Athirsatha), of the Orator Brother and of the Terrible in Masonic Lodges!

3. S. Epiph.,Advers Haeres, .liv IlI, ed. Peter, t.1, p. 1093.

But we would never finish if we had to enumerate- to destroy everything that argues against favorable opinion that Cicero expressed regarding the Mysteries of Eleusis: let's look for what, outside of these multiple obscenities, may well have inspired his praise.

The promises from beyond the grave at Eleusis.

Certainly, the concept of the Afterlife is the one that, In Cicero's eyes, it ennobles the Eleusinian Mysteries. sis. It is she who makes him-him, from an elevation Superior morality for its time — regarding flaws Athenian Mysteries.

If there is indeed one point of history absolutely acquired, it is indeed the borrowing, made by the Greeks, of the doctrines of the afterlife adopted since centuries by the Egyptians.

The belief in the second life of the greedy Manes Bloodlines are attested among all Asian peoples. by the very existence of libations and sacrifices in the honor of the dead.

Throughout antiquity, writes Mr. Tiele of Leiden, the Mysteries have always been linked to immortality. (Review) from the History of Religions, Annals of the Guimet Museum, 1881, vol. III, p. 189.)

And Mr. Tiele adds that the cult of the Souls of The dead and the spirits of nature were always joined to the cult of the forces of nature;— we find necromancy, the, brought together in a single bundle, Spiritualist magic and naturalist religions, con-

-ment to our general thesis.

Diodorus Siculus (I, 29) and the Egyptian annalists-
They were already writing in the time of the Ptolemies that the Athenians had directly borrowed their Mysteries of Egypt; the documentary evidence
We are provided with some of this information by certain gold flakes.
found in the tombs of Magna Graecia:
Inscriptions are engraved on it, intended to guide
The Dead Man on his subterranean pilgrimage. MP Foucart? refers to some very curious monuments of this Order: These are blades discovered in 1880 in the tombs of Petilia (Greek inscription, Sicily) and Italy, 638.) “Take the right, avoid the spring
"bad," said the talisman; then one reads the words there-those to address to the gods of the underworld when we arrived in their presence. In short, the Ritual of the Dead that we-would bury with the mummies of Egyptian princes for ensuring their safety, was, as we know, reduced to some hasty formulas for the mummies of the common: the Greeks further simplified and reduced-rent the Egyptian Book of the Dead to a simple amulet. But the idea of survival is still there.

all-powerful in the Eleusinian Mysteries as in the Isiac Mysteries. In Egypt, The Initiate had to be true in voice (Ma-khroou) to to pronounce the sacramental melodies destined born to ensure its passage through perils from beyond the grave; he must be at Eleusis for that.
well-spoken, as expressed by the ancestor's name priests of Ceres, Eumolpos. (We did it (See the chapter on the Mysteries of Isis.)

---

1. See Foucart, Les Grands Myst., p. 7.
2. Foucart, Recherches....Eleusis, pp. 67-72.

These sacramental chants, imported from Egypt
In Greece, it was the "Secret Words" that the Hierophant taught the Initiates after he had... had solemnly displayed the Sacred Objects.
These incantation formulas were necessary for them, just like in Egypt, if they wanted, after their death, to reach the abode of the Goddess, queen of Manes.

Magic at Eleusis.

Amulets and incantations in the Greek Mysteries as in the Egyptian Mysteries, it is always Magic. The Brother-Goblet of Alviella does very well-to observe that the object of the Mysteries is always-same days:

> To put, he said, the Initiates in contact with the power > superhuman and reveal secrets that allow them to-> attempt to control destiny. (M. Goblet d'Alv., > Eleusin, p. 33).

MP Foucart, for his part, writes that for the ancient Greeks, as with all prithe phenomena were the acts of being invisible capable of demonstrating their power and their wishes.

The Greek had the greatest interest in con-to be born, to discover the means of reconciling their favor or to appease their anger. Experience has taught through what sacrifices, through what ceremonies can one achieve this?
would succeed. (MP Foucart, Recherches... p. 41).

It was from Demeter herself, adds Mr. Foucart, which the Eumolpids claimed to have at Pori-

Q

Gine received their privileges, secrets, and objects sacred (!) whose knowledge ensured happiness in the future life.

Similarly (and modern times give us here a key point of convergence with the ancient times), likewise they are "strange beingsges, outside of human nature' » which dicthe Martinists of the 18th century were teachings wonderful events, in sessions from which we we will see the Initiates of Paris emerge, some of them crazy terror, the others drunk with enthusiasm.

Now, terror, a pious enthusiasm, a sereluminous clarity, such were the impressions that the followers of the Secret Society of Eleusis, according to all the oraancient authors °.

Furthermore, let us note that neither the sight of the wedding of Demeter with Zeus-bull or Zeus-serpent, nor the exhibition of the Sacred Objects that we know, - nil'audition of the Secret Words, so august that we imagined them, are hardly capable of imto put deep pressure on such refined men born, as supremely intelligent as they were contemporaries of Apelles and Phidias, and

---

1. Dr. Papus; Martinés de Pasqually, his life, his practices giques, p. 150. |

2. Thus the rhetorician Aristides exclaims: “Eleusis is a sanctuary common to all the earth, and of all things divine gifts that men possess, it is both the one who which provokes the most chills and which gives the most se“curity”. (Arist. Eleus, p. 256).

In his Recherches... (p. 55), Mr. Foucart cites an inscription tion which enthusiastically praises the death of the initiate as a gain.

of these amazing architects who have covered the Greece of imperishable masterpieces, and of these marvelous poets and playwrights, equaled by sometimes since, but never surpassed.

Pushing to the extreme (and only just) the adadmiration for an amazing civilization such as Greek civilization and then consider the creators and beneficiaries of this civilization like the poor in spirit, lacking in intellect. inferior to get excited about ceremonies whose sole purpose would be the recitationtion of old formulas and the view of emblems more or less crude—wouldn't that be a Strange inconsistency?

It therefore seems useful to us if we want to go to the very heart of the Eleusinian Mysteries, to consider the hypothesis of high-level Spiri- prestige intoxicating ism among the Greek Initiates, several centuries before our era, like other prestiges of of the same nature intoxicated the Parisian Initiates of Martinism, two thousand years later, at to say from the annals of the Martinists themselves.

Belief in the visible manifestations of The deities honored in their Mysteries were at sure to be deeply rooted in the heart of Greeks. A very interesting discovery of a A German scientist provided some two years ago. One more piece of evidence:

Professor Herzog, from Göttingen, in pursuitbefore excavations in the ruins of the Asklepeion of Kos, discovered a large historical inscription of great importance. It is a decree of the Coens, voted at the moment they received the news that the The Gauls had suffered a defeat before Delphi, in November 279. Cos sends deputies to the festival of Pythia to offer a magnificent sacrifice in her name _to the god of Delphi who had appeared in person to to repel the invaders.

(Académie des Inscriptions et Belles-Lettres, account (Reported... Session of December 23, 1903, Paris, p. 649.)

The Initiate Plutarch speaks of the "Apparitions" divine" which, at Eleusis, succeeded for the recipenendaire to the mortal fears that assailed him First of all. How can we not compare them in a... part to the god of Delphi who appeared in person for to repel the Gauls, and on the other hand to "the Appa"Rition" which, as we shall see, dictated its instructions to F. Willermoz, the high-ranking Initiate from Lyon, some fifteen hundred years after Plutarch.

In any case, if we saw in the Mysteries Eleusinian Fathers, many obscenities, we have Enough said to demonstrate that Magic, moreover, It was flowing in at full capacity.

Let us add that many philosophers and orators Greek scholars rose up against the Mysteries and Let us quote Diogenes in passing: "Pataecion," he said, This notorious thief obtained Initiation; EpamiNondas and Agesilaus never asked for it! Socrates, for his part, constantly refused to to initiate, saying:

"If the Mysteries are bad, I will not feed not to prevent me from declaring them as such to those who do not are not initiated, in order to exclude them; — if they

---

1. Plutarch, Didot Edition, vol. V, p. 9.

are good, on the contrary, I will hasten, by humanity, to make them known to everyone.” (See F.-Lenoir, La Franche-Mac. restored to its true origin, p. 87).

Similarly today, if the work of moderns Initiates of the Lodges are good, why their Secret ritualistic, renewed from the Secrets of the Sorcerers of the past? Why don't they make it known to Everyone needs the recipe for their orvietan? Why? Are they hiding?

The Mysteries of Bacchus.

The identity of Osiris and Bacchus is attested by Plutarch the Initiate!; and also several centuries before Plutarch, via Herodotus:

Ceres and Bacchus, according to the Egyptians, have the power-sovereign power in the underworld. (Herod. 1. II, ch. CXxlI1) ... Osiris, who, according to the Egyptians, is the same than Bacchus. (Book II, Chapter XI.)

There is therefore an original kinship between the MysTheories of Ceres and the Mysteries of Bacchus or Dionysus. But, in these latter, the appearance at the same time voluptuous and bloody is infinitely more accentuated only in the first ones: that's what the Dionysian mysteries have undergone to a very increased the influence of Asian rites which have

---

1. "This identity of Osiris and Bacchus, which must be better educated than you, Cléa, since you preside over the Thyades of Delphi, since your father and mother were initiated into the Mysteries of Osiris?... » (On Isis and Osiris, ch. 35. Translated. Bétolaud, Paris, 1870, p. 254).

shared, with those who came from the banks of the Nile, the edureligious cation of Greece.

Dionysus or Bacchus was the phallus (M. Goblet d'Alv. Eleusin, p. 85).

He was also, like Tammuz-Adonis, the universal flowering (M. Goblet d'Alv., Id. p. 86.

But, to the sensual ceremonies intended for honoring the phallus, the Dionysian Mysteries mixed blood, and this, in a time when the Greek civilization was at its peak, since

"one of the few human sacrifices that has been confessed to"
Historical Greece, is the immolation, by Themistocles,
"In 480, three young men were sent to Dionysus Ounestés?"
(M. Goblet d'Alv., Eleus., p. 87).

Here is yet another Dionysian rite, both cruel and obscene; moreover, it has persisted to this day.
days, in some sadistic erotomaniacs:

In Arcadia, Dionysus (or Bacchus) still has a festival or the blood of women whipped excessively flows on his altar. (Pausanias, VIII, 23. — Quoted by Gustave Tridon, a former member of the Paris Commune, in his book: On Jewish Molochism, Brussels, 1884, p. 25).

In Orphism, this religious synthesis which introduced himself into the Eleusinian Mysteries, and who

1. F. Goblet d'Alviella relies on the passage from Dio-Dore of Sicily that we have mentioned. The one where the historian
The Greek said that his compatriots borrowed from the Egyptians the Mysteries of Bacchus with the idol of the phallus identical to Osiris' phallus, worshipped on the banks of the Nile.

2. Plutarch. Life of Themistocles, ch. xmi. Compare Agza-Memnon sacrificing his own daughter Iphigenia, while Meneias steals three children from Egypt to sacrifice them to the God of Seas (AB)

domina in Greece more than five hundred years before
In our era, Dionysus became synonymous with Zeus, with Pluto (Hades), with the Sun (Apollo), and that was always the same God-Nature, the God of Life Universal!, the God of the Mysteries of Sabazios in Thrace and Phrygia, Mysteries particularly obscene and bloodthirsty. We will not describe them.
in particular, because they are entirely similar to all the Dionysian (or Bacchanalian) Mysteries celebrated throughout the ancient world.

1. M. Goblet d'Alviella, Eleusinia, pp. 93, 97.— It is noteworthy-that which we see constantly uniting, in the Mysteries
In antiquity, the Phallus and the Sun served as emblems and images.
of the same male and fertilizing principle (AB).

VI
IN THE WEST

The Bacchanalia in Rome.

The Romans put up a long resistance to the contagion of physical and mental illnesses, that were propagated by the Eastern Secret Societies
— these Congregations of religions of blood and of debauchery — with their sorcery and their pros-various situations.

If the Roman people made up for it later, and with frenzy, from his prolonged continence, by wallowing
In all the filth, one can say that he must of having conquered the world's empire through his austerity first, when he was the only one to have kept his its vigor intact, amidst agitated nations by vices, exhausted (like Carthage) by the Ritual crimes that were carried out in honor of the purest Moloch of their blood.

Two centuries before our era, however, the inde-

Dionysian festivals in Greece had almost been... to plant in Rome, under the name of Bacchanalia.

Livy left us a shocking picture of this attempt, fortunately aborted for the
The grandeur of Rome. In his book, on the Divinities Generative, F.*. Dulaure analyzes in these terms the long account of the Latin historian:

The Mysteries of Bacchus were celebrated in Rome in the temple of this god and in the sacred grove called Simila, located near the Tiber... Introduced by priests in underground locations, the young initiate found himself delivered to their brutality. Horrible screams and the sound of several instruments, such as cymbals and drums, served to stifle the cries of violence. felt it could tear him away.

The excesses of the table where wine flowed in abundance incited them to other excesses that the night encouraged by its darkness. All ages, all genders were indistinguishable. Each person satisfied the taste to which they were inclined; All modesty was banished; all kinds of lust, Even those whom nature condemns defiled the temple. ple of the divinity t. |

If a few young initiates testified to the shame For so much horror, they offered resistance to these libertine priests, or even if they acquitted themselves with negligence in what was required of them, they were sacrificed, and fearing their indiscretions, we Their lives were taken... The priests justified it in public their disappearance, saying that the god, angered, was the perpetrator of this kidnapping...

Crimes of a different kind were being plotted in these nighttime gatherings. Poisons were prepared there, they

1. Plura virorum inter sese, quam feeminarum, esse stupra.

there were denunciations and false testimonies; one They were forging wills; they were plotting assassinations.

It included initiates from all classes, and even Romans of the first rank; Their number was immense. It was no longer a society, It was an entire people who shared in these disorders. abominable and even conspired against the State. (F.:. Dulaure, des Divin ilés Génératrices, Paris, 1805, p. 182-185).

Nothing is missing from this picture: debauchery, sodomy-Murder, assassination and... denunciation.

In a recent, highly noticeable poster (addressed (to Senator Berthelot, friend of the government) The "Popular Liberal Action" very justly qualified The denunciation of pagan vice. The denunciation, in Indeed, it flourished quite naturally on the manure of the Ancient Secret Societies. We only have to... open your eyes to see that the manure of France-Modern masonry is just as conducive to its blossoming under the expert hands of Brothers André, Berteaux and Vadécard.

Thanks to the energy of the consul Posthumius, the The contagion was promptly stopped: Male initiates and females, sodomites and tribades, informers, false-Saires and assassins, all these fine people were vigorous fortunately pursued and punished for his crimes of of any kind.

Livy says that the number was estimated at seven thousand. The number of Initiates of both sexes. They were, in large numbers number, condemned to death i.

The Freemasons, our modern-day Initiates, boast of saving the Republic every morning

1. Livy, ed. Lemaire, book XXXIX, chapter VIII, vol. VII, pp. 334-350.

French. The ancient Romans did not want any Initiated into the Mysteries of Bacchus to save their Republic: she found herself well in their clear-clairvoyance |

Some Comparisons.

While the Romans proscribed energetic-how the depraved Initiates who corrupted the nations to enslave them, some Greek tyrants On the contrary, they favored it with all their power. That's as well as in 514 BC, Hippias and Hippar– that, sons of the tyrant Pisistratus, instituted 'in Athens of public feasts where, to spread the debauchery among the people in order to better dominate them

They mingled the courters with the mothers of families.
sanes'. It was likewise corruption that served as means of rule, to the heads of the High Sale, during the years when Secret Societies were preparing the various revolutionary anarchist movements tionnaire which exploded in 1848.

On the other hand, it is also necessary to bring together the sorcerers of Eleusis, the sectarians of the Hetairies which we discussed in our Foreword.
The rule of the Thirty Tyrants, we have said, was supported by the Secret Societies appe– Hetairies. Now, the scholar Mr. Foucart writes that – by one of these transactions as it inter– comes after struggles between two powerful parties roughly equal – the privileges that reserved

---

1. Pierre Dufour, History of Prostitution, Brussels, 1851. t. I, p. 106.

to the Eumolpids (descendants of Eumolpus) the direction of the Eleusinian Mysteries, the preparation and the reception of the Recipients at the Initiation, their rights were confirmed after the fall of the Thirty Tyrants. And the convention that settled this agreement, Mr. Foucard adds, an agreement was reached between the supporters of the Thirty refugees at Eleusis and the Athenians freed– res of their domination! 3

There was therefore a close alliance, an intimate blending between the odious, corrupting tyrants of Athens and the descendants of the Eleusinian Sorcerers, to whom Demeter herself had taught the secrets divine beings whose bizarre nature we know!

Human sacrifice in ancient Europe.

As in almost all Secret Societies
Your Asians, here, in Europe, is the ritual outpouring human blood, associated with magic and all Debauchery: the great god of Canaan–Moloch with a bull's head, the red–hot iron idol, the eater of human flesh – defiled by its hideous holo– Caustes: Crete, Greece and all its islands, Italy, Gaul, etc.

The religion of Phoenicia was spread far and wide from a very distant era by navigators from Sidon and Tyre... In Crete, the child–devouring Minotaur and the flaming bronze giant, called Talos, who con–
It is said that the foreigners who landed on the island were sumait.

---

1. MP Foucard, of the Institute, The Great Mysteries of Eleusis, Paris, 1900, p. 3.

was none other than Baal–Moloch. Cyprus and Cythera had received from the Sidonians the worship of the nature goddess, of Astoreth, who, having become Aphrodite, was carried from the throughout Greece, with the nicknames of Cypris and Cytherea. In Rhodes, the Sun had its colossal statue, and Saturn claimed it, like the Phoenician Baal to whom He had been assimilated by the Greeks, human victims
nes. The Cabiri of Lemnos, Imbros and Samothrace were also linked, in some respects, to the system religious of the Canaanites. (Lenorm. and Babelon, Hist.
(previously vol. VI, pp. 576–579).

According to Strabo, the Alban Scythians killed every year with spear blows, on the altar of Astarfé, a young a girl fattened beforehand so that the sacrifice would be more pleasing to the goddess. (Dr. A. Corre: Murder and Cannibalism) ritualism, p. 13.)

In his Abstinence from the Flesh, Porphyry, the neo–platonist occultist, devotes several chapters on human sacrifices:

Even today, he said, in Arcadia, at the festivals of

In Lupercalia and Carthage, men were sacrificed in At certain times of the year (ch. xxvii.) Sacrifices were made to Rhodes, a man to Saturn on the 6th of the month, Metagectmon (July). In Salamis, a man was sacrificed pen-during the month called Aphrodisium by the Cypriots (ch. Liv). On the island of Chios and at Teuedos, sacrifices were made a man to Bacchus the Cruel and they put him in pieces... The Lacedaemonians sacrificed a man to the The god Mars (ch. Lv). In Crete, formerly, the Curetes sacrificing children to Saturn... I say nothing nor of the Thracians or the Scythians, nor how the Athenians killed Erechtheus' daughter... Who doesn't know that...

1. That is, between 250 and 300 AD — The Tyrian Porphyry apppelait in Phoenician language Melek (The King).

sentiment in Rome itself, at the festival of Jupiter Latialis, one Is a man being sacrificed? (Porphyry: On Abstinence. 1. II, ch. LVI).

In Rome (after the Cannes disaster and as we feared Hannibal's arrival), to appease the gods by an extraordinary immolation, they buried alive a A Gaul and a Gaulish woman, a Greek man and a Greek woman in the middle of... the location of the Cattle Market... Livy adds that the The place where this sacrifice was offered was an enclosure surrounding-a path of stones where the blood of the victims had already flowed human, no doubt alluding to the ancient Immolations of the Saturnian era. (JJ Ampère, of (French Academy: Roman History in Rome, vol. III, p. 89.)

Always Saturn, always the Moloch of PheNice! It's 4, a solar and fiery god like Moloch — Elah-Gabal or the Lord of Fire! — that Yinfame Emperor Heliogabalus, Supreme Initiate of Oriental mysteries, immolation of chosen children, said Lampride, in the noblest families of Italy, Heliogabalus interrogated their entrails and he searched the belly of the victims according to the rite of his nation. (Lamp. Heliogab., ch. viii).

Always the human sacrifice that fanatics 'Semito-Chanaian secret societies propaThey govern throughout the Old World!

The Druids.

It is still to eastern penetrations that Many authors attribute the use of sacrifices humans among the Gauls. The modern Initiate who

1. See Francois Lenormant, after Friedrich Delitsch

(Annals of the Guimet Museum, Review of the History of Religions, vol. 11, pp. 310, 322.)

was proclaimed by the Grand Orient of France The "Sacred Author" of Freemasonry, the F.-. Ragon writes — according to Dionysius the African, he says — that “the Druids of Brittany, who held their religion of Egypt, celebrated the orgies of Bacchus!

F.-. Ragon also wrote, on the account of the Druids and based on the data more fanciful, things that would be admirable-They were beautiful if they were believable. But if we go back to the historical sources worthy to be consulted, we see that Antiquity has only one voice on despotism without the restraint exerted around her by this class of men (the druids) custodians of all knowledge, authors or interpretes of all law, both divine and human; nothing nothing escaped their notice; ceremonies, sacrifices,

They regulated all aspects of public worship and private devotions. things with an authority that met no resistance nor limits. (Msr Freppel, Saint Irénée, Far, 1870, pp. 35, 36).

It's understandable that the memory of the tyranny of fries... dat exalt the soul of Brother Ragon, eager to see similar domination in the hands of his Very

Dear Brothers of the Grand Orient of France! Com–
Well, indeed, it would be pleasing to the Freemasons.
to restore 4 their profit a regime like that _ as described by F. Clavel:

> The leaders of the Druidic Initiation were divided into > three classes: the vacies, repositories of dogmas se– > creeds, priests and judges; the bards who sang the

---

1. F... Ragon, Philosophical Course... p. 62.

> hymns in religious ceremonies; the eubages which > presided over the civil government. (F. Clavel, His– > Picturesque history of Freemasonry, Paris, 1843,
> p. 324). |

To see at the head of all our courts F.'. Ma– Gnaud, what a dream! See at the French Academy the Bard of the Lodges, F.:. Maxime Lecomte, the senator– Freemason singer who sang about the Holy Virgin,
How sweet that would be to the souls of the Brothers!
don't talk about the Lodges' eubages: we know– are sufficiently our deputies, senators and presidents Freemasons.

> As in Egypt, continues Brother Clavel, the druids > associated the subjects with the priesthood through an initiation > which seemed suitable to them... The Edda, sacred book of > Scandinavians provides valuable information on > The (Druidic) Initiation... The Edda begins with a > song entitled "The Prestiges of Har" and which con– > obviously includes a description of the ceremonies usi– > tés for the reception of a layperson. The recipient > His name is Gylfe, meaning Wolf or initiate. (Clavel, > Hist. pittor., p. 324).

In this regard, let us recall that the mask with a head of |
The jackal was one of the signs of Initiation in Egypt.
The Wolf (Cub, Lowton of the Masonic Lodges) ques) is also found in the interpretative Eddas tées by Richard Wagner for whom the race of gods – or friends of the gods – is that of the Velses, "son of Wolf the Valiant".

But the particularly odious side of the tyrant– denies the druids – these clerics in the truest sense of the word since they absorbed into themselves all the pou– religious, civil and judicial views – which should have Stop all the dithyrambs about Masonic lyres granted in their honor, that is, they were as atrociously bloodthirsty as the priests of Moloch in Palestine and Carthage, or that the sor– sacrificial priests of the kings of Dahomey.

> Without a doubt, all the cults of pagan antiquity > these massacres of men were more or less consecrated > that Christianity alone was able to abolish irrevocably;
> I would even add that at the heart of this monstrous > by mistake, we find a major idea altered and distorted– > tie, that of the necessity of a shedding of human blood > to appease divine justice; but nowhere abuse
> This belief has produced no more deplorable consequences.
> sequences that among the ancient Gauls...
>
> In the absence of criminals, Caesar said, the sacrificial druids–
> They are killing innocent people... There are hundreds of men.
> that is enclosed in a wicker colossus and which disappears–
> 'felt in torrents of flames and smoke'. Also > the Romans themselves, so unscrupulous indeed
> They remained astonished by the lack of respect for human life.
> faced with these killings of men carried out in the name of the > religion. Druidism seemed inhumane even to > Tiberius and Claudius, those shameless despots who > They made a game of the lives of their fellow human beings... And the > bloody festivals celebrated by the druidesses of > Lena's pile? And this hideous method of divination that con– > was trying to make predictions from the pose the

---

1. "They erect colossal statues of horrifying size, to members of interwoven wicker: they fill them with men whom they "shine while alive." (Caesar: Gallic Wars, Book VI.)

2. In his Geography, Strabo, a contemporary of Caesar, says that, on an island near Vannes, the Gallic women ce-celebrated rites similar to the cult of Proserpine, at Samoa Thracian. (Translated by Tardieu, vol. I, p. 329).

victim of convulsions in his limbs after falling of the color and abundance of her blood! (Msr Freppel, Saint Irenaeus, p. 47, 48).

Before erasing from our eyes these visions of killing Let us observe, in the words of Bishop Freppel, that The cruelty of the ancient Initiates is a matter of more or less: thus, at the time when Caesar was feigning indignation at the human sacrifices offered by the Druids (and while he himself was Great-Pontiff!) Rome witnessed the immolation of two men, including They nailed their heads to the gates of the Regia because that in that year legionnaires had revolted; It was to atone for this crime against the Fatherland that this human sacrifice replaced the traditional immo-Breeding of a horse in October.

“Augustus, after the capture of Perugia, made immo-Three hundred people on the altar of the divine Jules II, »

Thus, in the "Saturnian" era as said J.-J. Ampère, that is to say during the domina-The pirates of Tyr personified in their god Moloch or Saturn — all the peoples of the shores Mediterraneans had succumbed to the allure of religion cruel preached by the sorcerers of Canaan, san-lewd and obscene recruiters of the Societies initiatory crests.

1. M. JA. Hild (Bull. of the Faculty of Letters of Poitiers, Paris, 1889, p. 128), after Dio Cassius, 68; 14 and 24.

2. M. JA. Hild, Bull. Poitiers, p.128, according to Suetonius (vint, 15). |

VII

THE ANCIENT MYSTERIES OF THE COALITION

Our review of old Secret Societies, which encompassed the high pagan priesthoods with their Third Orders is almost finished. We will attend this show now: the concentration-animation of the moral, civil and political forces of all the ancient Mysteries, united to fight. against nascent Christianity.

The Secret Society which, at the twilight of the Paganism, played the role in this concentration 'most important (it was the supreme reserve!) was that of the Mithraic Initiates.

The Mysteries of Mithras.

In our chapter on the Magi of Iran, we have begun the study of the Mysteries of Mithras and we said the mixture of Aryan myths and Turanians who formed them. The Spirit of the Sun — Mid-

Thra — the mediator between men and the god Ahoura-Mazda, supreme leader of the Aryans, was associated under Artaxerces Memnon to the impure goddess Ana-Hita (or Astoreth-Mylitta), by the Magi whom we we said, deeply imbued with mystical ideas dear to the Turanian Proto-Medes, these ancient parents of the Chaldean Accads. Their syncretism This preluded the final syncretism that we will see-further on, gather in a single basin all the garbage of the Pagan Mysteries.

François Lenormant' showed these Magi pene-entering the court of Artaxerces Memnon and corrupting-Pantla pure religion of the Cyrus and Darius in order to to serve the despotism of the new king, whom they gagnérent en-s'effort de passer un a divine emanation.

The kings and emperors who later usurped retain the moral authority of religion to conmelt – 4 their profit and to the great detriment of their people – religious power with the civil power, simply lay down in bed prepared at Artaxerces Memnon by the sacrificial Magi the bequests that spread the Mysteries of Mithras.

It is remarkable to note that the unity and the – continuity of the doctrine of Secret Societies is perfect in this respect, throughout the ages. Two examples-ples, by the way: the Greeks of Byzantium reject the Pope's light spiritual yoke – but it is to pass over the pass the yoke of these despots of Late Roman Empire, both "Autocrats" and theologians, whose current Czars proceed as suve-

1. Franc. Lenorm. Magic among the Chaldeans, pp. 191–215.

the rains of the bodies and souls of their subjects. The Freemasons break the benign scepter of a Louis XVI, – but it is to erect as a throne a new power imposed on a terrorized France the Holy Guillotine, dripping with blood, as well as a altar of Moloch, with the Goddess Reason and "Being" Supreme" for successive deities of a jealous State religion.

Mr. Franz Cumont, professor at the University of Gand, is the scholar who has most thoroughly explored the Mysteries of Mithras.

Up to Artaxerces Memnon, he writes, Ahura Mazda is named alone; "the other gods" are honored collectively after him. Since this king, the name of the Being Supreme is followed by two others, Anaita and Mithra... The Mysteries of Mithras and Magna Mater are stilldays remained associated in the West, as already in Susa and at Persepolis. (MF Cumont, Texts and Figurative Monuments) relating to the Mysteries of Mithras, Brussels, 1899, vol. I, p. 5).

For his part, Mr. Gasquet, Rector of the University from Nancy, gave a very interesting study of the Same Mysteries. We saw Darius crush The Magi and to restore pure Zoroastrianism. Their "On the other hand," writes Mr. Gasquet, "it didn't take long."

It probably came from harem influences if powerful women in the Eastern monarchies. The wife of Xerxes, Amestris, is entirely devoted to magic. She sacrifices to infernal deities and has them buried alive nine pairs of boys and girls, belonging to the

1. Cybele, the Great Mother, the Mother of the Gods, the wife of Attis, is the same as Anaitis–Astarte, lover of Tammuz-Adonis (AB)

the largest families of Persia, to prepare the Success of the expedition against Greece. Such a sacrifice expiatory sacrifice is consumed on the banks of the Strymon, at during the march of the armies of the Great King...

... Artaxerces, the first, imposed on the adoration of his subjects, and drew up 4 Susa, 4 Ecbatana, Babylon and justthat in Damascus and Sardis, the statues of the new couple (Mithra and Andhita), designed on the model of the couple-Babylonian figures of Ishtar, Chaldean Aphrodite and of Marduk, the sun god and demiurge. At their temples, which still existed in the time of the Seleucids, he allocated immense revenues and he attached to the service of the goddess of thousands of hierodules of both sexes, devoted to sacred prostitution. (M. Gasquet, Essay) on... Mithra, Paris, 1898, pp. 25, 26).

The "clericalism" of the Brahmins and the ancients Median Magi with Gaumates, the false Smerdis had consisted of the power of a priestly caste-absorbent tale, which in fact subordinated authority civil authority to religious authority. But, under the influence From the courtly Magi of Artaxerces, we saw the birth what has since been called "regalism": fallen from their theocratic reign, these Magi became (serviliter pro dominatione!) the slaves of power civil see in which they tried to show to the people the incarnation of divinity.

I note in passing that Secret Societies ancient and modern have constantly practiced sometimes one, sometimes the other of these mixtures of powers whose results were also hateful: never, on the contrary, the Catholic Church did not claim to be the first; she always has rejected the second one.

The Mysteries of Mithras, widespread throughout the empire Romans are the direct heirs of Mazdaism, such as that it was practiced under the last Achaemenid kings! (MF Cumont, Texts, etc... Mithra, t. I, p. 11).

It is a proven fact that this occurred after the conquests of Alexander in Asia and the moral ferment and religious that resulted from the mixing of the Greeks with The Orientals, that Mithraism took its form definitive. The obscene Anahita was set aside; a profound reform rigorously excluded women Mysteries of Mithras which, in the centuries of at their peak at least, therefore they do not present the Human sacrifices, nor the immoralities that we We have observed this in so many other Secret Societies: They are content, as we shall see, to be imbued of the most outrageous and insane magic.

The Myth of Mithras.

The core of the myth that serves as the basis for the Mys–Mithraic Wars is the duel of Mithras and the bull, the first living being created by Ormuzd (Ahura Mazda). Mithras seizes the bull and wants to mount it; he is carried away at the furious gallop of the quadruped, and dragged on the ground while holding it by the horns. The bull, exhausted from its run, collapses Finally.

His victor then seized him by the paws behind him, he leads him backwards into the cave which

---

1. That is to say, as the Magi combined, kneaded with documents foreign elements to pure Aryanism. (AB).

served as a dwelling, across a road strewn with obstacles tackles... This arduous "Crossing" of Mithras was which became an allegory of human trials (F. Cumount, Texts, etc... Mithra, t. I, p. 305).

But the bull escapes, and the Sun sends the Raven, his messenger, to carry to Mithras the order of kill the fugitive. Mithra pursues him, catches him, and obeys–reluctantly sacrifices the bull to the Sun essential.

From the victim's body sprang all the herbs... From its spinal cord sprouted wheat, which provides nourishment ritual, and from his blood, the vine that produces the beverage Sacred of the Mysteries. The evil spirit tried in vain to cast against the dying animal, its vile creatures... The scorpion, the ant, the snake tried in vain to devour the genitals and drink the blood of prolific quadruped. The bull's semen, repicked and purified by the Moon, produced all the species of useful animals... (F. Cumont, Id... t. I, p. 305). |

Such is the fantastic allegory imagined in the daydreams of a primitively pastoral people to explain the creation of the world, and preserved through the centuries to serve devout women editions of the Mysts of Mithras. But we would be wrong to reserve our mockery to the Mithraics for their faith in this legend ridiculous, since we see the Initiates modern people are exalted by Masonic Mysteries the soul at the memory of Hiram's love for Balkis, Queen of Sheba, and jump gravely on one foot The other, when they step over, in Master's Attire, the tomb where Hiram's assassins buried his corpse.

All these symbols have exactly the same value.

Mithraic Freemasonry did not have thirty-three degrees like Freemasonry modern; it was content with seven e- grades Meres by Saint Jerome in his letter cvir to Leta. The recipient first became Raven, in the honor of the celestial messenger sent by the Sun to Mithras; then Occult; then Soldier; next Lion, Persia and Courier of the Sun, before reaching to the supreme degree of Father.

The Persian wore an oriental costume and styled his hair made from the Phrygian cap that was attributed to Mithras. It was to these rites that, in 1776, Brother Weishaupt... borrowed the cap of his Epopte, who had become, a few years later, the civic cap of Jacobin terrorists.

If, at the dawn of the Revolution, F.-. Cagliostro and The Martinist Freemasons filled France with unhealthy publicity surrounding their sorceryleries — no doubt abundantly mixed with mystifications, like all spi- operations rites — the same was true under the reign of the ancient Mithraic Secret Society: more than any other In other words, she was indeed imbued with magic.

1. We owe Tertullian some information about the Receptions of the Miles (the Soldier). (De Coronä, chap. 15). The Mystery, the winner of the trials, must refuse the crown which She is presented to him on a sword... and replies: "Mithra is my only crown." (M. Gasquet, Essay... p. 72). The F.-. WeisHaupt copied this rite, just as he copied the Phrygian cap from Persian grade. (AB)

Magic in the Mysteries of Mithras.

Chaldean demonology and astrology and Medinans imbued their doctrines with afRims the Mithraic beliefs.

In the cult of Mithras, writes Mr. Cumont, one finds Ahrimonius-Pluto coupled to a female consort nine... It was Hecate... identified with Proserpine'... Hecate is, par excellence, the goddess of enchantments. She makes appear before those who mention them, the souls of the dead; it is to them that one addresses oneself first and foremost in magical ceremonies and incantations... The Initiates (of Mithras) also possess the means to su- to bend demons to their will using formulas appropriate and to transform them through incantations as docile servants. (Minutius Felix, Octav. 26, IT). This theory made it possible to justify all practices superstitious and the followers of Mithras were not less 'indulgent in these than the Persian clergy to whom Magic owes it all to its name. (Cumont, Texts... Mithra, t. I. p. 141-142). |

In Mithraic beliefs, the position of planets, their reciprocal relationships, and their energies at any given moment variables produce the series of phenomenaearthly matters. Astrology, whose postulates are dogmas, is certainly partly indebted to his success in Mithraic propaganda, and this is

1. Proserpine or Kore, daughter of Ceres and Demeter, which exexplains the final syncretism of the Eleusinian Mysteries and of Mithras, — and the High Priest of Mithras becoming Hierophante at Eleusis, when the Eumolpidae family had Extinct. See further on this subject. (AB)

therefore also partly responsible for the triumph in the West tooth of this pseudoscience with its train of errors and terrors... |

Necromancy, belief in the evil eye and to talismans, curses and incantations, all the childish or harmful aberrations of paganism ancient times, they justified themselves by the role assigned to the demons... One can address the Persian Mysteries serious reproach for having excused, perhaps even taught-All superstitions have been banished. (Cumont, Texts... Mithra, t. I, p. 301-302).

Here, a closer connection is necessary for our attention: Mithraic necromancy, which became infinite-more puerile and grotesque than nowadays in the conventicles that are proliferating in England, in America, and even in France, is now called Spiritism.

As for the various aberrations that Mr. Cu-
My reproach to Mithraism, we find them again-we will all see in Marti- Freemasonry ist.

The Mithraic Rites.

The physical and moral trials of the Initiation-Mithraic infections were numerous and severe.
Among them was a staged murder "which, at the origin, writes Mr. Cumont, must have been real (vol. I, p. 322)". I note the resemblance of this rite with that of the mannequin containing a full wineskin of blood that the Freemason recipient pierced with a dagger blow in the Lodges of the 17th century — and I'm passing.

After crossing the pronaos of the temple,
The mystic descended the steps of the crypt, he glimpsed-before him, in the decorated and illuminated sanctuary, the venerated image of Mithras tauroctone erected in apse, then monstrous statues... (Cumont, Texts... Mithra, t. I, p. 322).

The statue or bas-relief representing Mithras and occupying the place of honor in the apse mon-depicted the god with his eyes raised to heaven in a sup-painful complication. He struck with a knife the flank of the primordial bull, collapsed on the ground. One
The scorpion, here representing demons, crawls beneath the belly of the wounded animal; a snake rears up to drink the blood of the fertile wound, while that the Sacred Dog of Mithras protects with its pre-sense the soul of the bull that escapes with its blood, before going to implore the supreme god, Ahura Mazda, the sending of the divine Zo- to earth roastre.

As in the Bible, the serpent is the incarnate tion of the prince of demons, who came to dispute the Dog, the soul of the Bull. (See M. Cumont, Texts, etc..., vol. I, pp. 190-192). I almost forgot the Raven who, perched on the raised folds of the coat of Mithras came to give it to him, in the name of God
Sun, the order to kill the bull.

This scene, always the same, frozen in its hieratic details, found in all the mo-Mithraic coins left by the Mystes on a vast expanse of territory.

In another place of honor in the temple
Ahura Mazda (Ormuzd) was featured. It was the Time

Infinite, the Chronos or Saturn of the Greeks. It was also Supreme Aeon, the origin of a dizzying a series of successive generations of divine Spirits, as in Gnosticism, which we will discuss later the hour. This "Supreme Being" was represented under the form of a human monster with a lion's head, the
The body was surrounded by a serpent. The lion's head was hollow, and through secret conduits they blew on dormant flames to produce effects fantastic light. The lycopodium pipe, which "gives Masonic Light" to the Initiate moderne in the current Lodges, is the substitute of this stone god who shoots fire from the eyes and the nostrils.

The ceremony that was most successful in the Mithraic propaganda was called the taurobolium; it was the purification of all sins by the blood of a bull, in memory of the divine bull immolated by Mithras: |

This bloody baptism was received in a pit at openwork, barely covered with a few slats or beams. The penitent would take his place there, or the priest, _ when the sacrifice was given for the community the faithful. From the wound of the slaughtered animal, the rain The red fell, soiling the unfortunate man who was reaching out towards the bloody dew, her brow, her eyes, her mouth, His whole being. We left there renewed for eternity, in æternum renatus.

(M. Gasquet, Essai. Mithra, p. 51, 52).

Such was the principal sacrament; such was the representation of the Holy Mysteries of Mithras. If now we want to suddenly probe to measure the depth of the abysses of imbe- the cilliosity that these Mysteries were able to excavate In the human soul, it suffices for us to say that, from Nero to Julian the Apostate, most of these pagan emperors that history shows us- like frantic maniacs of dubious su- persistences, monstrous cruelties and — in besides — almost all sodomites, were the de- . yours and the fanatical protectors of the Mysteries of Mithra.

It is by discovering such Initiates that one judges the Secret Society of Mi- Thriacs.

Courtiers of power.

As handsome as he is (as we said of friendships) faithful to fallen powers) to be "the heart- "Herbalist of misfortune," as dishonorable as it may seem, for an association or for an individual, to be against all odds, the courtier of power, However vile and cruel he may be. Unfortunately for the memory of its Initiates, the Secret Society - Mithraic deserves to an extreme degree the reproach to have been above all an instrument of rule in favor of a detestable regime.

However, when, after the Greek invasions of Alexander the Great in Asia, the old Aryan genius The Persians had just washed away the defined Mithraism- the stains of Sacred Prostitutions, and of expel the "Kedeschims" along with the "Kedeschot" _ of Cybele-Anahita, it was, as in times long past-

Zoroaster's taints, a grandiose effort towards the Purest, towards the Ideal. But the ulcer of witchcraft was too deep in the heart of the Mysteries of Mithra so that their work might not be bad.

The widespread dissemination of the Mysteries of Mithras begins at the moment when Christianity has already pushed powerful roots into a part of the Roman world.

But a difference first appears in the mode of propagation of the two religions: the Christianity spread through its apostles who, setting out on missions, alone or almost alone, re- the old roads were born on which had Phoenician ships once sailed, peddling the Bloody Molochs, enemies of Jehovah.

The first conquests of Christianity were favored by the Jewish Diaspora (dispersion); it has initially spread in populated areas of colonies Israelites. (M. Cumont, Textes... t. I, p. 338, 339.)

It was through the ports of the Mediterranean that the first Christians — Jews, Syrians and Greeks of origin — penetrated southern Europe in making their 'first proselytizers' around the Synagogues. There, among the Jewish immigrants, they findrent at the same time as the first acts of devotion 4 the new faith, crowning of the moldy faiththat, the first hatreds, the later ones, like All the family hatreds. When the time came, we will give several characteristic facts of the fierce persecution of the Jews against the first Christians who were, in such great numbers, their Brothers of the race. But we must, in the meantime.

consider the religious group of Paganism no longer in a position to wage war against the Christian Church nascent: it quickly became Mithraism.

`As ChristiaMithraism, Mithraism was, for a certain time, the religion of the humble. The recruited soldiers ted in the East, in Persia, in Armenia, in Phrygia, and the junior, semi-military officials sent for twenty years and more in Scythia and Germania, These were the things, especially on the northern borders and from the East, the Mithraic apostles, in all the armies tasked with containing the Barbarians. Also You can find their temples and chapels on the entire banner front of the imperial legions.

"From the Black Sea to Brittany and to the © edge of the Sahara, the Mithraic monuments "abound!" writes Mr. Cumont in his scholarly a work in which he provides a description of the statues, bas-reliefs, votive inscriptions collected in the ruins of buildings dedicated to the worship of Mithras.

- Their considerable number testifies to the development-enormous progress made in just a few years by the Mithraism.

If, for a time, Christianity at The South and Mithraism in the North were, each of On their side, the religion of the common people, they did not delayThey do not tend to evolve in very different directions. While Christianity was gaining some isolated adherents in the upper classes, Mithra became the god of the Imperial Court at the end of the early 19th century and owed its rapid progress to the favor princes. There was one major reason for this: that is because the Caesars' advisors were right The title explains how Mithraism could be to them useful in making the Empire increasingly omnipotent.

1. M. Cumont, Textes..., t. I, p. 248.

At the feet of the Emperors.

Nero had already been worshipped as an emanationnation of Mithras by Tiridates, king of Armenia. But it is from Commodus that the craze mainly dates back to courtly manner of senior officials Romans for the mysteries of Mithras, when they saw the Emperor take part in the ceremoniesdenies of the new cult with such zeal that he one day it happened that he killed the unfortunate Initiate, of whom he only had to, according to the rites, simulate the murder.

Nero, that monster, what a god! And Commodus, that Cruel maniac, Initiate of Mithras, what a proselyte! Numerous Mithraic sacrifices were offered for the salvation of this prince whose life was so precious useful for the advancement of Mithras' affairs: the Religious monuments attest to this. However, the The progress of Mithraism powerfully served the successive transformations of the principate of Augustus in a monarchy by divine right, where the prince became a representation of God on earth and God himself. (M. Cumont, Textes, vol. I, p. 282.)

1 M. Cumont, Textes..., t. I, p. 279. According to Dio Cassius, Hist. Rom., LXIII, 10. Quoted by M. Cumont, t. II, p. 12. |

In the East, the frequent penetrations of the pou-royal and religious authorities had seen each other for centuries accustomed people to consider the sovereigns sometimes as incarnations of the Divinity, sometimes as vicars of the Gods.
Also, in the Asian part of the Roman Empire,
Were the Caesars considered to be avatars?
successive gods of the Sun God, whether Moloch, or Adonis or Apollo.

In the West, the sober Latin common sense rejected these exaggerations... Expressions were preferred – waves about the kinship relations of the princes with the gods. Nevertheless, the concept that the Sun has the emperor under his guard and that supernatural effluvia real ones descend from one to the other led little by little to little to that of their consubstantiality.

However, the psychology taught in the Mysteries (of Mithras) provided from this consubstantiality a Rational explanation... (In Mithraic belief) souls pre-existe in the empyrean and when they lower themselves towards the earth to animate the body where they will shut themselves in, they cross the spheres of the planets and receive from each some of their qualities? For all astrologers, the Sun is the

1. The priest-kings (of Assyria) derive their power from their god... Assurbanipal proclaims himself... prince “that Assur and Sin, master of crowns, have since ancient days predestined to royalty and that they formed in his mother's womb for the government of the country of Assur.” (A. Loisy, Studies on the religion. Chald. assyr., Rev. des Relig., 1891, p. 291, 292.)

2. The need to condense, to give only a "concise"
The "shortened" of the initiatory Mysteries prevented us from to elaborate on this descent of souls (Katabasis) and on the Anabasis or the return of souls to heaven. The Katabasis and the Anabasis were represented in the Mithraic Mysteries just like the royal planet, and it was he who gave to his chosen ones the virtues of the Sovereign and called upon him to reign.

It becomes immediately apparent how these theories were favorable to the Caesars' claims. They are truly the masters by right of birth, because,
From the moment they were born, the stars destined them to the throne; they are divine, for they have within them certain elements of the Sun, of which they are in a way
. the passing incarnation. (M. Cumont, Textes... t. I, pp. 290, 291.)

It is in the name of this state astrology, in the name from this crazy conception of the divine nature of Emperors, let the officials and torturers crowned Initiates – from Commodus to Julian the Apostate, via Aurelian – have Thousands of Christians were persecuted and tortured!

Who was worth more, the Mithraic at the feet of a bloodthirsty brute adored by him as the emanation of tion of the Sun God, or of the Christian who, the body shredded by instruments of torture, persis-
Which one was it that denied the divine essence of the emperors?
Was it the "clerical" one? Was it the Christian who asked-granted the freedom to believe, while serving with the noblest devotion to the powers that oppress maient, and by repeating the words of his Divine Master:
"Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and unto God the things that are God's." who belongs to God? Or rather, isn't the "Clerical" not the Mithraic "Brother" of the Lodges of that time,

Journeys of the soul were depicted in the Isiac Mysteries
(See: MA Gasquet, Essai... Mithra, p. 42.)

These walks of the spirits in the supra-terrestrial worlds also play a major role in Swedenborg's doctrines
From which comes Martinist Freemasonry. (AB)

populated by low-ranking courtiers of the "Divine Emperor", servile ancestors of our ambitious Freemasons of today?

Initiated Emperors.

If it is true to say that Freemasonry is now at the forefront of the fight against Christianity, it is also proven that almost all the emperors of Rome who have Persecuted Christians were Initiates to Ancient mysteries.

"The emperor is almost always an Initiate" (of Eleusis),” writes Mr. Foucart, and adds:

The struggle against Christianity only served to enhance the great situation of the Hierophant of Eleusis. These are the Eleusinian Mysteries, which religion and philosophy united to oppose the progress of the new belief. (MP Foucart, The Great Mysteries..., p. 42.)

It would be too long to list all the texts here. the support of the Initiation of the Emperors. I limit myself to be referred to Mr. Foucart's book.

(One of the priests of Eleusis) boasts of having initiated three Emperors, Lucius Verus, Marcus Aurelius and Convenient. (Les Gr. Myst., p. 58.) |

Commodus was therefore an Initiate of the Mysteries of Eleusis, as well as those of Mithras. This gives extraordinary depth to these two Sacred Associations, isn't that right?

The Hierophants, adds Mr. Foucart, took a large part to the revelations of the Initiation... A Hierophantid... initiates Emperor Hadrian (The (gr. Myst., p. 63, 66). |

Thus, a priestess of Ceres is honored to have took part in the initiation of Antinous' friend: that is remarkable indeed, because women did not play, In general, that a minor role in the life of this crowned cinema.

Emperor Caracalla, writes F. Clavel, dedicated enormous sums of money were spent on the construction of temples. dedicated to Isis. The most magnificent of all was that that he had erected in the Champ de Mars and where celebratory brayed the Mysteries of Initiation. (Picture history of the Fr. Maç., p. 307.)

Elagabal had tried to subordinate all the gods of the empire to its god of Emesa, the Baal of Syria. The exotic follies of this maniac! discredit satentative... Aurélien?, under the pretext of unifying the gods solar, dedicated the Empire to Sol Invictus (Sun undefeated). But for the vast majority soon, the Sun It was Mithras... It was to him that, through subtle detours, All the gods have been more or less restored. The emperor Julien, in his treatise The Sun King, already shows howall the deities of the East and the West can fit inside each other and shrink to Mithras alone. (M. Gasquet, Essay... Mithra, p. 77.)

Before Julien, the two authors of the last Persea campaign against Christians – perhaps the most atrocious

1. We have already seen that his madness was singularly sanGuinean, with young children disemboweled so that this sorcerer oriental man searches their entrails "according to the rite of his nation"! (AB) er

2. Aurelian, born to a Priestess of the Sun, in Pannonia, on The Danube was a fervent Mithraic. (AB)

– there were two more Initiates, the Emperors Diocletian and Galerius who had built at Carnuntum (near Vienne, _ Austria) a huge temple to Mithras t.

Magic, the link to all Mysteries.

Mr. Alf. Maury, of the Institute, expressed it in a way very happy:

Magic acquired universal authority (in the fourth century) by allying itself with demonology through which the philosophy strove to rejuvenate expi- polytheism rant. (Aïf. Maury, La Magie..., p. 85.)

It was the Neoplatonist philosophers who provided the most bitter enemies of Christianism, like Celsus, Macrobius and Maximus, who Julien initiated, and whose magical evocations hadrent so much power over this prince:

Julien believed he held a mission (from the Sun God). sacred and regarded himself as her servant or rather his spiritual son. The young prince must have been attracted particularly towards the Mysteries due to his inclination superstitious about the supernatural. Before its advent, perhaps even from his adolescence, he was introduced secretly in a mithriac conventicle by the philosopher Maximus of Ephesus. The initiation ceremonies Tiation had a strong hold on his feelings. He now believed to be placed under the patronage of Mithras in this life and the next. As soon as he had thrown the masthat and had openly proclaimed himself a pagan, he called Maxime next to him. (M. Cumont, Teztes..., t. I, p. 344.)

1. Read M. Cumont, Textes..., t. I, p. 344; t. II, p. 51 and 491.

...But the quintessential theorist of Syncretism Macrobius was a pagan. His Saturnalia are like the manifest. (M. Gasquet, Essay... Mithra, p. 78.)

Finally, Macrobius demonstrates — what was already in the minds of all mystics since many years — the original and founding identity candle of Zeus, Pan, Apollo, Bacchus, Osiris, etc. | just as, long before him, Apuleius had proclaimed the identity of Isis, Ceres, Hecate, Astarte, Venus, etc. |

The close relationship between the Eleusinian Mysteries and of Isis were visible to all. Other part, despite the "odious!" past of the Mysteries of Cybele, the Mithraics, for political reasons, had associety, despite their austerity, their male cult of female cult of this ambiguous lover of Attis. Gathered, the Initiates of both sexes to the cults of Cybele and Mithras formed a vast Frankish Androgynous masonry.

The Great Mother (Cybele)... had her Matres (Mothers) just as Mithras had his Patres (Fathers) and his Initiates they gave themselves the name Sisters, like the his consort's followers took the name of Brothers. (M. Cumont, Tezxfes..., vol. I, p. 333.)

The last of the Eumolpids who, from time immemorialMorial, provided 4 Eleusis the Hierophants, having died, it was the High Priest of Mithras, whom they went to fetch from Asia to come To direct the Eleusinian Initiations. The concentration-

The transmission of all the Initiates was thus complete.

1. M. Cumont, Teztes..., t. I, p. 343.

But it is important to emphasize this crucial fact, already highlighted by A. Maury, that it is atthe trick of Magic, of Sorcery, which takes place the final union of all the Secret Societies | tiatiques: |

The pagan cults then lost all individuality. their own life, writes Mr. Cumont; they no longer live except of foreign ideas. (M. Cumont, Texts... t. I, p. 27).

All the ancient Mysteries aimed to to bring the Initiate into contact with certain deities, wrote F. Goblet d'Alviella, 33rd. When progress Syncretism would have led to the acceptance of the equivalence of gods and the transmutability of their attributes, there is no had more reasons for the rites likely to act upon some superhuman beings, even if they were not estimated but capable of exerting a similar action on all.

Moreover, the rites of the Mysteries had never ceased to possess intrinsic value, like all the rites of magical origin. Once their link is broken special with this or that particular cult, they became more or less usable in all occasions where it was necessary to request the intervention of a power superhuman. Also the last days of paganism do they reveal a rapprochement and even a penetrationreciprocal tion of the principal Mysteries, both under the report of Rites than of Doctrines. (F.°. Goblet d'AlViella, Eleusinia, p. 117).

Thus, born from brotherhoods of sorcerers, the SociéSecret initiatory rites, in their decline, return to their starting point: they have become again Lodges of thaumaturges and magicians such as We will see this in the 17th century, with Swedenborg. Martinès de Pascalis, Cagliostro, etc.

Ritual crimes.

He's a magician, "a victim of the occul"ism!", this emperor Julian – whom we have seen initiated by Maxime and that his State officer-Major, Ammien Marcellin', shows us consbusy with magical sacrifices. But JuLien was not the only one to fall victim to her witchcraft! When, in fact, he had left Antioch to conto lead his armies into Persia, it was discovered in the imperial palace the mutilated remains of young girls and young boys. Considerable witnesses have spoken. First, Saint Gregory of Nazianzus, who supported a fearless struggle even in Syria against the apostate prince. It is also Saint John Chrysostom, who, in his Homily against Julian, exclaims: "Who would count his immolations of en"fans!" (Ch. xvi).

Here is what Theodoret, born in Antioch only a few years after the Julien's death:

– Even today, the town of Carrhes retains Evidence of Julien's crimes. At his stepWise in this city, he entered a temple which was Highly revered by the pagans. After having performed there mysterious works, he had them closed and sealed gates which he had guarded by soldiers, defending that

1. Paul Allard, The Youth of Emperor Julian, Paris 1897, p. 37.

2. Ammianus Marcellinus, XXII, 12–14.

No one entered before his return. But at the announcement of his death and as a pious emperor had succeeded To this impious man, they entered the temple and saw this what one should think of his supposed wisdom. One would a woman suspended by her hair, arms outstretched in a cross his belly open: the odious Julien had tried to read in the liver of this human victim if it would be futilequeur of the Persians. (According to the Latin translation of Migne, edit. 1861, vol. III, p. 1119).

These human victims immolated by Julien a few months before his death were the last that the pagan Emperors did.

But how many had perished before them! What The Roman Empire had become an immense charnel house. during the three centuries in which the coalition of Initiates efforced Christianity to be drowned in blood enemy of their sorcery and their Mysteries!

VIII

THE SLUM OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE

The odious and the ridiculous.

The flaws that tainted each of the Societies Secret ancient secrets taken in isolation have not been lacking.
than to soil them again when they had almost indistinguishable from one another;
the most unbridled immorality, the most cruel atrocious, that, in addition to magic, is what makes them ca-becomes more concrete than ever when, all together,
They are attacking Christianity.

On the other hand, it is by vigorously criticizing these three fundamental flaws in Paganism and to the Initiates who were at its head, that the first Christians began the struggle which was to, after Three centuries of horrific suffering, to end by their complete victory.

Moreover, one should read through the "Apologies" the Church Fathers, their "Exhortations to "Nice people" and we will see that the part in a way political and human skill in their argumentation always consists, invariably, of a painting showing in the darkest colors demonic sorcery, infamies, and cruelties of the Mysteries and pagan cults.

Always, invariably, the writer, the orator Christians strive to ridicule paganism and odious at the same time. And it is with these powerful weapons-yours of the ridiculous and the odious, weapons wielded with admirable courage and audacity, in the face of torture racks and crosses, which Christians triumphed.

There is a great example here for us who have 'to fight, in modern Freemasons Initiates who are surely just as corrupt, just as cordisruptive and, at heart, just as cruel as the Initiates ancient. Like their predecessors, our current Initiates are odious and ridiculous: therefore, they are vulnerable by these same weapons of ridicule and odiousness which mortally wounded the Secret Societies of old.

Is this book only meant to popularize?
this truth, which I would, for that reason alone, have the right to
I am delighted to have written it, so sure am I that This truth is beneficial and fruitful.

When the apostles of Christianity had torn from their seats before the eyes of their listeners to con-to seek out the veils that hid their ugliness, the grotesque vices, the atrocities of Paganism and that they had awakened in them a just feeling

Of horror, wasn't the part four halves?
Won?

I know very well that the "intellectuals" of France-Freemasonry and the "primaries" responsible for inoculating a modern youth, the Masonic virus, presumed-teeth that Nero, Commodus, Diocletian, the Galère were slandered by pamphleteers
Both pagans and Christians! A characteristic feature, the same Freemasons for whom the traitor Dreyfus is a martyr, according to the martyrs of the Christianity, like criminals, precisely struck by a power that simply exercised its coercive rights against rebels. The Christian martyrs with indomitable hearts who, in truly free “thinkers” indulged in supaccomplices rather than giving in to superstitions pagans, are already, for the so-called "free-thinkers” of the Lodges, “slaves of the Supers-"Tition" while their torturers have the
They played a noble role as defenders of Roman civilization.

Also, to prove how much they lie falsifiers of history at the behest of the Lodges, he

It is useful to outline a brief study of the appalling corruption of the Roman Empire, then that the whole world seemed to have been created for to be the plaything of the shameful or cruel whims of a A handful of servile officials, with their Emperorstheir augurs, their philosopher-mediums, their soothsayers, their Initiates into the Sacred Mysteries, — and their bourreaux. But, to know what the quagmire was where, twenty centuries ago, millions of creatures Humans were dying in despair, in a com-

In this complete abjection, it is essential to throw a a quick look at some monuments that one can call them pornographic.

Secret Museums.

In their major work on Herculaneum and Pompeii, Messrs. Roux and Barré provided the collection general paintings, bronzes, mosaics that one discovered beneath the ashes of Vesuvius: most are of an inconceivable immorality. However, existence even and the considerable number of monuments obscene things that are found in the ruins of all Roman cities are irrefutable testimonies questions about the veracity of the accusations made by the historians and orators (both pagan and Christians) against the infamies of the Emperors and of their satellites.

What was the trend of the evil and its precise degree?
This is what monuments alone can teach us.
Dr. These are like checks and comments.
indestructible figures of history. This great controversy which was based on Tacitus's impartiality and reality vices attributed to the masters of the Empire, this con-
The controversy can only be definitively resolved by the study of the riches contained in secret museums;
It is true that these monuments, by revealing to us that Humankind has truly been governed by monsters, also shows us that at that time, the humankind was worthy of its masters 1.

---

1. H. Roux aîné and Barré, Herculaneum and Pomponius, t. vin, Museum Secret, Paris, Libr. Didot, 1840 and 1862.

Aren't Messrs. Roux and Barré right? The study Doesn't the existence of secret museums offer a clear distinction?
definitively, inevitably, the controversies at subject of the claim to be granted to the virulent and harsh historians of imperial Rome, Tacitus, Suetonius, Lampridus?

If one wants to be fully enlightened, one should read by
For example, the work of Hughes d'Hancarville:

"Monuments of the Private Lives of the Twelve Caesars" in Caprées, at Sabellus, 1780.

Otho, Nero and Heliogabalus, in particular, these three prominent Insiders — as well as Poppea, removed-raised by Nero to her husband, — are exhibited under a What a strange day!
Another book reveals — through monuments antiques, he too — appalling depravity of the Roman world and fully justifies, by the same token, the most vehement attacks from the Church Fathers. He has Titled: "Royal Museum of Naples. — Paintings, Erotic bronzes and statues... from the Secret Cabinet...
Paris, 1835. Among other monstrous things,
The author, Mr. Famin, reproduces there an- bas-relief cien who stages a horrifying practice which several Church Fathers speak of with a indignation that is easily understood:

“This bas-relief,” writes Mr. Famin, “is the representation of one of the most atrocious ceremonies of the paganism. |

Several women are leading a young girl, who
One can imagine a young bride, at a statue of Priapus, and already the unfortunate woman is about to do This marble, the painful sacrifice of her virginity. Alone of the troupe she is completely naked; she lowers the his head looked confused and sad, and he leaned on his shoulder of an elderly woman, perhaps his mother! Not far from there, a little girl plays the double flute, to cover the cries that pain will tear from the victim."

(Famin, Museum... p. 39).

For their part, Chateaubriand in his Studies Historical, Pierre Dufour in his History of the Prostitution, Mr. Dupouy in his study on La Prostitution in Antiquity has accumulated the the most convincing documentary texts on the subject of the demoralization that was rotting the Roman Empire entire.

Reading their works, one's heart aches at the thought of the cruel abjection that mired all weak, defenseless beings, male slaves and females, little children, women!

Yes, those were monsters who governed... were born, the world crushed under a tyranny cruel and dishonorable. But who had forged
The chains of humankind? Let us remember the Proverb: "The fish rots from the head down." Sou-Furthermore, we have come to the conclusion that every ruling class is at the same time the responsible class: now, of the the fact that, among ancient peoples, the classes ruled-giants have always been composed almost exclusively of movement of followers of the Mysteries, it results, without possible discussion, which the Secret Societies initiated-the main culprits, the principal-pale culprits of the continued deterioration of rap-

1. This profound observation was made by a person of great talent; but I would fear to offend his modesty by mentioning his name.

social ports, growing corruption, de-then the regime of Human Sacrifices and Pros-sacred institutions in the early Ages, up to the Circus games and the tortures of the Christian Martyrs Look, with their virgins delivered (legally!) to the brothels, before falling under the sword of executioners.

This west, therefore, is not due to a vain assembly ideas that we enjoyed associating constantly in our study debauchery and cruelty, since the same abominable vision always imposes itself on our minds. Whether in Asia, at the dawn of the Mysteries of Moloch and Astart, whether in Rome, at the decline of the Mysteries of Eleusis and Mithras, — still the reign of Initiates appears to us as filled with shame and terror, of mud, tears, and blood.

The Church Fathers and Roman infamy.

Someone said that if Saint Paul were to live again, he would be a journalist. It was certainly a tough fight-the convert of the road to Damascus, who, from the dawn of the spread of Christianity, traced in his Epistle to the Romans the plan of all the dia-the most vigorous tribes launched by its contiactivists against pagan corruption.

What an admirable summary, indeed, what a rac-powerful cursus of all Christian satires against Paganism, — this chapter from Saint Paul:

22. Boasting that they were wise, they became fools;

23. And they exchanged the majesty of God incorruptible-suitable for images representing corrupt man tible, birds, quadrupeds and reptiles.

24. So God delivered them into the midst of the convoys the desires of their hearts, to impurity, so that they des-they honor each other's own bodies.

25. They who exchanged the true God for the lie, and who worshipped and served the creature of Preference to the Creator, who is blessed eternally.
Amen!

26. That is why God gave them over to passions of ignominy: their women have changed the natural custom in that which is against nature.

27. Likewise also men, leaving the custom natural to women, they have, in their desires, burned the one for another, having men with men one infamous and receiving trade, in a mutual degradation, the just reward for their folly.

28. And since they did not care about well
To know God, God gave them over to their perverse minds.
to do what is wrong.

29. Being filled with every kind of iniquity, of madepravity, fornication, avarice, wickedness, full of envy, of murderous thoughts, of quarrels, of cunning, of malignancy.

30. Informers, slanderers, hated by God...

31. Foolish, treacherous, implacable, without affection, without pity. (Saint Paul, Epistle to the Romans, ch. I.)

"Spreaders of false rumors," "informers," di-sent to verse 30 various translations, to abandon-We said that denunciation was one of the major pagan vices: in a constructed regime with slavery at its core and Secret Societies exploitative at his coronation, it was natural; Tyrants need spies — spies all the more numerous the more tyrants are numerous and more vile.

But isn't it remarkable to hear Saint Paul simultaneously flagellates homicide and sodomy.
superstition and paganism — the three main flaws of ancient secret societies — by including denunciation in its condemnations, this foul-smelling flower that our modern Initiates comenent to make it grow again with so much vi-Gueur in the gardens of Masonic Lodges?

Relentlessly attacking the odious and the grotesquethan the Mysteries and pagan cults, the athletes Christianity constantly addresses these to them epithets: "shameful and ridiculous", "bloody and criminals.

This is how Saint Clement of Alexandria who He was very familiar with religious secret societies.
of his time, since he was an Initiate, he rises up against the impurity of the Mysteries of the Venus of Cyprus (Astarte); against the crude story of Baubo making Ceres laugh with the most indecent exhibition.
And what extravagant passwords, worthy of being compared with those of the current Lodges!

The symbols or signs of the Eleusinian Mysteries (written by Saint Clement of Alexandria) are: “I have fasted, I drank some of the beverage; I took some from the basket. After that I had made of it, I put it in the basket, and from the pa-
"I deny it, I put it back in the safe." (Saint Clement) from Alexandria, Exhortation to the Nations, trans. Cousin, Paris, 1684, p. 50.)

The signs and symbols of the Mysteries of Themis are oregano, a lamp, a sword and the part that Women hide with the utmost care. (Ibid., id.,

p. 53.) | |

Do not the inhabitants of Cyprus sacrifice to Venus?
the Criminal, the Athenians to Venus-Prostitute, and the Syracusans to Venus with beautiful... (thighs). I'm not talking point of a Bacchus who takes his name from the practices which he soiled. The Sicyonians worship him as a god who presides over pleasures and who authorizes debauchery che... (Ibid., ibid., p. 93.)

Your gods are cruel and quite pleased, aren't they?

not only to corrupt men, but to take away from them life. (Ibid., ibid., p. 102.)

And in a vibrant apostrophe, Saint Clement reminds his former coreligionists of the nameless brables Human sacrifices offered to the gods of Their Mysteries.

The names of your gods, he wrote, The birth of goddesses, their adulteries, their feasts, their debauchery... force me to cry out against my will: 6 impiety! you You have made Heaven the stage of a theatre. You have traduit the actions of the gods into a subject of comedy and You have dishonored piety by the impudence of your superstitions (/d., id., p. 149.)

Like Socrates, Euripides was the target of hatred. of the Initiates. Saint Clement quotes the words put by this great playwright, in the mouth of one of his characters: "Gods,... who commit atrocious crimes, if you were put on trial, you "You would be driven from your temples!" (/d., id., p. 189.)

However, sometimes one could talk with this freedom of the gods of the Mysteries, it was not necessary do not — under penalty of death — touch the Mysteries

themselves, and history preserves the names of numerous victims of sectarian intolerance Old Initiates; we know how much their ancestors-nephews of the Masonic Lodges resemble them in terms of respect for freedom of conscience science. |

When to fight the progress of Christians their refusal to sacrifice to the gods had become a state crime, it was not necessary to have an adadmirable grandeur of soul to Tertullian, to dare to throw in the faces of informers and executioners, in full persecution, these burning words:

Consult your records and you will see that Nero, under which the Christian religion began to appear in Rome was the first to draw the sword against her. imperial and cracked down on its followers with cruelty worthy of him. But we insist on the honor of having him at the head of our persecutors, for whoever knows Nero does not no one could doubt that what Nero condemned was a great good. (Tertull. Ed. Literary Pantheon, ch. v, p. 11.) .

...That's what our per- have been throughout history Seducers: unjust, impious, infamous men. (/d., (id., p. 12.)

Let's see if your gods deserved to be elevated to heaven, and not rather to be hurled into Tartarus that you look at... like the prison of the wicked. This is where the denatured threads, the incmurderers, adulterers, abductors of virgins, corchild abusers, murderers, thieves, deceitful people, all those, in short, who resemble someone from your gods; for there is not one who has not given the example of crime or vice. (Ibid., ch. x1, p. 20.)

Thus, by rising up against oppression,

Tertullian shouted his contempt and holy hatred to executioners of the Initiate Nero and the other Initiates - persecutors, at the very moment when so many Christian martyrs died under torture.

The Initiates—Executioners.

In Tertullian's time, human sacrifices — as we have said — still persisted in CarThames, but in secret. On the other hand, the Societies Initiates found, at their twilight, well better than these ritual immolations of a few hundreds of children, because it's hundreds of a thousand, for three centuries, that we count the Christians offered as burnt offerings, no longer to Moloch, but to Imperial Majesty and the official gods of the Roman Empire.

The imperial cult was honored with beautiful hecagraves.

Under the Initiate Nero'.

On July 19, 1964, the fire devoured more than half of Rome. The people accused the emperor of having done light the fire. This same people who had acclaimed the parricide ascending to the Capitol for to give thanks to the gods for the murder of his mother, he roared furiously before his de- dwellings trout. Nero was afraid, and to divert them. Suspicions, he threw countless victims to him as fodder. times, the Christians whom he had declared the incenses Roman diaries.

1. Pliny says of Tiridates: "He had initiated Nero a Magical Mysteries (magicis cenis). (Read M. Cumont, Texts, vol. 1, p. 239).

With Saint Clement, Mr. Paul Allard attributes to the the wickedness of the Jews — very numerous in Rome — that era! — Nero's persecution against Christians.

Poppaea (the empress) was half-Jewish. There was Jewish slaves, Jewish actors and mimes around of Nero. The emperor did not order any executions political action, no cruelty, without having consulted anyone not only Tigellinus, but Poppaea (Tacitus, Annals, XV, 61, MP Allard, Hist. of Perséc., t. I, p. 40).

Thus, we find, at the beginning of the persecutions, "Atrocious hatred, irreconcilable jealousy?" Jews against Christians, closely allied to the hatred that the Initiates, these "intellectuals- "tuels" of Paganism.

Christian men and women were arrested en masse. were, in a grand spectacle, tortured in the circus and Nero's gardens, where today stands the Vatican Palace.

Some of the Christian prisoners were exposed to the animals. Atrocious refinements were used against them. Some were clothed in animal skins, and in this state, presented to dogs who gave them a horrible hunt...

1. Mr. Renan is far from having exaggerated in assessing the population-Jewish community of Rome, during the reign of Nero, at twenty or thirty a thousand souls (MP Allard, Hist. des Persécutions pendant les first two centuries, Paris, Lecoffre, 1885, vol. I, p. 13).

2. MP Allard, Hist. of Perséc., t. I, p. 41.

When the Roman people had feasted their eyes on this The sight was dreadful; other Christians were brought in. Crosses had been prepared in various locations in the Circus: they were tied up there...

Perhaps the matrons and Christian virgins were they reserved for another part of the spectackle, and constraints to appear in one of these performances half drama and half ballet, pyrricha, where convicts were sometimes given a role tragic, that they were forced to play it natural. Such was the horrible realism of Roman customs, such were the brutal demands of spectators, among whom the abuse of voluptuous or bloody spectacles had dulled their sense of art, leaving them with no taste other than for plastic paintings or real torture devices. For To please them, Ixion had to be truly cunning, that care should shatter upon falling from the sky, that Hercules should perish in the flames, that a blaze consumed the hand of Mucius Scaevola, that Pasiphae suffered the embrace of the bull...

In his letter to the Corinthians...Saint Clement of Rome alludes to the martyrs of the persecution of Nero: among "the multitude of chosen ones who endured many affronts and torments, leaving the Christians "Here's a prime example," he cites "women, the Danaids and the Dirces, who, having suffered terrible and monstrous indignities... received the noble reward-think… Probably fifty Christian women came in the circus or on stage, wearing the costume of daughters of Danaiis; they perhaps suffered odious things there outrages perpetrated by mimes portraying the sons of Egypt, and were slaughtered, at the end of the drama, by the actor in charge Lyncee's role...

The day was drawing to a close: the dramas were over. The festival of the well prepared in Nero's gardens, awaited the Roman people... From early morning, the immense gardens had been marked with crosses and stakes, on which one had tied up or perhaps impaled Christians, clothed of the tunica molesta, fabric soaked in pitch, resin... which was used to describe arsonists. When evening came, they... set it ablaze. Between these avenues formed by torches alive, they raced in chariots, competing for the prize. (MP Allard, History of the Persecutions during the two first centuries, Paris, Lecoftre, 1885, pp. 46-51).

Such was this hideous festival, from which Nero (emanated-(a Mithraic tradition!) dressed as a coachman, came to beg the applause of the crowd.

This monster was also a showman.

Under the initiate Hadrian.

"The emperor was almost always an initiate!" wrote MP Foucart. And in a scholarly study? he provides evidence of the Eleusinian Initiation emperors Augustus, Hadrian, etc.

Saint Clement of Alexandria, former Initiate of all the Mysteries, he whipped with remarkable verve this last sovereign who had altars erected and to build a city in honor of Antinois, for which he harbored a vile passion for. No Pleased to have become an Initiate, Hadrian sought and obtained the higher rank of Epopt and he is only simply to note that, under the reign of this scholar

1. MP Foucart, Les Grands Mystères d'Eleusis, p. 42.

2. Philological Review, 1893, The Initiated Roman Emperors to the Mysteries of Eleusis, by MP Foucart, pp. 198-207.

delicate and corrupt, the persecution against the Christians reached the furthest limits of infamic, if we can speak that way, since each no-a new pagan fury invented new horrors.

During the reign of Hadrian the Initiate, in Italy Umbrian, the virgin Serapia was, on the orders of judge, delivered to the brutality of wretched men in a place of prostitution.' This despicable attack the modesty of Christian martyrs was renewed constantly under persecution, for three centuries! The Roman Astarte demanded victims, at the same time as the new Molochs.

Under the tutelage of Marcus Aurelius.

Several texts and inscriptions establish that Marcus Aurelius and his son Commodus were together initiated into the Eleusinian Mysteries?, as well as the em-Fathers Lucius Verus and Septimius Severus. Since then, Imperial favor was rather attached to the Mysteries Asians.

Out of weakness, Marcus Aurelius, the gentle philosopher at the same time as the credulous Initiate, whose informal conversations were so full of wisdom but who only went to war surrounded by sor-'Ciers', Marcus Aurelius tolerated terrible butcheries

1. MP Allard, Hist. des Perséc., p. 223.
2. Revue de Philologie, ISR; article p. 198.

3. Lampride, Heñiogabalus, 9.

human. It was during his reign, in Lyon, that in 177 they exhausted themselves against unfortunate Christians and against a poor little Christian slave girl, all the horror of the most appalling tortures.

A heartfelt expression of admiration is given by a man hardly suspected of "clericalism", historian Henri Martin:

Among the Martyrs, he writes, are the bishop of the Church of Lyon, Pothin, an old man of ninety years and the slave Blandine. This woman and several others suffered the tortures with an insensitivity that inspired a kind of terror in the executioners. women whom paganism treated as mere instruments of pleasure or reproduction freed— They know their personality through asceticism and martyrdom. "Saint Blandine" remained, in tradition, a heroine of the Lyonnais Christian community, a great sign that the Christia— Gallic nism received its first character from a woman and a slave! (Henri Martin, Hist. 1855, t. I, pp. 252—253).

We note this clerical passage from a historical— nothing (which cannot be suspected in the Bloc!) to Brothers of Public Instruction, charged with elaborating war of early childhood education, everything that has the Christian character. But we call at the same time the attention of anyone who is not darkened in mind through Masonic lies about this parallel: if Freemasonry wants to bring back the woman French to Paganism, with free union and the brutality of the rut replacing for her the invaluable safeguarding Christian marriage is, on the contrary Christianity, which eighteen centuries ago, trans— transformed female slaves into free women.

Everything about legal murders is odious. committed in Lyon, as throughout the empire, against Christians. Here is the denunciation, just like under the reign of the Brothers .. Combes, André, etc.

No one is unaware, writes Mer Freppel, what a great The place occupied by denunciation in the political system inaugurated by Tiberius and developed by his successors: it had become a real means of governance— = ment, the instrument that is both the most convenient and the most sure of imperial despotism: Now, it is by questioning the slaves who were usually lost masters. No doubt, the law forbade putting them in the tortures the slaves who belonged to the accused, but Tiberius, skilled at inventing a new law, like Tacitus said, knew how to circumvent the law by selling to tax officials, the accused's slaves... (Freppel, Saint (Irenaeus, pp. 168, 169.)

The martyrs of Lyon.

The tortures endured by Attalus, by the deacon Sanctus, by the physician Alexander and by Blandine were particularly awful, given how awful the judges were exasperated by their impassive resistance. Sanctus's body, slashed, was covered with blades of incandescent copper: the holy martyr lived roasting his flesh without even changing his posture. He finally sat him down in an iron chair red—hot from the fire.

The last day of the festival was reserved for a show Even more moving is the story of the torture of a young woman daughter and child. Every day, Ponticus, a young Christian— Your fifteen—year—old son, and the slave Blandine, had been led to the amphitheater to witness the death of their brothers. Every day, they had been brought from—before the statues of the gods, telling them to swear by these impious simulacra; the child and slave had cons-

They were refused. So, when their turn came They too came to experience the entire series of tortures.
that we would interrupt from time to time to tell them:
"Swear," and we would repeat it as soon as they had answered:
"No." Ponticus, supported by the exhortations of Blandine died bravely. "The blessed one Blandine remained last, joyful, elated.
at the thought of dying, and seeming like a guest who
She is brought to the wedding feast, not condemned to the beasts.
Finally, after suffering the whips, the beasts, the grill ardent, she was trapped in a net and a bull. He threw her into the air several times with "Its horns... Finally, like a victim, it was slaughtered."
"Never," the spectators said as they left, "a Woman, in our country, has never suffered so many and so Cruel torments?

Blandine, in the Lyon amphitheater, competing of heroism alongside the rest of his brothers... he is the slave pagan whose chains were broken by the Gospel, who rediscovered his title of nobility in the dignity of baptism and which makes the mark disappear through the sacrifice of his blood of the ignominy that paganism had imprinted on its front. » (Freppel, Saint Irenaeus, pp. 173, 174.)

If the spectacle of thousands of Gauls and Rohands coming to feast on these tortures suffered by an old man, by a child, by a young woman
A daughter, is something that seems inconceivable to us.
unheard of, let us traverse the space of sixteen centuries and in

1. Probably the same thing as the iron chair on Attalus and Sanctus were burned at the stake.

2, Eusebius, V. 1 (53, 56).

this same city of Lyon, which witnessed the martyrdom of Saint Blandine, here are the terrorist Freemasons rists, worthy successors of the Initiates to the Mys-ancient times: here they are, shooting, machine-gunning, massacring thousands of human beings with blows of cannon, because the guillotine did not kill Quite quickly, in their opinion.

Let Freemasonry continue to pe-
To sort out the French soul and we will see the same again atrocities.

It was during the height of Roman civilization that people were slaughtered.
the martyrs; it is in the midst of modern civilization that they the Lyon shootings and the drownings of Nantes. Only Christianity has an influence sovereign be capable of preventing the return of these horror shows; and every time he loses his em-Even worse for the spirit of a people, we see Nero reappear.
and Caligula, in one form or another, with the bloody apparatus of their crimes and their follies.
That is the lesson of History. (Freppel, Saint (Irenaeus, p. 176.)

Under the Initiate Aurélien.

The Christians who were being put to death with this cruelty, they were the best citizens of FEm-Worse. The great Roman homeland that tortured them

1. The Masonic Review of November 1905 alludes to these "civic" drownings in these terms: "Nantes, that Carrier has not completely sanitized from the point of view of superstition tion, is a city where the language and landmarks of the "Practical life has remained mired in Catholicism." I dedicate this suggestive passage to those of our friends who might be willing to to see me as an "exaggerator" when I discuss Freemasonry
A sect that remains as wicked as ever. (AB)

They still had their love and the intrepid Ter-tullien was able to confidently ask the empetheir executioners: "When, then, in the seditions, Have we seen ours? But the gentlest ones, the the best of emperors, for three centuries, have persisted in not understanding that the only way to save the crumbling Roman power corruption, was to regenerate it through heroic acts virtues of the new faith. And if the kingdoms of su-relatively human verains such as Marc-Aurelius witnessed tortures like that of Saint Blandine, one can judge from what they saw bloody years when the throne was occupied by What a fanatic!

Aurélien "Iron in Hand" (that was his nickname) in the army) was one of those fierce Initiates who covered the Empire with death.

But there were so many persecuting emperors, so many executioners and so many thousands of Christians martyred, we must shorten this gloomy enumeration of tortures. Let us simply say that Aurelian, son of a priestess of the Sun who deserved a temple in a city in the valley of Danube was an Initiate of Mithras, and a fierce missionary of these barbaric Mysteries where we we saw the penitents sprinkled with the blood of a bull, as a form of lustral water.

1. Read M. Beurlier, Le Culle des Empereurs, p. 51. M. Cumont, Texts... t. I, p. 291. — The birthplace of Auré-The link, formerly Sirmium, is now called Mitrovic, from a A name clearly derived from Mithras. (M. Allard, Les der-(New persecutions of the 3rd century, Paris, 1887, p. 219.)

Under the Initiates Diocletian and Galerius.

The last and fiercest, the most hideous-His persecutions against Christians were exercised created by followers of the cult of Mithras.

Diocletian, whose court with its complicit hierarchy-que, his prostrations before the master and his crowd of eunuchs, was, by the admission of contemporaries, a imitation of that of the Sassanids, was naturally inclined to adopt doctrines of Persian origin which flattered his despotic instincts. The emperor and the princes with whom he had allied himself, gathered in 307 at Carnuntum, there they restored a temple to the celestial protector of their The empire was rebuilt. The Christians went so far as to to consider, not without some appearance of reason, the Mithraic clergy as the instigator of the great The persecution of Galerius. (M. Cumont, Texts and Monuments...) t. I, p. 344.)

Christian blood was shed in all the provinces of the Empire, where the two Augusti reigned supreme, Diocletian, Maximian Hercules and Caesar Maxi-My own mess.

Seeking in vain to frighten the soldiers: Look, Maximian Hercules invented tortures new; that's how he had an officer crushed under the millstones of a mill. How to summarize in a few lines the amazing wonders that we Read in the Acts of these martyred soldiers!...

A centurion, Marcel, accused of being a Christian, was going to be sentenced to death. The judge was taking a a terrible voice to intimidate him, but the centurion he answered him with such authority that he seemed truly judge one's judge.

/

The effect was so great that the military clerk Cassian, who was probably already a Christian, could not bear it; As soon as he heard the death sentence, he threw his style and his tablets... Marcel smiled... and the judge, jumping up from his seat, he asked Cassian the reason for his condyite. "You have rendered an unjust sentence," replied-said Cassian... (MP Allard, The Persecution of Diocles-yours, Paris, 1890, t. 1, p. 137-138).

That same day, Marcel was immolated. One month later... Afterwards, Cassian was condemned to death in his turn.

Like Nero, the abominable Galerius set fire at his colleague's palace in Nicomedia, and rejected the crime against Christians in order to ignite throughout – the empire a general persecution.

'All the slaves of the house were put to torture-his imperial, by resuming the odious procedure Neronian: anyone who was convinced of being Christian thereby admitted his guilt of Conspiracy and arsonist!

Eusebius described the torture of the chamberlain Peter.
After his refusal to sacrifice, he was placed on the rack.
and they tore his whole body to pieces with whips. When His bones were laid bare, and salt and vinegar were added.
in the wounds. Then they stretched him on a gridiron, to con-
He slowly consumed what remained of his flesh. He died.
Thus, "unshakeable as his name!"... The emperor personally attended the execution of his servants.
(MP Allard, La Perséc. de Dioclet., t. I, p. 166-167).

1. Eusebius, Hist, Eccl. wine, 6, 4.

Historians say that unimaginable tortures were inflicted.
invented to overcome the courage of the martyrants; but alongside the worst cruelties, there awoke always the infamous shamelessness nurtured during centuries by the example of sacred prostitution.

In all the persecutions, we had seen Christian women led to infamous places by the hand of Justice. But this abominable thing was even more frequent in the great Persians cuts by Galerius and Diocletian.

Here is the sentence pronounced against a Christian yours, named Irene by one of the "good judges"
from that time: |
I don't want you to perish like them, (his comloincloths condemned to death) immediately: but I or-given that by the guards and by Zozime, executioner public, you are exposed naked in the brothel*...

No one dared approach her to wither her, and, the next day, Irene was burned alive like her sisters.

Among all the parts of the East, Egypt deserves to be...
Diionale is the one where the cruelties seem inspired by the most infernal imagination. "In the Thebaid, Eusebius tells us that the sufferings of the martyrs-they still passed what they had been elsewhere. What-Sometimes they were torn apart until death, not by iron nails, but using broken pottery.

1. See: Mr. Paul Allard, History of the persecutions during the first two centuries, p. 225. History of the persecutions during-during the first half of the third century, pp. 52, 379, 397. The last persecutions of the third century, p. 15, 237. The perse-Diocletian's cut, vol. 1, p. 347.

2. M. Paul Allard, La perséc. de Dioclétiens, t. I, p. 283.

We witnessed the ignoble and cruel spectacle of women being attacked dropped by one foot, head down, without clothes and lifted by machines. Men had the legs tied to tree branches that were brought together one from the other, then violently separated to to tear the bodies of the martyrs in two. All this was done, not for a few days, or a few months, but for several years." (MP Allart, The Persecution of Diocl., vol. 1, pp. 350-351).

The odious Galerius perfected the torture of fire.
for the use of Christians whom his fanaticism abhorred-born:

He wanted them to burn only slowly.
When a worshipper had been tied to the post, a flame-my light was first lit under her feet until that the skin of the heel, charred, detached from the bones.
Torches were then passed all over his body.
extinguished and reduced to burning embers. From time to time

At times, they made him swallow water and they threw it at him.
-was on his face for fear that he might die too soon.
When he had remained for most of
of the day in this state, the skin all roasted, we left-He finally knows how to let fire penetrate to its very core. (MP Al-art, La Perséc. by Diocl., t. II, p. 66-67).

That's how Galère, who restored the most beautiful one.
temples that were erected, Mithras knew how to punish the accused guilty of preferring Christ to God of his Persian Mysteries.

Digitized by Google

IX |

THE DEFEATED INITIATES
BY CHRISTIANITY

All historians worthy of the name insist on the grandiose event that dominates the annals of centuries: the triumph of Christianity over the cruelty, bestiality, the madness of the pagan world.

All historians worthy of the name admit that "selfishness had never been more triumphant,
"nor more greedy, the Society more wicked to the pe-
"For the poor and the humble, life is more precarious and more
"debased that in the century that followed |established-
"The fall of the Empire 1."

That century was the century of Nero. Then came the no less dreadful centuries of the Aurelians, of the Diocletian, of the Galerius, — these crowned Initiates.

---

1. MA Gasquet, Rector of the University of Nancy, Essay...
Mithra, p. 5.

If they failed in their attempts to found an official religion capable of further strengthening and to justify imperial absolutism by deifying their august persons; if despite the haste-servile ment of the followers of all the Se- Societies religious coalitions, the "Divine" Emperors
The priests saw their altars crumble; it was "above all" thanks to the irreconcilable opposition of the Christians!

This is what they don't know — or what they keep quiet about hypocritically — the falsifiers of History for who the word x Christian" is synonymous with im- slave idiot.

The slaves were those devotees of all the Mys-ancient creatures who, lying prostrate before the monsters-very bloodthirsty, having risen to the throne, sought in the old Asian theologies of reasons to believe that their Emperors came from Sun God.

Free men and "free thinkers",
It was the Christians who, despite the torture appalling things invented for them by infamous people scoundrels — like Hierocles, the Philosopher-Initiate — refused until death to proclaim the division unity of idols and executioner-emperors.

And it was their invincible courage that destroyed the old world of iniquity based on slavery and on the exploitation of the weak by the privileged cor-circuit breakers, however, for the first time, their apostles called all men to fraternize-to unite in the same love of Good. "Among them, he
There is no secret teaching, there are no such things

---

1. M. Cumont, Textes et Monum... Mithra, p. 292.

Symbols with 4 double and triple meanings that we do not discover that with caution and at long intervals at the Initied up and some of whom remain as privileged The sole authority of the pontiffs... Only Christianity repudia the principle of long and difficult initiations ciles..." (A. Gasquet, Essay... Mithra, p. 107).

“In our country,” said Tatian, “it is not only the
The rich who have access to wisdom. We distribute it. to the poor and for nothing. Whoever wants to learn, cantre t. » |

In pagan society, only the upper classes and educated women were initiated and took part in the Mysteries res... (On the contrary) Christianity was immediately the popular religion, that of the humble, of the simpleples, especially that of the suffering, of all those who
The official religion alienated or offended with its pride.
cruel and the arrogance of his prejudices. Nothing is more foreign to ancient culture, nothing in front-Celsus and his contemporaries that the predilection of Jesus for the wretched, the children, the sinners...

“Your doctors,” Origen wrote, “act like these me-doctors who keep their remedies for the rich and born
"Is the common people negligent?", and even better, Saint Augustine:
"In pagan temples, this voice is not heard:"
“Come to me, all you who suffer.” They disdain to come To understand that God is gentle and humble of heart.
You have hidden these things from the wise and learned, and "Have you revealed them to the meek and humble?"

---

1. Tatian, Adver. Graec., 32. — Tatian, one of the most mad-poor Christian writers, painted a poignant picture of the appalling oppression which, in his time, weighed upon the humble. See the account of his conversion. Orat., 29.

2. Origen, Contra Cels, book. VII, 60.

3. Saint Augustine, Confess. book. VII, 21.

For the first time, with the preaching of the Gospel,
The heaven of beatitudes opened up to the poor people.
(M. Gasquet, Essay... Mithra, p. 107 to 110).

The initiatory Secret Societies had during long centuries corrupted, enslaved the masses po- | popular people whom they reduced to abjection, to despair pear. 2 3 |
Christianity purified them, liberated them, replaced at the heart of hope.

Isn't it true to say that Christianity has lifted the world up and renewed it?

X

RENAISSANCE
GNOSTIC MYSTERIES AND MANICHEAN

\

What a pile of manure had been heaped up across the entire empire!
Roman, as we have shown, In what rages
The Initiates, cruel as they were, sought to save their system.
a millennia-old theme of limitless oppression, we
As we said: "despite the laws and the imperial police", despite the crosses and the tortures, Christianity has "accomplished this marvel of triumphing over the world" ancient! ".

Transition from Mithraism to Christianity?, Cons-Tantin the Great was the supreme instrument of the
The fall of Paganism — a fall which, except for the reaction Julien's very short-lived paganism, had to be challenged nitive.

---

1. M. Cumont, Textes et Monum... Mithra, t.1., p.343.

2. It is Julian the Apostate who reproaches his uncle Constantin in one of his speeches.
©

All the authors who have studied the Mysteries Ancient thinkers have observed this: once Christianity Victorious, so the Societies collapse.

Pagan secrets. In recent times they were now supported only by the administration imperial administration that maintained them. But (a very striking thing) the doctrines of the old Initiates had such deep roots-of and perennial in Egypt, Persia, Greece, even before the Mysteries of Isis and To unravel — those enormous trees they had grew in Memphis and Eleusis — had they felled, the foliage had already emerged from the ground dense with countless Gnostic sects and Manichean, all organized into Secret Societies yours, within Christianity which was tearing itself apart penetration of pagan errors.

This is how, from the first century AD appear, straddling Christianity and the Paganism, new brotherhoods of Initiates, sisters junior members of the old Secret Societies that they will to replace them by perpetuating their ancient daydreams, or cruel, or depraved, or terrifying, full of magic, debauchery, and blood.

Pre-Christian Secret Societies, we pas-sounds therefore here to the Secret Societies which were and continue to be essentially anti-Christian (no pun intended).

In the preface to his work on "The Sects and Secret Societies! » Le Couteulx

---

1. Le Couteulx de Canteleu, Sects and Secret Societies, Paris, Libr. academic., 1863.
= i de Canteleu said in excellent terms that Generally, their true goal, for all of them, has always been, is and always will be the struggle against the Church and religion Christian...

All secret societies have had initiations.
roughly analogous from the Egyptians to the Enlightened, and all of them more or less used the magic, charlatanism, phantasmagoria, etc.
(Preface, p. 10).

...Almost all Secret Societies are linked, giving birth to one another... (Preface,
. P. XI).

This is how, in the most proven way, the Mithraic Mysteries (we will establish this later)
continued in Manichaeism.
On its side, Gnosis is linked to the Mysteries of Isis at the same time as all the Eastern theogonies syncretized tales, — including Abasic Judaism-late from the Cabal.

And we will see the Manicheans as the Gnostics divided into initiatory grades, with secrets and oaths, absolutely comme in Memphis and Eleusis, absolutely as as in the current Lodges of our Freemasons Masons. | E

Furthermore, the Gnostics and the Manicheans, of even the Freemasons, who claimed to exercise to establish a right of domination over the vulgar Pro-Fanes: doesn't their wisdom as initiates elevate them?
above the rest of humanity?

In short, it's Paganism organized into brotherhoods.
secrets that the Sectarians will thus resurrect Gnose and Mani, as well as the Franks-

Modern Freemasons are accused by Leo XIII of to revive naturalism, a form of pan-Theism 1.

There is no doubt about it: an uninterrupted chainpue connects the exploitative and corrupting Initiates of passed on to the corrupt and exploitative Freemasons today's authors.

Gnosis:

Multitudes reduced to yet another form of slavery — even more cruel and plunged into an abjection of increasingly infamous, while a handful of amperverse philanderers and decadent scholars shared They were engrossed in the pleasures of power, such was, in In summary, the social state of the ancient world that ChristTianism came to purify.

By virtue of the Great Word: “Therefore render to Caesar what is Caesar's, and to God what is God's. "God?", Christianity strove to separate the — religious power and civil power that all pagan empires and all secret societies leaders had confused, enslaved one to the other in order to enslave souls as the bodies.

It is this same confusion of powers, conducive to to the "clerical" tyranny of supposedly superior Initiates those familiar with the subject, what will the doctrines and the teachers tend to do? nes and the actions of the Sectarians of Gnosis.

1. Encyclical Humanum Genus.
2. Gospel of St Luke, chap. xx, v. 25.

>

Most Gnostic sects shared humandivided into three fractions: the hylics, or materials, the psychic, or initiates of the lower degree, and the pneuthe only things that achieved the fullness of revelation lation. Some, like the Carpocratians, estipossessed sufficient Gnosis to assume to secure salvation, and even, if we are to believe their enemies, to free oneself from all religious and moral laws. But in the eyes of others, and they were the majority, It was necessary to include certain theurgic ceremonies, such as baptism, which constituted the proper initiationsaid ment and the Last Supper which brought about Punion with the powerful -higher sessions. Before receiving baptism, one had to swear an oath not to reveal anything of the Mysteriesinformation that was about to be communicated. (Mr. Goblet d'Alviella, Eleusinia, p. 121).

We find gathered here among the Gnostics: the secret and teachings of the initiatory Societies of old, proud pretensions to an essential superiority over other men, the magic hypocritically hidden beneath ceremonies nemeses whose names alone are Christian; finally, the disorders of all kinds.

We will return to the immorality of the Gnosticks, so well transmitted by them, through the ages, to their direct heirs, the Albigensians. Waiting for Therefore, we need to give an overview of Gnosis, "this grandiose counterfeit of the Gospel", "which aims at nothing less than summarizing all the religions and all ancient philosophies!

1. Freppel, Saint Irénée, p. 183.

Jewish and Neoplatonic origins of Gnosis.

This is what Gnosis and the Gnostics are: an enphilosophical and religious teaching provided to initiates, teaching based on Christian dogma, mixed with pagan philosophy, assimilating all of this which, in the most diverse religions, could astonishto win over the believers or to adorn the system with splendor beauty and magnificence capable of dazzling the eyes.

At the heart of Gnosticism, there is only one single thread. Each initiate who had become a master was free to apply the the cleanest embroideries to best highlight its thought; hence comes the fact that the core of the systems is somewhat almost identical, from Simon Magus to Valentine, although The exposure varies and the plot becomes more logical and tighter. (M. Amélineau, Essay on Gnosticism) -= Egyptian. Thesis for the Doctorate in Letters, Paris, Leroux, 1887, p. 13).

The founder of the oldest sect

Gnostics, Simon the Magician was originally from country of Samaria, — of that region where the Hebrews, heavily mixed with Chaldean settlers, practiced a long time ago, a very corrupt Mosaic of pagan elements: Simon Magus, in addition, had probably studied in Alexandria in the cena- the Neo-Platonic keys that Philo led, that who was called the "Jewish Plato".

"The affinity of his doctrine with that of Philo is obvious... and Simon Magus is one of the contemporaries. Philo's lines that come closest to the doctor | "Jew." (M. Amélineau, Essay... p. 30).

We can thus understand that Simon (who is shown to us) in chapter 8 of the Acts of the Apostles as practicing magic and becoming the antagonist of Saint Peter) was imbued with both the old Chaldean myths and this mixture of Jewish ideas and Hellenic, which constituted the doctrine of Philon.

Simon the Magician's system combines well Indeed, all these diverse elements: for him, the The universal principle is Fire, (like El-Gibil, — the Lord Fire of the ancient Accads of Chaldea). But the Hebraist Simon offers this as "proof" the verse in the Bible that speaks of the bush ardent! It is from this that he concludes that God is a Fire that burns and consumes!! But Fire does not express that the active side of the divine nature; Simon the envious-wise still in its form of Eternity, immutable; It is then Immutability personified that he He calls by this biblical name: "He who is, has been and will be." These two aspects constitute for him two separate beings, as in the theo-Syrian gonies where Baal and "Tanit, face of Baal" represented the Male Principle and the Female Principle of the primordial androgynous divine.

Then Simon sees emanating from these first two "Aeons" (that is the name of these divine beings) six other Aeons, including three males — the Spirit, the Voice, Reasoning — coupled with three female Aeons — the — Thought, the Name, and Reflection? —. Ha- we are told that all this is from Plato ha-

1. M. Amélineau, Essay... p. 33.
2. M. Amélineau, Essay... p. 34.

billed by Philo in the oriental style, and let us add that Simon The Mage claimed to explain his system-me with the help of certain verses from the Bible, by him tortured.

Here comes now — to combine with these heterogeneous elements — Christian ideas distorted as well as devoid of quackery of every kind of shame:

The Savior (according to Simon) descended from the upper world-'laughing: he changed shape to pass through the middle of the Angels... without being recognized; it was Simon himself. In Judea, he revealed himself to the Jews as the Son; In the land of Samaria, he appeared to the Samaritans as the Father; and in the pagan lands, he revealed himself like the Holy Spirit... On earth he had begun to the search for the lost sheep, that is to say Epinoia (the Divine thought); he had found it in a house of He had bought her for prostitution in Tyre and was driving her there. everywhere with him; she was then called Helen. (M. Amélineau, Essay... p. 48).

The adventure of this Holy Spirit woman descends due on earth in a house of prostitution to be married there by Simon Magus, who embodied the union of God the Son — such is the supposedly Christian of this primitive Gnosis! And here are the tales of the Judaizing sorcerer of Samaria who gave-giving birth to the dizzying swarm of Societies Secrets of Gnosticism! We can see that the The simoniacal myth also goes hand in hand with the Isiac and Eleusinian myths, along with that of

1. She is one of the first female Aeons, "Thought", of which the fall into matter gave rise to the material world, according Simon the Magician. (AB)

Modern Freemasonry, where the
The love affair between Solomon and the Queen of Sheba.

Subsequently, a new Jewish tributary came to swell the river of Gnosticism; I mean the Kabbalah — and the Talmud which supplied the Gnostic sects the most bizarre conceptions about the value of mys-number and letter tick of the alphabet.

Regarding Markos, a disciple of Valentine, who came preaching his doctrine of arithmetic mysticism in Lyon tick, of a truly disconcerting madness,

It is impossible, writes Msr Freppel, to push Further on, the cult of unreason. It is the process of a a man for whom absurdity takes the place of profundity.
(Freppel, Saint Irenaeus, p. 284).

The Vaientinian Gnosis.

Markos's master, Valentin, who was Egyptiantien, of course, gave his system an al-profoundly Isiac lure: in his thesis for the Mr. Amélineau, PhD in Letters, demonstrates, by the comparison of ancient Egyptian texts with Gnostic texts, such as the 'Initiation to Gnosis' Valentinian was of absolutely Egyptian origin tienne. But as Mr. Amé- so aptly puts it Lineau in the passage we quoted: this Isiac initiation is merely an embellishment of a
The pattern remained the same. Indeed, if we move on 1

---

1. M. Amélineau, Essai..., p. 313, etc.

has

from the gnosis of Simon Magus to the valenti- gnosis nienne, we see that the names of the Aeons chan-.
kind of, but the core of the myth is remained identical to itself, that is to say, of essence Judeo-Platonic. If Christ (who became one of the thirty Aeons of the Pleroma, that is to say, of Olympus (Gnostic) descended to earth, said Valentin, it is to teach men "the Science of God the Father, Gnosis. Those who are capable of able to acquire it, the Tires, once Having reached this perfect Science, "they no longer need" good works to bring about their salvation; none defilement cannot touch them, whereas it is necessary to the Psychics precepts, laws, a self- - "Criticality and external teaching?"

As long as no contamination can reach-to the Gnostics who became Pneumatics 3, one can consider the deplorable consequences © driven by this prideful dogma to the point of view of the morality of the sectarians of Gnosticism.

So, if an excessive mysticism is the basis
From Gnosticism, we see that the deductions of a spirituality morbid ritualism quickly led to 4 crimi-
new materialities. | | |

And from then on, there is filth, disorder, and all

---

1. See the analysis of the Valentinian system, Freppel, Saint Irenaeus, p. 241, 242, according to the treatise Adversus Hæreses, of Saint Irenaeus, 1. I, c. I.

2. Freppel, Saint Irénée, p. 253.

3. Do we want to know the seven successive grades through which Where did the Valentinian Gnostics go? Here they are according to Amé-Lineau: Borborian, Coddian, Soldier, Poor Man, Zacchaeus and Son of the Lord. (Essay on the Gnostic... Paris, 1887, p. 240, etc.)

the crimes that followed, which we find fatal-chained to the Secret Societies of the Gnostiques as well as to all those that preceded them.

Gnostic immorality.

The "lax morality!" of Gnosticism does not
No doubt. Besides, it's not very clear at the Name of what principle could a pneumatic have abstain from any action that is also blameworthy.
as possible in a layperson, as long as The difference between moral and immoral does not exist.
no longer for him, and no defilement can anymore tarnish the ermine of his soul, — whatever his body. | |

Furthermore, the facts are there: there was, in the adadministration of the Gnostic sacraments, some details which, from an emblematic point of view, had a sense of a certain purity, but of which he-
This would lead, in practice, to all sorts of consequences as immoral as the imitation of the wedding feasts born of Adonis and Astarte by the devotees and the devotees of their temples.

Pascal said: "He who acts too much like an angel acts like a beast."
This proverb could not be applied more perfectly.
than to the Valentinian sectarians with their "chamber nuptial" which served as a baptistery.

"We'll see about that in a little while."

1. M. Amélineau, Essai..., p. 327.

`

Angelic wedding.

According to the Extracts from Theodotus which reproduce the Valentinian tradition of the East, the Pneumatics, After their death, they will go to the Ogdoad to take part in an eternal banquet, reminiscent of the banquet of the righteous of Plato. (M. Goblet d'Alviella, Eleusinia, p. 122).

The Ogdoad is the group of the first eight Aeons; it is within them that the Pneumatics will go and enjoy eternal bliss. But what was it?
What about this eternal banquet? — A wedding feast. And Saint Clement of Alexandria explains it to us in this way in Theodotus' Extracts:

"Then the Pneumatics, having stripped the soul psychically, they will receive angels as spouses, as Their own mother has received a husband; they will enter in the bridal chamber located in the Ogdoad, in the presence of the Spirit, that is to say of Sophia' and of Jesus, who is called spirit; they will become aeons
Being intelligent, they will participate in a spiritual wedding. and eternal." (Translated by M. Amélineau, Essay on the Gnost. égypt., p. 228).

'Let's not forget to mention in passing that these fantasies of celestial marriages between angels and the beatified human souls were taken back by the high-ranking Freemason Swedenborg, one of the fathers of Martinist Freemasonry at eighteenth century.

1. Sophia, Wisdom, the Valentinian equivalent of Helen or Epinoia, the "Divine Thought" of Simon Magus. (AB)

You will find the theory of soulmates and the metamorphoses of men becoming angels presented in a prestigious manner by Balzac, in her novel Seraphita.

Like the Isiac Mysteries and the Ones.
Gnostic mysteries were anticipated before the [Initiates the journeys of souls after the death; their marriages with the angels of the Pleroma there were also represented.

The baptistery of the Valentinians, writes Mr. Goblet d'Alviella, was therefore called "the room
"nuptial!" There's a term that, however spiritualized it may be...
may be, singularly recalls the "nuptial bed", the pastos of the Eleusinian Epoptium. (M. Goblet d'Alviella, Eleusin., p. 123).

We saw the "hierogamies," the marriages sacred gods and goddesses represented by per-living sonnages in the Greek Mysteries. One does not He will therefore not be surprised to hear Tertullian accuse the Valentinians for having copied Eleusis and "trans-"Formed the Eleusinian Mysteries into prostitution?"

Another leader of the Gnostic school, Bardesanes, was going even promising the Pneumatiques a wedding union with Sophia, the heavenly wife of Christ. (See Matter, Hist. of Gnosticism, t. I, p. 378. — Mr. Goblet d’Alviella, Eleus., p. 123).

There's no need to dwell on the abundant follies.

eroticism is germinating in this idea of mysticism extravagant.

1. Saint Irenaeus, Opposite. Haeres., I, xx1, 3.

`. 2. Tertull. Opponent. Valent., Paris, Ed. 1634, p. 289. — Mr. Goblet, Eleus., p. 123. — See also Eusebius, Ecclesiastical History, IV, 11.

Despite its flaws, Gnosticism occupies a place considerable in the intellectual history of the genre human. The poisoned stream whose source.
is in Samaritane at Simon the Magician's house, he grew up until it becomes a huge river where most Later, heretics drew upon it. That's how it was.
that Mr." Freppel — then a professor at the Faculty of Catholic Theology! of Paris — in its Sorbonne lectures, demonstrated the lineage
Gnostic of Arius and of Muhammad himself.

No one could deny, he said, that the daydreams of Gnosticism took shape in the sects of the Middle Ages.
Age, such as the Paulicians, the Cathars, the Albi-Geois and Vaudois: on both sides, it's absolutely the same spirit and the same countenance. Luther is a Gnostic... It has long been demonstrated that the theosophy of Jacob Boehme, the father of Illuminism Protestantism is merely a resurrection of theories.
Gnostics. (Freppel, Saint Irenaeus, Sorbonne lectures, 1860-1861, Paris, Retaux, 1860, p. 184).

The Albigensians — that is to say, all the ignominious denied with the most horrific massacres!

The Reformation — the German princes and Scan-imposing dinaves, iron in hand, the new belief, with the Preachers at their side, nou-corrupting Mages, these new Artaeager to rule over souls as well as over The bodies!

1. Before, in fact, the modern Initiates of Franc-Even if Freemasonry had become our complete masters, there were Catholic Theology Faculties belonging to the State.
Today, only Protestants and Jews have, in France,

Faculties of Theology. By virtue of the great PRIRIES of equality-lit, apparently.

Jacques Bœhme — and with him Swedenborg,
Martinès de Pasqually, Freemasonry Mar-
Tinist, whose astonishing mysticism we will discuss.

What a lineage!

Julian the Apostate, the Gnostics and the Jews.

After the Christian reigns of Constantine and his sons, Constantine's own nephew, Julian the Apostate, baptized but later initiated into Mysteries of Mithras, was the instigator of a powerful pagan reaction.

While Constantine (as history demonstrates) did not retaliate against the pagans who had just subjected the Church to the horrible per-sections that we have described, — on the contrary, Julian's reign was marked by cruelties atrocious acts carried out, under the ironic gaze of the emperor, by the pagans against the Christians.
This is what pagan tolerance looked like Masonic tolerance, which we have under the eyes, such sad examples!

But the reign of Julian presents us with res-even more striking similarities with events we have just witnessed: Falclose alliance concluded in the Dreyfus Affair, between certain Protestant fanatics, the Franc-French Freemasonry as a whole and the Israelites;
— not to mention the current persecution.

It is the Bishop of Fréjus, Monsignor Arnaud, who is speaking:

Julien, the depraved philosopher, barely crowned emperor, had declared himself an opponent of Christianity of which he had been a follower, and, with an ardor that one cannot He had not known her until then; he was seen to devote himself to the restoration of the old gods.

He was due to meet for his anti-Christian work useful collaborators among the members of the Societies secret and among the Jews, the heretics, the scholars who
They were then called sophists. To these powerful allies Added to this were an infamous rabble, an innom-A group of people without a confession (the Apaches of the time). Under the action of so much hatred, fostered by those in power, the Christians were banned from commerce, from the magistrature, of education; the churches were closed by violence and their property were confiscated; the associations religious associations were dissolved, while the Jewish communities were preserved; the disrepute-rations were thrown to the clergy at all ranks of the hierarchy; the clergy were incorporated into the army, the bishops were silenced or condemned to exile: justice and what is right seem-
They admitted to having succumbed on all points, because no
No recourse was possible before human courts.

Will not impartial history tell us about France, in our time, that it offered the agitated spectacle of the
A bleak period that we have just outlined?
(Mer Arnaud, Pastoral Letter 1903. — Quoted by M. Al-Bert Monniot, Libre Parole, May 26, 1903.)

Why this union of the pagan Julian and the heretics of Gnosticism, half-pagans, with the Children of Israel? That's because:

Julien's perceptive gaze had quickly recognized, among the Jews, the best allies in the war deaf, incessant, undeclared, but all the more so more effective and more treacherous than what he did to the Christians...

(MP Allard, Julien the Apostate, Paris, Lecoffre, 1903,
t. HI, p. 131.)

"So much for their natural turbulence (of the Jews)," said Saint Gregory of Nazianzus, whose age-old enmities... designated them as Julien's assistants! (MP Allard, Jul. l'Apost. t. HI. p. 132).

Later, we will see that the rites of the Modern Freemasonry was instituted by the Judaizing Kabbalist Elias Ashmole, likewise that it was already through the Judaizer Simon Magus that the primordial myth of the Gnosis.

'And we saw under the proconsulship of |
Mr. Waldeck, the former student of the religious order _ Nantes, the Freemasons unite with the Jews as The Gnostics had allied themselves with Israel under the Reign of Julian the Apostate.
The parallel is complete. It makes it all very clear.
the age-old affinities linking Kabbalah to the Gnosis stemming from Philo, the Jewish Plato, and Simon the Mage, as well as to Freemasonry.

Let's compare.

Without yet abandoning benevolent patience which characterizes them throughout the centuries — up to the day when the measure is truly full — the Christians harassed by the Jews of Palestine, under — Julian the Apostate, had not exercised any action against them no reprisals of any kind after the death of tyrant. Moreover, wrote Saint Ambrose:

1. Saint Gregory of Naz, Oration V. 3.

our basilicas were burned down by the Jews and They gave us nothing in return, they gave us nothing.
claimed. (Saint Ambrose, Epistles 50, 18.)

In 615, the roles changed: it was the turn of the
The Christians of Judea were at a disadvantage. Amadeus Thierry will tell us how the Jews imitated

Christian gentleness.

The year 615, he wrote, had been marked by the Persians to be the last of the Christians across the entire area of Palestine. Indeed, towards the end of May, a formidable army, commanded by Roumizan, nicknamed Scharhavbar, meaning the Royal Boar.
a skilled but cruel general, and an ally of King Chosroes, came crashing down on Galilee and swept across both banks of the Jordan... leaving only ruins. One A large Christian population crowded into these places sanctified by the preaching of the Gospel...

After the looting and burning of the houses, the residents chained to one another were dragged in slavery vage to go and colonize, under the whips of the Persians, the marshes of the Tigris and Euphrates.

Jewish merchants, carrying purses full of gold, marched in troops behind the army, redeeming the more than they could take of Christian captives, not for to save them, but to slaughter them themselves and their Preference was given to important figures, to the city magistrates, to the beautiful and wealthy women, to nuns, to priests. The money they paid to the Persian soldiers for having Christians to mutilate came from contributions to which all Jews were taxed, each in proportion to their wealth.
with the intention of this abominable work that they believed they were worthy in the eyes of God. History affirms that ninety thousand Christians thus perished under the knife of these fanatics. (Amédée Thierry, Hist. of Attila and his Successors, Paris, 1860, vol. II, p. 47

48, 49). |

Thirteen centuries later, in the Dreyfus Affair,
We heard Mr. de Freycinet take legal action terrible deposition about their foreign intro-Made in France. This gold also came from "imposed contributions".
Let's now compare, on the exploits of Palestinian Jews, auxiliaries of the Persians, the story by Amédée Thierry with that of Mr. Théodore Reinach in his History of the Israelites:

The Jews of Palestine, at the instigation of a certain Benjamin of Tiberias joined the Persian army, entered with her into Jerusalem, "614, and exercised their duties there, It is said that there were cruel reprisals. (Théod. Reinach, Hist. of Israel., Paris, 1884, p. 44).

"A flawless sonnet alone is worth a long poem."
so they say.

But, while a very reliable historian like Amédée Thierry speaks of ninety thousand Christians and Christian men “mutilated”, murdered, the is it said of Mr. Théodore Reinach that he is not worth
Also, a long poem all by itself?

The Reinach family is a family of history Torians. If from the year 614 we move to the times present, with the History of the Dreyfus Affair by the F.: Joseph Reinach, these are pearls from the Orient even purer than what we will find in this an eminently Judeo—Masonic work.

It is no longer a question of ninety thousand Christians

They're tortured. This time, it's France that is assassinated — assassinated by the Dreyfus party.
This is the truth that needed to be obscured and denied.
F.: Joseph Reinach made a concerted effort, with great assistance writing desks. Did he succeed in his case? Better that Mr. Théodore Reinach with his sleight of hand of the ninety thousand victims "mutilated" by his gentle coreligionists?

Mr. Charles Maurras will tell us, in the ner—
the lovely preface he gave to Mr. Henri's book Dutrait—Crozon!, this book which obtained nearly
The Dreyfusard party's most flattering and most Well deserved. A wonderful ensemble, indeed.
No Dreyfusard publication has mentioned it: Therefore...

Mr. Reinach's book, says Mr. Maurras, is one of the worst books in the world, but the criticism of this book was supposed to be one of the best works of our language or not exist. A masterpiece or Nothing was forced. After leaving the public in suspense
For a while, Mr. Henri Dutrait—Crozon... brought the masterpiece.

Joseph Reinach is a beautiful and powerful thing.
historian...

Its probative force is irrefutable. What more can be said?
What to oppose, what to respond to the discovery of the page 213? And what if we remember that the discoveries of the same force press through the other five hundred Pages? We will read this masterpiece in its chapter in Joseph Reinach, historian. But I cannot... to fish by detaching it to inscribe it on this frontispiece, because it is as beautiful as it is true.

---

1. Henri Dutrait—Crozon, Joseph Reinach, historian, Paris
Savacte bookstore, 1905.

So, on page 213 of the book where he did me the honor of Mr. Henri Dutrait—Crozon invited me to speak before him.
continuing its intellectual policing operation and morally, observe that according to the first volume of The History of the Dreyfus Affair (and, says Mr. Reinach, in (by virtue of a Machiavellian calculation by Colonel Henry) "the photograph of the slip was not in the file of "Pavocat," "Demange had not been able to consult the original than at the registry”; “the lawyer did not have the photo in hand—
"Graphing of the only incriminating document." These sentences are written on page 391 of volume I of Mr. Reinach, which consequently, Demange is criticized for not having su require "an essential document" (id., ibid.).

However, at the Zola trial (1, 384, 385), Mr. Demange testified that there had been "facsimiles", "photographs"
"phies" of the slip for each of the judges and that,
As for himself, he had received his copy and then had returned it.

Mr. Reinach's allegation was therefore false. Aim Wait, because he made more than one mistake. In volume II of
In his History, page 424, Mr. Reinach writes: “In 1894, while all those who had received facsimiles of the Bordeaux had returned them, according to expert Teyssonnières.
had kept his own.” And in a footnote: Zola Trial, I, 185, Itches.

“Thus,” notes Mr. Henri Dutrait-Crozon, “thus Reinach refers specifically to Mr. De-'s statement eats that we have just mentioned, which does not prevent it not, in volume I, to calmly assert that the lawyer did not have in his possession in 1895 the photograph of the border dereau.

"There is no reason to be overly surprised by this a blatant inconsistency, because we recognize the process here dear to Reinach. In Volume I, the declaration of Me De-eats the gene: it eliminates it; in volume II, it has needed to attack Mr. Teyssonnières: he invokes.

xf to
It's about argumentation, it's personal work.
historian. » |

These edifying observations do not move Mr. Henri Dutrait-Crozon. Far from being indignant, he barely even admire the champion's highly "personal" methods Justice; her intelligent curiosity is illuminated on its own-a small, mocking smile at the size and the volume of some of the foolish things observed in Mr. Reinach, or certain faults noted with delight. “Bernard Lazare was,” said Mr. Reinach, “of the race Jews celebrated in the Gospel: they roam the earth and “The sea to make a convert.” Mr. Dutrait-Crozon quotes and kindly adds: "We fully associate ourselves-ment to the application that Mr. Reinach makes to the verse of Saint Matthew. It is indeed good for the race of Reinach, Bernard Lazare and others, that Christ he exclaimed: “Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocries, because you travel over the sea and the land to make a proselyte, and when you have done so, you make him twice as worthy of hell you.” And, giving the author and the page (Saint Matthew, XXIII, 15), the critic leads us to believe that if Mr. Reinach has repeatedly truncated the texts out of a sense of humor. Whether through partisanship or fraudulent intent, it is also arrived from misunderstanding, as here, through naivety of nature-real, or rather, what is more subtle, but real, by ingrained habit of pulling texts to one's own ends until their to make them say the opposite of their true meaning.

The newspaper Le Soleil gave a six-month-long a regular feature of "fake Reinach" selected from the finest products of the daily harvest of the Gazette. It is therefore a fact that two newspapers Parisians, one from the evening, the other from the morning, denounced, for half a year, all the odious treatments inflicted by Mr. Reinach on the most certain truths. But that's another fact that Mr. Reinach has never

It was risky to respond to this criticism only once. (Henri Dutrait-Crozon, Joseph Reinach, historian, Paris, Savaète, 76, rue des Saints-Péres, 1905. Preface by Ch. Maurras, pp. XXXIX, XL, XLI.)

Manes and the Manicheans.

We have seen astrology reign in the Mithraic Mysteries.

This, said Mr. Cumont, is a more powerful religion that this false science, the Persian Mysteries were to bequeath, along with their hatred of the Church, their ideas cardinal directions and their influence on the masses.

Manichaeism, although it was the work of one man and not the product of a long evolution, was united to these Mysteries through multiple affinities. (The Mani-"Cheism (like Mithraism) had formed one and the other in the East, a mixture of the old religion Babylonian with Persian dualism and had become com-incorporated into the sequence of Hellenic elements. The sect de Manés spread throughout the Empire during the 5th century key, at the moment when Mithraism was dying and it was called upon to inherit his estate. All the Mystics that the Church's polemic against paganism had shaken without converting them, they were seduced by a faith conciliatory, which made it possible to bring together in the same Zoroaster and Christ worship. Widespread distribution that the tinged Mazdaean beliefs had obtained Chaldeanism had prepared minds to welcome heresy; this found the paths made easy, and that is where the secret of its sudden expansion. The doctrines Mithraic temples thus renovated were expected to withstand for | centuries of persecution and resurrection still in a new form in the middle of the Middle Ages

Age, to stir up the old Roman world again. (Mr. Franz Cumont, Texts and Monum.... Mithra, t. I, p. 349, 350).

...Manes was a former (Persian) slave raised by his mistress in all the knowledge of Persia.
Skilled at concealing his thoughts, he covered them with a tint Christian doctrines borrowed from the Sciences occult practices of Egypt, Persian dualism, and dream-Gnostic lines. (MP Allard, The Last Persecutions) of the 4th Century, p. 270).

So, at Manés, we have both magic Egyptian and Gnosticism combined with the dua-Persianism, that is to say the religion of Ahura-Mazda, the Principle of Good, and Ahriman, the Principle of Evil — the latter being the evil god-will which appears in the Mithraic bas-reliefs in the form of the snake trying to drink the blood of the primordial bull.

Saint Epiphanius said that magical practices
The Manicheans borrowed from both Egypt and India. Like the formerly "Chaldean"
The word "Manichean" became synonymous with sorcerer.
deplorable morals and rites of a particular nature Immorality is also attributed to the disciples of Mani!

On the other hand, Manes seems to have benefited from the writings of Scythianus, Kabbalist or Judaizing Gnostic who... would have lived in the time of the apostles. (Matter, Hist.
Critique of Gnosticism, vol. III, p. 72).

…Manès reveals himself to be both a Mage, a Zoroastrian, and Gnostic. (For him) the good discourse has as its symbol the:

---

1. MP Allard (The Persecution of Diocletian, vol. I, p. 94) refers to the Dictionary of Christian Biography (Art. Mani-chaeans, t. HI, p. 798).

light, and for domain the empire of all that is pure; the evil god rules the empire of evil and of darkness. (/d., id., p. 79).

In the partly Gnostic system of Manes, divine Thought, the Sophia of valent gnosis
The nian woman becomes "The Mother of Life," and the Adam-Kadmon, which is found among the Kabbalists and The Rosicrucians of the Middle Ages. Finally, the "First "Man" has a son who is "Christ".

The Christ of the Manicheans therefore has absolutely Nothing orthodox.

We know the legend that is at the basis of the Modern Freemasonry: it deals with a angel who seduces Eve and becomes the father of the ancestors Hiram's family, along with Balkis's, Queen of Sheba. This legend is of Gnostic origin.
— and particularly the sect of the Ophites. — A A similar legend belongs to Manichaeism which thus finds itself possessing among its sacred myths the very one that we know to be one of the foundations rituals of modern Freemasonry,

Constantly fought and still standing at throughout the centuries, these are indeed, said Mr. Matter, Manicheans that the various heretics "who tried from time to time to substitute for foreigners speculations and a no less bizarre morality to the dogma and institutions of the Church.” (M. Matter, Hist. Critique du Gnosticisme, t. III, p. 95).

---

1. It is very well summarized by Le Couteulx de Canteleu, According to Masonic historians F.-. Reghellini of Scio, F.. Vassal, FF.:. Kauffmann and Cherpin, F... Ragon, etc.
(Le Coult. de Cant., Les Sectes et Sociétés Secrètes, Paris, 1863, pp. 19-26).

Persian anarchists.

From the 1st century onwards, the roots left in the ground by the old tree of the Initiation of the Magi several offshoots sprouted next to the ManiCheism. These were always sects, at least partially. Gnostics, like that of Mani. The main one, which was also the most numerous, was that of Mastekiyé, or followers of Mastek; she preached universal equality and freedom, the ruin of all religions, indifference to all actions human, the community of goods and womenmy. Remarkably, she counted among her the highest-ranking members of the empire Persian?

With such anarchists in charge of business, A catastrophe was to be expected: Persia became prey to the Muslim Arabs.

The Persian Secret Societies, the Mastekiye above all, they actively campaigned among the conquerors, in order to corrupt their beliefs. They quickly succeeded in determining, in Persia, within Islamism, the formation of New Secret Societies, teaching all the transmigration of souls and fighting religion of Muhammad.

In 815, the Persian sect of Babek was founded.

---

1. It is worth noting that the Illuminati of Weishaupt, at 18th century, will take up this program again, almost in its entirety.

2. De Hammer, History of the Order of Assassins, Paris, 1833, pp. 38, 39.

Muslim caliphs took twenty years to exMiner. Then a Secret Society in seven degrees an initiation process was formed, concretizing all the documents trines capable of killing the Muslim faith. In the seventh degree of this sect — as in the Mastek's sect — they taught the vanity of all religion and indifference to all human action. She, too, came from the old religion of the Magi. His doctrine was propagated by the Dais (or messengers); the most famous of them, Karmath He was the founder of the Karmathite sect.

Torrents of blood and cities in ashes revealed will soon bring his existence into the world... Besides the Karmath's doctrine taught that nothing was unsplit, that everything was permitted, indifferent... she was undermining especially the fundamental bases of the religion of Propheta, in that it proclaimed that all its commanders dements were merely presenting, under the veil of Allegory, maxims and political precepts... (De Hammer, Hist. des Assass., p. 47).

The Caliphs of Persia took a century to dedestroy the anarchist gangs of Karmath, including the doctrines offer singular affinities with those that the F.. L. Cl. de Saint-Martin, head of the Martinism, he explained in his work On Errors and of Truth.

The Ismailis of Egypt.

After the crushing of the Karmathites, one of their "canopies" or missionaries named Abdallah managed to escape from Persian prisons. This

An anarchist government seized control of Egypt, and founded the dynasty of the Fatimite Caliphs or Ismailis, who reigned from 909 until 1171.

Alongside this leader of immoral sectarians, "cri-"Minels, propagators of atheism!", which becomes the founder of a powerful dynasty, isn't he? It's interesting to mention our Freemasons.

visits, yesterday without fire or place, today provided and returned safely, along with their predecessors, the Jacoguillotine bins of 1793, lying prone in front Napoleon I, who showered them with positions, disdainful-Sowing?

For nearly three centuries, the Is- Sectarians Mailites who, says Mr. de Hammer, had made themselves a "docile instrument of the founder of the dynasty"
"Who had they placed on that throne?" Were the real ones?
masters of present-day Egypt and Tunisia. They true Lodges called "Assem-
"Wild of Wisdom," where one passed through nine different stages.
Initiation steps. The subtle questions posed to The initiates all aimed to bring them to the most absolute skepticism regarding morality, to _ external forms of religions and governments ments. We will find this process again both _ among the Martinists and among the [Illuminati of Weis-Haupt, in the 17th century.

The sixth of the Fatimid Caliphs, both ins-instrument and nominal Grand Master of the Sect (all as F.:. Philippe-Egalité was for the Freemasons) is still adored today by

1. De Hammer, History of the Order of Assassins, p. 46.
` 2. De Hammer, History of the Order of Assassins, p. 52. -

The Druze of Lebanon, like a god incarnate. (From Hammer, Hist... p. 54). |

We will have said enough about the Kha- dynasty lives of Egypt originally anarchists when we will have added that its founder - to in believing the Caliphs of Baghdad - was not of the everything, as he claimed, a descendant of the daughter of Muhammad, Fatime, but indeed the son of a Israelite. (From Hammer, History)

The Order of Assassins.

In the Ismaili sect that ruled in Egypt, Gnosis transformed into a formidable instrument of tyranny, the Initiates of the 'eighth and penultimate level "had to be convinced" that all actions were indifferent and that he
They had neither reward nor punishment, either on this earth or in the next life. It was only then could this disciple ascend to ninth and final degree; he was ready to serve of an instrument blind to all passions and sur-all stemming from an unlimited desire for domination. All of this -`philosophy could be summed up in two words, not "Believe nothing and dare everything." (From Hammer, History of The Order of Assassins, p. 59). Ha

These frightening principles, I cannot stress them enoughfart, are exactly those that the Illuminati of Weishaupt took over, six centuries later.

These principles, wrote Mr. de Hammer, destroyed completely overturns all religion and all morality, and neu-

rent for no other purpose than to carry out sinister projects that were carried out by skilled ministers for whom nothing was not sacred. We will see them, those who should have to be the protectors of humanity, to surrender to a insatiable ambition and burying oneself under the ruins of thrones and altars, amidst the horrors of lanarshit, after having brought misfortune upon nations and deserved the curses of humankind. (From Hammer, Hist. from the Order of Assassins, p. 59).

Can this not be applied almost to the letter? to the Jacobin Freemasons of 1793? But we
We will see later that the Jacobins proceed from the I]luminates of Weishaupt, whose doctrines are almost identical to those of the Ismailis.

The same causes always produce the same effects: in the 17th century as in the 11th*, abominable Sectarians have sown immorality, anarchy, and this are harvests of crimes after the people have harvested.

The Cairo Lodge, writes Mr. de Hammer, re-He preached his doctrines through canopies... They had under their orders, the Sectarians called Refik or Companions...

The companions, Refik, and the masters, Dais, unon-they were all of Asia and Pun of the latter, Hassan-Ben-Sabah-Homairi became the founder of a new - branch of the sect, that of the Eastern Ismailites or Assassins. (From Hammer, History of the Order of Assassins,
p. 66).

The entire spirit of this new Secret Society is here:

Regardless of one's beliefs or ambition, provided she finds instruments that are sufficiently subservient to carry out her projects? Everything for her is to have skillful slaves, loyal satellites, and blind men henchmen. (Ibid., ibid., p. 73).

Quickly, by iron, fire, poison, trahison, terrible tools wielded by his Initiates, Has-San-Ben-Sabah was the master of a part of Asia.

They were called Fedavis (the Sacred Ones, or those who sacrifice) the executors of Hassan's orders, by through the intermediary of Masters and Companions.
Marco Polo, who made a long journey through Asia, at the time of than the terror spread by these sectarians, ra-
The story goes that the Fedavis, asleep with hashish, (hence their name of Hashishima or Assassins) were transported during their sleep to gardens populated by young girls whom they mistook for Houris of the Muslim Paradise. Once satiated of pleasure, they were put to sleep again to persuade them upon waking that they had had a a foretaste of the joys of the afterlife, joys which... were reserved forever if they devoted themselves to their followers superiors unlimited obedience.

The Fedavis were ready then for anything.
the most difficult crimes to execute, for the ac-
the most extraordinary examples of barbaric fanaticism.
'Henry, Count of Champagne, King of Jerusalem,
He had singular proofs of this before his eyes. He went to visit the leader of the sect, summoned by the crusaders
"The Old Man of the Mountain." The latter led him-sit at one of his castles. On each of the battlements From the highest tower stood a man dressed in white.
"My lord," said the Old Man of the Mountain to the Count, your men would not do for you what the "Mine do it for me." He gives an order in his language: immediately two of these men rushed-

They fall to the ground and exhale, broken by their fall.

Upon entering the castle, Henry saw, fixed near the door, a sharp iron: "I'm going," said the Old Man of the Mountain, to show you how to execute my vo-"Lontés." He threw a piece of cloth he was holding to the hand; at this sign three or four men rushed forward
They fell onto this iron point and perished before the eyes
Henry, who asked his host to leave it at that.

The Old Man of the Mountain gave him jewels and him promised not to have himself or any of his family assassinated, - neither in Palestine nor beyond the seas. (History of Erakeys, emperor, book. XXVI, ch. xxvin.- Hist. occ. of the Crusades, II, 216. - M. Arbois de Jubainville: History
Dukes and Counts of Champagne, Paris, 1865, Grand Prix
(Gobert, vol. IV, p. 58.)

From 1090 to 1260, for nearly two centuries, the
The sect of Assassins covered Asia and Europe with Countless crimes.

The Fedavis, the Sacred Ones bathed in the blood, going across the world to murder at the peril of their lives - sacrificed in advance to their Order - whoever was designated for them by their superiors.

When we think about sudden, strange deaths, unexplained events that occurred during the last few years

Given that they were born, one is entitled, isn't it, to ask oneself which "Old Men of the Mountain," in our midst, arm the arms of new Fedavis. But it us It should be noted in passing that if Fedavi means Sacred, for their part the Sacred or Consecrated of the mysteries of Moloch and Astoreth were called in

Hebrew Kedeshim, of the same name, essentially, as that worn by our Kadoshes of the Masonic Lodges modern things. Our Kadoshes carry a dagger, a dagger is also the "jewel of rank" of Fedavi. |

And these are the daggers of the Kadoshes, do not open them. blions pas, which supplied the iron necessary for to forge the blades of the terrorist guillotine.

The Druze of Lebanon.

By undermining the principles of all morality and In any government, the Ismailis were careful to to dazzle, before the eyes of their followers, the inferior-laughter, a wonderful future where the whole world would be happy under the rule of an Initiated prince, the "Mahadi" (the Ruled One, from whom all come (Past and present Mahdis.) The Druze, who inhabit- They believed they had found a part of the valleys of Lebanon. towards this ideal prince, as we have said, in Al-Hakem-Biamrillah, the sixth Fatimid caliph: they have deified. For more than eight centuries, it is he whom they worship as an incarnation of God, with the the strangest practices, along with under the oath to die rather than break the Silence surrounds the Mysteries of their cult.

One of the precepts in their sacred books states that this religion was too lofty to be known to the infidels. the Druze, to better conceal their mysteries, must outwardly profess the dominant religion of the country where they are located. Thus, in the time of the emir

Beschir, where the Christian element was predominant in The mountain, we saw them coming in droves... to re-to receive baptism. (Francois Lenormant, History of Massacres of Syria. Paris, 1861, p. vill, 1x).

Under Turkish rule, Mr. Lenor- continues They pretended to frequent mosques; in some districts, to gain support from England, they became Protestants before even though the English missionary had begun his sermons!

It is remarkable to note that this hypo- The Druze sectarian crisis, with its half-Manichean leanings, is also one of the characteristics that we find- rons among the Manichean Albigensians at the same time that one of the virtues particular to the Freemasons idiots, especially when they are not in charge.

Caliph Hakem, deified by the Druze, is represented in the form of a male idol calf's head, like the old Moloch adored elsewhere- times in Lebanon. On the other hand, we cited the strange survival of the cult of the female organ in the same mountains, among another sect of the Ismailis, the Nusayris!

In 1838, Sylvestre de Sacy published two volumes

---

1. Here is the text we were referring to: “According to the According to Volney's testimony, the Nosairis, whom he calls Ansariés, are divided into several sects,... including the Qadmousié, who are assured to pay particular homage to the organ which, in women, corresponds to Priapus. It is also asserted, he adds in a footnote, that they have assemblies -at night, that after some reading- Then they turn off the light and mingle like the ancients. Gnostics. (Travels in Syria and Egypt, vol. II, p. 5.) Sylvestre de Sacy, Exposition of the Religion of the Druze, Paris, Imp. Royale, 1838, t. II, p. 571).

to which we refer the reader: Presentation of the The religion of the Druze. It shows the Gnostic lineagethat and Manichean of this branch of the sect Ismaili, penetrated on the other hand by the ancients local dogmas.

The Massacres of 1841.

Three years after its appearance, the book Mr. de Sacy's became terribly relevant: in Indeed, in 1841, Syria was deeply troubled. through a series of massacres in which the Druze took their bloody share. At Damascus, January 28, 1841—a few days after the release of the ten Israelites who had ritually slaughtered and bled the Capuchin Thomas — Ali-Pasha comes with eight a thousand Turks and Kurds. The Jews strike the Christians. This was the beginning of the fire. Soon the Druze, as bloodthirsty as their The Kharmatite brothers threw themselves upon their Christian neighbors, the Maronites.

This is one of the horrific scenes from Lebanon was the theatre in November 1841:

As soon as the agents of Selim Pasha (the Turkish governor) having left Der-el-Khamar, the Druze entered in the city, which they had no difficulty reaching Masters, since the entire population was unarmed?

1. Maronite City.

2. The Turk Selim Pasha had restored to the Maronites their "weapons, under the pretext of pacifying the country, but the Druze had kept theirs. Compare the "Appeasement" practiced in the army by F.:. Berteaux, for the benefit of informers. (AB)

They began by beheading forty-five Christians they feared because of their influence and their neckrage, and then they placed two armed men in each Christian home, and by means of this preCaution, they were raping girls and young women with impunity. boys and women, right under the noses of their fathers and husbands, who were unable to oppose to confront the brutality of the Druze, under penalty of being massacred They are sacred, at the slightest movement, they and their entire family.

The Druze were pushing their feelings of hatred and vengeance against Christians, even against children at a young age, they would grab their legs for their smash their heads by throwing them against stones, or that they they threw in the air and cut in half to montran their address, at the time when the unfortunate child fell back to the height of the sword that awaited him...

At that time (November 5, 1841), there were already twenty-one Christian villages, fourteen convents and one Hundreds of small Greek churches looted and burned | by the Druze... (Achille Laurent, Historical Account) Syrian Affairs from 1840 to 1842. Paris, Gaume, 1846, vol. I, p. 320, 321.)

The Massacres of 1860.

The French government abandoned the most undignified way to treat the Christian Maronites, who representformer Syrian Indians are present in Lebanon. Genes! Mixed with the remnants of the crusading armies? Friends and protected by France since Saint-Louis!

1. Count Melchior de Vogué, Extract from the Correspondence of August 25, 1860: Events in Syria, p. 14.

2. This Melchior de Vogué, Extract from the Fe cea du August 25, 1860: Events in Syria, p. 10.

The aim was therefore to secure "an agreement" cordial relations” with England, who were playing in Syria a role as odious as possible. One must read about these... deplorable events, heartbreaking letters written yours by eyewitnesses and that reproduced

` Achille Laurent (Relat. historiq., t. I, p. 361.)

The policy of cowardice initiated by France in 1840 in Lebanon bore fruit: twenty years then new massacres took place, again more appalling than the previous ones.

Once again, the Turks agreed with the Druze who were their instruments in their 'hatred of the Christian.'

Hakem's Sectarians and their allies, the Bachi-
The bouzouks were atrocious:

Here, it was the children who were cut into quarters.
third... There, young girls were raped and then had their throats slit; Elsewhere, old people had their four limbs beaten with rifle butts and left to die slowly in the square amidst the most atrocious pains. (Franç. Lenorm. Hist. des Massacres de Syria. p. 18.)

In three days, sixty villages (Maronites), rich and flourishing the day before, had been reduced to a state of shapeless ruins. (Id, id., p. 26.)

Do you want some examples of the unprecedented ferocity of-bent... by the Muslims of Sayda and by their Idolater accomplices?

A woman was fleeing towards the city with her three children. A Druze man encounters her; he forces her to sas-to sit and slaughter her children on her knees. (Id., id.,

p. 32.)

The hideous fanaticism of Hakem's Initiates is revolting and sickening. But our insiders...
Freemasonry? What to think of it, when one evokes the vision of the Princess of Lamballe even-entered by the killers of 1792, agents of the furies of Backstage areas?

From massacre to massacre, the Druze have brought up to 1860. Let's go back in time with the people of Albi: and it is always in the blood that We are going to walk.

XI
Albigensians and Templars

The Albigensians or Cathars.

% After the fall of Constantinople to the Turks, – the Byzantine Greeks, of such a refined culture but also of a profound intellectual corruption and morality, rotten with the morbid mysticism that their had bequeathed the obscene religions of Asia to through their daughters, the Gnostic heresies and Manichean, – the Byzantines, I say, in pene-within the European nations of the West tooth, they hurled a torrent of mud at it.

They were the ones who introduced Gnosticism into Italy 1, in Germany, in France, while from

1. César Cantu, La Réforme en Italie, les Précurseurs, Paris.
1866, p. 127.

On their side, the Saracen invasions in Spain and in France, had left many traces of their passage.

It is still up to the Gnostics of Asia and Byzantium what is F.-. Villaume alluding to when searching-chant the various sources of which the meeting formed the river of Freemasonry, he writes these lines:

Finally, another part would seem to be due to a remainder.
of Judaism preserved by the Initiates of the East, and whom we regard as those through whom we have > received the current Mysteries. (F.°. Villaume, Manuel Maconical or tile-maker,... Paris, 1820, p. 7.)

If the proverb is true – like father, like son – we We must therefore, remembering what the Initiates of the East, we expect the worst things from the share of Freemasons, the modern Initiates.

The Masonic tradition reported by F.:. Villaume is in complete agreement with what they say All historians agree: crushed by the Christian princes hold on, as if by the Muslim princes – GnosTicks and Manicheans from the East gradually infiltrated few in Europe. It was from them that the CaThares, the Patarins, the Albigensians, so esteemed of all writers hostile to Christianity – and for good reason.

In his book: The Caesars of the 3rd Century!, Mr. de Champagny describes the organization of the Societies Manichean secrets up to the 11th and 14th centuries centuries; it shows their spread throughout the world whole and proves that the Albigensian heresy arose from these secretive groups.

1. M. de Champagny, The Caesars of the 3rd Century, 2nd Edition, t. III, p. 226.

On the other hand, Mr. Douais, the most recent historian of the Cathars or Albigensians, demonstrates in the way the most irrefutable, the Gnostic and Mani– origin Their doctrines are a disgrace! As for these, which we have already discussed, it is not useless to to recall them, – before showing the results to whom their preaching led, in the South of France, in the Middle Ages.

Regarding the Carpocratians, who perfected Valentinian gnosis, M. Matter, pro– historian testing, which is rather lenient towards heretics From Gnosticism, it is expressed thus:

> Their contempt for all moral legislation was their Morality... Nature reveals two great principles, those of community and the unity of all things. The Human laws that are contrary to these natural laws are culpable offenses against the legitimate and divine order. For To re-establish this order, it is necessary to institute the community of the land, of possessions and women. Generally, the more one despises... The more we free ourselves from all existing laws, the more we free ourselves from all of this. The more one honors the Being, the more one honors the common people. Supreme, the more one becomes like God. (M. Matter) History of Gnosticism, vol. II, p. 261 et seq.)

We find both, in this signGnosticism, those of all the sects that we we have just studied; he is also the one who will direct the Albigeois.

After the Protestant Matter, let's question the protesting Hurter, the learned medieval historian Age :

1. M. Douais, The Albigensians, their origins..., Paris, Didier, 1879.

> By comparing the internal organization of a certain society, the Freemasons, and its attempts against the Church for about sixty years, with the principles known from the doctrine of the Cathars (or Albigeois), we are forced to acknowledge some approxchements, and not only for the general principles rals, but for the finest details. Both Societies are based on the principle of human independence. vis-à-vis any higher authority. Both harbor the same hatred for social institutions and parparticularly to the Church and its ministers... In all The two real leaders are unknown to the crowd... Same signs of recognition in the way of speaking and to come to an agreement, so that we can say with whatever the reason, all the upheaval that undermines For more than half a century the foundations of the European society is nothing other than the work of Albigensians, passed down by them to their successors, the Freemasons. (Hurter, History of Pope Innocent III and of his century, translated. Jager, Paris, 1840, p. 284).

Vices and crimes of the Albigensians.

These heretics, widespread in the South of France the name Albigeois, from the city of Albi where held the first council which condemned them. A very long time-time before civil powers were forced to intervene to defend the threatened social order, they professed the doctrines of Manichaeism on both principles, attributing marriage to the evil principle, the procreation of children! And they taught... that one owed no obedience to the authorities knew ecclesiastical or secular... In short, they hated the ministers of the Church and never ceased to denounce them;

they wanted to be pursued and exterminated
They were born like wolves; and wherever they were masters, They acted in this way, breaking and burning the crosses, the images, relics, pillaging and devastating churches, the Monasteries, sparing neither age nor sex, and bearing Everywhere devastation, fire, and death. (N. Des-fields, Secret Societies and Society, Paris and Avignon, 1880, vol. I, p. 296.)

We saw the same crimes, the same horrors have been repeated throughout the centuries, since the Karmatites and Ismailites, including the Druze, for the East. — In the West, the Societies Secret, driven by the same principles, based on the same doctrines, carried out among the Albi-geois des infamies toutes parismes. |

It's a collection of frightening stories, which the rela-
The crimes committed by these sectarians! We will... found throughout the history of the Albigensians and of the Waldensians, by Father Benoist of Saint Domino Fuck? As for their depravity, it went beyond all the terminals.

Moreover, it is not only Catholic authors-liques that have pointed out the doctrines and customs of the Albigeoises, according to all the monuments of the time, the interrogations, sentences and minutes.
Several writers of illustrious name in the annals
Masonic members had the courage not to back down

1. Isn't this primitive Malthusianism? (AB)
2. Paris, 1691.

faced with such a striking truth, and here is how
Mr. Michelet himself speaks of the people of Albi:

"The nobility of the South, which differed little from the the bourgeoisie, was entirely composed of children of Jewish or of Saracens, people of a very different mind from the cheva-Lerie, ignorant and pious in the North; she had for the
to support and with great affection the mountain people!
These truck drivers mistreated the priests just as the peasants dressed their wives in clothes consecrated men beat the clerics and made them sing the mass in mockery. It was yet another one of their pleasures of defacing, of breaking images of Christ, of to break their arms and legs. They were dear to princes precisely because of their impiety which rendered them insensitive to ecclesiastical censures.
Impious like our moderns and fierce like the Barbarians, they weighed cruelly on the country, stealing, extorting, slaughtering at random, waging war terrifying...

"Finally, this Judea of France, as it has been called" Languedoc did not resemble the other only by its bitumen and its olive trees; it also had Sodom and Gomorrah... That Eastern beliefs, dualism Persian, Gnosticism and Manichaeism penetrated
In this country, that's something that won't surprise anyone?...» (Michelet, Hist. de France, t. II, p. 404, 409, 472).

1. Ancestors of the Camisards of the Cévennes. — Everything fits together. (AB)

2. Here, a very interesting note from Father Deschamps shows Vafflux came, among the Albigensians of Gnostic origin etc., manifest- Chéane, from one of the principal sources of Gnosis, — I I mean Jewish Kabbalah: "Compare," he said, "in the aforementioned work by Mr. Douais, the chapter on Schools Jewish women in the Middle Ages. The per- resistance of these centers of anti-Christianity's spread." (N. Desch. Les Soc. Secrètes, vol. I, p. 299).

Here is an excerpt from this chapter by Mr. Douais:

(In Languedoc) the Jews themselves, those old enemies of

And here they are, the wise men, the men of reason, the precursors of modern Freemasonry, its ancestors acknowledged, praised, blessed, imitated by their sons in their doctrines, their morals, and their hypocrisy! (N. Des- fields, Secret Societies, vol. I, pp. 298, 299).

Gnostic and Manichaean doctrines, according to which bodies and all they can do count for nothing, as long as the souls Initiates are purified by the imposition of hands of the Perfects', were higher sufficient- defined.

As for the customs of the Albigensians, the Chana- The Greeks, from the time of Sodom, and the The decadent Romans already had them.

Saint Paul has branded them in the burning passage like the red-hot iron we mentioned. The people of Albi followed the tradition of the devotees of the Goddess Cybele-Astoreth.

As for the results of the Mani- infiltration Cheism in Christian France — which was to

The Church, for its part, contributed to diminishing it and to the to lose in the minds of the people... For a long time years the harmony of souls had been broken in Provence and Languedoc. The causes of this dis- - cords... are multiple and diverse; and we take good care to attribute them solely to Jewish influence. But it is certain that in the 11th and 12th centuries, any teaching different from that of faith could only produce disastrous effects on our society, then without fixity in its principles and its beliefs. From this point of view, it is interesting to study the numerous schools that the Jews had established on the coast of the Mediterranean. (Abbé Douais, The Albigensians, 2nd Edition, Paris, 1880, pp. 314-316.)

1. Bergier, Theological Dictionary, Art. Albigeois.

or poison themselves forever by ingesting these viruses, or reject them in order not to die — these were, after a long period where, as always, the Orthodox Christian patients suffered all sorts of fates. your humiliations, from the most ignoble to the Even more cruel were the vengeful executions en masse accomplished by the Crusaders of Simon de Montfort.

The Albigensians were excommunicated as early as 1179. were able to pillage and massacre at their leisure until the pre- First Crusade undertaken against Cux in 1204. It was only in 1209 that Simon de Montfort managed to to reduce them, by exterminating their forces in Béziers main ones. It was only in 1220 that the last- The Albigensian warriors, completely defeated, melted down with the Waldensians, another Manichean sect born in Lyon, this great mystical center,

Where were the barbarians, where were the executioners? and was it necessary after having, for more than half a century used every means of persuasion to bring back to order these hordes of brigands, always ready to to disguise themselves when they weren't the strongest!, the to allow the majority of the population to be looted, killed, and corrupted Christian and harmless tions, without allowing the victims to defend themselves, without coming to their aid?... Fal- did he, in the name of freedom, as nowadays, pro- proclaim the principle of non-intervention (for the benefit) bandits against their victims, of all tyrants

1. Like their ancestors the Manicheans, the Albigensians pra-they objected to this adage: "Swear, perjure yourself, but keep the "Secret." — Masonic hypocrisy and lies have the Worthy ancestors. (AB)

and of all oppressors against the peoples and the fairies oppressed peoples? For, let it be noted, the Cross-Sade's attack against the Albigensians was not, like the Crusades against the Muslim hordes, that a war of de-defense against invaders, under the command of the Pope and the Christian sovereigns to whom the natural law relle imposed it as their first duty. (N. Desch.
Secret Societies, vol. I, p. 300).

At the same time as the Albigensians in France, the followers of the Order of Assassins "worked"
(according to Masonic terminology) in Syria and Persia.
The work of all these sectarians in France, such as In Asia, it was debauchery, sodomy, rape, the fire, the slaughter, so much so that some like the others appear in History at the same time as anti-Christian, anti-social and anti-physical ques. |

However, there are 'French-Masonic writers' lessons which, in their customary and shameless hypo-
In this crisis, they dare to portray the vile as victims.
the atrocious Albigensians — and as executioners the French Frenchmen of Simon de Montfort, intrepid liberators of their brothers from the South who were cruelly oppressed a horde of foreigners and accomplices of these foreigners
Gers | |

These professionals of Masonic lies,
They could not be better compared than to these honest-your people who, at night, in the crossroads, attack the peacekeepers, in order to lend a hand to assassins.

The Order of the Temple.

Murder and sodomy were the principal crimes.
principals of the Albigensians. With sodomy, the Temp-folds, degenerate from their noble mission of defense-Sisters of the Holy Land, practiced especially Usury and theft: these were still, like murder, a way to bleed peoples and individuals dry.

Furthermore, it is still the contagion of old ideas sown by the Initiates of the Ancients Mysteries that caused the downfall of the Order of the Temple.

The invasion of southern France by heresy
The Albigensian crisis had its cause, as we have said, the exodus of the Byzantine Greeks (driven out of Constantinople) nople by the Turk and dragging across Europe the a jumble of their Manichean and Gnostic controversies ticks) at the same time as the victorious surge of the oriental mysticism of the Saracens, triumphed-fighters on the battlefields and in the spheres intellectual matters at the same time, as always happens days. Similarly, it is the vigorous reaction of anti-Christian sects, fighting in the Holy Land against the Crusaders, who brought down the Order Christian of the Temple, by corrupting him — as well as, many centuries ago, we saw in this same Palestine, the abominable Initiates of Moloch and Astoreth corrupted so many Israelites.

Similarly, the writers of Freemasonry, in praising and striving to justify against the Catholic Church that the Gnostics, the Manicheans and the Albigensians, were

The sons, heirs, and successors are shown.
So it is with the Templars. There are few among the condemned by the Church who had so many and so ardent apologists, few in whose favor one has so generally and so recklessly accused the Pope and the Bishops.

“We will investigate,” said Condorcet, “whether we should not to include this Order among the Secret Societies famous against whom Popes and Kings conspired– rent with such barbarity.” (Condorcet, Sketch of a | historical overview of the progress of the human mind, 7th epoch that; Paris edition, 1822, p. 134).

Therefore, the Templars had a great interest in to defend the Freemasons and all revolutionaries philosophers or Jacobins. It's not there, for those who want to reflect, one of the least proofs of their lineage and of the conformity of their doctrines (N. Deschamps, 2nd ed., vol. I, pp. 300, 301).

That some Freemasons, recognizing in the Templars, spiritual ancestors in the same time when brothers in thought have striven–
They were tired of whitewashing them through sheer deception; it was their obvious interest. But the real story, with its inexorable documents, is there to establish the proof of their lies.

No, neither religious nor civil power
They were not barbaric in attacking the Templars because It is proven that these latter, besides the fact that they were sodomites, committed the crime that all ancient cities rightly regarded as the most unforgivable of crimes: the Templars were abominable traitors to the cause of civilization Christian and European.

Traitors and sodomites, that's a lot for the members of a single Order, however sympathetic it may be may be available to modern initiates of Freemasonry bullshit.

The infamous doctrine and morals of the Templars.

Founded in 1118 in Jerusalem by knights
French with the aim of defending against the Muslims–
With the Holy Land reconquered, the Order of the Templars ple was first and foremost faithful to his great duties.

But in contact with dualistic or mani– sects the Chinese women who were swarming in the East, the Tem– folds fell promptly to the level of the most infamous Karmathites, after having married doc– Cathar tribes, like the Albigensians.

First and foremost, said Mr. Jules Loiseleur, the Templars are Dualists: they recognize two opposing principles,
One, author of spirits and goodness, the other, creator of Matter and evil... For the Order of the Temple, it is the evil god who alone created living beings of a material existence, which can promote and enrich its faithful and who gave the earth the power to sprout and to beautify the trees and plants. These ideas belong–
The words that we im– primes here in italics are found both and pres– that without any variation in the investigation directed against the Templars and in the one that was made by the Inquisition against the Albigensian Cathars. Thus the Templars re–
They all know one good, incommunicable god to man... and an evil god to whom they give the features of a terrifying idol. Their most fervent worship addresses the god of evil, who alone can enrich them and to fill the Order with all kinds of goods. (The doctrine Secret of the Templars, by Mr. Jules Loiseleur, Paris and Orléans, 1872, p. 141). |

The morality of the Order of the Temple was the consequence of his metaphysics, of his opinions on superiority of the principle of evil. The cult of matter, a crude Sensualism formed its basis. Enriching the Order, and to achieve this, seize the property of others, augment– to increase the power and wealth of the Community by all possible means, honest or criminal, per "Fas aut nefas," the indictment stated, "these were the..."
the only precepts of the Templars +...

As for the infamy of morals, as for the odious licentiousness given to followers to satisfy their most brutal, these are yet more aberrations drawn from the depraved sect that saw in the most vile satisfactions of the flesh a pleasant tribute to his

God.
Where can I find the full explanation for this infamous... tolerance, of these ignoble recommendations of com-pleasure activities aimed at newcomers, if not in this doctrine that the body, whatever it does, does not never defile the soul, that which is located in the head and chest, and from the waist down, Does man no longer sin?... Doesn't this doctrine reveal not the symbolic meaning of the three kisses exchanged between the teacher and his initiator, in ore, in umbilico and in fine spinæ dorsi? No doubt, there was one for the spirit, communication from the higher God, another

1. “See articles 97 and 99 and the confessions of the fortieth "Witness of Scotland in the Councils of England, p. 332."
knows that in the trials initiated in almost every country Christians, at the same time, the concordance of the confessions made by

The Templars' mission was complete. (AB) a for the body, a creation of Lucifer, and a third applied to the point, which separates the domain of the body from that of the soul (Id, id, p. 145, 146).

What were these "complacencies" and these "bai-
"serves" exchanged by the sad customers of F.-. Gon-Dorcet? Let's ask Michelet. After having studied thoroughly, on the pieces themselves of the pro-
In this regard, concerning the Templar affair, he published

... the most important act, he said, of the trial of the Templars pliers: this is the interrogation that the grandmaster and two hundred and thirty-one knights serving underwent Paris, before the Papal Commissioners. This
The interrogation was conducted slowly and with great care.
of consideration and gentleness by high dignity-ecclesiastical authorities, an archbishop and several bishops... (Collection of unpublished documents on History) of France, published under the supervision of the Minister of Instruction Public Order, 1st Series... Trial of the Templars, published by M. Michelet, vol. in-49, p. 3, 4.)

Here are some excerpts from the summary of the confession.
deeds by the seventy-two most notables, freely, without torture!

3° That it was the custom of some to gather on Good Friday or another day of the week

1. It was also without torture that Florence the confessions of the Templars of Italy. Mr. Loiseleur gave their depositions, "very aggravating for the Order," he said. I.
adds that torture was not used against the accused of the Temple, neither in Sicily, nor in Brindisi, etc. (Laws.
Doct. Secr., p. 6, 17, etc.).

However, all these depositions, made simultaneously in several-
These towns, in absolute agreement with those of Templars of France.

The Masonic lies of F.-. Condorcet do not change anything.

They will have nothing.

Holy for trampling the cross underfoot like that, for doing on
She committed even more heinous outrages and made them do it.
by others...

6° That upon the reception of the Brothers of the said Order, the rece-
The front and the receipt would sometimes kiss each other on the mouth, on the navel or the bare stomach, sometimes on the anus or the spine dorsal, sometimes even more indecently...

8° That the recipients told the recipients that they could-would engage in the heinous crime among themselves, which the something was permitted, that they had to mutually agree on it lending, which they themselves practiced, as well as a many others...

10° That those who, upon receiving them or afterwards, refused
Those who did what was asked of them were put to death.
or imprisoned forever.

11° That they were ordered under penalty of death or of prison and by oath not to reveal any of these things, nor of their mode of reception, and that if someone was If caught doing so, he was put to death or imprisoned... (Cited by N. Deschamps, Les Soc. Secr., 2nd Edit. t. I, p. 306.)

… Whatever opinion (said Mr. Michelet) one adopts on the rule of the Templars and the primitive innocence of The Order, it is not difficult to reach a judgment on the disorders of his later years. It suffices to notice in the interrogations ...that the denials are almost all identical, as if they were dictated according to an agreed-upon form; on the contrary The confessions are all different, varying in circumstances special, often very naive, which give them a a particular characteristic of truthfulness. The opposite should to take place, if the confessions had been dictated by the torturers tures: they would be roughly similar and the diversThe issue would be found rather in the denials. (Michelet, Documents, 1851, t. II, p. 7 and 8.)

Masonic lies and forgeries.

– (To obscure this Templar affair) It took a real conspiracy against history to which the Freemason writers of eighteenth century, as it is put in its own words the most authoritative historian of the sect currently, F. Findel, director of the Leipzig Bauhütte (N. Desfields, Soc. Secr., t. I, p. 310.)

The judgment rendered by F.–. Findel is particularly- strictly enforced, for Freemasons as for the Templars. He too declares that these The latter were influenced by Catharism 2.

It was Freemasonry above all, he said, which, penduring the previous century, applied itself with the greatest care was taken to establish the innocence of the Order of the Templars... Every possible scheme was used to suppress it The truth. Freemasons, admirers of the Order Templars bought the entire edition of the Acts of Trial, of Moldenhawer, which contained proof of the guilt of the Order.

. . Dupuy had published his History in Paris in 1650 of the condemnation of the Templars, and among the documents among the items he had consulted was the original of Proceedings of the Trial, which put beyond doubt the alleged offenses

1. Geschichte der Freimaurerei, Leipsig, 1878, 4th Ed., p. 811.

2. F... Findel, Hist. of Freemasonry, Translated. Tandel, Paris, 1866, t. II, p. 466.

3. It has had numerous reprints. The edition we The one we consulted is from 1700: Treatise concerning the History of France, namely the Condemnation of the Templars, by Dupuy, Advisor to the King, Keeper of his Library. 700.

commissioned by the Order. This work caused a great sensation... A German translation of it had already appeared in 1665. in Frankfurt am Main. When around the middle of 16th century, some branches of Freemasonry they attempted to revive the Order of the Templars bending the rules by stating that he had not completely Having disappeared, Dupuy's work must necessarily to displease many. It was almost half a century ago that it circulated in the public domain, therefore it was not It's no longer possible to buy it in bulk. That's why we resorted to falsification. An unknown person... made reimto award the work a prize in 1751... by adding a large number of notes, remarks... but mutilated in such a way so that it was no longer a monument to guilt but of the Templars' innocence. "That's how it is," he said. Wilcke, that all the judgments made on the Templars Those associated with Freemasonry are suspect and tainted by partiality. » (F.. Findel, vol. II, p. 468).

If the documents cited by Dupuy and by

Wilcke' demonstrate in the most absolute way the reality of crimes of all kinds – against the morals, against property, against human life – committed by the Templars, we also have on this page the confession (made by a Brother...) of (brand) lies, falsifications, incredible machinations accumulated by the Franks-Masons to hide the flaws of those in whom they clearly recognized ancestors.

Thieves, murderers, sodomites on one side. – Men-forgers and counterfeiters on the other hand.

---

1. Wilcke, Geschichte der Tempels Herren Ordens, 2 vols. in-8°, Halle, 1860. Wilcke proves that it dates from between 1250 and 1279 that the anti-Christian doctrine has become that of everyone 'Order... (N. Desch. Les Soc. Secr., t. I, p. 310).

The Templars were traitors to their race.

6

To all these vices, to all these crimes, the Templars, To make matters worse, they added the crime that the Ancients, As we have said, they rightly considered as one of the most odious, Treason – Treason who doesn't just murder a few "(waves humanities!", but an entire nation, an entire race.

This is as proven as everything else:

If the Freemasons, their heirs, have found guilty in France of the crime of treason by becoming accomplices of the traitor's supporters Dreyfus – the Templars betrayed civilization Christian, of which they were the bearers in the East standard, – and they betrayed for nearly a century!

How many tears, how much Christian blood has been cost! This long betrayal!

In his "Treatise", Dupuy establishes that already the The Templars had betrayed Saint Louis at Saint John's Acre?

Likewise, they betrayed Emperor Frederick II 3.

When the decline of the kingdom of Jerusalem, writes F... Findel, the Templars drew closer-

---

1. We remember this expression from Brother Laurent Tailhade, regarding anarchist assassinations.

2. Dupuy, Treatise... Condemnation of the Templars, p. 28.
3. Dupuy, Treatise... Condemnation of the Templars, p. 7.

They gradually fell in love with the Saracens; already, they had well-founded in the past through their alliance with the Sultans from Egypt.

These Sultans were the Fatimids of the sect dualist and anarchist, as we have discussed. But The Templars did even worse, and historians Arabs and Persians have revealed their close alliances. that these former Knights of Christ, traitors to their faith, traitors to their country, traitors to their race, dared to conclude with the abominable Sect of Assassins, the very one whose unspeakable crimes- The horrific attacks terrified Europe and Asia.

Brother Clavel (whom his brothers rightfully have) called "the enfant terrible of Freemasonry" "Nonsense!") wrote these crushing lines for the Templars, his ancestors:

“Eastern historians show us, A different eras, the Order of the Templars between-maintaining close relations with the Assassins and they insist on the affinity that existed between the two associations. They notice... that they had the same organization, the same hierarchy of grades, the degrees of fedavi, refik and dai of one corresponding to the degrees of novice, of professed and a knight on the other; that both conjured up the ruin of the religions they professed knew in public. » (F.°. Clavel, Hist. pittor. de la Mac., Paris, 1843, p. 356.)

1. [There is no need to recall the kinship of the doctrines] Cathars of the Templars with the Ismaili doctrines of Assassins: all are also related to the Mani– Cheism.

Oh, secret societies!

This despicable hypocrisy has continued (we (as we have seen) among the Druze, heirs of the Assas– sins. On the other hand, everyone knows 4 which depths of hypocrisy descended throughout the eighteenth century – and since – the French Freemasons, heirs of the Templars.

"Wilcke," says Mr. Loiseleur in the seminal book that we quote above, Wilcke makes Tem– fold the precursors of Luther and the Ency–
"Clopopedia!"

Wilcke is the writer to whom F.–. Findel
He himself paid tribute. And the Encyclopedia, it is the dogmatic Freemasonry of the tenth eighth century, which paved the way for Franc–
The bloody Freemasonry of Terror.

Thus we see the links of the chain that unites the guillotiners of 1793 to all the Templars, Albigensians and Assassins of the Middle Ages Age.

Criminals hiding behind the cloak of religion.

In the highly regarded journal, the Intermediary of Researchers and curious minds, we find ex– interesting features of the reports two Councils: there was discussion of Secret Societies– tes obviously related to these conventi– Manichean clique, whose members were so experts in hypocrisy.

1. Jules Loiseleur, The Secret Doctrine of the Templars, p. 33,

At the Council of Rouen on January 30, 1190, were in– prohibit societies and fraternities whose members swear by everything, for whatever reason, help and protection: this oath leading them to actions contrary to canon law and sometimes even to perjury,

The Council of Avignon, held on June 18, 1326, is beautiful–
A clearer shot...

(Latin text follows.)

This is about... Secret Societies that hide under a religious label and which take the title of "Fraternities" or "brotherhoods."

These societies have distinctive symbols and a specific language.
and a special handwriting for recognition... |

They commit all sorts of acts of vandalism.
against the life and property of their fellow human beings, do not res– respecting neither rights nor judgments... (Interm., Feb. 10, 1904.
G. La Brèche, col. 182–183.)

So then, murderers and thieves, these precursors of our Freemasons were, like them, of a remarkable and fundamental hypocrisy, which they push– know so well that they disguise themselves as members of religious brotherhoods!

Today, the Freemasons, good apostles, disguise themselves as benefactors of humanity, as Mutualists. It's always more or less the same thing.

Digitized by Google

XII

THE REFORMATION AND THE ROSICRUCIAL

A Masonic forgery.

Several authors have reported an alleged "Charter of Cologne!" If we accept its authenticity Freemasonry is said to have existed based on this Charter. from the sixteenth century onwards, as we know it– sounds today. The main leaders of the Reform would have been part of it: indeed, we see among the names of the signatories of this document, those of Melanchthon and Admiral de Coligny – the Dreyfus of the sixteenth century – that traitor who sold Le Havre to the English?

1. See the Cologne Charter, supposedly from 1535. It is reproduced by N. Deschamps, Soc. Secr. t. I, p. 318.

2. This traitor has a statue in the heart of Paris. His place would be well worth it. rather than being pilloried, as Mr. Hello wrote. "...and the inscription The following, he adds, could avenge the truth; it is extracted from a letter from Elizabeth of England's agent to her sovereign:

“I came to Orléans, I dined with the Prince, the Admiral

So much written evidence supports the birth of modern Freemasonry in 1717 only, that it is wise to consider the Charter of Cologne as a mere false masonnique. But we must say 4 the discharge of the fa– the bribers of this fraudulent document that they have to Rigour is an excuse to be put forward: it is that the False Masonic practices are so common in the annals of the Order that there really is no reason to blame them: just another fake or less, no matter, for the good reputation of "Children of the Widow".

_ F.. Findel (as we have seen) stigmatized the Falsehoods of his Brothers concerning the Templars.

The F.:. Clavel!, the F... Ragon?, the F.–. Rebold: have dwelled complacently on the fakes accumulated by the founders and apostles of the Scottish Freemasonry.

(de Coligny) Mr. Dandelot was there... The Admiral told me that if they were now delivering to Calais, or if you were still keeping the Le Havre, what an infamy and what a shame that would be for them, wouldn't it? not only in this century, but in history. Forever they will be– would be considered infamous.” (History of the Princes of the House of Condé, by the Duke of Aumale, t. I, p. 20.)

It would suffice to add, along with the Review of Historical Questions: "However, they submitted to the odious conditions imposed upon them." were imposed...» – «Betraying his duties as Admiral of France, Coligny, to obtain the support of the Queen of England "He will deliver Dieppe and Le Havre to him, and promises to open Calais to him." (Review... vol. 38, 1885; II, p. 197. – Hello, St. Bartholomew's Day Massacre,

p. 56.)
1. Hist. pittor. of the Fr.–Mac., p. 207.
2. Orthod. mac., p. 319.
3. History of the three great Lodges, p. 451.

–

F.*. Thory! gravely recounts the blunders imagined by English Freemasons for to embellish the genealogy of their Lodges.

The F.:. Clavel? Finally, besides other stories of false Masonic acts of lesser importance, relates the ridiculous improbabilities that adorn the tra– Dutch editions concerning the pseudo-Charter from Cologne and the pieces intended to support it:

Now, he said, if the Charter of 1535 is evident– false information, what becomes of the 1637 register where it is related? All of this cannot, in truth, support a single instant analysis (Hist. pittor., p. 125).

Protestantism and Freemasonry.

The very fact that high-ranking Freemasons pro-
The testators of Holland fabricated the false Charter Doesn't Cologne indicate the close ties which,
In their minds, they united Freemasonry with
The Reformation, in terms of doctrines and principles?

A German Freemason wrote on his side this typical phrase: "Protestantism is not that half of Freemasonry?”, while that Mr. Gaston Méry made a very interesting note, regarding an interview with Ernest Heeckel published by La Petite République, at the mo-Meeting of the Congress of Freethought in Rome:

---

1. Acta Latom, II, p. 5 to 10.
2. Hist. pittor. of the Fr.-Mac., p. 123 to 125.

3. Claudio Jannet, The Precursors of Freemasonry in the 16th and 17th centuries, Paris 1887, p.25. — This word is found. in the Masonic book Latomia, vol. II, p. 164.

First of all, said Mr. Méry, our colleague declares that Haeckel, successor to Lamark and Darwin, is the man who gave the Congress of Rome its true meaning. So there you have it.

Now, here is the key passage from the interview:

"I like Mr. Combes very much for the war he leads to the clergy... Just like one hundred and twenty years ago, You are, in France, the most advanced of peoples...You pursue to its ultimate consequences the reform undertaken by Luther and Calvin.

The statement is quite clear, one will admit it.

One could not have said it better than that Free Thought is that the tail end of the reform.

(Free Speech, September 27, 1904.) GM

On the other hand, the so-called groups of Free Thought is nothing more than Third-Orders of the Masonic Church, we have here two first-rate confessions, emanating from the Sect, and perfectly characterizing the situation of the Reformation and Freemasonry in relation to one another the other one.

As a general rule, when we see riots, the Fires, assassinations, and civil wars proliferated.
in a part of the globe among several peoples both and if we remember at the same time everything the past teaches us about work Underground of the Secret Societies — we are within our rights to wonder if it wasn't them who had lit the fires, sharpened the cutlasses, exasperated the fever of anger and crime.

In Year IX, a very curious book by Ch. de Villers won the Institute's prize. It is entitled:

Essay on the spirit and influence of the Reformation Luther.

"It is more than likely," the author says in the chapter entitled Secret Societies, Freemasons, Rosicrucians, Mystics, Enlightened Ones, Secret Societies exist... were before the reformers and that it was under this a form in which the remnants of the Wicklefists had perpetuated themselves in England and Scotland, and those of the Hussites in Bohemia, those of the Albigensians in France. (Quoted by Claudio Jannet, The Precursors of Freemasonry, p. 26.)

If the old anti-Christian heresies were,
as we have seen, organized into Societies

Secretive as they won against the Church of notable victories — all the more so if they last, a Once defeated, they will hide in organizations occult.

Anti-Christian and anti-social, such were the Wicklefists and Hussites, like the Albigensians. Such were also the Anabaptists "who later They covered Germany with their Secret Societies, Holland, England, to prepare for the great Lübeck and Munster uprising of 1534-1535 1”.

History, it has been said, is nothing but an eternal reckoning. beginning. So if we reflect on the part considerable influence of Masonic propaganda in the preparation for the events of 1793 and from 1848 — we inevitably arrive at this conclusion. duction, that the formidable movement of the The reform must have been prepared in secret by Remarkably well-hidden secret societies,

---

1. CI. Jannet, Les Précurseurs, p. 27.

who continued to keep the fire burning beneath the ashes heresies of the earliest ages, all heresies antisocial as well as anti-Christian, We cannot stress this enough.

The Calvinist pamphleteers of the second half of the 16th century have the tone, the ideas and the expressions characteristic of the most violent writers of the years that have preceded the Revolution. Such is, among other things, a libel Title: The Smart Wake-Up Call for the French and their neighbors, composed by Eusebius Philadelphus Cosmopolite... in Edim-Bourg (Geneva)... 1574. This pamphlet... engages the queen Elizabeth to get rid of Mary Stuart, and urges the French... to kill their king (p. 142)... What is particular-Significantly, this is the name taken by the pamphleteer-to silence himself, the Cosmopolitan Philadelphus. These will be the distinctive titles of the principal Lodges of the 17th century. How can one not believe in the transmission of an organism? real sation as well as that of doctrines? (CI. Jannet, The Precursors of the Macdonald Fr. (p. 27, 28).

Huguenot tyranny and cruelty.

If there is one thing that is real and tangible, for sure that is indeed the ferocity of the Reformed — ferocity exactly like that of the worst Secret Societies from both the East and the West.

What an immense parade of terrible visions and hideous has just been mentioned by Father Gaffre in his book! avenger of truth! We must to read, if one wants to plumb the depths of the sceleratesse of sectarian writers who for three

---

1. Abbé Gaffre, Inquisition and Inquisitions, Paris 1905, centuries have distorted history to the point of making people believe to unfortunate Catholic children that their ancestors of the sixteenth century should have tolerated indefinitely their houses and their churches were destroyed by the thousands, and allow themselves to perpetty massacre by the Huguenots, as in the Michelade of Nîmes, in 1567 and so many others festivals celebrated by Protestants in blood Catholic — without ultimately avenging their dead, at the St. Bartholomew's Day Massacre, in 1572 (five years after (the Michelade!)

We will see the Jacobins later — instru-Freemasons' meetings, presided over by Freemasons — openly carry out the plans

---

1. In 1567 and 1569, the streets of Nîmes were stained with blood Catholics. Nothing is more dreadful than the Michelade. as the locals called it, a massacre carried out by the Protestants in 1567, with horrifying regularity, the day of Michaelmas. The Catholics, locked in the Hôtel de In the city, and held in custody, they were slaughtered by their enemies with a in a manner entirely reminiscent of the September Massacres. during the French Revolution. One was brought down after the other, in the church vaults, the unfortunate ones that wanted to execute and that the religious leaders were waiting for the kill with a dagger.

Most were thrown into a well that was 42 feet deep. deep, over 4 feet in diameter, and which was filled in of these victims. The water mixed with blood was spreading outside, And long afterward, we could still hear the muffled cries. the groans of the unfortunate souls who were crushed by the corpses... and this slaughter had been going on for 11 hours. evening until 6 a.m. {Edinburgh Review, see British Review, February 1836).

Everyone knows about the St. Bartholomew's Day Massacre. How many con- Where does the Michelade come from? (Hello, La Saint-Barthélemy, Paris, 1899, pp. 21, 22.)

Let us add that the Edinburgh Review's account is written in a... vain protestant.

erected in the night of the Back Lodges: sommes-nous are far from the truth when comparing the Reform in the wake of the Albigensian explosion and the Terror (either in two movements where the Secret Societies had a large part) and considering the Reform as a daughter of the Gnostic Secret Societies Ticks and Templars? Aren't they the ones who would have provided the Reformation with part of its frames?

But on the other hand, we have shown all the Secret Societies of Paganism aiming at the oppression of sion of the masses crushed under the yoke of their oli- A guild of initiates; we also saw the Magi _ to help Artaxerces in establishing his domination on the souls of its subjects at the same time than on their bodies. Similarly, the predictions... Huguenot cants in turn confounded the power see religious and civil power, and instituted the complete tyranny with what the pro- theologian Vinet's test calls it Caesareopapy.

By the very force of circumstances, (Luther) was led to to transfer the papacy to civil power, therefore to radically distort the work of Christ by placing the spiritual society under the dependence of power temporal: which was, to note in passing, to do anti-democratic work in the first place, then- that by this means he was freeing the prince from obedience due by the subjects to spiritual powers. "The Reformation, said Vinet, in separating from the Church, had to, for find a leader, address the people and the authorities civil. Her principles drew her towards the people. She dared not not, and in order to have a present and visible authority, she She addressed the authorities and made him a bishop. Such is the characteristic of Protestant churches, they are reduced to In short: the Episcopate of civil government. …The famous principle cujus regio, illius religio (such master, such religion) makes his appearance between a A preacher's bible and an executioner's sword. (Abbot) Gaffre, Inquisition and Inquisitions, Paris 1905, pp. 168, 169.)

Thus, the supposed progress of the Reformation actually resolve into a pitiful regression towards the regime of the Emperors of Rome, at the same time autocrats and sovereign pontiffs of the gods of Capitol; as well as the regime of F.-. de Robes- The use of stone and the guillotine will be a regression towards the bloody clerical tyranny of the Druids or the Initiated into the Mysteries of the god Moloch.

The Rosicrucian Brothers.

A Protestant pastor, Valentin Andréa, a little-son of one of Luther's companions, was, if not the founder, or at least one of the principal apostles of the Secret Society of the Rose-Groix. If - anti- starting from a few years ago on the events - we say right now that the Brothers of the The Rosicrucians were the principal creators of the Modern Freemasonry, we see that a chain uninterrupted reunites the Reformation with Freemasonry-nonsense with, for one of the intermediate links, the Rosicrucian Valentin Andrea, grandson of one of the Luther's companions.

Andrea was born in 1586; he died in 1654, and It was around 1612 that the first of the little books appeared.

mysterious things that the Rosicrucians used to to demonstrate and to carry out their propaganda. They use-
They were also involved in displaying information, and, in 1622, they covered
The walls of Paris are lined with cupboards designed like this:

“We, the deputies of our principal college of the Brothers of the Cross, let us make a visible and invisible sojourn in this city by the grace of the Most High, to whom turns the Heart of the Righteous. We teach without books or brands and speak the languages of the country where we want to be to draw men, our fellow men, out of error and dead. "

The impression made by these posters was enormous.
me. It resulted in countless brochures.
for and against, the dissemination of which increased their propagan.

The doctrines of the Rosicrucians were those a kind of mystical Protestantism, mixed with magic and Gnostic concepts.

Furthermore, "the Rosicrucians," writes Claudio Jannet,
"They derive directly from Jewish Kabbalah!"

We also know that the Talmud and the Kabbalah form the religious and social code of dispersed Israel among nations.

And what were the social doctrines at that time?
Jews, doctrines inspired by Kabbalah?

They were expressed in the last few years of the 15th century, by the famous minister of the kings of Spain and From Naples, Abravanel... We can see an analysis of it in the story of a historian very favorable to the Jews, Count Beugnot, who cannot conceal the violence revolutionary? (Cl. Jannet, Précurs., p. 45).

---

1. Claudio Jannet, Précurs. p. 47.
2. History of the Jews of the West, Part 3, pp. 219-226.

If, on the other hand, we observe that the Kabbalah
– a source of disorder among Christian peoples hold on – is itself the result of penetration, of an adulteration of Judaism; that on the one hand Gnosticism originated from partly Judaic sources.
yours; we arrive, in short, at this observation: the Rosicrucian Order originated from the Secret Societies of Paganism and especially of degenerate Judaismnere. | | Cardinal Richelieu, who, admittedly, was not a man easily intimidated, was one of the pre-First things to see in the Rosicrucian Brotherhood a dangerous weapon of war engineered against society. He speaks, in his Memoirs, of "their perverse opinions of which Father Gautier and Several others have written!

When Richelieu came to power, Rosicrucians,
Atheists and libertines understood that the situation
It was becoming too dangerous for them. They seemed having abandoned France until the end of the reign of Louis XIV: but the propaganda of anti-Christianity and Naturalism nevertheless continued in Germany, in Holland, in England. (CI. Jannet, Précurs., p.25).

The Judaizers and the Paganizers of the Rose-Croix had therefore failed in their first attempt at leap delivered to France in 1622: their heirs pri-take their revenge in 1793.

---

1. Memoirs... Card. de Richelieu, vol. I. p. 286, ed. Michaud.
– CI. Jannet, Précurs, p. 20.

Digitized by Google

FREEMASONRY

Before showing the criminal sides of the Socié-Secret territories that have been discussed so far, we we took care to give, as succinctly as possible that it was possible for us to get an idea of their origins and their doctrines.

Thank God, modern Freemasonry is already too well known to our readers for that we have to elaborate at length on his birth sance, on its history and on the rites that it practices-than its followers.

We will only say what is strictly necessary to
to give, as a shortcut, the general table Criminal Secret Societies Throughout Time and space.

Origin of Freemasonry.

A large number of writers, some frank-Freemasons, and other anti-Masons, have debated on the origin of Freemasonry. It does not enter within our framework to monitor them. We limit ourselves
It should be remembered that, for some, it is a "renov-vation, a continuation of the Mysteries of Asia,
"From Egypt!"

This definition is from Ragon, to whom the Great-Orient de France awarded the title of "Author "Sacred of Freemasonry," which gives a a certain relief, according to him.

For its part, the Masonic journal L'Acacia, in a widely noted article, called the Freemason-
The Counter-Church, the Church of Heresy? and, from
In fact, Freemasonry does indeed constitute an army organized against Catholicism and serving the purposes of all the enemies of the Church.

The two definitions of Ragon and Acacia
They also fit into one another, since we remember that the ancient Mysteries were themselves-same (to borrow Ragon's word) "renoves, continued" in the first Se- Societies crests of the Gnostics.

The combination of these two definitions satisfies su-quickly our minds so that we don't have

1. F... J.-M. Ragon, Masonic Orthodoxy, followed by the Occult Freemasonry, Paris, August 1853, p. 3.

2. The Acacia, October. 1902, p. 3.

to issue here, given the few pages we have available sounds, another hypothesis, for the origin of Franc- .
Freemasonry, that in which it would be considered as the current receptacle of old natural doctrines lists and materialists of Antiquity, filtered succ-cessively through all the sects and all the philosophies such as Kabbalah, Gnosticism, the Manichaeism, Albigensianism, Spinozism, etc.

Likewise, each chapter of this book seems to contribute to strengthening the legitimacy of our credence in this thesis: moreover, to combat a power as formidable as the Christian idea Look, the enemies of the Church don't have too much all competitions.

Thus, in the early centuries, the Initiates of Isis and of Eleusis, of Mithras, join forces with the phiphilosophers like Philo, the Jewish Plato, and with the wizards like Simon Magus; from this arose Gnosis, where the Jews, the first enemies of the Christians, in date as in the harshness of hatred, hold natural-a really very important place. - E

It is in the immense arsenal of Gnosis, this synthesis of all religions and all ancient philosophies, from which all heretics draw siarchs up to and including Luther.

With the Rosicrucians, "derived directly from the

"Kabbalah," we have a new synthesis modernized; then, if we wish, in an exlaid out as short as ours, we stick to it, without no hypothesis, to the historical facts – that Do we see?

On the one hand, lodges of skilled masons...

covering Europe, some animated by feelings Christians; the others, imbued with the foul mysticism- a Gnostic and Manichean city that makes them engrave 'on certain pillars of churches intended for Christians- Look at these emblems that have nothing to do with Catholicism.

On the other hand, the Brotherhood of these alchemists, kabbalists, occultists who call themselves the Rose-Cross.

Now – and this is an undeniable historical fact – . Possible situation: |

“In 1646, the famous antiquary Elias Ashmole, great alchemist, | founder of the Oxford Museum, becomes to admit Colonel Mainwarring into the brotherhood stonemasons in Warrington, in which one began to ostentatiously aggregate individuals foreigners to the art of building.

That same year, a Rosicrucian Society... assembles in the Freemasons' meeting room at London. » (F.. Ragon, Orthod. mac. p. 28, 29). Addtones that Elias Ashmole's father had been one of the . early followers of the Rosicrucians. (CI. Jannet, Precursors. p. 22).

Now, Ashmole and the other Rosicrucians were they acting of their own volition or Was someone pushing them into the shadows? This is of the order of hypotheses. But it is obvious that the Kabbalistic Jews who had inspired the documentaries Rosicrucian trines must have preserved in the Rosicrucian Order, mother of Freemasonry, a considerable influence.

Myths and Rituals.

It was from 1646 to 1648 that Elias Ashmole wrote, for the professional Freemasons mixed with the Rosicrucians, – "the first three Apprentice rituals, Compagnon and Master, forming," said Brother Ragon, "a written method of initiation modeled on the ancients Mysteries and those of Egypt and Greece!

Gnosticism and Kabbalah also had their part in it. since the Myth of Hiram and the Queen of Sheba, of their ancestor Eblis, etc. (who in the mystagogy (Masonic replaces the races of Isis and Ceres) is clearly borrowed from a Gnostic sect Judaizing?

For this fundamental myth of Freemasonrynything, whose strangeness is in no way inferior to the Sacred Fishing of the members of Osiris, nor to immolation of the primordial bull by Mithras, I ren- . simply leads to one of the many books that address the issue in the first chapter of the work of Le Couteulx de Canteleu, for example. (Sects and Secret Societies, Paris, 1863, pp. 17–26).

It shows how the architect of the Temple of Solomon, Hiram or Adonhiram, was, by Kain, the descendant of Eve and an angel of fire, and comthe union of Hiram with Balkis, queen of Saba – from the same Kainite lineage –

1.F.°. Ragon, Orthod. Mac.p. 29.

2. It is also known that most of the passwords of the Freemasonry is of Hebrew origin.

was to emerge "The eternal militia of the workers who will always rally to his name.” (Le Couteulx..., p- 21).

It is above the figurative tomb of this Hiram, grandson of an angel and beloved by the Queen of Sheba, that modern Freemasons carry out in Lodge the famous "Master's Step". And these memes Freemasons, whose traditional legends are also perfectly ridiculous, dealing with gro- that Christianity.

The three flaws, as with the ancient Initiates.

_ To penetrate all groups with the same mindset scattered who, "animated by a deep hatred against Christianity was practiced in scattered and hidden ways. under a thick veil of hypocrisy and is transmitted- were the traditions of the ancient heresies 1”, the to organize them, to discipline them, while still allowing them, thanks to the infinite diversity of rituals a great freedom of approach; amalgamating all doctrines the most outwardly anti-Christian to unite them through Naturalism (which Leo XIII has denounced as the Loges land thesis?), such was the role of Freemasonry, the great Modern Secret Society.

Like all those that preceded it, we let's go see her, marked on the forehead with the same three flaws that we have seen in all the others:

1. A. Jannet, Précurs., p. 56.
2. Encyclical Humanum Genus.

Magic, with F.: Swedenborg, with the F.. Jewish Martinez Paschalis!, with F.:. Jewish Cagliostro 2, with all the Swedenborgians and all the Martinists;

Immorality, used by Freemasonry to impose itself to be in France by the androgynous Lodges; the corruption, recommended as an instrument of reigns among the Weishaupt Illuminati and in the Nubius High-Sales;

Human blood: Masonic assassinations, executions, Masonic massacres abound tooth enough that, alas, our thesis appears already justified in advance. _ by Freemason Sorcerers.

The Jewish Brother Reghellini of Scio showed in the F.:. Swedenborg, a perfect Gnostic, based his Mystical rite on a "Jesus Christ" whose res-. the resemblance to the "Christos" of Gnosticism is striking, if it bears no resemblance whatsoever to that of the Church.

It was Swedenborg, he writes (Vol. 2, p. 434), who has gave the idea to "Martinès Pascalis of his rite of "Elus Coëns (or Cohens), which relates to the "Biblical and Christian theosophy, which is quite "widespread in Germany and in the cities

"more considerable..."

1. A. Jannet, Précurs., p..54.

2. De Luchet, Authentic Memoirs to Serve as a Historical Account from the Count of Cagliostro, 2nd edition, 1785, p. 1.

"(In the Swedenborg Rite, the Initiate) learns 'the occult sciences...' |

For his part, F.-. Ragon cites the Fastes universalts where Buret de Longchamps wrote:

“Emmanuel Swedenborg… ended up believing himself to be transcarried into the spiritual and celestial world... He makes his the usual company of angels, a journey among the planets and among the stars, and there he holds frescoes quents with the celestial spirits who, he claims, appear to him!

Swedenborg himself explained, in these terms,
the origin of his apostolate: |

“I dined very late in my London inn, and I was eating with great appetite when at the end of During my meal, I noticed a kind of fog... spread over my eyes, and that the floor of my
The room was covered in hideous reptiles. They disappeared-rent... and I clearly live in the middle of a light Long live a man... who said to me in a terrible voice: Don't Don't eat so much...

'The following night, the same man, radiant with A light appeared to me and said: I am the Lord, Creator and Redeemer. I have chosen you to to explain to men the inner and spiritual meaning of Sacred Scriptures; I will dictate to you what you must write...

The Lord was clothed in purple; and the vision lasted a quarter of an hour. This very night, my eyes
The interiors were found open and arranged to see in Heaven, in the spirit world, and in the hell, where I found several characters from my knowledge...(Abridged works of Swedenborg, cited (by Baruel, Mémoires 2nd Ed. t. IV, p. 126-127).

1. Cited by F. Ragon, Orthod. Mac., p. 258.

As well as Simon Magus, Swedenborg appears both a visionary and a charlatan; this Gnostic theologian and founder of a Franc-Mystical Freemasonry, which was very powerful, is also a showman: it all goes well together.

There, he shows us a paradise in full correspondence dance with the earth, and the Angels doing in the other world everything that man does in this one. There, he He describes the sky and its countryside, its forests... There, he is Schools for Angels... Universities for Wise angels, from the fairs and the Stock Exchange hotels for the merchant angels. Again, there are...
Male spirits and female spirits; these spirits
They married, and Swedenborg attended the wedding.
Marriage is heavenly; but "one should not infer from this"
that the heavenly spouses do not know voluptuousness
The... Angels of both sexes are still in the the most perfect point of beauty, youth and vigor: they therefore have the last pleasures of marital love, and far more delightful than the "Mortals cannot have them." (See Swed. Doctr. of the Heavenly Jerusalem... cited by Baruel, Memoirs, vol. IV, p. 127, 128.)

This is, in tangible form, the idea of the angelic wedding.
formerly expressed by the ancient Gnostics. The F.-. Swedenborg had not gone to great lengths his inventions were designed to frighten his dupes. But his
The sect nevertheless gathers no less than twenty thousand followers in England, from 1788. (Baruel, Memoirs, vol. VI, p. 145.)

The evocative rites capable of provoking the appearances of beings from the Afterlife, magic, the Witchcraft, that is the essence of Freemasonry of the Elected Cohens founded by the Portuguese Jew Mar-

tinès de Pasqually who embroidered on the Swedish-Borgienne. Here is what the Great wrote about her Current Master of the Martinists:

“In 1754, Martinés de Pasqually, initiated into the Mysteries of the Rosicrucian Order, had established an Illu- center in Paris minism. The recruitment of the Brothers was very meticulous-them and the work carried out focused on the study of Magic, on the ritual of spirit evocations... »
(From the State of Secret Societies at the time of the Revolution-French tion, by Papus, President of the Supreme Council of the Martinist Order, General Delegate of the Kabba Order-(List of the Rosicrucians, Paris, 1894, p. 7).

The Angel of F... Martinés by Pasqually.

In another work by Mr. Papus, L'Illuminism in France – Martinès de Pasqually, his life, his magical practices '..., are found letters extremely curious about Martinès. Of two of them- Between them, it appears that he practiced – or affected to practice – Catholicism, as well as the AlBigeois and some Spanish and Portuguese Israelites falsely converted gays.

“I am informing you, Most Powerful Master,” wrote Martinès to one of his followers, that the son whom God has Grand Master Coën, given, was received on Sunday last-deny after his baptism at the 7th hour. of the last horizon solar, in accordance with our laws, assisted by four of my former simple coens named above.” (Letter) (from June 20, 1768, see M. Papus, loc. cit., p. 27).

---

1. Paris, 1895.

In the other letter (of January 23, 1769), where also finds a passage relating to religion The singular adventures of Martinès are narrated of the great betrayal of the Master of Guers, a a follower who tried to pass himself off as the only one Grand Master of the Martinist Order,

“The operations!” Mr. Papus told us, had apparently-he, manifested by obvious signs, the unworthiness of the Guers, who had left the session "covered in shame" and confusion." (M. Papus, Martinés... p. 35).

This one from Guers seems to be one of those traffickers quants of Masonic degrees that proliferated in this era. Martinès dresses it beautifully:

"This monster," he said, "conspired with several scoundrels and other Freemasons whom I had once driven out of my old Temple to surprise bad faith of the magistrates and their justice system through falsehoods accusations he made against me... (same letter: Martinés..., p. 36).

"...Seeing that this man persisted in making dis-steps taken to try to harm me... in truth, I could not prevent me from revealing to the magistrates my swindler and my knight errant. I explained in detail to Mr. d'Arche, jurat, the motives that had led this man to act also atrociously, either against me, the order or its prin-principal chiefs. On my report, Mr. d'Arche sent him search and informed him that he had sent him back to stand trial before our secret tribunal, and being accused of serious misconduct within the Order was not appropriate. to create a conflict of jurisdiction..." (same letter: Martinés..., p. 38), |

---

1. These operations were none other than those of the rites of evocative magic.

Mr. Papus admires "this sentence from a judge who recognizes the validity of a secret tribunal.” He tells us It is impossible to share his admiration. He it seemed to us that there had to be something rotten in France, for a magistrate to... to render, with this unconsciousness, a stop to this Species! A ruling that effectively legalizes a sentence expected from a secret tribunal, which operates at within a Secret Society whose very existence was a challenge to the laws – to the “just laws”, as F.-. Joseph Reinach would say!

"What was said was done," (continues the triumphant Martinès); we put him on trial and a verdict was reached by the secret tribunal on January 5, 1769... The next day In the morning, I myself went to deliver the decree to Mr. d'Arches. to whom I read, which he found good and worthy of _prevarications of this wicked man... (id. – loc. cit.,

p. 39).

We have just seen an extraordinary judge; Here comes a priest of lamentable naiveté:

Finally, (Martinès continues), this man seeing himself Having finally been discovered, he left with his clique at The priest of my parish told him that I was an apostate. and that I was teaching, under the pretext of Freemasonry, a sect contrary to the Christian religion, Having had Having heard of this, I went to my priest and him I asked what had been said by that strange man against me. He made no secret of it, he told me everything. And I showed him who I was in my religion, my certifications certificates of Catholicism and my exact and essential duties of a zealous Christian and he was convinced of the truth that I

---

1. Du Guers, "this unjust man", seems to be well informed.

"Tell him, as well as about the false account of this monster." (Id. loc. cit., p. 39).

We will see later if the priest from Bordeaux had reason to be considered a good Catholic The Kabbalist Martinès. In the meantime, here we are. having reached an admirable passage, where Magic marTiniste reveals himself in a particular light:

"When he was fully informed of one and of the other one, this swindler and imposter, seeing that he could not To succeed in his schemes, he decided to come to I, one day, while I was campaigning at Mr. de Brulle's, The King's guard, our rival, to try to make felt to the Powerful Masters of Grainville and Balzac the pain he felt at having lost their friendship and estimates, and that he would have me or he would kill me in one fell swoop of pistol, My guardian angel was following him for then to pee in the basin (sic)...

This unjust man was affiliated with bastard lodges and apocrypha” (Letter from Martinès — January 23, 1769 — Martinés..., p. 40).

It is understandable that in order to have at their service Minds as wise as the "protective swaddling cloth" of Martinés, the elected officials of Coéns, were not to back down. no magical operation, however painful, if strange, frightening as it was.

The magical operations of the Martinists.

Let's get to the heart of the Marti-'s sorcery Nists: their current leader expresses himself as follows in the work (cited earlier) that he has concrowned in the front row at Martinès de Pasqually and in the second row to Claude de Saint-Martin and in Willermoz, the two other great Apostles of Martinism:

— "To enter into communication with the Invisible, that is the first result obtained by the Illuminati (Martinés..., Papus, p. 73.) | “Martinés… gradually initiated Willermoz, but it was only with a respect tinged with dread that he will speak of this spiritual influence, of this action of the Invisible World that the poor disciple (Willermoz) will take so many years to perceive, of this great Mystery always referred to by the enigmatic name of "the Thing". Martinés... Papus, p. 73)!.

...In the first sessions, the new discithose admitted to take part in the Master's work will see the Thing perform mysterious actions said the current Gr... M. of Martinism. They came outfrom there, they would be both excited and terrified, like Saint-Martin, or drunk with pride and ambition like the disciples of Paris?

To clarify further, the Grand Master of Marti–

Modernism adds:

"Apparitions have occurred, strange beings" of a different essence from earthly human nature took the floor and delivered profound teachings, and each disciple is called upon to reproduce alone and by himself the same phenomena (p. 74).

"The experiments are beginning; but we want to go

1. On page 113 of the same Martinist work, we will see that The Thing was an Apparition that Willermoz called "the Agent" An unknown person in charge of the Initiation process.

2. Isn't it strange to see, on the eve of the Terror, Spiritualist ghosts exalting revolutionary fury?

too fast, we want to avoid tiring workouts, and Everything fails. So, we blame the Master, we attack him to Martinès of failures and setbacks, and Martinès replied very sincerely: "But, dear Master, if it were I, who ruled the invisible world, my greatest My ambition would have been to satisfy you. But what can I do? Tell you? "The Thing" demands solid proof and very serious, with boundless dedication. The day when You will be worthy, the phenomena will come.

This is indeed what is happening, and we must praise without reservation the tenacity of Willermoz who put more than ten years to obtain conclusive evidence, whereas at After two or three years of study, most of The other disciples were satisfied.

The practices taught by Martinès, adds Mr. Papus, derive solely from ceremonial magic... (M. Papus, Martinés, p. 73, 74).

A letter from Martinés to Willermoz, the upper a Freemason from Lyon, who was the most energetic propagator of Martinism, is quite curious; the Here it is, dated February 16, 1770: | |

…The visions are white, blue, white, light red Finally, they are mixed or all white, the color of white candle flame, you will see sparks, you will feel goosebumps all over your body All of this foreshadows the principle of traction that the Done with the one who works. Try T(rès) C(cher) Master, to procure some of these things for you since mere imitators that I have under the order of the The Great Architects saw by night and by day, without light- neither candle nor any other fire; that does not bother me does not surprise them because they are entirely given to the Thing and ordered in order; in this they you submit their completed and signed vision certificates their own hand, so that you will be convinced of their success in the Order; there are four of them: the first, Hauterive's brother, a gentleman and former captain of Roy; the other is Brother Defore, second captain of the artillery, and the other, Brother Defournier, former bourgeois living off his income from Bordeaux, nephew of Grand Prior of the Augustinians of Paris. If Brother Baron de Calvimont was here, he would also have given his certificate, but he will give it as soon as he returns from his lands 1... (Papus, Martinès, p. 92, 93).

L. CI. of St-Martin, Willermoz and the Revolution.

It would be a mistake not to attach importance to Martinism because of the ridicule it confers by certain related to "operations" of the kind that ac- Martinès was completing with his disciples of St-MarTin and Willermoz; these last two followers, in Indeed, they were among the men who worked 'the most to throw France into the charnel house of the Terror.

Here is an obituary from F.-Thory on the F.:. L. Cl. of St-Martin:

1804, 14 October, L., CI. of St-Martin... dies in the Senator Lenoir la Roche's country house, a Aunay, near Paris.... It was he who introduced into the Lodges, in France, the doctrine of Martinism. Mr. de St-Martin is, as we know, the author of a great name-a collection of mystical books, the principal one of which appeared under

1. We believe we have found a trace of this "Elected Cohen", Baron of Calvimont: his lands were said to be located in Castandet (Landes). (AB)

'The title of Errors and Truth. It is from this work of which Voltaire said, in a letter he wrote to Dalembert, October 22, 1776: Never was it printed nothing could be more absurd, more obscure, more insane, and more stupid. (F... Thory: Acta Lalomorum. Paris 1815, vol. I, p. 223).

Here, we see how admirable the organization is. Masonic sation, which knows how to guide towards the same but a skeptic such as Voltaire's F.°. and a mystic such as the F.:. of St-Martin!

In the immediate aftermath of the Terror, Abbot Baruel who is one of the researchers who has studied the most the role of the various Secret Societies in the events revolutionary movements, written about the Martinism and of the F.:. of St-Martin:

One of the sect's main tricks is to hide not only its dogmas and the truth of the means that they provide him to strive for the same goal, but again, if she could succeed, in hiding even the name of its various classes. The one that one would think the The least impious, the least rebellious, will find itself precisely the one who made the most effort and put the most artistry into revitalize the old systems of our greatest enemies of Christianity and governments.

It may seem surprising to see me understand in This class, our Martinist Freemasons; however, it is dant decants que je veux parler. I don't know the origin of this Mr. de St-Martin who gave them his name; but I challenges that beneath an exterior of probity and under a tone devout, honeyed, mystical, we find more hyPocrisy, that in this abortion of a slave Curbiquet, I saw men whom he had seduced; I saw that he wanted to seduce; everyone spoke to me of his great respect for Jesus Christ, for the Gospel, for the Governments ments; I, for one, take his doctrine and his great object in his productions, in the one that made the Apocalypse of his followers, in his famous work Des Errors and Truth... May the hero of this code, the faMeux St-Martin is showing himself to be openly hypocritical. that his master, he will be nothing more than the vile copyist of the inepties of the Hesyarch slave, more generally known under the name of Mani. With all his convoluted walk we will see him leading his followers in the same direction third, to inspire in them the same hatred of the altars of ChristTianism... (Baruel, Memoirs to serve as a History of the Jacobinism, 2nd ed., Hamburg, vol. II, pp. 233-234.)

1. Curbicus was the original name of the heretic Manes.

Here, again, is the judgment of another contemporary. the considerable role of Martinism in the bouterrorist uprisings:

– As early as 1797, the former F. Robison, too, had characterized-ridiculed the pernicious dogmatic book of Martinism in saying that "everything in this work tends to captivate and dazzle minds to make them adopt it easily depending on the needs, the most licentious principles in morality, religion, and politics,” while lathe Marquis de Saint-Martin, had the address of to maintain the greatest moderation in his style. But we understand how much this moderation was misleading, when you know this book and when you know the revelations he made about all the harm caused by – Martinism, the former F. von Haugwitz, Macon of the Hauts-Grades who was the head of the Lodges of Prussia and Russie and who had also escaped in horror from the Freemasonry, after having witnessed its crimes firsthand.

However, ex-F.:. von Haugwitz stated that the code of 'Martinists are "the key to all past eventstionaries" and that the most horrific dramas of

This era was a direct result of conspiracies and the oaths that bound the followers of the Societies crests.

Furthermore, the Freemason historian Henri Martin has noted that the friends of F. Robespierre had the instint of his affinities for Martinist theses. (Hist. (de Fr., 1860, vol. XVI, p. 531). For his part, the historian F.:. Louis Blanc described Martinism as a "doctrine at the bottom of which the Revolution rumbled smoldering

"demented..." (History of the Revolution, Brussels edition, 1848, vol. II, p. 85)1.

If we go from Saint-Martin to Willermoz, we clearly see the close relationships that united the common Freemasons with the Freemasons Quintessentially Masonic, like the Martinists. F.:. Willermoz, a wealthy merchant from Lyon, was, in Indeed, both a leader of Martinism and a leader of Ordinary Freemasonry, — as well as F+. Bacon of the Chivalry, infantry colonel, and founder of the famous androgynous Lodge La Candeur (that of Sister... Princess of Lamballe), is shown to us by F.'. Besuchet successive-
. ment as Grand Orator of the Grand Orient of France? And as a correspondent and disciple of Martinès de Pasqually?

After that, modern Freemasons would have mis-
It was a shame to qualify the Martinists as false Ma-fools, because they are given to high-level practices
1. L. Dasté (A. Baron) Freemasonry and the Terror, Paris, 1904, pp. 14, 15.

2. F. Besuchet, Historical Summary, p. 20. |

3. F. Besuchet, Précis historique, p. 194.

Witchcraft that, on the surface, doesn't fit well with the "Science," entirely materialistic, by eminent men such as F.:. Lafferre, for example.

The Phantom Instructor,

It's unbelievable when you read some of these... pages of Martinist works where we are told-veiled the occupations in which he engaged, at Lyon, the F.*. Willermoz, at the very moment he was blade of the great Masonic Conventions which have laid these beautiful premises, the conclusions of which There were shootings, drownings, and guillotines. from 1793.

...I] is enough at last (writes the Grand Master of the Martinists modern) to refer to the certificates given by Martinés 4 Willermoz in his correspondence, for to be certain that many of the disciples obtained from very important practical results.

But the archives we possess allow us to to answer the question we asked ourselves, a very unexpected response. Willermoz manages to his fine and obtains phenomena of the highest importance tance, which reached their peak in 1785, that is to say thirteen years after the death of its initiator, Martinés de Pasqually.

We can follow in the correspondence of Willermoz and Saint-Martin (1771 to 1790), the emergence and the progress of these practical results which encourage Saint-Martin came to Lyon several times and we own in addition, part of the notebooks as well as the catalogue lessons given by the appearance that

W(illermoz) refers to him as "the Unknown Agent" responsible for the UInitiation work.

(Martines... by Papus, Doctor of Medicine, Doctor In Kabbalah, President of the Supreme Council of the Order Martinist, Paris, 1895, p. 113).

To put an end to Martinist sorcery, Let's open another book by the President of the Martinis-your current ones. It is entitled Martinism and Franc-Masonry. On page 15 we learn that the A phantom named "the Unknown Agent" is said to have dictated 166 instruction notebooks. That's what, among the Illuminated lower parts of the turntables on calls for spiritualist dictations, and the heart of the Mysteries Martinism, therefore, is quite simply a specter dictating these doctrines so vividly to the Initiates tainted by the ex-Masons Robison and Haugwitz!

Brother Claude de Saint-Martin also had brothers numerous reports with the same ghost who plays such a large role in Martinist mythology.

I'm not making this up: on page 14 of the book that I quote, the Grand Master of modern Martinists wrote these suggestive lines:

"What we need to reveal and what will throw a The great light sheds on many points is that the Initiates named the invisible being that communicated the unknown philosopher; that it was he who gave in part of the book "Of Errors and Truth" and that Claude de Saint-Martin did not take for himself alone this pseudo-"named later and in order." (Martinism and Freemasonry, by Papus, President of the Supreme Council of the Martinist Order, Paris, 1899).

If you think about it for a moment, the ghost dictating to the Brother of Saint-Martin, his doctrine in one hundred and sixty-six notebooks, it's exactly the same thing as the goddess Demeter revealing from her own mouth to the ancestor of the Eumolpids the mysterious secrets which formed the basis of the Eleusinian Mysteries.

But, that these founders of Martinism had were either imposters or simply madmen, or although they were both actors and spectators ` in scenes of fakirism as studied In recent years, some of the most serious scholars have... Rieux, one thing is quite certain: that they the practices are appalling to the highest degree to which the high-ranking Freemason Willermoz had the cons-he refused to give himself up for thirteen years, relentlessly at night, for hours on end, chanting hymns in the blazing candlelight erected around him, while, lying flat on his stomach, he held his face turned "towards the angle "d'Est." (This last point was essential 1).

Conspiring wizards.

However absurd the sorceries that We have just described, however, it is a fact: the man who practiced them was the key player

---

1. Letter from Martinès de Pasqually to Willermoz in progress initiation (February 16, 1770): "You will make a circle with some White chalk in the middle of your room. You will also draw your CDC towards the eastern angle... This makes you prostrate-You will draw the entire face in the circle that you will have made at center of your room... the top of your head being in prostration will look towards the East... You prostrate yourself-"The 22nd of next month, the day of the Equinox..." (Dr. Papus, Martinès de Pasqually..., p. 90). "has

Masonic convents where things were brewing the revolutionary ferments; and it was in 1785, Let's not forget, four years before the start of the Revolution which was so quickly to fall into blood and stupidity, these idiotic operations eventually lead to Willermoz practical results, that is to say, visions magical.

Let's not forget that at the same time The Martinists were emerging from their high-level sessions spiritualism “excited and terrified as Saint-Martin — wrote Dr. Papus — or drunk of pride and ambition like the disciples of Parisi. »

There is a terribly close link between the Martinist magic and the preparations for revolutionnaires. Here it is: at the Mother Lodge of the Martinists Lyonnais, Les Chevaliers Bienfaisants, was intimatelinked to the famous Parisian lodge Les Amis Reunited. And it is in this last Lodge, we we will see below that, from 1785 onwards, all the sectarian, anti-Christian and anti-social groups allied to-Then the most materialistic, and finally the most panicked. of spiritualism 2,
As for the Jacobin tyranny which will soon to dwell on France, it is very truly germinated in the book by L. Cl. de Saint-Martin, this Martinist Talmud where we will see reflect the pride of the ancient Initiates that made so

---

1.D! Papus, Martinės..., p. 73.

— 2. N. Deschamps, Les Sociétés Secrétes, t. II, p: 115, 116, according to Brothers Clavel and Ragon.

harsh to the humble, their crazy conception of a alleged superiority over the rest of men.

This is how the "Unknown Philosopher" of Martinism (Claude de Saint-Martin, unless (It was not the ghost that dictated his book to him!) written in his own words that the Initiate will be superior to the Profahs "because," he said, "there will be between them and he has a real difference, based on abilities and powers (implicitly magical) including the "Value will be evident t." And this "Philosopher" "Unknown" adds that:

"If there is a man in whom the darkness going so far as "depravity", the Initiate has a duty to seize him and leave him no freedom... so much to satisfy the laws of its prince-"This is only for the safety and example of Society!"

"Leave him no freedom!" We have indeed read, and that is in fact the whole doctrine of the Franks-Modern Freemasons for whom our Catholic faith is nothing but depravity, as the ghost said instructor of Monsieur de Saint-Martin.

And the ghost instructor (or the Philosopher) Unknown (as you prefer) concludes by saying that The Initiate must exercise over the Profane whom he judges "depraved" all the rights of slavery and of "Servitude i." But the depraved profane one is you. reader, and that's me, that's all of us, from the moment that we push depravity to the point of Fight the Holy Initiates!

---

1. “On Errors and Truth by a Philosopher” Edimbourg, 1775, cited by N. Deschamps, Soc. Secrètes, t. I. p. 221.

Weishaupt. — Systematic corruption.

Without going into detail on the question of France-Women's Freemasonry that would lead us too far Far from it, it is at first glance a fact which, to the point of view of systematic corruption as means of rule, places the Secret Societies modernes exactly at the level of the ancient Initiates: This is the creation by Weishaupt of the Sect of Iluminés who dominated Freemasonry before the French Revolution and whose principles continue to lead the Lodges.

Weishaupt organized alongside Freemasonry and for to later encompass a Society whose base was:

passive obedience, universal espionage, the princeThe principle that the end justifies the means and the practice of Violation of the confidentiality of letters. (F... Henri Martin, Hist. of France, t. XVI, p. 532, note 2).

Thanks to a carefully orchestrated and gradual demoralization, Weishaupt was bringing his Z{enlightened ones} to a point of contempt absolute of all social laws. And what proceded!... |

It's a veritable code for the perfect spy qwa Weishaupt prepared for his Scrutineering Brothers, with a series of at least fifteen hundred questions on life, education, the body, the soul, the heart, the health, passions, inclinations, opinions, the accommodation, the clothes, the favorite colors of candidate.

1. Cited by Baruel, Mémoires pour servir à l'histoire du Jacobinism, 2nd edition, Hamburg, vol. II, p. 86.

The Scrutineers have many more details to share. to bring their initiate into the story. It is necessary that each trait with which they depict him is demonstrated by the _ facts, and especially those facts that betray a man, at the moment he least expects it. (Letter from Weis(haupt). They must follow the Brother to scrutinize until in his sleep: let them know if he is asleep, whether he dreamed and whether he spoke in his dreams; whether it is easy or difficult to _ to wake up, and what impression does a sabit awakening make on him, forced, unexpected.

Reclaiming the old title of Epopte used at Eleusis, Weishaupt gave it to the "Illuminati Priestsmined” from its higher synods. One of them prewas adept at teaching certain sciences as well listed: |

The occult sciences; ... the art of secret writing;

the art of deciphering them; the art of violating the seals of the auvery and that of preventing ours from being so?...

These corrupt and scheming spies, precursors of our Freemasons, the "scandals" of today in the art of denunciation, their followers were led to absolute atheism as well as to the most wildly anarchist theories3.

"Weishaupt aimed for nothing less than overthrow" complete authority, nationality, the entire systemsocial theme in a word; to the abolition of property etc... » (On the role of Freemasonry in the 16th century... Rapport read at the Plenary Meeting of the RR.:. Lodges of Peace and

1. Baruel, Mémoires... t. HII, p. 88.
2. Baruel, Mémoires..., t. III, p. 222.

3. Compare with the Ismailis.

Unionet La Libre Conscience a1OO.°. of Nantes, on Monday April 23, 1883).

I did not write this for the purposes of the because of this characteristic phrase: it's a franka Freemason who found himself forced to confess, in these express terms, that Weishaupt's Illuminati were not nothing other than transcendent anarchists. And This Brother .*. made this observation a few lines before admitting that the Mountain People (that is to say the Jacobins responsible for the crimes of the Terror) were "derived from Martinism" and the Illuminism of F.+. Weishaupt. (L. Dasté, Freemasonry and the Terror, pp. 20, 21).

Thus we find the Martinists and the IlluWeishaupt mines linked to each other in certain Masonic confessions, such as they were In reality.

The alliance between Wizards and Atheists.

The Ambassadors of the Weishaupt Illuminati with whom F.:. Mirabeau had met in Berlin!
were taken to Paris by him.

1. Here, one will find, of interest, a passage where Claudio Jannet shows Freemasonry and Illuminism allied with Judaism: .

“In the mid-eighteenth century, in Germany, Lessing, the great propagator of Freemasonry, extends his hand to the Jews. Dohm, in 1781, wrote his book On the Improvement of the civil registry of the Jews, which has been said to have been for Germany, what Rousseau's Social Contract had been for France. It was in a Jewish salon in Berlin, the one for Mendelsohn, that Mirabeau associates with the Illuminati, and, for as a prelude to its revolutionary role, it gives a decisive guarantee

There, they were warmly welcomed by the Martinized Lodge of the United Friends which served as a link between the common Freemasons of the Grand Orient of France and Martinists such as the F.:. La Chappe de la Heuzière and the F.-. Willer-Moz, the high sorcerer of Lyon, the man with thirteen years of nocturnal “prostrations”.

As soon as a close alliance had been formed in this a den of conspiracies, between Martinism and the German emissaries, the secret Committee of United Friends convened a General Convention for February 15, 1785 French and foreign Freemasons (on behalf of Philalethes, Regular Superiors of the Most Venerable Lodges of the United Friends!).

From then on, the revolutionary center was in full comcombustion. Sudden riots (illuminated by the lights) fires that ignite everywhere) break out on all the points of the territory.

The time is near.

But everything was so cleverly orchestrated by the scoundrels who:
They then dominated the Lodges like other scoundrels
They dominate them today, that the Nation realizes that we was leading her to the butcher shop when she already had the knife to his throat! (L. Dasté, La Franc-Freemasonry and Terror, pp. 24, 25).

upon his return to France, he became an advocate for emancipation.
tion of the Jews, in his book on the political Reform of the Jews (London 1787). (Cl. Jannet, Les Précurseurs..., p. 55).
Cl. Jannet refers, for this period of preparation of the Revolution, in the beautiful book by Abbé Lehmann, The Entry of Israelites in French Society, Paris 1886, chap. vii.

1. Read N. Deschamps, Les Soc. Secrètes, t. II, p. 120.

XIV
BLOODY FREEMASONRY |

While the ancient mysteries had their horrible ritual crimes, it can be said, that, during the Ter-
These are genuine human sacrifices, no less dreadful things were offered on the altar of the Guillotine, by the Initiates of the Outside Mysteries of Freemasonry.

It is Freemasonry that, along with so many others we accuse of having thrown France into the bloody quagmire, in the charnel house of the Terror.
But here is a crucial, striking fact that corroborates with singular power all that we we can say: august men, whose Words command respect from everyone, even those who... hate them the most — the Popes — have predicted, long-

In times past, the misfortunes they witnessed Freemasonry weaving its web in the shadows:

All the Popes, both before and after the Terror, have always denounced Freemasonry as

(the main instrument of the enemies of Civilization)
Christian.

It's a profound misfortune (I was going to say: it's a crime /) that we Catholics do not have I never listened better to the great voice of the Popes proclaiming mant, for almost two centuries now, all, without respite, the immense dangers that Freemasonry poses to

The Society.
Less than two years before the Revolution, in October
In 1787, Cardinal Caprara made a final appeal warning. In a memorandum addressed to the Pope, he he pointed out "the widespread morbid action," he wrote, "by the various sects of Illuminati, of Freemasons "which are multiplying..." he said, and he concluded with these Truly prophetic words:

"Danger is approaching, because of all these senseless dreams" of Illuminism, Swedenborgism or Franc-Freemasonry, it must reveal a frightening reality. The Visionaries have their time, the Revolution they presume-"gent will have his own." (N. Deschamps, Soc. Secr., t. II, p. 113.)

Just a few more months and... this "frightening reality" predicted by Cardinal Caprara will begin to manifest in the hideous form of bloody heads paraded through Paris on pikes. (Dasté-Baron, Freemasonry and the Terror, pp. 28, 29).

At the forefront of the allied Secret Societies in the tenth-eighth century to give, once again, the assault on Christian civilization, one does not see no longer just the blemish of Martinist sorcery and the phantasmagorias of F.-. Cagliostro 1, with the flaw of this systematic demoralization whose abominable code served the Epots of Weishaupt to "illuminate" Freemasonry:

- henceforth, the third blemish, the bloodstain human beings versed in countless crimes in turn, it shows us modern cults.
as covered in murders as the Assassins in orders of the Old Man of the Mountain.

The Terror System.

Freemasonry so truly gave birth to the Ter-the one we know, the high-ranking Freemason initiate, who,
The first one drew up plans for a bloody uprising.
intended to subdue France through fear.

---

1. F. Cagliostro was one of the most skillful agents of Secret Societies in the Eighteenth Century. Jewish like the F. Martinez, he was the propagator of Kabbalah Freemasonry-listic. But the latter has too many points in common with Martinism, so that we felt we had to... to occupy for a long time. Cagliostro acted primarily as "Traveling agent of the double French and German Humanism" "mand," said N. Deschamps (Soc. Secr., t. IH, p. 124), that is to say-to speak of the coalition of Martinists with the followers of Weishaupt.

"Weishaupt," said Father Louis Blanc, "had always pro-
he had a great deal of contempt for the tricks of alchemy and the fraudulent hallucinations of a few Rosicrucians. But Cagliostro possessed powerful means of seduction; he was decided that he would be used.

F. Clavel recounts throughout the incredible scenes by which he terrified multitudes who rushed towards him as if towards a superhuman being. (Hist. Pittor. de la Fr. Mac., Paris, 1844, p. 175.) - Consult N. Deschamps, Soc. Secr., t. II, pp. 123-129, F. Louis Blanc, Hist. de la Rév. Franç., t. II, p. 94, 95.

The organizer of the first massacres which, in 1789,
They began to terrorize Paris, and the whole of France.
with Paris, was indeed the Freemason Adrien Duport, from the Parisian Lodge Les Amis Réunis!

As early as 1800, a former minister of Louis XVI, Bertrand de Molleville, revealed the awful combinations that the F. Duport had conceived and had adopted by the Committee propaganda from the lodge Les Amis Réunis, at the end of the June 1789. Bertrand de Molleville reports as follows the speech given by F. Duport to his loyalists:

"It is only through the means of terror (had said the F... Duport in his own words) that one manages to to put someone in charge of a revolution and to govern it. there isn't a single one in any country whatsoever that I cannot cite in support of this truth. It is necessary. Therefore, however much we may all recoil from it, resigned to the sacrifice of a few prominent individuals.

Duport (adds de Molleville) suggested that Foulon, the comptroller general of finance, naturally to be the first victim... He then pointed to the steward Berthier, from Paris.

"There is only one cry," said Duport, "against the intendants; they could put major obstacles in the way of the revolution in the provinces. Mr. Berthier is generally detested: it's impossible to prevent it from being massacred. His fate will intimidate his colleagues; they will be as flexible as "gloves..." (B. de Molleville, Hist. de la Révol. franç., t. IV, p. 181. Paris, Year IX).

The Propaganda Committee of the Lodge Les Amis Réunis adopted F. Duport's plan and criminal methods that he was proposing.

The execution followed closely, continued Molleville; the

1. This is the Lodge where we showed the Illuminati mys—

The tics of Martinism and the Illuminati of Weishaupt conclude with ordinary Freemasonry their monstrous alliance.

massacre of Messrs. de Launay, de Flesselles, Foulon and Berthier, and their heads paraded on the end of a pike, were the first effects of this philan— conspiracy trophic. His successes soon rallied and for a long time— At the time, the various revolutionary parties that com— threatened to defy one another, but who, seeing all obstacles smoothed by this horrible measure, gathered to reap the benefits. (B. de Molleville, t. IV, p. 181.) |

The die was cast. The Freemason's lessons Duport, theorist and first implementer of the the system of Terror, were not lost, far from it, and this system of Terror, which emerged in the Lodge Les Amis Reunited, was faithfully implemented by all the men from secret societies who, successively disputed the bloody scepter of the Revolution. (Dasté-Baron. La Fr. Mag. et la Terreur, pp. 10, 11, 12).

Whether it was Freemasonry that inspired it secretly the assassinations of Launay and Foullon, de Berthier, that's an undeniable fact, and we wouldn't have— we do not have Molleville's testimony regarding the odious plan of F.:. Duport, the thing would not be no less proven.

Foullon and Berthier, in fact, had agreed to to be part of a resistance ministry, and they had declared to Louis XVI that it was necessary to arrest the leaders of the Grand Orient. The Societies Secrets found out and condemned them to death.

This is what the research conducted has revealed. in the old archives. Their results will be moreover, highlighted as their merits importance by learned scholars. But an assassin An ordinary person is content to kill their victim. When,

On the contrary, it is Freemasonry that murders. She defiles her victim, both before and after. murder: that is the hallmark of his crimes. A striking example of this can be found in the calumnies spread by the Lodges about the account of Foullon and Berthier (read: The Lie) and the Legend, by Mr. Maurice Talmeyr, Le Gaulois, July 1904).

The Masonic Assassination of Gustav III.

After the Masonic assassinations carried out in July 1789, inspired by Brother Adrien Duport, Here, in 1792, on March 15th, is another crime, the murder-of the King of Sweden, Gustav III. If we devote ourselves to it-We'll cover a few pages, it's because, similarly that for the assassination of Foullon and Berthier, the
The Masonic nature of this assassination has been demonstrated.
the most irrefutable way.

There is absolutely no doubt about it: likewise that we know the name of F.: Adrien Duport, insinstigator of the Masonic crimes of July 1789, Similarly, we know all the relevant circumstances.
reactions to the death of Gustav III, by two newspapers Germans, Germania of June 9, 16 and 23, 1878 and the Markische Kirchliche Blaetter who published a whole police file concerning the main assassin.

His name was Mahneke; he was the servant of Swedish count and F.'. Ankarstroëm; on the order of his master, he had assassinated Gustav III and had then he took refuge in Berlin.

In 1842, a German magistrate was tasked with putting in order the archives of the Berlin Criminal Court, and there he found a series of legal documents relating to so much to this character whose government of Sweden had later requested extradition. The magistrate the Prussian we just mentioned made extracts from these documents and communicated them through an intermediary to these newspapers in 1877, with the permission of the authority superior. The Prussian government, which has so much links with Freemasonry, had long secret meetings; but, after the latest attacks of
On the contrary, he found it advantageous to excite the Socialists public outrage against the regicides.

We reproduce the essential passages of the text.
ressant narrative in which Mr. Ernest Faligant analyzed These documents!

"In Sweden, three different lodges had formed" Freemasons who, up until Gustav III, had held
The full reality of power. This prince, having dared to... to wrest from their domination, various attempts were made
Do things to bring him back to other feelings. Seeing him Unwavering, the enlightened ones did not hesitate. They resolved-rent to assassinate him.

“Three members of the nobility, Horn, Ribbing and Ankarstroëm, were tasked with the attack and fired at sort to determine who would carry it out. Designated to perform the-
To fold, Ankarstroëm entrusted the mission of striking the king to one of his servants, a brother serving in the Lodge.

"This is how this criminal plan was completed: |

"Ankastroém had dressed his servant in a do-Mino and had led him to the theater, to a masked ball where the king was to attend (March 15, 1792).

“At a time when Gustav III was crossing, masked,

1. In the Universe of August 13, 14 and 15, 1878.

In the dance hall, the conspirators arranged themselves in such a way as to surround him, and from the middle of the gathering a shot
The fire started...At the same instant, the king collapsed, crying out:
"I've just been injured by a large mask" _ black!

"But already the gathering that protected and covered-
The truth is, the assassin had scattered in all directions.
tions.

"…The king had a deep wound in his side. We he hastened to carry him to his apartments...

"The troops appeared a few minutes later, and Their prompt arrival was due to zeal and the presence of mind of the son of the governor of Stral-Sund, the young Pollet.

"Upon seeing the king fall, he rushed out of the room, and he had run to warn the regiments on the loyalty on which the royal party could count. had taken care, upon leaving, to have the exits guarded the room was guarded by sentries, in order to restrain all the prisoner assistants. In addition, he organized the troops that he had gone to warn people in the square in front of the theater.

"However, there are individuals who, without a doubt, were bribed by the conspirators, in order to increase the trouble and confusion, they had begun to shout, at the moment Even where the king fell: Fire! The hall is burning! Every man for himself!

"And the crowd immediately rushed out of the room and rush in the corridors...

"At that moment, the police lieutenant arrived, von Liliensparre. He was escorted by a strong picket of reliable troops. He forced the crowd back into inside the theatre, had him placed in the middle of the hall, A platoon of soldiers stood around a table. bayonet lowered; then, after having surrounded all the areas around the buildings by a cordon of troops

Unyielding, he sat down at the table, had everyone brought to him the assistants one after the other, and subjected them to minute-difficult interrogations.

“Count Horn, one of the most brilliant horsemen of The court had to endure it like everyone else. Although he He was only twenty-two years old, he was considered to be one of the most fervent members of the opposition. His distress was extreme, and the most intense anxiety per-It was evident on his face and in his entire demeanor. He... when they were pointed out to him, he attributed it to horror what such an attack inspired in him. The answer appeared plausible and dispelled suspicions. Von Liliensparre did not did not believe he had the right to detain him.

“The main leaders of the discontented: Ribbing, Engstrom, Bielke, Lilienhorn, General Pechlin, etc., appeared successively afterwards, and by firmness of their maintenance and their responses, did not provide no take to the accusations.

“Finally, Count Ankarstroém, then teaching in The Blue Guard was questioned. He was, at least in apparenthood, perfectly calm and in control of himself. But suspicions had already fallen on him.

"At the moment when the group of conspirators had gathered—" Pity in room 4, the meeting of Gustav III, and had surrounded him, a musician from the orchestra had seen the The count approached very closely to the king. He had made it remark to several people.

"Ankarstroém, having been informed of the matter, had begun to..." The search for this man had led him to the buffet and After drinking with him and to his health, he had left him in shaking his hand. But this clumsy behavior, Far from dispelling the musician's suspicions, they had increased, and he had communicated the fact to Liliensparre. Ankarstroëm, however, was not arrested on the-field.

"The room was already beginning to empty. The assistants, as they were questioned, were sent back, Not in their home, but in the vestibule. They discovered then on the floor, not far from where we had shot the king with a dagger and two pistols.

"The dagger had a very peculiar appearance and It was designed to frighten, because we had calculated its shape so as to make it almost necessarily fatal any injury, even minor, caused by its blade.

"As for the two pistols , they were factory-made" English, and the cannons were five inches long-war...

"The crowd that filled the streets was demonstrating the the most intense and sincere pain, for Gustave IIT was generally very well-liked.

"— It was a French Jacobin who just assassinated the king, the conspirators told the people in the streets of Stockholm.

“On the morning of the 16th, the entire court was gathered.” in the great hall of the castle. The pain was painted on most faces; but it it would not always have been easy to guess if she was Whether sincere or affected, because some of the conspirators had had the audacity to come.

"They hoped in this way to keep the suspicions away from themidiots, while indulging in the pleasure of witnessing the agony of their victim. They openly accused the Jacobins to be the perpetrators of the murder, and Count Ribbing, one of the leaders of the most radical opposition, debhe would retaliate against them with extreme violence.

“The government is on the wrong track,” he told the in the middle of a group of courtiers, in a vehement tone And convinced. The real culprits are the French. The king was preparing to wage war against them; they knew it. And they wanted to warn him.

"An infantry general, cousin of a minister, the

-=F

=>

Baron Armfeld was not then master of his individual gnation.

“You are mistaken, sir,” he replied. This It was not the French who assassinated our master; He is a Swedish gentleman, and although I... I don't want to give up for my order and my country. Hide for longer.

"This firm and severe response provoked strong reactions" recriminations. But the unrest was suddenly calmed by the arrival of the city's governor, who came to announce that the real culprits had been discovered.

“One of the armorers summoned by the lieutenant of Police had recognized the pistols and stated that he had sold to Count Ankarstroem, ensign in the blue guard. We immediately went to the latter's house, and after arresting him in his bed, they had led him in prison, where he had undergone a first interrogationrogatory.

"It was only after the king's death, which occurred that very day, the investigation began. But we he only ordered it to appease public outrage; She was conducted with extreme leniency, and one was incredibly slow in searching for the accused...

… € Gustave II left only a young son, and the Duke of Södermania, his brother, was appointed regent after his death. A commission was formed by his order to try Ankarstroëm and his accomplices. But, as he was himself affiliated with their lodge, she was composed solely of Tllumines.

"In the initial moment of turmoil and over-After the capture, Ankarstroém had confessed. But then He consistently refused to complete them, and it was impossible to extract a single word from him about his secret plans, nor on the number and quality of his accomplices.

“Furthermore, there was a lot of insistence, but with so little…” of success, to make him say what had become

Mahneke, the servant he had charged with the executiontion of the crime. It was not mentioned in the documents of the procedure, for what reasons was one returning if often on this issue, so much so that we ignore if the suspicions betrayed by this insistence were based based on a glimmer of evidence. But silence Ankarstroem's stubbornness revealed that there was serious reasons for not facilitating the search of justice. Mahneke could not be found. We We will explain later why, and what it was became...

"The investigation, moreover, was progressing with a slowness" extreme. The regent showed himself to be neither impatient, nor even desirous of avenging his brother and his king. judges could, however, easily have discovered the leaders of the conspiracy. But they systematically allowed systematically in the shadows all the compromising revelations bets on the sect of the Illuminati.

"It was finally necessary to satisfy the people, who demanded the punishment of the assassins, and, after a month of investigations and interrogations, Count Ankarstroém, found guilty of the murder of Gustav III, was sentenced to death and executed.

A few assassinations.

“We have just said that the conduct of the Duke of Sudermanie was, in this whole affair, extremely suspect. Grand Master of all the orders of France-Swedish masonry, he acts as little as possible and toudays under the pressure of public opinion.

"By closely examining his habits and relationships"
From close friends, we became almost certain that he was from number of the conspirators...

"Once appointed regent, he removed all from the court the supporters of Gustav III, stripped them of their charges and their pensions to benefit the com-Ankarstroém's accomplices, and didn't even bother to to conceal his hatred for the deceased king.

"Among the most loyal supporters of the latter, are General Count Armfeld was found. Gustav III did not he hid nothing of his feelings, and he had even, it was said that entrusting someone with the safekeeping of highly compromising papers-so much for the conspirators. The regent did everything in his power to regain possession of these papers; but seducthe demands and threats failed in the face of the firmness of the county.

“— I have given you everything relating to the interre-
"State loans," Armfeld replied. "As for secrets." of my master, I cannot dispose of them; but they die-
They will be buried with me.

"Despite this promise, he fell out of favor and had to soon to leave Stockholm and Sweden in a hurry,
His friends having come to warn him one day that his freedom,
His very life was in serious danger. He fled.
in Naples; but the spies sent after him discovered almost immediately, and one of the leaders of the Swedish Freemasonry, Colonel Palinquist, there came to revive...

"Tasked by the regent with secretly abducting Arm-Feldt, he had himself appointed captain of the frigate on which he was supposed to bring back his state prisoner to Stockholm. He believed himself assured of success, having acquired the competition of the Illuminati of Naples, by accusing the count before their tribunal for having betrayed the secrets of association, an unforgivable crime and always punishable by dead. Armfeld is suspected of being searching Vassassin of his master, the count's servant Ankarstroém, and that was, in reality, the motive for which he was being pursued with such relentless determination.

"Secretly warned of this new danger, he
He was able to escape by fleeing to Russia.

"Count Munk was less fortunate. He was a A man of both intellect and heart, and one of the most devoted supporters of Gustav III. The Duke of Södermanland judged him so formidable that, immediately upon being appointed regent, he had him arrested and taken from Stockholm by soldiers.
Hours later, these men returned to the city without their prisoner, and no one since then has known of one in a positive way what they had done with it.

"But it was being said publicly in Stockholm that at one Count Munk had been shot in the city, then buried by his escort in a deserted location.
The soldiers in charge of the execution had done it themselves.
confessed.

"The orchestra musician, an eyewitness to
The assassination also disappeared, and without anyone being able to discover it.
what he had become...

The murderer.

"Where was the assassin of Gustav III hiding?"

"In April 1792, a man calling himself
Schultze, claiming to be from Swedish Pomerania Oise, a province now Prussian, had come to settle in Berlin.

"He aroused the curiosity of the honest bourgeois of his
The neighborhood much more than the police. He was talking fluent in German and must have had the means guaranteed livelihood, for he lived well and paid comp-so much, even though he didn't do any work with his ten fingers.

"Curiosity redoubled when it was learned that he frequented-assiduously attended the Masonic lodge of Splittgerbergasse...

“Schultze, moreover, led a very secluded life. He…”

kept to himself with his neighbors, didn't speak to them almost never and received no other visits than those of some individuals he had met to the lodge.

One day we learned that we had found his accommodation closed, and we never saw him reappear.

“One of the files I was examining contained the pro-Proceedings initiated against Police Commissioner Mahneke, said Schultze, for false oaths. He incited my curiosity, because it is very rare for officials to The police are guilty of such crimes. I I examined it very carefully. To the pieces of the attached to the procedure was a second file initi-Tulé: Documents (Acta) relating to the application made by the Swedish government to obtain the extradition of Mr. Mahneke, a servant, accused of being an accomplice to the assassination committed on the person of King Gustav III
by Count Ankarstroém.%

"This is essentially what the two contained."
files:

"Schultze's real name was Mahneke, and... it was this servant of Count Ankarstroém whom they are looking for_chait then throughout Europe.

"It was indeed the Prussian police who had made dis-Mahneke appeared, and this secret arrest had this took place at the request of the Swedish government, which claimed master his extradition... because we had the strongest reason to believe that he had known about the plot of the Swedish nobility and probably participated in the crime.
It was also recommended on several occasions, and from the quickest way to seize at the same time of all Mahneke's papers. The government sue-He was probably much more worried about the paperwork.
and revelations from this man, as well as from his own person, because he had shown himself until then to be very unconcerned with prosecute the guilty parties.

"Curiously, the servant's accuser d'Ankarstroém was one of the powerful figures who until then, they had covered him with their protection.

"The justice system and the police, whose investigations are most active efforts had remained futile, had one day received the following note, emanating from the very office of chance-
State bond: |

"Count Ankarstroëm's servant, wanted
"by the Swedish government and named Mahneke,
"Lives on K..... Street, N..... Arrest him at night in the most secretive way and with the greatest "precautions, and you seize at the same time its papers and belongings. You will send all three "days to His Excellency, the Chancellor, a report"
"on this case and a copy of the interrogations. He
"It is of the utmost importance to inform all interests"
"We are concerned that this Mahneke is in B... (Berlin), and "Especially since he remains in the hands of the justice system."

"One of the minutes was worded as follows:

"Upon observation that he should frankly confess and without concealing anything of the truth, everything he knew about the assassination of King Gustav III of Sweden by his former master, the Ankarstroém ensign, and also recognize to what extent he had become involved in the conspiracy, if he wanted to avoid being extradited by the government

Prussian nement, while, if he tried to deceive
The judge, through lies, should have expected to be delivered to the Swedish government, which would subject him to the the most severe and harshest penalties, the accused has answered:

"I no longer want to conceal the truth,"
And I will tell you, without hiding anything from you, what I

I know how the king was assassinated.
“My master, Count Ankarstroëm, had mo-particular traits of hatred against King Gustav III. He belonged to the order of the Illuminati. He brought me in, and as I was poor, and I couldn't pay a A large contribution was required; I was admitted as a brother.

RAA

serving...

"When he wanted to take revenge on the king, he cast his eyes on me because I was a serving brother of the lodge. He did not He hid nothing from me, and he also had absolute trust in me.
in his two friends, the Earls Horn and Ribbing. One day that they were talking in front of me about drawing lots to determine which would be tasked with killing the king; my master left from a burst out laughing and replied:

"— That's pointless. I'm asking as a favor to hit Gustave.

“However, lots were drawn and my wish was granted.”
The master was realized. He was the one chosen.

"But the count was a coward, despite all the violence" of his character and his hatred; his response had not been that it was just a boast, and he was in no way inclined to
To strike the king. Before his friends could even speak to him
He had suggested I do the deed, rather than draw lots.

"I couldn't be in any danger," he told me;
I was even sure I would then get a beautiful and rich reward, because our order was too powerful for leaving me in sorrow and not paying me such a high price service. I knew just as well as he did, he added, that the Duke of Södermanland was its Grand Master, and that within its ranks it counted the highest and most powerful health of the nobility of the kingdom.

“For a long time, I refused to consent. But One day he found several spoons in my room.
of silver marked with the monogram of our lodge, and this
This discovery placed me entirely at his mercy. Con-Moreover, given the growing power of our order, I allowed himself to be persuaded to commit an action of which the Remorse will haunt me as long as I live.

“My master and his two friends, the Counts Horn and Ribbing had taken the precaution of having it delivered, by affiliates, high-value state papers for the powers neighboring Sweden. They counted to make a weapon of it, in case they were con-trains to flee, and use it to defend themselves Dr. My master handed me the iron box which... contained, while giving me the advice to deposit it at friends' houses; but never leave her for long in the hands of the same person. I own it again; it is currently in storage at one of my knowledge.

"It had been decided that I would strike the king during the ball... i

"Ankarstroëm had assured me in the most positive that I would receive my reward as soon as the troubles that were to follow the king's death would be calmed down. But things did not turn out as they had hoped.
We had thought so. The strong measures taken by the police lieutenant and the city governor made a premeditated uprising impossible and the massacre of all the nobles of the royal party. At the new-following the arrest of the Earls Horn and Ribbing, I I hesitated no longer: I fled and did not forget to em-to carry the box. The countess being no accomplice
I thought it prudent not to speak to her husband.
of these papers. But I asked him and I obtained some from him.
the money to win Stettin. I know in a way

I can definitively say that the documents in my possession are irrefutable. are of the greatest value to the government of this country, and I am quite ready to hand them over to him. I will give him I only ask in return not to deliver me to the Swedish government.

“This request from Mahneke should have been favoredwarmly welcomed, because she was somehow granted in advance by the chancery, which, in its instructions to the police, recommended, as a

a point of utmost importance, to keep silent about all interested that Mahneke was in Berlin.

“Mahneke was probably not exaggerating when he said that the papers contained in the cassette were from highest price for Prussia, because he was appointed compolice commissioner. It appears from the documents in his file that he performed these duties for two years; that inHe was subsequently arrested on charges of perjury. then sentenced for this crime to several years of seclusion, and that, shortly afterwards, he died in Spandau prison!

"Thus the brothers had continued to follow him ever since" his crime, and to watch over him. After having him in whatthat he would emerge unarmed by forcing him to surrender the

---

1. We will naturally be curious to know what are which became Ankarstroëm's papers. Here is what the magistrate said Prussian traitor, author of this story: |

"Struck by the importance of these documents, I felt I should report them to the president of the court of S...; and, on the desire that he indicated to me to examine them, I placed them in his hands. Since then, I haven't had the opportunity to see that again. nor did I write to the magistrate. But having addressed myself, in 1850, to “One of my former colleagues, whose duties gave him access to the registry where they were filed, in order to obtain a copy Of two of them, this magistrate replied that he had not found no other trace of the file than this brief mention, inswritten in the directory, in the margin of its report: Transreferred to the Elat archives. But the entry was false because I had the opportunity, some time later, to do some research to the archives, and Fun, one of my friends, who was employed there, he told me: "This file never entered here, because if it had..." Once sent, I will find the indication of the fact in our records.

"This was not the first time I had noticed lexistence of such errors, very deliberately committed. Thus, for example, in an article concerning the memories of posthe papers left by Prince H..., who was Chancellor of State, The directory contains this entry: Transferred to royal family archives, and yet, when one looks at them there search, but you won't find them, and they're doing this to you Answer: They are in the king's study, where he is reading them.

Ankarstroém's papers to the Prussian police, in the from whose ranks they brought him in to hold him even better under their control, they had ensured a peaceful existence. They had covered with their all-powerful protection until the day when, in 'compromising in a way too clumsy for His fault may have been concealed; he had forced them to abandon it. And then, by a coincidence that, perhaps-His death was not accidental; it had occurred almost immediately. followed this abandonment. (Quoted by N. Deschamps, Les Secret Societies..., 2nd Edition, Vol. II, pp. 640-650.)

This text, composed using official documents, delivered by Prussian justice to the press order, is of such importance that I believed I have to quote it almost in its entirety: we see there, in Indeed, in addition to multiple Masonic murders, the theft of state secrets with the aim of delivering them to foreign powers; assassinations, treason, everything It is there. Freemasonry has some of the the most beautiful pages of its history!

Freemasons and Massacres.

While Sweden is experiencing a number of "beautiful" France had the privilege of dealing with Masonic crimes. to see thousands of them in just a few years.

---

1. Mr. Maurice Talmeyr gave a very approximate study in 1904.

founded on Freemasonry after the death of Louis XVI. We let us simply refer the reader to his brochure: La Franc- Freemasonry and the Revolution.

Mr. Deschamps had also devoted a few pages to this serious question (Secr. Soc., vol. II, pp. 134-136). It is perfect- It has been proven that at the same time as Gustav III, Louis XVI had been condemned to death in one of the Masonic Convents things that preceded the Revolution by a few years.

From the days when the desires of F.:. Duport had been so promptly filled, and where the heads cut off from Foullon and Berthier had been promised born on pikes by virtue of a kind of rite barbaric that will last as long as these bloody years Your – events are unfolding rapidly:

In July 1789, the first massacres, deliberate, com- organized by Freemasonry, the storming of the Bastille, the reunion of the Estates-General, and – on August 4, 1789 – the a great historical night where the nobility and the clergy, in an extraordinary surge of enthusiasm, sacrificed all their privileges.

But then what? After August 4th, why the masses- Why blood, always blood, for so long? Years? Hadn't the Revolution already taken place?

Absolute proof that the Revolution had already taken place On August 4, 1789, it is found in the notebooks where formulated the wishes of the nobility, the clergy and the third-state; these wishes testify to the most extreme liberalism. bordering: nobility and clergy are unanimous in proposing of their own accord the renunciation of all their privileges, to to propose freedom of religion (that F.:. Combes (refuses us), the freedom to work, the freedom of the press. Together they are appealing for the poor, workshops, hospices, relief funds. (We are waiting workers' pension funds again after four revolutions!) They expressed this admirable wish:

"That the tools of the poor could never be seized and that, alone in France, the day laborer was freed- "Chi of the tax." (See the Revolution by Ch. d'Héricault).

Thus, it is true to say that on August 4, 1789, the The revolution is over, since all classes of the French companies are united in the same spirit of agreement to carry out the necessary reforms.

But this beautiful fraternity of all the French, voted of acclamation, on the night of August 4th, in a delirium of joy patriotic, that's not what the rearguard wanted. Re-Lodges! Their frightening anarchist doctrines... allowed the triumph of the frenzied hatreds of which they were swollen, they wanted to be satisfied.

So, as today, Freemasonry was above all the enemy of the Catholic Church and pen- throughout the Terror, there were anti-Catholic furies- that at the same time as antisocial furies which gave free rein to their imaginations: it was civil society emerging of Christian civilization, and that was Catholicism. he himself was the one the terrorists wanted to kill in France. just as today it is still Catholicism what F.-. Combes, the Lodges' enforcement agent, is aiming for.

All current anti-Christian laws are prepared in the Lodges and subsequently voted on by a Parliament servilely subjected to their all-powerful influences; Similarly, a century ago, it was also Lodges that were Out with the bloodthirsty men who spread terror.

Some eyewitnesses were not mistaken, And it is Freemasonry that they accuse overwhelming immediately rejected the responsibility of guillotinings and massacres. (Dasté-Baron, La Fr. Mag. and Ter. p. 31 to 33).

Evidence.

As early as 1797, the ex-English Freemason Robison was able to blia a book in which he makes crucial remarks to Subject of sectarian doctrines:

€. that I saw, he said, mingling closely with the difrents systems of Freemasonry, to finally generate an association whose sole purpose is to destroy down to their very foundations all establishments religious and to overthrow all existing governments both in Europe.

"I noticed," he added, "that the characters who had the most part in the French Revolution were members of this association; that their plans have been designed according to his principles and executed with his input tance. » (Deschamps, Les Soc. Secrétes, t. II, p. 132).

This is a fact that defies all controversy: almost all the men who played a role in the drama of the Terror were known Freemasons. who came from the Lodges to lead the Jacobin clubs which were like emanations from the Lodges.

"Louis Blanc and Alex. Dumas, we read in the book de Deschamps (vol. II, p. 150), confess that the great majority of the Jacobins, dominated by Robespierre, and of The Cordeliers, where Danton presided, was composed of Freemasons.

From Brother Louis Blanc, whose testimony is here particularly valuable:

"Most revolutionaries, as we have said, were affiliated with Freemason secret societies "nerie." (Hist de la Rév.. Ed. de Bruxelles, IT, p. 357).

Still from F.:. Louis Blanc:

"Freemasonry," he said, "opened itself up day by day." to most of the men we find in the middle of the revolutionary melee. In the Lodge of the Nine-Sisters, Garat, Brissot, and others, came to gather in succession. Bailly, Camille Desmoulins, Condorcet, Chamfort, Danton, Dom Gerle, Rabaud-Saint-Etienne, Pétion. — FauChet, Goupil de Préfern and Bonneville dominated in the Lodge of the Iron Mouth... » (F.:. Louis Blanc, Hist. from the Revelation, Brussels Edition, vol. II, p. 72.

Let us add to these names those of Robespierre, of the communist Babeuf, and of these covered beings of blood: Hébert, Le Bon, Marat, Saint-Just! (for (to name only the most well-known) and we will not be able to to conclude otherwise than by this double affirmation tion: yes, it is the Masonic doctrines that who led the revolutionary events and It was Freemasons who presided over the hehumanized massacres of the Terror.

The September Massacres 1, 792.

Today, it is by hunting down monks that Our Freemason persecutors are practicing. The same thing happened on September 2, 1792. "Care was taken, "said Edgar Quinet, to entice the slaughterers." And How? — By first delivering some priests to be killed, before being thrown into the prisons to massacre the prisoners there.

We have seen a succession at the Ministry of Freemason justice, like F.:. Monis, then F.-. Vallé, — after F.:. Gustave HumBert! Thanks to them, we know what justice is. masonic...

Already in 1792, the Minister of Justice was a freemason, Brother Danton. On August 28, he wrested from the Assembly National wheat a decree relating to home visits liaires. By means of this decree, suspects are arrested, August 29, 30 and 31; the prisons are thus filled, for

---

1. Le Coulteux de Canteleu, Sects and Secret Societies, Paris, 1863, p. 169.

empty them, to clean them (according to a horrible word) historical), by the massacres of September 2nd and 3rd and following days.

When they threw themselves into these dreadful assassinations nats, the occult agents who had seized Hô-such as the City and had a rival authority to the Assem-National wheat was going to be driven out, not only as usurpers, but as thieves. This fact, however little honorable for the so-called Giants of Terror, is reported by the father of the Third Republic, Mr. Wallon; Edgar Quinet, for his part, designates as the main accomplices of the Communard villains insurrection: Marat, Danton, Robespierre, Camille Desmoulins, — all of them Freemasons.

The hatred of Freemasonry was prescient:
She knew how to choose one of her first victims from September 2nd, Abbot Lefranc, superior of the Eudists, one of the men who had pushed against the dangers
The most eloquent Masonic cries of alarm...
(Dasté-Baron, Freemasonry and the Terror, p. 40, 41). |

has

Edgar Quinet, whom I deliberately choose for guide because we can't accuse him of malicious intent launched an attack against the terrorist bloc, which made a frightening Painting of the September Massacres.

"Everywhere," he said, "there was the same discipline in the carnage. On September 2nd, the four cars filled with priests, parts of the town hall and left completely open, ser-They became enticing to the slaughterers. When that first blood was poured, thirst ignited. The prison gates opened-
They come of their own accord. There's no need to force them. The guides
The watchmen, having been warned, hastened; they lit torches, they themselves lead a handful of murderers;
They throw themselves upon any prisoners they encounter.

first. This was granted to the first fury, to the Abbaye and at the Carmes. But almost immediately, a simula-
A tribunal is formed in the vestibules of prisons;
The prison registers are brought in.

A man in a scarf presides; he is standing around from him strangers who call themselves judges... The pribell ringers are brought in, one after the other, escorted by guards. They appear for a moment; the killers, the Arms raised beside the judges, they wait, they sense the sentence. First they killed with a single blow of the knife-Weary, of spades or of log; then they wanted to savor
the murder and there was, between the executioners and the victims-My, a certain emulation. The first ones were looking for the means of killing slowly and making death felt;
the others sought to bring about the rarest death-pide. However, benches had been brought in for sitting-to stand by as spectators to the carnage. When fatigue sets in...
Menca, the murderers rested. They were hungry.
They ate peacefully... Fury did not prevent them-
I don't know, thinking about the salary, when they would have provided the work. From time to time, seized by scruples they were going to ask for permission to take the souto bind those they had killed: authority was not lacking not to grant it to them as the fairest thing.
For, just a stone's throw from the slaughterers, in the midst of the steam of blood, administrators sometimes sat; they continued imperturbably to ship the business civilians in these slaughterhouses. Such were Ics massacres at the Abbey, at the Carmelites, at La Force, at the Conciergerie, in Bicêtre, in the eight prisons of Paris.
After what could still be called the surprise of the first hour, they started again the next day with more security, then the day after next, for four days. Or rather, it cut my cut no interval; the only The difference between day and night is that we illuminated the courses during the night, to see clearly in this dazzling light toir. For the slaughterers never sought to to hide in the darkness. On the contrary, they lit up lanterns near the corpses, so that we might live by the "Pouvrage and Pouvrier both times..." (Edgar Quinet, La Révo-(lution, vol. I, pp. 382-383.)

Mr. de Laleu, former adjutant general of the National Guardnale. One of the "Hard-nosers" who worked at the balance of the friends of F. Danton, Minister of the Justice, of F.:. Marat, of F.∗. Robespierre, opens with a knife blow to the chest of the unfortunate officer, plunges his hand into the wound and he tears out the heart he is putting in his mouth.

"Blood was dripping from her lips," said a witness. "It gave him a sort of eye-catching mustache."

We had been thrown into the Petite Force prison, on the street Paved (in the Marais) the princess of Lamballe, one unfortunate dupes that Freemasonry had the most adored, in his hypocritical Temples. (To better lull the powers that be to sleep, it was she who a few years earlier the Sect had consecrated Grand Mistress of one of the most important Lodges (feminine).

"We had decided to immolate him," they wrote. Doctors Cabanès and Nass in their book so poi- "The Revolutionary Neurosis!" And they quote the diary, which has remained unpublished until now, of the princess's own doctor, Dr. Seiffert, who took numerous steps to ensure that the misfortune- The woman was released, as had the most of her fellow arrestees.

1. Paris, Soc. fr. of printing et libr., 1905, p. 49.

Brother Pétion replied to Dr. Seiffert:

"The people of Paris administer justice themselves" and I am his prisoner.” (Revolutionary Neurosis, p. 43).

Father Danton said to the doctor, in a tone of threat.

"The French people have their leaders in Paris. The people Paris is its sentinel... Anyone who tries to oppose posing a challenge to popular justice could only be an en- "enemy of the people." (The Revolutionary Neurosis, p. 44).

Father Marat cheerfully mocked Seiffert; as for to F. Robespierre, "that ambitious hypocrite", as the doctor described it, he retorted:

"The people are too righteous to attack innocence." You have nothing else to do but wait for the "the result of his justice..." (La Névrose révolut., p. 45).

"His justice!" "People's justice!" That's it. The same refrain is heard by all these Freemasons. But, as always, Freemasonry, by their mouth, lied: it was her and not the people, who had condemned the princess to death of Lamballe after having duped him.

Let us see how justice was exercised, not popular, but very Masonic:

Two men, holding tightly (the princess of Lamballe) under his arms, forced him to walk on corpses. As she staggered with every moment, she took care to cross his legs, so that when he fell bant, his modesty had nothing to suffer from his attitude t.

From the crowd of spectators, "a" then stands out

1. P.-J.-B. Nougaret, History of the prisons of Paris and the departments tements, t. I, p. 145.

"Well-dressed man" who, seeing the inappropriate touching fames that the assassins allowed themselves on the principal "Cess naked," she cried in her indignation, "Blush!" unfortunate, and remember that you have wives and mothers!

I] was instantly pierced by a thousand blows and his body torn to pieces! (Revolutionary Neurosis,
p. 92).

... A madman struck Princess Eva- on the head drowned... a blow from a log that stretched him out on a pile of corpses.

Another scoundrel, a butcher's boy named Gri-
His son was cutting off his head with his butcher's knife...

Then unfolded scenes of the most revolting lubrilliance that our pen hesitates to retrace.

The unfortunate woman's breasts are cut off;
His body is opened and his entrails are removed. One of his
The assassin makes a belt out of it; then he tears off the heart and brings it to her lips?...

… When the princess was mutilated in a hundred ways different, when the assassins had divided the bloody pieces of his body, one of those monsters he cut off her virginal part and made himself some mousse-stains *... (MM. Cabanès and Nass, La Névrose révolut., pp. 55-57).

Such were, in September 1792, the "means of terror” employed, according to the method inaugurated from 1789 by F.:. Adrien Duport.

At the trial of the Septembriseurs, in May 1796,

1. G. Bertin, Madame de Lamballe, p. 326,
2. See Intermédiaire, August and September 1867, p. 300.

3. For these horrors, Dr. Cabanès refers them to Paris during the Revolution, by Mercier, vol. I, Poulet-Malassis, 1862, and in the Memoirs of Sénart, p. 45.

three of the executioners of M™* de Lamballe were condemned to the galleys, while the rest of perpetrators of the massacres, "those paid 6 francs, at 7 francs and 12 francs per day (written by Ange Pitou), was released.

Nicolas (one of the princess's torturers) was So abhorred even by the assassins that they took justice into their own hands.
to the penal colony.

Moreover, I heard him say, as he did to the others:
“We are in chains and our leaders are in the honors.” (Ange Pitou, The Urn of the Stuarts, 1815)
p. 150. — Quoted by Dr. Cabanès, Névrose Révolut.,

p. 72). |

Who then was the most base criminal in this horrible tragedy of the Sep- massacres tmber?

Is this "the great Nicolas," the despicable accomplice?
that his role in the assassination of M™! de Lamballe
Did he make even his fellow prisoners hateful?
Or perhaps, in reality, it is these "leaders" who are actually the real ones.
which he was talking about, those High Masons who made at D" Seiffert, the answers we know?

A horrific summary of the entire Terror, the
"The September massacres reached all ranks,
All genders, all ages.

At the Salpêtrière, the most infamous horrors were involved in the assassination of the unfortunate madwomen who were locked up there.

At the Saint-Bernard Tower, near the Bridge of the Tournelle, 72 convicts were massacred by these new-style vigilantes, while at Bicêtre prison, poor children of the people, detained for minor offenses — learn-boys aged twelve to fifteen, baker boys, small newspaper vendors — were slaughtered at blows from pikes or bludgeoned with blows from logs, at in the name of the Fraternity, for the pleasure of seeing couto shed blood and to learn how to kill well.

“The knockers told us so,” reports one eyewitness, and we were able to see it for ourselves-same; the poor children were much more difficult to kill only men made: you understand, at this
"At age, life holds up so well!" (Trial of the Massacres) after 9 Thermidor).

This accumulation of crimes is entirely due to the burden on the Freemasons who were in power
See. Who would dare deny it in the face of the brutal admission that... have made their officials, since our archives national records contain invoices for the sums regularly paid to the slaughterers on the public funds?

Furthermore, a contemporary, Baruel, completes to educate us on the full responsibility of Freemasonry in the immense holocausts his offerings in September 1792 to Moloch of the Terror: |

“In any moment of riot,” said Baruel, “either at The City Hall, or Carmes, the true signs of rallying, the true way to fraternize with the bri-
The giants were the Masonic symbols. In that instant massacres, the executioners held out their hands, in Freemasons, to those of the ordinary spectators who were approaching.

"I saw," Baruel continued, "a man of the people." who himself repeated the Masonic manner in which

The executioners presented their hands to him, and he was by he rejected them with contempt because he didn't know to respond, while others, more educated, were, at same sign, greeted with a smile in the middle of the carnage.” (Memoirs, 2nd edition, 1803, vol. V, p. 134.)

"Civic spankings."

This is the title of one of the chapters of Neurosis Revolutionary, the terrifying book we were quoting earlier. And that was one of the "means of terror” intended to crush opposing resistance to the actions of Secret Societies.

High-class women were whipped in the street.
he denounced the nuns in their cloisters, which were overrun by popular hordes...

One day, one of the club's most authoritative speakers Citizen Varlet, a member of the Jacobin community, came to denounce the...
Sisters of the Hôtel de la Nation (Hôtel-Dieu), the accused sant to keep a refractory priest hidden in the Hospital-to keep silent, and to have had the audacity to celebrate secretly-
He arranged a requiem mass for the tyrant's soul.
concludes by asking that they be exemplary punished. (Revolutionary Neurosis, pp. 77, 78.)

The knitters took care of it! They ran to The Hôtel-Dieu, the Sisters are tearing themselves apart... One of these, having freed themselves from the hands that held them-were, had fled towards the bridge; she was there to-followed by a ferocious mob, and rushed into the Seine 1. |

---

1. Secret Memoirs of the 19th Century, by Beaumont-Vassy.
(Revolutionary Neurosis, p. 78.)

The number of nuns and whipped women was considerable. Three Sisters of Saint Vincent de Paul, attached to the parish of Sainte-Marguerite, died as a result of this violence.

The pamphleteers celebrated them with delirious joy.
rant. Far from seeking to mitigate them, they contain them-rent with lots of filthy details.

One of these pamphlets bears this title sufficiently

Explicit: "List of Sisters and devotees who have been whipped by the market ladies... with their name and their parish and a very true detail of all their adventures with the priests, vicars and regulars of the said parishes." Without going into details, Pau- the author simply throws at all the victims, en masse, the accusation of immorality. (La Névr. Révol., pp. 81, 82.)

This last trait paints a picture of traditional hypocrisy Freemasons. They defile and they accuse of filth!

On October 31, 1793, the member of the National Convention, Carra – cited as a Freemason in the dictionary Desormes and Basile (p. 172) – wrote in his Patriotic Annals, April 9:

> The crowd moved into the churches; the women My men were armed with rods; they whipped them out from the temple some priests and priestesses possessed of demon of the counter-revolution, and men have many laughed at the grimaces of these whipped goblins; However, the national guard rushed in and drove back the party favors tucked up. The municipality, fearing that the public and overly repeated condemnations do not give cause- were about to unfold into some more unfortunate scene, which was brought to an end by a proclamation to these popular corrections; she has orders that the nuns' churches be closed to "public..." (Quoted in The Revolutionary Neurosis, p. 81.)

I emphasize the last sentence of F.:. Carra: Catholics today will suffer similar fates. infamies, perpetrated with the same aim, if they do not They finally feel the urgent need to break the ignoble tyranny of the Lodges.

In 1793, it was the Jacobin Club – composed mostly Freemasons, wrote Brother Louis White – that the hags came out laden with whip the Sisters of the Hôtel-Dieu.

Today, all the Lodges come out the filth intended to defile the Catholic Church cism.

When will honest people open the eyes?

XV
SINCE THE TERROR

The Higher Order and the Lower Order.

Just a few days after the fall of Terrorists of 9 Thermidor, Cadet of Gassicourt published a damning book! on the role of Secret Societies in the Revolution – role _ revealed shortly afterwards, with a colossal mountain of evidence, by the Englishman Robison and the Frenchman Baruel. or

Two Freemason historians, one French, the F. Thory, who wrote in 1815, the other German, the F.:. Findel, confessed to the enormous, disastrous impression

---

1. Cadet de Gassicourt, The Tomb of Jacques Molay, or Secret History of Initiates, Freemasons, Illuminati and Research on their influence in the French Revolution, Paris, year IV.

for Freemasonry, produced in all countries by these revelations.

The criminal gang of the Brothers... felt threatened seriously threatened: she was afraid and the password was given throughout the world to disguise more than never the Lodges in innocent brotherhoods of good living philanthropists, respectful of religion, of established governments, constituted bodies, etc...

The Jacobin assassins and the anarchist theorists Lodges that had managed to escape together from — fraternal guillotinations between Freemasons of diverses chapels and the reprisals of the Thermidorians, victors of F. Robespierre, — all covered themselves the same deceptive veils that had sheltered the Freemasonry before the Revolution. (Dasté-Baron, La Freemasonry and the Terror, p. 57).

If the insiders then thickened their coats of hypocrisy, it was to prepare new crimes.

After the reign of 1792, they dug the mines which would erupt in 1848, and cover Europe with bloody debris.

But it exists, between the three periods of History | which preceded the Reformation, the Terror and 1848, a remarkable parallelism: it seems that one so that, each time, intellectuals can be seen same order: to sow murderous doctrines.
Then these doctrines germinate into harvests of crimes of which some of the sowers are victims first, when the inferior followers of Secret Societies have pushed the limits practical consequences of the theories from which they have greyed.

_ After the many precursors of the Reformation whose history César Cantu has given, appear Luther and Calvin; but the bloodthirsty Anabaptists

In turn, they bring their excesses.
and the Huguenot princes crushed them because at-no human society could any longer live with the dismantling of all the principles aimed at these inferior followers of the great anti-anarchy Christian.

During the eighteenth century, at the "'atellee
"tuels" of Freemasonry — such as the FF... Voltaire and d'Alembert — are succeeded by the men of hand, the FF.-. Danton, Robespierre, Marat.

— At the beginning of the nineteenth century, even spectacle: the Italian Haute Vente with its Nubius and his Piccolo-Tiger are accumulating materials flammable and perished itself at the beginning of the fire that the gang ignites — thanks to her Mazzini's Assassin Initiates. |
Today, isn't it the same replacement?
perpetual violence of Freemasons like the F... Combes by the hypocritical Freemasons like those of the Rouvier-Dubief ministry, in awaiting the reign of the Freemasons Thalamas and Hervé?

On this continuous "swinging" of theorists hypocrites and violent practitioners of the Societies Secrets, you must read the remarkable work of Saxon Protestant Eckert 1, wrote precisely at the len-tomorrow of 1848 — a work in which the author arrives

1. Freemasonry in its true meaning, or Its organization, its purpose, and its history, by Eckert, lawyer in Dresden. Translated. Gyr, Liège, 1854.

exactly the same conclusions, for 1848, than Baruel and Robison for 1793.

He develops his idea by considering in the Freemasonry is a "higher Order", that high-level theorists, and a "Lower Order", that of the directors — and also of the assassins.

But these two Orders are also filled with criminals, .

The corrupting High-Sales and the murderous Freemasons.

Corruption — which has become systemic in the upper class —
Sale which, from 1820 to 1846, played the same role as The Weishaupt Illuminati within the Societies

Secret – and the multi- Masonic assassinations folded by the henchmen of F.:. Mazzini form a together too similar to what we have already described so that we might dwell on it speak. f

We simply refer the reader to the study of the preparatory period for the massacres of 1848 throughout Europe, to the courageous book by Crétineau-Joly!.

We are confident we will recruit in Crétineau-Joly a few more readers and admirers of nothing by reproducing here the portraits he painted of the two main characters of the High Sale, the Italian or Sicilian prince who was hiding

---

1. Crétineau-Joly, The Roman Catholic Church in the Face of the Revolution, 3rd edition, Paris, 1861.

under the name of Nubius! and the Israelite banker that was concealed by the pseudonym Piccolo-Tigre.

First, here is the leader, the man who will shine. "on the arena of Sales in all its splendor" his vices:

> Nubius has not yet reached his thirtieth year: he is in the age of recklessness and exaltation. But he imposes such a hypocritical role on his head and his heart situ and audacity, but he plays it with such profound skill, that today, when all the springs that Nubius was playing, and they escaped one after the other. We still find ourselves frightened by infernal art developed by this man in his struggle with the faith of the people. This Italian, whose letters to his Brothers of the Secret Societies only appear at rare intervals, like desired events; this Nubius, which fills the Italian, French and Sales from Germany, from the noise of his fame, received from heaven all the gifts that create prestige around oneself. It is handsome, rich, eloquent, lavish with his gold as with his life...
>
> Nubius alone is as corrupt as an entire prison; He therefore monopolizes a veritable celebrity. underground. (Crétineau-Joly, The Roman Church opposite) 'of the Revolution, 3rd ed., t. IT, p. 111).

---

1. On High Freemasonry and on Nubius, one of its most remarkable agents, you should also read Freemasonry contemporary, by Onclair (Liège, Dessain printing house, 1885) where I'm taking these lines:

"Thanks to the ineptitude, the incurable blindness of certain Catholic government of the time, there was at that time (in 1824) in the diplomatic corps accredited to the Holy-Siege, a character named Nubius... (That's the name he he gave himself and that all historians have preserved for him (out of respect for his noble and respectable family). He was very "primarily in political economy." (Onelair, p. 62).

Here now is his lieutenant, the banker. Piccolo-Tigre:

> This Jew, whose activity is tireless, and who never ceases to run the world to stir up enemies in CalVaire, plays a role in the... at this time in 1822 Carbonarism. He is sometimes in Paris, sometimes in London. Sometimes in Vienna, often in Berlin. Everywhere he leaves traces of his passage, everywhere he affiliates with Secret Societies, and even at the High Sale, show zeal on which impiety can rely. In the eyes of the gugovernment and police, he's a gold merchant and money, one of those cosmopolitan bankers not living than business and dealing exclusively with its own comtrade. Seen up close, studied in the light of its correspondence pondance, this man will be one of the most skilled in the art of prepared destruction. It is the invisible linkblue bringing together in the same community of frameworks all the secondary corruptions that work at overthrow of the Church. (Crétineau-Joly, The Church of the RoMaine... 3¢ ed. t. II, p. 108). |

Thus, just as the Talmud of his coreli-Gionnaires straddles all forms of paganism.
ancient times, Piccolo-Tigre evolved through all Secret Societies, by: serving as their trait of union as well as of banker.

His correspondence and all those exchanged between the principal members of the High Sale were seized by the papal government in the first months of 1846.

These are the documents, of a particular interest that...
Sionne, which Crétineau-Joly translated into French under the very eyes of Pius IX, and the Franc-Freemasonry is so afraid of their disclosure that she took care to maintain a deathly silence on these terrifying rooms where the irrefutable evidence lies tables of criminal plots hatched by the Secret Societies in coalition.

While the High Sale corrupted and defiled milk, vulgar Freemasonry murdered.

Here is the text of a judgment rendered in Rome in 1825:

That Angelo Targhini, during his imprisonment for homicide committed in 1819 on the person of Alex. Corsi, he interfered in everything related to the Societies forbidden secrets... became the founder of the Carbonari in the capital itself, as soon as he could return.
He resolved to frighten them with some terrible example – the individuals who had separated (from the Sect); .il for-My plan, therefore, was to assassinate some of them.
them...
...» That on the evening of June 4th, the said Tar-Ghini paid a visit to one of these individuals... and the con-
They went to an inn where they drank together, and there, still in a friendly manner, he led him until he reached a street where this young man, without suspicion, received a blow from behind, on the right side, from a sty-let who seriously injured him, by the hand of Leonidas Montanari, who had positioned himself there on the lookout to wait their passing.
. Judges and unanimously sentences Angelo Targhini and Leonidas Montanari to the death penalty.
On November 25, 1825, having mounted the scaffold, Targhinis cried out: "People, I die innocent, free-"Mason, Carbonaro, and unrepentant." (Crétineau-Joly:

The Roman Church before the Revolution, 1861. t. II, p.
85, 86, 87).

Sand (German assassin) fathers Louvel (assassin)
French), Crétineau-Joly also wrote. Louvel engenders Fieschi, Morey, Alibaud and all those unknowns from the regime-cide who are relentlessly attacking Louis-Philippe. Mazzini bribes the Piedmontese Gallenga against Charles Albert (from Savoy), Gallenga, Mazzini, Fieschi, Morey and Ali-Baud beget the Hungarian Liebenyi, the Prussian Tesch, the Spanish Merino, the Neapolitan Agesilas Milano, the Roman Antonio de Felici and the anonymous assassin of Duke of Parma, who, in turn, vomit up Pianori, Orsini and Pieri... (Crét.-Joly, id. t. II, p. 93).

In 1827, in the State of New York, a journalist, W. Morgan, who had received the highest degrees, published a book in which they were revealed. He was drawn into the Lodge.
of Rochester, swept away by the Freemasons in a boat, and he was never seen again. His friends accused the Freemasons for having assassinated him. They claimed-they said he had drowned in Lake Ontario, and presented-rent a corpse like his own, but it was proven that It was that of a certain Monroe. The legal proceedings-the legal proceedings were unsuccessful because all the judges and officers
The county police officers were Freemasons themselves.
same, as well as the state governor, F. Clin-your. (Claudio Jannet: Freemasonry in the 19th Century) century, Avignon, 1882, p. 543).

This is what is called Masonic Justice.
We saw her working in Sweden at the bene-the accomplices of Ankarstroém; in France, during the massacres of 1792... not to mention the rest.

Garcia Moreno had governed for fifteen years | Ecuador, © first as dictator, then twice as president and shortly before the day he was assassinated
Siné, he had been re-elected by the unanimous vote of the nation.

In a letter to Pius IX, written shortly before his
When he died, he told him: "The lodges of neighboring countries, exci-
They, instigated by Germany, hurl atrocious insults at me.
libels and horrible calumnies; even during that they are secretly plotting my assassination, I have
"We need divine protection more than ever."

One of the assassins' accomplices, a civil servant
The president was brought before a court-martial.
The court's representative assured him that his life would be spared.
if he denounced his accomplices. "There's no point in sparing them."
"My life," he replied, "because in the event that you give it to me-"
If you didn't believe it, it would be taken from me by my companions;
"I would rather be shot than stabbed," (Letter written from Guayaquil to the Bien Public of Ghent, quoted by Claudio Jannet: Freemasonry in the 19th century,
p. 594, 595).

High-level Freemasonry of assassins.

The mere fact of having mentioned all these crimes that Freemasonry committed yesterday as She will commit similar acts tomorrow, that will be enough.
(I know this for a fact) to get myself called an "annoying-
"gumene" and "hallucinated" by those of our friends who refuse to believe in the existence of assassinations political and sectarian groups from a certain date onwards, – variable but always distant:

"Such crimes in our age of enlightenment?
"It's not possible," they say.

However, if the belief in revenge and in
The idea that Masonic murders were so absurd was that, how could one explain that a man such as

1. August 30, 1875.

Mr. Taine (whose eyesight was so keen!) could have failed to see the complicity of the Freemasons of the 17th century in what the ex-Jacobin Prud-
The man called "The Crimes of the Revolution"?
An article by Mr. Drumont recently gave us...
The key to this little mystery.

The most enthusiastic of the French Revolution have never hidden... that it was in the Lodges, in the meetings of the [enlightened ones that the plans of the great boule-Social security payments had been stopped. Why Taine?
Did he systematically leave that element aside?

I received an explanation for this silence, which was obviously deliberate.
from a historian as insightful as Taine,
by a prominent diplomat, who was Taine's neighbor, in Savoy, who talked, every day, at length with him.

Taine very honestly admitted to him that he knew perfectly understand what to expect regarding the considerable role of Freemasonry in the Revolution, that he did not did not hide the fact that silence on this point was a trap enormous in his work; but he added that he had not
He hadn't dared, that he had been afraid of the Ma-'s vengeance Nonsense...

One can be one of the most powerful thinkers of their time.
century and not having the courage of Bidegain who circulates peacefully through the streets, after having carried to Freemasons, a blow that was painful for them.
(E. Drumont, Lib. Parole, September 25, 1905.)

Yes, certainly, the blow struck by Mr. Bidegain has the Freemasonry has wounded her cruelly. If in the accusation of having killed a man by beating
A knife is something that makes the murderer odious.
– the Freemason informer who kills a man

"Blows of "cards" is a being no less worthy of contempt and hatred.

But Freemasonry, when it schemed his cowardly anonymous assassinations – the most abominable despicable – made too much use of murderous cries: "To the water! To the lantern!" to ignore how much It is dangerous to become hateful to the people...

So, now that we're searching his locker judicial, so to speak, she's afraid (believe it). (well) to become hateful to the masses in turn, She is afraid of books like M's, Bidegain. I'm also afraid of books like this study.

It consoles me in advance to be called an "annoying"Gumene" and I finish consoling myself by rereading The encyclical of Leo XIII in which these words burst forth accusatory statements that strike Freemasonry in with all my heart:

“To live in dissimulation,” (said the Holy Father), and to want to be enveloped in darkness; to chain oneself by the closest ties, and without having premen clearly state what they are committing to. reduced to the state of slaves; employed in all sorts of attempts these passive instruments of a foreign will; arming, for murder, hands with which one ensures impunity for the crime; these are monstrous "Truthful practices condemned by nature itself." (Leo XIII, Encyclical “Humanum Genus” against Freemasonry, April 20, 1884.)

If we remember Cardinal Caprara predictsant in 1787 that the Secret Societies were going to to quickly turn the world upside down, – by Pius IX entrusting Crétineau Joly with the task of divulging the wicked letters from the High Sale where were contained in embryo all the bloody riots of 1848, – of Leo XIII finally, accusing in the the most energetic terms the Initiates to modern The mysteries of practicing assassination by proxy (the most cowardly crime of all crimes!) – and if Fon still reflects that the Papacy, with its empire spiritual guidance for Catholics worldwide is better than anyone capable of embracing one a quick look at France's global activities international Freemasonry – we will be granted that our conclusions are not as "exaggerated"Realities" that some of our friends might believe.

And we can summarize in these terms: |

If, on the one hand, the current Lodges contain a a great number of lost souls, unfortunate men blinded by stupid "anticlericalism" and its twin brother, antipatriotism, – on the other hand These same Lodges, in the shadows, are guided, to Pinsu of most of their members, towards goals they are unaware of, by assassins[1], Strange alliances.

The Encyclical Humanum Genus will provide us Yet another serious subject for reflection:

There exists in the world, wrote Leo XIII, a certain a number of sects which, although they differ from one another from others by name, rites, form, origin, se they resemble each other and agree with each other through analogy

---

[1] Read more on the same subject: Masonic Assassination, the Ritual Crime, 'The Jewish Treason,' Paris, Libr. Antisém., 1905.

of the goal and essential principles. In fact, they are identical to Freemasonry, which is for all the others as the central point from which they proceed and where they end up. (Encycl. Hum. Gen.) |

Yes, mysterious links unite them Secret Societies, both across the earth than through time.

The Ismaili sect still exists in the East. Claudio Jannet writes... There are also in these countries Secret Societies that have preserved the syncretistic doctrine and having initiations to which they admit the Christians like Muslims...; nowadays, more- European gentlemen, after having been initiated into it in their travels in the Levant, enjoyed with the Masonic Lodges conical of a consideration due as much to the high the degree of their initiation as well as the depth of their senses anti-Christian sentiments (Cl. Jannet, The Precursors of the Fr.-Mag., p. 61). | |

In 1899 — the year before the bloody year where so many Christian men and women perished in China amidst the odious tortures that their in- They flogged the Boxers, those demons with human faces — In 1899, I say, the official organ of the Martinists has proudly displayed his fraternal relations with the Secret Society of Babysists, in Persia, and with occultist secret societies (otherwise said to be magicians), in China. We'll say a word about the exploits later. of these Persian Babystes, and of these Occultists of China. Here is the first proof of their agreement. with our French Martinists, of whom we have demonstrated the role in preparing the regime of the Terror.

In August 1899, L'Initiation, the official journal of the Martinism, published a major speech delivered by one of its leaders, 4 an inauguration of Lodge. We read there:

Today, Martinism has carried the torch of Christian Illuminism in all parts of the Universe.

We know, moreover, what peculiar Christians are the Martinists, half Gnostics, half-Kabbalists section!!

"This is how," the speaker continued, "we have, in China, Martinists who are committed to making known Judeo-Christian esotericism to its last representatives ancient civilizations of Lemuria... That's how it is that, in Central Asia, the Martinists lend their help for babysitters and all those who dedicate themselves to their bodies and soul for the struggle against the regime of the sword, in order to to hate the triumph of justice and love., » (Initiation, August 1899, page 107).

Four months earlier, a note obviously emanating from the Martinists had been inserted into The Echo of Paris. (Which proves to us that the sectaires know how to slip in communications tending- (in the most anti-sectarian leaves),

This note, which was very curiously supplemented by the Martinist speech we quoted earlier, said this:

1. What we said, in a previous chapter, to subject of the Martinists of the 17th century, applies entirely to modern Martinists. For more information, read the journal: Freemasonry Unmasked, March 1898 issue.

The Babystes of Egypt, Persia, and Syria, and the The Hluminés of Germany are affiliated with the Martinists, who are currently in talks with the companies Occultists of China. (Echo de Paris, April 5, 1899).

Two years earlier, the Initiation of March 1897, reporting on a solemn ceremony of the Supreme The Council of the Martinist Order had announced the beginning of these distant relations.

Speaking indeed of the general delegation mar- Initiation in Egypt stated that:

Equipped with full special powers, this delegation managed to reach a cordial agreement with the delegates Babystes fords, specially accredited for this purpose... This agreement, it is added, will soon open Persia to Martinist influence.

A little further on, we read in the same vein

> We are pleased to announce to the Supreme Council> seil the creation at Sam Francisco of the first Lodge > Chinese Martinist, on which we base our gran-.
> hopes for the understanding between our Order and the > Hung Society. (Cited by Freemasonry)
> masked, May 1897, p. 115.) |

Now, this Hung Society is none other than the Parent company of the Chinese Boxers.

Japanese victories in Manchuria wind today against the Europeans the enthusiasmwarlike siasm (full of threats) of all the little-Eastern Semitic, Turkish and yellow peoples of all mixed-race relationships that glimpse, in dreams of blood, future and terrible revenges against the en- .
white invaders. And the hatred of all these na-
The use of color is aimed as much at men who strive to win them over to European civilization than to those who seek to conquer them faith

'Christian. Fierce, but clear-sighted, all the Asian Asians lump together in a single hatred the
The Christian religion and European civilization. They are right to hate them together, because our civilisation, daughter of Christianity, is one with him, |

The Babists.

We only have one word to say about the Babists, of whom
The prophet Bab shook Persia in 1850. Their Secret Society is nothing more than a renovation elevation of the anarchist sects of Babek, of Khar-math, etc., which we have been talking about, that is to say that she is closely related to the Assassins sect of the Old Man of the Mountain. As with the latter, Murder is the primary means of rule for the Babis.
yours and it is not surprising that the Persians have them violently fought, |

Moreover, it was under the dagger of a Babist that the father of the currently reigning Shah has fallen.

The Neo-Martinists of France have some beautiful things here relationships.

Secret Societies and the Yellow Peril.

At this hour when everything that matters in Europe among the true "intellectuals" shudders at the thought of the Yellow Peril and raises the alarm, it is singular-to link, not to say more, to see the Franks-Martinist Freemasons boast of their connections with the occultist secret societies of China, and This was in 1899, just one year before the Boxers occultists carried out their horrific massacre.

All our readers know the name of the colony-Nel Muraviev, the former Russian embassy attaché that the Judeo-Masonic party removed from Paris during the Dreyfus Affair, because he saw it too clearly.

A letter from him opens up broad horizons on the importance of Secret Societies in Extreme-Orient:

> The interest of every country in Europe (wrote the colonel) > (regarding the Russo-Japanese War) is to put oneself > as much as possible on the Russian side, because sooner or > Later, this same whole Europe will have to deal with the > Yellows, united, fanatical and enriched, and who march-> will set out to conquer the world, led by states-> Japanese majors.
>
> The Anglo-Saxons, isolated in their British Isles-> and in America, they imagine that the Yellows cannot-> will never reach them. On the other hand, they believe that > Freemasonry, which they introduced to Japan there

In a few years, it will give them the necessary tools to control, contain and direct the Yellows equipped with the benefits of the Great Aryan Orients,

But they will be caught the day these Yellows, after crushing continental Europe, they will use themselves of this Freemasonry as of a `– weapon against the Anglo-Saxons.

"The Yellows possess something other than Franc-Freemasonry, and what they have is older and better _ stronger. Already, today, Freemasonry my that a means for them to penetrate the secrets of their white friends and study them closely," (Cel Mouraviev, Gaulois of February 28, 1904).

Since then, Mr. Henri Rochefort has received from China news that seemed too serious for him to Keep them to himself:

"I have at my disposal (said Marshal Ma) an army of six hundred thousand men armed in the European style and ins-trout by those same Japanese who beat us a while ago ten years old.

"Once our forces are combined with theirs, we will be in a measure to stand up to Europe, which has come to our country dispute our territories even though we are never went to her house. »

However, the Chinese are rather silent, and for the
The general nature of the imperial troops was thus revealed His plan, he must first make a solid foundation.
stuck in his head...

Rest assured, Asia's recovery will be driven by conquerors.
Western powers will begin by invading Indo-China, which will be taken from us in the blink of an eye!
(MH Rochefort, 7ntrans. September 20, 1904).

1. In December 1904, a Japanese newspaper, the Tayio, wrote that France has "a rotten heart" and implies that one would be very wrong to hold back with her;

"There are those," this newspaper says, "who fear the progress of the France in Asia and fear seeing it annex the provinces of the South and the West. These fears seem to me unfounded-Lies. France is no longer what it once was. Despite the outward splendor of its civilization, it is absolutely for-laughter at heart: one can envy her refinement, her beautiful-arts and its wealth, but its vital energy is exhausted. Its po-Population decreases day by day, and it is not unreasonable-
It is easy to believe that it will disappear from the ranks of nations around:
the end of this century. From then on, all his colonization ventures "Innovation in Asia is doomed to fatal failure."

We have been warned.

In Indochina.

Mr. Rochefort's patriotic fears are all the more justified given that Indochina is covered of Secret Societies, branching out with the fierce Boxers from China.

In 1887, Mr. Alfred Muteau, commissioner of the French Navy, wrote a brochure entitled
"A Secret Society in Indochina." The Society that he describes is none other, he says, than "the Association of Hung" or "the Heaven and Earth Association", imported from China, – the very one with which The Martinists are in contact. And this is "one the most prominent Secret Societies and the "most powerful in the Universe." (M. Muteau, p. 4).
It is still called "The Sect of the White Lotus", and also "the Triads" or "the Three Societies" United." Its rituals bear a striking resemblance to Masonic rites. Various forms of torture are involved.
reserved for Initiates who would break the laws the Lodges of Hung; it is the counterpart of those whose it is mentioned in the oath of the Freemasons Scottish, where the entrails were torn out and the body burned play the main role.

Let us read the code of this Extreme Freemasonry Orient:

ART. 16, – “If you help in the capture of a Brother "whose head has a price on it, that's the most "serious, and the criminal will be put to death by decapitation"

"lation."
… there is also mention of various forms of torture

whose guilty will be struck down by heaven, but he is presumed (adds Mr. Muteau) "that the Council of Association often acts as interpreter in this regard and "Executor of the so-called heavenly will." (Mr. Muteau) – pp. 34, 35.) |

The recruits are given a book "containing the laws, regulations, and secret symbols.

Sometimes daggers are added which they dispelmules under their long sleeves and which serve to to carry out the capital sentences of the Association. (Se Muteau – p. 36.)

In China.

Another French naval officer, Mr. de Pouvourville, wrote a very interesting book in 1897. Ressant: Taoism and the Chi- Secret Societies noises; 11 discreetly indicates the role that it plays the assassination.

I cannot divulge (said Mr. de Pouvourville) this that Chinese companies have secrets, what they do not develop to their members, as they mononly in rank and consideration, under the seal of the most formal silence and under the latest threats these. » (M. de Pouvourville, p. 3). |

Further on, here are some details of great interest about the supreme Initiates of Taoism, "the refuge and the center of all secret racial associations "yellows," said Mr. de Pouvourville (p. 8).

_These high-ranking Freemasons are called PhapChinese mania: they are formidable sorcerers. and no less formidable poison experts. Let's listen to Mr. de Pouvourville instead:

Evocative rites, he said, hold great importance here. place (p. 8).

So much for the sorcery of these High Freemasons. Chinese, = Here now is their talent for employment bell ringers:

"Besides the sacred books, the Phap possesses the secrets of the hieratic toxicology of the ancient Chinese (that is– (i.e., their science of poisons), toxicology of which I might one day give to curious details, especially on plant poisons, on their condensation into impalpable, odorless powders, or in tasteless, colorless drops that form a a formidable arsenal in the hands of those who know how to play. » (M. de Pouvourville, p. 13).

_ Alongside these poisoners of societies Chinese secrets – in our country, who will ever know From what formidable arsenal did the poisons emerge? slow which, according to the courageous assertion of Madame Lebaudy, would often have frozen the face of Finfortuné Syveton?

But if the victims of the Secret Societies They number in the hundreds in the Christian world. They number in the thousands in the pagan world of the East...

The latest blood fever caused by the Secret and magical societies of China to the horrific massacres perpetrated by the Boxers. Now, a dispatch from Hong Kong, dated July 26 1901, .we learn that the Boxers "are not 'that a section of the Triad Society' of which we showed earlier the similarities

These are with the Lodges of Europe. These same Triads they abound in Indochina as well as in the All of China,

— We also know what fierce hatred is directed in our country by sectarians of all kinds to our Missions that spread love across the earth of Christ and of France, all at once. A intent-To deal with these malevolent madmen, it would be the Mission-massacred men who were the culprits, while that the Boxers, ignoble executioners of women and The children were like little saints...

In the journal La Quinzaine, in September 1900, Mr. Farjenel provided a fine study of the links which unite the Sectarians of Europe with the Sectarians yellow, | |

“A shared community of views on a point essential, he said, bringing the Chinese Sectarians closer to French Freemasons (hatred of missionaries, {hatred of Catholicism). It remains for both sides than to find practical ways to unite their efforts in the common struggle against Christianity that they
They also hate it.

Aren't these the practical means of uniting their efforts against the Christian faith, which seek our sectarians of flowers, negotiations, with their Brothers of the East and Far East? And when we see European, French Secret Societies even, seeking the alliance of the mysterious poisoners and torturers of the Order of Hung, don't we have the right to say that they are populated by traitors to their country and their race, — traitors whom I try to believe are unconscious?

XVI

THE ASSASSINATION OF FRANCE

How abundant is our harvest of crimes
Secret Societies!

But that's no longer enough for these sadists.
lusts, human blood flowing freely on the scaffolds and learned tortures; many-
In fact, it is an entire people they want to assassinate our own; it is France that they are striving to-a hundred to kill.

This truth—whose rapid disclosure is the only chance of salvation for our country — is the one that we find expressed in all the forms in all newspapers, in all books published for years by anti-cultists.

To prove the reality once again
Cruel, it will suffice for me to group together the beautiful conferences recently held by two members of parliament, valiant among the valiant.

Masonic Antipatriotism.

In recent days, Mr. Maurice Spronck, Member of Parliament from Paris, he accumulated document upon document to demonstrate that, from 1866 to 1870, it was spread in France through speeches, newspapers, brochures, the book, anti-military and anti-patriotic ideas identicks to those that are spread today, |

We borrow from the eloquent deputy of Paris these highly interesting considerations on the devastation caused by the Masonic spirit in France, before and after the Franco-Prussian War of 1870:

Before 1870.

In short, we attach to the external form of the re– regime under which a country lives, an importance that it Not my place. It's the customs, it's the currents of thought.
and it is the guiding spirits of these currents who president, much more so than the official government, to the evolution of a people. And when today, by
For example, we are told about the corruption of the second Empire, we would be willing, after what we have Having seen it since, one can take this kind of accusation with a smile.
directed against Napoleon III and his entourage.

The truth is that the eighteen years of restoration imperial tions were imbued with Masonic spirit and Jacobin, and that the Emperor's great mistake was to not having opposed this spirit, either in its policy or either in its foreign policy, or in its resistance– Insufficient discipline. But, if one can criticize him

Having been subjected to the prevailing pressure, it is absurd to Vinculper of having provoked her; and it's behind him and below him that the historian must look for root causes of the events that mark its reign.

Since 1870.

What appears prodigious, and prodigious to the point which leads one to wonder if such aberrations are indeed spontaneous, and if they do not result from a a plan orchestrated behind the scenes by unknown actors.
The problem is that, for some of our fellow citizens, the school–
The 1870 decree seems to have remained completely a dead letter.

That pacifists, humanitarians, internationalists and Other dreamers, Mr. Ferdinand Buisson foremost among them, might have been able to, before the tragedy of the invasion and dismemberment, to indulge in childish illusions about the necessary conditions to be exiled from all national life, at a pinch we exile ourselves
They thus demonstrated a mediocre understanding.
grasping the historical laws of the world and a pro– a peculiar pension for a dangerous illuminism. But, After all, great minds had dabbled in similar chimeras. No brutal lesson had been learned.
unfolded before their eyes to cure them, by their own admission– regulation. They could be wrong.

However, they see war, and war for a long time.
and meticulously prepared in advance under the direction of a man who makes no secret of shaping his own politics by iron and by fire; they know, without a doubt, that this war was not desired by us, but by the opponent who has since admitted to us that he had put the falsification of dispatches in service of his plans; they are well aware that his most active collaborator was – a sort of old military monk, for whom the struggles international ones are of divine essence, and who professes that, without them, humanity would rot; they observed, and they can see more and more each day that this Belligerent mysticism has penetrated the Germanic race, and that, to support this mysticism, she poured some thousands of cannon pieces and millions of tempered bayonets. Much better; no later than Fété der– They deny it, they saw, 4 Tangier, the German Kaiser put, with a threatening gesture, the hand grasped the handle of his Sword. Nonsense! They understood nothing, learned nothing from it.

They are oblivious to the past. They have no idea of the realities of the present.
They have no idea what the future holds.
live with their eyes fixed on their bucolic dream of brotherhood global unity. And we are at least forced to to consider them crazy, so as not to have to accuse them of being criminals (Before 1870 – In 1905, Mr. Maurice Spronck).

At the same time as his colleague, Mr. Grosjean, deputy of Doubs, made, under the title The Lesson of The Stranger, a conference where he established with a striking evidence that, in our country, a party infamous, devotes all its energy to destroying our patriotic faith, our warrior spirit, our strengths military – everything that opposes the invasion and the dismemberment of France – in just a few days where neighboring peoples exalt to the highest degree in the souls of their sons patriotism, pride national and the ambition to dominate the world.

A nation fallen to the level of this beast-legendary so stupid that she devoured herself paws, a nation seemingly gripped by vertigo and appearing to take pleasure in destroying his weapons while his enemies arm themselves to the teeth, such is the extraordinary phenomenon that we have right before our eyes. Moreover, this phenomenon, which has already produced in 1869, is still being reproduced today today with the exact same symptoms.

Would we say that these are mere whims of chance?

No. First of all, a nation does not commit suicide, one Suicide. And besides, spontaneous generation doesn't exist.
no more in the lives of peoples than in physiology: nothing comes from nothing, and, as in all disease in general, it is the bacillus that generates poison and death are what we must look for here.

But when we saw the ferments with us morbid secret societies infect, through throughout the centuries, all the most devastating wounds of humanity hideous; especially when you know it's France-Freemasonry that has unleashed against our reargrandfathers, the horrible plague that called itself the Terror, is it possible to look elsewhere?
that in Freemasonry the cause of evil which France is dying from?

Also, if it were still possible to give ...proof that Secret Societies are real-lies the deep source of the ills from which we we suffer, we would find her irresistible in these abominable pages where Weishaupt, first and foremost, has hatred of the Fatherland and the Patrioism:

"At the origin of Nations and Peoples," he said in
With his Illuminated Code, the world ceased to be a great family... Nationalism or National Love took hold place of general love. With the division of the globe and from his lands, benevolence tightened in limits she must not cross again. So it was a virtue of extending at the expense of those who do not find themselves were not under our rule. So it was permitted to to achieve this goal, to despise foreigners, to deceive them per and to offend them. This virtue was called Patrioism. He was called Patriot who, just towards the his own, unjust towards others, blinded himself to the mis-rite of foreigners and took for perfections the vices of his homeland... Patriotism was then born Localism, family spirit, and finally, egoism.

Thus the origin of States or Governments, of the Civil society was the seed of discord and the Patriotism found its punishment within itself... Diminish, cut off this love of the Fatherland, the men of no-calves learn to know and love each other as men..." (Quoted by Baruel, Mémoires, vol. III, p. 128).

“Through these schools,” he continued, “(the secret schools of philosophy, in other words the Lodges and Back-Lo-one day the fall of humankind will be repaired;
Princes and nations will disappear without violence.
above the earth. Humankind will become one | family, and the earth will be nothing more than the dwelling place of man reasonable... » (Quoted by Baruel, Mémoires, vol. III, p. 131, 132).

Thus Weishaupt, the leader of the odious, dogmatized conspirators who "enlightened" Freemasonry French nonsense in 1785, which they inflated with all their poisons and who gave to the Sans-Culottes for "civic" hairstyle the red cap of their Illuminated Epope.
Weishaupt's anti-patriotic theses are more alive more than ever within Freemasonry French, "which is (said an illustrious Macon) to the extreme cutting edge of the avant-garde of all the Ma-

"bullshit," and in the contrived pages that

As we have just summarized, Weishaupt was manifestofestively the teacher of all our teachers Masonic and anarchist "friendly" societies, of all our FF. Hervé, Thalamas et tutti quanti.

He is also a true Freemason, faithful to the pure Weishaupt tradition, that in December 1905 the F.:. Sembat, deputy for Paris, delivered the speech at the Chamber a distinctly internationalist speech and unpatriotic.

Eckert's thesis remains true: when a An avant-garde Freemason speaks like that, it's that the time for upheaval is approaching.

Germany and England, vassals of France-Masonry.

The contrast is striking: on one side France plagued for years by a criminal pro-anti-patriotic pagan; facing it, Germany and England, countries with a strong Masonic presence, but where the Patriotism, on the contrary, is exalted to excess.

At first glance, one might be tempted to say: "If Freemasonry is as unpatriotic as you You say so, why doesn't she destroy patriotism? German and English patriotism as she-"Trou, ours?"

To this question, they are two Freemasons very illustrious people who answered on our behalf.

The former F. Haugwitz, in 1822, presented to the Congress a memorandum from the Sovereigns assembled in Verona where he revealed that he, Prime Minister of the CouRonne of Prussia, had been "in charge of the direction superior Masonic meetings of a part of Prussia, Poland and Russia"; that Freemasonry was divided into two parties, one, the vanguard party which had its headquarters in Berlin, the other, that of the "moderate" Freemasons, in in a way — both holding hands ¢ to achieve world domination, conto seize thrones and use kings as their ministers.” “To exert a dominant influencenatrice on thrones and sovereigns, such was "our goal!", said ex-F.°. von Haugwitz. The emperors Francis of Austria and Nicholas I from Russia were so impressed by this report that they hastened to prohibit Freemasonry in their states. On the contrary, King William III of Prussia, to whom the memoir of Haugwitz, his ex-minister, had been personally addressed, written lives, from Verona itself, to his personal physician F.. Wiebel, of the Gr... Lodge of Germany: "Inform your fellow Freemasons that I have had a lot here." to be done regarding masonry and its conservation 'tion in Prussia. But I did not withdraw his trust that I gave him; I would only do it if I had, in The rest, more conclusive reasons (!). Tell them that The masonry work can always count on my protction, as long as it does not exceed the limits it has charted its own course. (Quoted by N. Deschamps, Les (Secr. Soc., t. II, p. 399.)

The entire conduct of the Protestant princes of Germany Magne and England screw 4 screws of the Masonry is explained by these lines from the royal F.:. Guillamp III. After as before the reign of this As sovereign, Prussia is, in reality, much more the protected from Freemasonry as its protector. Also. Freemasonry finds in it a safe haven too hospitable and too powerful a lever for not to respect and favor the nation and the dynastytie who are his vassals.

There are many documents that prove until it became clear that Prussia had been secretly aidedment in many companies by the Franc-Freemasonry!, and everyone knows the terrible revelation made by Mr. de Giers, former ambassador Lord of Russia, regarding our disasters of 1870:

---

1. Onclair, Contemporary Freemasonry, pp. 56-60.

his existence in Bern, where he was then accredited, of a Prussian Masonic agency in commun-agreement with the French Lodges who were betraying
our country?! | |

What crime to add to all the other crimes
Masonic groups against France!

As for England, (where we
(We have also witnessed the birth of Freemasonry),
It is so thoroughly Masonic, its annals bear so heavily influenced by Masonic culture

1. See N. Deschamps, Les Soc. Secr., t. II: The Genesis Masonic Prussia, p. 397. German unity, p. 400.
— Onclair, La Fr. Mag. Contempor., p. 60. — See also, in The Memoirs of General Lamarque (Paris, 1835, vol. II, p. 4) the general's interview with a high-ranking Freemason who declared to him, in In 1826, the Secret Societies wanted the unification of Italy. and the unification of all of Germany under a single ruler. They have fulfilled their wishes.

2. And Mr. de Giers added, "The French nation had been,
It seems that it was condemned by high-ranking international Freemasonry.
national!... »

that the anonymous author of The Secret of France Freemasonry! believes it can conclude that it is
She, England, who sows throughout the world Lodges intended solely to serve as instruction comments on British domination.

But this thesis, which seems to us exclusive to The excess explains the whole much less well of the history of Freemasonry than that in which one he envisions it (as all the Popes have done) as a Church outside and above the Nations that she wants to enslave them all to her clericalism?

This last thesis, the demonstration of which
This is also evident from all our previous chapters,
It also fits perfectly with the key lyrics.
of the former F.. Von Haugwitz and of M. de Giers who evoke in our frightened eyes our country targeted at heart by a Secret Society that has sworn his death because he is still, despite everything, a powerful bulwark of Catholicism.

How Freemasonry goes about it to kill France.

At the Convent of 1898, Brother Bourceret, Orator of the Assembly, concluded his homily with these words :

1. The Secret of Freemasonry, Paris, 1905.

2. In a previous chapter, we said that conversely
The Catholic Church has always repudiated Freemasonry.
"Clericalism," by which we mean any interference from the power to see religious power in civil authority, just as it has com-constantly fought against regalism, that is to say, any interference of civil power within religious power.

It is precisely because we are the workers of thought and the champions of universal fraternity saddle that we have as enemies the ambitious and the _ selfish people, who want to dominate their fellow human beings, to create castes and maintaining privileges in society!
These men are, for us Freemasons, irrereconcilable enemies, whatever form that may take.
of their costume, whether they wear a toga, whether they wear a cassock, they even carry a sword (Thunder) (of applause) (sic). (Fr. Bourceret, orator, Convent of 1898, p. 424).

Thus, Freemasonry abhors:

1° of the Judge,
2° of the Priest,
3° of the Soldier.

And we will see precisely that, in order to kill the

In France, Freemasonry is striving to kill – in our culture, the Priest and the Soldier, because, as
As a true "free thinker" eloquently put it,
Mr. Jules Soury, "in short, nothing remains standing (in France) than the Army and the Church?

(We are not talking about the Judge: the Freemason-Nerie only has to initiate the people into her Mysteries.
The first judge who came to transform him immediately in "Good Judge" and we know what a "Good" is Judge (Freemason).

1. Freemasons, specifically, form a caste "Ambitious," "selfish," "who want to dominate their similar," Father Bourceret pretends not to know.
not.

2. Letter from Mr. Soury to Mr. Maurice Barrès – Le Journal, November 12, 1899. Quoted by Dasté (Baron) – Gangrene Masonic, Paris, 1899, pp. 76, 77.

Current Masonic crimes.

The crimes that the Lodges have committed since a few years to kill the Priest in France and the Soldier, to destroy the Catholic Church and The Army, are so numerous that we would need writing several volumes if we wanted to |
'to give only a glimpse'.

This is the gradual poisoning of our children through directed teaching (hypocritically first, then brutally) against the convicts religious beliefs that they draw from the family home;
This is the will of Freemasonry, a hundred times over.
expressed in its Lodges and Convents, of arra-dear to the Christianity of the heart of France in stealing the souls of our sons and daughters.
For this purpose, the (Masonic) League was founded.
of teaching and the very Masonic "Friend-"Wedges" of Teachers.
This is the plundering of religious property, that is to say legal theft that deprives thousands of their property links of French citizens. But, however legal it may be So, theft is still theft.

1. Many books provide a wealth of documentary evidence comments on the current crimes of Masonic Lodges in France. See in particular the Petition against the Freemasonry at the Eleventh Commission of the Chamber Members of Parliament, by Mr. Prache, rapporteur; the Jaco- Club bins by M. Nourrisson; the Masonic Plan by M. Michel Le François; The Union of Upstarts by Mr. Tourmentin.
– I'm not talking about the Masonic Gangrene (Edition exhausted).

This is the break with the Papacy, a break which France is already losing its influence centuries in the East and consequently – from the point of view material, from a commercial point of view – the loss of considerable clientele; hence an impoverishment-

-undeniable aspect of our country.
_ It's the separation of Church and State, matreacherously acquired by a complicit government Lodges with a view to shielding Catholics from common law and to treat them, more odiously that they are not yet, in panas in the country of their fathers.

It's denunciation (the pagan vice of degenerates) of imperial Rome) resurrected by the Frank-Freemasonry to corrupt our Army.

Finally, it is the traitor Dreyfus who was acclaimed so many times.
adopted by French Freemasonry.

This alone, along with denunciation, is enough to mark of an indelible stain the Freemasons of France, even in the eyes of those of our coma-triotes who have forgotten the way to the churches:

Informants or accomplices of informers!

Informants or accomplices of informants!

"Scans and pans" or accomplices of the "scans and pans"!

1. Nothing paints a better picture of the degree of degradation of France-
These few lines reveal Freemasonry as a spy and informer.
Mr. Maurice Spronck, in La Liberté, last winter, at the beginning of The case of the files:

"We don't publish everything. We leave the record aside when..."
Slander is too vile, or when it attacks women my; for it is good to know that the lodges were informants not only the QRIGIErs: but also their wives and their girls.

And to top it all off, friends and allies of a traitor, —
These are the Freemasons of France.

Freemasonry against Catholics.

In their Lodges, in their Convents, whose echoes, despite their secret, are fortunately ve-Naked until now, the Freemasons were preparing for years to abolish the Concordat and to extran-Understanding Catholicism in France. A thousand diverse texts Torn from their secret places, they prove it. But Franc-Freemasonry is so much the embodiment of lies that today all the imposters of the Lodges, de-Freemason prostitutes, senators, and ministers say hypocritically across the country that it is the
The Papacy, which desired this breach of the Concordat, while the Lodges had been demanding it for twenty years and that it is them — them, the slaves of the Grand Orient — who commit the crime of im-to pose to France.

Such vile impudence will revolt anyone.
in our country of loyalty, has retained the contempt of liars.

Freemasonry versus the Army.

There is no need for long speeches to my-to what extent Freemasonry, in the none of his agents, the FF.-. Combes, Pelle-Tan and André, to name just these three, is criminal towards France, which it has disarmed facing the enemy.

In his preface to the poignant brochure
Mr. Louis Latapie—Are we ready—? Colonel Rousset writes:

The Minister of War, absorbed in the making index cards, let the weapon dull in his hand which had been entrusted to her. It is now chipped.
and shaky. It absolutely must be re-tempered.
and to refurbish it.

Into what state has our armor fallen, {flow of all pieces on an artificial border, which the German strategists had, in 1871, carved out savam-You'll find out. What we did with our officer corps, so devoted, so educated, so aware of his duties, and through which now circulates the poison of denunciation and discord, you will know.
What has become of the essential supplies?
Sands, the coverage numbers, you'll see. And You will judge afterwards whether the nefarious man who presided over all these ruins, General André should not, in justice, to be, along with his protector Mr. Combes, indicted of high treason! (Preface, pp. 4, 5.)

F.:. Pelletan, for his part, finds accusers overwhelming even among foreigners, ironic, supremely amused to see the work of the Enemy accomplished among us by evil citizens:

This being (Pelletan is the one referred to as such) is more formidable to the French navy than Admiral Togo 4. The Russian Navy.

Togo needs its battleships and torpedo boats.

to destroy the Muscovite fleet, and he only kills two admirals.

Pelletan, with his pen, demolished the entire navy and kills six admirals without firing a shot.

(Pall Mall Gazette, quoted by La Libre Parole, April 22)
1904.) F

After London, here comes Berlin: |

In summary, we can say that the French Navy will need many years — even in the event that the circumstances would be favorable — to repair all the harm done to him by the last minister of the navy. (Count of Reventlow, Berliner Tageblatt, cited (by La Libre Parole, March 1, 1905.)

Maconnerle, Dreyfusism and Denunciation.

We know the word so characteristic of F.. Pas-Quier, the odious informer; in 1898, in Avignon, in a Masonic banquet, the account of which was published by the Courrier du Midi, "congratulations were received Mr. Pasquier for having voted in favor of the agenda of Dreyfus. He (Pasquier) replied that the
The success of the revision was a matter of life and death.
or death for Freemasonry." (Quoted by A.
Monniot, Libre Parole, November 24, 1898).

It was difficult for French Freemasonry to confess his own infamy with more cynicism that by covering F.°. Pasquier with honors. That is Fact: the Convent of 1905, a few weeks ago, elected Mr. Pasquier as Secretary of the Council of the Order, at the same time as unanimously less

With three votes, he approved the Council's conduct of the Order in the case of the index cards. °

Through these votes, French Freemasonry declared her solidarity with the despicable informers Freemasons, as she had already visited in solidarity with the criminals who are destroying our countries involved in the Dreyfus Affair.

In the latter, moreover, the Freemason-
Italian music had managed to blend its own note into the concert.
This is indeed what one read in Christian France-yours of December 31, 1899:

We find in the Rivista della Massoneria
Italiana (delivery July-August-September-October) 1899) a very good letter from the Grand Master of the Grand Orient of Italy, the Jew Ernesto Nathan, to Mrs. Alfred Dreyfus, letter addressed immediately after the verdict of Rennes court-martial. We quote | verbatim-the document, and as it appears on page 181 of the Masonic journal:

Madame Dreyfus, Paris.

"Please, Madam, accept and participate in the victim's case."
the deepest sympathy for a sectarian conspiracy of Italian Freemasonry, which wishes that the triumph-May the light of truth soon console you.
"All of this long, heroically suffered martyrdom."

The Grand Master, NATHAN.

In the same issue of the Italian magazine #4, we we find a work by the said Grand Master on the works
Masonic activities during the last three years Here again he is involved in the Dreyfus affair. This struggle between "militarism from beyond the Alps" against

"Civic conscience," for F.:. Nathan, is none other than that "the ancient struggle between Hormuz and Ahriman, between the light and darkness.

We would never have suspected it.

- The Ultimate Crime: Treason.

It is necessary to emphasize the crime of treasonits, which the Ancients, as we have said, called The unforgivable crime, because it could lead suddenly leading to death or slavery — worse that death — the men and women of a an entire city, of an entire people.

However, Freemasonry had good reasons to be a Dreyfusard: Weishaupt, who illuminated French Freemasonry, had it not drawn-
Is this a true code for the perfect spy? And then,
Mr. de Giers's frightening revelation about Doesn't the Franco-Prussian War of 1870-71 prove that the Does Freemasonry have treason in its blood?

In Down with the Tyrants! the anti-Masonic newspaper that I had the honor of founding in 1900 with my My brave friend Copin-Albancelli, I gave what-curious documents that paint a good picture of the way whose Lodges include military duty in wartime.
= On the battlefield of Waterloo, an officer-
The Prussian army had built itself "a rampart of corpses":

"He is still fighting, barely fighting, exhausted by the blood flowing from his wounds; however, his sword has tired of hitting; his arms rose above his head and still trusting in the enemies he has just defeated

To beat him, he calls for help, as he falls, the children:
"of the Widow!" (Speech delivered at the Parisian Lodge)
The Clement Friendship, January 16, 1838. — The Globe, 1st year-
. born, vol. I, p. 51).

It was then that a French officer rushed forward;
"Terrible, his gaze falls upon the French" those around him"; he is a Freemason; he is threatening with his sword his D and saves his life F.:. foreigner.

At that very moment on the scene of the carnage of Waterloo, where the choice between freedom and servitude was at stake.
In our country, how many French people fell into despair?
beneath the numbers? But the Masonic hero of history-Brother, the Frenchman, instead of helping his French brothers-in-arms, saving his brother from Prussia.
(Down with the Tyrants! June 9, 1900, pp. 5, 6).

The Berliner Herold had asked its readers to publicize the facts of the use of the Sign of De- | braid during the war of 1870- ve. (Macon- Review June 1900).

He was told that F.°. Albert Richter (al-Lemand) was to be shot on the orders of an officer of French francs-tireurs, when, having done the
In a sign of distress, he was saved by a Freemason.
"declaring himself his brother and guaranteeing the affirmation"
of the suspect who claimed to be a nurse.

Thus, a French Freemason guarantees the accuracy from the suspect's assertion that he was a nurse, without the —
to know and only because this suspect did the Sign of Distress. (Down with the Tyrants! July 7, 1900, p. 4).

The Masonic Review Le Globe (vol. III, p. 446)

has once again provided us with this contribution to history of the Sign of Distress.

At this venerable sign, we saw combatants throw the weapons, to exchange the kiss of union, and of enemies that they had instantly become friends and brothers again, so that their oaths prescribed for them. (Discourse of the Brother Lefebvre d'Aumale, F.:. Orator of the Gr.'. Or.. of France, the 6th day of the lunar month (Tamuz) of the year of light 5841 Vulgo 1841).

Another Masonic authority, Brother Bouilly, Grand Master, Deputy of the Grand Orient of France, said again in 1841:

"Among Freemasons, the strength of fraternal bonds is so strong that it is even exerted between those whom the inte–
"The bonds of the Fatherland have divided us."

Then, Brother Bouilly, addressing the Freemasons under the flags in wartime, he cries out:

Distinguish neither nation nor uniforms: do not see that of the Brothers and think of your oaths! (The Globe, vol. IV,

p. 4).

I have a duty to conclude as I did in 1900:

If the Freemasons do not renounce these monstrosities anti–nationalists whom their predecessors applauded, they are traitors to the Nation, and to the epithet of Tyrants ma– conical we have the right to join that of Trai– –
very Masonic. (Down with the Tyrants! December 8, 1900)

p. 7).

XVII
CONCLUSIONS

On October 29, 1899, the late Syveton described, in the Echo de Paris, these Masonic agencies of presses installed at our place to manufacture "the stunning unanimity of European opinion to with regard to France",

...these "machines," he said, by means of which International Masonic, Protestant and Jewish leads the world. That we are treated with special care that we do not show to other nations, that has no Nothing surprising. The future of the universal sect depends of his triumph in our country. If his power collapses– milk here, she would feel it, all over the world, a irreparable weakening. Therefore, she jealously watches over it.

ment to ensuring that we retain government staff mental [statement] that is devoted to him.

Five years later, after administering to Fr... André, the historic slap without which this a malevolent puppet would probably still be currently in charge of National Defence, Syveton died in circumstances such as the leaders of the truly French press have not did not hesitate to put its end on the liabilities side of France– Masonry.

The murder of Syveton, writes MH Rochefort, the
The probable suppression of Félix Faure has proven that This mafia was composed of traitors and conspirators teurs (Intransigeant, August 8, 1905).

Forty–eight hours after Syveton's death,
Mr. Léon Daudet was doing this in La Libre Parole.
poignant reconciliation:

Here, he said, is what Copin–Albancelli wrote, who was initiated into Freemasonry and fought heroically there today, in the prophetic issue of November 12, 1904, from his valiant newspaper, La Bastille, under the title: "The Occult World". For the past two days, Since the terrible event, I have been reading and rereading these lines. appalling:

"I therefore affirm that I know of its existence – and when I say: I know, I hear, I saw, I touched pointing to the evidence of this existence – of a society steeped in Freemasonry in the way I have just to show and of which he is not a member who masters crimes to reproach oneself for.

"I maintain that he is like other senior civil servants." Freemasons of the Republic towards whom I could walk, if I met him, and to whom I could to say: "You, sir... official, at such and such a time, On such and such a day, in such and such a place, you have as a member of such a group recruiting from Freemasonry and the penetrating, committed such a crime. »

"To another, I would say: 'Do you remember a murder whose secret remained impenetrable; that's where he It was decided, and you were among those who carried it out. Here is "How did you do it?"

"Gaboriau!" these idiots shout at me, sometimes crammed with reading material, which does not admit the romantic and the tragic aspect that exists outside of history and current events – whereas history and current events are a fabric of arcanes – and which conceal: their eminent softness beneath an elegant skepticism. It is on these fools that the Old Man of the Mountain's gang counts on throwing grey ashes and empty words, in order to cover innocently the corpses. Ah! how much, how much I I vomit up the lukewarm!... (L. Daudet).

"It's pure fiction! It's pure Gaboriau!" he told me. would have also shouted these "lukewarm" ones, if I had put in The parallel between Syveton's death and that of Gustave HI from Sweden, for example...

I will be thanked for this abstention which demonstrates from my scrupulous desire not to offend the skeptics by unsupported claims documentary evidence, and we will have no pretext to deny the probative force of historical texts torics accumulated in this volume.

All these texts seem to guide the mind leading to this twofold observation:

1° All ancient and modern Secret Societies dernes carry at least one of the three defects that we said.

2° An unbroken chain links very real- the main Secret Societies others.

From the old Initiates to the Freemasons modern.

7 |

Under the title Eureka, Mr. Louis Brunet published in 1905 a very well-coordinated brochure, where he finds it, somehow concealed in the foundations of Freemasonry, the cult of Phallus, in other words, naturalist religion and pantheistic of the Back Temples of Egypt and of Syria. Indeed, the texts that Mr. Brunet borrows to Brother Ragon (to whom the Grand Orient of France has granted the title of Sacred Author of Freemasonry nerie), at F.-. Willaume and at F.:. de l'Aulnaye, – three of the most respected Masonic writers derelicts – are all imbued with naturalist dogmas on the generation by the very fact that their authors are steeped in ancient Egyptian theology where the Phallus plays the role we know.

Our readers will not be surprised by this since the- Rosicrucian Elias Ashmole had modeled his rituals Modern Freemasonry's take on old legends The Isiac Mysteries. Ragon, Willaume and those from Aulnaye are therefore very much in keeping with tradition if their patriarch Elias Ashmole.

In the preface to Mr. Brunet's brochure,
Mr. Drumont writes:

This preoccupation with always bringing back to his imagery, in its emblems, the act of generation is obviously highly suggestive. It would lead one to believe that Freemasonry, whose origins despite everything get lost in the mystery, is ultimately just an offshoot a vibrant remnant of the old pagan materialism, which would have passed through Nineteen centuries of Christianity. (Eureka, Paris 1905, preface, p. 2).

Here we find a summary, a shortcut remarkable from our study. Yes, a "spine"
"A living vestige of the old pagan materialism," that's good as well as Freemasonry appears to us, if we compare the successful chapters with each other sifs of this book.

If, on the other hand, we go down the course of the centuries since the beginning of our era, that Do we see? The doctrines of Secret Societies paganism is renewed in Gnosticism by mingling with Judaism itself heavily intertwined with Paganism.

Then, in Europe, they follow one another – one after the other into one another, by penetrating, by inheriting their followers, as well as each other their doctrines – Gnostic sects, mani-Chéan, Albigensian, Templar. They are renovating themselves.
wind in their turn in the powerful organization of the Rosicrucian Order where ancient Gnosis is intertwined with Jewish Kabbalah from the Talmud. And finally, it's the-Rosicrucian doctrine, both Gnostic and Kabbalahballist, which Elias Ashmole introduces into the groups semi-professional English bricklayers trade to train modern masonry.

So, in short, Freemasonry current happens to be an extremely mixed complex of oriental paganism and Kabbalah
Jewish.

Tyranny and betrayals of the Secret Societies corrupting.

I] It is evident that the very formation of Socie-Secret societies are in fact instruments of tyranny of the 'people, wherever they are established: these are cliques of exploiters living off the inhabitants.

The exploitation of laymen through slavery and profane women through sacred prostitution,
This, in essence, is the outcome of the secret societies of the past.
ticks.

But our modern Freemasonry – all like the Ismailis and the Assassins of the Old of the Mountain – has exactly the same principles directors devoid of all morality: cè that she wants, in fact, apart from her war on Christianity means living at the expense of the people which it corrupts in order to better enslave. The pa-Stones seized from the heads of High Freemasonry, Weishaupt and Nubius's accomplices, we have learned enough, not to mention the despicable Propaganda of the Malthusian Societies, these new-
'new branches of the Lodges which teach depopulation-reasoned development in our countryside.

Whether we consider the terrorists who emerged from the Lodges a century ago and covering France of ruins and blood (all while lining their pockets), or our Freemasons of today plundering the public treasury to reward their creatures unnecessary places, the number of which will increase until-

4 that the country would be in total ruin — or that we let us consider the Athenians subdued in 408 BC.

to a regime of terror by a band of informers (always!) and assassins, organized, reports the historian Thucydides, by the PE Societies —
It's always the same thing.

France betrayed by Freemasonry
French in the Dreyfus affair and in the affair of Denunciation files; Europe betrayed by the Companies Secret societies of white people allying themselves with racial sectarians yellow — all this finds its counterpart, twenty-three centuries before us, in the Greek hetairies:
These Hellenic Secret Societies did indeed com-put the crime of betraying their own race for the benefit Persian barbarians.

The king of Persia was so rich! And the hetaerias
The Greeks did not have their Panama Canal, like our Masonic Lodges.

The Lie of Clericalism.

The thief who shouts "Thief!" while running away After a bad deed, such is the Freemason. He secretly introduced into French politics his priests in leather aprons; he exercises, by this means, the in the most positive way what is called the Clérica-lism, that is to say the domination of a certain religious power over civil power — and that is
He calls us Catholics clerics!

This shameless lie, like the tactic of A thief who shouts "Thief!" may be clever.

has

and manage to deceive for a while. But everything Suse. This lie has gone on for too long to last.
for a long time to come.

Freemasonry will soon make it an experiment.
The truth will prevail, and here is the truth:
Secret Societies — brotherhoods of devotees to gods and goddesses, some more bizarre than others, from the Phallus of Osiris to "Solidarity" of F'.—. Léon Bourgeois — have always been clericalwedges, while Catholicism has as its principle fundamental in its relations with the State Great saying: "Render unto Caesar what is Caesar's" Caesar, and to God the things that are God's. It is we who We truly want the freedom to think and believe.
for others as well as for ourselves. To be part of it Convinced, one only has to look at what is happening in Belgium where Catholics have managed to overcome the Freemasonry: processions in the streets freethinkers are quietly taking place next to Catholic processions.

The Lie of Masonic Progress.

He is not a "clerical," he is Auguste Comte.
a true "free thinker" who wrote these lines in a admirable depth:

“Catholicism was the most prominent promoter effective popular development of intellect human agency.” (Aug. Comte, Course of Philosophy-positive philosophy, vol. V, p. 258).

But Catholicism, which was Progress, is Even today, and the Freemasons are lying.

as usual, when they claim to be in turn the development representatives
Socially: they are not moving forward, they are moving backward.

Progress is more than ever Christia-.
nism that will defeat the modern Initiates of the Freemasonry as he defeated the ancients
Initiates prostrate at the feet of the Emperors Romans, while the Christians, those rebels sublime, they said: "No! You are not Gods! You are nothing but tyrants! Cut off our

We refuse live meat in pieces and corn.
to worship your lying deity."

More than ever, Christianity is Progress in the face of the Masonic reaction, this retreat, this regression that would bring the world back to two thousand. years ago, to the cruel and obscene tyranny of Ancient Secret Societies, weighing on a horrible weight on the small and the weak. : |

In the face of the silly sneers against the Catholic- | cism, let us therefore loudly proclaim our pride in being ca- Catholics: it is more honorable to be of the party of Slaves tortured like Saint Blandine, that on the side of the executioners, and the poor, the humble, Those who suffer will see the truth shine forth in the darkness. bres oti les menteurs francs-macons cherche a to mislead them when they remember this:

It was Christianity that broke the chains of ancient slavery and overthrew the regime where the Woman was nothing more than a beast of pleasure... or pain.

Freemasonry, on the contrary, wants to resurrect- to cite the infamous times of paganism with its self-saying "free love" intended, in his mind, to ruining Christian marriage, which is the safeguard of all feminine dignity as well as the base of French society.

With its return to savagery! of the tribes er- Walking in the forests, it is truly beautiful. Masonic "progress"!

The odious and the ridiculous.

If we take a look back and if we wonder what impressions domin- Nantes make the scenes evoked for the mind through this long series of documents, it - it seems that these are the ones:

Secret Societies are ridiculous;
Secret societies are abhorrent.

They are utterly ridiculous with their words of passages as grotesque then as they are now:

1. We are not exaggerating: savagery is Weis-'s ideal Haupt, whose doctrines "enlightened" Freemasonry- French nonsense:

"Savages," said Weishaupt, "are to the highest degree the the most enlightened of men, and perhaps the only free ones.

Conversely, Mr. Salomon, President of the Republic of Haiti, paid tribute, in 1878 and 1880, "to the beneficent influence" Catholic missions, thanks to which "had considerable- has increased the number of marriages and baptisms" — "Therefore also, (notes Mr. Caplain), the number of new families- powerfully cemented cobblestones." (M. Jules Caplain, La France) (in Haili, p. 25).

Our Freemason rulers who are striving to destroy Moralizing Catholicism is far inferior to this President- tooth of the Black Republic.

"I ate drum..." said the initiate of Eleusis. "How old are you?" "I'm three years old," reponder the Freemason Initiate already on the return.

But how odious they are too!
The blood of children and men, the modesty of women, that's what they used to offer as sacrifices- fice and, through the ages, to the frenzied cries of Moloch's cruel feasts, his foul feasts of Astarte, responds the clamor of the furies of the guil- Lotine, these hierodules of the Goddess Reason.

Let us consider this: at the heart of the heated debate among the apostles of Christianity, What was there, besides the defense of the Gospel, otherwise the persistent, incessant highlighting, of the ridiculous and odious aspects of Paganism, of which the Were the heads in the Secret Societies?

We quoted the terrible verses of Saint Paul against superstition and pagan infamies. But we know that for three centuries, until their In a complete victory, the Christians led against the pagans these same accusations of crimes of all sorts, and this on torture racks, very often! Isn't that proof of the imconsiderable influence that it had in everyone's eyes, for the triumph of Christianity, the constant evocation of the contrast between its gentleness and its purity with nameless ignominy and cruelty Pagan Mysteries?

The weapons of ridicule and odiousness are suchso good, so thoroughly tempered, that at its Freemasonry has seized upon it: since that it exists, it strives to divert minds of Catholicism, to attract hatred and contempt for it by making it odious and ridiculous, using these same accusations of crimes or bloody or repugnacious than in the earliest ages, the Christians threw in the face of the ancient Initiates.

On the other hand, when the Freemasons emtoday they are using these weapons against us, that is with the most disgraceful disloyalty, lying without Shame and constantly.

But the odious and the ridiculous have such a hold on the minds that too many misguided people, deceived by Masonic lies, they are having come to hate and despise the Church, the only something which, along with the Army, has remained standing, he said Mr. Soury, a freethinker of true Free Thought.

History is there (we have shown it) for to prove that when people knew what The Secret Societies were hiding, despite the torture, the tortures, the Neros, the Diocletians, the Galeriuses, Despite everything, they vomited them up.

Let's return to the old offensive tactics of the preFirst Christians: Let's cover up the Secret Societies modern with the mud and blood of their crimes; let us return to them with wear and tear -- and justly -- the odious and the ridicule with which they unjustly burden the ours.

And we will see the dawn of the days of expected revenge.

We have proven, based on irrefutable evidence. that Freemasonry is flawed in its origins Gines, deranged in her doctrines, deranged in the principal acts of its annals.

Furthermore, we have proven that, all too often, Freemasonry obeyed veritable assassins sins. |

However, when a man is released from prison or from the penal colony, although he paid his debt to society, one keeps him away.

The men who, far from leaving FranceFreemasonry convicted of infamy in the eyes of all since the affair of the files on his informants, continue to cynically use his incriminal influence, don't they also deserve, to be kept out?... |

It is difficult to name a rural police officer, whichthan someone who gets out of prison.

All the more reason, then, not to name Members of parliament or senators are people who go to the Lodge.

Digitized by Google |

ALPHABETICAL TABLE

AUTHORS CONSULTED

Academy of Inscriptions and Belles-Lettres (Proceedings of sessions of 1'), Paris, 1903

Paul Artar, Hist. des Persécutions, Paris, Lecoffre, 1885, etc.
— Youth of Emperor Julian, Paris, 1897.
— Julian the Apostate.
— Persecution of Diocletian, Paris, 1890.
F.*. GOBLET D'ALVIELLA, Eleusinia, Paris, Leroux, 1903.
AMELINEAN, Essay on Egyptian Gnosticism, Paris, Leroux,
887. |

AMMIEN MARCELLIN, trans. lat. de Migne, Paris, 1861.

. APULEIUS, The Golden Ass or the Metamorphosis, trans. J.-A. Maury,
Paris, 1834.

SAINT AUGUSTINE, City of God.

BARUEL, Memoirs to serve as a History of Jacobinism, 2nd ed., Hamburg, 1803.

Bastille (La), weekly, Paris.

F.:. BESUCHET, Historical Summary of the Order of Franc-Masonry, Paris, 1829. ae

C" BEUGNOT, History of the Jews of the West.

F.:. Louis Blanc, History of the Revolution, Brussels, 1848.

Dr. Boupin, Anthropological Studies, Paris, 1864.

L. BRUNET, Euréka, Paris, 1905.

Drs. CaBANES and Nass, Revolutionary Neurosis, Paris, 1905.

Jules CAPLAIN, France in Haiti.

César Cantu, The Reformation in Italy, the Precursors, Paris, 1866.

F. CLAVEL, Picturesque History of Freemasonry,
Paris, 1843.

SAINT CLEMENT of Alexandria, Exhortation to the Nations, trans.
Cousin, Paris, 1684.

Dr. A. Corre, Ritual Murder and Cannibalism, Paris,

New Society, 1893.

THE CANTELEU KNIFE, Sects and Secret Societies

Paris, 1863.

J. CRETINEAU-JOLY, The Roman Catholic Church in the Face of the Revolution,
3rd ed., Paris. 1861. |

Franz CUMONT, Texts and figurative monuments relating to Mysteries of Mithras, Brussels, 1899.

DARENBERG and SAGLIO, Dictionary of Antiquities...

J. DERENBOURG, Revue des Etudes juives, Paris, 1881.

N. Descuamps, Secret Societies and Society, Avignon, Seguin, 1880.

DIODORUS SICILY, Universal History, translated by Abbot Terrasson, of the French Academy, Amsterdam, 1743.

Douais, The Albigensians, their origins, Paris, Didier, 1879.

Pierre Durour, History of Prostitution, Brussels, 1851.

F.:. DuLaurE, On the Cult of the Phallus and the General Deitiestrices, Paris, 1805. ~-

Dupuy, Treatises concerning the History of France... Condemned-Templar Order, Paris, 1700.

Henri Durrait-Crozon, Joseph Reinach historien, Paris, 1905.

EckerT, Freemasonry in its true meaning... trans. Gyr, Liège, 1854.

Encyclopedia of Religious Sciences, published under the direction of Mr. Lichtenberger, Dean of the Faculty of Theology Pro-Testator of Paris.

EvSEBE, Preparat. Evangel.

Famin, Royal Museum of Naples, Paintings, bronzes and statues Erotic works from the Secret Cabinet, Paris, 1835.

Abbé Filzlion, Annotated Bible.

F... FINDEL, History of Freemasonry, trans. Tandel,
Paris, 1866.

Gustave Flaubert, Salammbô, Paris, Charpentier, final edition,

Paul Foucart, The Great Mysteries, Paris, 1900.

Research on the origin and nature of the Mysteries
Pes d'Eleusis, Paris, 1895. |
Philological Review, 1893. The Roman Emperors hands initiated into the Mysteries of Eleusis.

Christian France, weekly, Paris.

Freemasonry Unmasked, bimens, Paris.

Abbé FREPPEL, Saint Irénée, Paris, 1870.

Abbe GAFFRE, Inquisition and Inquisitions, Paris 1905.

GASQUET, Essay on the Mysteries of Mithras, Paris, 1898.

CADET DE GASSICOURT, The Tomb of Jacques Molay or His-Secret History of Initiates, Freemasons, Illuminati and Re-research their influence in the French Revolution, Paris, Year IV.

DE HAMMER, History of the Order of Assassins, Paris, 1833.
HUGHES D'HANCARVILLE, Monuments of the Private Lives of the Twelve Caesars, 1780.

HELLO, La Saint-Barthélemy, Paris, 1899.
Ch. D'HÉRICAULT, The Revolution.
HERODOTUS, History, translated by Larcher, of the Academy of Inscriptions and Belles-Lettres, Paris, 1786.
History, translation from the Literary Pantheon, Paris, 1837.
J.-A. Hicp, Bulletin de la Fac. Letters from Poitiers, Paris, 1889
HURTER, History of Pope Innocent III, Paris, 1840.

Intermediary for Researchers and Curious People, trimens. Paris.

Claudio JANNET, Freemasonry in the 19th century, Avignon, Seguin. sd
The Precursors of Freemasonry... Paris, 1887.
ARBOIS DE JUBAINVILLE, History of the Dukes and Counts of Champagne, Paris, 1865.

The Kama Sutra, translation. Lamairesse, Paris, 1891.

Félix LagJARD, member of the Institute, Research on worship, the symbols, attributes and figurative monuments of Venus,
Paris, 1837.

Achille LAURENT, Historical Account of Syrian Affairs from 1840 to 1842, Paris, Gaume, 1846.

Michel LE Francois, The Masonic Plan, 1905.

François Lenormant, Member of the Institute, Ancient History of the Orient, Paris, 1883.

History of the massacres in Syria, Paris, 1861.
Magic among the Chaldeans, Paris, 1874.

LEON XIII, Encyclical Humanum genus, against France
Masonry, 1884.

S. Lévi, The Doctrine of Sacrifices among the Brahmans, Paris, __ 1899.

Jules LoisELEUR, The Secret Doctrine of the Templars, Paris and Orléans, 1872.

Abbé Loisy, Studies on the Chaldean-Assyrian Religion, Review Religions, Paris, 1891.

DE Lucuet, Authentic Memoirs to Serve as a History of Count of Cagliostro, 2nd edition, 1785.

Lucien (Works of), translated. Talbot, Paris, 1874.

F... Henri MARTIN, History of France.
– MASPÉRO, member of the Institute, Studies in Mythology and Egyptian Archaeology, Paris, Leroux, 1893.

Ancient History of the Peoples of the Orient, Paris, 3rd ed., 1884.

MATTER, History of Gnosticism.

Alf. Maury, Magic and Astrology in Antiquity and in the Middle Ages, Paris, 1860.

MERCIER, Paris during the Revolution.

Collection of unpublished documents on the History of France, published under the authority of the Minister of Public Instruction:
Trial of the Templars, published by M. Michelet, Paris, 1851.

B. DE MOLLEVILLE, History of the French Revolution, Paris, Year IX.

L'Univers, August 13, 14, 15, 1878.

. A. MUTEAU, A Secret Society in Indochina, Paris, 1887.

Paul Nourrisson, The Jacobin Club, Paris, 1900.

Onciair, Contemporary Freemasonry, Liège, 1885.

Dr. Parus, On the State of Secret Societies at the Time of the Revolution

French Revolution, Paris, 1894.
The Illuminism in France. Martinès de Pasqually. His life, his magical practices... Paris, 1895.
Martinism and Freemasonry, Paris, 1899.

SAINT PAUL, Epistle to the Romans.

PERROT and CHIPIEZ, History of Art in Antiquity, Paris, 1885.

PLUTARCH, Moral Works, trans. Bétolaud, Paris, 1870.

PORPHYRIUS, Treatise on Abstinence from Animal Flesh.

DE POUVOURVILLE, Taoism and Chinese Secret Societies,
Paris, 1897.

PRACHE, The Petition against Freemasonry in the eleventh Committee of the Chamber of Deputies.

Edgar Quiner, The Revolution.

F... Racon, Masonic Orthodoxy followed by Freemasonry conn. Occulte, Paris, 1853.

F.–. REBOLD, History of the Three Great Lodges.

Memoirs of Cardinal Richelieu, Michaud edition.

` H. Roux aîné and Barré, Herculaneum and Pompeii. Secret Museum, Paris, Didot, 1840 and 1862.

SYLVESTRE DE SACY, Exposition of the Religion of the Druze, Paris, 1838.

OF HOLY CROSS, of the Academ. of Inscriptions. and Bell.-Lett.
Mystery of Paganism, Paris, 1784.

The Secret of Freemasonry, Paris, 1905,

SELDEN, De Diis Syris, Leipsig, 1672.

STRABO, Geography, translated by Tardieu.

Maurice Talmeyr, Freemasonry and the Revolution,
Paris, 1904.
TERTULLIAN, Ed. Literary Pantheon.
F.:. THory, Acta Latomorum, Paris, 1815.
TIELE (from Leiden), Revue de l'Histoire des Religions. Annals of Guimet Museum, Paris, 1881.
TOURMENTIN, The Union of Upstarts, Paris, 1905.
Gustave Tripon, On Jewish Molochism, Brussels, 1884.
Vicourovux, The Bible and Modern Discoveries, Paris, 1884.
Dictionary of the Bible.
F.'. VILLAUME, Manuel maconn. or Oiler, Paris 1820.
Count Melchior de Vogüé, of the French Academy, Extract
From the Correspondent of August 25, 1860,
The Events in Syria, Miscellany of Oriental Archaeology tale, Paris, 1868. | |

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Foreword.

I.

II.

MID.

IV.

The Isiac Mysteries 4.
Triple nature of anti- Secret Societies

questions. — Egyptian Initiation. — The Myth

Isis and Osiris. — Isis, Earth Goddess, and Osiris,

Sun God. — Isis, Nature Fertilized, and Osiris, Fertilizing principle. — Osiris and Isis, king and Queen of the Shades. — The Book of the Dead. — But and Rites of the Mysteries of Isis. — Magic in The Mysteries of Isis. — Immorality in the Mysteries of Isis. — Absence of Sacrifices humans in the Mysteries of Isis.

The Eastern Venus >. . . .
Nature, the androgynous God. — From Rhea-Cybele to Istar-Astarte. — The Myth of Tammuz and d'Istar (Adonis and Astarte). — Magic in The Chaldean-Syrian Mysteries.
Sacred prostitution, human sacrifices
The Complete Crime. — The Witch of Endor. — Baal-Phegor. — The Sacrifice of Mesha, king of Moab.
— Israel won over to the Canaanite Mysteries. — The contagion, heredity. — Human Sacrifices at Carthage.

In India and Persia:
The Brahmins of India. — The Magi of Ira

— Zoroaster.

In Greece.

The Eleusinian Mysteries. — The Myth of Ceres.
— The Ohjets Saérés. — The promises from Beyond-Tomb at Eleusis. — Magic at Eleusis, — The Mysteries of Bacchus.

Pages

39

59

87

103

382
VI.

VII.

VIII.

IX.

XI.

XII.

SECRET SOCIETIES

In the West . . . .

The Bacchanalia in Rome. — Some reports approaches. — Human Sacrifices in Ancient Europe...— The Druids.

The Ancient Mysteries Allied...

The Mysteries of Mithras. — The Myth of.

Mithra. — Magic in the Mysteries of Mithra.

'— The Mithraic Rites. — Courtiers of the power—

see. — At the feet of the Emperors. — Emperors Initiates. — Magic, the link of all Mysteries, — Ritual crimes.

The cesspool of the Roman Empire.

The odious and the ridiculous. — Secret museums. —
The Church Fathers and Roman infamy. — The Initiates—Executioners. — Under the Initiate Nero. — Under Hadrian the Initiate. — Under Marcus Aurelius the Initiate. —
The Martyrs of Lyon. — Sub-Initiate Aurélien. —
Under the Initiates Diocletian and Galerius.

The Initiates Defeated by Christianity
The Renaissance of the Mysteries. — Gnostics and Manicheans...:

Gnosis. — Jewish and Neoplatonic Origins Ancient Gnosis. — Valentinian Gnosis.
— Gnostic Immorality. — Angelic Wedding. —
Julian the Apostate, the Gnostics, and the Jews.
— Comparisons. — Manes and the Manicheans. — Persian anarchists. — The Ismailites of Egypt.
— The Order of Assassins. — The Druze of Lebanon.
— The Massacres of 1860.

Albigensians and Templars. M

The Albigensians or Cathars. — Vices and crimes of the Albigensians. — The Order of the Temple. — Doctrines and the infamous morals of the Templars. — Lies and false Masonic beliefs. — The Templars, traitors to their race. — Criminals under the cloak of the religion.

The Reformation and the Rosicrucians.

A Masonic forgery. — Protestantism and Freemasonry. — Hugh tyranny and cruelty
Notes. — The Rosicrucian Brothers.

' Pages

121

133 —

157

183

187

229

247

XIIT.

XIV.

XV.

XVI.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Freemasonry...
Origins of Freemasonry. — Myths and rituals. — The three flaws, as among the Ancient Initiates. — Freemason Sorcerers. —

The angel of the F.:. Martinés Pasqually. — The operas magical practices of the Martinists. — L. Cl. de Saint-Martin, Willermoz and the Revolution. — The Fan-Instructor volume. — Conspirator wizards. —

Weishaupt. Systematic corruption. — The al—.

Alliance of Wizards and Atheists.

Bloody Freemasonry

The Terror system. — The assassination
Masonic of Gustav III. — Some assassinations Nats. — The murderer. — Freemasons and Massacres. — Evidence. — The Massacres
September 1792. — “Civic spankings”.

Since the Terror . . . .

The Higher Order and the Lower Order. — The High-level corruption and the Freemasons assassins. — High Freemasonry of assassins. — Strange alliances. — The Babists. — The Socié-Secret Territories and the Yellow Peril. — In Indochina.
— In China.

The Assassination of France...

Masonic Antipatriotism. — Germany
Magne and England, vassals of France Freemasonry. — How Freemasonry has positioned itself within it takes to kill France. — Masonic crimes current issues. — Freemasonry against the Catholics... — Freemasonry against The Army. — Freemasonry, Dreyfusism and Denunciation.
— The Ultimate Crime: Treason.

Conclusions.

From the ancient Initiates to the Frane Matonis modern. — Tyranny and betrayals of Societies Corrupting secrets. — The Cleric's Lie-lism. — The Lie of Masonic Progress.
— The odious and the ridiculous.

Table of authors consulted.

383
Pages
253

287.

321

343

303

377

Paris. A. Munier Printing House, 132, boulevard Malesherbes.

*

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

32101 073121129

This is a reproduction of a library book that was digitized by Google as part of an ongoing effort to preserve the information in books and make it universally accessible.

Google Books

https://books.google.com

Google

About this book

This is a digital copy of a work that has been preserved for generations on library shelves before being digitized with precaution by Google as part of a project aimed at allowing internet users to discover the entire world's literary heritage in line.

Because this book is relatively old, it is no longer protected by copyright law and is now in the public domain. The expression “Belonging to the public domain” means that the book in question has never been subject to copyright or that its legal rights have expired.
Expiration. The conditions required for a book to enter the public domain can vary from country to country. Books in the public domain are These are all links to the past. They bear witness to the richness of our history, our cultural heritage, and human knowledge, and are too often difficult for the public to access.

The footnotes and other marginal annotations present in the original volume are reproduced in this file, as a memento.
of the long journey the book has taken from the publishing house through the library to finally end up in your hands.

Instructions for use

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize works in the public domain and make them available thus accessible to all. These books are indeed the property of everyone and we are simply the guardians of this heritage.
However, this is a costly project. Therefore, and in order to continue disseminating these inexhaustible resources, we have taken the followi necessary measures to prevent potential abuses by third-party merchant sites, in particular by establishing technical constraints related to automated queries.

We also ask you to:

+ Do not use the files for commercial purposes. We designed the Google Books Search program for personal use.
We therefore ask that you use these files for personal purposes only. They may not be used in a any commercial purpose.

+ Do not perform automated requests. Do not send any automated requests whatsoever to the Google system. If you perform research concerning translation software, optical character recognition, or any other field requiring access to
For large amounts of text, please do not hesitate to contact us. We encourage the use of [software/formats] for this type of work.
works and documents belonging to the public domain and we would be happy to be of service to you.

+ Do not remove the attribution. The Google watermark contained in each file is essential to inform internet users about our project.
and allow them to access more documents through the Google Books Search Program. Do not delete it.
No cases.

+ Stay within the law. Whatever use you intend to make of the files, remember that it is your responsibility to Be sure to respect the law. If a work is in the American public domain, do not assume that the same is true in other countries. The legal duration of copyright for a book varies from country to country. Therefore, we are unable to list
The works whose use is authorized and those whose use is not. Don't assume that simply posting a book on Google Book search means that it can be used in any way anywhere in the world. The sentence to which you
The penalties you would face in the event of copyright infringement could be severe.

About the Google Books Search service

By facilitating searches and access to a growing number of books available in many languages, including French, Google aims to contribute to promoting cultural diversity through Google Books Search. Indeed, the Google Books Search Program allows allows internet users to discover the world's literary heritage, while helping authors and publishers expand their audience. You can do online searches in the full text of this work can be found at http://books.qoogqle.com oi.

The faggot

$43" fe <j ras +} N: wire LA 1? | | 11 i | ie | yip ji i B AT ii Tne ne psa airs i 2 PH tS Ju DURE VE SR STE Saha Metin TS Es at Seat

Ste 7

4 + 5 fe:

15 iA g bie) se
EU Bye
HUE |
RER

; EL By}

$%

PAT!

bone

e +7 410
ve 12
dH
> —t

5
AR peA an]
'+

2 is TEL Li " axş SUTA E IL i. HEN yi ê "s

PREHR amaii ie foe | Th"

Neither will EL Tan E see

MA nr EEE ES ANT EE UE

Bass ear: Salts]
a 1 The sti + ri y — H

Day 7
Ei Li Erari 2`
SIRE | " TEI make. — 1 g~t
EEE SME AND TL. 2a 4B.) mca ATA i an RS ALT ices aa eh je ie sf Se 89) n Napi TATA A 'x.
SLA SE 2 M, TO SL PE VEN
mas À ef

— Es A Mil ts coy a a pra. =e ` À
Ets | "NL xi BYL
Rt: +i} DAT 4 i$ ha : ee re
= bd To bt | 1. LEEDSIN we AL Ahi i Ei ii te En be + a LE $ l acute Me ET [SAN bi Me 4!
UNE OL Pee trie Ñ x é~, 4 g mafeel ti ees Le ri if rj: Y
He vi Lits Soe tif | area FN:
p} L ; erty pear edict UA Desi smi. Ewe s +> 7 Liz jit caret À rS } en ds: Put et
b. py are? | Dei A2: OT Abe To 4 t pier . ay Una os is
"You have LT A" RENE EE OUT In
7% ~~ 1 +t ee LE Port } eens Lt | les
> Y a H : i

+ oe Jar "7 = eee "eh So

TEA

TEA

```
_ _
"~"
st” 27 ô
DE es

=== FU on. ee rata of "f =. Re ee ee to f"

nn r 7

Eee:
al CSC eS

wm Me b eaa a arom ex. oo Tae =» Mi mas y rees an re EL to ne i ee gr = = es = aa oer alae thee ch 'mes - = L] | i ee APES - ==" ae k.. "2 & Is = =. a . ig

AE LE 'M: ia ee _ weas =

They're going to be.

Lt
|
EPS nn. =

“org

has

Te a _ eee” FEN xf A NW
++
D
q
“
2 LEARN See

she LA A ee eee eee, 2: Fe En ae hk a 7 E - B” E
HAS
"has
HAS ee! ee

Å: +
CA ia F jas +”
LS c= a as JF P. D 7 a é 2 ac owes" sn"
as as sae è | = g wages ss
HAS,
tet Qu. TE + TA MOST ENTS ee go =, of Eer emer LE é a = CU x >. Bo -r QS M r em =s | nr esme

-Sci pdf i - j
mnt Ùn =a we eee se BA EL «2s as fe ek we te a ar amta Va ee

een area LE LUE rh

: The ta jje 4 : AZ #
A oo fos a A : } A Pa
i | ie | $ ji lr ] KA x iB: AAEN - ¢
T ie yi OB
```

4 x T NE h to [p : A | P EN Ee
EX % | GE je ; ANA j Ey
7. fate p 3 RY hea V4 a a epee se 2 À ms 0. ee 6 0 PES ay a = a | eo fx $ And

f

?
ea | ee

father for Pete | ae ice
hha į n wy
a ti >" i S'a Ta aa
| Mw i, | ww ; |
| al SA | it | V3 WA f
NS 4l i | INS = v4 | nt
è % > an 1 Li + | "4 ; i p Fi ? ii sP s to. 4 i 4': i, $Foul 3 { ERTA ON
! sj n +” 4
AJ

syg pee |

te de Lee oe ast.:

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

JOUIN

has - der LT Fr
¥

ec

THE JUDEO-MASONIC

TEA

“PROTOCOLS” OF THE SAGES OF ZION

—_ - > eH

FIFTH EDITION

PRICE: 7.50 francs

PARIS
International Review EMILE-PAUL, brothers
Das Sociirés SECRÈTES 100, Faubourg Saint-Honoré, 100 96, Boulevard Malesherbes, 96 we 1920

—

All rights reserved

= a ss Ss Diatizea by GOOGLE

THE “PROTOCOLS” OF THE ELDERS OF ZION
(2nd EDITION)

(Excerpt from the International Review of Secret Societies)
(This first volume is also in storage) at the Librairie d'Action Française, 14, rue de Rome, Paris.)

In preparation:

. 3 II
JUDEO—MASONRY AND THE CATHOLIC CHURCH:

III

JUDEO—MASONRY AND THE SOCIAL REVOLUTION

IV
JUDEO—MASONRY
AND WORLD DOMINATION

Letter from His Eminence Cardinal GASPARRI to Mgr JOUIN

From the Vatican, June 20, 1919.
Your Grace,

The Sovereign Pontiff deigned to accept with a truly paternal benevolence the tribute of your new study on Masonic Warfare.

It is with good reason that, in this work, you took care to highlight through irrefutable documents and reasoning the inept and essential doctrine— Freemasonry, a doctrine stemming from deism, is fundamentally anti—Catholic. himself of the Reformation, a doctrine inevitably leading, as we see, today, we see the very denial of God, social atheism, and "secularism". current form of this impiety which, to the great detriment of the people, pretends to banish from societies any trace of religion and any intervention by the Church.

You took particular care to highlight, despite the men— dreams that sometimes deceive even Catholics themselves, the identity of France Freemasonry with itself, everywhere and always, like the continuity of the plan sects, whose aim is indeed the ruin of the Catholic Church.

His Holiness is therefore pleased to congratulate and encourage you in your, works, whose influence can be so fruitful in warning the faithful and to help them fight effectively against what tends to destroy social order as well although religion.

As a pledge of heavenly favor, and as a testament to His paternal benevolence— Lance, the Holy Father wholeheartedly grants you the Apostolic Blessing.

Thank you for the copy you so kindly gave me, and
With my personal congratulations, please accept, Your Grace, the expression of my complete devotion to Our Lord.

P. Card. GASPARRI.

ee 26009000 è ees A ar) LA: eve s © @8 o ó eo «be °, « ee o 9 4 de ~—@ett m eeas °'
, e tof eaa — os + o eee ee s oe a . ee o €

— Se LE er mm er

THERE

JUDEO—MASONRY

LAS «PROTOCOLS > OF THE SAGAS OF ZION

THE JEWISH PERIL

For any informed researcher, the Masonic question is The Jewish question is complicated. Judeo—Freemasonry is mistress of the world, but only on the condition of remaining a society secret. No doubt, Freemasonry found itself in a unique position. mentally unmasked by the world war; there was no such thing as meme of the Jewish element. Also, when Dr. Wichtl did to publish his book entitled: Universal Freemasonry, Revolution— universal tion, universal Republic (1), he did not raise the anger of all the Lodges in Germany because he put—

My Weltfretmaurerei, Weltrevolution, Weltrepublick; Eine Untersuchung liber Urspring und Endziele des Weltkrieges, von Dr. Friedrich Wicert, National (Universal Freemasonry, Universal Revolution, Republic)
My research into the origin and ultimate goals of the world war, ne mA a Wicutt, general councillor; Munich, J.—F. Lehmann, publisher, | » Lechner and sons.

IA aa Mi of the author, and of the publisher, M. Lehmann, the 7th edition (1920).
The praise for the first six pairs of the editions is sold out. It's already following in Suvrage, which we discussed in our Review on pages to 231; Sup i Due Internationale des Sociétés secrètes, April 1920, page 229

For ae Ment an issue of July, pages 481 and 491.

To demonstrate the relevance of this work, we reproduce it at the end of

A agarail, the analysis of the "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion, excerpt from the

p | haw)
= Fake T r4 Ay

It was titled: The Enemy of Humankind (1). The publisher German has these three editions.

Serge Nilus published a second edition in 1911, printed ed at the monastery of Saint Sergius; it is the one that was translated, in German, Gottfried Zur Beek. Finally, in 1917, Nilus launched a third edition, released from the same monastery.

However, on February 28, we read in the German Introduction, the Freemasons, with the help of their English and French brothers, had dethroned the Tsar and entrusted the government to the Prince Wow. On March 2nd or 3rd, the new edition of Nilus was delivered. to the bookstores. The copies were already loaded onto a wagon, when a troop of men came and forced it open, and, throwing to the ground They burned the entire edition. When the fire had consumed it, this The gang moved away without committing any thefts in the train cars. goods (2).

Moreover, previous editions had disappeared just a few days ago after being put on sale in bookstores. Furthermore, when When the Jew Kerensky came to power, he immediately searched forexpensive at booksellers in Moscow and St. Petersburg the “Protocols" of the Elders of Zion and confiscate the copies that one seized; so much so that this work, which cost before the fall of the tsar Originally selling for 30 to 40 rubles, it has since gone up to five or six hundred. rubles (3).

(1) The German translator adds: "C. BoTmr published, with the support of from his brother A.-L. Butst1, several other writings against the Jews, which were also printed at the Petersburg Institution for Deaf-Mutes. The most known by its title: The Jews in Freemasonry and the Revolution, the Freemasons and treason against the country. This work was published in two volumes. in 1905 and 1906; 11 was dedicated to the Union of the Russian People. Before the war, this Union fought against Jews and Freemasons; it must still be today "Today at work."

(2) We recall that the same was true of the first edition of the book: The Jew, Judaism and the Judaization of Christian Peoples, by GOUGENOT DES MOUSSEAUX, published in 1869. The edition was seized by the Jews. It was only tenseven years later, in 1886, Pami, the author, Mr. Charles Chauliac, did print the second edition, after the appearance of La France juive, by Edouard DnumontT. Gougenot des Mouscaux had received threatening letters which seemed to They may have found their fulfillment in his mysterious death (See the Review Intern. des Soc. Secr., January 5, 1914, p. 87).

(3) German introduction (p. 10). — The author also writes: “Several Russians who, before the Revolution, held jobs that allowed them to seeing many things, are convinced that the workers' demonstration of January 21st 1905, which was led by Jews disguised as priests, and which we owe to view it as a repetition of the Revolution that deposed Nicholas II, as well as The assassination of Grand Duke Sergei on February 17, 1905, in the Moscow Kremlin, are in the relationship of effect to cause with the revelations of the "Protocols". These Russians were convinced that the first edition, that of 1902, had been purchased by Jews and, therefore, had remained ineffective.

According to the English translator, the British Museum edition appeared in 1905 in Tsarskoye Selo, Russia (1). Serge Nilus accuses, in fact, in his Introduction, dated 1905, the Having possessed the "Protocols" for approximately four years, that isthat is to say, since 1901. He speaks of the Antichrist and gives, in this The subject is a quote from W. Solowiew. It is, undoubtedly, of a second edition, extracted from the first in 1902, making part of a work on the Antichrist, as we have said higher up. Moreover, the edition by C. Butmi, which would be the third, according to the German translator, bears, he tells us, Fourth edition vindication. There can be no mistake, "since it is in his hands," he asserts, as well as those from 1902 and 1911. But it is clear that he did not know the 1905 edition held by the British Museum.

Finally, in the United States, a new translation appeared in 1920, under the title: The "Protocols" and the Revolution global (2). Publishers talk about the English edition, they They cite Vieille France, number 160 (February 1920), and The Times, the Morning Post, but they don't seem to know the German and Polish translations. Their edition is the the first to appear in the United States; however, in Philadelphie, the Public Ledger, of October 27 and 28, 1919, had given large extracts from the "Protocols". These articles, like those from Opinion, in France, aimed to identify the the responsibility of the Jews, whom the author does not name, but which he replaces in the text of the "Protocols" with the word "Bolsheviks." Hence the title of his articles: The Red Bible and Bolshevik propaganda. The Boston publishers refute this Semitic interpretation through the very text of the "Accounts"
"Returned," and by the authentic date of their advertisement. Serge Nilus received them in 1901; however, the Bolshevik party was not founded than in 1903, and it was much later that he was able to organize himself for

---

(1) Preface, p. 1. — The title of the copy in the British Museum is the same than that of the first edition of 1902 given above. Here it is: The great in the small and the Antichrist as an immediate political possibility (Notes of an orthodox, 2nd edition, 'corrected and augmented; Tsarkole-Selo, 1905).

(2) The Protocols and the World Revolution, including a translation and an analysis of the "Protocols" of the Sessions of the Elders of Zion; Boston, Small, Maynard et Cie, publishers, n..d. The Protocols and World Revolution, including a translation and analysis of the Protocols of the meetings of the Zionist Men of Wisdom.

his revolutionary action. The Jews have drawn up the plan for:
World revolution in the "Protocols"; Bolshevism began its realization in Russia, confident of throwing them away in this way.
seeds of universal anarchy in the East and the West.

The Boston translation was based on Nilus's edition. of 1917, of which the "Protocols" still only constitute a appendix. At the beginning of the brochure, the publishers reproduce the Russian cover of the Nilus edition and, on the back of Ia
On the same page, the English version that we are translating:

HE IS NEAR, HE IS AT THE DOOR

Matt., xxiv, 33.
Marc., x11, 29.

Luke, 21:31.

Apoc., 1, 3; xxu, 10.
Dan., xu, 4.

CONCERNING SOMETHING THAT MEN

DO NOT WANT TO BELIEVE AND YET WHO IS SO CLOSE

Fourth edition of the book "Near Are the Coming of the Antichrist and the Kingdom" of the Devil on Earth, revised and considerably expanded by recent research and investigations.

SERGE NILUS
Dedicated to the small tomb of Christ.

“You, my brothers, do not remain in darkness, so that "The day (of the Lord) should not surprise you like..."
"Thieves." (1 Thessalonians 5:4)

"He who suffers until the end will be saved." (MATT., XXIV, 13).

L "4

The City of SERGIEV

In the Introduction to his 1917 edition, translated to In Boston, Serge Nilus tells us about the origin of "Protocols." Drafted at the Zionist Congress in Basel, as
As we will see later, the extracts, which were copied surreptitiously, they were handed over to Nilus in 1901 by Alexis Nikolajevitch Souchotin, then Marshal of the Nobility of Chern (Central Russia), and later, vice-governor of the Stavropol province (southern Russia), Alexis Nikola-Jevitch Piia Serge Nilus to draw from these "Protocols" what he would find it useful from a religious point of view; as for the point of From a political point of view, he felt it was already too late to... hoping for some profit. In turn, Grand Duke Serge Alexandrovitch, to whom Nilus communicated the "Protocols" before 1905, he sent them back to him with these two words: "Too late".

Let us add that, in [Introduction to the American translation-In Caine, there is talk of another edition of the "Protocols", in Russian text, dated 1918 and presented to the public by the house publishing house "La Sentinelle", in Novocherkassk (southern Russia) nale), under this title: The Zionist Protocols, the plans of ia Conquest of the universe by the Judeo-Masons. It is said in The introduction to this 1918 Russian edition: “The “Pro-"Tocols" are a carefully designed program in all its details for the conquest of the universe by the Jews."

Regarding the "Protocols", we were able to collect in a Benedictine convent in England the testimony of the Archbishop of Mohilev (Russia), who was imprisoned and condemned to death by the Bolsheviks, and owed his release than to a direct intervention by His Holiness Benedict XV. His Majesty has no doubt whatsoever about the authenticity of this work that was communicated to him in Russia: this tragic plan coincides with current events. The prelate is aware of the ed-Polish tion and its translator; and he noted, on the other hand, that the Boston translation is spreading more and more in America, where it is avidly read (1).

Finally, we should note the Polish edition of 1919, to which is dedicated to our appendix no. IV, and the 1920 Russian edition, of which we provide a detailed analysis in the appendix dice n° III.

The authenticity of the "Protocols" rests on the good faith of Russian translators. They claim they obtained the original in French language. Two names are known to us: Serge Nilus and C. Butmi. Finally, their versions agree. Here is this that the German publisher writes about this: |

A few years ago, some Russians told us that the articles relating to the links between Judaism and Freemasonry-The articles published in Auf Vorposten should be supplemented. by the "Protocols" of the Sessions of the Elders of Zion, known since

---

(1) We are not aware of an Italian version of the "Protocols", but In July, La Perseveranza of Milan published an analysis of several articles from the Morning Post on the Judeo-Masonic conspiracy. (See also the Resto del Carlino of Bologna, article by Piero Misciatelli, reproduced by Vifa Italiana, 8th year, issue xcr1, Rome, August 15, 1920).

more than ten years in 'inner circles'. But no one could to obtain this book; we were constantly receiving the response that the various editions had long since been seized.

Finally, during the autumn of 1918, a German Russian... brought about, quite by chance, the "Protocols" research-we received them, and at the same time, through two separate channels, the same work in different editions. The comparison showed that the content of these three volumes was equivalent, and yet At first glance, one might have thought there was a big difference. These are twenty-four meeting minutes, in which A wide range of political issues are addressed. The authors Subsequent editions have grouped these reports in such a way that each section contains only one or two topics; the editors have also facilitated the task of an overall review, but at the same time In time they broke the chain of ideas and divided everything into twenty-seven sections. We have limited ourselves to the translation of Nilus which corresponds to the French copy (1).

The Morning Post, dated July 19, contains remarks ingenious regarding the date of the "Protocols".

One can produce crucial proof of the authenticity of the "Pro-"tocols"... The established fact on which we can rely is the date a which they appeared on. This date is fortunately fixed without anyone could call it into question by depositing a copy of the edition from 1905 to the British Museum (August 10, 1906).

According to what we were able to gather from the Russians who have refugees in this country (England), the book, when it appeared, made little impression, one might say he made none (2). What-

Some of them claim that the entire edition, except for a few copies, was bought by Russian Jews, but it is natural-it was impossible to prove this allegation (3). It was only at moment when the Revolution realized the spirit and the letter of the "Proto-

(1) Trans. all. : Introduction, p. 7.

(2) It is worth noting that the "Protocols" were only an appendix to the apocalyptic book of Nilus and did not directly attract the attention of drive.

(3) When the Jew Kerensky had all copies of the Regarding the "Protocols" in Petrograd and Moscow, he did not deny their authenticity in any way.
that, on the contrary, his police action affirmed a fact which presents, in England, an indiscreet analogy with Russian searches, it's total disappearance of the "Protocols" from the very first articles in the Morning Post, and the visible embarrassment of booksellers when asked if there will be a second edition. The Jewish roundup is evident and it, too, concludes in its authenticity of the document. The few hidden volumes are outrageously overpriced;
Instead of 3 francs 10 centimes, one of our friends was asked for 50 francs. — Since the im-
Under the pressure of this note, a new English edition has appeared, and we believe to be able to assert that the English government itself is neither foreign nor to the translation, nor to the reprint.

"Cols" — that's when we understood their importance. And now, they are in the mouths of all Russians. They all believe them to be authentic.
The evidence seems unassailable to them; it is the application of the proverb: “The proof of the pudding lies in the eating: The proof
The existence of the pudding is confirmed when you have it in your mouth.

Regarding the date on which the "Protocols" were published, we have Nilus's handover, stating that they were known at the Sio- Congress Basel member. This Congress takes us back to 1897. But this document contains no evidence that its authors took part in the mou-Zionist movement. In fact, their project of universal domination seems to render Zionism useless.

From the somewhat audacious insinuation of the possibility of doing blow up all the capitals of Europe by laying mines in the underground railways, we see at least that this docu-
The ment is modern. There is also an allusion to a statesman a living European, a statesman who plays a significant role rable in Freemasonry, secular education and the League of Nations, and which the "Protocols" describe as "one of our best agents » (1).

We finally find this curious clue:

In order for our plan to achieve this result, we will direct elections in favor of presidents who will have in their past some dark and unknown stain, some "Panama" or something cases of this kind. These will be trustworthy agents. for the accomplishment of our projects without any fear of revelation.

The first Panama Canal Company, as we recall, went bankrupt in 1889, and this scandal occupied the French public for ten years who followed.

But what is the origin of this document? We note
There are two versions on this point. The first is that of the German publisher in his Introduction (p. 8); here it is:

The Russian government has never trusted the claims of Zionists. I] knew the bloody road followed by Jewry throughout the centuries. He knew who the instigators of the assassinations of his princes and high officials; he knew

(1) The German text (p. 121) bears the name Bourgeois; in the text
In English (p. 63), we read Bouroy; in turn, the Morning Post of July 19 gives without any possible hesitation the report of F.°. Bourgeois, President of the Senate and of the League of Nations, who was Minister of Public Instruction in the Cabinet of F.°. Brisson, from June 29 to November 4, 1898, and which distinguished itself through his initiative in teaching methods and his zeal for school laws secular areas.

The American version is named after Bourgeois (p. 56), as is the translation.
Polish tion; it is the same in the Russian text of the 1920 edition.

also that the Jews and Freemasons had developed te plan executed in the 18th century, to destroy all thrones and all. altars; he finally knew they were going to pursue him. So, when. The newspapers had announced a Congress of Zionists in Basel, pendant Pautomne of 1897, to discuss the establishment of a State Jewish in Palestine, the Government sent a spy there. city, as we learned from a Russian who had been occupying it since for many years a high position in a ministry of Peterstown. This spy corrupted a Jew who enjoyed the trust of the supreme leadership of the Freemasons, and who was charged, at the at the end of the Congress, to take the reports to Frankfurt am Main. sessions, intended, of course, to be ignored by the public. Indeed, there exists in Frankfurt am Main a Lodge founded by the. Jews, on August 16, 1807, under this significant name: “A [Dawn which is "Raises"; this Lodge, for a century, has been in contact with the Grand Eastern France (1). This journey offered a favorable opportunity for the planned betrayal. Along the way, the messenger stopped that evening in a small town where the Russian spy was waiting for him with numerous copyists who spent the night transcribing the accounts rendered. As a result, the "Protocols" may not be complete, the copyists having only had the original for one night, which is in French.

In the introduction to the British Museum copy, Serge Nilus writes in the same vein:

We must point out that the title does not entirely correspond It is entirely up to the material contained in the work. One does not find there exactly the minutes of the meetings, but a report made by a powerful character, and divided into different parts, who These "Protocols" do not always follow each other in a logical order. give the impression of being only a part of something threatening and, more importantly, lacking a beginning. The origin of this document, which we mentioned earlier, says enough that it is unnecessary to insist.

However, this origin differs from the German account. The "Protocols" would consist of notes on speeches delivered before Jewish students in Paris in 1901; and Serge Nilus writes:

I was given this document about four years ago (1901).

(1) The Yearbook of Universal Freemasonry of 1928 (Bern, Büchler) inscribed this Lodge on page 170, no. 182: “Frankfurt am Main, At the rising dawn, of the G.°. L.*. of Frankfurt, founded on August 17, 1807, Kaiserstrasse, 37; membres: 153; address: Doctor-Physician L. Rosenmeyer, intimate advisor to hygiene, 7, route de Bockenheimer”.

with full assurance that it was an exact copy of documents. original documents stolen by a woman from one of the most influential leaders and the highest-ranking members of Freemasonry (Grand Orient of France). The theft was committed at the end of a secret meeting of "initiates". in France, this nest of "Judeo-Masonic conspiracy".

The German publisher explains how it follows this news version of the origin of the “Protocols”:

In the 1911 edition (1), Nilus reports that the personality has which he owed the French copy to, having obtained it from a woman who had stolen it from a Freemason in a French town of the 33rd Scottish degree, and that she had acted in this way to make service to his country. However, we are looking at the indications of Our agent found them accurate; the story of the theft was allegedly fabricated. to make them lose the real trail (2).

It is difficult to resolve the question between these two accounts. of origin and transmission of the "Protocols". It would be necessary first find the original French version which must exist in France or in Germany. Serge Nilus also writes:

It is not without reason that we will be criticized for the character apocryphal of this document; but supposing it were possible to prove the existence of this global conspiracy through letters very or through witness statements and to unmask its leaders who hold in their hands the bloody threads of the conspiracy, by the very fact that the "mysteries of iniquity" would be revealed. For She needs to prove herself; she must not be troubled. until the day she is incarnated in the "Son of Perdition".

The "Son of Perdition", that is to say the Antichrist, of whom Nilus.

occupied himself in the work at the end of which the "Protocols" are merely an appendage, do not yet seem to have been born, while

The Jewish conspiracy has existed for a long time. It is, like We will see, the real proof of their veracity. The Morning Post, from July 20th, wants to see it as a mark of authenticity. ticité:

If we consider, he said sincerely, the obvious evidence, We believe this document predicts a global revolution.

(1) The German publisher, as we have seen, was not aware of the edi- The 1905 edition, which is in the British Museum. The 1911 edition, which served as the translator's does not differ significantly from that of 1905, as we will see in collating the two translations.

(2) This double hypothesis must be supplemented by the explanation set forth in In the "Preface" to the Polish translation:

"Let us add, according to people worthy of the name, the copy of these "Pro- "Cès- minutes" was stolen from the apartment occupied in Vienna by Herzl, the organ- ra at the first Zionist Congress held in Basel in August 1897. Cf. Vappen-this IV.

the work of a Jewish organization, and that the revolution was underway today — the Bolshevik Revolution — is in fact being led mainly by Jews and forms an attempt at a revolutionary movement dial.

We'll leave it at that. If our readers believe in a prophecy such a thing could have been done without foresight by an anti-Semite Fanatics, they will not consider the document authentic. If, On the other hand, they consider such a hypothesis untenable; it does not All that remains is to admit its authenticity. Those of the first category can sleep peacefully in their bed; the others must see in the "Protocols" a serious warning from a terrible threat. They will, however, be comforted by this: "Being "Being warned means being armed."

The 1917 edition, which served as the basis for the American translation, contains an element full of interest. Not only does Nilus... revealed that he had kept the manuscript of Alexis's "Protocols". Nikolajevitch Souchotin, but he determines its origin which had just been revealed to him:

"I'm only learning now," he wrote in his introduction. According to an authorized Jewish source, these "Protocols" are nothing more than something that a strategic plan for world conquest, in the the goal of placing the universe under the yoke of Israel, "he who struggles with the Lord.” A plan developed by the leaders of the Jewish people during the centuries of their dispersion (since the ruin of Jerusalem by Titus) and finally presented to the Council of Elders by "the Prince "Exile," Theodor Herzl, at the First Zionist Congress, which met by him in Basel, in August 1897.

Hertzl's goal, as the promoter of this Congress, was not the founding of a Jewish state, but rather world domination of his nation. The German publisher provides the explanation next:

The "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion are linked to the movement- Zionist. Dr. Theodor Herzl, who until then had been little known in the non-Jewish world, published, at the beginning of 1896, at the Breitenstein bookstore in Vienna, a book entitled Der Judenstaat (Jewish state), in which they pretended to be looking for a solution to the Jewish question. At that time, Dr. Theodor Herzl demanded that a state be created in Palestine, or in Argentina a Jew offering to those of his race who did not want to "assimilate" to the people who hospitalize them, the possibility of realizing their nationalism in a state of their own. He then asked already the seven-hour workday. "We need to launch in the world, as an app! to the grouping of those of our own 'who want to become free, the need to found a "Pro- Earth

"Setting up." Hertzl was probably anticipating International Day work. Herzl wrote that the Jews certainly had a lot flaws capable of perpetuating existing antisemitism; he recognizes- it was becoming clear that there was danger to his people in this, from a for their part, these Jews were the non-commissioned officers of all the revolutionary parties tionaires and, on the other hand, that they constituted the principal part the main body of the formidable International of Money. The Jews do not could not blend in with other peoples, even though Some of them separated themselves from the body of their people.

In fact, Jewry has proven, not from the beginning of our era, but for thousands of years, such assimilationtion, that such a merger, which is accomplished without difficulty between fewThe Aryans, is impossible for the Jews. Hertz] was won over to his project not only the most energetic part of his people, but also- core support from non-Jewish circles. The frank affirmation and eagerness that one was Jewish formed a pleasant contrast with Pattistudy and the lying assurances of liberal Jews, who asked themselves in German, in French, in English, and were no less foreigners among the peoples who hosted them, just as much as The Zionists of apparent good faith. In truth, there is only one a small number of non-Jews suspected that the Jewish state was by no means the ultimate, supreme goal of Jewish aspirations, but simply- a means of achieving universal hegemony which, since thousands of years, had been promised to the Jews by their proPhetets. Is the new kingdom of Zion reserved for poor Jews? verses, which form an innumerable multitude, especially in Russia, and that their communities can no longer feed themselves? No, this state The Jewish world must now be the center of the power of the Jewish masters. of the world. The outside world has been misled about the Zionist strategy; it is only through the publication of the "Proto"Cols" of the Elders of Zion, that the secret of the great plan was revealed Jewish generals' war.

In circulars from the Zionist Committee, and particularly In the 1901 version, number 18, Hertzl complains leaks that revealed the secret of the "Protocols", which were signed, Nilus tells us, by the representatives Zionists of the 33rd degree, the highest level of initiation. Nilus termine by claiming that these "Protocols" were secretly excerpts from the complete series of "Protocols" which, we we now know, were written at the first (Congress) Zionist from Basel, in 1897. The theft allegedly took place in the vaults. secrets of the main Zionist office, currently in France.

Thus, in 1917, Nilus clarified the origin of the writing of the "Protocols," including the reports he received and edited These are only large excerpts. This final version comes of the Zionist Congress of Basel, in 1897, which is consistent with Introduction of the German edition and makes it more likelyblatable the transfer of said "Protocols" from Basel to Frankfurton Mein. However, Nilus remains faithful to the second version which fixes the flight in Paris, where nothing prevents the global plan The Jewish community was developed in special conferences at Zionists, as he was in Basel.

Therefore, the question of authenticity here boils down to, namely if the "Protocols" are of Semitic or anti-Semitic origin. apart from the events that will bring us the real answer, Serge Nilus highlights the "acrimony and hatred" which inspire these accounts. He rightly sees a signaJewish culture in "this arrogant and deeply deep-rooted hatred that we managed to hide for so long, of race and religion, which simmers between the lines, then foams at the mouth and spills out in torrents as from a vessel overflowing with rage and revenge, perfectly aware that the final triumph is close » (1).

The German publisher is no less explicit. Under this title: "Jewishness Unveiled," he writes:

According to the account we have described, in the way that the The "Protocols" of the sessions of the Elders of Zion have been published; it may It so happens that Jews dispute its authenticity, but the reader A non-Jew will easily recognize that every word of these "Proto"Cols" breathes the Jewish spirit, where every idea responds to the design Jewish of the world, and that Jewry, since it entered Universal history pursues all the goals indicated therein.

Many readers might object that the Jews are too shrewd. for having put such plans in writing and that they should well consider the possibility of a chance occurrence that would cause these witnesses to fall accumulations in enemy hands. Those who make these reserves do not do not sufficiently take into account the special mentality of the Jewish people.

The most striking characteristic that distinguishes Jews from all The Aryans, as much as black magic is distinct from magic white, that's an excessive presumption which only, can Those who know the Jewish people intimately can get an accurate idea. Many people believe that this presumption is analogous to that of a rich boor, devoid of any education, who shows himself completely lacking in tact in social relations and interactions business. What presumption is it of Jewish writers who,

---

(1) Jewish Peril, p. 3; Introduction by Serge Nivvs.

in their newspapers and books, they brazenly insult the peoples who host them with their fellow humans?

The presumption specific to the Jewish community, the one that characterizes Every Jew has their origins in the history of this nomadic people.
He has lived among other races for thousands of years, and he could not maintain his position there, like a soldier in the enemy camp, that through cunning and disguise, this age-old practice gave the Jewish community perfect mastery in this art. The Jew casts a contemptuous glance at the people who hospitalize him senses and among which it can move without being recognized as his disguise. Heine had already said that "the Jews are a mys-
"Itinerant priest." The experience of long periods, as well as the teachings of the Talmud and the Shulchan Aruch, have led to to the highest degree the natural dispositions of the Jews towards the presumption-tion ct in contempt of the Gentiles, who are only surpassed by their hatred, especially towards Christians (1).

In the strictest sense of the word, the authenticity of the "Protocols" does not find sufficient evidence in the data current ones. But, in addition to the probabilities that make it uncertain-
The Semitic origin of this document is testably plausible.
In fact, their veracity brings to every mind of good faith a Irrefutable testimony.

Veracity

Serge Nilus was already writing in 1905:

We cannot demand direct proof in this complex situation.
such criminal events, and we are forced to be content with the obvious circumstances that will fill everyone with indignation Christian observer (2).

This language of facts is staggering. Hence, this observation translation by the English translator in his Preface:

It is impossible to read any part of this today.
volume without being struck by the strong prophetic note which rem them.
plit all, not only with regard to Holy Russia of the past, but still from the point of view of some developers sinister things that can be observed throughout the world 4 the present time. Gentlemen, beware! (3).

(1) Trans. german. : Introduction, p. 13.
(2) Introduction by Nizus, English translation, p. 4.. to
(3) “Preface” to The Jewish Peril, pn

For its part, the German publisher writes:

What has happened since the publication of Nilus: the war world and the overthrow of thrones in Russia, Austria-In Hungary and Germany, chaos was the desired goal of the Freemasons.
from which will emerge the Humanitarian League, under Judeo-Masonic leadership-
This plan, conceived two hundred years ago, appears today... today in such terrible clarity, that there is absolutely no need to ex-explain why we translate and publish the "Protocols" Sessions of the Elders of Zion. We hope that their publication will open eyes to the dangers of uni- Freemasonry verselle and of the Jewry and will encourage taking the measures defined-tives before our homeland and Germanic culture were com-completely annihilated (1).

We read, on the same subject, in the Morning Post of July 19, 1920:

In summary, for the date, the "Protocols" must have been published or written between 1889 and 1905. Now, we must consider a piece of evidence – not conclusive, but very strong – that at this to date, the authors of these reports had a preconbirth or prediction of the great revolutionary movement which is currently taking place. The means that were supposed to bring it about: the wars-res, the high cost of living, government corruption, the use of agents Jews, all these means apply to the Russian Revolution and to Attempts at revolution in Germany and Hungary. We know, by
For example, that the two Spartacist leaders were Jewish; that Bela-Kun, Szamuelly and, in short, all the Hungarian revolutionaries were Jewish, and there is universal testimony from all refugees

Russian Christians, with one exception, the Commissars of Soviets are all Jewish. Lenin is one of the few non-Jewish, but he married a Jewish woman... Apparently, that's not the Russia alone, but the whole world must go through these steps until the king of Zion is proclaimed.

For the moment, it is Poland that is Sovietized, and The Red Army no longer hides its Judeo-Masonic agenda. nique. Instead, read these quotes from Russian or German newspapers. orders, reproduced by the entire press:

The red newspapers have a noisy triumph. If it were necessary to If Pravda is to be believed, the Bolshevik plans would be nothing less than these: |

"White Poland will be annihilated forever. We orga-

(1) Introduction to the German translation, p. 11.

we will form a Polish Red Army and create a republic Soviet republic in Poland, which will be our ally.

"The Red Army accomplished a magnificent revolutionary task-" naire, not only by overthrowing the enemies of the pro- homeland Letarian, but also by carrying the "Bolshevik contagion" into all occupied regions.

"Our duty, therefore, is to press our victorious lead." until the opponent is completely disorganized.

"We are far from what are, in short, reasonable conditions," that we published yesterday!

"Moreover, the same note can be found in the German newspapers- mends, whom the Bolshevik advance transports with joy.

"Thus, the Berlin Lokal-Anzeiger reports that it has been informed that the gou- The Bolshevik government primarily envisions three tasks to to achieve in foreign policy: the crushing of Poland safeguarding Russian interests in the Far East and at sea Black (Constantinople should fall to Russia), settlement of the the Baltic question. Russia will only feel secure once when, on the Baltic coasts, it will act as freely as at home.

“On the other hand, according to a dispatch from Helsingfors, directives Detailed information has just been provided by the Third International. to Bolshevik agents abroad. Here is what they consist of- would: 1° seek by all possible means to reconcile with bourgeois governments; if necessary, grant them concessions in Russia; 2° Bolshevik representatives abroad should not compromise themselves through communist propaganda ist; 3° this task is entrusted to secret agents who depend on the official representatives and receive funds through them necessary for the action; 4° not to rush and to act according to the countries, by exploiting as broadly as possible the weaknesses of respective governments; 5. to heavily subsidize the foreign strikers and the opposition press; 6° fomenting separatist movements; 7° organize on a large scale the emi- integration in Russia of foreign workers dissatisfied with their government government; 8° if necessary, to provoke international conflicts and wars, and taking advantage of them to act against governments by weakening the country's resources; 9° if necessary, not stopping in the face of terrorist acts; 10° firstly, strive to com- to equip railway workers and employees everywhere, metallurgical and food processing plants.

"Who, after that, would dare deny that the Bolsheviks are the enemies of the civilized world?' (1).

Also, the most authoritative voice, that of His Holiness

(1) Le Gaulois, August 12, 1920. — Since that date, Poland has been liberated Soviet armies, but the Bolshevik plan and goal remain the same. Moreover, this unexpected liberation can be seen as a provi- intervention lace; the Warsaw miracle appears as clearly as those of the Marne in 1914 and 1918. It is God who stops the Revolution, when He wills.

and who will break it.

Benedict XV, she issued this warning to the whole world in its latest Motu proprio:

Now our attention turns to another cause of disorder, and of a much deeper nature, which resides in the veins and at the very heart of human society. The scourge of war descended upon the people at a time when they were deeply infected by "naturalism", this vast conta- a branch of our century which, where it develops, weakens desire of heavenly blessings, extinguished the flame of divine charity, withdrawn the man with the purifying and sanctifying grace of Christ, and Paban- gives, deprived of the light of faith, and without any other strength than those of a weak and corrupt nature, his passions are unleashed. And, as too many human beings had no other concern that the search for perishable goods, such as between tra- Dissension and bitter struggles arose between workers and employers. born, the class struggle was made more intense and bitter by the long duration and the extent of a war which, by imposing on the one hand to the multitude an intolerable increase in the cost of living, allows- It was also up to a few to quickly achieve immense fortunes.

To these evils were added others: the sanctity of the faith con- Jugale, respect for paternal authority suffered in several serious damage caused by the war; the removal of one of the spouses relaxed the bonds of duty in each other; the absence of guardianship led, especially young girls, to allow themselves imprudently Too much freedom. Therefore, it is regrettable that morals are more corrupt and depraved than before and than. For this reason, what is called "the ques- social "tion," to such an extent that the most extreme evils are already something to fear. According to the wishes, indeed, and the expectation of the revolutions tionaries, the advent would be close to a universal republic saddle, established on the absolute equality of men and the community of goods, in which there would no longer be either homeland or authority of the father over his children, public authorities over citizens, of God over men living in society. If this were to happen, he would... would necessarily result in tremendous upheavals, such as already experiences it and in fact a large part of the Eu- rope. And it is to extend this system to other peoples that we let's see some daring, frenzied individuals excite the crowds and pro- to mention, here or there, serious riots (1).

The "Protocols" are therefore the prediction of a plan in progress of realization that it will unfortunately be too easy for us to see in the comments that will follow the text

---

(1) Motu proprio for the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the proclamation of Saint Joseph, as patron of the Catholic Church; Acta Apostolicæ Sedis, August 2, 1920, p. 313.

criticism. What we want to point out is that, In one form or another, this plan has long been updated time period, which we didn't want to pay attention to. nor to Freemasonry. Gougenot's books des Mousseaux, de Toussenel, de Drumont, de l'abbé Lémann and others, prove it; and if testimony is demanded of Jewish origin, we will publish two that we have given in our first issue of the International Review Secret Societies, in January 1912.

The first is a speech by a chief rabbi, delivered in 1880, seventeen years before the Basel Congress, and published by Sir John Readcliffe, under the title of Account of political and historical events that occurred in the last ten years years ago; it is taken from Le Contemporain of July 1st. let 1886 (1):

---

(1) The German publisher reproduces the speech of a rabbi, in 1901, who authentic, ours from 1880. In this 1901 speech, we find words French and Gallicisms that support the hypothesis that this rabbi took part at the Zionist Congress in Basel; one will notice passages which are a repetition literal translation of the discourse of our text; it is therefore difficult to admit the protests overly self-serving statements by the Jews regarding this document and those who carry it out accompanying:

“In 1901, the Young Czech deputy Bresnowski questioned the Minister of the A war was waged to find out why a document entitled "Ein Rabbiner" had been seized. über die Gojim (A Rabbi on the subject of the Goyim); he reads from this text, which thus emerged from obscurity. The national weekly newspaper of Austria- The German book entitled Michel wach auf (Michel, wake up) was printed in its issues 7 and 8 of March 2 and 9, extracts from which we can conclude that their The author had taken part in the meetings of the Elders of Zion, or had known the The content of their reports. The national newspaper said:

A RABBI ON THE GOIM

"Times of hardship and suffering, of persecution and humiliation" that the people of Israel endured with heroic patience are happy-These things have passed, thanks to progress, thanks to the civilization of Christians. This progress is for us the safest shield behind which we can steal and cross unseen the space that still separates us from our But sublime. Let's take a look at the material situation in Europe.
and let us review the sources that the Israelites have accessed since the beginning of the century, by means of the capital at our disposal...
Everywhere the Rothschilds and the Jews are in control of the financial situation.
"Thanks to their billions, not to mention that in every second or "Third-order investors, they alone are the owners of high-income funds,"
* and that everywhere, without the sons of Israel, without their direct influence, no operation-

"Financial considerations mean that no significant undertakings can be carried out."
"The Stock Exchange rates and settles these debts, and we are almost entirely everywhere-> and Fe 8

+ sy

Our fathers bequeathed to the chosen people of Israel the duty to gather together once once every century around the tomb of the Grand Master Caleb, saint Rabbi Simeon-Ben-Jhuda, whose knowledge delivers to the chosen of each generation power over all the earth and authority over all descendants of Israel.

Israel's war with this has already lasted eighteen centuries.
power that had been promised to Abraham, but which had been Enraptured by the Cross. Trampled underfoot, humiliated by his enemies, without ceases under threat of death, persecution, abduction and rapes of every kind, the people of Israel did not succumb; and if he is scattered throughout the earth, that is, the whole earth owes him belong.

For eighteen centuries, our scholars have fought bravely and with a perseverance that nothing can break against the Cross.
Our people are gradually rising and their power is growing every day. To us belongs this God of the day whom Aaron raised up for us.
desert, this golden calf, this universal deity of the time.

Therefore, when we have become the sole owners
Of all the gold on earth, true power will pass into our hands.
and then the promises made to Abraham will be fulfilled.

Gold, the greatest power on earth... Por, who is the strength,

We must therefore aim to make them increasingly masters of the stock markets.
This debt must be reduced so that we can control prices; it is necessary that we used, because of the capital we lend to various countries, their railways, their mines, their forests, their metallurgical plants and their factories, and that we would take as security even their taxes. Agriculture Culture will always constitute a country's greatest wealth. It follows from A that we must also strive to ensure that our brothers in Israel seizes vast territories. Under the pretext that we are pro-
Let's aim to help the working classes; we must make them bear the entire burden.
the burden of taxes on large landowners; then, when these properties are in our hands, then the labor of the proletariat will be for us a source huge profits.

SIG E y 35 S VS Y

"Every war, every revolution, every political and religious change..." » brings us closer to the moment when we will reach the goal we have set for ourselves.

"Trade and speculation, these two abundant sources of profit-
These documents must never be snatched from the hands of the Israelites; it is necessary, therefore everything, to protect the trade of alcohol, butter , bread and wine, because by There, we become the absolute masters of agriculture. We thus become the wheat suppliers; and if, as a result of the famine, there is anger, of discontent, we will always have enough time to bring down the responsibility on the government. 11. All public jobs must be made accessible to Jews, and when they become civil servants,
We will know, through the creeping skills and foresight of our agents, to seize a source of real influence, of real power. It will of course, that it is only here! of the jobs to which are attached, consideration, power and privileges, because we can and we must leave to Christians, the functions that require knowledge and work, and which involve some inconveniences. The Ministry of Justice is, for us, the more importantly. (Let's remember that it was a Minister of Justice who...) (caused the crash of the Union Générale). A career as a lawyer offered him the best-their opportunities to showcase their knowledge, and at the same time we

SALE STATES UT EU UT 5:

'

the reward, the instrument of omnipotence, this all that man feared and desired... that is the only mystery, the deepest one Science about the mind that governs the world. That's Pavenir!

Eighteen centuries belonged to our enemies. The current century and Future centuries must belong to us, the people of Israel.
and will surely belong to us.

This is the tenth time, in a thousand years of atrocious and incessant struggle-health with our enemies, who gather in this cemetery, around From the tomb of our Grand Master Caleb. Saint Rabbi Symon Ben-Jhuda, the chosen ones of each generation of the people of Israel, in order to to consult on ways to take advantage of our cause, the great faults and sins that our enemies keep committing put the Christians.

Each time the new Sanhedrin proclaimed and preached the struggle merciless with his enemies; but in none of the previous siegeskeys our ancestors had not managed to concentrate in our hands as much gold, and consequently as much power, as the nineteenth century Jegueh told us so. We therefore wish to flatter ourselves without recklessness.
illusion, of soon reaching our goal, and casting a confident glance at our future.

Persecution and humiliation, those dark and painful times the hardships that the people of Israel endured with heroic patience, have fortunately passed away for us, thanks to the progress of the

Let's begin with the history of our most ardent adversaries – the Christians.
"Thanks to this knowledge, it is possible for us to put them under our control." » dependency, >

"The Jews must aim to enter the Legislative Bodies, in order to be able to
to work towards the repeal of the laws that were made by the Goim against the law Children of Israel, the true believers, the faithful followers of Abraham.
"The people of Israel must direct their efforts towards any high position that gives > power, to which honor and esteem are attached; the means The surest way to achieve this goal is to participate in all businesses financial, industrial, and commercial sectors, while taking care not to
"to expose oneself to legal prosecution, as a result of a trap or seduction" » tion. In choosing the type of speculation, one must demonstrate this "cunning and tact which already make one suitable for commercial affairs" »* ciales. Š
"We must seek to promote marriages between Jews and Christians,"
"Because the Jewish people can only gain from it, and suffer no harm."
"Indeed, the introduction of a quantity of impure blood into our chosen nation of God can annihilate it, and our daughters, thanks to these marriages, obtain...
* to link with families who possess power and influence. Naturally, 3
»

Thanks to this exchange for our money, we gain influence in your environment. Friendship with Christians will not divert you from the path that we have charted our course; on the contrary, a small use of our skill

"will make us the masters."

If Por is the leading land power, the second rank certainly belongs to...
"Lies to the press. Because what good is the first without the other? Like the goal
* The point indicated above cannot be reached without the help of the press; it appears to be of a
* the inevitable necessity for the management of newspapers to pass into the hands of civilization among Christians, and this progress is the best goal-a clam behind which we can take shelter and act to franchir with a quick step and closes the space that separates us from our but supreme.

Let us simply cast our eyes on the material state of Europe and analyze-Let us examine the resources that the Israelites have acquired since the
the beginning of the current century solely due to concentration, in their hands, immense capital which they possess in this moment... Thus, in Paris, London, Vienna, Berlin, Amsterdam, Hamburg, Rome, Naples, etc., and among all the Rothschilds, everywhere
The Israelites are in control of the financial situation, through possession-a multi-billion dollar sion, not to mention that, in each location second and third order, it is they who are the holders of the funds in circulation, and that, everywhere, without the sons of Israel, without their immediate influence, no operation Financially, no important work could be carried out.

Today, all reigning emperors, kings, and princes are obscenities of debt contracted for the maintenance of large armies and permanent, in order to prop up their tottering thrones. The Stock Exchange We assess and settle these debts, and we are largely in control. of the Stock Exchange on all exchanges. It is therefore necessary to further facilitate increasingly, the loans that we need to study, in order to make ourselves to regulate all values and, as far as possible, to will be able to take, as collateral, the capital that we provide sounds to the countries, the exploitation of their railway lines, their mines, from their forests, their large forges and factories, as well as other buildings, or even their taxes.

Agriculture will always remain the great wealth of every country. The possession of large landholdings will always be worth honors and great influence to the holders, Jl follows from there

"Ours. The wealth and skill in choosing the means to employ for "Attaching ourselves to the great figures who are likely to be bought will make us "masters of public opinion, and will deliver the masses into our power."

“If we advance step by step, but without interruption on this path, we

We will drive out the Christians and annihilate their influence. We will prescribe in the world, which people should he esteem and honor with his trust, and to what People, he must refuse all of this. Perhaps some individuals will stand up. against us, perhaps they will heap insults and curses upon us, mats The ignorant and docile masses will cling to us and take sides with us. us. When we have become the absolute masters of the press, it will be us It will be very easy to change preconceived ideas about honor, virtue, and character. to strike the first blow against the regrettable institution of the family, which has been sacrosanct until now, and to work towards destroying it entirely. So we will be able to attack faith, trust in everything that, until now, supported our enemies, the Goim; when we have forged by means of the Passions Parma indispensable, it will be possible for us to declare war on everything that was valued and considered up to this day; this will be a compensation sation for the terrible fate that Israel had to suffer for many centuries.

Lo

»
=

xs o YX y yY yyy

5 y ¥ v

“If one of us takes a step forward, another must immediately follow him.” "Giatement; if he ventures into a dead end, one of our men must prevail."

There that our efforts must also be directed towards our brothers in Israel make significant territorial acquisitions. We must therefore, as much as possible, push for the fragmentation of these large proprayers, in order to make their acquisition quicker and more easy.

Under the pretext of helping the working classes, it is necessary to make the great powers of the earth bear all the weight taxes, and when the properties have passed into our hands, all the work of the Christian proletarians will become for us the a source of immense profits.

Since the Christian Church is one of our most dangerous enemies, we must work with perseverance to lessen its influence; it is therefore necessary to graft, as much as possible, into the intellects the ideas of those who profess the Christian religion, the ideas of free thought, skepticism, schism, and provoking disputes religious systems so naturally prone to divisions and sects in Christianity,

Logically, we must begin by disparaging the ministers of this religion, let's declare open war on them, let's provoke them we suspect their devotion, their private conduct and, by the through ridicule and mockery, we will overcome the considerationtion attached to the state and to the clothing.

Every war, every revolution, every political upheaval or religious brings closer the moment when we will reach the goal the supreme goal towards which we strive.

trade and speculation, two branches rich in hennafices, must never leave Israelite hands, and once Having become permanent members, we will not know the obsequiousness and the perspica> to his aid. If a Jew is summoned before a court, it seems necessary that > his neighbor takes care of him and assures him of help, but only on conditiontion that he lived according to the precepts that Israel observed during for so long.

'

"Our interest requires that we fully understand the social issues of the » day, and particularly those whose purpose is to improve the lot of "working classes. But, in reality, our goal must be to seize"
"on this side of public opinion and to chart its course. The blindness of "masses and their willingness to be taken in by pathetic phrases will make"
"They are easy prey for us, and we can acquire them in this environment" » of popularity and confidence. We will easily find among the nô-
"Very few people are capable of expressing these feelings with such eloquence."
"simulated as honest Christians speaking with sincere enthusiasm."

"It is necessary to maintain as much as possible within the Proletariat of the > sympathy for the Jews, and to subordinate this Proletariat to those who dispose-"smells of money. We will incite him to make revolutions and upheavals-" comments, and any catastrophe of this kind will bring us closer to the goal of ruling on earth, as was promised to our father Abraham."

city of our factors, penetrate to the first source of the true influence and true power. [I] It is understood that it does not These are the jobs to which honors are attached.
power or privileges, because for those who demand knowledge, the
The work and the inconvenience can and should be abandoned.
to Christians. The magistracy is for us an institution of of primary importance. A career at the bar develops the most the faculty of civilization and initiates the most into the affairs of these enemies natural misfits, the Christians, and it is through her that we can... reduce them to our mercy. Why shouldn't the Israelites become not Ministers of Education, when they so often held the position of Minister of Education.
Finance sheet? The Israelites must also aspire to rank of legislators, with a view to working towards the repeal of the laws made by the Goim, faithless sinners, against the children of Israel, the true faithful, by their unwavering attachment to the holy laws of Abraham.

Moreover, on this point, our plan approaches the most complete realisation, because progress has recognized and granted us almost everywhere the same rights of citizenship as Christians, but, what matters to obtain, which must be the object of our ceaseless efforts, is A less severe bankruptcy law. We'll do it for ourselves.
a gold mine far richer than the mines of old from California.

The people of Israel must direct their ambition towards this high degree of power, from which esteem and honors derive: the the surest way to achieve this is to have complete control over all industrial, financial and commercial operations by guarding protecting him from any trap or seduction that could expose him to the danger of legal proceedings in the country's courts.
He will therefore bring, in the choice of these kinds of speculations, the prudence and tact, which are characteristic of his innate aptitude for business.

We must not be strangers to anything that conquers a distinguished place in society: philosophy, medicine, law, political economy, in short, all branches of science, art and literature are a vast field where successes must...
wind gives us ample opportunity and highlights our aptitude,

These vocations are inseparable from speculation. Thus, proproduction of a musical composition, however mediocre, will provide our people with a plausible reason to elevate them to a pedestal and to surround with a halo the Israelite who will be its author. As for to science, medicine, and philosophy, they must do equallypart of our intellectual domain.

A doctor is privy to the family's most intimate secrets, and
As such, it holds in its hands the health and lives of our mortals.
The Christians are our enemies.

We must encourage marriage alliances between Israelites lites and Christians, because the people of Israel, without risk of losing to This contact can only benefit from these alliances; the introduction of a certain amount of impure blood in our race, chosen by God cannot corrupt her, and our daughters will provide, through these marriages, alliances with Christian families in possession of some ascendancy and power. In exchange for the money that we We will give, it is only fair that we obtain the equivalent in influence on everything around us. The connection with Christians does not... This does not represent a deviation from the path we have chosen. On the contrary, with a little skill, she will give us back the referees. of their destiny.

It would be desirable for the Israelites to refrain from having for mistresses of the women of our holy religion and whom they choose for this role among Christian virgins. To replace the sacrament of marriage in the Church by a simple contract before an authority Any civil matter whatsoever would be of great importance to us because, Then Christian women would flock to our camp!

If gold is the first power in this world, the second is Undoubtedly the press. But what can the latter do without the former? As we cannot achieve what has been said above without The support of the press, it is necessary that our president take the lead. The possession of all daily newspapers in each country. The possession-gold leaf production, skill in choosing the means of softening The mercenary nature of our abilities will make us the arbiters of public opinion. public and will give us dominion over the masses.

By thus walking step by step along this path and with perseverance-France, which is our great virtue, we will repel the Christians and will nullify their influence. We will dictate to the world what what he should believe, what he should honor, and what he should curse. Perhaps some individuals will rise up against us and Will they hurl insults and anathemas at us, but the docile masses And ignorant people will listen and take our side. Once they are masters absolutes of the press, we will be able to change ideas about Phon-nero, on virtue, uprightness of character and to bear the first a blow to this hitherto sacrosanct institution, the family, and to consume the dissolution. We will be able to eradicate the belief and faith in everything that our enemies, the Christians, have until now revered moment, and making us a weapon of training passions, we will declare open war on everything that is respecte et vénère.

May your message be understood, noted, and may every child of Israel... penetrate these true principles. Then, our power will grow. like a gigantic tree whose branches will bear fruit which are called wealth, enjoyment, power, in compensation for this hideous condition which, for long centuries, was Punic © lot of the people of Israel. When one of ours takes a step in before, let the other follow closely: that if his foot slips, let him be rescued and raised up by his fellow believers. If an Israelite is summoned before the courts of the country he inhabits, that his brothers in religion hastens to give him help and assistance, but only-when the defendant has acted in accordance with the laws that Israel strictly observes and has guarded for so many centuries.

Our people are conservative, faithful to religious ceremonies. and to the customs bequeathed to us by our ancestors.

Our interest is that we at least feign zeal for the social issues are on the agenda, especially those relating to improving the lot of workers, but in reality our efforts must strive to seize this movement of opinion public and to lead it.

The blindness of the masses, their propensity to indulge in elo-sequence, as empty as it is sonorous, which resounds at the crossroads, in make them easy prey and a dual instrument of popularity and credit. We will easily find among our own, the express-a sion of artificial feelings and as much eloquence as Christians Sincere people find it in their enthusiasm.

It is necessary, as far as possible, to maintain the proletariat, to subdue it to those who handle money. By this means, we squ-We will raise the masses whenever we want. We will push them to upheavals, to revolutions, and each of these catastrophes Trophies advances our intimate interests by a great leap and brings us closerquickly moved beyond our sole objective, which is to rule the earth, as had been promised to our father Abraham.

Our second document is a reduced reproduction of the first, by a rabbi, at the Congress of Lemberg, in 1911 (1):

My brothers, for nineteen centuries the Jews have been struggling to... to speak of the government of the world, something that God himself proposed placed under the Patriarch Abraham. However, the Cross won the victory and defeated the Jews. These, scattered throughout all the par– the world's societies, were for too long the object of atrocious persecutions These, but let's hope anyway! The fact that the Jews are dispersed ses across all continents proves that all these lands belong. We are witnessing an impressive spectacle: Israel becomes more powerful every day.

The gold before which humanity bows, so revered, almost
All the gold is in the hands of the Jews; and gold is the future of Israel.
The times of persecution are already over. Progress and civilization
The assimilation of Christian peoples constitutes the best bulwark which protect the Jews and facilitate the implementation of these plans

(1) The German publisher gives (p. 35) the first part of this speech which he reproduced from the Bauernblindler (The Peasant Leaguer) of Vienna of November 1912,

last. We Jews managed to seize fes main centers of the world stock market; the Paris stock exchanges, from London, Vienna, Berlin, Hamburg, Amsterdam are to us. Wherever Jews are, they have capital.
enormous.

All current states are in debt. These debts obligate the states to give the Jews all the mines, all the roads as collateral iron, all state–owned factories.

But it is still necessary for the Jews to seize the land, especially large estates. If the large properties passed into the hands of... hands of the Jews, then the Christian workers who work there pro– would generate enormous revenues for the Jews.

We had been bowed under the yoke for nineteen centuries; hand–
Now we have become greater than our oppressors.
It is true that some Jews allow themselves to be baptized; but even this fact
It eventually gives us more strength, because a baptized Jew never ceases never to be Jewish. The time will come when Christians will want become Jews, but the people of Judah will then reject them with contempt.

The Jews' ultimate enemy, the enemy by its very nature, is the Catholic Church. That is why we Jews have grafted onto this cursed tree is the spirit of unbelief. We must also fuel the struggle and dissension between the different con–
Christian denominations. oo

In the first Jigne, we must fight relentlessly and on mad the lands against the Catholic clergy. We must throw on the head of the priests the mockery, the imprecations, the scandals of their private lives, to deliver them to the contempt and derision of the world.

We must take over the school. The Christian religion must dis– appear. The Church will lose its influence by becoming poor, and its their riches will become the prey of Israel.

The Jews must take everything into their own hands, and especially the Power and jobs. The bar, the judiciary, medicine must become Jewish. A Jewish doctor has the best opportunity to– to enter into close relationships with a Christian family.

Jews must put an end to the indissolubility of Christian marriages.
hold and establish civil unions everywhere. La Franze is already in our hands; now it's Austria's turn,

Finally, we must seize control of the press. That's when
Our reign will be secure and complete.

See ea

i ai Tati YN

Compare these documents to the "Protocols of the Elders of "Zion," you will be struck by their identity; bring them closer You will be struck by current events.

28 where THE JUDEO-MASONIC PERIL

their veracity. It is in vain that the Jews oppose 4 such their persistent denials: they are not receusable. The authenticity of our documents may lend credence to endless discussions; their veracity is blinding. Our three documents will strike any mind of good faith. The identity of doctrine, pushed to the point of similarity of expressions, accuses among the Jews of a hieratic teaching traditional. As with all Masonic Constitutions- Ultimately, these issues come down to the Constitutions. Anderson, from 1723, likewise all the aspirations of Israel, and its terrible demands are based on a security plan laire, including the speeches of the rabbis and the "Protocols" of the The Basel Congress only provides glimpses and excerpts. Doctrine and plan are, moreover, esoteric. The accounts The public pronouncements of the Zionist Congresses do not contain the "Protocols," which were the subject of secret sessions, including The revelation comes at its time. May we, in France and in Catholic countries, which are more directly targeted, not to pronounce our condemnation, as in Russia, by this pithy sentence: "Too late!" (1).

The Third International of the Hebrew underworld is fueled by the Golden International of High Banking Jewish, and Disraeli, a true Jew, wrote, in all knowingly, in 1844:

`

The world is governed by entirely different characters than... Imagine those whose eyes don't peer behind the scenes... This mysterious diplomacy of Russia, which is the terror of Western Europe is organized by the Jews, and they are the main agents... This powerful revolution which, currently

(1) The Jewish Encyclopedia, completed in 1907, speaks of the first six Zionist Congresses held from 1897 to 1903 (Vol. XII, p. 675). The First Congress in 1897 appointed an Action Committee which actively campaigned using leaflets and brochures. Among these were speeches by Herzl and Max Nordau in Congress; a pamphlet by York Steiner: Das Ende des Juden Nots (The End of Jewish Suffering); another by Max Nordau: Über die Gegner Zionismus (On the Opponents of Zionism). This Committee organized several groups, formed since the first Congress, and took the first steps to the creation of the Jewish Colonial Trust (Financial Association for Colonization) Jewish). He prepared, through a conference held in Vienna in April 1898, the second Congress which took place in Basel at the end of August of the same year. Another Conference, With over 140 delegates, it was organized in Warsaw. Since then, Zionism has taken on developments that are all the more worrying as it contains not only the claim of Palestine, but the Jewish plan for world domination.

THE "PROTOCOLS" OF THE ELDERS OF ZION 29:

even, it is being prepared and brewed in Germany, where it will, in fact, a second Reform, more considerable than the first, and of which England still knows so little, is developing entirely under the auspices of the Jew (1).

These lines appear to have been written in 1920; they date back to seventy-six years old.

The Judeo-Masonic peril, that is the Gordian knot of the The world's desperate situation.

Who will cut it down with a single sword stroke? God alone!

August 15, 1920.

E. JOUIN,
Prelate of His Holiness, |
Parish priest of Saint-Augustin.

(1) Dishaeus, Coningsby, 9. 18?

$0 THE JUDEO-MASONIC PERIL

PROTOCOLS OF THE ELDERS OF ZION

(Pretocols of the Elders of Zion)

(LEXT)
FIRST SESSION (1)

(Police: Report No. 4)

We will speak frankly and discuss the meaning of each reflection, highlighting, through comparisons and deductions, complete explanations. I will present, by this means, the design of our policy, as well as that of the Goim (Jewish expression to refer to all Gentiles (2).

(1) The English and American versions have neither titles nor subtitles, s even the division into 24 seanees. The same cannot be said of the German translations. Mandarin and Polish. The 1920 Russian edition includes the title of the sessions with very extensive summaries, and subheadings in headers at each paragraph.

The Russian text (1920 reprint) was kindly provided to us by Mr. Gottfried Zur Beek when the printing of our first edition was finished. Similarly, we only received the Polish translation later. We dedicate appendices III and IV to these two versions.

We have designated the various translations in the footnotes under the following headings:

Russian translation: Nilus 1920; German translation: All.; polo- translation French: Pol.; American translation: Am.; Morning Post: MP

(2) The German publisher writes in his Introduction (p. 11):

The word Goim appears many times in the Protocols; in the singular, it said Gof; in the masculine plural, it is said Gojim; in the feminine plural, Goja or Gojoth, or Gojos; its original meaning is: pagan people. It does not apply ns to individuals. The Jews later spoke of Gojim Nozeri to designate The Nazarene paicns, that is to say, the Christians. There is a distinction between the The words Gojim and Ummin, according to which the Gojim are the peoples who have subjected Israel to subjugation, while the Ummin are those who have not committed this crime. (Cf. EISENMENGER: Entdecktes Judentum (Judaism put (naked). 2nd edition 1711, Part 1, p. 668). Brockaus says, on page 668 of his 14th edition: "Goy, in the plural Gojim, generally means people, and in a "Special meaning: pagan peoples, as opposed to the chosen people of the "Dictionary of Israel. In the neo-Rabbinic idiom, it applies to any non-Jew," "Paican and Christian. Schabbes-Goi (or more precisely Schabbis-Goi) designates a "A Christian who performs, on the Sabbath, work forbidden to Jews." Such are the employees in the household, in business; the servants in the Temple, the women who clean the Temple, the manual laborers, the organ players, most of whom are born schoolteachers Christians.

"When Jews are among themselves, they never call each other Russians, French, Germans are the people of the nations that host them. For them, there are only... Gojim. However, the reader should not forget that the Jew attaches to this denomination- They have the same contemptuous meaning as when we say, "Dirty Jew!"

THE "PROTOCOLS" OF THE ELDERS OF ZION $1

It should be noted (1) that the number of men with instincts The number of corrupt people is greater than that of people with strong instincts. nobles. That is why the best results are obtained, in the governance of the world, by employing violence and Intimidation rather than academic discussions. Everything Man thirsts for power; everyone would like to be a dictator. if only he could, and very few are those who do not would not agree to sacrifice the well-being of others for achieve their personal goals (2).

The law is force.
(Pol.: Law is based on Force)

What contained the savage beasts of prey, what What do we call men? (3) By what were they governed? Up to the present day? In the earliest periods of social life, They were subjected to brute and blind force, then they submitted to the law (4), which is, in reality, only the same force masked. This observation leads me to deduce that, by Natural law, right, resides in force.

Liberalism kills true freedom.
(Pol.: Freedom is an idea... Free thought)

Political freedom is not a fact, but an idea. This The idea is that you need to know how to apply it when necessary. saire (5), in order to use it as bait to attract the forces from the crowd to his party, if that party has decided to usurp those of a rival. The problem is simplified if said rival becomes infected ideas of freedom, of so-called liberalism (6), and if, for

In love with such ideas, he cedes part of his power (7).

(1) The porpnal ages begin here.

(2) Am.: …the general welfare; Nilus 1920: ...their personal goals; Pol.:
the "general pious.

(3) All.: What natural instincts govern the ferocious beasts that feed on made of human blood? – ...that we call men (Nilus, 1930).

(4) Pol.: ...to the right.

(5) Pol.: ...when it is necessary to attract the forces of the crowd to one's party, thanks to an ideological lure, and if this party has decided to overthrow the one who holds the reins of power... (literally: the helm of government.)

(6) Pol.: …free thought.

(7) In the Morning Post, which appears to have translated from Russian, we read:
"This idea must be used as bait to attract the masses." of the people in order to crush those in power. This task is simplified if we find ourselves facing a rival infected with the idea of freedom or liberalism and who, for the love of an idea, is ready to relinquish some of his power."
– This idea, we must know how to use it, as needed, as a ideal bait to attract the forces of the crowd to one's party, if that party is pro-

Shine poses another who holds the power. This task is simplified.
(Nilus, 1920)

Our idea (1) will obviously triumph in this respect: the
With the reins of the Government being abandoned (2), it will follow, by the law of life, they will be seized immediately by a new hand, because of the blind force of the crowd
Not a single day can exist without a leader. The new Governor-the new arrangement only fills the place of the old one that its liberalism (3) has weakened.

The power of Gold killed Religion. – Anarchy
The Peoples deliver to us

(Pol.: Gold. Religion. Independence)

Nowadays, the power of gold has eliminated that of liberal authorities. There was a time when religion (4) governed-is born. The idea of freedom is unrealizable, because no one knows how to use it discreetly.

All it takes is giving the crowd the power to... to govern herself so that she (5) might immediately become a disorganized chaos (6). From that moment, dissenthese unions quickly escalate into social conflicts; States are set ablaze and all their importance is lost.
_appears (7). That a state is exhausted by its own convulsions internal wars, or that it be delivered, by civil wars, to a foreign enemy, he can, in both cases, be considered Deemed as definitively destroyed, – it is in our power.

The Gold is ours (8)

The despotism of 'capital,' which is entirely between our hands, will extend to this State a straw to which it will inevitably forced to hold on (9) under penalty of falling into the abyss.

(1) MP: ...theory...

(2) MP: ...released...

(3) Pol.: that free thought...

(4) Am.: an foi... ; Pol.: la foi (but in the sense of religion).

(5) Pol.: ..emancipates itself completely.

(6) Am.: so that it will corrupt immediately.

(7) Pol.: Here the subtitle: Despotism of Capital.

(8) This subtitle does not exist in the Polish text.

(9) Am.: ...to cling on, even though it is against his will, under penalty...

There is no morality in the means used to kill a people.
(Pol. 3 The Enemy Within)

If, for reasons of liberalism, someone were tempted to point out to me that such discussions are im-
In terms of morals, I would ask this question: – Why is he not
It is immoral for a state to have two enemies, one outside itself, the other, within, employs means to combat them different: secret defense plans, night attacks or with superior forces? Why, indeed, would it be It is immoral for the State to employ such means against that which is destroying its foundations and prosperity? (1)

Let us sow anarchy among the masses.
(Pol.: The Crowd. Anarchy)

Can a logical and sensible mind hope to succeed in gou-to govern crowds through arguments and reasoning, while it is possible that these arguments and these reasons-
If these statements are contradicted by other arguments? If ridi-However much they may be, they are made to seduce this part of the population that cannot think very deeply, being entirely guided by petty reasons (2), of habits, conventions, and sentimental theories. The ignorant and uninitiated populace, as well as all those who are raised from her bosom, become entangled in dissensions parties that hinder any possibility of agreement, even on a solid basis of arguments. Any decision of the masses de-depends on a majority of chance, prepared in advance, which, in His ignorance of the secrets of politics leads him to make decisions absurd, thus sowing the seeds of Anarchy.

In politics, there is no morality.
(Pol.: Politics and Morality)

Politics has nothing in common with morality. A sou-verain governed by morality (3) is not a skillful poli-

(1) Am.: If a state has two enemies, and if against the external enemy, it
It is permissible, provided it is not considered immoral, to employ all the possible methods of warfare, and as protective measures not to put the enemy aware of its attack plans, such as night attacks or atta-

Given superior forces, why would these methods be considered...

deemed immoral when applied to a more terrified enemy ble, to a transgression of the social order and the prosperity of the nation? – Id. Nilus 1920; Id. Pol.

(2) Am.: superstitions... –
(3) All.: A head of state who would like to govern according to moral law...
A head of state who would govern according to moral law... (Nilus, 1290). – Pol.:

A sovereign allowing himself to be governed by morality...

tick; therefore, he is not upright on a throne. He who Anyone who wants to govern must resort to cunning and hypocrisy.
political, the great human qualities (2) of honesty and of sincerity becomes a vice and dethrones a sovereign more inevitably, his most cruel enemy. These qualities should be the attributes of non-Jewish countries, but we do not we are in no way obliged to make them our guides (3).

Might Makes Right
(Pol.: The Right of the Strongest)

Our right lies in strength. The word "right" is a an abstract idea that is not based on anything (4). It does not mean something other than this: "Give me what I need for
"To prove that I am stronger than you."

Where does "law" begin? Where does it end? In a state where power is poorly organized, where laws and the person of sovereigns are annihilated in a continual encroachment of the liberalism, I adopt a new system of attack (5), me using the right of force to destroy the orders and existing regulations, to take advantage of the laws, to reorganize the Institutions and thus become the dictator of those who, from their of their own volition, have liberally renounced their power and conferred it upon us.

The Invincibility of Occult Judeo-Masonry
(Pol.: The invincibility of Judeo-Magnon power)

Our strength (6), given the precarious situation of civil powers, will be greater (7) than any other, because that it will be (8) invisible until the day it is such that no trick could undermine it (9).

---

(1) Pol.: on his throne.

(2) Pol.: the great qualities of the people: sincerity and honesty are vices in politics, because they dethrone a sovereign more easily and more Certainly the most powerful enemy.

(3) All.: These qualities may be the principles of non-Jewish kingdoms, but we must not, under any pretext, employ such grotesque means-ques. – Id. Nilus, 1920. – Pol.: follows the English translation.

(4) All.: The word "force" ext a concrete expression which never has a general meaning. – Am.: ...impossible to prove.

(5) Pol.: ...I find the source of a new right, namely: that of atta-to seek, by virtue of the right of the strongest, to destroy the entire existing order, to violate the laws, to reorganize the social structure in order to finally become the master of all those who have placed at my disposal their power, to which they have voluntarily renounced, by virtue of the principles of liberalism. – Ali: I am creating a new right, that of the strongest, which I use to destroy. – Am. and Nilus 1996: I discovers a new right.

(6) Pol.: Our power...

(7) Am.: ...unassailable. – Pol.: ..invincible. – MP: more invincible than any other because it will remain invisible...

(8) Am.: until the day when it is so well rooted... – Pol.: when it will be sufficiently fortified so that no trick can shake it.

(9) All.: that no act of living that can destroy it.

Liberalism destroys. – The end justifies the means.
(Pol.: The end justifies the means)

Temporary harm, which we are currently experiencing forced to resort to it, the benefit of a government will emerge unshakeable which will restore the course (1) of the mechanism of existence-Normal tenacity destroyed by liberalism. The end justifies the resources. We must, in drawing up our plans, ensure that pay more attention to what is necessary and beneficial than to what who is good and moral.

We have before us a plan from which a strategic line from which we cannot deviate without (2) destroy the work of entire centuries.

The crowd is blind and cowardly
(PoL: The Blind Crowd)

To develop a suitable action plan, it is necessary (3) to to instill in mind cowardice, instability and lack of crowd weighing (4), unable to understand and to respect the conditions of one's own existence and well-being to be. One must realize that the power of the crowd is blind, lacking reason in discernment, and that she lends an ear (5) sometimes to the right, sometimes to the left. If a A blind man leads another blind man; they both fall into the ditch (6). Consequently, the upstarts, who had risen from the ranks of the people, even if they are geniuses (7), cannot pose themselves as leaders of the masses without ruining the nation.

The Political Alphabet. – The Impotence of Parties
(Pol.: The Political Alphabet)

Only a person elevated to exercise sovereignty autocratic can read (8) the words formed by the letters of

---

(1) Pol.: the course of the mechanism of the existence of peoples. – Am. and Nilus 1920: the heart a figure prepared from childhood to exercise autocratic sovereignty can fire...

The political alphabet (1). The people left to their own devices, that is-that is to say (2) to leaders who came from its ranks, is ruined (3) by the party disputes that arise from the thirst for power and honors and (4) which create unrest and disorder.

Is it possible for the masses to judge calmly and admit-to govern without jealousy (5) the affairs of the State that he does not Shouldn't this be confused with her own interests? Can she
To serve as a defense (6) against a foreign enemy? It is impossible (7), because a plan, divided into as many parts as there are has brains in the mass, loses its value (8) and becomes unintelligible and unexecutable.

Autocracy is the only government

Only an autocrat (9) can conceive of vast (10) projects and assign to everything its particular role in the mechanism of the government machine. That's why we We conclude that it is beneficial to the well-being of the country that its government government should be in the hands of a single person res-Responsible, without absolute despotism, there is no civilization possible, because civilization can only advance under the pro-protection of a leader, whoever he may be, provided he is not in the hands of the masses.

The crowd is barbaric (11) and proves it on every occasion.
As soon as the people have secured their freedom, they hasten to transforming into anarchy which, in itself, is the height of barbarity.

~

Alcoholism, Humanism, Debauchery

Consider these drunken brutes (12), stunned by the

---

(1) Pol.: subtitle: Party quarrels.

(2) Pol.: either to chiefs...

(3) Pol.: leads himself to ruin...

(4) Am. and Pol.: and by the resulting disorders.

(5) Am.: ...by avoiding rivalries...

(6) Pol.: Is she capable of defending herself?

(7) Pol.: Who could think of that?

(8) All.: That's insane. A political concept divided into so many parts that there are heads in the mass would lose its unity... — Am. and Pol.: ...its unity...

(9) All.: Only an autonomous personality can carry out the plans of the State direction with perfect clarity and execute them in the order that That's suitable. The entire state apparatus can work in peace...
Nilus, 1920: Only an autocrat... — Pol.: It is only in the mind of a autocrats can form vast, precise plans, in the order that governs the entire mechanism of the government machine...:

(10) Am.: ...and clear...

(11) All.: The crowd is made up of barbarians. — Am.: A barbaric crowd displays its barbarity on every occasion. — Nilus 1920: The crowd is barbaric...

(12) Pol.: Consider these brutish men stupefied by alcohol, of which...

drink, the freedom of which tolerates unlimited use! (1) Let's go-
'allow us and allow our fellow human beings to imitate (2). Among Christians, the people are stupefied by alcohol, Youth is corrupted by the classics and debauchery.
premature, which our agents—tutors, domestic servants, governesses in wealthy households (3), employed (4), etc., our women in places of pleasure (5);
I would add to these the so-called "women of the world",
— their willing imitators in matters of luxury and corruption. | z

Judeo-Masonic Principles: Strength and Hypocrisy
(Pol.: Principles and bases of the Judeo-Masonic government)

Our motto must be: "All means of force and of hypocrisy" (6).

Only pure force is victorious in politics, especially when it hides in the talent indispensable to men of the State (7). Violence must be the principle, cunning and hypocrisis is the rule of these governments that do not want lay their wreath at the feet of the agents of a new any power whatsoever. This evil is the only way to arrive (8) to the good. So let us not be stopped by (9) the purchase consciences, imposture and betrayal, if by them we Let's serve our cause.

In politics, let us not hesitate to confiscate property (10) so that we may acquire submission and power.

The Terror

Our State, following the path of peaceful conquests, has the the right to substitute executions for the horrors of war less apparent and more expeditious (11), which are necessary

---

(1) Ail.: Consider drunkards: they believe they have a right to intemperance in the name of freedom

(2) Pol.: ...Will we allow "our own" to let themselves fall into such a state?

(3) All.: ...and in educational institutions...

(4) Am. and Pol.: ...of the Goim...

(5) All.: ...and the public houses...

(6) All.: Our motto should be: "Strength and Hypocrisy." – Am.: "Puls-"Sance and hypocrisy." – Poal.: Our motto is: "Strength and cunning."

(7) All.: Force alone is victorious, especially when it is in the hands of personalities who play a role in)'Ftat.

(8) Poal.: ...@to arrive at the goal which is good.

(9) Pol.: ...by corruption through money.
(10) Nilas 1920 and Pol.: In politics, one must know how to take what belongs to others. without hesitation. – All.: In politics, let us be wise enough not to back down

Faced with the strangest moves, if we...
(11) All. and Pol.: ...and more effective.

gave, among other things, the possibility of playing (1) our ace in the hole: the abolition of privileges (2), in other words, the existence of the Gentile aristocracy, the only protection that the nations and countries had against us (3).

The Jewish plutocratic aristocracy
(Pol.: The New Aristocracy)

On the ruins of the natural and hereditary aristocracy, we we raised, by giving it plutocratic foundations, an aristocracy to us. We established it on the wealth held under our control and on the science promoted by our scholars (4).

Calculating E's weaknesses and passions
(Pol.: Psychological calculation)

Our triumph was facilitated by the fact that, thanks to our relationships with people who were essential to us, we we have always pressed on the most sensitive strings of the human mind, exploiting the weakness of our victims for the profits, their covetousness (5), their insatiability, the needs human material weaknesses. Each of these weaknesses, taken individually, is capable of destroying any initiative; by flattering them, we let us put the willpower of the people at the mercy of those who wanted to deprive him of this initiative (6).

Misunderstood Freedom delivers Power to us

The abstract nature of the word "Liberty" allowed for condefeating the populace (7) that the Government is only a manager representing the owner, that is to say the nation (8), and that it can be discarded like a pair of gloves worn out.

–

(1) Am.:...to seize. — Pol.: to have in our hands the strongest trump card...

(2) All.: ...nobility...

(3) Am.: ...in other words, the very essence of the aristocracy..

(4) All.: On the science disseminated by our secret committees. — Am.: On the ruins... we raised an aristocracy from our intellectual class — the aristocracy of money. We established it... ...promoted by our Sages. — Nilus 1920, Id. — Pol.: We have placed at the head of everything, a financial aristocracy drawn of our intellectual class. The property qualification required for this new aristocracy is the wealth held under our control and the science disseminated by our Sages.

(5) Pol.: their desires, the material needs of man never satisfied.

(6) Am.: Nilus 1920 and Pol.: Each of these human weaknesses, taken Separately, it is capable of killing the initiative and suppressing the will of the people. at the disposal of the buyer for its activities.

(7) Pol.: ...the people. — MP: in all countries, that the government is just a stage manager.

(8) Am. ct Pol.: ..the owner of the country, namely the people.

The mere fact that the nation's representatives can be deposited them, delivered them into our power and practically put their choice in our hands (1).

SECOND SESSION

(Police: Report No. 2)
Economic wars secure our power.
(Pol.: Economic warfare due to Jewish preponderance)

It is essential to our goals that wars do not lead to any territorial alteration. Under these conditions, any war would be transferred to the economic sphere. Then the nations will recognize our superiority when they see the services we provide; this state of affairs will put the two adversaries at the mercy of our countless agents international organizations that possess absolutely ilmites (2). Then our international rights will sweep away the laws from all over the world and will govern countries like governments individual nements their subjects (3).

Sold-out civil servants

(Pol.: Front administration and "secret advisors")

We will choose administrators from among the public servile tendencies. They will be inexperienced in the art of to govern. We will easily turn them into pawns on our chessboard where they will be guided by our scholars and (4) wise men advisors, specially trained from the earliest age childhood for the government of the world. As well as you You already know, these men have studied (5) this science of gou- to govern according to our political plans, the experience of History and the observation of current events. The Gentiles do not profitent not observations continually provided by History, but they stick to a routine of theory, without worrying about the results it cannot produce. We We will therefore attach no importance to the Gentiles (1). Let them they amuse themselves until the time is up; that they live in the hope of new pleasures, or in the soto come from past joys. That they believe these theoretical laws that we have inspired in them (2) are of supreme importance tance. With this idea in mind and the support of our press, we will constantly increase their blind trust in these laws. The intellectual elite of the Gentiles will pride themselves on his science and, without verifying it, will put it into practice as follows They will have been presented to him by our agents, to shape their minds. in the direction we intended.

---

(1) MP.. and Pol.: The possibility of changing the people's representatives made them available to us and, in a way, gave us the power to name them.

(2) Nilus 1920 and Pol.: ...which have millions of eyes for which it There are no borders. — All.: who have absolutely abundant resources. moths and for which no borders exist.

(2) All.: ...and govern countries in the same way as the Civil Code regulates the relations between citizens. — Am.:...So our inter- rights nationals will get rid of national rights, in a limited sense, and will govern the people as the civil power of each state regulates the relations among his subjects. — Nilus, 1920, Ibid. — Pol.: ...and will govern countries in the same way that the Civil Code regulates mutual relations citizens of a given state.

(4) Pol.: ...and our brilliant advisors...

(5) Pol.: ..exhausted the knowledge necessary for government in our political plans...

Darwin, Marx, Nietzsche exploited by the Jews
(Pol.: Success of subversive trends in science)

Do not believe that our assertions are mere words. Consider the success of Darwin, Marx, and Nietzsche, preprepared (3) by us. The demoralizing effect of these trends doctrines about the spirit of the Gentiles should certainly not... escape.

Ability to adapt to each people
(Pol.: Lack of adaptation in politics)

To avoid the risk of making mistakes in our Whether political or administrative, it is essential for us to studyto dier and to keep in mind the current trend of the The thought, character, and tendencies of nations.

The triumph of our theory lies in its adaptability to the temppermanently of the nations with which we make contact. It can only succeed if its practical application rests on based on past experience, combined with observation of the present (4).

---

(1) Pol.: We don't have to reckon with them.

(2) Am.: "that we made them believe they were the lolis of science" (the theory)... — Nilus 1920: ...that we made them accept as laws of science... |

(3) Ali.: ...propagated by us. — Am.: success of Darwinism, of Marxism and Nietzscheanism, fabricated by us. — Nilus 1920, Id.

(4) Am. and Pol.: The triumph of our system, the various parts of which mechanisms can be arranged in various ways, depending on the nature of the peoples encountered on our journey, can only be realized if Pappticetion The practice of this system is based on past experience combined with observation. elevation of the present.

The Press
(Pol.: Role of the Press)

The press is, in the hands of existing governments, a great power by which they dominate the public mind. The press reveals the vital demands of the populace, informs of its grievances, and sometimes creates misunderstanding. temptation (1). Free speech was born from the Press (2). But Governments have failed to capitalize on this strength, and It fell into our hands. Through the press, we acquired influence, while remaining behind the scenes.

Gold and Our Blood

Thanks to the Press, we accumulated gold, although it in coitus of streams of blood (3); it cost us the sacrifice of many of our own, but each of our sacrifices is worth, before God, thousands of Gentiles.

THIRD SESSION
(Pol.: Prooés-verbal n° 3)

The Symbolic Serpent
(Pol.: The symbolic serpent and its meaning)

Today, I can assure you that we are not just a few steps from our goal. One more short dischallenge to overcome, and the circle of the Symbolic Serpent – the sign of our people (4) – will be complete. When this circle will be closed, it will surround all the states of Europe like of indestructible chains (5).

(1) Nilus, 1920, Am. and Pol.: It is a great force in the hands of Modern states creating the movement of minds. It is the Press. The role of the Press is to indicate the necessary requests, to recordstrer (Pol.: to convey) the grievances of the people, to express and to comment (Pol.: ...and even to foment) discontent. – All.: The The press serves to reveal the alleged demands of the people.
(2) Aill.: It is in the Press that freedom of opinion is given free rein Course. – Am.: The triumph of free-flowing chatter is embodied in the Press. – Nilus 1920: It is in the Press that the triumph of freedom is embodied. speech. – Pol.: The Press is the embodiment of freedom of speech.

3) All. and Pol.: Thanks to the Press, we have amassed mountains of gold, we hardly cared that we had to obtain it through torrents

Tears and blood... – Am.: of blood and tears... – Id. Nilus, 1920 to Here, a subtitle in the Polish translation: The Value of Gold and the Price of Sacrifices

$.
(4) MP: "this symbol of our people... – Pol.: representing our people.

MP: ...all European states will be ensnared in its folds as in a vise. – All.: as with a collar of force. – Am.: as with strong claws. – Nilus, 1920: powerful vise. – Pol.: all the States Europe will be seized as if caught in powerful pincers:

Instability of the Constitutions of Peoples. – Scarecrow of the Terror in the Courts–

(Pol.: Instability of the Balance of Constitutions)

The existing scaffolding will soon collapse. because we continually make them lose the balance to wear them out faster and put them out of service (1). The Gentiles imagined that they were sufficient–. sufficiently solid and that their balance would be sustainable. But the scaffolding supports – that is to say, the heads of state – are hampered by their useless servants, trained as they are by this unlimited force of the plot which is their own and thanks to the terror that reigns in the palaces (2).

Having no means of accessing the heart of his people, the The sovereign cannot defend himself against power-hungry schemers. see. As the vigilant power has been separated by us from the blind force of the mob, both have lost their meaning fiction, because once separated, they are also powerless than an old man without his staff (3).

+

The Struggle of Parties – Their Ambitions
(Pol.: Power and ambition)

In order to incite power-hungry people (4) to do bad things use (5) of their rights, we have drawn up all the powers against each other (6), encouraging their tendencies

(1) All.: The constitutional states of our time will soon be destroyed, because we will give them no rest. We will make sure that they continue to agitate until their representatives are definitively overturned. – Pal.: Soon the balance of contemporary constitutions will collapse. pores, because we have not made it precisely so that it does not cease to wobble until its support is worn. The Goim thought they had established it quite firmly and were still waiting for the balance to find its balance. (Nilus 1920. Id.).

(2) Pol.: But the support, that is to say the sovereigns, are eclipsed by their representatives who are acting recklessly, carried away by the mirage of power Without control and without responsibility. They owe this power to terror. whose specter haunts the palaces. – Nilus 1920: ...instilled terror in the palaces.

(3) Am.: But the support – the head of state – is hidden from the people behind the screen formed by its representatives who waste their time carried away by their unchecked and irresponsible authority. The sovereign cannot unite with

The people, to strengthen themselves against the usurpers of power. Visible power. the king and the blind power of the mob, separated by us, have lost all effectiveness. — Nilus 1920: Support — from heads of state — is hampered by their representatives, who waste time, carried away by their unchecked authority and irresponsible. Without access to the people, unable to reach them in Its deepest layers, the heads of state cannot agree with it to to strengthen.

(4) All.: ...those who hold I power... ,

(5) Am.: ...to abuse.

{ñ) Pol.: ...all forces one another.

—

Tee | eee ee y
.

liberals — towards independence. We have favored all undertaking in this direction; we have put weapons (1) formitablets in the hands of all parties and we have made power is the goal of all ambition (2). We have transformed Governments in arenas for (3) party wars (4).

Speeches in Parliament, attacks by journalists ruin of Power

(Pol.: Parliamentary chatter, pamphlets, abuse of power)

Soon, blatant disorder and bankruptcy will appear. Everywhere. Incorrigible chatterboxes have turned the parliamentary and administrative assemblies. Bold impudent journalists and pamphleteers continue to attack administrative powers (5). Abuses of power seeing will definitively prepare the collapse of all the institutions, and everything will fall into ruin under the blows of the furious mob.

Fiction of the People's Rights
(Pol.: Economic slavery, "The rights of the people")

People are enslaved, by the sweat of their brow, in the poverty, in a more formidable way than in the time of the laws of serfdom (6). From this, they could free themselves from a one way or another, while nothing will free them from the tyranny of absolute need. We have taken care to insert, in the Constitutions, rights that are for the masses purely fictitious (7). All the so-called "rights of the people" can only exist as inapplicable ideas in practical.

Opposition between Power and the People (8)

What does it matter to a proletarian worker, bent double by a hard labor (9) and oppressed by his fate, than a chatterbox

(1) Pol.: (the word formidable is non-existent).

(2) All.: ...the goal of all passions.

(3) All.: ...for riots.

(4) Pol.: We have transformed countries into arenas for wars of They've left. Soon disorder and bankruptcy will appear everywhere.

(5) Am. and Pol.: ..the administrative staff. — -

(6) Pol.: Misery has bound peoples to work more firmly than They were not bound by serfdom and the lord's rights. From these they could-were going to free themselves one way or another, while nothing will liberate them of absolute need.

(7) Am.: ...in Constitutions, rights which are purely fictitious and not real. — Nilus, 1920, Id. — Pol.: ...and not effective.

(8) Pol.: (non-existent). to

(9) Pol.: labor beyond one's strength.

obtain the right to speak, or a journalist that of publish (1) some nonsense? What is the use of a Constitution? tuition to the proletariat if it derives no other advantage from it than the crumbs that we throw from our table to him, in exchange for his votes for the election of our agents? (2). The rights of republicans The clerics are an (3) irony for the poor, because the necessity his daily work prevents him from deriving any benefit from it. and they are simply taking away his guaranteed fixed salary and assured, making it dependent (4) on employers' strikes and comrades.

Nobles and Upstarts

Under our auspices, the populace exterminated (5) the aristocracy who, in his own interest (6), had provided for the needs of the people and had defended them, for their interest is inseparable of the well-being of the populace. Nowadays, having destroyed the privileges of the nobility, the people fall under the yoke of cunning profiteers and upstarts (7).

Judeo-Freemasonry and its Sub-branches
(Pol.: The Army of Judeo-Magnonry)

We want to be seen as the liberators of the worker. came to deliver him from this oppression by suggesting to him to join the ranks of our armies of socialists, anarchists Christians and communists (8). We always protect these lastly, pretending to help them out of a principle of brotherhood and of general interest to humanity, mentioned by our Freemason-socialist nymphet (9). The nobility which, by right, shared the work (10) of the working classes, had every interest in ee that they were well-fed, healthy, and strong.

---

(1) Nilus, 1920 and Am.: that of mixing foolishness with the reason. — Pol.: that of publishing any nonsense mixed with things of value.

(2) Pol.: ..of his votes according to the indications of our creatures and our agents.

(3) Pol. ct Am.: Bitter irony.

(4) Nilus, 1920: ...strikes by employers (lockouts) and comrades. Am.: ...strikes organized either by the unions or by the comrades. — Pol.: ...of an agreement between employers or work colleagues.

(5) Pol.: ..the people destroyed...

(6) Nilus, 1920 and Pol.: was the natural protector and the nurturer. — Am.: ...was her natural protector and guardian.

i (7) am and Pol.: ...and upstarts who have burdened the workers with a burden shaving.

(8) Pol.: We appear as the liberators of the worker (who have come to free him from this yoke) when we propose that he join the ranks of our army, that is to say among the socialists, the anarchists, the comcommunists.

(9) Am. and Pol.: Social Freemasonry.

(10) All., Am., Nilus, 1920: ...benefited from the work...

Degeneration of the Gentiles

Our interest, on the contrary, lies in the degeneration of Kind. Our strength lies in keeping the worker in a constant state of need and powerlessness, because in this way we subject it to our will; and, in its surroundings, He will never find the power or energy to rise up. against us (1).

Hunger and the Right to Pork
(Pol.: Hunger and the Rights of Capital)

Hunger will give Capital more powerful rights over the worker whom the sovereign's legal power never had conferred upon the aristocracy.

We will govern the masses by taking advantage of the senses feelings of jealousy and hatred ignited by oppression and the need. And, by means of these feelings (2), we rid ourselves- Let us rid ourselves of those who hinder our progress.

Eren as

The Master of the World established on the ruins of Anarchy
(Pel.: The Crowd and the Coronation of the Master of the World)

When the time comes for us to crown our "Master of the World" (3), we will ensure that, through the same means – that is to say, by using the populace – we destroyed everything that would be an obstacle in our road.

Teachings of our Masonic Schools: Science of Life

(Polish: Basic summary of the program for future schools) popular Masonic)

The Gentiles (4) are no longer capable of thinking without our help in science. That's why they don't

(1) Pol.: The source of our power lies in the chronic lack of food and strength in the worker, because in this way he in our slavery, and while he does not find among the authorities who are concerned workers, neither strength nor energy to oppose it.

(2) Pol.: We govern the masses with the help of misery and jealous hatred that results from it, and by their arms (the masses) we rid ourselves of

(3) Pol.: ...then_these same arms (of the masses) will crush everything that-ral be an obstacle.

To Pol: The Gentiles have become unaccustomed to thinking without the help of our scientific advice.

fail to account for the vital necessity of certain things that we will take care to reserve for the moment when our The time will come, namely that, in schools, it must be taught-the only true and most important of all sciences: the science of human life (1) and that of conditions social conditions; both require a division of labor, and, consequently, the classification of people (2) into castes and into classes. It is essential that everyone knows that the real Equality cannot exist, given the difference in nature of the various kinds of work, and that those who act in to the detriment of an entire caste, they have, before the law, another responsibility that those who commit a crime do not compromise putting their personal honor first.

Secret organization
(Pol.: Secret of the Science of Social Life)

The true science of social conditions, with its secrets which we do not admit the Gentiles, would convince the world that trades and work (3) should be reserved to special castes, so as not to cause suffering human beings from an education that does not correspond to work that individuals are called upon to accomplish. If he studied this science, the people, of their own free will, support themselves would put the ruling powers and governing classes in a position of power. tales classified by them (4). Given the pre- conditions paths of science and the (5) line that we allowed him to follow, the populace, in its ignorance, blindly believes everything that is printed and the fallacious illusions duly inspired by us, and she is hostile to all the classes she believes it is above her, because she does not understand the importance of each caste.

Global economic crisis

This hatred will be further increased by the effect that will be produced

(1) Pol.: ...of social life which requires the division of labor...

(2) Pol.: ...people in classes.
(3) Am.: ...must be differentiated so as not to cause... – Id. Nilus, 1990.
– Pol.: ...would convince the world that the workplace and work itself must be reserved for specific castes if we want to achieve this that work should not be the cause of human suffering...

(4) All.: If the peoples have assimilated this doctrine, they will submit voluntarily to the powers and to the order established by them in the State — Pol.: If they studied this science, the people would submit voluntarily.

to the authority and order established by it in the State. — Am.: The study of this science will lead the masses to voluntary submission to the authorities and to a governmental system organized by them. — Id. Nilus, 1920.

(5) Pol.: ..and the direction we gave it, the populace...

+ Po PP ET

the economic crises that will halt the markets and the pro-(1). We will create a universal economic crisis by all possible indirect means (2) and with the help of Vor which is entirely in our hands. Simultaneously, we
We will throw enormous crowds into the streets throughout Europe of workers. These masses will then be happy to rush on those whom, in their ignorance, they envied from Pen-childhood; they will shed their blood and will then be able to im-to adorn themselves with their possessions.

The Jews will be protected

(Pol.: Inviolability of Jews)

We won't be harmed, because Pat's momenttaque will be known to us and we will take action to protect our interests (3).

Our power will kill liberalism.

(Pol.: The Despotism of Freemasonry, Reign of Reason)

We have persuaded the Gentiles that liberalism (4) would lead to the reign of reason. Our despotism will be this nature, because it will be in a position to crush any rebellion and to eliminate, through just rigor (5), all liberal ideas in all institutions.

The Fall of Power and the Great Revolution

(Pol.: Loss of the Guide. Freemasonry and the Great French Revolution)

When the police realized that in the name of freedom they were... granted all kinds (6) of rights, she imagined herself to be the mistress and tried to seize power. Naturally, Like any other blind person, the mass encountered innom-

Pol. ID: ...stock market affairs and the industrial movement. — All.: ...the Stock market speculations. — Am. and Nilus, 1920: ...financial transactions all industrial life.

(2) Pol.: ...which will be possible for us.

(3) Nilus, 1920, All, Am.: Ours will have no trouble, because the vacation time will be known and we will take the necessary measures suitable for protecting them. — Pol.: The crowds will not touch ours, because

We will know the timing of the attack and we will take the necessary measures.
'to ensure our peace of mind.'

(4) Nilus, 1920, Am. et Pol.: ...progress...

(0) Nilus, 1920 and Pol.: ...and by wise rigor. — Am.: Our despotism serves in such a way that it will be in a position to pacify all revolts by wise restrictions, and eliminating liberalism from all institutions.

(6) Pol. and Am.: of concessions and tolerances...

4 formidable obstacles. So (1), not wanting to return to the old way.

regime, she laid her power at our feet. Remember of the French Revolution, which we call "the Great";
the secrets of its preparation, being the work of our hands, we.
are well known.

The King-Despot of the Blood of Zion

From that moment on, we led the nations of disappointment after disappointment, until they come to us disavow in favour of the King—Despot (2) descended from the blood of Zion. that we are preparing for the world (3).

International Force of Judeo—Masonry
(Pol.: Causes of the inviolability of Freemasonry)

Currently, as an international force, we are invulnerable (4), because if a government of Some people attack us, others support us. The intense (6) abjection of Christian peoples (7) favors our independence — either they crawl on their knees before power, or they be without pity for the weak, without mercy for the faults and leniency towards crimes; either they refuse to to recognize (8) the contradictions (9) of freedom; or finally, that they show themselves patient to the point of martyrdom in their indulgence agency for the violence of a bold despotism (10).

From their current dictators, Presidents of the Council and Ministers, they tolerate abuses for the least of which They are said to have murdered twenty kings (11).

---

(1) Nilas, 1920 and Am.: ..she rushed to In search of a guide, without He had no thought of returning to the old ways, and laid power at our feet. Pol.: she began feverishly searching for a guide, and the thought did not Not realizing that it was necessary to return to the old regime, she deposited her full [bags/bags]. powers at our feet.

(2) All..: ..the word despot is not found there. — Other translations. follow English.

(3) Pol.: to the whole world.

(4) Pol.: ...inviolable.

(5) Pol, et Am.: Goim.

(6) Pol.: The inexhaustible. — Am.: Limitless abjection...

(7) Pol.: ...to support... — Am.: ...to tolerate...

(8) Pol.: ...of a free state. — Am.: ...of a free social state.

(9) Am. and Nilus, 1920: This is what serves our independence. — Pol.: All This serves our independence.

(109 Am. and Pol.: The Gentiles tolerate such abuses on the part of their Current Prime Ministers — dictators. For the slightest of these abuses, They are said to have beheaded twenty kings.

The People's Distorted Education
(Poi.: Role of Freemasonry's secret agents)

How can we explain such a state of affairs? Why the Are masses so logical in their conception of events? ments? (1) Because despots persuade the people, by through their agents, that even if they were doing a misuse of power and harm to the State, this would be for a high purpose, that is, for the sake of prosperity of the people, for the cause of fraternity (2), of unity and of international equality.

Of course, they don't tell them that such a unification cannot to be obtained only under our domination. Thus, we see the populace condemn the innocent and acquit the guilty, convinced (3) that she can always do what she wants. Because of this mindset, the crowd destroys all balance. and creates disorder everywhere.

Freedom

The word "Freedom" puts society in conflict with all the powers, even with that of Nature and with that of God. That is why, when we come to power, it is our The word "Freedom" will have to be erased from the human dictionary. as being the symbol of bestial power that transforms the Men into bloodthirsty animals. But let us remember that These animals fall asleep as soon as they are satiated with blood and It is then easy to charm and enslave them. If one Don't give them blood, they won't sleep and they'll fight. between them (4). |

FOURTH SESSION

(Pol.: Prooés-verbal n° 4)
The Evolution of the Republican State (Pol.: Phases of the Republic)
Every republic goes through various phases. The first

(1) Am.: How can we explain such a phenomenon, such an illogical conception, of the rt of the masses, of events that would seem to be of the same nature? This phenomenon is explained by the fact that these dictators, through their agents, wall- They warn their superiors that, through these abuses, they are harming the States for an elewe purpose... — Id. Nilus, 1920 and Pol.

(2) Pol.: ...international, of union and of equality.

(3) Pol.: ...becoming more and more convinced... —

(4) Am. and Pol.: ...and that it is then easy to chain them; but if one does not Don't give them blood, they don't sleep and they struggle.

resembles the early days of a man's stricken furcur of blindness, which sweeps away and destroys everything to the right and left. The second, it is the reign of the demagogue giving rise to lanarshit (1) to replace it with despotism. This despotism is not not officially legal and, therefore, irresponsible; it is hidden and invisible, yet still perceptible. It is generally located below the control of some secret organization, which acts behind an agent, which makes her all the more audacious and without scruples. This secret power will not hesitate to change its agents which mask it. These changes will benefit Pororganization, which will thus be able to get rid of old servants to which more important gratifications for lcur long service.

/
The Occult Action of Lodges Throughout the World
(Pol.: Exterior Masonry)

By whom or by what could a power be dethroned? Invisible? But that is precisely (2) what our Govern- The Masonic Lodge plays, unconsciously, in the worldwide, the role of a mask that hides our purpose (3). But the use we are going to make of this power in our action plan, and even within our headquarters, remains to never ignored by the world in general.

Freedom and Faith in God. — Destroy them
(Pol.: Liberty and Faith)

Freedom could be harmless and exist in the gou-

(1) Am. and Pol.: ..which infallibly leads to despotism, not to an official and frank despotism, and therefore a responsible one. But to despotism hidden, invisible, no less real because it is exercised by some secret organization, acting more like a mimic in Paise because it hides under the cover and behind the backs of various agents. (Id. Nilus, 1920.) Not only the Changing these agents will not harm this secret force, but it will be favorable, because this will free her from the obligation to pay for free services. fications (All.: ...retirement pensions) to its agents for their long service.

(2) Pol.: our strength. — Am.: the nature of our power.

(3) Pol.: The outer Freemasonry serves as a screen for this power and its goals, but the plan of his action and his headquarters will remain forever unknown to the people. — Id. Nilus, 1920. — The American translator notes: "These are probably the magical Lodges of the European continent which, contrary- adherence to the fundamental principles of Anglo-Saxon Lodges, have been con- "Verted in quasi-political and anti-Christian HAS." (See Encyclopedia) Rritonnica, II, art. Freemasonry, t. XI, p. 84). We cannot share Pillusion of this respectable American. Since January 1920, all our articles have The aim is to prove that global Freemasonry is involved in politics; and In the refutation of the "Protocols", we will show that it is everywhere the Counter-Church. We recommend to the Boston translator the facture of the book by Dr. Prevss: A Study in American Freemasonry; St. Louis MO, Herder 1908. The French translation, edited by us, can be found at the offices of the Review, 96, boulevard Malesherbes, Paris.

governments and countries (1) without being detrimental to the pros- the peril of the people, if it rested on (2) religion and on the fear of God, concerning human brotherhood, free from ideas equality laws that are in direct opposition to the laws of creation who prescribed submission.

Governed by such a faith, the people would be under the tutelage of parishes (3) and would live peacefully and humbly under the direction of spiritual pastors and those submissive to Providence divine on this earth. That is why we must (4) uproot from the spirit of Christians to the very conception of God and replace it with arithmetic calculations and needs materials. |

Commerce and Industry. — Speculation

(Pel.: International Competition in Trade and Industry.) Role of Speculation)

To divert the attention of Christians from our politic (5). It is essential that we attract him to the side of the com– trade and industry; so that all nations struggling for their own interests, they will not concern themselves, in this universal agitation, of their common enemy (6). But, for that freedom can dislocate and ruin the social life of Gentlemen, we must establish trade on a basis speculative, which will result in preventing the Gentiles to retain in their hands the wealth derived from production soil formation; through speculation, they will pass into our chests.

The Golden Calf

(Pol.: The Cult of Por)

The struggle (7) for superiority and the speculations continue nuelles in the business world will create a demo– society realized, selfish, and heartless. This society will become completely indifferent to religion and (8) politics which

---

(1) Am. and Pol. Delete (and the countries).

(2) Am. and Poal.: ...on faith in God and brotherhood... |

(3) Am. ct Pol.: Possessing such a faith, the people would be led by the parish councils... — All.: ...the people would be under the tutelage of the clergy.

(4) Am. and Pol.: ..undermine the faith, tear from the spirit of the Golms even to the notions of God and Soul and replacing them...

(5) Pol.: Not wanting the spirit of the Goim to come to think and act attention...

(6) Am. and Pol.: Then all the peoples will seek their own interest, and in This struggle will not pay attention to their common enemy.

(7) Am. and Pol.: The intense struggle for supremacy, the upheavals in the Economic life will create, and has already created, jaded, cold, and devoid societies.

heart.
(8) Am. and Pol.: ..high politics.

She will even feel disgust. Gold's passion will be her only guide and she will make every effort to obtain this gold (1) who alone can guarantee her the material pleasures she has made its true cult. Then the lower classes will join to us against our competitors — the privileged Good Guys (2) — without alleging any lofty goal, or even love of wealth, but out of pure hatred for the upper classes.

FIFTH SESSION

(Police: Report No. 5)

Jewish despotic government
(Pol: Organization of a reinforced Centralization of the Administration)

What kind of government can be given to societies?
where bribery (3) and corruption have penetrated everywhere, where Wealth can only be acquired through clever overtaken or by fraudulent means (4), where the disputes continually dominate (5), where morality must be subheld by punishment and by severe laws and not by principles voluntarily accepted; where feelings pa– Triadic and religious (6) are drowning in cos– convictions mopolites? i

What other form of government can be given to these societies, if not the despotic form that I am going to tell you Describe?

We want to organize a strong, central government.
so as to obtain social powers for ourselves (7).
Through new laws, we will regulate (8) the political life of our subjects, as if they were so many cogs in a machine China. Such laws will gradually restrict freedom and all the privileges granted by the Gentiles. Our reign will will thus develop into a despotism so powerful that it will be able to

(1) Am. and Pol.: ...this gold for which they (the societies) will have a real worship for the sake of the material pleasures that only he can provide them.

(2) Am. and Pol.: intelligent.

(3) Am. and Pol.: venality.

(4) Nilus 1920 and Pol.: ...semi-fraudulent...

(5) Am. and Pol.: where debauchery reigns...

(6) Am.: where cosmopolitan convictions have eliminated pa-Triology and religion? - Pol.: where patriotic and religious sentiments disappeared as a result of the development of cosmopolitan theories.

(7) Am. and Pol.: We want to create a reinforced centralization of the gov-government, so as to take all social forces into our hands.

(S) Am, and Pol.: We will adjust mechanically...

at any time and in any place crush the discontented Gentiles -or (1) recalcitrant.

We will be told that the kind of despotism I am suggesting will not will not agree with the current progress of civilization (2),
But I will prove you wrong.

Judeo-Masonic power based on ruin of Religion

(Pol.: Means of seizing power through Freemasonry)

In the time when the people believed in the divine right of their sovereignty rains (3), he peacefully submitted to the despotism of his monarchs. But, from the day we inspired the populace the notion of her own rights, she regarded kings as mere mortals (4); the sacred anointing disappeared from his eyes, And when we had taken away his religion, the power was thrown into the streets as public property, and we...
We seized. Moreover (5), among our administrative talents, we also include the power to govern the masses and the individuals through skillful phraseology and theories-constructed rules of life and all sorts of strategies tagems. All these theories, which the Gentiles do not comp-
They take nothing from it, are based on analysis and observation, combined with reasoning so skillful that it cannot be matched by our rivals, no more than they can enter 'competing with us in the construction of action plans-political and solidarity action. To our knowledge, the only a society capable of competing with us in this science would be that of the Jesuits. But we have succeeded in discerning-to appear in the eyes of the stupid crowd, as being an organi-apparent sation, while we remained in the behind the scenes, our organization is operating in a hidden way.

Furthermore, what difference does that make to the world?
Let the one who is to become his master be the head of the Church

(1) Am. and Pol.: ...and...

(2) Mfius 1920, Am. and Pol.: ..delete the words: of civilization. :

(3) Nites 1920, Am. and Pol.: At the time when peoples considered their sovereigns as manifestations (Pol.: incarnations) of divine will-

(4) Am. and Pol.: The character of consecration by divine choice disappears-rat of the kings' brow, in the eyes of the people.

(5) Am. and Pol.: Moreover, the talent to govern the masses and individuals at a means of phraseology... ... belongs, among other faculties, to the characteristics eee of our administrative wisdom formed by analysis and observation-

We...

Catholic or a despot of the blood of Zion? But 4 we, the “Chosen people,” the matter cannot be indifferent.

Disunity and selfishness of Christian peoples

` (Pol.: Causes of the impossibility of agreement between States)

For a while, the Good Guys might perhaps to get along with us (1). But, on this point, we do not co-we would be in no danger, being protected by the deep roots born of their mutual hatred which cannot be eradicated.
We have put all the disagreements among ourselves personal and national interests of the Gentiles for nearly twenty centuries, mixing in religious prejudices and tribe (2). From all this, it follows that not a single government-ment (3) will not find support among his neighbors when he does against us, they appealed to them for help, because each of them thought-will be ({) that an action brought against us could be de-Static for its individual existence. We are too powerful — the world must reckon with us. The powerful governments — nements cannot even make a treaty of little importance.
support without our being secretly involved.

The Jews, the chosen people

Per me reges regunt (5): "Let kings reign through me."

We read in the Law of the Prophets (6) that we have They were chosen to rule the earth. God gave us genius so that we can accomplish this work. If he finds himself-had a genius in the enemy camp, he could, however, we fight, but a newcomer could not measure up-to return to old wrestlers of our kind, and the fight would be between us, of such a desperate nature, that the world has no Never seen anything like it before. It's already too late for their genius.

maintained for twenty centuries. — All.: hatreds of race and religion.
(3) All.: not a single Christian government...
(4) Pol.: ...that every man should think...
$ a ae "Per me reges regnant". — Am.: Id. — Nilus 1920: Id. - ol.: Id.
(6) Pol.: The Prophets have announced to us... — Nilus 1920: It has been as said by the Prophets...

Gold, a true governmental power

(Pol.: Gold, as the driving force behind government mechanisms)

All the cogs in the machinery of the State are driven by a force (1), which is in our hands, namely: gold.

The science of political economy, developed (2) by our scholars have already proven that the power of capital surpasses the prestige of the crown (3).

The Monopoly of Commerce and Industry

Capital, in order to have free rein, must obtain (4) the monopoly of industry and commerce. This is underway to be achieved, in all parts of the world, by a invisible hand. Such a privilege will grant political power.
than to industrialists who, enriching themselves with excessive profits, will oppress the people (5).

Nowadays, it is more important to tell the people than to lead him to war. It is more important to use For our cause, the burning passions must be extinguished.
to encourage the ideas of others and to use them for our own designs than to exclude them (6).

The destructive role of our press

(Pol.: Importance of oretics)

The essential problem of our government (7) is that-ci: how to weaken public opinion through criticism, how to make him lose his reasoning power, that which engenders opposition, and how to distract the mind public by meaningless phraseology?

The oratorical displays of the Judeo-Masons

(Pol.: Institutions "for sight")

Throughout history, nations, like individuals, have taken

(1) Pol.: by an engine...

(2) ALL: invented by our scholars.
(3) ALH: ...the power of capital is unlimited. — Nilus 1920: Id.
(4) Pol.: ...the freedom to organize. I have a monopoly...

(5) Pol.: This freedom gives political power to industrialists, which will contribute to the oppression of the people.

(6) AIL: ...than to destroy them by iron and by fire. — Am.: ...and of them.
interpret in our own way that... — Nilus 1920, Id.

(7) All.: ...of our secret government...

words for deeds. Satisfied with what (1) they hear-tooth (2), they rarely notice if the promise has true-ment was held (3). That is why, for the sole purpose of para-we will organize institutions whose members, by eloquent speeches will prove and glorify (4) their (5) contribution to “Progress” (6).

We will adopt a liberal attitude towards all parties and all tendencies (7), and we the com-
We will communicate (tr. am.: ...we will impose...) to all our speakers.
These speakers will be so verbose that they will tire the people of their speeches, to such an extent that they will return all kinds of praise to him.
unbearable frequency.

Corruption of Public Opinion

(Pol.: How to seize control of public opinion)

To secure public opinion, one must, first of all, to completely confuse him by making him hear everything sides (8) and in any case contradictory opinions, until the Gentiles are lost in their maze.
They will then understand that the best course of action is to to have no opinion on political matters; a matter which has no not been understood by the public, but which must be exclusively reserved for those (ir. am. : ...& he...) who run the business.
This is the first secret.

The second secret, necessary for the success of our government-ment, consists of multiplying the errors to such a degree, the habits, passions and (9) conventional laws of a country where no one is capable of thinking clearly anymore in this chaos; men will thus cease to understand each other treat each other.

This policy will also help us sow dissen-

(1) Pol.: ...which is on display….

(2) Am.: ...see...

(3) Am.: ...if the promise has entered the realm of social life. —
Nilus 1920, Id. — Pol.: ...on the social field.

(4) Pol.: and glorify (non-existent).

(5) Pol.: ...beneficial...

(6) Pol.: (subtitle): Fatigue produced by eloquence.

(7) Pol.: We will adopt the liberal attitude of all parties and of all trends...

(8) Pol.: ..on all sides so many contradictory opinions and at such length that the Gentiles are lost in their labyrinth, and that they understand that The best course of action is to have no opinion on political matters; a matter that has not been understood by the public, because only the public understands who
He runs the company. This is the first secret.

(9) Pel.: ...lcs conditions of common wie...

we should dissolve all the powerful parties communities (1) and to discourage any individual initiative which could hinder our projects.

Destruction of Personal Initiative
(Pol.: Importance of Personal Initiative)

There is nothing more dangerous than personal initiative. nelle (2): if there was a brain behind it, it could do us more harm than the millions of individuals we we have pitted them against each other.

We need to direct the education of Christian societies, of in such a way that, whenever the initiative is required to In a business venture, they admit defeat with despair. tension produced by freedom of action (3) loses its strength as soon as it clashes with the freedom of others; hence, the clashes morals, disappointments and failures.

The Jewish Supergovernment

(Pol.: The Supergovernment)

By all these means we will oppress (4) so much the Christians hold that they will be forced to ask us (5) to them to govern internationally. As soon as we have reached From such a position, we will be able to immediately absorb (6) touall the governmental powers of the world and forsea a universal supergovernment (7). We will replace existing governments by a monster we call-We will let the Supergovernment Administration. His hands will extend far and wide like long pincers (8) and it will have at his disposal an organization such that he will not be able to manquer to subdue all nations.

---

(1) Pol.: ...who do not want to submit to us...

(2) Pol.: If she's brilliant, she could make more than millions...

(3) Am.: .individual...

(4) Am.: ...we will tire...

(5) AIL: ...to offer us Phegemonte worldwide... — MP: to offer us international power. — Nius 1920, Id. — Pol.: ...to seize power international which, thanks to its arrangement of all things, will be in t of To unite all...

(6) Am.: .. "without destroying them... — Nilus 1920, id.

(7) Pol.: universal (non-existent).

(8) Pol.: ..on all sides like tennis players… — Alli.: years all the

ons. — MP: its tentacles will extend in all directions and its organi-The settlement will be so colossal that it will dominate all the nations of the world. Stlas 1920, Id.

SIXTH SESSION
(Police: Report No. 6)

Absorption of Fortunes by the Jewish Monopoly

(Pol.: Monopolies and the fortunes of the Goim are dependent on us)

Soon we will start organizing large monopoles, — reservoirs of colossal wealth (1) in which the great fortunes of the Gentiles will be the ones to enter, in so that they will sink together, with the credit of the cur government, the day after the political crisis (2).

Let the economists (3) present among you today They only realize the importance of this plan!

We must employ every possible means to develop (4) the popularity of our Supergovernly, presenting him as the protector and the rewarder of all those who voluntarily submit to us.

To ruin the landed fortune of the aristocracy through taxes

(Pol.: To expel the aristocracy from their landed properties)

The Gentile aristocracy, as a political power, is not more. It is therefore pointless for us to deal with it (5) now at this point of view; but, as landowners, the aristocrats are still dangerous to us, because their Their independence is ensured by their resources. It is up to us.

It was therefore essential to strip the aristocracy of its his lands (6). To achieve this goal, the best method is to raise (7) taxes and duties. This method maintains-

---

(1) Pol.: on which great fortunes will depend...
(2) (Note from the English text): It is obviously implied that the Jews would withdraw their capital at the last minute.

(3) All.: That the Jews... — Nilus 1920: "Message the Economists here "Present, consider the importance of this combination!" — Pol.: ...present among you today (non-existent).

— That's what's being done in Russia today. Everyone knows: the Sugar Syndicate, Naphtha Syndicate (Nobel, Rothschild), Wheat Syndicate (Jews), Fish Syndicate (Jews and Armenians). — (Editor's Note).

(4) Pol.: importance of our supergovernment...

(5) Pol.: henceforth from this point of view (non-existent).

(6) Pol.: (subtitle): Mortgages on land.

(7) Pol.: ...taxes and indebting the land. — All.: land taxes. —— Am.: taxes and indebting the land. This method will hold the landed property enslavement, under the pretext of the decline of agriculture and livestock farming.
— Nilus 1920: and to indebt the land. These measures will reduce landed property a path to the most absolute slavery.

will reduce income from real estate to a minimum. The aristocrats-Gentile crates who, by the tastes they have inherited, are inca-
Those who can be content with little will soon be ruined.

Commerce. — Industry. — Stock market fluctuations. Speculation

(Pol.: Commerce. — Industry. — Speculation)

At the same time, we need to protect as much as possible trade and industry, and especially speculation lation, whose main role is to serve as a counterweight to the industry.

Without speculation, industry would increase primary capital.
and would tend to boost agriculture by freeing the land (1) of debts and mortgages advanced by banks agricultural. It is essential that the industry drains all the ri-the riches of the earth and that speculation pours into our hands these same riches thus captured. By this means, all the
The good people will be thrown into the ranks of the proletariat. Then, the
The kind (2) will bow before us to obtain the right to exist.

Developing luxury

(Pol.: Luxury)

In order to ruin the Gentiles' industry and activate speculation, we will encourage the love of unbridled luxury that we we have already developed (3).

Wage Increases and Cost of Living Prices Foodstuffs

(Pol.: Wage increases and rising prices of goods)
(basic necessities)

We will increase wages, which will not relieve the workers, because, at the same time, we will raise the price of L

---

(1) Pol.: ….of mortgages advanced by agricultural banks. It is essentialsuch that industry derives from the land both labor and capital, and that special-culture places all the riches of the world into our hands.

(2) All.: will become poor fools and will bow down...

(3) All.: we will push the Gentiles into excessive spending, out of proportion to their means, and we will eventually lead them to live without no worries about tomorrow. — Pol.: ...we will develop among the Goim the the need for luxury that engulfs everything basic necessities, under the pretext (1) of bad harvests (2).

Anarchy through Alcoholism
(Nilus: Anarchy and Alcoholism)

We also want to undermine production at its base in (3) sowing seeds of anarchy among the workers and in flat-so much so their taste for alcohol. We will employ, at the same time time, every possible means to drive all from the earth the intelligence of the Gentiles (4).

Deceiving the Workers with Our Economic Doctrines
(Pol.: But secret of the propagation of economic doctrines)

So that the Gentiles do not surrender prematurely taking into account the true business situation, we conceal it Lerons under an apparent desire to help the working classes in the solution of major economic problems, including our Economic theories facilitate the propaganda of all kinds.
possible ways.

SEVENTH SESSION

(Police: Report No. 7)

The purpose of large-scale armaments

(Pol.: The purpose of strengthening armaments)

The intensification of military service (5) and the increase police forces are (6) essential to the achievement of plans mentioned above. We need to arrange the things in such a way that outside of us there is in all the a country with a vast proletariat, all of whose individuals are... will have as many soldiers and police officers dedicated to our cause (7).

---

(1) Pol.: ..of the poor state of agriculture and livestock farming.

(2) All.: „and the poor result of the breeding.

(3) Pol.: ...by accustoming the workers to anarchy and by flattering...

(4) Am.: to expel from the country all the ...intelligent.

(5) All. and Pol.: ...of armaments.

(6) Pol.: ..essential complements to our plans...

(7) All.: ...and a small number of millionaires dependent on us... — Am.: Ibid. — Nilus, 1920, Ibid. — Pol.: ...a handful of millionaires devoted to Our cause: the police and the soldiers.

has

Fermentation, Struggles, Inimi

°,ef

tied up all over the world

Throughout Europe, and with the help of Europe, on the authree continents, we must incite sedition, dissension unions and mutual hostility. There is a twofold advantage to this:
first we (1) command respect by these means (2) of all the countries that know very well that we have the power to create uprisings or to restore Order. All countries are accustomed to using our services.
when repression becomes necessary (3). Secondly,
We will entangle, through intrigues, all the threads woven by us in the ministries of all governments, no only through our policy, but through con-commercial agreements and financial obligations (4).

To achieve these goals, we will need to resort to many of cunning and artifice during negotiations and debates; but in what is called "official language", we seemWe will adopt the opposite tactic and appear honest. and conciliatory. Thus (5), the governments of the Gentiles, to whom we have learned to only look at the bright side of things res, as we present them to them, will consider us even as the benefactors and saviors of humanity.

Taming the Gentiles through Private Wars and by the World War

We must be able to respond to any opposition © by a declaration of war from the neighboring country of the State which dares to stand in our way; but if these neighbors, at In turn, they had to decide to unite against us; it would be necessary to respond by unleashing a world war.

The Art of Political and Judeo-Masonic Secrecy

(Pol.: The secret, as a factor in political success)

In politics (6), the key to success lies in the degree of

(1) Pol.: ..we keep all countries in check by these means...
(2) ALL.: the fear...
(3) Am.: All the ys have come to regard us as a burden ire. — Nilus 1920, Id. — Pol.: ...accustomed to seeing in us an oppressnecessary sion.
(4) Pol.: Secondly, we will confuse, through intrigues, all the aa ui unite us with the governments of all countries through the polititrade agreements and franci-meter obligations.
Ts) Pol.: ...the peoples and... that the external side of affairs and us their Let us ask... — Am.: ...and look only at the surface of things... Nilus 1920, Id.
ai) Pol.: $ The main key to success is the secret where its breasts.

a secret that was kept to achieve it. The actions of a Diplomats do not have to match their words.

The Press, Public Opinion and Our Success

(Pol.: The Press and Public Opinion)

To further our global plan, which is nearing completion To achieve our desired ends, we need to influence governments of the Gentiles by what is called public opinion, predictposed (1) by us by means of the greatest of all the powers: the press, which, apart from a few insignificant exconcepts, which are not worth dwelling on, are entirely in our hands (2).

In short, in order to (3) demonstrate that all governments of The gentle people of Europe are enslaved to us, we will demonstrate our power to one of them, through crimes, violence, that is to say, by a reign of terror (4), and, in case they They would all revolt against us, we would respond with the (5) American, Chinese, or Japanese rifles.

EIGHTH SESSION

(Police: Report No. 8)

The maze of Procedure |

(Pol.: Double-edged use of the Code of Laws)

We must ensure all the means at our disposal for our enemies- They could use this against us. We will resort to the most obscure and complicated expressions of dictionary of the law, in order to justify ourselves in the event that we would be forced to make decisions that could seem too bold or unfair. For it will be important (6) to express such decisions in such a forceful manner, that in the eyes of the people they might appear to be of an ex- nature cessively moral, equitable and just.

(1) Am.: secretly. — Pol.: ...in secret...

(2) Pol.: (subtitle), American, Chinese and Japanese canons.

(3) Pol: "summarize our system for taming governments of Goim of Europe, we will demonstrate...

(4) Note the current state of Russia (Note from the English text). — Am.:

By means of assassination and terrorism, — Nilus 1920: … that is to say by terror.

(5) Pol.: "cannons...

(6) Pol.: to publish these decisions in such expressions that may to appear the highest moral ordinances.

THE "PROTOCOLS" OF THE ELDERS OF ZION - 6)

The Auxiliaries of Judeo-Masonry
(Pol.: The Auxiliaries of the Masonic Administration)

Our government will need to surround itself with all the powers that aspects of the civilization within which he will have to act. He will attract to him (1) publicists, lawyers (2), practitioners, administrators, diplomats, and, finally, all those who we will have trained in our special modernist schools-your (3).

Our Special Schools and their purpose
(Pol.: Our Special Schools and Higher Education)

These people will know (4) the secrets of social life, they will be masters of all the languages (5) gathered in the political vocabulary; they will thoroughly understand the internal side of the laughing at human nature with all its most sensitive strings on which they will have to play (6). These strings are sensitive and will have to be played (6). constitute the brains of the Gentiles, their good and their bad their qualities, their tendencies and their vices, the particulars-rites of castes and classes. It goes without saying that these wise men advisors of our power (7) to whom I am referring, will not be chosen from among the Gentiles who are accustomed to continue their administrative work without keeping in mind the results they must achieve without knowing for what purpose These results are required. The administrators of the Good Guys sign documents they don't read and use for love of money or ambition (8).

Economists and Millionaires

We will surround our government with an entire army of economists (9). This is why the science of Economics (10) is the main subject taught to Jews. We will have thousands of bankers around us (11), of

(1) Am. and Pol.: He will surround himself with...

(2) Am. and Pol.: ...experienced...

(3) Am., All., Pol. and Nilus 1920: ...and finally of people who had received an education-special tion in our special schools. (Am. adds: higher education).

(4) Am. and Pol.: all the secrets...

(5) Am. and Pol.: formed from political letters and words...

(6) Am. and Pol.: they will have to know how to play...

(7) Am. and Pol.: ..that these brilliant collaborators of our power...

(8) All.: without special purpose. — Nilus 1920: ...out of ambition...

(9) Am.: ...of an entire world... — Pol.: ...of an entire general staff...

(10) Am. and Pol.: the economic sciences are...

(1) Am. and Pol.: ...of industrialists and capitalists...

traders and, more importantly, millions- because, in reality, money will decide everything.

Entrusting important positions to crazy people

(Pol.: To whom should important government positions be entrusted)

However, until he is sure of filling the positions of government by our Jewish brothers (1), we will entrust these important positions given to people whose background and rep- their practices are so bad that they form an abyss between them and the nation, and (2) to such men, that in the event they violate-

If they obey our orders, they could expect to be judged and imprisoned (3). And all this with the aim of forcing them to to defend our interests until their last breath.

NINTH SESSION

(Police: Report No. 9)

Applying our principles to rehabilitation Peoples

When applying our principles, pay particular attention to the character of the particular nation within which you live and have to work (4). You shouldn't expect to succeed by applying our doctrines everywhere, until the nation in question has been re-educated by our principles; but, by proceeding with caution in their application, you will discover that before the age of ten (5) the most stubborn will have changed, and we have added a nation of more to those who have already submitted to us.

Destruction of the ruling powers

(Pol.: Masonic slogan)

To the liberal formula (6) of our Masonic motto:

---

(1) All.: ..places a question mark after the words "Jewish brothers". — Nilus, Am. and Pol. do not have any.

(2) Pol.: and who, in case...

(3) Am. and Pol.: to be condemned or exiled.

15, PA fat L it is not necessary...

(Ministry of the Interior was in power. It has a more years (Editor's Note, Nilus 4920). to ý E Iag

(6) Pol.: To the liberal formula, in reality to our Masonic motto... — heer Ma: "which, in short, was launched into the world by our Lodges" Zionists...

RE ee y,

'}

“Liberty, Equality, Fraternity” we will substitute (1) no not the words of our motto, but words expressing simsimply an idea, and we will say: "The right of Liberty, the duty of Equality and the idea (2) of Fraternity”, thus holding the bull by the horns (3). In fact, we have already destroyed all the ruling powers, except our own; but, in theorylaughter, they still exist (4).

Antisemitism

(Pol.: Importance of Anti-Semitism)

Currently, if some governments are regraspable in our case (5), it is merely a formality, and everything happens with our knowledge and full consent because we need their anti-se- excesses mites to keep our inferior brothers in order (6). I will not elaborate on this point, which has already been the subject of numerous discussions.

The Despotism of Judeo-Masonry

(Pol.: Dictatorship of Freemasonry)

All in all, we will encounter no opposition. Our government (7) is in such an extraordinary situationclearly strong before the law that we can almost define it by the energetic expression "dictatorship." I can honestlyclearly to say that, for the present time, we are legislators (8); we hold assemblies and inflict punishments; we put to death or grant pardons; we summy, so to speak, the commander-in-chief riding at the head of all armies. We rule by force powerful (9) because the remnants of a party, once powerful, are in our hands; this party is now assured to us-

D Am. and Pol.: in case we have the power...
(2) Am. and Pol.: ... ideal...

(3) 4m.: Thus we shall speak and... we shall have seized the goat by the horns. — Pol.: We will say and... we will seize the goat...

(4) Am: and Pol.: ...f1 there are still many of them.

(5) Am. and Pol.: are beginning to protest against us...

(6) Am. and Pol.: We need anti-Semitism to govern our inferior brothers. — All.: to maintain the cohesion of our brothers of the lower classes.

(7) Am. and Pol.: Our supergovernment finds itself in this situation if extra-legal, which we usually refer to using a strong expression and energetic: the dictatorship. — Id. Nilus, 1920.

(8) Am.: ...of the judges...

(9) Am. and Pol.: We will govern with an indomitable will...

Jetti. We have unlimited ambitions, a covetousness a consuming, merciless revenge and intense hatred.

The Terror

We are the source of a terror spreading 'to far (1).

The Servants of Judeo-Masonry

We have people of all opinions and backgrounds working for us. all parties: men eager to restore the monarchies chies (2), socialists, communists and partisans of all sorts of utopias. We put them all under the harborn; each, in his own way (3), undermines the rest of the power and tries to destroy existing laws (4). By this process, all governments are tortured (5); they scream to demandsea rest (6); and, for the love of peace (7), they are ready for any sacrifice. But we will not leave them no peace until they have (8) recognized our Superinternational government.

The people, groaning (9), demanded the indispensable solution addressing social problems through international means. Party disputes placed these matters in our hands. Because leading the opposition requires money, and (10) the money is under our control.

Conflict between the Power and the People

(Pol.: Separation between the forces of foresight and the forces of blindness)
(in the states of the Goyim)

We feared (11) the alliance of sovereign power Raine and experienced from the Gentile with blind power of the crowd, but we took all the necessary measures measures to eliminate the possibility of such an eventuality.

---

(1) All.: universal terror... — Am. and Pol.: terror extending to all
(2) Am. and Pol.: ...demagogues...

(3) Pol.: gnaws like a worm...

(4) Am. and Pol.: ...all the established order. — Id. Nilus 1920 and All.

(5) All.: are thrown into confusion...

(6) Am. and Pol.: they are asking for peace...
(7) Pol.: ...and, to obtain...

(8) Am. and Pol.: ...openly and humbly acknowledged...
(9) Pol.: "advertisement, as indispensable...
(10) Am. and Pol.: ...and all Pargent is in our possession.

(11) Am.: We might fear... — Pol.: We could have feared...

Between these two powers, we have erected a wall, under the form of terror they feel for each other. Thus the blind power of the mob remains for us support. We alone will be her leaders and guide her towards our goal.

Our ties with the People

(Pol.: Union of authority and people)

So that the blind man's hand cannot be freed from our embrace, we must be (1) in constant contact with the masses, if not personally, at least through of our most faithful brothers. When we have become a recognized authority, we will address personally to the people, in the public squares, and we will educate them political cation in the sense (2) whichever suits us.

How can we control what is taught at people in rural schools? (3). In any case, it is Certain that what is said by the government delegate, or by the sovereign himself, cannot fail to be known of the entire nation, the voice of the people spreading it immediately.

The Liberal organization

(Pol.: Liberal Arbitrariness)

~

In order not to prematurely destroy the institutions (4) of the Gentiles, we have touched them with our experiential hand mented, and we seized the ends of their springs mechanism. These used to operate according to a ordre stern, but fair; we substituted an organism unregulated liberalism (5). We have seized control of the jurisdiction, on electoral maneuvers, on the direction of the press, on the development of individual freedom, and, what is Most importantly, on (6) education, the main support of free existence.

(1) Am. ct Pol.: ...sometimes...

(2) Pol.: ...which will be recognized as necessary.

(3) This sentence is missing from the Polish translation. It exists in Nilus.

(4) All.: ...political and social.

(5) Am.: ..we have substituted for it a liberal, disorderly and anarchy Arbitrary. — Pol. (subtitle): Control over instruction and education.

(6) Pol.: …instruction and education, the main supports.. — AllL: ...on Education, the main support of true freedom,

Corruption of the Gentiles and their laws
(Pol.: False theories)

We have stupefied and corrupted (1) the current generation Gentiles, by teaching him principles and theories that we knew to be entirely false, but that we had ourselves instilled (2). Without actually amending the laws already in force, but simply by circumventing them and by interpreting them (3) in a way that those who had not foreseen They designed them, and we obtained an extraordinary result. Very useful.

The Interpretation of the Laws

These results could first be observed in the fact that our interpretation obscured the true meaning of the laws, and the consequently rendered them so unintelligible that it was impossible for the government to... government to unravel such a confusing Code,

From this came the theory (4) of not adhering to the letter of the law, but to judge according to one's conscience.

Destruction of cities by underground tunnels

(Pol.: Underground tunnels)

It will be objected that the nations (5) could take the weapons against us if our plans were prematurely discovered; but, with regard to this possibility, we can relying on the activation of such a formidable force that it would make even the bravest men tremble (6). Until then, metropolitan railways and underground passages

(1) Pol.: We have stupefied and corrupted the youth... —: Am.: We have The youth have been led astray, stupefied, corrupted and demoralized...
: (2) Pol.: (subtitle), Interpretation of laws.

(3) Am. and Pol.: ...by disfiguring them and by interpreting them in contrary ways dictatorships, we have obtained amazing results.
(4) Pol': judgments of conscience. — (Note from the American text):

a This probably means the established practice of not applying the not even the letter of the law, but to judge according to conscience. In the countries Europeans, jurors are not required to render their verdict in accordance with
(to the articles of the law).

(5) All.: "in their fury. — Pol.: You assert that Jes Goim throws himself—Hee ts we with weapons in hand if they prematurely understand what it is.

(6) Pol.: These are the tunnels for the metro which, by then, will be built in all the capitals... At the appointed time, from these underground places Rains, we will blow them up along with all their institutions and documents public. — Nilus 1920 and Am.: national documents. — All.: In case of.
danger to us, we will blow up cities from these underground places entire buildings, with their administrative premises, offices, archives, the Goym and all that they possess.

TT ea eS

SS ee =
Oy, Ee,

Rains will be built in all cities. From these places Underground, we will blow up all the cities of the world.
with their institutions and their documents (1).

TENTH SESSION
(Police: Report No. 40)

Appearances and Jewish Politics

(Pol.: Appearances in politics) /

Today, I will begin by repeating what has been said previously, and I ask you all to remember that in politically, governments and nations are satisfied by the apparent side (2) of everything. Yes, and how at-
Would they have time to examine its interior, while
Do their representatives only think about pleasure?

It is of the utmost importance to our policy of do not lose sight of the detail mentioned above which we will be of great help when we discuss the questions elements such as the distribution of powers, freedom of the freedom of speech, freedom of the press and of religion, the right to association ciation equality before the law, the inviolability (3) of the pro-property and residence, the question of taxation (the idea of an imp-secret pot) and the retroactive force of laws. All the que-analogous tions are of such a nature that it would not be

It is prudent to discuss them openly before the people; but, in case it becomes necessary to speak about it to the crowd, he
We must not list them, corn (4) to do, without going into the
In detail, presentations concerning the principles of mo- law derne, as being recognized by us.

The importance (5) of the reluctance lies in the fact that a a principle not openly proclaimed leaves us freedom of action, while (6) this same principle, once declared, can be considered established.

m This is probably an agon relating to means similar to those of the rE ee (Note from the text).

(3) Pol.: ...appearances.. —— Am.: not visible results.

| (3) All.: of the person. — id Nilus 1920. — Am.: ...the right of assembly... "direct tax

(4) Am., Pol. and Nilus 1920: ...one must not dwell on it, but declare, without but in detail, that we 'recognize the principles of modern law.

(5) Am. and Pol.: ...of this reluctance...

(6) Ail.: "while the rights of the people, once enumerated, are considered as a given.

Success always prevails.

(Pol.: Genius of falsehood)

The nation holds in great respect the power of a genius politics (1); it supports his boldest acts and the He commented: "What a dirty trick, but how well he was treated!" "Played!" — "What a swindle, but how well it was done!" and with what courage! (2) » |

We count (3) on attracting all nations, working to build the foundations of the new building which we have makes the plans (4). For this, we need to acquire the competition bold and daring agents, capable of overcoming all obstacles that would hinder our progress (5).

Jewish success through lies and the vote of the people

(Pol.: What the Masonic Coup d'État Promises)

When we carry out our "coup d'état", we will say to people: "Everything has gone very badly so far, you have all suffered; we are now destroying the cause of your suffering Frances, namely: homelands, borders and (6) values national financial institutions. Of course, you will be free to contact us. damn it, but will your judgment be just if you proannounce without having experienced what we can do "For your own good?"

Then, in a surge of hope and exultation, they brought usThey will be carried in triumph on their shoulders. The power of vote (7) — of which we have invested the most informed members significant to humanity by organizing meetings and pre-arranged agreements — will then play its last role; this power, by means of which "we are having ascended the throne," will pay off (8) his last debt

---

(1) Am. and Pol.: The peoples harbor a particular affection and a Special respect for political genius.

(2) Nilus 1920, Pol. et Am.: ...and with her majesty and what poise!

a All.: We Jews... — Pol.: We intend to attract... to tra-watch...

(4) All.: ...since a M rs

we need to stock up on supplies and secure this bold activity and that strength of spirit which, embodied in our agents, breaks all the obstacles that would hinder our progress.

(6) Am. and Pol.: ...and the divergence between the currencies.

(7) Pol.: Voting, which has become for us a means of ruling, because we we invested in it...

(8) Pol.: of his service by unanimity in the desire to know us take a closer look before condemning us.

towards us by expressing his anxiety about seeing the result of our proposal before pronouncing his judgment.

Universal Suffrage

To obtain an absolute majority (1), we will need to Let's bring everyone to vote, without distinction of classits (2). This majority could not be obtained by the — educated classes or a society divided into castes.

Jewish Power Destroying the Family under despotism

(Pol.: Personal value)

Having thus filled man's mind with his own importance (3), we will destroy the family life of the Gentiles and its educational influence; we will prevent men of value to break through, and, under our direction, the populace will hold them under the yoke and will not even allow them to exhibit to tighten their plans.

The crowd (4) is used to listening to us, we who pay His attention and obedience. We will create, through these means, a force (5) so blind that it will never be capable of impossible to make any decision without the advice of our agents, pla-created by us to guide her (6).

The crowd will therefore submit to this system, because it will know that his wages, his earnings and all other benefits will come via these guides.

Design and Command Unit

(Pol.: The brilliant leader of Freemasonry)

The (7) system of government must be the work of a only one head, because it would be impossible to consolidate it if it

---

(1) Pol.: To arrive at the absolutism of the majority.

(2) All.: ...and fortune...

(3) Pol.: Having thus accustomed everyone to understanding their personal worth, We will destroy the influence of the family among the Gentiles...

(4) Pol.: ...has gotten used to listening to us, and us alone, because we pay her attention.

(5) Pol.: blind, unable to take...

(6) Am.: ...our agents sent by us to replace their leaders.

Pol.: ...our agents who are taking the place of his superiors. — (Subtitled): Superiors of Freemasonry.

(7) Am. and Pol.: The plan...

was the combined work of many minds. (It is why (1), we are only allowed to know the plan action, but we must not, in any way, discuss it-ter (2), under penalty of destroying (3) its effectiveness, the functions of its various parts and the practical meaning of each of its points. If such plans were to be discussed and altered through repeated voting, they would be deformed as a result of the erroneous conceptions of the voters who would not have explored their meaning further (4). It is therefore necessary (5) that our plans be decisive and logically designed (6). That is why it is not necessary to launch to the crowd, or even to a small coterie, so that it might be put in pieces, the great work of our leader. These plans do not... They will not dismantle existing institutions for the time being. will only change their economic theory, and, consequently, all the course of their procedures which will then inevitably follow-the path prescribed by our plans.

Undermining the institutions of the Goim states

(Pol.: Institutions and their functions)

The same institutions exist in all countries; their Only the names differ: the Chambers, the Ministries, the Senat (7), a Privy Council, Legislative and Administrative Departments nistrative (8).

I don't need to explain the mechanism that links these various institutions, you are already well acquainted with him. Remember only that each of the aforementioned institutions corresponds corresponds to some important function of the government. (I am-applies the word "important" not to institutions, but to their functions) (9). |

All these institutions shared all the functions

(1) Pol.: ...we are allowed to know the plan of action.

(2) Pol.: ...condemn him.

(3) Nilus 1920, Am. and Pol.: ...under penalty of destroying its genius, the Hens of its constituent parts and the practical force of the secret meaning of each of its points.

(4) Am.: ...and the correlation of their goals. — Pol.: in the ballot, they would bear the mark of all the erroneous conceptions that would not have penetrated the depth and connection of the designs of this plan.

(5) All.: It is therefore sufficient...

(6) All.: ...logically executed.

(7) All.: ...the Council of State, the High Court of Justice...

(8) Pal.: ...of the legislative and executive bodies.

(9) Pol. and Am.: therefore, it is not the institutions, but the functions that are important.

om

DL ne, gee

government functions, that is to say, administrative power, The legislative branch and the executive branch. And their functions have become similar to those of the different organs of the human body.

If we damage any part of the The governmental machine, the State will fall ill, like the would create a human body, and it would die.

The Poison of Liberalism

When we had injected the poison of liberalism into the organization of the State, its political complexion changed; The states were infected with a deadly disease: decomposition-blood sition. All that remains is to wait for the end of their agony.

Constitutional states, party struggles, demagoguery, Presidents, creatures of the Jews

(Pol.: The Constitution as a School for Party Struggle. — The Era Republican. — Presidents, creatures of Freemasonry)

Liberalism gave rise to constitutional governments tutionals that took the place of autocracy (1), — the only form of government (2) sound for the Gentiles. — Any The Constitution, as you know for yourselves, is mine something other than a school of dissension and discord, of pointless party squabbles and agitation; in short, it is the school of everything that weakens the strength (3) of the government The tribune (4), like the press, tended to make the inactive and weak rulers, and, consequently, useless and superfluous; that is why they were deposited (5) in many country. i

The establishment of a republican era then became possible, and we replaced the sovereign (6) with his caricature in the no one, a president drawn by us (7) from the crowd and chosen among our creatures and our slaves.

(1) All.: ...of the monarchy. — Am.: ...Pautocracy which was the salvation of the im.

(2) Pol.: ...that can save the Golm.

(3) Pol.: ...Pactivity... — Am.: efficiency...

(4) Pol.: The parliamentary platform.

(5) Pol.: ...this was the cause of the overthrow of thrones.

(6) All.: ...kings and rulers by a mannequin.

(77 Pol.: Delete "by us":

This is how we laid the mine under the Gentiles, or, better, under the nations of the Gentiles (1).

Responsibilities of Presidents

In the near future, we will make the President (2) responsible.

We will then boldly and unscrupulously apply the plans including our "dummy" (3) (the one who plays "dead" at whist) will be responsible. What do we care if the ranks of The race for positions becomes clearer if unrest arises.
because a President cannot be found — troubles which will eventually disrupt the country.

Crazy Presidents. — The Chambers. — Martial Law

(Pol.: e Panama”. — Role of the Chamber of Deputies and the President)

To achieve such results, we will take our measures res, so that Presidents with (4) on their record may be appointed a scandal like the "Panama" affair, or some other case a similar kind of sloppy business. A President of this ilk will be the faithful executor of our plans, because he will fear being uncovered, and will be dominated by this fear that always takes hold of a man who has come to power and who strongly desires to con-to serve the privileges and honours (5) conferred upon him by his high office. The House of Representatives (6) will elect, protect-will manage and mask the President (7); but we will withdraw from this Chamber's power to introduce and amend the laws.

We will give this power to the responsible President, who will be like a puppet in our hands. The power of
In such a case, the President will become an exposed target.

---

(1) All.: Such was the explosive that we placed under the non-foundations
Not just the people, believe me, but of all the goym peoples.

(2) Pol.: ...the Presidents...

(3) Pol.: ...our creature.

(4) Pol.: having in their past a murky affair, such as the “Pa"nama".

(5) Pol.: ...attached to the dignity of President.

(6) Pol.: The Chamber of Deputies...

(7) All.: The Chamber of Deputies, in which a great Honourable will sit of creatures and supporters of the President, will serve to cover him, but she will not will be able to neither elect him nor defend him.

kinds of attacks, but we will give him a way to defense in its right to appeal to the people over the head the nation's representatives, that is to say, he will appeal directly to them ly (1) to the people composed of our blind slaves, —the majority of the population.

Furthermore, we will confer upon the President the power (2) to proclaim martial law. We will explain this prerogative-tive by the fact that the President, being the head of the army, must keep it under its authority (3) to protect the new Republican Constitution; he owes his protection to this Constitution.
liturgy of which he is the responsible representative.

The Judeo-Masonic Legislature

(Pol.: Freemasonry as a legislative force)

It is clear (4) that, under such conditions, the key (5) to The internal situation will be in our hands, and no one else's we (6) will not control the legislation.

The new democratic Constitution

(Pol.: The New Republican Constitution):

Furthermore, when we establish the new Constitution Republican, under the pretext of state secrecy, we will deprive the Chamber of its right to discuss (7) the advisability of the mesafe measures taken by the Government. By this new Constitution tution (8) we will also minimize the number representatives of the nation, thus diminishing by the same Suddenly, by an equivalent number, political passions, and the passion for politics. If, despite everything (9), they showed

---

(1) Am.: In other words, he will call upon the same blind slave — the wea r de Ja foule. — Pol.: to our blind slave.

(2) All.: ...the power to declare war in the name of the State.

(3) Pol.: . .—being the head of the army of the whole country, must have it at his disposalposition.

(4) Pol.: understandable...

(5) Am. and Pol.: ...the key to the sanctuary.

(6) Am. and Pol.: ..and no one but us will direct (Am.: will be able to guide) legislative force.

(7) Am. and Pol.: ...to question about the measures.

(8) Pol.: Furthermore, we will reduce to a minimum...

(9) Pol.: Yes, against all odds... | ee

If they are recalcitrant, we would eliminate the last representatives by appealing to the nation (1). The President will have the prerogative to appoint the president and vice—president of the Chambermembers of the deputies and the Senate. We will substitute (2) for permanent sessions of Parliaments, sessions of whichonly a few months. Furthermore, the President, as head of the executive power will have the right to convene and dissolve Parliament, and, in the event of dissolution, to defer (3) the convocation of a new Parliament. But, in order for the Presidentthe dentist cannot be held responsible for the consequences of these acts, strictly speaking (4) illegal, before our Once the plans have reached maturity, we will convince the middleministers and other high—ranking officials who surround rent the President, to (5) distort his orders by launching instructions as they see fit, which will force them to assume a responsibility that fell to the President. We recommendwe would, in particular, like to entrust this function to Senate (6), to the Council of State or to the Council of Ministers, but no to individuals. Under our leadership, the Inter—Presidentwill lend laws that could be understood by several manners.

Furthermore, he will overturn the laws if it seems to us that... opportune. He will also have the right to propose new temporary laws and even modifications to the work constitutional of the Government, invoking for this purpose (7) the requirements for the country's prosperity.

Preparation for Jewish Autocracy

(Pol.: Transition to Masonic Autocracy)

Such measures (8) will allow us to gradually withdrawall rights and concessions that we

---

(1) All.: and we would replace them with a majority of our own. — Am.: by appealing to the majority of the people.

(2) Nilus 1920 and Am.: We will reduce the sessions permanentes... — Pol.: We will reduce it to two months...

(3) All.: ...&€ his will.

(4) Am. and Pol.: ...essentially...

(5) Pol.: ...to circumvent his orders by means of measures that are personalized for them...
(6) All.: ..& the High Court of Justice...
(7) Pol.: ...the higher reason of the good of the country.

(8) Am. and Pol.: The use of these means will give us the possibility of destroy little by little, step by step, everything that was there at first, upon our entry into our rights, we had been forced to introduce into the constitutions nations, as a transition towards the gradual abolition of all constitutions, when will the time come to replace all the constitutions with our autocracy? governments.

we could have been forced to agree in the first place within ourselves arrogating power, we will have been forced to introduce them to be included in the Constitution of governments for dissip-to promote the progressive abolition of all constitutional rights nels, when the time comes to replace our autocracy to all existing governments.

Proclamation of the Jewish Universal Sovereign

(Pol.: Moment of the Proclamation of the Universal Sovereign)

It is possible that our autocrat knew before the abolition of Constitutions, in other words, the recognition of Our government will leave the moment the people, torn apart by discord, and suffering from the bankruptcy of its leaders (bankruptcy prepared by us), will shout: "Deposit them, and Give us a world leader who can unite and deto destroy all the causes of dissension, that is to say the fronts-third parties, nationalities, religions, state debts, etc.
a leader who can give us the peace and rest we we cannot find under the government of our sovereigns and our representatives.”

Inoculation of contagious diseases and other plagues

by the Lodges

(Pol.: Incolution of Contagious Diseases and Other Tricks)
of Freemasonry)

But, as you yourselves know perfectly well, for that the multitude should come to shout (1) this request, it is necessary that in all countries relations are continually disrupted tions (2) which exist between the people and the governments (3), — hostilities, wars, hatred, and even martyrdom of hunger and want, of inoculated diseases (4), and this to to such a degree that the Gentiles see no other way out of their misfortunes that an appeal to our money and our complete soveracity.

(1) Shi ——& present...

(2) Pol.: ...your peoples and governments in order to tire them out as much that it is possible through hostilities...

(3) Nilus 1920: ...to harass all individuals through hostilities, the

(4) Pol.: “Then the Golms will see no other way out of their misfortunes than to place themselves completely and definitively under our authority.

THE JUDEO-MASONIC PERIL

But if we give the nation time to recover, it
It is unlikely that such an opportunity will arise again.

ELEVENTH SESSION

(Police: Report No. 44)

The foundations of the new Constitution

(Pol.: Program of the new Constitution) '

The Council of State will sanction the power of the sovereign.
As an official legislative body (1), it will be, so to speak, a Committee (2) intended to launch the orders of the rulers.

Here, then, is a program for the new Constitution that We are preparing for the world (3). We will make the laws, define constitutional and administrative rights (4): 1° by means of of edicts (5) of the Legislative Chamber, proposed by the President-tooth; 2° by means of general orders and orders of the Senate and of the Council of State, and by means of the decisions of the Cabinet, and, 3°, when the opportune moment arises, by means of a coup d'état (6).

Means and details of our Revolution

(Pol.: Some details of the proposed coup d'état)

Having thus determined the broad outlines of our action plan tion, we will discuss the details that may be relevant to us necessary to accomplish the revolution in all the roads ges of the state machine, according to the meaning I have already indicated– What. By these details, I mean freedom of the press, the right to form societies, freedom of religion (7), the election representatives of the people, and many other rights which also

---

(1) Pol.: As a representative part of the legislative body, it will be...

(2) Am. and Pol.: ...drafting laws and orders...

(3) Am. and Pol.: Delete: "to the world".

(4) Nilus 1920: We will make the law, the law and the courts (that is to say: We will establish the legislative, executive, and judicial branches.

(5) Pol.: 1° in the form of bills submitted to the Legislative Chamber; 2° to by means of presidential decrees in the form of general orders...
. (6) Nilus 1920 and Am.: 1° by projects presented to the Legislative Body; # by means of orders given by the President, in the form of general regulations national decrees, Senate decrees, decisions of the Council of State and regulations written by the Ministers...

(7) Am. and Pol.: ...freedom of conscience... |

om

will disappear from the daily lives of men (1). If they do not They do not all disappear entirely; they will have to be radical. transformed the very next day after the day on which it is proclaimed the new Constitution (2). It would only be at this precise moment (3) that there would no longer be any danger for we are committed to making all innovations known, and this is for the The following reason: any apparent change, in another time could be dangerous, because if it were introduced by force, and strictly and indiscriminately enforced– In fact, it would tend to exasperate the people who would fear new changes under similar conditions. On the other hand, if these changes were to force us to acc– If we make even more concessions, the people would say that we let us acknowledge our mistakes (4), and this could tarnish the glory of the infallibility of the new power. It could also to say that we were frightened and forced (5) to give in. And If that were the case, the world would never thank us, because that he considers it his right to always obtain concessions if either of these impressions (6) acted on the essence If it were to attract public attention, it would be a huge danger to the prestige of the new Constitution.

It is essential for us that, from this proclamation onwards, while that the people (7) will suffer further from the abrupt change (8) and will be in a state of terror and indecision, he will surrender realizing that we are so powerful, so invulnerable, so full of strength, that in no case will we take (9) his interests We will take this into consideration. We will consider what he is convinced of. that not only do we ignore his opinions and desires,

---

(1) Pol.: or else be radically transformed...

(2) All.: The coup d'état offers us the only way to introduce in one fell swoop This shatters the Constitution of our dreams. Every future perceptible change offers... great dangers in themselves if it brings new limitations and if they are implemented with great rigor. For it can drive men to despair by making them fear that their situation will worsen even further. If, On the contrary, the changes are gradual; we will say we should have To anticipate our mistake, and then confidence in our infallibility is forever:

either we are afraid and we must show ourselves conciliatory; something for which no one will be grateful.

(3) Pol. and Am.: that we will be able to make known all our decisions, Later on, any change would be dangerous, and this for the following reason: vante: if it were introduced by force... .

(4) Nilus 1920: ...our error. – Pol.: ...our weakness...

(5) Am. and Pol.: forced to make concessions which we would not have grateful, because they would be considered a legitimate right.

D por ae or the other of these impressions would be an immense danger the prestige...

(7) Pol.: will still be amazed by the Coup d'État.

(8) All.; of the Coup d'État.

(9) Am. and Pol.: ...we will not reckon with the peoples and not only
I don't care about their opinions and desires, but we will be ready and able moment...

but that we will be ready at any time and in any place to to vigorously suppress any manifestation or inclination of the opposition. We will make the people understand that we have took (1) everything we desired (2) and that we did not allow him to will never share (3) power with us. So, the Fear will close his eyes, and he will patiently await what comes next events.

Gentle treatment in a flock of sheep
(Pol.: The good people are sheep)

The Gentiles are like a flock of sheep, – we We are the wolves. And do you know what sheep do when-What if the wolves enter the sheepfold? They close the eyes (4). We will make them do the same, for we will make them will promise (5) to restore all their freedoms, after having enslaved all the enemies of the world (6) and obtained submission from all parties. I hardly need to tell you how many
They will have to wait for the return of their freedoms.

The apparent lie that hides the Lodges

(Pol.: Secret Freemasonry and the apparent lie that hides the Lodges)

Why were we led to imagine (7)
Our policy and to implement it among the Gentiles? We give it to them we instilled it in them without letting them understand its true meaning.
What prompted us to adopt such a line of conduct?
duite (8), otherwise this fact that, a disseminated race, we could not to achieve our objective by direct means, but only through underhanded means? That was the real cause of our organization of Freemasonry, including these pigs (9) of Gen-They did not delve into the meaning, nor even suspect the purpose. They are attracted to us in the multitude of our Lodges, which pa-

(1) Am. ct Pol.: ...all at once...

(2) Pol.: ...anything we deemed essential...

(3) Pol.: ...that we will never share power with them... and he will wait to see what happens next.

(4) All.: ...and they will stand still.

(5) Pol.: ...will promise to give them more...

(6) All. and Pol.: ...the enemies of peace...

(7) Pol.: ... to imagine this whole policy and to implement it among the Gentiles without letting them understand its deeper meaning. Otherwise, because...

(8) Am.: ...such a complicated course of action...

(9) Pol.: ...animals...

would seem to be solely Masonic in order to throw dust in the eyes of their comrades (1).

By the mercy of God, his chosen people were scattered, and this dispersion, which appeared to the world as our weakness, has constituted all our power, which led us to threshold of universal sovereignty.

We have little left to add to these foundations for to achieve our goal.

TWELFTH SESSION
(Pol.: Minutes No. 42)

Freedom according to Judeo-Masonry
(Pol.: Masonic understanding of Liberty)

The word Liberty, which can be interpreted in various ways, We will define it as follows: "Liberty is the right to do this which is permitted by (2) the law." Such a definition will be useful in that it (3) allows us to determine where there is will have, and where there will be no freedom, for the simple reason that The law will only allow what can satisfy our desires.

The Press under Judeo–Masonic Power

(Pol.: The Future of the Press in the Masonic Kingdom)

We will conduct ourselves in the following manner towards the Press vante: – What is the current role played by the Press? It serves to unleash the most violent passions upon the children. or, sometimes, selfish party games that can be necessary for our purposes. They are often hollow, unfair, false, and most do not understand (4) his intentions at all true. We will put her under the yoke and lead her with strong reins; we will also need to ensure the control (5) of all publishing firms. It would not be of no use to us to control the newspapers, if we We remained exposed to attacks from pamphlets and books.

---

(1) Pol.: similar. |

(21 Pol.: ...the Code...

(3) Pol.: puts all freedom in our hands because the laws will overthrow or will only establish what is desirable, according to the program below.

(4) Pol.: not what it is used for.

(5) Am.: control of everything that is printed... – Nilus, 1920, II. – Pol.: We will do the same with the other printed materials. It would be of no usebound for us to defend ourselves against attacks from the newspapers, if we we remained a target for brochures and books.

will make the product of advertising, currently so expensive, a advantageous resource for our Government (1), in introapplying a special stamp duty (2) and by compelling the publishers and printers 4 pay us a deposit (3) in order to to protect our government against all kinds of attacks from the Press. In case of attack, we would respond (4) fines were imposed from all sides. These measures–stamps, deposits, fines (5) will be an important source of revenue for the Government. Certainly, party organs do not look atwill not have to pay heavy fines, but after a second Serious attack against us, we will eliminate them completely. No one will be able to attack the prestige of our with impunity. political infallibility. To ban a publication, we We will find the following pretext: – the upcoming publication The prospect of its removal, we might say, excited public opinion, without no reason or basis. Please reto note that, among the aggressive publications, there iswill (6) those which will have been created by us in this desbreast (7); but these will only attack our policy on the points (8) where we will have proposed a changement.

Censorship of Newspapers, Magazines, and Books and information bodies

(Pol.: Press Control) =

No information (9) will reach the company without going through our control. This is already a point achieved for us (10) by the fact that all news is received from all the parts of the world by a small number of agencies that center them tralisent (11). When we come to power, these

---

(1) Pol.: given the necessity of censorship, we will introduce a special stamp duty, we will force publishers...

(2) All.: ..which will reduce their excessive number... – Am.: by imposing on him the censorship... – Nilus 1920, Id.

(3) All.: ..which we will confiscate in whole or in part in the event of attacks against us.

(4) Am.: ...ruthlessly...

(5) Pol.: ...stamps, bonds and fines, for which they insure the payment...

(6) Pol.: ...also...
(7) Pol.: ...in this (non-existent) purpose).

(10) All.: ...in part...

(11) Pol.: When we come to power (non-existent) .. belongswill then fully... | '

agencies will belong to us entirely and will only publish the news that we choose to let be published.

If, under the current conditions, we have succeeded in (1) to obtain, over the society of the Gentiles (2), such control that it he only glimpses world affairs through the colored glasses the things we have placed before his eyes; if, from now on Now, no barrier can prevent us from penetrating the state secrets, as the stupidity of the Gentiles calls them, What will our situation be like when we become official? recognized as the world's leaders, in the perSound of our (3) World Emperor?

Let's return to the future of the press. Anyone who wants to become publisher, bookseller or printer, will need to obtain a certificate (4) and a license which, in case of disobedience, would be revoked. The channels through which human thought finds its expression These ions will thus be placed in the hands of our Government. who will use them as an educational tool and who will prevent thus the public is likely to be confused by the idealized "progress" and by liberalism (5).

Progress according to Judeo-Masonry

Who among us does not know that this great benefit (6) leads a direct line to utopia from which were born (7) anarchy and hatred of authority? And this for the simple reason that "progress", or rather the idea (8) of liberal progress, gives men different thoughts of emancipation, without assigning them any limit. All so-called liberals are anarchists, otherwise in their actions, at least in their ideas. Each of them runs after the ghost of liberty (9), thinking he can do everything

---

(1) Pol.: ..to seize the brains of the Goim societies, to such an extent that they do not foresee the affairs...

(2) Am.: ...on the spirits...

(3) Am.: world sovereign? – Pol.: ...Universal sovereign.

(4) Pol.: ...special which, in case of disobedience, would be taken away from him.

(5) Am.: By these measures, thought will become a means of education in The hands of our government, which will not allow the people to go astray in the realms of imagination and in the dreams of benevolent progress. – Ali: ...which will thus prevent the people from getting lost in sterile daydreams on the supposed benefits of progress. – Nilns, 1920: ...supposed (inexisso much) – Pol.: ...which will prevent the masses from straying into digressions and daydreams about the beneficial influence of progress.

(6) Nilus, 1920: ...illusory... – Am.: ..these fantastic benefits...

(7) Pol.: ...the anarchic relations of peoples among themselves and with their government. d
(8) Pol.: ...progress gives men all sorts of ideas of emancipationon...

(9) Pol.: ...then falling into independence, that is to say, into anarchy, who forms opposition for the sake of opposition.

We will float before them. So that our army of newspapers so that he can execute this program in his mind, namely: souTo keep the different parties together, we will need to organize our press. with great care.

Under the name "Central Press Commission", we we will organize literary meetings (1) where our agents, inapercus will provide the password and the security code. During the discussion and by contradicting our policy, always superficially, of course, without actually touching any of its parts essential ties, our bodies will conduct simulated debates with the official journals (2), in order to give us a reason to defrefine our plans with greater accuracy than we could to be done in our preliminary programs. But this uniquement when there will be profit for us (3). This opposition of The press will also serve to make the people believe that freedom of speech (4) still exists. To our agents, it giveswill give us the opportunity to show that our opponents are taking precautions. between us, meaningless accusations, since they will be incapable of discovering a real basis to refute our politick.

Such measures, escaping public attention, will be the surest ways to guide the minds of the people and to inspire confidence in our Government.

Thanks to these measures, we will be able to excite or calm the mind public on political issues, when that becomes necessary; we can persuade or mislead him by imprioritizing (5) true or false news, events accurate or contradictory, according to the convenience of our desbreasts. The information we publish will depend on the current disposition of the people to accept this kind of newthem, and we will always carefully examine the terrain before setting foot there.

The restrictions that we will impose – as I said – private publications will allow us to make certain the defeat of our enemies, because they will have no organs press at their disposal, by means of which they could

(1) All. ...literary societies... – Pol.: ...clubs...
(2) Pol.: ...for the sole purpose...
(3) Pol.: These attacks by the press... – All.: This staged attack...

(4) All. and Am.: ...and the press...
(5) Pol.: sometimes the truth, sometimes the falsehood, accurate facts, then denials depending on whether they were received well or badly.

to give free rein to their opinions. We won't even have to completely refute their claims.

The trial balloons we will launch in the third row from our Press will be refuted by us if necessary (1).

in a semi-official manner.

The links between Freemasonry and the current press

(Pol.: Masonic solidarity in the current press)

There already exists in French journalism a system of enMasonic tent to give the passwords. All the orgaMembers of the press are bound by professional secrecy (2) mutual, in the manner of the ancient augurs. None of his memBres will not reveal his knowledge of the secret if the order has not It was given the opportunity to make it public. Not a single publisher will have the courage to betray the secret entrusted to him, for no one is admitted into the literary world if it does not bear the mark of whatthat dark act in his past. At the slightest sign of insouThe mission, the stain would be revealed immediately. As long as these marks The prestige of the day remains known to only a small number The nationalist attracts public opinion across the entire country. The people follow him and admire him (3).

The needs of the Provinces

(Pol.: Creation of a movement of opinion in the provinces)

Our plans must primarily extend to the province. It is essential for us to create ideas and opinions such as that at some point we might be able to launch them against the capital tale, by presenting them as the neutral views of the provinthese (4).

(1) Pol.: The touchstones that we will use in the press of Ia

¥ category will be, if necessary.

(2) Am.: ...by professional secrecy... – Nilus, 1920, Id.

(3) Pol.: Already currently at least in the forms observed by the In French journalism, there is a Masonic solidarity expressed in this The watchword: all press organizations are linked to each other by the Professional secrecy. None of its members, such as the ancient augurs, will reveal. Not a single journalist will have... in their past. The stain would be immediately revealed. As long as these brands remain unknown, the prestige of the dayneliste attracts public opinion, the crowds follow him with enthusiasm.

(4) All.: ...by presenting them as ideas of independence. — Pol.: ...by presenting them as the desires for independence and the trends of the province.

Obviously, the source and origin of these ideas would not be unchanged, — they would be ours.

It is absolutely essential for us that before our taking of possession of power (1) the large cities are, during For some time, under the influence of provincial opinion, that is to say, they know the opinion of the majority, opiunion prepared by us. It is necessary for us (2) that the captainstales, at the critical and psychological moment, do not have the It's time to discuss a fait accompli, but they must accept it. simply because it was approved by a majority in the provinces.

The infallibility of the new Regime

When we reach the period of the new regime, — that is to say, during the transitional period that precedes our sovereignty, — we will not allow the Press to publish no reports of criminal cases; it is necessary that the people think the new regime is so satisfactory that crime itself no longer exists (3).
© Where a crime is committed, it should only be known to the victim and those who, by chance, will have been the victims less (4) but only of those. |

THIRTEENTH SESSION
(Police: Report No. 43)

Submission for daily bread
(Pol.: The need for daily bread)

The need for daily bread will force the Gentiles to maintain their languages and to remain our humble servants. Those of the Gentiles (5) that we could occupy in our Press will discuss, under our orders, the facts that we would not judge regarding discuter in our Official Gazette. And, while all the gen-

---

(1) Pol.: ...total, the capitals... — Am.: the capital... — Nilus, 1920: the capitals...

(2) All.: It is essential that large cities convince themselves that they are surrounded by the hostility of the provinces — hostility which will be our work.

(3) Pol.: it will not be possible for us to write to the Press of dismasTo expose the dishonesty of society, the people must believe that the new The system is so satisfactory that crime itself no longer exists.

(4) Pol.: ...accidental...

(5) Pol.: Our agents taken from among those...

Discussions and debates will take place in this way, we will pass the laws (1) that we need, then we We will present them to the public as a fait accompli. No one will dare to demand that what has been decided to be repealed. _especially because we will have colored everything with our intention to help progress. Then, the Press will entertain the atpublic attention through new proposals. (You know you yourselves, whom we have always taught the people to reseek new emotions (2).

Political problems. — Supremacy of the State
(Pol.: Political problems)

Brainless political adventurers will precipitate the discussion of new problems, similar to those which, Even today, they don't know what they're talking about. The problems policies are not intended to be known (3) by the common people fatalities; they cannot be understood, as I said earlier higher, than Governments that have, for centuries, led business (4). From all this, you can conclude that we We will only defer to public opinion to facilitate the travail of our machinery (5). You may also notice that we are seeking approval on various issues not through actions, but through words. We affirm only that (6) to the greatest extent possible, we are guided by the hope and certainty of serving the public good.

Economic Problems of Trade and Industry

(Pol.: Industrial issues)

In order to distract the restless people (7) from political issues, we will provide them with new problems, concerning the

---

(1) Pol.: And taking advantage of the noise of the discussion raised, we will take and We will implement the measures we need.

(2) Pol.: You yourselves know that we have taught the people to re-always looking for something new.

(3) Am.: Political problems are not meant to be understood...

(4) Am.: ...that governments which created them and took an interest in them for centuries. – Pol.: Brainless people, burdened with the destiny of peoples, will rush into the discussion of these new problems incapable–capable so far of understanding that they have no idea what they are discussing The problems of politics can only be understood by those who have experienced it. created and who have ruled it for centuries.

(5) All.: We will only refer this to public opinion to facilitate the the workings of our political machine.

(6) Pol.: ...\a guiding thought of our enterprises is hope and even the certainty of being useful to the common good.

(7) Pol.: .. too...

Commerce and industry, for example. Let them get worked up about these They can ask as many questions as they like! The masses do not consent to abstain and detach themselves from what they believe to be the action policy (1) that if we provide them with new amusements ments: trade, for example, which we are trying to their to frame it as a political issue. We ourselves have brought the masses to take part in politics to ensure our safety to give their support in our campaign against the governments The good guys.

Games and Public Houses

(Pol.: Games and People's Houses) (2)

To prevent them from discovering a new line of political conduct, we will also distract them with all types of entertainment: games, hobbies, passions (3), public houses.

We will soon be launching advertisements in newspapers. the people to take part in competitions inviting all kinds: artistic, sporting, etc. These new forms of entertainment distract– will definitively shape public opinion on issues that could to put us in conflict with the populace. As the people per– he will gradually acquire the gift of thinking for himself (4) he will howl with us, for this very simple reason: that we will be the only members of society to advance new ideas these unknown paths will be opened to thought by intermediaries who could not be suspected of being one of our own.

Crazy Theories for the Gentiles. –The Only Truth _ for the Jews

(Pol.: "Truth is one")

The role of liberal idealists (5) will be definitively over

---

(1) Pol.: (which we have registered to them so that, with this aid, to fight the governments of the Goim) that if we provide them with new new occupations in which we will show that there is also a political idea.

(2) The people's houses contain a meeting room, a theater, games room, popular restaurant, hygienic refreshment stands, etc., but are not not at all what is referred to in French by the words "public houses".

(Translator's note).

(3) Am.: centers of intellectual culture... – Nilus 1920: passions.

(4) Pol.: he will speak like us, for this very simple reason that we will be the only members of society to put forward new ideas through intermediaries who could not be suspected of being on our side.

(5) Am., Pol. and Nilus, 1920: ...utopians.

when our government is recognized. Until then, they... will be of great service, and that is why we will try to into incline public opinion towards all sorts of fantastical theories questions (1) which might seem advanced or liberal. It is we who have, with complete success, turned heads without Gentile brains (2) towards socialism, through our pro-theories Gresists; one would not find among the Gentiles a single a man capable of realizing that, except in cases where it is a question of discoveries (3) material or scientific, there is always behindBehind the word "progress" lies some kind of illusion. Because there is no only one true teaching in which "progress" has no room. Progress, like all false ideas, serves to caWe cherish the truth so that no one but us, the People, knows it. chosen by God, to be his guardian.

The major problems that have enslaved the world to the Jews
(Pol.: The Major Problems)

When we are in power, our speakers will discuss the major problems that have shaken humanity (4) that we will bring, finally, under our blessed yoke.

Who would suspect then that all these problems were set in motion? at our instigation, to serve a political plan that no one will have captured over so many centuries?

FOURTEENTH SESSION
(Pol.: Prooés-verbal n° 44)

Abolition of Religions, except that of Moses (Pol.: The religion of the future)

When we are masters of the earth (5), we will not tolerate-

---

(1) Pol.: news and so-called advances.

(2) Am.: stupid... – Pol.: ...towards (non-existent) socialism.

(3) Pol.: material, the word "progress" has nothing in common with the truth, because truth is one and there is no room for progress within it. Progress... and we, the chosen people of Dicu, its guardians.

(4) Pol... in order to bring him, in the end, to recognize our benfaing poremement – Nilus, 1920: ...in order to bring him to the very end of our benign government.

(5) Nilus, 1920: ...it will not be desirable for us that there be another religion than our religion of one God, to whom our destiny is bound by our election and r which our destiny is linked to the destiny of the world. – Pol.: … it does not It would not be desirable for us if there were another religion besides our own.

We will have no religion other than our own, that is to say, a religion admitting only one God to whom our destiny is bound by the electthe tion he made of us, and by which the destin of the world.

For this reason, we must abolish all proprofessions of faith (1). If, momentarily, the result obtained is to create atheists, our goal will not be thwarted, but this will serve as an example to future generations who will listen to our teachings on the religion of Moses, a religion whose doctrine firm and well thought out (2) imposed on us the duty to put all nations beneath our feet.

By doing so, we will also emphasize (3) the mystical truths of Mosaic teaching, from which dehangs, we might say, all its educational value.

Enslavement to the Jews

(Pol.: The Serfdom of the Future)

Then, we will publish articles on every occasion in which we will compare our advantageous authority to that of the past. The state of blessing and peace (4) that will then exist, although it will be the result of long centuries of disruption, it will put
The benefits of our new government are further highlighted.
We will expose, in the most vivid colors, the errors committed by the Gentiles in their administration. We suffer-will raise such a disgust for the old regime that these nations (5) will prefer peace in slavery to the rights that he gives-would not have freedom so highly exalted, but who has them so cruelly tortured, which has exhausted the sources of human existence and towards which, in truth, was pushing out adventurers who They didn't know what they were doing.

The unnecessary changes of government to which we of one God to whom our destiny binds us by virtue of what we are the chosen people, and by this destiny, ours is linked to the destiny of the world. — Am.:

we will not tolerate the existence of any religion other than our own which pro-proclaims one God to whom our destiny is bound, because we are the People
We chose, and our destiny determined the fate of the world.

(1) All.: ...any other profession of faith. — Am.: any other religion. —
— Pol.: ..all beliefs.

(2) Am.: will necessarily lead to our domination over 'all the nations. — Pol.: ..brought our domination over all peoples.
We will also emphasize its mystical truth, which hang...

(4) Am. and Pol.: The benefits of peace...

(5) Am.: the masses. — MP: the peoples...

will have pushed the Gentiles, to ruin their governmental edifice-mental, will then have so tired the peoples that they prefer-will endure everything from us (1) in fear of having to suffer-to fry, again, the torments and misfortunes that they will have suffered. We will draw special attention to the errors historical accounts of Gentile governments, errors which they... they continued to martyr humanity for so many centuries, because that they understood nothing about true happiness of human life (2), being constantly in search of fantastic plans for social welfare. Because the Gentiles do not have not noticed that their plans, instead of improving the rap-
The ports between men have only served to make them more even worse. However, these mutual relationships are the basis even of human existence. The full force of our principles and the measures we will take to implement them tera in that we will interpret them by putting them into context luminous contrast with the fallen regime (3) of the old conditions social tions.

The Mysteries of the Jewish Religion
(Pol.: The Mysteries of the Religion of the Future are inaccessible)

Our philosophers will outline all the disadvantages of religions of the Gentiles, but no one will ever judge our religion from its true point of view, because no one will never have complete knowledge, apart from our own.
who will not venture (4), under any circumstances, to reveal the mysteries.

Immoral Writings and Literature of the Future
(Pol.: Pornography and the Future of Literature)

In the so-called leading countries, we have done cir-to destroy an unhealthy (5), filthy and disgusting literature.
We will continue to give precedence to this pen- literature.
within a short period of time, after the establishment of our Government, so that it may bring out from a ma-

(1) MP: under our government rather than... — Am. and Pol.: ...all to endure from us rather than having to.

(2) Pol.: Being constantly on the lookout for fantastic plans for well-Being social, the Gentiles didn't realize...

(3) Am. and Pol.: ...corrupt regime...

(4) Am. and Pol.: ...who will never dare to reveal it...

(5) GARLIC: ..stupid...

even more striking is the contrast in the lessons we taught us We will give from the pinnacle to which we will be raised. Our scholars, trained specifically to lead the Gentiles, will make discourses, they will draw up plans, draft words and write articles through which we will influence the estaken them, inclining them towards science and the ideas that we knowwill come.

FIFTEENTH SESSION
(Police: Report No. 45)

Global and simultaneous revolutions
(Pol.: World and simultaneous revolution)

When we have obtained power, through coups State prepared (1) by us, so that they occurfelt simultaneously in all countries, and immediately afterwards the respective governments of the latter will have been offiopenly proclaimed incapable of governing the people, — A considerable amount of time may pass (2), a whole century Perhaps — we will do our utmost to prevent the conspiracies are being plotted against us.

Summary executions. — Prohibition of Societies Secrets

To achieve this goal, we (3) will employ the ruthless means of executions against all those who might taketo take up arms against the establishment of our power.

(Pol.: Future fate of the Franos-Maçons Goim)

The establishment of some new secret society will also fall under the death penalty; as for the secret societies that currently exist and that are known, those who serve and have served our cause, we we will dissolve and send their members into exile at the end of the world. |

---

(1) Am.: ...by means of revolutions prepared by us... — Pol.: ...by means of Coups d'état were being planned for the same day in all countries...

(2) Pol.: ..before that moment...

(3) Am.: we will mercilessly kill all those who would take the weapons... — Pol.: ...we will condemn to death, without pity, all those...

The fate of non-Jewish Freemasons (1)

This is how we will deal with the Franks-Kind Freemasons who might know more than he does This suits us. We will live in perpetual fear. of exile such as Freemasons to whom, for whatever reasonconch shell, we would show mercy (2). We will pass a law that will condemn all former members of the societies secret territories to be exiled from Europe, where will be the center of our Government.

The decisions of our Government will be irrevocable and (3) no one shall have the right to appeal.

Jewish Autocracy through Terror
(Pol.: Mysticism of Power)

To subdue the Gentile society, in thewhich we have so deeply rooted discord and the dogmas of the Protestant religion (4), impitoyables will have to be introduced. Such measures showwill tell the nations that our power cannot be defied. We must disregard the numerous victims my which will have to be sacrificed in order to obtain prosperity future. E

To achieve prosperity, even through many (5) sacrifices are the duty of a government that understands that the conditions of its existence do not consist only in the privileges he enjoys, but also in practice of his duty.

Strengthening the prestige of one's power is the principal condition-pale in its stability, and this prestige can only be obtained by a majestic and unwavering power that would show itself

(1) Pol.: The subtitle in the preceding paragraph.

(2) All.: They must, therefore, be careful not to betray anyone.

(3) Am. and Pol.: ...and without appeal.

(4) Nilus 1920: Discord and Protestantism. — Am.: In the society of Goimot, we have planted such deep roots of discord and protest-tion, order can only be restored through ruthless measures serving to

to find that our power cannot be violated. — Pol.: In the societies of

In where we have sown deep roots of discord and continual pro- Without testing, we will only be able to reverse the order by employing measures without pity, manifestations of unwavering power.

(i's) Am.: "even at the cost of sacrificing one's life. — Pol.: Delete "namereux =,

7

inviolable (1) and surrounded by a mystical power, for example ple, the power decreed by Dicu.

Such was, until our time, the Russian autocracy, our only dangerous enemy, if we do not appease the Holy See. Remember the time when Italy was awash in blood; she did not touch a hair on Sulla's head, although it was he who shed his blood.

Thanks to his strength of character, Sulla became a god in eyes of the people (2) and his audacious return to Italy (3) the rendered it inviolable. The populace will not touch the one who hypnoted for his courage and strength of spirit.

Global proliferation of Freemason lodges

(Pol.: Proliferation of Freemason Lodges)

Until we have attained power, we will try- to create and multiply Freemason Lodges in all parts of the world. We will attract to these Lodges all those who can don (4) or who are donned already of the public mentality, because these Lodges will be (5) the main locations where we will collect our information in at the same time they will be centers of propaganda.

Central direction of the Lodges by the Elders of Zion

We will centralize all these Lodges under a single direction. that, known only to us and established by our Sages. Lodges will also have their own representatives (6), in order to to mask the true leaders. And these leaders will have only the right to designate the speakers and to establish the order of the m.:

(1) A

God. — Nilus 1920: ...because of its mystical nature, the result of a divine choice.

(4) Am.: ...all those who possess or can acquire public spirit. — — Pol.: ...all those who can become or who already are remarkable personalities quables. — All.: ...those who are or can become characters in life public.

(5) Pol.: ...information centers... — Am.: because it's in these This will be the main source of information, and it is from this that our... will emanate. influence. .

(6) All.: ...their presidents.. — Am.: their own representative organization to hide the iadconic government no longer, Loue He will give the password and run the program. — Pol.: ...their own repsentient beings who will mask the true leaders and who will point out the words of this order the programs. — Nilus is amphibological, his text can be translated like the Polish text or in this way: their own representatives who maswill be the true leaders of whom the slogans and the programs.

day. In these Lodges, we will strengthen the bonds (1) of all the socialist and revolutionary classes of society.

even the most secret political plans will be revealed to us, and, from that they will be trained, we will direct their execution,

Espionage and Judeo-Freemasonry

Almost all international police officers and se-Crete (2) will be members of our Lodges (3).

The police services are of extreme importance for us, because they can conceal our businesses, invent plausible explanations for the discontent of the masses, as well as punishing those who refuse to submit (4).

The Judeo-Masonic Society (5) directs all the Societies

Secrets ~

Most of those who enter (6) secret societies are adventurers who, for one reason or another, want to make their way in life and who are not"
of a serious mind.

With men like these, it will be easy for us to continue our but and we will make them set our machine in motion.

If the whole world is shaken by it, it's because it was...
It was necessary to disrupt it in this way, in order to destroy its excess great solidity (7). If, in the midst of this upheaval (8), Conspiracies break out, it will mean that one of our
His most loyal agents are at the head of these conspiracies. He is It is only natural that we are the only people to lead the companies

---

(1) Am.: We will strengthen the ties of all liberal revolutionary elements-the names of these lodges whose members will belong to all classes of the society. — Id. All. — Pol.: ...of all the active revolutionary or li-ALC Racal The lodges will consist of representatives from all classes of Company.

(2) Am. and Pol.: ...international and national. :

(3) Am. and Pol.: because their collaboration is indispensable to us.

(4) Am. and Pol.: The police not only have the possibility of taking without con-control of measures against the rebels, but can still serve to mask them our companies and to provoke discontent, etc.

(5) Pol.: Same subtitle, minus the word "Judeo".

(6) Pol.: ...with pleasure in secret societies are wheeler-
Laughers and, in general, people who, for the most part, are of a lighthearted nature.
With such men, it will be easy for us to settle our affairs. (Id. Nilus, 1920).
They will set in motion the mechanism of the machine invented by us.

(7) Am. and Pol.: solidarity. Id. Nilus 1920.

(8) Am.: If a plot is formed, it must have at its head one of our most faithful agents. — Pol: If conspiracies break out in the midst of this world, per-
No one else will be at their head except our most loyal...

Masonic holdings (1). We are the only people who sa-dogs (2) lead them. We know the ultimate goal of all action, while the Gentiles ignore most things regarding masonry and can't even see the immediate results of what they will (3). Generally, they they only think about the immediate advantages of the moment and are content if their pride is satisfied by the accomplishment of their intentions (4), and they do not perceive that the original idea-
The final version does not belong to them, but was inspired by us.

The Goim's pursuit of success

(Pol.: Importance of public success)

Gentiles frequent Masonic lodges purely out of curiosity, or in the hope of receiving their share of the benefits that they provide (5); and some of them, in order to
to be able to discuss (6) their silly ideas in front of an audience.
The Good Guys (7) are on the lookout for the emotions that the success and applause; we distribute them to them without counting. That's why we let them win their success (8) and let us turn the possessed men to our advantage driven by vanity, and unconsciously assimilating our ideas, convinced of their own infallibility and persuaded that they

They alone have ideas and are not subject to the influence of others.

You have no idea how easy it is to bring the more intelligent than the Gentiles (9) to a ridiculous degree of naivety,

---

(1) Am. (Text note): It is important to note that some Jews themselves-They themselves argued in their writings that the Mag.:. is strongly influenced by the Jews. In this regard, let us quote the assertion of Dr. Isaac M. Wise: "Macron is a Jewish institution, whose history, regulations, duties, and words pass and the explanations are Jewish from beginning to end, to the ex-
"Conception of a single secondary rule and a few words in the commitment." (Dr. Isaac M. Wise, The Israelite, August 3 and 17, 1855; quoted by Samuel Oppenheim) in his pamphlet entitled Jews and Masonry in New York, 1910, no. 19, pp. 1 and 2).

(2) Am.: We know where we are going. — Pol.: We are the only people who knows where we are leading them...

(3) Am.: ...while the Gentiles know nothing about it, not even the immediate result.
Id. Nilus, 1920. ie

(4) Pol.: ...of their plans, and they do not notice that these very plans that it was not their initiative, but that it was we who introduced them to them-pirés.

(5) Am.: "their share of public money." Nilus 1920 and Pol: ...their share of the social cake.

(6) Am.: in public, their unrealistic and unfounded hopes.
Pol.: publicly their idiotic ideas and their unfounded daydreams.

(7) Am. and Pol.: The latter are at Palfut...

(8) Am.: We create their success to profit from the disappointment it-son-in-law, and that's why people, without realizing it, start following our suggestions without suspicion, convinced... — Pol.: ...in order to take advantage of the sen-feelings of vanity and self-worth that follow. Grace People adapt to these factors...

(9) Am. and Pol.: Goim...

by flattering his vanity, and, on the other hand, how easy it is to discourage him with the slightest failure, or simply in these-instead of applauding him; he is thus reduced to a state of subjection servile to the prospect of some new success. So much Ours despise success and are only anxious about to see their plans succeed, as much as the Gentiles (1) love success and, for his love, are ready to sacrifice his success to him all their plans. This characteristic trait of the Gentiles... allows us to easily do with them what we want. Those who appear to be tigers are as stupid as sheep tons (2) and their heads are full of emptiness.

So we will let them ride, in their dreams, on the courier of vain hopes to destroy human individuality led by symbolic ideas of collectivism.

Collectivism

They haven't understood yet, and they never will.
that (3) this crazy dream is contrary to the fundamental law of the nature, which, since the beginning of the world, created beings different from each other, in order to give each their own individuality.

The fact that we were able to bring the Gentiles to Does not such a misguided idea (4) prove, with clarity striking (5), what a narrow conception, in comparison to the Ours, they make a living from human life? Therein lies our problem.
great hope for success.

Terrorize and execute victims without restraint
(Polish: The Victims)

How far-sighted our ancient Sages were when they they told us that, in order to achieve a truly great goal, we should not be deterred by the means, nor comp-determine the number of victims to be sacrificed to achieve the goal.
tion of the cause! We have never counted the victims of

---

(1) Am. and Pol.: Golm...

ne Am. et Pol.: ...have the souls of sheep and only things come out of their heads Nonsense.

(3) Am.: ...that this hobbyhorse. — Nilns 1920: ...that this "little horse" (puppy). —
Pol.: ...than collectivism.

(4) Pol.: "To such blindness..."
(5) Pol.: ...to what extent the spirit of the Gentiles, from a human point of view, is little developed, compared to ours. – Am.: ...the lower level of development where reaches the mind of the Goim compared to our mind. This is precisely what guarantees our success.

the race of these Gentile brutes, and (1) although we should have sacrificing a fairly large number of our own (2), we have already given our people a situation in the world such that it would never have dreamed of it. A relatively small number of The victims on our side saved our nation from destruction.

Masonic victims. – Liberalism for the Goim

(Pol.: Executions of Frankish Magos)

Every man must inevitably end in death. It is worth It is better to hasten this end, for those who hinder the progress of our cause, rather than for (3) those who advance it.
We put the Freemasons to death in such (4) ways that no one, outside the Fraternity (5), can have the the slightest suspicion. The victims themselves cannot escape it.
To doubt in advance. They all die, when necessary.
of an apparently natural death. Knowing these facts (6)
The Brotherhood dares not protest against these executions.

By these means, we have cut it off at its very root (7) any protest against our orders insofar as the Freemasons themselves are involved. We preach liberralism to the Gentiles, but, on the other hand, we hold our propre nation (8) in complete subjection.

The Law and the Power of the Gentiles lose all considerations

(Pol.: Lowering of the prestige of laws and authority)
5

Under our influence, the laws of the Gentiles were also obeyed.
as little as possible. The prestige of their laws has been undermined by (9) our liberal ideas that we introduced among them.
the most important questions, both political and mo– Disputes are resolved by the Courts of Justice in the following manner that we prescribe for them. The administrator of Justice of

(1) Am. and Pol.: ..delete "and". Although we...

42) Am. and Pol.: ...but, in return, we have...

(3) Am.: ..our people or for us, we who are the creators of this that causes death. – Pol.: we who carry out this work. |

(4) All: In Masonic lodges, we proceed in such a way...
za Am. ct Pol.: outside the Brethren. – All.: Outside our coreligionareas...

(6) Am. and Pol.: the Brothers themselves wosent...

(7) Am.: from the Freemasons... – Pol.: ..., in Freemasonry...

(8) Am. and Pol.: and our agents...;

Mr. Am. and Pol.: by the liberal conventions that we have introduced on this subject.

Gentils considers these questions in the light that we like to
We will present them to him. We will succeed thanks to our agents and to men (1) with whom we seem to have no relation (2): press opinions and other means; even senators, and (3) other official persons, follow blindly trusting our opinions.

The Gentile's brain, being of a purely bestial, is incapable of analyzing and observing anything, and,
Furthermore, to anticipate the consequences that a case presented in a certain light.

The Chosen People

It is precisely in this difference of mentality between the Gentiles and ourselves, whom we can easily see the sign of our election by God and of our superhuman nature
Maine; it suffices for us to compare it to the (4) instinctive brain–
The Gentiles' bestial behavior. They only see the facts, but they don't foresee them, and are incapable of inventing anything that is, with the possible exception (5) of material things. Of All of this clearly shows that nature itself... destined to lead and govern the world.

Jewish Laws will be short and clear

(Pol. > Brevity and clarity of the Laws of the future Kingdom)

When the time comes for us to govern openly– ment, the time will also come to show the gentleness (6) of our regime and (7) to amend all laws. Our laws will be brief and concise (8), requiring no interpretation; everyone will be able to know them in their every detail.
tails.

Obedience

(Pol.: Obedience to Authority)

Their essential characteristic will be to demand absolute obedience to

---

(1) Am. and Pol.: Papp imer “and to men”.

(2) Am. and Pol.: ..., by the Press...

(3) Am. and Pol.: ..., and the senior administration..

(4) Am. and Pol.: this is what distinguishes our brain from the brain...

(5) Pol.: . however...

(6) Am.: ...the advantages... – Pol.: to show the beneficial effects of our system, then we will amend all legislatures.

(7) And we will change all A laws.

(8) Nilus "1920. All, Am.: ...trrevocable... – Pol.: ...inflexible...

Authority, and this respect for authority, will be pushed to its limits.
extremes. Then all abuses (1) of power will cease.

Extreme punishments for abuses of power

(Pol.: Means used against abuses of power)

Each (2) will be responsible to the sole supreme power first, namely that of the sovereign.

Abuse of power, by anyone, is an exception.
anything done for the sovereign will be punished so severely that one will lose the desire to test his strength in this regard.

We will closely monitor each of the decisions decisions made by our Administrative Body (3), from which will depend the work of the government machine, because (4) if the ad–
If the administration relaxes its grip, disorder will erupt everywhere. Not one a single illegal act, not a single abuse of power (5) will remain unpunished.

All acts (6) of concealment or (7) of negligence vo– act on the part of administration agents, disappear will be done as soon as we have seen the first examples of punishment.

The prestige of our power will demand punishments that appropriate punishments be inflicted, that is to say, that they be harsh, even in the case of the most insignificant harm done to this prestige, for personal gain. The man (8) who, by even an excessively severe punishment (9) atones for his crime, will be like the dying soldier on the battlefield of administration for the sake of authority, principles, and the law; cause which does not allow any deviation from the common path in favor of of personal interests, even for those who drive the tank of the State. Thus, our judges will know that, in trying to mon–
If they show leniency (10), they will violate the law of justice done

---

(1) Am.: ...because everyone, without exception, will be responsible before the power– see supreme authority. – Pol.: ...as a result of the responsibility– all, without exception, before the authority of the representative of the supreme power first. .

(2) Senior officials will be...

– o Nilus 1920 and Am.: We will closely monitor all the actions of the Adminisation.

gé A a and Pol.: ...because corruption in the administration breeds corruption general. |

(6) Pol.: (subheading preceding this paragraph): “Severity of punishments”.
(7) Pol: ...or mutual complacency...
(8) Pol.: The man sentenced to a term of imprisonment...
(9) Pol.: ...in relation to his fault, will be like the soldier...
(10) Nilus 1920 and Am.: ...to show stupid pity... – Pol.: ...to show, without reason, their indulgence...

z ST

cm gen pi ce ns." to a
+

to (1) impose exemplary punishment, because of the mistakes made, and not to allow the judge to show his clemency (2). This fortunate quality (3) should not be exercisedcer that in private life and not in the official exercise of functions of judge, without which the educational scope of political lifeThe tick loses all its effectiveness.

The age limit for judges

Magistrates, at fifty-five years of age, will cease all functions tions (4) for the following reasons:

1. Because older men form stronger attachments to preconceived ideas and are less able to obey new orders;

2. Because such a measure will allow us to operate frequent changes in the judiciary which, therefore, will meekly submitted to any pressure from us. All A man wishing to keep his job will need, in order to ensure it, to obey us blindly.

Liberalism Defended to Judges and Others 7

senior officials
(Pol.: The Liberalism of Judges and Authority)

In general, our judges will be chosen from among those who comThey believe that their duty is to punish and enforce the laws, and not to dwell on dreams of liberalism that might undermine (5) our education plan, as is the Case for current Gentle judges. Our renewal systemveering the magistrates will also help us to destroy (6) all the combinations they could form with each other; also will they work solely in the interest of the Government whose fate will depend on it. The next generation of judges will be formed in such a way as to instinctively prevent any action (7) which could undermine our existing relations topics in relation to each other.

(D Arm.: solely created to give exemplary punishments for crimesto please and not... – Pol.: ...to correct people through punishments due to their crimes and not...

(2) Nilus 1920, Am. et Pol.: to manifest his moral qualities.

(3) Nilus 1920, Am. et Pol.: It is good to manifest such qualities in the Privacy? No way...

(4) All.: will be retired...

(5) Am. and Pol.: ..at the governmental education level...

(6) Am. and Pol.: ...mutual solidarity between colleagues...

(7) Nilus 1920 and Am.: all criminal activity.

Currently, the Gentile judges are lenient towards all kinds of manes, because they don't have an exact idea of their duty, for the simple reason that those who govern, when they appoint judges (1), do not instill in them this idea.

The rulers of the Gentiles, when they appoint their subjects in high positions, don't bother to explain it to them the importance of making them understand the purpose of the posts in question were created (2); they act as the animals when they send their young back to search of prey. Thus the Gentile governments are ruined. by their own servants (3). We will draw a moral from plus the results of the system adopted by the Gentiles; it will help us to build our Government (4).

We will uproot any liberal tendency from each of the propaganda institutions (5) important in our Go-government, institutions on which the training of all those who will be our subjects. These important positions will be exclusively reserved for those who were specially trained by us for the administration.

The Gold of the World

Will we observe that prematurely retiring our functions tionnaires would be too expensive for our Government, I will answer (6) then, first of all, we will try to discovering a private occupation for such officials suitable to compensate them for the loss of their job, or that, Moreover, our Government was then in possession of All the money in the world, the expenses will not be considered derer (7).

---

(1) Am. and Pol.: ...do not concern themselves with giving them a sense of duty and an understanding of business.

(2) Am.: Acting like animals that send their young flying in search of a prey, the Goim give their subjects positions engaging their responsibility-ity without taking the time to explain their functions to them. — Pol.: without pen-

I even had to explain to them the purpose...
(3) Nilus 1920, Am. and Pol.: ...ruined by their own forces and by the acts of their own administration.

(4) Am.: May such a result be yet another example to prove to us the superiority of our Government. — Pol.: May this example of the consequences Where such methods lead, let it be a lesson for our Government.
All.: This sentence does not exist.

(5) All.: Delete "of propaganda". — Nilus 1920, Am. ct Pol.: ..of all important strategic positions,

(6) Am. and Pol.: ...first of all, before taking away their situation we
We will have found them private sector jobs that will compensate them, and I will point out secondly, that our Government

(7) Pol.: In subtitle st Pparagraphe following: Absolutism of Freemasonry.
— Nilus; Our mighty voice.

Our autocracy (1) will be logical in all its actions;
also (2) any decision taken at the sole discretion of our Go-
The government will always be treated with respect and obeyed without question.
condition.

The Autocracy of Judeo-Masonry (3)

We will pay no attention (4) to the murmurs and discontent, and (5) we will punish any sign of evil bad mood, so severely, that everyone will draw from it one example applicable to oneself.

The Right of Appeal abolished |

5 (Pol.: Right of cassation)

We will remove the right of appeal (6) and reserve it for our sole use, because we must not let to develop among the people the idea that our judges (7) are capable of they are more likely to make mistakes in their decisions.

In the event that a judgment requires review, we (8) de-we would immediately put the judge in question on trial, and punish him-Let's laugh publicly, so that such a mistake is not repeated.
not.

I repeat what I've already said: one of our most important principles
The important thing will be to monitor our administrative officials tifs, and this with the express aim of satisfying the nation, because which can, by right (9), require that a Government has good civil servants.

—

The patriarchal air of our world leader's government

= aa Toye M: Ar

Our Government will have the appearance of a (10) mission

(1) Pol.: ...absolutism...

(2) Pol.: ...also our will, in every decision taken, will be...

(3) Pol.: Subtitle (non-existent).

(4) Pol.: This will will not hold...

(5) Am. and Pol.: and will eliminate all manifestations of it in action by means of exemplary punishments.

(6) Am. and Pol.: ...right of cassation which will become the exclusive prerogative of our Sovereign.

(7) Am. and Pol.: ...that the judges, appointed by us, are...

(8) Nilas 1920, Am. and Pol.: ...we would ourselves overturn the verdict and we we would inflict upon the Judge for not having understood his duty or the purpose of his office (Am.: nor his responsibility) such a punishment that other similar cases do not will reproduce amals.

19) Pol.: We will be informed of every step taken by our administration.
tion that it will suffice to monitor for the people to be content with us; he has, in effect. the right to demand.

(10) 4m. ct Pol.: paternal tutelage ct patriarchal...

Our patriarchal power is vested in the person of our sovereign.
sation and our subjects will look upon him as a father who takes to take care to satisfy all their needs (1), to monitor all their actions and to regulate the relations of his subjects with each other the others, as well as their relations with the Government. a

Apotheosis of the Jewish King of the World

Thus (2) the feeling of respect towards the sovereign penetrates-will penetrate so deeply into the nation that it will no longer be able to
She will not be able to do without his care and guidance.
live in peace without him and, eventually, will recognize him as his absolute master.

The people will have such a profound sense of respect for him that he will be close to worship, especially when he con-will prevail—that its officials (3) blindly execute its orders and that he alone reigns over them. They will rejoice in us to see their lives organized as (4) if we were parents eager to instill in their children a strong sense of duty and obedience.

The Despotism of Jewish Law (5)

f-7

Regarding our secret policy, all the Nations are (6) children and their governments are equal-ment (7). As you can see for yourselves, I base our despotism over Law and Duty. The right of the Government-the need to demand that the people fulfill their duty is, in itself-even, an obligation (8) of the sovereign who is the father of his subjects. He is granted the right to use force, so that he may lead humanity in the direction dictated by the laws of nature, that is to say, towards obedience.

(1) Pol.: Delete: "to satisfy all their needs". Nilus 1920 main-hold these words.

(2) Am. and Pol.: Thus this idea that it is impossible to do without such leader and such tutelage, if they wish to live in peace, will penetrate them so deeply

Wils will recognize the autocracy of our sovereign with a respect close to adoration. This feeling will be deeper when they convince themselves that the-the authority of civil servants does not replace his own and is only the instructionblinded by it.

(3) Am.: ...our agents...

(4) All, Am. and Pol.: as wise parents do...

(5) Pol.: subtitle (non-existent).

(6) Pol.: ...eternal minor children...

(7) Pol.: In subtitle: Might makes right as the only right.

(8) Am. and Pol.: ...an attribution... – Nilus 1920: ...an obligation...

Every creature in this world is subject, sometimes subjugated to a man, sometimes to circumstances, sometimes to his own nature, in any case, to something more powerful than herself. Let us therefore be the most powerful, in the interest of the common cause.

We must, without hesitation, sacrifice the individuals who... would have violated the existing order, because an exemplary punishment
Pleasing is the solution to the great problem of education.

The King of the Jews, Patriarch of the World

The day the king of Israel places the crown upon his sacred head
The crown that all of Europe will offer him, he will become the Patriarch-world's horse.

The number of victims (1) who will have to be sacrificed by Our King will never exceed the number of those who have been immolated (2) by the Gentile Sovereigns in their pursuit of greatness and in their rivalries.

Our Sovereign will be in constant communication with the people; he will address them from the stands, speeches which will be immediately transmitted to the entire world.

SIXTEENTH SESSION

(Police: Report No. 46)
Judeo-Masonic Transformation of Education
(Pol.: Universities rendered harmless)

With a view to destroying all (3) types of collective enterprise other than our own, we will annihilate any collective work from birth; in other words, we will transform universities and will rebuild them on new plans.

University leaders and professors will be especially-prepared (4) by means of perfectly-tactful and secret, of which they will be instructed and will not be able to to step aside without punishment. They will be carefully designated and will depend entirely on the Government. From our pro-

(1) Pol.: The number of necessary victims sacrificed for our king, being Given the reason for their immolation, it will never reach...

(2) Am. and Pol.: ..in the course of the centuries to the mania for grandeur and to the rivalries of the governments. – All.: over the course of: so many centuries.

(3) Nilus 1920, Am. et Pol.: ...any collective force other than our own; we will render harmless the first degree of collectivism, that is to say the Univer-
By repurposing these sites and transforming them, we will give them a new direction.

(4) Am. and Pol.: ...to their task...

gram, we will exclude (1) all teaching of the law civil, like that of any other political subject. A little a number of men, chosen from among the initiates for their abilities These obvious truths will be revealed by these scientists. The universities will not have the right (2) to launch into the world of whitesbeaks watching the new constitutional reforms as if they were comedies or tragedies, or worrying about the political question that their fathers themselves-
They don't understand.

A mature knowledge (3) of politics for a
The crowd of people is the source of utopian ideas, and in fact of bad citizens. You can see that for yourself.
even according to the education system (4) of the Gentiles. We there planes introduced (5) all these principles in order to be able to, with success, destroy their social structure, as we are there—my upstarts. When we are in power, we will suppress—We will develop educational programs covering all subjects that may—would disturb the minds of young people; we will make of them disobedient children (6), loving their master and grateful in his person the principal pillar of peace and public good blic (7). |

To the classics and the study of ancient history, which con—hold more bad examples than good ones, we substitute—
We will kill the study of future problems. We will erase of human memory the past which could be undone to us voracious, leaving only the facts where indu—
The errors of the Gentile Governments. The subjects dealing with issues of practical life, social organization social and relations between men (8), as well as conferences against bad and selfish examples, which are corrupting and harmful, and other issues seem—

---

neti Am. et Pol.: ...political law and everything that may touch on the issues policies...

(2) Am. and Pol.: Universities shall not award degrees to young upstarts cooking up constitutional plans as if they were come—comics or tragedies and dealing with political issues to which their Even the fathers themselves understand nothing.

(3) Nilus 1920, Am. and Pol.: A poorly directed initiation of a large number Political affairs generate (Pol.: form) utopians and bad citizens.

(4) Am. and Pol.: ...general...

(5) Am. and Pol.: We have introduced into it all the principles which have succeeded in destroy the social order.

(6) Am.: ...obeying their superiors... — Pol.: ...obeying Authority...

(7) Am.: loving their master who is for them a pledge of hope, of peace and tranquility — Nilus 1920: ...loving their master, the pillar and hope of the ix and tranquility. — Pol.: ...as their point of support and the cause of their hope for peace... (Followed by a subtitle: Classicism replaced).

(8) Nilus 1920, Am. and Pol.: ...the flight from evil, from bad examples of Selfishness spreading evil, and indeed all similar issues having an educational character will be... | problems where reasoning does not come into play will be at the first plan of our education system. These programs will be specially designed for different classes and castes, whose education will be kept strictly separate.

It is of the utmost importance to emphasize this system special. :

Caste Schools
(Pol.: Education and classes)

Each class (1) or caste will be instructed separately, following before his particular situation and his work. A genius (2) has always knew and will always know how to infiltrate a caste higher, but apart from this very exceptional case, it is not It is not useful to mix the education of the different castes and to ad—to put into higher ranks men who would take the place of those who were born to occupy it. You know—even how disastrous it was for the Gentiles (3) to issue the absolutely idiotic idea that no difference should be made towards social classes.

The School at the service of our global sovereign (Pol.: Complaint made in schools to the authority of the "Chief")

_ So that the sovereign can secure a solid place in the heart (4) of his subjects, it is necessary that, during his reign, we teach the nation, both in schools and in the public places, the importance of its activity and good intentions tions of its companies.

Abolition of Freedom of Education
| (Pol.: Abolition of all freedom of education)

We will abolish (5) all forms of private education. The days incapable and admit them into castes or higher ranks, the enabling them to occupy positions for which others were born and have been raised — is utter insanity. — Nilus 1920 and Pol.: The geniuses who They met by accident, always knew and will always know how to penetrate in a higher caste, but because of these few cases, it would It is absolutely insane to allow people to enter classes other than their own. incapable people and thus deprive others of their position who were destined for itborn by their birth and their condition.

---

(1) Pol.: Each social class must be...

(2) Am.: A fortuitous genius has always known and will always know how to climb into a upper caste; but, because of this rare exception, open the door to $ Pol.: to admit this blatant nonsense.

(4) Nilus 1920, Am. and Pol.: ...and in the spirit...

(5) All.: ...freedom of teaching. — Nilus 1920, Am. and Pol.: ...whileseigneamaiit Libre,

During the holiday, students and their parents will have the right to to gather in their colleges, as if these were clubs. At these meetings, the professors will give speeches, which will be presented as free lectures, on topics such as the relationships between men (1), the laws and the misunderstandings due to which are generally the result of a flawed design of the social situation of men, and, finally, they exposewill be the new philosophical theories that have not yet were revealed to the world.

Jewish doctrines that became dogmas of faith

(Pol.: New theories)

From these theories, we will make dogmas of faith, we will... serving as a stepping stone for our faith.

When I have finished explaining my entire program to you (2) and when we have discussed all our plans for the present and For the future, I will read you the outline of this new doctrine philosophical.

Destroying Freedom of Thought

(Pol.: Independent of thought)

We know, from centuries of experience, that the Men live and are guided by ideas, and that they are ininfluenced by these ideas through education; education can... can be given at any age with the same result, but, naturallyment, by different means (3).

Through systematic education, we will take care of to eliminate anything that might remain of this independence dance of thought, which we have used so extensively, for some time now, in order to achieve our goals.

Superficial Education. — Object Lessons

(Pol.: Object Lessons)

We have already established a plan to subjugate minds,

---

(1) Nilus 1920 and Am.:...on the law of imitation (counterfeiting), on the cruelty of unlimited competition and ultimately... — Pol.: on principles From the example, the reprisals, the result of a false...

(2) Pol.: ...for the present and for the future, I will read to you the foundationsdenials of these theories.

(3) Pol.: We will also absorb, we will confiscate for our own benefit the lastthe last vestiges of the independence of thought that, for a long time now, we Let's look at the topics and ideas that we need.

nn

— or er a

through intuitive teaching (teaching by eyes) (1), to which is attributed the property of making the Gentiles incapable of thinking for themselves; so that, like Obedient animals, they await the demonstration of an idea before looking for 4 to seize it. One of our best agents, in France, is Bouroy (2); he has already introduced into this country the new system of intuitive education.

SEVENTEENTH SESSION

(Police: Report No. 47)

Legal experts and lawyers
(Police: Lawyers)

The profession of forensic lawyer makes those who practice it cold. cruel and obstinate (3); she takes away all their principles and obliges them to see life from an inhuman (4), but purely legal perspective. They have gotten into the habit of considering events only from the point of view of knowing what there is to gain by defending them, at instead of considering what the effect of this defense would be on well-to be general.

A practitioner never refuses to defend a case, whatever it may be. So be it. He will strive to obtain an acquittal, at any cost. price, by focusing on minor inconsistencies in case law, to demoralize the Court.

We will therefore limit the scope of this profession by putting lawyers on the same footing as judges tasked with enforcing the law. Lawyers, like judges, will not have the right (5) to interview their clients and will not receive will only see their files once the said clients have been assigned by the court; they will only study these files on reports and documents, and they will not defend their clients that after they have been examined by the court, supporting

---

(1) Pol.: ...by the eyes) capable of changing the Goim into thoughtless animals and obedient, needing this method to learn something.
Nilus 1920: ...and obedient, awaiting this demonstration in order to study it.

(2) All. Am., Nilus 1920 and Pol.: ...in France, Bourgeois, has already...

(3) Pol.: .... without principles, considering everything from an impersonal point of view Purely legal.
(4) All.: ...personal... — Am.: ...abstract...

(5) Pol.: to come to an agreement with their clients. Only the court will determine the cases to be argued. They will only study these cases based on the reports and the documents, they will only defend their clients after the files have been examined by the court; their defense will be based on the facts thus established. Fixed legal fees, regardless of the quality of the defense. They become-nt...

their defense at this initial examination. Their fees will be fixed, regardless of the success or failure of their defense. They will thus become mere reporters in the service of the de-defense, counterbalancing the (1) plaintiff who will be a rapport-author on behalf of the prosecution.

The legal procedure will thus be considerably shortened. ged. By this means, we will also obtain an honest defense. clear and impartial, not guided by material interests, but the lawyer's firm conviction. This will have further-to prevent any bribery or corruption that may act-potentially slipping into the courts of some countries (2).

Discrediting the non-Jewish clergy
(Pol.: Influence of the Goim clergy)

We took great care to discredit the clergy of the Gen-in the eyes of the people, and we thus succeeded in harming his mission which (3) could have seriously thwarted our plans. The influence of the clergy on the people is diminishing every day.

Freedom of conscience. — Collapse of Christianity.
Infamous rumor

Today, religious freedom is recognized everywhere, and we are only a few years removed from the time when Christianity will collapse completely. It will be easier It's still too early to put an end to other religions. to discuss this point.

We will reduce the clergy and their teachings to such a minor role. minute, and we will make its influence so antipathetic to the fewple, that his teachings will have an effect contrary to that that they once had (4). 7

Judeo-Masonic Plan Against the Vatican
(Pol.: The Papal Court)

When the time comes for us to completely destroy-

(1) Pol.: acu

(2) Pol.: This will put an end to the current practices of bribing colleagues.
to their habit of agreeing that the party that pays should win. — Nilus 1920: Ibid. — Am.: ...to prevent the existing corruption among lawyers who are involved tend to favor the party that pays.

(3) Pol.: could currently...

(4) Pol.: We will place clericalism and clerics in a framework so restricted that their influence will be exerted in reverse of their former actions.

tement la Cour papal, tu main inconnue (1) indicating the Vatican will give (2) the signal for the assault.

When, in their fury, the people rush upon the Vatican can (3), we will appear as protectors to stop the shedding of blood. By this act, we will penetrate to the the very heart of this Papal Court, from which nothing in the world will be able to drive us out, until we have destroyed the power-Pope's session.

The King of the Jews, true Pope and Patriarch of the Church universal (Pol.: The King of the Jews, true Pope and Patriarch)

The King of Israel will become the true Pope of the universe, the Patriarch of (4) the international Church (5).

But, until we have succeeded in doing the rehabilitation of youth, through new, transitional religions, to arrive at our own, we will not attack openly existing churches, but we will fight them by the criticism (6) which has already sown dissension among them and who will continue to do so.

Disorganizing aims of the Jewish press
(Pol.: Aims of the contemporary press)

In general, our press will denounce the governments institutions, religious or otherwise, by all sorts of unscrupulous articles, written with the intention-tion (7) to discredit them to such an extent that, alone, our wise nation is capable of achieving.

Police Organization
(Police: Volunteer police officers)

Our government will resemble the Hindu god Vish-

(1) Am. — Ntlus 1920. — Pol.: ...an invisible hand...

(2) 4m.: ...given to the masses... — Nilus, 1920: Id. — ...will turn attention peoples towards the Vatican.

Doł: When Wils rushes at him, we will appear...

(4) All.: International Jewish list.

(5) Pol.: (Title) Means of fighting against the current Church.

(8) Pol.: source of the schism.

(7) Pol.: In general, our press will denounce political, religious, the incapacity of the Goim and all this in contemptuous articles in order to discredit.

nou (1). Each of our hundred hands will hold a spring of the social mechanism of the State (2).

We will find out everything without having to resort to the police.
official, which we have so corrupted to harm the Gentiles, that it (3) only serves to prevent the Government from see the facts clearly. According to our program, one-third of the population will be led to monitor the rest, purely out of sentimentduty, and to obey the principle of voluntary service submitted to the Government.

There will be nothing dishonorable then in being a spy (4); On the contrary, it will be regarded as honorable. On the other hand, Those who spread false news (5) will be severely punished, to prevent the abuse of the privilege of espionage.

We will choose our agents from the highlands and the lowlands classes of society; we will take some from among the administrators eurs (6), the publishers, the printers, the booksellers, the embent over, the workers, the coachmen, the footmen, etc. This the police force will have no independent power to act dante (7) and will not have the right to take any action on his on her own initiative; therefore, the duty of this powerless woman The police will consist solely of serving as witnesses and making reports. The verification of his reports and arrests Any potential issues will be handled by a group of police inspectors. responsible (8); the arrests will be carried out by gendarmes and municipal police. If an offense or a crime The political figures are not reported; the one who should have reported them will be punished for willfully concealing this crime or offense. if concealment can be proven.

Kahal, a model of espionage

Our Brothers are required to act in the same way, that is to say

(1) Pol.: Our Government will be the apology of the Hindu god Vishnu who is like its incarnation.

(2) Pol.: ...of the (non-existent) State.

(3) Pol.: We will know... official which in the form that we have given for the use of the Goyim is not official... – Nilus, 1920: which with its regulations that...

(4) Pol.: ...and an informer...

(5) All.: ...false accusations will be punished by death, to prevent... – Nilus, 1920: ...unfounded reports... – Pol.: ...false accusations...

(6) Am. ct Nilus, 1920: ...civil servants, friends of pleasure... – Pol.: Nos agents will belong to the highest as well as the lowest classes of the society; there will be some among the civil servants who are having fun...

(7) Am.: no official status...

(8) Pol.: ...independent action, therefore devoid of power, this police will serve only as a witness and will make reports. The control of these denunciations–

The arrests to be made will be the responsibility of a group of police inspectors. responsible.

will have to, on their own initiative, report to the competent authority tempts all apostates and all acts that would contradict them. to our law (1). In our universal government, it will therefore be a duty, for all subjects, to serve their sovereign by acting sant as I just said (2).

Abuse of Power by Civil Servants

(Pol.: Abuses of power)

An organization like ours will eradicate all abuses of power and all the varied kinds of venality and corruption tion; it will, in reality, destroy all the ideas we have contaminated the lives of the Gentiles with our theories on rights superhumans (3).

How could we achieve our goal of creating the dedisorder in the administrative institutions of the Gentiles otherwise by such means?

Among (4) the most important of these means of corruption their institutions, one must take into account the employment of agents who are susceptible, given their destructive activity, to contato undermine others by revealing and developing their tendencies corrupt practices, such as abuse of power or buying without modesty of consciences.

EIGHTEENTH SESSION
(Police: Report No. 48)

Soviet Police Measures
(Pol.: Means of defense)

When will the time come for us to take action?
special police (5) by putting into force the Russian system

(1) Am.: ...to our Kehillah.

(2) Pol.: Just as today our brothers will be obliged, under their responsibility ability to denounce to Kahal apostates or people who act against
For us, likewise in our universal government, this will be a duty for all.
citizens to serve the State in this way.

(3) Pol.: Such an organization will eradicate all abuses of power by force or venality, in short, everything we have introduced into the baa ay des Goim par nos conseils ct nos théories sur les droits du superhomme.

4) Pol.: Among these means, one of the most important is the agents tasked with restoring order before the possibility of their destructive activity '* reveal and develop their evil instincts: arbitrariness, despotism, and especially corruption through bribes.

(5) Am. and Nilus, 1920: When the time comes for us to take severe defense measures, we will raise... — Pol.: If we must take exceptional defense measures, the most dangerous poison for Pau-State authority, we will organize simulated disturbances or demonstrations expressions of discontent that will occur with the help of good orators.

These speakers...

current of the "Okhrana" (1) (the most dangerous poison which may attack the prestige of the State (2), we will raise, thanks at the competition for good orators, fictitious disturbances among the people, or we will incite them to demonstrate discontent extended. These speakers will find a great deal of sympathy, And, thanks to them, we will be excused from conducting the search.
among people and subject them to certain restrictions, em-bending for this purpose the servants we have in the police
The good guys.

Surveillance to be exercised over the Conspirators
(Pol.: Publicizing security measures as a destruction of authority)

Like most conspirators, they are driven by love of art, or the art of gossiping, we will not touch it, until-that when we see that they are ready to act, and we we will limit ourselves to introducing among them (3) what we call-We will have an element of denunciation. We must remember that a powersance loses its prestige (4) every time it discovers a public conspiracy directed against itself, there is in Such a revelation is an admission of weakness, and, what is more Even more dangerous is admitting one's own mistakes. We must know that we have destroyed the prestige of the Gentiles regnant (5) by means of a considerable number of murders se-atrocities perpetrated by our agents, blind sheep of our sheepfold, which is easily persuaded (6) to commit a crime (7), if that crime has a political character.

We will compel (8) Governments to agree on their own weaknesses by openly employing measures of special police, like |' "Okhrana", and we will shake thus the prestige of their power.

(1) Am. — Nilus, 1920. — Pol.:...by putting into effect the current Russian system of the “Okhrana” (non-existent).

There is confusion here. The Russian word "okhrana" means: defense, as in
In this case, and again: "security" (secret police), a meaning that has given rise to Ja above explanation.

(2) This parenthesis exists in Polish but not in Nilus 1920.

(3) Pol.: ...among them the surveillance elements.

(4) Pol.: ...prestige if it often uncovers conspiracies directed against herself.

(5) MP, July 21, 1920: We have destroyed the prestige of the kings of the Goim through numerous attacks against their lives, carried out by our agents. — Nilus, 1920: Ibid. — Pol.: You know that we have destroyed the prestige of the sovereigns through a considerable number of murders committed...

(6) Am.: ..by a liberal phraseology, — Nilus 1920, Id.

(7) Pol.: ...provided that this crime... i
(8) Am.: We have obliged the rulers... — Nilus, 1920: We obligerons... — Pol.: to acknowledge their weakness by openly employing ol.

security measures, and we will shake...

Guard of the King of the Jews

Our Sovereign will be protected by absolutely guards secret, because we will never allow anyone to think that he is incapable of destroying a conspiracy on his own some plot against him that forces him into hiding. If we let us allow such an idea to prevail, as it prevails among the
By being kind, we would, in effect, be signing the death warrant of our Sovereign, or at least that of his dynasty (1).

Judging by appearances alone, our leader will not employ his power only in the interest of his subjects and never for his own property or that of his dynasty.

By meticulously adopting this staging, its subjects (2) themselves will honor and protect his power which they will venerate, knowing that the salvation of the State is attached to the existence of such a power, upon which public order will depend.

Keeping the king openly would be admitting weakness (3) of his power.

Our leader (4) will always be in the midst of his people; we will will see surrounded by a curious crowd of men and women who will always occupy, as if by chance (5), the ranks closer to him and who will keep the populace at bay lace (6), with no other apparent purpose than to maintain order for the love of order. This attitude will teach others to to know how to possess oneself. When a petitioner tries to to make his way through the crowd, to present his request, People in the front rows will take the petition and hand it over.
will be presented to the Sovereign, in the presence of the petitioner. Everyone will know as well as all petitions reaching him and that he taking care of them himself in all matters.

Power only has prestige if its subjects can call themselves between them: "If only the king knew this!" or "When the
The king will know! (7) » |

The mystery surrounding the person of the Sovereign vanishes.
as soon as a police guard is seen around him. In front
With such a guard, an assassin needs only a little audacity.

1) Pol.: dynasty in the near future.

(D Pol.: ...thanks to this decorum, his subjects...

(3) Pol.: ...failure of the organization of its force.

(4) Am.: Observing strict decorum, our leader...

(5) Pol.: When our leader is in the midst of his people, he will always be seen surrounded... will occupy, as if by chance...

(6) Pol.: ..the populace, supposedly to enforce order.

(7) Hair.: (Title): Mystical prestige of otherness.

to believe himself stronger than her; he thus becomes aware of his strength and only has to wait (1) for the favorable moment to to throw against the king.

We do not preach this doctrine to the Gentiles, and (2) you
You can see for yourselves the results they obtained with the official guards.

Arrests at the first suspicion of political criminals
(Pol.: Arrest at the first suspicion)

Our Government will arrest (3) those who, rightly or wrongly,
He will suspect them of being guilty of political crimes (4). He would be re-
It is regrettable that, for fear of making a judicial error...
ciaire, we give such criminals (5) the opportunity to escape.
We will certainly show them no pity. It will perhaps beit may be possible, in certain exceptional cases, to admit mitigating circumstances, when it comes to crimes of law common; but there will be no excuse (6) for politicotic, that is to say, for people involved in politics who, alone, Those in power have the right to understand. And, to be honest, everyone the sovereigns are not capable of understanding true politics tick.

NINETEENTH SESSION

(Police: Report No. 49)

The right to submit petitions or proposals

We will prohibit individuals (7) from getting involved in politics;
but, on the other hand, we will encourage all kinds of relationships or petition concerning the improvement of social life (8) and

(1) All.: ...the opportune moment to commit his crime. — Am.: ...the opportune moment to launch an attack against a civil servant, — Pol.: ...The pres-
The mystical stem of authority vanishes as soon as an official guard is formed.
Anyone with a bit of audacity considers themselves more powerful than her. The criminal-
He thus becomes aware of his strength and only has to wait for the favorable moment.
Suitable for attacking authority.

a Pol.: To the Goim, we will preach just the opposite, so you can see...

(3) All.: ...without delay... `

(4) Pol.: In our country, the guilty will be arrested as soon as there is even the slightest suspicion or
The less well-founded, the more likely they are to fall upon them.

(5) Pol.: political opportunities to escape and to which we do not bear witnessrons... — Nilus, 1920: ...miscarriage of justice, an opportunity to escape is given to those suspected of a political offense or a crime, for what reason will we be Without mercy.

(6) Pol.: ...of excuse for the people who deal with issues which
No one outside the Government understands anything.

(7) AlL: to the people...

(8) Pol.: life of the subjugated people...

national, subject to the approval of the Government (1). Because,
In this way, we would be kept informed of the errors of our Government, on the one hand, and the ideals (2) of our subjects On the other hand, to the requests that would be presented in this way, we we would respond either by accepting them, or by arguing against them
They have a striking argument to clearly prove that their realsation is impossible, because they are based on a petty business design.

Suppression of Disorder and Riots

(Pol.: Intrigues)

We could compare the effects of sedition 4 with those that produce, on the elephant, the barking of a yappy dog (3). If the
The government is well organized, not from the point of view of its police, but from a social point of view, the dog barks without to account for the strength (4) of the elephant; but, that this one shows its strength once and for all(5), and the dog will be silent on
It will be an hour and it will swish its tail as soon as it sees the elephant.

Disgraced political criminals

(Pol.: Method of judging political crimes)

To strip political crime of its halo of bravery (6)
we will place those who have committed it (7) in the rank of the a-
They are very criminal; they will go hand in hand with thieves and murderers.
and other criminals of the same odious kind. Public opinion which will then no longer differentiate between political crimes and vulgar crimes and will charge them with equal opprobrium (8).

We made every effort to prevent the Gentiles to adopt this particular method of dealing with political crimes ques... We used the press (9), the public, the

(1) Pol.: For, by this means, we will be kept informed of the needs or the fantasies of our subjects and we will respond to them either by accepting them, or by opposing a reasoned refusal, which will demonstrate the shortsightedness of those who judge false-the sowing of things.

(2) Am.: ...fantastic aspirations of our subjects... — Nilus, 1920, Id.
(3) Pol.: Intrigues are nothing more than the barking of a yappy dog against an elephant

(4) Pol.: ...and of the power...

(5) Pol.: ...both of them...

(6) Am.: . his halo of martyrdom. — Nilus 1920: ...of bravery...

(7) Pol.: placed in the dock with the thieves, criminals, and honorable members of the public. disgusting and repulsive. — Am., Nilus 1920: ...odious and disgusting.

(8) Pol.: (Title) Claim made for political crimes.

(9) Pol.: O”. We have committed... political crimes. And, as far as I can I realized it, we succeeded. We used the press, speech... , speech and (1) classic history textbooks skillfully designed. We inspired the idea that a convicted criminal Politician was a martyr, since he died for the idea of good common. Such advertising has multiplied the number of liberaux (2) and swelled the ranks of our agents by thousands of Gentils (3).

TWENTIETH SESSION

(Police: Report No. 20)

Principles of Financial Science and Taxation

(Pol.: Financial program)

Today I will be discussing our financial program which I saved for the end of my report, because it is the the most difficult question (4), the one that will be the last clause of our plans. Before discussing this point, I want to remind you as I already said above, namely: that all our poli... tick 1 pose on numbers (5),

When we come to power, our Government An autocratic leader will avoid, in their own interest, putting pressure on excessive taxes on the people and will never lose sight The role he must play: that of a protective father.

The increasing tax on wealth (6)

But, as the Government's organization will absorb considerable sums of money, it is absolutely necessary to to secure the necessary funds to provide for it (7). It is us Therefore, great care must be taken when developing this question and to see that the tax burden is fair distributed (8).

(1) RAS 1920: indirectly...

(2) Pol.: freethinkers..
(3) Pol.: and brought thousands of Goim into the ranks of our beasts of sum.
(4) Am. and Nilus, 1920: ...and the most decisive. — Pol.: ..., the last point — and the most decisive element of our plans. I will begin my report by reminding you that...
O) All.: ...on the silver stock.

(6) Pol.: (Title) The tax... (non—existent).

(7) Pol.: That is why it will be necessary to study with very great attention the the question of balance in this matter,

(8) Pol.: (Title) progressive inpot.

Our Sovereign will, thanks to a legal fiction, be the owner of all goods, which is easily achievable. He will be able to raise the necessary funds (1) to regulate traffic money in the country.

Therefore (2) the best way to deal with the expenses of The Government will establish a progressive tax on the property. Thus, taxes will be collected without oppressing or ruin the people, and the burden that will fall upon each one will be proportioned according to what he will possess.

The rich must understand that it is their duty to cede to the Government a portion of the surplus of their wealth-its, since the Government guarantees them peaceful possession-it allows them to keep the rest of their property and gives them the right to enrich themselves by honest means. I say "honest" because the con-Control of the property will make the valley impossible from the point of view legal.

As this social reform is the main guarantee of the peace and that it suffers no delay, we must put it to first plan of our program.

Every time taxes have burdened the poor, the revolution
The ensuing revolution was to the great detriment of the Government, which Trying to get money from the poor is very likely to fail.
not getting rich (3).

The capital tax will reduce the growth of the force private tune to which, until now, we have deliberately allowed to increase it, so that it serves as a counterweight to the Government the Gentiles and their finances.

A progressive tax, distributed according to each person's wealth.
will produce a much larger income than the current system (4) of equal distribution for all. This system is, at this moment (1901) (5) most favorable to us; it causes discontent (6) among the Gentiles. (Remark-that this conference took place in 1901 (Text note) (7).

(1) Pol.: Our government in which, thanks to a legal fiction, the sou-Verain will own all the assets and will be able to raise the necessary funds.
— Am. and Nilus, 1920: He may resort to legal confiscation.

(2) Pol.: ...the best approach would be to begin tax collection by the state-bliss... —

(3) Pol.: Taxes demanded from the poor are a seed of revolution, at great harm to the Government which loses a lot, chasing after few thing.

(4) Pol.: ...current personal taxes or census.
(5) Pol.: (1901) non-existent.
(G) Am. and Pol.: revolt and discontent

(7) This parenthesis does not exist in the Polish text.

The power of our Sovereign will rest primarily on the fact that it will guarantee the balance of power and perpetual world peace (1). To achieve such peace, it It is natural that capitalists should relinquish part of their revenues.
naked to safeguard the Government in its action (2).

Government expenditures must be provided by those who can best withstand them and from whom we can draw money.

This measure will extinguish the hatred of the poor towards the rich in whom they will recognize the indispensable financial auxiliaries bles of the State and the supports of peace and the public good (3); because the poor classes will understand that the rich provide-feels the means to provide them with social benefits.

So that the intelligent classes (4) who alone will pay the tax, have no reason to complain excessively about the new-new distribution system, we will submit to them comp-detailed instructions, in which we will indicate how.
Their money is being used without any mention of it; that goes without saying.
that is to say, what will be allocated to the specific needs of the Sovereign rain and the needs of the administration.

The Sovereign will have no personal property, since everything (5) will belong to him in the State, because if we admitted that The Sovereign may own private property, it would seem.
that not everything in the state was his property.

The Sovereign's parents — except his heir (6) who will be maintained by the State — will have to serve the State, either as a functiontionnaires, either in any employment whatsoever, in order to retain the right to own; the privilege of being of royal blood (7) does not
It would not be worth living at the expense of the state.

Progressive Stamp Tax

There will be a progressive stamp duty on all sales.

(1) Am. and Nilus, 1920: ...the guarantee of balance and peace. — All.: The
The success of our king rests primarily on the fair distribution of taxes.
the principal guarantee of inner peace. — Pol.: The power of our su-

Veraln will be based on balance and the guarantee of peace.

(2) Pol.: ...To obtain them, it is natural that... ...to safeguard the function– The operation of the government machine. – Am.: ...to make the government machine.

(3) Pol.: ...well–being...

(4) All.: ...the propertied classes...

(5) Am.: ..in the State will seem to belong to him; these two ideas contradict each other–would say. – Pol.: ...otherwise one would contradict the other: the possession of property partyculiers destroyed the right to ownership of all property.

(6) Am.: his heirs who will be maintained...

(7) Am. and Pol.: ..must not be used to steal from the State's treasury.

Purchases (1) and inheritances. Any transaction (2) that does not Failure to bear the required stamp will be considered illegal. and the first owner will have to pay the State a percentage on said right from the day of the sale.

All transaction acknowledgments must be reweekly submissions to the local tax collector with the full names of the new and former ownerssilences, as well as their permanent addresses.

It will be necessary to use the same method (3) to any transaction exceeding a certain amount, that is to say, exceeding exceeding the average daily spending figure. The sale essential items will only be stamped with a ordinary stamp (4) of fixed value.

Just count how many times the amount of this tax will exceed the income of the Gentile governments.

The Public Treasury
(Pol.: State Fund) –

The State (5) must have a given capital in reserve and, in the event where the tax revenue would exceed this sum, the surplus of The proceeds would be put back into circulation. This remaining amount will be used to (6) all kinds of public works.

The direction (7) of such work would be entrusted to a minister of the State; the interests of the working classes would thus be (8) intimements linked to those of the State and the Sovereign. Part of the The remaining funds would still be used to distribute bonuses to inventors. and to the producers.

It is absolutely essential not to let the ar–

(1) Am. and Pol.: ...the benefits. – Nilus 1920 does not mention them.

(2) Nilus 1920 and Am.: The transfer of ownership in cash or in kind which will have been done without the required stamp, will make the first owner responsible sand of the tax, from the day the transfer took place until the day it was discovery of the omission of his declaration. – Pol.: If the transfer of any propertyshell, in cash or in kind, a transfer necessarily in nominal value, has not been declared by the payment of this stamp duty, the former owner will have to pay the tax interest for the period that has elapsed since the transaction until the day it was discovered that it hadn't been registered. – All.: All a transfer that will not carry the progressive stamp...

(3) Pol.: This nominal transaction method must be applied from of a specific sum exceeding the ordinary expenses of the acts of purchase or of the sale of essential goods. These latter transactions will incur a fee stamp amounting to a fixed percentage of the value of each item.

The fixed–value FA, representing a small percentage of the value of these objects.

(5) Nilus 1920 et Am.: The State Bank.

(6) Am. and Pol.: ...a public works.

p (7) Am. ct Pol.: The initiative for this work emanating from the Government, the interests...

(8) Am. and Pol.: ...scront...

gent (1) in state banks, at least beyond the The sum needed to cover a special expense. The ar– Money is meant to circulate, and any monetary congestion is fatal 4 the course of public affairs; money is, in fact, like oil, in the workings of the State; if the oil (2) becomes If it's too thick, the mechanism gets clogged and the machine stops.

The fact of having largely substituted (3) paper for the current currency has just created the unease we are talking about long and whose consequences are easy to grasp.

The Court of Auditors
(Pol.: Accounting)

We will also establish a Court of Auditors which will allow to the Sovereign to know exactly (4) the expenses and the Government revenues. All accounting will be scrutinized. carefully kept up to date, — except for the current month and the one that precedes it.

The only person who could have no interest in stealing from the State is the Sovereign, since he is its owner. That is why its control will put an end to any possibility of leaks and waste.

Elimination of fees for representation

All purely formal receptions, which are for the Sovereign, such a waste of his precious time will be supprizes, in order to leave him more leisure time to (5) occupy himselfper matters of State. In our Government, the SovereignRain will not be (6) surrounded by courtiers, who, in general, do the court to the monarch out of love for pomp (7) but who have not, at

---

(1) Am.: It should not be tolerated that even small sums exceeding one determined and largely calculated funds reside in the State treasury, because that the money is made... — Nilus 1920 said: not even one unit (which means probably: a franc, a dollar, a ruble, etc. (Translator's note). — Pol.: In all In this case, one should no longer keep money in one's thighs beyond the determined amount. mined and largely counted.

(2) Pol.: ..no longer flows, The regular operation of the mechanism is stopped, — A subtitle follows: Bonds and Varrét in circulation.

(3) Pol.: ...interest-bearing papers at current currency...

(4) Pol.: "and at every moment the state of the State's revenues and expenditures, with the exception of the accounts for the current month, which have not yet been finalized, — Am. and Nilus 1920 add: and those from the previous month not yet received.

(5) Am. ct Pol.: to control and reflect.

(6) Am.: Then the power of the Sovereign will not be wasted for the benefit of those who surround the throne for the love of pomp and splendor, but who... — Pol.: ..me will not be shared with favorites.

(7) Pol.: ...and luxury...

Se a A ea a ER E OR nn geen mr deep down, their self-interest is not their desire for the good. public. i

The pause in economic life
(Pol.: The cessation of capital flows)

We have not succeeded in triggering all the economic crisesques, so skillfully prepared by us (1) in the countries of Kind people, by removing money from circulation. The State (2) finds itself obliged, for its loans, to turn to large companies fortunes, which are congested by the fact that money has been withdrawn from the Government. These loans (3) constitute a heavy burden for states which are obliged to pay interest nets and which are thus burdened.

The concentration of production (4) by capitalism has sucked dry all the productive force, and, With it, all the wealth of the State.

The Circulation of Money
(Pol.: Money issuance)

Money (5) cannot, at present, satisfy all needs of the working classes, because there are not enough of them to circulatetore everywhere.

The issuance of current currency must correspond to the importance (6) of the population: and, from the first day of their At birth, children must be counted as units more to satisfy. The revision of the amount of money put into play

---

(1) Am. and Pol.: delete: e so skillfully prepared by us >.

(2) Nilus 1920 and Pol.: Enormous oes ae were kept idle and were taken from the nations, which forced them to resort to borrowing from these capital itself. — Am.: Ibid. up to the word resort... to resort to us for the loans.

(3) All.: These loans are... for states that are obliged to pay interest to the lenders, that is to say, to the Jews. — Am.: These loans, to because of the interest payments, they are a burden on state finances and have made states dependent on capital. — Pol.: Ibid. up to: state finances who found themselves at the mercy of these large corporations.

(4) Am.: The concentration of industry by removing all commerce from the artisan to place it in the hands of the capitalists, sucked... — Pol.: The concen- the transfer of industry into the hands of capitalists who have monopolized all the Small industries have drained all the strength of the people and therefore those of the State.

— All.: The transformation of medium and small industries into large factories, which depend on wealthy lenders, that is to say, Jews, have exhausted all the To the people. The resistance of the non-Jewish states was annihilated.
e ce fa

(5) Am.: The current issue of currency does not correspond to what is required per capita and therefore cannot satisfy all the needs of the classes workers. — Id. Nilus 1920. — Pol.: The current issuance of monetary signs does not no longer meets the demand and cannot satisfy all needs.

(6) Am. and Pol.: "to the increase….

in circulation must be done from time to time 4 other: it is a question-vital information for the whole world.

The Valuation

You know, I think, that the gold standard was everyone's downfall. the states that adopted it, because it cannot satisfy all the needs (1) of the populations, especially since we have done all our efforts to obtain its seizure and have it removed traffic flow.

The future currency

(Pol.: Currency based on the value of labor power)

Our Government will (2) put into circulation the quantity of currency in proportion to the country's working-class strength, and this money will be made of paper or even wood (3).

We issue a sufficient amount of currency so that each of our subjects can have enough (4) adding at each birth and decreasing at each death the sum correspondent.

The Government's accounts will be kept (5) by governors separate local governments and by provincial offices.

Financial administration among the Goim

(Pol.: Budget)

To avoid any delays in the payment of Regarding state expenditures, the Sovereign himself will give orders. setting (6) the payment dates. Thus will disappear (7) the favorritism which exists, in certain finance ministries, at with regard to other ministries,

Accounts of income and expenses will be kept inseems (8) so that they can always be compared.

---

(1) Am. and Pol.: ...of currency...

(2) Pol.: will have to put... —

(3) All.: ...in metal or wood.

(4) Pol.: ..'increasing according to the number of births, decreasing it based on the number of deaths.

(5) Am. and Pol.: ..by each department (French administrative unit, Nilus) and by each district.

(6) Am.: ..the conditions of these payments. — Pol.: ...the sums to be paid.

(7) Pol.: Thus will disappear the protection granted by the government to some institutions at the expense of others.
) Pol.: ...afln que Pun n'éclipse Pautre.

ea … EE an EE “mn ee eC? a eee

The plans we will make to reform the institutions
The financial assets of the Gentiles will be presented in such a way that they will never attract their attention (1). We will indicate the ne-the need for reforms as stemming from the state of disorder at-which have affected the finances of the Gentiles. We will show that The primary reason for this poor financial situation stems from what we start by doing at the beginning of the financial year an approximate budget estimate, the importance of which increases every year because, as it is, it is sufficient to struggling to get to the end of the first semester; we proa revision is proposed, new funds are opened, which, generally-ment, are absorbed after three months; a vote is then taken additional budget, and, to balance the budget, it is necessary to-core vote on credits for its liquidation. The budget for the year is based on the previous year's expenditure figures; however,
Each year there is a 50% difference between the nominal sum-final and the amount received, which means that after ten years the
The annual budget has tripled. It is this way of proceeding that has been tolerated.
by the careless Governments (2) of the Gentiles, that (3) Their reserves had been depleted. So, when the loans (4), their coffers were emptied and they were on the point of going bankrupt.

You will easily understand that we will not adopt this way of conducting business in the area that we have Recommended for Gentiles.

Current Government Bonds
(Pol.: Government Bonds)

Each loan proves the weakness of the Government and its Inability to understand one's own rights. Any loan, like the sword of Damocles, hangs over the heads of the gu-rulers who, instead of directly raising the money they have need by establishing special taxes (5), go away, chaskin down, among our bankers (6).

Foreign loans are like leeches: you don't

(1) Am. and Pol.: ...that they will not frighten anyone.

(2) Pol.: Delete "careless".

(3) Am.: ..-lcur treasury has been emptied. — Pol.: “that their coffers have been emptied.

(4) Pol.: [They gathered up the leftovers. — Am.: They helped themselves to the leftovers. —
Am. and Pol.: ..-and have led all the goim states to bankruptcy.

(5) Am. and Pol.: ..temporary...

Am. and Pol.: ...to hold out our hands and ask for alms from our bankers.
All.: to our Jewish bankers.

can detach them from the body of the State; they must fall either on their own, or that the Government succeeds in doing so get rid of (1). But the Gentile Governments have no-
They had no desire to shake off these leeches; on the contrary, they... increase their numbers, thus condemning themselves to death through loss.
of blood they inflict upon themselves. All things considered, a foreign loan Is it anything other than a leech? A loan (2) is a issuance (3) of government securities which includes the obligation to pay the interest on the borrowed sum according to a rate given. If the bond is issued at 5%, after twenty years the State will have disbursed (4) without any necessity, a sum equal to the amount of the loan, and this for the simple payment interest. After forty years, this sum will have been paid out twice, and three times after sixty years, the emb-Prunt himself remained unpaid.

According to this calculation, it is evident that such loans, under the current tax system (5) (1901 wrests its last cent-times to the poor taxpayer, and this to pay the interest to foreign capitalists, from whom the State borrows heavily gent (6). The State would do much better to collect the sums necessary by levying a tax that would not burden him with interest to pay.

While the loans were (7) national, the Gentiles did-simply know how to pass the money (8) of the poor into the the rich man's pocket; but, when, through sheer corruption, we had–

I bought the necessary agents, the foreign loans were... rent substitutes for national loans (9), and all the wealth States rushed into our coffers, so that the Gentiles came– rent 4 we pay (10) a kind of tribute.

Through their negligence in the conduct of state affairs, or through the venality of their ministers, or through their ignorance (11) of the financial matters, the Gentile rulers have rendered their countries so indebted to our banks that they will not be able to never pay their debts. You must understand (12) what
The establishment of such a state of affairs has cost us dearly.

(1) All.: ...to get rid of it by force.

(2) All. and Pol.: A foreign loan and especially a foreign loan.

(3) Pol.: ...by PState of bills of exchange.

(4) Pol.: Delete: "without any necessity".

(5) Pol.: ...of the poll tax...

(6) Am. and Pol.: ...borrows money instead of collecting...

(7) Am. and Pol.: ...intericurs, Igs Goïm:.

(8) Pol.: ...from the pockets of the poor into the coffers of the capitalists.
(9) Pol.: ...interiors...

(10) Am.: a tribute of subjects. – Pol.: ...a tribute.

Aa Pol.: ...or by a noaa a leaders...

Pol.: But what hardships!

mee ey

A – Tp. a
.

ee a LS ee eT:

me

Future Government Bonds
(Pol.: 40/0 loan)

In our Government, we will take great care that it does not a stoppage in the flow of money could occur; we
We will therefore not have any of these government bonds, except for one (1) con– based on Treasury bonds, issued at 10/0; this low percentage not exposing the State to being bled dry by leeches.

The right to issue securities (2) shall belong exclusively– ment to commercial companies (3). These will have no difficulty paying interest on their profits (4) because that they borrow money for their commercial businesses cial, while the State cannot derive any benefit from its loans, since he only takes them out to spend the money he receives (5).

Industrial values

The State will also buy commercial securities; it will, in turn, become a creditor instead of a debtor and to pay tribute (7) as it does today. This (8) will put an end to the indolence and laziness that made us service as long as the Gentiles were independent, but who would be despised in our Government.

Gentiles' incapacity in the field of Finance and of the Tax. – Masters and Favorites among the Gentiles must receive the advice from the Jewish Agents Masonic (9)

The void that exists in the brain (10) purely beslial of Their kindness is sufficiently proven by the fact that they do not understand

(1) Pol.: ..issued at 10/0. We do not want the payment of interest surrendering the power of the State to the leeches.

(2) Pol.: ...& interests. — All.: ...in the long term.
(3) Am. and Pol.: ...industrial.
(4) Am. and Pol.: on their profits, while the State.
(5) Am.: ...and not to make it produced. — Pol.: and not for operations.
(6) Am.: a first-class creditor...
(7) Am. and Pol.: ...the tribute of loans...
(8) Am., Nilus, 1920 and Pol.: This will prevent the stagnation of money, Pindolaziness and sloth...
(9) Pol.: Subtitle not found.
(10) Pol.: What blatant stupidity on the part of a purely bestial brain The good people have...

They do not think that by borrowing money from us (1), they will have, a Sooner or later, the capital will be subtracted from the country's resources.

borrowed with interest. It would have been simpler to take, immediately, their money, which they would not have had to pay interest. That proves our genius and the fact that We are God's chosen people (2). We have so much presented the things that the Gentiles believed there were for they have a benefit to be derived from the loans (3).

Our calculations, which we will present in due course (4) and which were developed over the centuries, while the Gentiles governed, will differ from theirs by their extreme clarity and will convince the world of the advantages of our new plans. These plans will put an end to the abuses that have allowed us to to make masters of the Gentiles and that we would not tolerate under our reign. Our budget will be understood in such a way that it will be impossible for the Sovereign, as for the smallest (5) embent over, to divert the smallest sum of money without being seen, or to give him a completely different job than the one that was planned.

It is impossible to govern (6) successfully if one does not have a fixed, well-defined plan. The knights and heroes themselves perish if they venture down a path without knowing where it will lead. conduct and if they go on a trip without having properly supplied (7).

The rulers of the Gentiles, encouraged by us to abandon to do their homework, so they only think about appearing, about receiving lavishly and to entertain ourselves in every way (8), we have served as a screen to conceal our intrigues.

Reports from their supporters (9), sent to represent to send the Sovereign in public, were in reality done by our

(1) Pol.: ...interest-bearing money, they will have to deduct from it sooner or later the country's own resources plus borrowed capital and its interest. Wouldn't it have been more... than their two...

S Am. and Nilus, 1920: ...and the fact that we are the chosen people God.
(3) Pol.: That we were able to present this question of borrowings of such The fact that the Goim saw their own interest in it proves the genius of our chosen mind.

(4) Pol.: ...wanted, in the light of the experiences of several centuries made by We, the Goim governments, will distinguish ourselves by their...

(5) Pol.: ..to the smallest official to distract even the smallest a sum without destroying the balance of what it was intended for, or of him to give... — Nilus, 1920: ...to distract even the smallest thing from its intended purpose sum, without us noticing or giving it to him...

(6) Pol.: ...to govern without a well-defined plan. The valiant perish has in a predetermined path without having properly approached viewed.

(7) Pol.: Subtitle: The rulers of the Goyim. — The favorites. — The agents Masonic.
(8) Pol.: manner, have served as a screen for our government.

(J) Am.: The reports of powerful favorites... — Nilus, 1920: ...of the favorites...

is

—

agents (1). These reports were always written (2) in such a way as to to please sovereigns with a narrow mind.

They were sure to season them with a variety of projects. of the future economy. They could have asked: "How Could we save money? Would it be through new taxes? But they didn't ask any similar questions to the readers of our reports (3).

You yourselves know the financial chaos they have led to, through their own negligence; they went bankrupt, despite of all the hard efforts of their subjects (4).

TWENTY-FIRST SESSION

(Police: Report No. 24)

National loans

(Pol.: Domestic borrowings)

I now want to return to the subject of our last interview and give you a detailed explanation about the emdomestic loans. I will no longer speak of foreign loans. because they filled our coffers with the money of the Gentiles (5), and again because our universal government will not neighbors from whom to borrow money.

We used corruption of high-ranking officials and the negligence of the Gentile rulers in making them pay to the State two and three times the money we advanced, and of which, In reality, he didn't need to. Who could do the same for Regarding us? I will now move on to the details concerning the loans (6) nationals., °

By announcing the issuance of a national bond, the Government nement opens a subscription. So that the issued securities They are affordable for everyone, they are very low-priced. The preFirst subscribers can buy below par.

---

(1) Pol.: The reports of the favorites who replaced their masters in the Business management was carried out by our agents and always satisfied the narrow-minded (sovereigns) by proving to them that what was planned for the future savings and improvements.

(2) All.: written by the agents of our Freemasonic lodges...

(8) Pol.: They could have asked: "What savings? Savings Saree? But they didn't ask any such question when reading our reports.

(4) Pal.: You yourselves know where this negligence has led them. To what financial eras they succeeded, although their people were remarkably rieux.

(5) Pol.: ...Gentlemen, moreover for our government there will no longer be foreigners, like, in general, anything external. — Nilus, 1920; There will be no more foreigners, that is to say nothing external.

(6) Pol.: domestic loans.

On the second day, the price increases, to give the impression that everyone is snapping them up (1).

A few days later, the Treasure chests are (2) full of money subscribed in abundance. (Why conDo we continue to take the money when the loan is covered and (Beyond that?) The subscription is, obviously, much higher to the sum recorded for the loan; that's where the whole thing lies. Success: The public has complete confidence in the Government! (3)

Government Debt and Taxes

(Pol.: Liabilities and Taxes)

But, when the farce is over, all that remains is the fact of an enormous debt to pay (4). And, to serve the interest on it, The Government needs to take out a new loan which does not cancel the state's debt, but rather increases it, all On the contrary (5). When it is no longer possible to borrow, The state raises new taxes to be able to pay the interest of its loans (6). These taxes are nothing other than debts that cover other debts.

Conversions and reduction of interest rates on loans nationals

(Pol.: Conversions)

We then come to loan conversions, but these conversions (7) only decrease the sum of interest a pay, without extinguishing the debt. Furthermore, they cannot be done only with the consent of the creditors. When announcing These conversions are left to the creditors' right to accept them.
or not, and, in the latter case, they can withdraw their money.

(1) Pol.: By announcing the issuance of such a loan, the governments nements open a subscription to its bills of exchange, that is to say to Interest—bearing securities. So that the issued values are within reach of Each one is priced between 100 and 1,000; plus, a discount is applied. to the first subscribers. On the second day, the price artificially increases.
to give the impression that everyone is clamoring for them, — All.: the
The government is establishing contact with the country's major capitalists. These set the loan rate and other conditions in the advertisement that they give to the loan, or grant them a portion of it. — Am.: ..these are fixed subscriptions in very varied figures from 100 to 1,000. — Nilus, 1920, Id.

(2) Pol. Trésor are so full of urgent matters, it is said, that one does not know what to do in to do. (So why take it?)

(3) Pol.: The subscriptions have, supposedly, covered the loan several times over; That's where the success lies. Just look at the confidence we have in the letters of government change!

(4) Pol.: ..the fact of a very heavy liability,

(5) Pol.: When the credit is exhausted, the State raises...

(6) Pol.: those with an interest in his debts, but not the debts themselves. These Taxes are nothing more than a liability used to cover a liability.

(7) Pol.: Then comes the moment of conversions which do not...

If everyone withdrew their money, the state would find itself in a bind.
in its own nets (1) ct could not satisfy all the requests. Fortunately for the Governments, the (2) Gentlemen They don't understand much about financial matters, and they have always preferred to agree to a reduction in their va—their and to a reduction in interest, rather than risking new investments; this is how they have often helped the State to free themselves from debts amounting, in some cases, to several millions.
The Gentiles would not dare to operate in the same way for the em—foreign prunts (3), knowing full well that we would demand then all our capital.

State insolvency

(Pol.: Bankruptcy)

By acting in this way (4), the Government would admit openly admitting his insolvency, which would show the people that its interests have nothing in common with those of the State (5).
I would like to draw your attention to this point in particular,
as on the following one.

Consolidation of National Loans. — Annuities perpetual (6)

All national loans are currently consolidated.
through what are called(7) provisional loans, of which The maturity is short—term (8). These loans are covered by means of deposits in state banks (9) or in the Caisse savings (10). This money being at the disposal of the State pen—

(1) Pol.: ...nets and would be an insolvent debtor.

(2) Pol.: ...the debtors... Nilus, 1920: ...the subjects of the governments of The kind ones don't hear...

(3) Pol.: The Goim could not pull off similar tricks with the foreign loans...

(4) Pol.: In this way, the recognition of Pinsolvency would show, better than anything, in countries, the absence of a relationship between the interests of the people and those of governments.

(5) Pol.: Title: Savings banks and annuities.

(6) Pol.: The title is two lines above.

(7) Pol.: calls it floating debt, that is, a state debt of which The deadline is more or less near. — Am.: ...by what is called the floating debt... — Nilus, 1920, Id. —

(8) Pol.: These debts are money drawn from savings banks and reserve. — Nilus, 1920: These debts are constituted by the money deposited in savings and reserve funds.

(9) Am. and Nilus, 1920: ...in state banks (non-existent).

(10) Pol.: These funds being... constable, are used to pay...

for a considerable time, he is employed in paying the interest foreign loans, and the Government replaces the- The money he takes from these banks is in the form of government bonds. These are the assets that cover all the deficits in the coffers. of the Governments of (1) Gentiles.

Elimination of Stock Exchanges

All these fraudulent operations will disappear when Our Sovereign will ascend the universal throne (2). We will also destroy the stock market, because we we will not allow our prestige to be shaken by the rise or fall of our funds, including the nominal value will be fixed by law, without the possibility of fluctuation. The increase is the cause of the decline (3), and it is through the increases that we We have arrived at 4 to discredit the public funds of the Gentiles.

Taxation of the price of commercial securities

(Pol.: Taxation of the price of industrial securities)

We will replace the Stock Markets with enormous State administrations, whose service will consist of 4. taxation, following the orders received, the commercial enterprises (4). These administrations will be able to launch on the market (5) millions of shares of commercial stock or to buy them in one only one day. All business (6) will be thus in our hands.

You can imagine how strong our strength will be!

TWENTY-SECOND SESSION

(Pol.: Prooes-verbal no. 22)

The Mystery of Time. — Jewish and Political Plan financial

(Pol.: The Mystery of the Future)

In everything I've told you so far, I've tried to...

---

(1) Pol.: ...Gotm.

(2) Pol.: ...because they do not serve our interests. We will destroy also the stock markets... shaken by the fluctuations in our funds, whose value will be fixed by law, without the possibility of increase or decrease.

(3) Am.: The rise leads to the fall.

(4) Pol.: industrial.

(5) Pol.: ...500 million industrial shares... — Am. and Nilus, 1990, Id.

(6) Pol.: industrial.

to paint an accurate picture of the mystery of current events and of those from the past (1), all sail at the mercy of the waves of Destiny, And we will see the result in the near future. I showed you our secret plans, put into execution four times in our relations with the Gentiles, then our financial policy. I I only have a few words to add.

Millennial Gold, the foundation of future prosperity

The greatest force of the present time is concentrated In our hands: that's gold. In two days, we can... to bring out any sum of money from our secret treasures (2).

Is it necessary, after that, to prove that our Government Is this birth willed by God? Is it permissible that with such vast riches that we are not able to prove all Por (3) accumulated over so many centuries may not be a help to ensure the triumph of our true cause for good. that is to say, for the restoration of order under our Government birth.

Perhaps violence will be necessary, but this order will be definitively established. We will prove that we are the benefactors who have restored peace to the tortured world (4) and lost freedom. We will give the world the opportunity (5) to regain this peace and freedom, but on one condition express, that of strictly adhering to our laws. Furthermore, we will make it clear to everyone that freedom does not consist in the dissolution, nor in the right to do whatever one pleases; that the a man's position of power does not confer upon him the right to proclaim destructive principles such as the Freedom of religion, equality, or other similar ideas. We

---

(1) Pol.: ..of those which will be fulfilled in the near future, I have revealed the secret of the laws that will govern our new relationship with the Goim and hos operations Ancières. I no longer have... — Nilus, 1920: ...who rush into the torrent of major future events that will unfold in the near future or the secret of our relations with the Goim and those of the financial operations—

(2) Pol.: ...a large quantity of gold.

(3) Nilus, 1920, Pol. et Am.: Is it that, with such vast riches, we let us not prove that all the harm we were forced to do during the centuries (Am.: ...so many centuries) has ultimately served the true good (Am.: ...happiness), to the restoration of order? — Nilus, 1912 and 1920: ...done under the word "mal" a footnote and written at the bottom of the page: "There it is indeed the "Confusion between good and evil!"

(4) Am.: ...well-being and individual liberty. — Pol.: ...the true good and individual freedom.

(5) Nilus, 1920 and Am.: ...the possibility of enjoying peace and tranquility and the dignity of relationships, on the sole condition, of course, of obeying the laws established by us. — Pol.: the opportunity to take advantage of the peace, of relations normal, respect for dignity, but on the condition, however, of submit to the laws that we will enact.

will clearly demonstrate that individual freedom does not give no right to get agitated or to excite others with speeches ridiculous (1) addressed to the delirious masses. We will teach to the world that true freedom consists only in Pinviolability of the person (2) and of the property of those who adhere to all the laws of social life, that the position A man's worth will depend on his conception of the rights of others. and that his dignity forbids him to have ideas about himself (3) fantastic.

Jewish strength above the peoples and God
(Pol.: Prestige of power and mystical veneration for it)

Our dominion will be glorious because it will be strong and that she will govern and guide, without being subservient leaders of the populace or orators (4), whoever they may be, shouting senseless words which they call great principles ideas that are, in reality, nothing but utopias. Our powersance will be the organizer of order (5), the principle of happiness public. The prestige of this power attracted an adorationmystical tion, at the same time (6) as the subjection of all nations. A true power must not yield to no right, not even before God's. No one will dare approaching it with the intention of diminishing it, even if only by a thread.

TWENTY-THIRD SESSION
(Pol.: Minutes No. 23)

Limitation of the production of luxury goods

(Pol.: Reduction in the production of luxury goods)

For men to get used to obeying us, they must be raised in simplicity; that is why we reducewill curb the production of luxury goods. In this way, we

---

(1) Pol.: spoken in meetings where disorder reigns.

(=) Pol.: ...of those who observe all the laws exactly and sincerely of the Vic Gocinie: ; that the dignity of man is based on the awareness of his rights, as well as knowledge of what is unjust, and not ideas fantastic things that he forms of his own Self. — Nilus, 1920, Id.

(3) Am.: ...to have fantastic ideas about eyo.
(4) Pol.: „whatever they may be (non-existent).
(5) Pol.: ML order, in which lies all the happiness of men.

(6) Pol.: ..at the same time as men of all...

We will also impose the good morals that come to corrupt the rivalries generated by luxury.

Restoration of Domestic Industry

(Pol.: Domestic industry. ... Nilus, 4920: The "Small Trades"

We will encourage manual labor (1) to do harm to private factories (2).

The need for such reforms is manifested in this fact that large factory owners often incite their workers against the Government, perhaps even without realizing it.

Unemployment

The people employed in local industries do not know what "unemployment" is; that's what binds him to Porexisting and makes him support the Government; but there is no there is no greater danger to the Government than the chômage.

For us, unemployment will have run its course when, Through him, we will have obtained power.

Prohibition of Drunkenness

Drunkenness will also be prohibited (3) as a crime of harming humanity and punished as such, because alcohol degrades Man at the level of beast.

Nations (4) submit blindly only to a power Seeing clearly, absolutely independent, holding a sword To defend itself against any social uprising. Why? Would they demand that their Sovereign be an angel? He must that is, the personification of strength and power.

The present world will perish in anarchy, the King of the Jews will resurrect him |

(Pol.: Death of the old society, its resurrection in a new form)

A leader must arise; he will abolish the Governments (5)

(1) AH.: ...working from home... — Pol.: Id.

(2) Am.: ...to harm the capital of manufacturers. —
Nilus, 1920, Id. — Pol.: ...which will ruin the private capital of the manufacturers.
a Pol.: ...prohibited by law and punished as a crime against humanity,

(4) Pol.: Nations, I repeat, do not submit... independently of themselves and in which they find defense and support against the blows of the scourges social. Why...

(5) Pol.: current governments, vegetating amidst a demorealized by us, even rebelling against the authority of God, from the heart of which The fire of anarchy erupts from all sides. The leader in question will begin by extinguishing these flames that engulf everything.

existing ones that sustained a crowd whose we brought the demoralization by throwing it into the flames of anarchy. The The chef in question will begin by extinguishing these flames which they spring up constantly from all sides.

To achieve such a result, he will have to destroy all the companies (1) capable of starting the fire, even if it has to for This will involve shedding his own blood (2). He will have to form an army well organized which will fight, without respite, the infection of PanarShit, a real poison for a government.

King of the Jews, Chosen One of God

(Pol.: God's Chosen One)

4

Our Sovereign will be (3) God's chosen one, with the mission of destroy all ideas (4) that come from instinct and not from reason, brutality, and not humanity (5). These ideas are on the agenda, covering the banner of law and their freedom, their plundering and their violence.

Such ideas have destroyed all social organizations.
thus preparing for the reign of the king of Israel.

But their role will end when the reign of our Sovereign. That is when they will have to be swept away in order toto rid the path of our King of all defilement.

Then we will be able to say to the nations: “Pray (6) to God and bow down before Him who is marked with the seal of predestined and whose star God Himself guides, so that none
"No one but Him can free humanity from all sin (7)."

1

---

(1) Pol.: ..societies, even if it means drowning them in their own blood. in order to resurrect them as a well-organized army that will knowingly fight against any infection that might attack the state body.

(2) Am.: to shed their blood. — Nilus, 1920, Id.

(3) Pal.: This chosen one of God has the mission...

(4) Nilus, 1920 and Am.: ...all the forces.

(5) Pol.: These forces are currently operating in the form of plunder and hidden under the mask of the principles of law and liberty.

(6) Pol.: Thank God...

(7) Am.: ...of all the forces of evil. — All.: ...of every scourge. — Pol.: ...ne may deliver you from all the malevolent forces mentioned above and from all the evil. — Nilus, 1920: ...to deliver you from all forces and all the ailments mentioned above.

TWENTY-FOURTH SESSION
(Pol.: Minutes No. 24)

How to strengthen the rule of the King of the House by David

(Pol.: Strengthening of support for the dynasty of King David)

Nilus 4920: Strengthening of the roots of King David (4)

We are now going to talk about how we let us establish the dynasty of David (2) so that it may last until the end of time.

Our process will consist particularly of the same principles which earned our Sages (3) the government of world affairs, that is to say, leadership and education (4) of the entire human race (5). |

Several members of David's family will be preparing Kings and their successors who will be (6) elected not by right by inheritance, but according to their worth. These successors will be initiated into our secret political mysteries and our plans of gov-government, taking every precaution to ensure that no other cannot know them.

Such measures will be necessary, so that everyone know that only those who have been initiated into the mysteries of the art of politics. It is only to these men-my only ones are that we will learn how to apply our plans in practice, using the experience of the sieges keys past. They will be introduced to the conclusions to be deduced from all the observations they will be able to make on our poli- system technical and economic and to all the social sciences. In one In short, we will tell them the true spirit of the laws that have been established.
blies (7) by nature itself to govern humanity.

Suppression of Natural Heredity
(Pol.: Elimination of direct heirs)
The direct successors of the Sovereign (8) are excluded if,

(1) As this title is not clear, Nilus follows it with a period of interrogation (?).

(2) Nilus, 1920: ...whose roots of the king's dynasty we will strengthen David to the deepest layers of the earth.
(3) Am.: which earned us, the Wise Men... — Nilus, 1920: to our Wise Men...

(4) Am.: ...the education of ideas. — Nilus, 1920, Id.
(5) Pol.: Title: Preparation of the King.

(6) Pol.: ...will be chosen not by rights of inheritance, but according to their worth. These kings and their successors...
(7) Pol.: established in an unshakeable way by nature itself for to settle the relations of the hemmes.

(8) Pol.: sovereigns will often be sidelined...

During their education, it becomes apparent that they are frivolous or too sensitive, or if they show some other tendency above likely to harm their power or render them incapacitated to govern and (1) to even be a danger to the prestige of the crown.

Our wise men will only entrust the reins of government to men (2) capable of ruling firmly, at the risk perhaps to be cruel.

In case of illness or loss of energy, our Sovereign will be obliged to hand over the reins of the Government to such a member 'bre of his family who would have shown himself to be more capable than him (3).

The King's plans for the present and, even more so, for washing nir, will not even be known to those who will be called his closest advisors.

The King of the Jews and his three advisors
(Pol.: The King-Destin)

Only our Sovereign and his Three Initiators (4) will know the future.

The King of the Jews, the embodiment of Destiny (5)

The people will believe they recognize Destiny itself and all his human ways (6) in the person of the Sovereign who will govern with unwavering firmness, exercising his con- a thriller about himself and about humanity. No one will know the Sovereign's intentions when he gives his orders; no will not dare (7) therefore to hinder its mysterious course.

It is necessary, of course, that our Sovereign have a (8) cer- a calf capable of executing our plans. It will therefore not mount the throne only when his intellectual faculties have been verified trusted by our Sages.

To ensure the love and veneration of all his followers jets (9), our Sovereign will often have to address them with the pa-

(1) Pol.: ...and to harm the very aims of their royalty.
(2) Pol.: ...absolutely...
(3) Pol.: If they are afflicted with lack of will or any other incapact: our sovereigns will be forced to hand over the reins of government to other, more capable hands.

(4) Am.: ...its three guarantors,

(5) Pol.: The king of the Jews, incarnation of destiny (non-existent).
(6) Pol.: ...unknown paths in...

(7) Am.: ...no one will dare to oppose him.

(8) Pol. and Nilus, 1290: ...a capable intellectual reservoir...
(9) Pol.: So that the people may know and love their king, our sovereign...

ns aai

role in public. The two powers, that of the people and that of the Sovereign, will harmonize with the contract, instead of remaining se-adorned, as among the Gentiles, where one looked at the other with terror (1).

We needed to maintain these two powers in this way.
state of terror (2) mutual, so that once separated, they fell into our hands.

—

Moral Value of the King of the Jews
(Pol.: The King of the Jews' impeccable outward morality)

The King of Israel must not be dominated by his passions, particularly through sensuality (3). He will not let himself be dominated to suppress the animal instincts that would weaken his leadership abilities tales. Sensuality, more than any other passion, destroys, fatally.
In fact, all the faculties of intelligence (4) and of the preclairvoyance; it directs men's thoughts towards the most evil-
I'm going to side (5) of human nature. | |

The Pillar of the Universe, in the person of the Governor of The world, descended from the Holy Race of David (6), must renounce all passions for the good of his People.

Our Sovereign must be irreproachable (7).

(Signed by the Representatives of Zion) of the 33rd degree) (8).

p

Pol.: ...intelligence and clarity of vision, because she directs...
Am.: the most bestial side of human nature. — Nilus, 1920, Id.
— Pol.: ...towards the animal side of human activity.

(6) Pol.: ..David must sacrifice to his people all his per-mentally the text of the "Protocols".

(7) Am.: The text ends at the word "irreproachable", without a signature.

(8) This sentence, in the Russian and Polish texts, is placed at the beginning of the "Explanations needed." Only the English text immediately follows this.

NECESSARY EXPLANATIONS (1)

These minutes were surreptitiously extracted (2) from the Complete book of the minutes of the first Zionist Congress. which took place in Basel in September 1897. Everything was removed from the secret treasure of the Grand Zionist Chancellery currently in France. ei

France forced Turkey to grant various privileges.
to schools and religious institutions of all faiths, which will now find themselves under the protection of diplomacy French in Asia Minor. There's no question, that goes without saying that is to say, Catholic schools and institutions that were driven out of France by recent governments. This fact simply proves that Dreyfusard diplomacy has only one desire: to protect the interests of Zion and to work for the colonization of Asia Minor by French Jews. Zion has tou-days knew how to acquire influence by means of this that the Talmud calls its "beasts of burden," a name by which It refers to Gentiles in general.

According to the annals of secret Jewish Zionism, Solomon and other Israelite scholars elaborated, as early as 929 BC
J.-C., the theory of a system that was to lead to a con-Zion's peaceful quest for the entire universe.

As time went on, this system was adopted in detail and gradually completed by men who were initiated into the matter. These scholars decided to do so.
Zion — and by peaceful means — the conquest of world. They did it with the help of the symbolic serpent, of which The head represents the Jewish government initiated into the plans of Wise and always hidden, even from his own people. This serpentdestroyed and engulfed all non-governmental forces

Jewish as they rose. Thus he must act at the avenir, strictly adhering to the drawn plan, until the the path he must travel is completed by the return of his

(1) These necessary explanations are taken from Nizus's text in his Russian edition of 1920. They replace the Epilogue of the English edition.

(2) Nilus 1920: These minutes were extracted (or stolen) from the book Complete minutes. Everything was taken, by my correspondent, from the secret vaults of the Great Zionist Chancellery currently located on the territory French territory.

e -am =

head to Zion, until finally, having chained Europe, he embraces the whole world. This must be accomplished by emdeploying all possible forces to subdue all countries through conquests achieved through arms and economic means normatives.

The return of the serpent's head to Zion cannot have a place that, through the leveled ruins of governmental power, national of all European countries, caused by disorder and the economic ruin that Zion will have introduced everywhere by the demoralization of the mind and the corruption of morals. The Jewish women will contribute primarily to this state of affairs. disguised as French, Italian, and Spanish women. These are the safer propagators of libertinism in the lives of men my people placed at the head of nations.

The women in Zion's service serve as bait for those who Because of them, they always need money and therefore, sell their conscience to obtain it from any price. This money is actually just a loan made by the Jews. because these same women are quick to put it back between the hands of corrupt Jewry — but these transactions they are used to buy slaves for the cause of Zion.

Naturally, for such an undertaking to succeed, it is not Public officials or private individuals should not be allowed to... They suspect the role they play in the hands of Zion. To that end, the directors of Sion formed themselves into a a kind of religious caste jealously guarding the integrity of Mosaic law and Talmudic regulations. The universe inThird believed that Mosaic law was the true rule of life for Jews; in reality, she is just a mask. No one has I thought about studying the effects of this rule of life, because all eyes were fixed on the gold that the caste could provide and thanks to which she possessed complete freedom to conduct her economic and political intrigues.

Here is how the path of the Sym- Serpent is traced for us. bolicus: its first stage, in Europe, dates from 429 BC It was in Greece, during the time of Pericles, that the reptile... began to devour the power of that country. The second stage was Rome, in the time of Augustus, shortly before Christ. The third The fourth, Madrid, under Charles V, 1552. Paris, around 1700, during the reign of Louis XIV. The fifth, London, from 1814 (after the fall of Napoleon). The sixth, Berlin, in 1871, after the Franco-Prussian War. The seventh, Saint Petersburg, where the head is depicted of the snake under the date: 1581.

All these states traversed by the Serpent were shaken by made even at their foundations by constitutional liberalismnel (1) and economic disorder, and Germany, with its appearance of strength, is no exception to rule (2). At From an economic point of view, England and Germany are spared, but this will only last until the Serpent has completed the conquest of Russia, on which are currentlyconcentrated all his efforts on the element. The rest of the journey of Serpent is not marked on the map, but arrows point to it. they indicate the direction he should then take towards Mosneck, Kieff and Odessa.

We now know exactly to what extent these cities became nests of the militant Jewish race. ConsTantinople is indicated as the eighth and final stage of the Serpent, until the return to Jerusalem (3).

[The reptile now only has a short distance to crosssurgery to close the fatal circle and reunite its head and tail.

So that he would not encounter any obstacle on his path, Zion took the following measures to instruct and train workers intended for this difficult task (4). First, and before everything, the Jewish race was organized in such a way that no one could pe-to uncover and discover its secrets. It was told to the Jews by the prophets whom God had chosen to reign over the the whole earth, the indivisible kingdom of Zion. 11 They were ins-worse than that, they alone were the sons of God and that they formed the only race worthy of being called human, all the others having been created by God only to be beasts of burden, slaves of the Jews and to whom a human face was given only so that the Jews wouldn't be too disgusted by accept their services; as for the Jews, their role consists of to conquer for Zion the empire over the whole world (See Sanh.
91, 21, 1.051).

The Jews were taught that they were supermen and that they should not, therefore, mingle with this livestock that are

(1) ..or – by their liberal constitutions.

(2) There is a Masonic “prophecy” according to which the liturgical end
Do) HR united will take place in 1913. (Note from Nilus, 7990), non-existent dani
(3) Note that this map was made many years before the revolution of ie (Note from the text).
(4) Nilus adds: in order to get a good job.

other nations. These theories, thanks to the education received in schools, public or private, as well as in their family, inspired in the Jews a high opinion of their susuperiority over all other men. They even went so far as-than to deify themselves as being by right the sons of God (See Jihal, 67, 1; Sanh. 58, 2).

This isolation of the Zion race was aided by the system of "Kaghal," which obliges all Jews to come to the aid of their sisters blables, regardless of the assistance they receive from local autonomous administrations of Sion bearing various Names: Kaghal, Consistory, Commission on Jewish Affairs, Tax collection office, etc. All these administrations serve to conceal the government of Zion from the eyes of Gentile governments. The latter, for their part, took-They ardently defend Jewish autonomy because they
They wrongly consider it to be a religious autonomy.

The ideas mentioned above, which have been instilled to the Jews, also had a considerable influence on their material life.

When we read works like Khopaim, § 14,
p. 1; Eben-Gaezar § 44, p. 8, XXXVI, Ebamot 98, XXV; Kotubat 3 b, XXXIV, Sahndrin 74, XXX, Kadouschin 68-a (1) which were all written to glorify Zion, we see that in reality they They treated us and continue to treat us like animals.
believe that the people, their possessions, and even their lives are their ap-leave and that they can get rid of it as they Pen-tend when, obviously, they can do so without fear to be punished.

According to their laws, all the mistreatment they do
The suffering inflicted upon the Gentiles is forgiven them on the day of their New Year.
An, at the same time as they obtain permission to commit-three similar crimes in the course of the coming year.

In order to incite merciless hatred among their own people against the others three peoples, the Jewish leaders allowed the Gentiles to discover reveal some of the secrets of the Talmud and thus excited Antisemitism. Manifestations of antisemitism were also very useful to the leaders of Zion, because apart from the hatred they stirred in the hearts of the Jews, they touched-

(1) Nilus 1920: Khopatm § 14, p. 1; Eben-Gaezar § 44, p. 8 (1); XXXIV (sic); Ebamot 98, xxxiv; Ketoubat, 3 b.; XXXIV Sahndrin 74 v.; xxx Kaadouschine 68-a.

Differences in punctuation. It's unclear what the numbers are meant to represent.
Romans (Translator's note).

win the hearts of some Gentiles necessary to their cause, and who were moved by the plight of this people, seemingly unjust mistreated. This feeling attracted many people to the ranks of the servants of Zion.

Antisemitism, a cause of persecution against Jews lower classes, allowed their leaders to dominate their co-religious leaders and to keep them in subjugation. They par-came, because they always intervened at the right time to . save their own. Note that the Jewish leaders never suffered from anti-Semitic uprisings, with regard to their personal property or their official status in their administration tration. This is not surprising, since these leaders themselves unleash the "Christian bloodhounds" against the Jews of humble means.

edition, and that these bloodhounds arrange themselves in such a way as to hold their herds in good order, which helped to consolidate Zion.

The orders of these leaders have only one goal: the formation of a universal union of all Zionists, a union which begins They're already dropping the mask. This union, as the Zionists think, already plays the role of "Supergovernment", directing the Cabinets nets from all over the world according to his will, but in such a way that Non-Jews don't notice.

Naturally, Zion's main conquering force con-resided in his gold; but it was not enough to acquire the gold, it was necessary-milk will further increase in value.

The high price of gold is mainly due to its use as currency.
current, and, as a result of internal and international dissensions-nales, it accumulates in the hands of Zion. The history of the
The Rothschild family proves it; it was published in La Libre Words, in Paris.

The strength of Capitalism was established through these crises under the banner of Liberalism and the protection of theories scientifically developed economic and social models. This apparatus-
The scientific rigor given to these theories has made, and still makes, them difficult to accept.
major services in Sion.

The existence of the voting system has always provided the government with the nement of Zion the opportunity to introduce all the laws favorable to wards to his designs. To this end, he always puts into action the bribes and the corruption of the people who need him as well as that of the majority of the crowd, provided that he can simply to give social or political importance to this majority. Intellectuals in poverty, liberals short-term sight and, in general, all those who resemble them have equal-has rendered great services to Sion. For Sion, the most pro-

The most suitable and desirable regime is the republican regime.
cain, because it gives anarchists complete freedom of action, the ar-Sion.

This is the cause of the intensive propaganda of liberalism led by the press devoted to Zion. This press was careful-this fact being sufficiently established that in the Republic there is no-individual freedom, because the freedom that the majority has reigns there the reluctance to oppress the minority, even though the law is on the side of the latter. However, the majority still follow the agents of Zion (1), popularized by posters and newspaper articles to which Sion, on Montefiore's advice, knows not to refuse generous subsidies.

Currently, in an unconscious, or even voluntary, way Silently, all the states of the world obey the orders of the Zion is a super-government of brigands. It is he which organizes the coalitions of these states to which it is the creditor for sums they will never be able to pay and which are ac-grow constantly.

Zion taxes assets and property, even real estate;
evaluates the men who have a role to play and makes them claims, puts under guardianship those who are of no use to him or which he deems undesirable, employing in these cases the denunciations secret dealings or deception. He also acts with the help of the press to which only a few rare editions do not belong.

Nowadays, through its advertisements, Sion has launched what we call-
It shovels away the "ideas of the time," the "theories of science"; it is Zion, which determines the success or failure of men, of inventors tions, being mistress of the Stock Exchange, commerce and diplomacy Matter. Zion directs everything to re-educate the people on the basis murderous materialism of souls, principles, and genius of the creator. The proponents of materialism transform the men in mechanical factors, targeting only material goods riels, and became, for the love of gain, blind slaves and without the will of Zion's capital.

In this way, the capital of Zion, which, thanks to the system of government debts have swallowed up all national capital nals, this government devoid of feeling and filled with hatred

(1) Nilus 1920: ...the agents of the Capital of Zion.

for humanity, they place in the chains of unimaginable servitude all those who are not Jewish.

The end of the freedom of peoples is approaching, and therefore, that of individual freedom which cannot exist where money gives power to the mob and allows it to mistreat a a minority deprived of rights, although it is much more dignified and Much more intelligent.

The history of the Rothschilds demonstrates that France owes its Republican era in Sion. No French deputy has ever kept his promises if the wishes of his voters did not comply did not agree with the views of the Zionist government.

What happened to poor France?

He who has ears to hear, let him hear!

End of Nilus's "Necessary Explanations"

IN THE 1920 RUSSIAN EDITION (1)

The press is unaware, and obviously not without having received some indications from a certain source, that the one and only self- - the Tsar's cracy is impartial, because, in fact, each subject is also a Son. She is unaware that only autocracy gives the individual freedom because it protects against the oppression of a crowd insane.

Only an autocrat has nothing to gain from violence. the freedom of the crowd to throw to the ground, thanks to its majority, the talents, the pillars that can rise from all levels of his kingdom.

Anyone who desires to obtain or retain individual liberty must not not to demand freedom for the masses. The latter makes disappear- to bring forth the best among men when, like a herd of sheep, she rushes towards the Republics, guided not by its true pastors but running in the wake of the agents of Zion, as currently demonstrated by the republican regime of Poor France.

(1) These three paragraphs do not exist in the Polish text.

End of Nilus' "Epilogue"

IN ITS 1905 EDITION
4

According to Montefiore's will, Zion spares neither money, nor the means capable of achieving its goals. Nowadays, all governments worldwide are consciously or unconsciously submissive to the orders of this great Supergovern- the formation of Zion, because all their values are between its hands, because all countries owe the Jews for sums they will never be able to pay. All cases: Industry, commerce, and diplomacy are all within the hands of Zion. It is by means of her capital that she has enslaved all nations. By maintaining education on based on purely materialistic principles, the Jews have charged all Gen- heavy chains with which they had attached them to their “Supergovernment”.

The end of national freedom is near, therefore individual freedom- Visual freedom is coming to an end, because true freedom cannot to exist where Zion can use the powerful leverage of its gold to govern the populace and dominate the most worthy portion and the most reasonable in society.

"...Let those who have ears to hear, hear."

It will soon be four years since the Protocols of the Elders of Zion is in my possession. God only knows how much I made unsuccessful efforts to bring them to light, and even to warn those in power by revealing to them the causes of the storm hanging over apathetic Russia who unfortunately seems to have lost all sense of this which is happening around her.

And it is only now, then, that I fear he is It was too late that I managed to publish my work, hoping to- see those who still have ears to hear warnings about it. tender and eyes to see.

There can no longer be any doubt about it, the triumphant reign of the King of Israel stands before our degenerate world like Satan, with his power and its terrors; the King born of the blood of Zion – the Ante-Christ – is close to ascending the throne of the universal Empire.

Events are unfolding rapidly in the world with a terrifying speed; the quarrels, the wars, the rumors, the famines, epidemics and earthquakes – all of this which, just yesterday, was impossible, is today an accomplicated. It seems like the days are flying by so quickly in the interest of the chosen people. This is not the time to enter halfway-nurturingly into the details of the history of 'humanity' from the point of view of the "mysteries of iniquity" revealed, to prove historically, the influence that has been had on universal misfortunes salts the "Elders of Israel", to predict the certain future and already close to humanity, or to unveil the final act of the global tragedy.

Only the light of Christ and that of his Holy Church united they can plumb the satanic abysses and reveal the extent-due to their perversity.

I feel in my heart that the time has come when it would be urgent to convene an Eighth Ecumenical Council which would bring together The pastors and representatives of all Christendom. We ou- would erase on both sides the age-old quarrels and divisions res to think only of the coming of the Antichrist (1).

---

(1) Serge Nilus's predictions are all the more remarkable because this "Epilogue" is part of the 1905 edition.

As for the eighth ecumenical council that he proposes, it is the one that... condemned the schism of Photius in 889, the fourth of Constantinople, that They do not admit Russian Orthodox islands. Today, there is no Council. a general meeting to be convened, since the Vatican meeting is not yet closed. May it be to reunite and end the Eastern Schism and the Protestant heresies, modernist and Americanist. It is this return to Rome in the unity of faith that alts na irrévocablyment au «Peril Judćo–Maçonnique» ct aux révolutions MICNEVISTES,

APPENDICES

SUMMARY OF THE "PROTOCOLS"

(Excerpt from the American translation)

The title under which the "Protocols" are presented in the text Nilus's, according to the literal translation from Russian, is:

"PROTOCOLS" OF THE MEETINGS OF THE WISE MEN OF SION

The word "Protocols" can be used in different senses, but In the present case, the context would indicate that this word means simple-the written minutes of certain meetings, that is to say, meetings Let us unite the wise men of Zion. There are twenty-four "Protocols" distinct, each "Protocol" appearing to reproduce the content of a A speech given at the meeting by one of its members. The context also seems to indicate that all the speeches were delivered convened by the same person; it should also be noted that each "Pro-"tocol" deals with a more or less distinct part of the same subject, like a chapter in a book.

In the first "Protocol", it is stated that the first speaker will proposes to formulate "our system, both from our point of view and to "That of the Goim." The word Goys, or Goyim, or Goim is an ancient A Hebrew word that designates Gentiles, or people who are not Jewish. In all the other "Protocols," whether it was the same person who took the word in the first one, or whatever it may be, it is always the The same general topic is being addressed.

If we consider all of these documents, we clearly see that it is a matter of formulating a strategic plan for united Jewish action in as a nation or people, in order to achieve certain ends. These ends do not are nothing less than universal political and religious domination across the entire world. The means by which this domination will be achieved universal nation, they are detailed with great clarity and great meticulousness.

The document, as a whole, presents the most extraordinary, and if some readers can see in it a work of fanatics or visionaries, others will be more struck by the pro-

the fundamental skill that it reveals, from the cold logic of reasoning, of the general sequence of assertions and arguments, which indicates that this work, whatever its secret motive, is the result of a careful reflection and mature deliberation.

The strategic action plan is Machiavellian and to the highest degree free from scruples. He avowedly bases his arguments on these proposals which It is a matter of law that "politics has nothing to do with morality".
It is also expressly stated that the aim pursued is to "souto put all governments under our supergovernment" and that the
A Jewish supergovernment will be an autocracy headed by a Jew.
as sovereign.

Here is a brief summary of the means by which this World domination must be achieved:

1. The national government of every non-Jewish state must be destroyed by fomenting internal revolutions through calls to hatred of classes, through simulated efforts aimed at achieving an increase in freedom and privileges for certain classes of the people, by using the words "liberty, equality, fraternity" as mere empty promises, and thus gaining recruits for the Jewish cause. The self-governments
The cratics, the only ones who are strong, must first be weakened.
through the introduction of liberalism, which will pave the way for anarchy;

2° All wars must now have an economic basis;
It will not be permitted to gain territorial advantages from a war.
which will make the control exercised by the Jews over wealth the factor decisive of the war;

3. The international rights of Jews will be strengthened at the expense of national rights of different non-Gentile peoples;

4. Non-Jewish states will be further weakened by the encouragement of resentment given to false or contradictory political measures, and by gaining some covert influence over the actions of officials public, by manipulating the press, by gradually suppressing the freedom of speech;

6. The authority of governments where liberalism prevails will be mi-born from the destruction of religion (other than Judaism), because Religion is the conservative and moral force that makes Jesus possible.
liberal governments;

6. In order to overcome the resistance of states that will not be willing to submit to Jewish power, it will be necessary to resort without hesitation to violence, to cunning, to hypocrisy, to venality, to fraud, to treason, the seizure of another's property;

7. The destruction of the social and economic framework of States Christians will be brought about by the destruction of industrial prosperity.
through speculation and incessant strikes "which will throw on the pavement of the masses of workers," through the artificial increase in wages res, which will have the effect of increasing the cost of living and ultimately to produce a general economic crisis, and the disorganization of Financial systems. The financial power of the various Jewish states.
will thus be undermined by pushing them to overload themselves with foreign loans and national in ever-increasing proportions, which will {init leading to bankruptcy;

8° On the social and political chaos thus created by these various means a Jewish dictatorship will be gradually built, especially thanks to the "terri-the power that Jews will possess over the purse strings, and thanks also to the great resources that the Jews possess for con-to manipulate the press and the revolutionary workers' movement;

9° During the transition period between the government of the Gen-for them and for the Jews in each state, there shall be a government Jewish secrets acquired through manipulation of the press,
Public opinion is being led astray, mass terror is rampant, and the government is weakened by the government.
the weakening of the Gentiles' initiative, the false direction given to education and the discord that will be sown among the Gentiles,”
$:
OK |
The Times (May 8, 1920) summarizes the "Protocols" more briefly:

1° There is, and has been for centuries, a secret organization.
Jewish politics and international affairs;

2. The spirit of this organization appears to be one of traditional hatred.
eternal of Christendom, and a titanic ambition for domination over the world;

3. The goal pursued throughout the centuries is the destruction of states.
nationals and the substitution of these states with an inter- Jewish domination national;

4° The method used first to weaken and then to de-Destroying existing political bodies involves inoculating them with ideas disorganizing policies, with a carefully calculated destructive power-

a measured and progressive shift from liberalism to radicalism, from socialism to communism, and even reaching anarchy, as a reductio ad absurdum of egalitarian principles, Meanwhile,
The Jewish community would remain sheltered from these corrosive doctrines: "We would-
We offer liberalism to the Gentiles, but, on the other hand, we maintain "Our nation in complete subjugation," From the depths of the abyss of anarchy where the world will have collapsed, and as a response to the cl-
The deaths of panicked humanity will be cold, logical, wise, and merciless.
the government of the "King of the Race of David" which will appear one day ;

5. The political dogmas established and developed by Christian Europe Yours, the science of the statesman and the democratic politician are, to the same degree, the object of the contempt of the Elders of Zion. For them, the
The science of statesmanship is a secret art of superior essence, which:
is acquired only through traditional training and is not common-known only to a small number of chosen ones in the secrecy of some sanctuary occult. "Political problems are not of a nature to be comtaken by ordinary people; the only ones who can understand them are, as I have already said, leaders who have directed the affairs of pen-
"for several centuries"; |

6. According to this conception of political art, the masses are a vile livestock; and the political leaders of the Gentiles "upstarts who came out of Their mob are also, as leaders, blind chiefs in "Politics." They are puppets, whose strings are being pulled by hand.
hidden from the Ancients; these puppets are generally corrupt people pus, almost always incapable, easily yielding to flattery or to threats, submitting out of fear of blackmail and working, without giving up doubt, in favor of Jewish domination;

7. The Press, the Theatre, the Stock Exchange, Science, the Law itself are in the hands of those who hold all the gold; these are all means to create confusion and chaos in public opinion, demoralization among the youth, encouragement of vice among adults yours; if necessary, we will even create among the Gentiles, in place of idealistic aspirations of Christian civilization, the desire for money, one has a neutrality of materialistic skepticism, or of cynical appetite for pleasure ".

II
ANALYSIS

"PROTOCOLS OF THE WISE MEN OF SION"
By the D'WICHTL

The German translator and editor Gottfried zur Beek said that the authenticity of these "Protocols" has never been contested by Jews and Freemasons, but which the first printings of the translation of Nilus and the Brother Butmi products were, for the most part, purchased and destroyed by the Jews.

What has happened since the first transcription of Nilus? The World War and the Fall of Thrones in In Russia, Austria-Hungary, and Germany, chaos reigned. protected by the communist Freemasons, duqtiel must to bring out the League of Humanity, a project conceived 200 years ago, under Masonic-Jewish direction; and it appears today-today, with a terrible clarity, which we must hold great taking into account these "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion.

Anyone who is not blind can see that the Jews undertook the struggle for mon- hegemony dial, and the "Elders of Zion" are merely noting a
In fact, when they say in their confidential discussions:

> We (Jews) are driven by an invincible ambition, by a > ardent greed, implacable resentment, inextinguishable hatred > guible.

The principles they want to use to achieve their global domination is not new to the initiates, but it is good that all non-Jews know them-are born: |

> Anyone who wants to govern must resort to disguise, to > cunning, malice, and deceitfulness. High moral qualities.
> principles — frankness, probity, honorability — are the only pitfalls of > the art of politics, for they drive men from the throne better, when the enemy uses different and really effective.

The Jews, when they are among themselves, agree that Equality, Liberty, Fraternity are just words

has

hollows likely to delude and mislead Christian peoples hold on, which must fall under the complete dependence of Jewish privileges (monopolies). They openly declare:

We (Jews) have inoculated the body of the State with the poison of liberty; today (1897), all states are afflicted with a ma-
The deadly lady, the decomposition of blood. We have nothing left to do but to wait for the final convulsions of agony.

In the Jewish Empire, naturally no trace will remain.
of "Liberty", of "rights of the Gentiles":

We (Jews) will know how to prevent the Gentiles from rising up sensed talented individuals, and if such individuals were to emerge
The masses, led by us, are listening to them; we will only do so at the
She will denounce them at the first opportunity.

They say without mincing words that their domination will be the reign of terror: |

Our Empire, which is founded for the purpose of peaceful conquests (!), must replace the terrors of war with less harsh punishments parents, but all the more effective; he must establish the reign of fear and terror, in order to force blind obedience and absolute.

The foundations of Jewish world hegemony will be economic wars:

We will push the workers to formulate increasingly demanding requirements yours in terms of salary. But in obtaining them, they will not gain no advantage because, at the same time, we will increase the price of things necessary for life and daily needs...

We will thoroughly and skillfully undermine the foundations of the prothe production of agriculture, by pushing workers towards anarchy and to drunkenness...

We will incite the Gentiles to make great expenditures which will not are not proportionate to their income and which lead them to a luxurious lifestyle.

Every other page of these "Protocols" of the Sages In Zion, there is talk of Freemasonic lodges. Here is a significant passage:

It goes without saying that we (Jews) will be the only ones to direct the activity of the Freemasons, and no one else should interfere. We alone we know what goal they are marching towards; only we know the

The Gentiles, on the contrary, have no final objective in their actions.
suspicion of these things.

We also learn, from the mouths of the "Elders of Zion" themselves, which incites all the disorders that occur worldwide:

If the world is plagued by disorder, it means that We (Jews) had to stir up these disturbances to shake the overly solid framework of the Gentile states. When it occurs Somewhere there's a conspiracy; it's certain that at its head is... one of our most devoted servants.

There is also talk of war, and even (in 1897) of the World War:

As soon as a Gentle State dares to oppose us with resistance, we must be able to push its neighbors to
To wage war on him...

But if, on the other hand, the neighbors want to join forces
With him and rising up against us, we must unleash war global.

Elsewhere, it says:

We can summarize our plan to lower in a few words the States of the Gentiles We will prove our power to one of them, through assassinations, that is to say, through the use of terrorristes, through terror.

has

There are, moreover, several references to assassins.
princes' sins:

The perpetrators were blind sheep caught in the flock that we have at our disposal, people who are easily misled by speeches liberals, provided they are given a political veneer.

But it's not just about attacks. against the thrones of Europe. The first person who comes along, whoever they may be, who finds in their path (Jews), as an obstacle, must to expect the same fate: his death will be... hastened: It is said verbatim on this subject in the "Protocols" of the Sages of Zion:

In Freemason Lodges, we perform the chàelements in such a way that none of our coreligionists can to conceive the slightest suspicion, not even the victim herself:

They all die when necessary, from an apparent death.
natural ence... (16th Session, p. 114 of the German translation).

The following passages will show us with what certainty titude the Jews count on*world domination which is promised to them by their Prophets:

We (Jews) intend to win all peoples over to the organization of a new state, the idea of which has been hovering before us for a long time already. That's why we must first and foremost ensure that Our leaders must be individuals capable of embarking on their journey.
but with extraordinary intelligence and boldness.

(That is to say, with qualities such as those of a Lenin, of a Bela-Kun, by Kurt Eisner, etc.).

The revolution must break out simultaneously in all the country :

When we have finally achieved universal domination, we will ensure that no conspiracy occurs against us (Jews). We will mercilessly execute whoever will take up arms against us and rise up against our domination nation. Any foundation of a new secret society will be equally punishable by death. The secret societies that currently exist-element (the Freemasonic Lodges) which are well known to us and who have rendered us great services and continue to do so.
Again, all will be dissolved by us. Their members will be exiles from Europe in some distant part of the globe. We
We must act in this way, especially with regard to Freemason lodges.
non-Jewish women, who have penetrated too deeply into the secrets of our Lodges. But whoever obtains his grace for a one motive or another must be kept in perpetual fear of banishment.

Communism is also discussed on occasion.
The "Elders of Zion" amuse themselves by talking about the bestial brain the Gentiles, with their idea of universal leveling which is contrary to natural laws. How can it-Are we taking this seriously? But that's a war word.
that it is useful to launch into the masses, in order to panic the Gentile peoples, to sow confusion among themselves, to bring universal chaos. The masses, among the Goyim, must to be launched against each other, in anarchy, in despair, so that they might finally see themselves forced to offer universal domination to the Jews themselves!
This is what the Zionists want. Zionism is therefore not not a Jewish national movement, which aims to unite all Jews in a Jewish state, which will be created in Palestine. That, at least, is the common opinion, but it is incorrect. The Jewish state of Zion will receive only the overabundance of poor Jews, especially those from Russia. Furthermore, this Jewish state will be like the heritage of "Masters of the World." Incredible as that may seem. to appear, we must believe her since the "Wise Men of "Zion," they themselves tell us. Do we not find ourselves... Aren't we already in the midst of anarchy, in the midst of chaos? Like As the "Elders of Zion" say: "No state should henceforth- but to enjoy inner peace and gain strength. That is why each class will have to be pushed against the Others, which is why political crimes will be glorified, Justice buried, the people systematically corrupted. the Gentile clergy, discredited in the eyes of the masses, the "Christian faith ridiculed."

Let it be clearly noted: this is about the Christian faith. never of the Jewish faith.

A large part of the decisions made by the Insiders to the secret councils of Basel, in 1897, is already underway execution. The assassination of the Empress of Austria, Elisabeth, by the anarchist Luccheni (1898), the assassination of Archduke Franz Ferdinand, heir apparent, by the Franks Serbian Freemasons (1914), the glorious revolution (?) of November 9 November 1918, followed by repeated efforts by Jews to establish, by their own admission, chaos, complete anarchy and to establish universal hegemony at the opportune moment Jewish!

Bavaria provides us with a good example of this, waking up one fine day under the rule of a Frank-Macon, who in some circles was called Ismunow, and to whom homage was paid in his capacity as Grand-Master of the Grand Jewish-Polish Lodge of Warsaw. In other circles, it was referred to as Brother van Israelovitch, and he was the head of a Lodge secret Jewish woman who worked in Munich; others still They had known him in his youth, under the name of Solomon Kosmanowski, but he had taken the name more in Bavaria Kurt Eisner's euphonious: "Eleven little men have "makes the revolution," said Kurt Eisner, in the intoxication of triumph to his colleague, Minister Auer. He seems equi- a table to preserve the lasting memory of these little ones These men are the Jews, Max Lowenberg, Doctor Kurt Rosenfeld, Caspar Wollheim, Max Rothsthild, Karl Arnold, Kranold, Rosenhek, Birnbaum, Reis and Kaiser, these ten people sonnages with Kurt Eisner van Israelovitch, were at the head of the "Revolutionary Tribunal of Germany". Eight of them are wholesale merchants; all eleven are Freemasons and belong to the "Secret Lodge No. 11", which had its headquarters in Munich, Briennerstrasse, No. 51. The the house belongs to a certain Count Almeida, who seems- It was clear that he was not involved in the matter at all (1). It is hardly necessary- He added that all these gentlemen lived in this house.

Another "Secret Lodge No. 7", strictly Jewish, comp- a whole series of influential figures, who are invited to appear in broad daylight, despite the fog with which they surround themselves; they are Messrs. Otto Herzfeld, Doctor Weill, H. Hoch and Emmanuel Wurm, the first two named belonged to the previous German Reichstag and the other two in the National Assembly German national (2).

Let us also mention the great merchants Bernhard SchwaBach, Otto Schiffer, and the Chairman of the People's Party, a well-known figure, Professor Jacob Riesser; the banquier baron Charles von Hermann; the Minister of the Interior Laugher of Prussia, Karl (Aaron) Hirsch; Mr. Liebermann, that unknown powers have pushed into the world, and finally the famous go-between with Russia, Brother Oskar Cohn. There is no Lodge so small that it does not contain hold a Cohn. The meeting place of these gentlemen is this secret Lodge which belongs to the U. OBB (Order) Universal of the Bni Brith); it was located in the house which bears the number 60, Schwanthalerstrasse, in Munich; it belongs exclusively to the Lodge "Zur Kette" (to the Chain) who gladly makes his premises available to his guests Easterners. Note also the coat of arms of this Secret lodge: an equilateral triangle (instead of a right angle) and a compass opened in such a way that its two points form a second equilateral triangle, the whole representing The six-pointed Star of David. Against this background, stands an enormous sword the color of blood.

---

(1) And yet, the Almeida are of Portuguese origin and Freemasons. Brother Antonio Almeida has been, since August 7, 1919, president of the Republic- Republic of Portugal. (Cf. Karl Heise, Ed., p. 236).

(2) We obtained all these indications from an absolutely worthy person of faith, of German nationality, which allowed us to take a look on secret documents.

In the glorious days of the Republic of Councils of Bavaria, we could also have mentioned the "very brilliant" Freemason Brothers Toller, a Jew, a talented poet, for which Brother Hermann Bahr found very encouraging, before this Toller had committed the heroic act which worth the death trap; Brother Levine Nissen, a Jew; the Brother Levien, a Jew and instigator of an assassination; Brother Tobias Axerold, Jew and Enlightened One; these were the three Jews which led to numerous assassinations of men reduced to a bestial state. Let us also mention Brother Doctor Wadler, a Jew, whose real name is W. Adler; the Brother - Erich Mühsam, Jewish, Venerable, private secretary to a rabbi; and finally, Brother Fechenbach, a Jew, secretary Kurt Eisner's private individual; he belongs to the Lodge of Munich “Zum Aufgehenden Licht an der Isar” — At the Light rising over the Isar — Let us hope that the light Countess Henriette will also have entered this Lodge. Fischler von Treuberg, née von Kaufmann-Asser, the Muse Kurt Eisner's policy should not be forgotten in this list. The former president of the Bavarian Landtag, Brother Franz Schmitt cuts a pitiful figure in this society distinguished, but ultimately he is a Freemason and he must takedre place. Apart from the aforementioned personalities there is had still existed in the good old days of the Republic of Councils a whole number of highly talented Jews, whose quality The existence of Freemasons has not yet been established with certainty; Let us name the famous socialist minister, Doctor Neurath, from Vienna; Mr. Gustave Landauer, many times appointed; the State Commissioner for Southern Bavarianale, Dr. Ewinger; it matters little that he and some others may or may not be Freemasons, but these names will be enough to convince the reader that The entire magnificent Republic of Councils was a Judeo-Masonic work.

One more word about the Spartacists. They belong to the Order of the Illuminati, founded towards the end of the 18th century by Weishaupt, who had given himself the secret name of Spartacus. The Order of the Illuminati was a secret society that pretended to place itself above Freemasonry; all IHuminé was a Freemason, but not every Freemason was Not Illuminati. This Order was banned in Bavaria, and for good reason. @dangerous intrigues for the State, in 1785, but it was Resurrected in the 19th century, it had its center in Dresden. The new Order of the Illuminati also belonged to the Axerold the Jew, Dr. Karl Liebknecht; the famous Rosa Luxembourg frequented the circles of the Illuminati. papers found in September 1918 at some SparTacists prove that it had been projected, and that perhaps there are still plans to carry out, as in Russia, large-scale massacres. Jewish secret societies were responsible. their trusted men to prepare lists of all Germans suspected of monarchist tendencies, in order to — to remove any obstacles that might come from them in order to the planned anarchist revolution. The list of these men who have particularly deserved the gratitude of the German fatherland The order already exists. It was read in a secret meeting. Jewish, where the speakers used the Hebrew language. (“Protocols” p. 79 of the tr. all).

But the situation is even worse in Russia. In that country, 457 Bolsheviks are spreading terror; of this number, he There are 422 Jews; most of the others are prisoners escaped from prisons (ibid., p. 178). Brother Lenin (Ulianow Zedernbaum) belonged even before the war to a secret Lodge in Switzerland, which worked towards the Revolution world. Brother Trotsky (Braunstein) and Brother Radek (Sobelsohn) belonged to the same club of conspirators, Likewise, no doubt, Brother Fritz Adler. Lenin is Jewish. despite all the denials.

The Jews themselves boast of having introduced the Bolshevism in Russia. Thus, the Jew Mr. Kohen writes in the newspaper "Der Kommunist" published in Kharkiv, Russia, April 12, 1919:

It is no exaggeration to say that the great social revolution Russian was the work of the Jews and that the Jews not only led the case, but also that they took the cause into their own hands of the Soviets. We (Jews) can rest easy, as long as the supreme command of the Red Army will be in the hands of Leo Trotsky. (In the Hammer (The Hammer), of Leipzig, no. 424, February 1920).

With regard to Hungary, it is established that the Hungarian workers had, as early as 1914, in a Congress workers demanded that socialist leaders step down Freemasonic lodges. Yet another proof that in In Hungary, the leaders of the workers are Freemasons. They promised it, but we still wonder, and that's a big question. doubtful, if they kept their promise (Doctor Hans Eisele, Bilder aus dem Communistischen Ungarn, Tables of the Communist Hungary, Tyrolia Publishing House, has Innsbruck, 1920, p. 6).

On March 22, 1919, the Hungarian Soviet Republic was established; its leaders were Freemasons, by for example, the Minister of Public Instruction, Brother Kunsi (read Kohn); Brother Iaszi, National Minister of Councils; Brother Agoston Peter; Brother Lukazs, son of a miller-Jewish Lion of Budapest; Brother Diener Denes Zoltan, and especially Brother Bela-Kun (read Kohn), a criminal of premy order, which still enjoys protection today special of the Austrian Government (1).

The Government of the Councils was composed of Jews. Let us give here the most well-known names so that the souto come and remain for a long time: the bloodthirsty Tibor Szamuely; the President of the Governing Council, Alexandre

---

(1) The German Brother Ernst Freymann agrees that there is in France-Freemasonry has a purely communist tendency; he says so in his writing entitled Auf den Pfaden der internationalen Freimaurerei (On the Paths of the F.:.-M.°. international), p. 3.

Garbai (Grünbaum); Bostanzi (Bienenstock) for larmee ; Ronai (Rosenstengel) for justice; Varga (Weich-Selbaum) for finance; Vince (Weinstein) for the capital; Moritz Erdelyi (Eisenstein) for food; Bela Vago (Salzberger) and Bela Viro (Bienenstock n° 2) For the police, all of them, all Jews. Only Oskar Czerny pretended not to be Jewish, but rather a mass murderer and plunderer, He had proven himself and shown himself worthy of entering in the Government of the Councils. Likewise Nik, com-The chief of police, was an assassin. pillager and the same can be said of each of the 6,000 gar-Lenin's fools, as well as Bela-Kun's own.

The 134 days of Communist rule in Hungary have caused this country countless evils, several thousands of innocent victims perished in a way dreadful; on the contrary, the Jewish leaders have stolen gold, jewelry, precious stones worth 3,000 million crown lions that they have secured; 197 million crowns were passed into Austria for propaganda purposes. The communist Tomann alone received 450,000 couronnes, at least that is the sum that was officially recorded. celestially. It should be noted that immediately after the the creation of the Hungarian Soviet Republic, he an appeal appeared entitled: "Peoples of Israel!" where the Jews were invited to take possession of all of Hungary, by virtue of the promises of their Prophets. And is it not It was significant that when houses were decorated, one did not tolerated alongside the red flag of the Revolutions that the Blue and white flags of the Zionists?

The Great Chaos that the "Elders of Zion" foresaw Thus, by 1897, it had become obvious to everyone. We are at the beginning of Jewish world hegemony. To open the eyes of anyone who still has doubts. on the connection between Freemasonry and Zionism, Spartacism, Communism and Bolshevism, border-Let us not forget that the Nations League will raise the blue and white flag of the Jewish state, three broad stripes horizontal. those at the top and bottom are white, that one from the blue center, such will be the proud banner of all the peoples who will have submitted themselves to the yoke of the Jew.

Woe to us, poor vanquished, upon whom is imposed The humiliation after the defeat!

= — ee we ae ee

HI

1920 RUSSIAN EDITION

This edition is presented as follows:
e

THE RAY OF LIGHT Political—Literary Publication year BOOK M

May — Berlin 41920

The editorial staff reserves all rights of reproduction and translation. Any violation will be punished accordingly. to the laws.

The editor—editor
Pierre Schabelski BORK
12 Lutherstrasse
Typography by Guillaume Zybenmark
Berlin Gr. Frankfurterstrasse, 78

The "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion are here only one reprint of the version by Serge Nilus, framed by chapters that relate more or less directly to Judeo—Masonic Peril.

Chapter One. — Future Renaissance, P. BORK.... p. 7
Hymn to a resurrected Russia. — Berlin, August 18, 1919.

Chapter II. — Letters from Berlin, IV .... Sakka p. 8—71
“The Fronts of Atrain”, RV

THE “PROTOCOLS” OF THE ELDERS OF ZION 167

The expression "The Brazen Fronts" (1) symbolizes everything together the borderliness and stupidity of poli— men Russian ticks that have plunged Russia into the current chaos. The biggest culprit is none other than Kerenski.

This man (2) is cursed by tens of thousands of women, mothers, children, Russian officers massacred through his fault; it was he who first destroyed the organization of the Grand Russian Army; it was he who, placed at the head of Russia for six months, by his Through his words and actions, he deceived and betrayed his country; and this man, who cowardly fled after hiding disguised as women's clothing, instead of keeping to themselves, doesn't miss an opportunity to talk about him and his disgusting personality.

Even more repulsive than him (3) is the Minister of Chernov Agriculture, a sinister alcoholic adventurer, who He breathed nothing but envy and greed.

"Brazen Foreheads" too, worshippers of the Stupid Goddess— dité, the revolutionaries and the Cadets (4).

Breschko—Breskovskaia

In their hatred (5) for Russia and their thirst for ven— In fact, the Jews did not only unleash violence on this unfortunate country a bloody revolution, but they have dishonored, debased, sullied everything that the Russian people revered as holy and sacred.

The revolutionary Saturnalia, under the direction of 'of Kerenski soon became nothing more than a wild sarabande, a disgusting farce.

What a sinister farce took place in St. Petersburg to celebrate the arrival of Breschko—Breschkovskaia, the famous grand'-mother. At the station, a huge crowd awaited the "noble lady"; a detachment of soldiers, belonging to the former regiments of the Guard rendered honors, and

(1) P. 9.

(2) P. 13.

(3) P. 14. . ;

(4) According to Archbishop Ropp of Mohilev, the responsibility of PO No. 1, which abolished discipline in the Russian army, dates back to the Octobrist movement.

ae (Paul BOURGUIGNON.)

(9) o 19

the soldiers had learned to respond to the salutes of Breschkovskaia with the following words: “We will wishing good health (1), grandmother of the revolution Russian.

Future generations who read the description of idiotic demonstrations invented by Kerensky in Phonthose born of a stupid old woman, will not want to believe that the leaders of the new Russia were able to demonstrate a Such nonsense.

The triumphant reception (2) of Breschkovskaia was followed by many others. The old regiments of the Guard, now busy forming honor guards, went to meet the Siberian convicts who were rushing towards them in St. Petersburg for the general sabbath, like hyenas rushing upon the carcass of the dead lion; finally, the same A reception was held for Lenin, Bronsky, and the others who arrived in St. Petersburg in sealed wagons.

It would be interesting to study the character of Breschkovskaia. From her youth, she devoted herself to the revolution, forgetting in doing so the sacred duties of motherhood (the The "grandmother's" son was abandoned by her from his early years); she devoted herself entirely to the propagation of large, to the agitation, to the preparation of the assassinations, to the speeches, at meetings. All her life, she spent either in banishment, either in prison or in a penal colony. Life Hard life for the idea. Which is not lacking in beauty, if We are considering it from a purely subjective point of view.

Happier (3) than many of her companions, She lived long enough to see her dreams come true. What does she think about it now? What are her thoughts today? The reflections of the revolutionary Dulcinea? Did she awareness of having been, along with his collaborators, the missimplistic and blind instruments of Jewish thought, of the plan Jewish, which was nothing other than to destroy the power of the

---

(1) In Russian, "Zdravia jelaiem" is the greeting formula used by the Soldiers, addressing their officers. (PB)

(2) P. 16.

(3) P. 17. : d

Russia and to reduce this immense empire to a mass of rubble.

It is quite likely that his eyes have not opened green, when one thinks of his attitude in Petersburg and to the part she played, with Kerensky, in the bacchanal of Winter Palace.

Barely settled in the Palace (1), in concert with her friend Vera Figner, she hurried to visit the wardrobe of the Empress, and both of them, without hesitation, satisfied their out of curiosity, they donned His Majesty's linen.

Then came the happy days, the "bomb" days for Kerensky and his clique. We stuffed ourselves with the reserves we found at the Palace. Everything was given over to looting.

Kerensky hastened to reward his friends: the traA Jewish worker had carried out the Russian Revolution; Kerensky recompensated his Jewish friends by inviting them to settle in Palace; one even came from Vilna.

Kerensky and the "grandmother" (2) took an interest particularly the kitchens and cellars of the Tsar; and these two "fighters of the idea" proved to be fervent disciThe plight of Bacchus and Epicurus.

This head of the revolutionary government was writing, Each morning, the menu for lunch, dinner and supper per, and indicated which wines should be served; each

In the morning, he drafted his orders for the "establishments Chernihiv cold storage facilities" where large quantities of quantities of meat, and, every day, automobiles they were going to get the orders from the head of the Governorbirth.

This leader was very annoyed the day the guard soldiers to the "refrigerated" workers declared: 1° that they would not leave plus remove meat for free; 2° that, even for argent, they would not tolerate the requisition of such enormousmy quantities over time, even as the entire city suffered not from famine, but from rationing.

Kerenski and the "grandmother" seemed to want to

(1 P. 18.
(2) P. 19. — It should not be forgotten that Kerenski is Jewish and a Freemason.

to catch up and compensate for the deprivations through their excesses their previous life.

At two o'clock, we had lunch: refined dishes and wines ends (Kerenski was, on this point, extraordinarily demandingdinner). At seven o'clock, dinner in which all took part a dozen guests. As an accomplished gastronome, Kerensky... stated that it was not possible to prepare a meal of choice for more than twelve people (1). At lunch and dinner per, there wasn't always champagne, but it was flowing always full glasses at dinner. Around midnight, for the At supper, the whole clique that lived in the Palace would gather, And the bacchanal began.

And, meanwhile, in Tsarskoye Selo, the tsar and his families were deprived, on Kerensky's orders, of their personal property and endured restrictions of increasingly severe.

The works of art in the Palace were no better respected. more than the cellars and kitchens. In the Em-'s study Father Alexander II found there a group, in gold, representingsmelling a plowman with his horse harnessed to the plow (the group had been offered to the liberating tsar by a deputation whose name I do not know (2). When Kerensky was forced to part ways with his Minister of Agriculture Chernov, he gave him the group of the plowman (3).

Personal relations with the "Brazen Fronts"

If Kerensky (4) is now properly valued, However, many people are mistaken about of Bourtzev. Too many honest people look at him as An idealist and a patriot.

It is important to warn readers against 'a such an assessment. It must be said and repeated that Bourtzev has his share, his large share of responsibility in the chaos where Russia is currently struggling. Undoubtedly, he acknowledges,

(1) P. 20.

(2) P. 21

(3) Pp. 21-25; Two poems: one dedicated to Breschovskain, the other to meee of Petersburg.

(4) P. 40.

Now, the faults of his party; one can agree that he made a mistake in good faith, that he suffered in his life because of his convictions and that he always wore His flag was held high.

The author (1) knows Bourtzev very well, with whom he has He spent two months in prison; the other revolutionaries imprisoned at the same time, members of the "Social-"Democracy," or revolutionary socialists (SD and SR), were despicable people, ambitious, greedy of personal advertising; they were seen at work in Peterstown, in the spring of 1917, and they proved to be Incacapable of administering the city.

Only one is an exception (2): Rutenberg, a Jew, a socialist revoluntary terrorist.

Rutenberg

If we can compare Avksentief, Kerensky, Bourtzev to When speaking of crows, one should think of an eagle. of Rutenberg. He is a proud, convinced, selfless man. Ressé, the servant of an idea. One cannot exaggerate the role The Jews played a harmful role in the world. There are a few exceptions, Rutenberg, although the enemy of the tsar, of the Russia, by virtue of its moral character, deserves the esteem of its opponents.

Death of banker R... (3)

The January 1906 uprising opened the eyes of this Jew ct Freemason. He died a convert, predicting great troubles. revolutionaries.

Two Camps (4)

The “Russian intelligence” (5) has, unfortunately, received the imprint of Jewry. Upright and honorable men yourselves have become the passive instruments of wretches and of scoundrels. They thus brought Russia to the regime of Kerensky, Chernov, Lenin, in other words, they had it taken back two hundred years, to the time of Pougatchev and de Razine.

Almost all of the Russian press is in the hands of the Jews, and virtually all of Russian society, underwent Jewish influence. The Jews saw it praised to the skies. those they called the victims of the Tsarist regime, and They dragged through the mud the names of the victims who have sacrificed their lives in defense of the Tsar.

One of the noblest figures (1) of this second category-Gory was Stolypine, a noble wrestler, a true hero.

Before him, Pleve, the Home Secretary, received a one day a delegation of Jews came to request a relaxation of the laws enacted against them: "80% of "Russian revolutionaries are Jews," Pleve replied. So much so that that this proportion will be the same, it can only be that "The aim is to soften the regime under which you live." And the The minister rightly added: "I have just signed my "Death sentence!"

There's no need to multiply the examples of courage given. by the servants of the tsar.

If Pon studies the men who belong to the camp On the contrary, it seems that we are moving from the world of light to that of darkness: one would think oneself in St. Petersburg, by a A foggy day in October. It's really difficult to They judged these people according to ordinary moral laws. blindly obey their party's discipline: this are abnormal and amoral beings. In short, their characteristics-would laugh quite rightly: they are people from the basement; – the study of their character would constitute a special chapter-psychology department.

Bourtzev (2)

One of these men compared earlier to crows

---

(1) P. 39.
(2) P. 43–70.

His name is Vladimir Lvovich Bourtzev. – Bourtzev enjoys of a very high reputation among revolutionary socialists among revolutionaries, and even among liberals. His popularity is very tall. He is considered an important man. interested.

Undoubtedly, Bourtzev (1) has always affirmed his patriotism ism. As soon as the war broke out, he was of the opinion that the interruption should be stopped. pre any revolutionary activity. After the revolution, it proposed to continue the fight until victory; he opposed posed to the government of Kerensky and the Bolsheviks, and was thrown into prison. All of this is true, but this does not change the fact that not at all that he had not worked with all his might, with a blind fanaticism, to destroy what constituted greatness and the power of Russia.

His humanity is praised, and the sufferings are recalled.
Frances, which he had to endure for the revolutionary cause.
He is also very popular, and a Russian general was flattered the honor of having seen him in Paris.

But by what right does Bourtzev (2) attack the bolCheviks? They are no more responsible for the chaos.
Russian than their predecessors, starting with RodzianKo, Milioukov, and finally Savinkov and Tchernov. What. is the lesser evil, or Bolsheviks who act at uncovered face, or Kerensky hiding beneath words pompous and a hypocritical ideology, the same vileness and the same shames? Certainly, we are not talking here about complacency towards the Bolsheviks, and yet he is allowed us to assert that, in many circumstances, the
The Bolsheviks were less cruel, less ruthless, less unjust and less vile than the revolutionary Socialists revolutionaries, that the Labourites, the Mensheviks and all the aftermath.

The prison system (3) under the Bolshevik governmentVick was more lenient than under socialist rule.
revolutionaries: from the point of view of cleanliness and With minimal comfort, nothing was lacking. When produced a threat of massacre from the soldiers, Lenin immediately ordered the guards to be changed.

The Bolshevik administration always strove to be just and humane. What a contrast with Kerensky's attitude. who, in March 1917, cowardly allowed officers to be assassinated Innocent Russian candles!

Shcheglovitov, Sukulimov and his wife Bieletzki, who were imprisoned under the Kerensky regime and under The Bolshevik regime welcomed the change as an improvement to their unfortunate fate.

Bourtzev should not believe that this is about exonerating the Bolsheviks; but is he really allowed to shout against them, to charge them with all crimes against the laws Divine and human?

It will suffice (1) to recall the circumstances which have enSturmer's death was a factor. Undoubtedly, Sturmer's choice.
as prime minister was unhappy; this man was not popular. From the moment he came to power, he was accused of Germanophilia; it was claimed that he was preparing to sign peace with Germany; the word treason began to circulate in the circles of St. Petersburg (2);
The rumor spread to the provinces, stirred up passions and proevoked the most malicious comments in all Russia. Was this rumor founded or not? Nobody could know the truth; but the real goal was tothat of reaching the tsar himself through the ministereven the tsar, so nobly faithful to his alliances.

Some time later, Sturmer's successor, Teretchenko, Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Government provisionally, he was in prison. The perpetrator of this memory asked him what was well-founded in the rumors that had circulated about Stursea, of this "bad man" who was going to lose our allies if "good man Buchanan" hadn't handed over the chases in place?

A collaborator of Kerensky, Terechenko had no

---

(1) P. 61.
(2) P. 64.

reason to hide and silence Sturmer's betrayal, if There was treason, Teretchenko, when questioned, categorically stated that Sturmer had not betrayed them and that he had not not harmed Russia's interests. President of the Commissioninvestigative unit tasked with examining the accusations made Against Sturmer, he was better informed than anyone.
However, he could not find any evidence of treason. NeverthelessLess, less, the slander spread.

_ Arrested (1), Sturmer endured the worst treatment
2 The Peter and Paul fortress. This exhausted old man, sufferingsuffering from kidney disease, was confined to a room damp and cold door of the Troubetzkoi bastion, where it was deprived of the most basic comforts and reduced to an afA terrible agony that must have made him long for death. KeRenski, then Minister of Justice, was aware of the state of affairs.
Sturmer's maple. He and his successors refused all

The ordeal lasted from March to July 1917.

M™ Sturmer (2) finally obtained a consultation with the doctors who noted that the illness had worsened.
She obtained permission to transport her husband to Vhothe prison cell. The soldiers refused, not wanting Not to let go of such an enemy of the people, a traitor. (A remarqueer that this traitor Kerensky, and his soldiers, who do not
They were quick to accuse them of being cowardly deserters.
the others of treason) (3). Finally, the transfer could be effected-killed. Sturmer needed help walking. They did it. get in a car. Upon arriving at the hospital, he asked for a doctor. The fugitives, who had deserted in the face of the enemy Armed, they responded to this request only with laughter.
The jeers were: "Let him die! Let him die!"

Unable to bear the pain any longer, Sturmer took out his knife and used it as a "catheter." Then a group of people dressed in military uniforms, comrades cons-
Some of Bourtzev's friends came to urinate on him.
face.

Sturmer soon fell into agony.

(1) P. 65..

x

One thing is clear from the very beginning of the Revolution.
In their eyes: apathy, total inertia. With which the so-Russian society has endured the destruction of the homeland. None serious protest, no vigorous resistance from the part of the monarchists, enemies of the revolutionary ideal-Pair, orderly people.

One cause of this indifference lies in the tempera-the moral state of the people. Two others are the criminal faults.
measures implemented by the regime (Rasputinism, etc.), and Abdication of the tsar and the tsarevich.

Nevertheless (1), one remains astonished by the speed with ła-which the Petrograd troops betrayed, and one is rema feeling of admiration for the heroism of the police officers of the capital which alone remained faithful to duty; they deserve to be compared to the Swiss Guard of Louis XVI.

The "pharaoh" is the nickname given to the police officer who, for thirty rubles a month, ensured good order in the streets of Petrograd. Humbly, with the most With great selflessness, they fulfilled their instructions during In times of peace, they knew how to die as heroes on the day of the riot. The soldiers and the workers chased them away wild animals and the population of the capital helped these beasts furious in their work of death: children, hags, Young bourgeois men ran about eagerly in search of a victim.

We will not be surprised (2) by this heroic conduct of the police officers, if we remember that most were from an-Ancient soldiers, soldiers of this valiant Russian army to whom The Empire owed its power and strength to it. Whoever does not bow down-would stand before the soldier of the old army?

In 1914 (3), in Mlava, the rumor spread that ła ti: ar-
The army, under Samsonov's command, had been destroyed.
regiments, barely disembarked, were only thinking of attacking to repair the disaster.

At Novo-Georgewick (4), the Siberian Corps performed prodi-valuable skills, this same Corps which, before Riga, fought-tit in 1917; but they were no longer the same soldiers!

In Lublin, the 1% Brigade of the 1st Infantry Division of the Guard, Preobrazhensky and Semenovsky, supported,
For two days, the fight against an army corps enemy, and victoriously supported him. And, when arrived the 2nd Brigade, Ismailovsky Regiment and Chasseurs, the vic-
The siege was complete, and the enemy had to retreat. Between Meanwhile, the 2nd Division was advancing; the officers and the soldiers of the Finnish regiment were crying, because they arrived
They were too late: How many more struggles awaited them, and How few were expected to return!

How bitter it is to think of the cowards who took the
In place of these heroes, to the idiotic-looking traitors who have perfected the shame of Russia, to the soldiers of Kerensky, of Chernov and the "grandmother".

Let's return to the police. In May 1917, when Peters-Bourg had not yet finished the revolutionary festivities.
naires, and always shed tears of joy at the thought Having won his freedom, the author invited a young man to his home.
lawyer (1). The conversation turned to political events-ticks, and, very quickly, Pavocat made this profession of faith:

"I was eagerly awaiting the revolution, hoping for that it would usher in an era of freedom and happiness for the Russia. I was therefore not, a priori, like you, Colonel, an opponent of the revolution. On February 27th, I was completely filled with youthful enthusiasm. For three days,
I didn't go home: I was building barricades Cades, I was running to the Palace of Tauride, I was going from one end from one city to another. Little by little, as the events-
As events unfolded, my enthusiasm waned and gave way to a bitter disillusionment. I hated the people that I had believed them to be devoted, but they appeared to me to be small and contemptuous.
Disgusting sands. You can't imagine what a disaster...
Poir overwhelmed my soul. Above all the people who...
The Jews were made to suffer. They were coming out from everywhere: they were spreading everywhere and taking the lead in the movement

(1) P. 86.

revolutionary; they commanded detachments armed (1), traveled in cars to carry out the arrest warrants against Russian officials.

"But why talk about the Jews? I've always..."
I hated that race. In those days, it was the Russians themselves-the very ones who disgusted me, so cowardly and Cowards. And they were soldiers, workers. I...
I saw them tremble at the slightest noise, scatter at the first
The first discharge came from who knows where. They couldn't find it.
their courage only to fall, ten of them, armed, on a unfortunate, defenseless man. They were all cowards, the members from the Duma themselves, Rodzianko and the others. This General cowardice allowed the fire to spread. I I am convinced that a company of brave, well-
The Mandée would have brought the revolution to an end.

"In this general abandonment, only the police officers..."
They descended like heroes. None faltered: they fell silent.
calmly, proudly. One of them, completely covered in blood, was dragged through the street by a gang of soldiers and workers, old women, children; everyone tried to... to hit: one of them punched him in the face, a one was pulling out her hair, a third was spitting at her
A fourth man insulted him in the face; he was finished off that evening.
even. "

A day will come (2) with God's help, when Russia, resurrected, will restore to these heroes the honors they deserve.
deserved for their generous sacrifices.

*
kk

Chapter V. — A few words on pogroms, Jews, EG
pp. 89-99
"All who draw the sword will perish by the sword." Matr. XVI, 52.

“For thousands of years (3), the leaders of the people
Jews delivered their fellow Jews to destruction and extermination.

mination, in the name of an ideal whose latest form has been that of a universal social revolution.

Accepting, without discussion, the social creed and their Masters, the Jews dreamed of a socialist organization of the world that they only believed possible after the victory of the proletariat. Blinded by their fixed idea, the Jews do not could be satisfied with no government, because that no government could agree to carry out their ideal: this ideal aimed at nothing less than reducing nations, races, and religions in a state of dispersion similar to the one in which the Jews themselves currently live same.

"Our homeland has always been the object of attention" particular disciples of the Jew K. Marx, who, in reality, has merely systematized the proven goal of Judaism: to found a "new Jerusalem". Yet, at the very moment when, in
In Russia, the socialist revolution had been achieved and was progressing.

by criminal maniacs, to its extreme limits, the Judaism, with all its political ramifications and social, received a very hard blow which sent us back to horrors of the Middle Ages.

An enraged "proletariat" and "pogrom-mongers"
"democrats" shed the blood of thousands of innocent Jews cents: this is how the Jews atone for the sin of having completely overturned the ideas of populations foreign to the pseudo-theories of the benefits of the revolution socialist solution.

"Antisemitism (1) will only disappear in the face of a Republican league that will abolish all human slavery. This
The Republican League will triumph in the shadow of the flags reds of the socialist revolution thanks to the combined forms Russian, Polish, Armenian and national proletariats others, in the midst of which the international Jewish proletariat-tional will play the role of a tireless catalyst in the struggle of classes, the ultimate goal of all proletariats. I am not no longer a man of his early youth, but I ensner not to die before seeing the red flags waving

---

(1) P. 90.

on the Peter and Paul Fortress and on the Winter Palace.
And unity will be achieved, and the monsters of the possessed classes will be...
Dantes, accustomed to feeding on age-old prejudices, will begin to die of hunger and shame, and people enlightened, without distinction of religion, race, nationality ality, will fraternally enter the porticoes of the new Jerusalem.

These were the words that concluded the first lesson of the lecture: "The Jews and Soctalism", given in the spring 1906, by Alexander Amphitheatrov, at the Russian College Social Studies, in Paris.

Thirteen years have passed since we tried to demon-to tell the College's listeners that antisemitism is the natural and declared companion of the monarchical principle; and that he gets along very well, in secret, with the republicans bourgeois, that the historical cause of anti-Semitism resides in the socialist genius of the Jewish people. Alexander Amphitheatrov developed his theme starting from this given that the "Jewish bourgeoisie," center and organ of all the compromises, had developed as a product negative of antisemitism.

The Bolsheviks have already celebrated an anniversary of their rise to power through the "victory of the proletariat":
this victory, which all the enemies of the Government dreamed of Russian nement, like Anphitheatrov; they caressed the hope that the Jewish chili pepper would spread throughout the world whole, like ether in the atmosphere, and that the Jews would not have taught the men of all nations to feel like citizens of the world only to be excluded themselves of the universal city and hide in a new ghetto" (1).

In the early days of the proletariat's victory, the Jews played a magnificent part, in a very honorable position, at the triumphal feasts: were they not the most Aryan Fighters of the victorious army? In the opinion of their Jews have always done, do do, and have their own ideologues.
will always make the revolution. From the 7th century BC

---

(1) P. 91.

Jesus Christ, they amended the law of Moses by Deuteronomy.
Romano. The Jews cannot help but revo-Solution: it's their character, their vocation, their history in the midst of nations. In these endless revolutions, {they have lost everything: their territory, their political independence tics, everything that constitutes a tion. For them, the revo-
The solution is the protest against their historical destiny.
But now a üluaÿe sdiiglant has developed Russia revolutionary. The slogans about freedom disposition of peoples divided the nations into regions tnhemiés. The ideal of social revolution has, in reality, led to the horrors of the fratricidal war of 1914; the blood has flooded into the realm of a chimera: the mon- revolution diale. The beautiful revolutionary words about freedom, Equality, fraternity, words of universal love are stifled by the howls of the Bolshevik beast. — The great, holy, peaceful and bloodless revolution destroyed Russia, lifted her soul, covered her with hostility in the eyes of other peoples.

Frightened by the results of their own activity, the liber-Russian officials are trying to reject all the blame bility on the Bolsheviks, and try to justify in the public-union of the world the horrors of the class struggle that they have unleashed their fury. After the intoxication of success,
The Jews were among the last to experience evil.
on the side of the civil land. This is due to the pumping system.
'Hque which has always consisted of seeking the support of the government-verhetifully execstant, whatever it may be. Which does not...
does not in any way prevent, at the same time, the maintenance of friendly relations with people belonging to nations foreign conduct contrary to patriotism, such as the includes the Aryan race.

Two examples (1) only, separated by tens of the century: The prophet Jeremiah, with enthusiasm mystic, hailed Nebuchadnezzar as the "scourge of God", and he was diverting his brothers from fighting against the king of Babylone, because that would be opposing "divine vengeance".
(JEREMIE, xxvii).

---

(1) P. 92:

The second example is taken from our memories of Ukraine. Odessa journalist Schwartz, friend of the leaders of the Labour Republic, wrote: "The Jews, alone, acted properly towards the respectable Ukrainians under Petliura's banners; in many circumstances
In their remarks, they demonstrated the best of intentions.
with regard to the new government. When the Directory
He entered kyiv, and was greeted only by the auto-Jewish rites; Jewish socialist parties presented their candidate for the post of Minister of National Affairs.
Meanwhile, the other national minorities remain-would be kept apart.

And now, this is how the people of Petliura have rewarded loyal and faithful Jews by organizing the Proskurov massacre, spring of 1918: In the barracks occupied by Zaporozhian Cossack troops, the hetman: Semenenko delivered his verdict, not against the guilty parties, who had managed to hide, but against the population
The entire Jewish community. The prikaze bore the inscription: "Do not lose "One bullet, spare no one, do not loot." They did to give cocaine to the soldiers.

The massacre (1) began two hours after
At midday: old people, women, children, all were massacred.
In the evening, it was all over (2): a cavalcade appeared; first two Cossacks carrying the Ukrainian flag, then the voi-the visit of Hetman Semenenko, who came to review his young soldiers, the pioneers of "free Ukraine";
Two Cossacks lit the road with torches.
"Our Father! Glory! Honor!" — The massacre was
That was it, the looting began.

The betrayals, through which the Jews had passed Petliura and Vininchenko did not wait for a long time their reward.

The appalling wave of pogroms did not stop at PUkraine; it spread to Podolia, Volhynia, in all of southern Russia, with the exception of the occupied regions by the Volunteer Army and by the monarchist armies Chinese, Romanian, and reached Galicia and Poland republican.

Europe was able to see the extent to which anti-Semitism was a monarchical disease. I don't know if the members of the mission of US Senator Morgen-Thau, General Jadvin, and others were familiar with the petty games.
Republican-socialists who revolutionized the civilized world, Amphitheatrov's pamphlet: The Jews, Soul of the Revolution solution, but I am convinced that Messrs. Grossmann and Koralnik, who left for London with the tragic mission to reveal the 35,000 victims of Jewish pogroms in Ukraine-do not, are familiar with the literature devoted to the origin of the an-Semitism. However, Mr. Grossmann, a member of the Committee Ukrainian central for victim assistance pogroms, in an interview given to journalists foreigners, declared that the main cause of the massacres was national hatred, unleashed by the civil war, against the Jews, "those historical victims of anarchy".

The whole problem is that the Jews don't know 'who will be in power tomorrow. On the one hand, the Bolsheviks threaten because they are bourgeois; on the other hand, the Ukrainians- They massacred them because they were communists.

According to Grossmann (1), the main officials pogroms were carried out by peasants incited by chiefs revolutionary left-wing socialists, shouting: "A Down with the Commissars of voracious Moscow: Down with the Jews who crucified Christ!

In the newspaper Politiken, the Danish Jew Kimer has given some details about the Ukrainian pogroms which were communicated by Grossmann:

“At first, the Jews rejoiced in the victory of the But disillusionment came very quickly. From In November, the pogroms began. There were three

has

Main periods. The first of November 18th has

a) P. 95.

January 19: the second from February to April: massacre of Proskourov (February 14-15), 1,700 Jews killed, infantry entire areas were annihilated; in a neighboring village, there were 400 victims; on a steamer traveling down the Dnieper, 103 Jews were seized, bound, and drowned. The third The period lasts from April to the present day (June 1919). The victims number in the thousands.

"The Jewish National Secretariat (1) has detailed the precise following: From November 18th to May 20th, 2019, there were massacres in one hundred and seventy-five places. Thirty & Thirty-five thousand Jews perished during this period, and this The figure is probably lower than the reality.

"The Jews have no hope left but to obtain the petriis- "The idea of emigrating and withdrawing to Palestine."

Thus, it took 35,000 Jewish victims for the leaders of this people would finally be enlightened on the benefits of the class struggle.

For eighteen hundred years (2) the Jews have been fighting potit to obtain a peaceful establishment in the midst of the assets natidns, and they think they can achieve their goal that by the Victory of the proletariat. In Russia, the Jews have everything his in ceuvré to pervert the hoimé risse who dimait both his homeland and his country, and to make him an internationalist: Nationalist, socialist, a traitor, a criminal.

It was only then that these criminals took a balloon: netté was a club, and having more bourgeois under the They struck the Jews, who then cried out to . anarchy, after having eiix-mêmemes, by the nienisonge, the venality, flattery, overturned the altar of the pattie.

The Russian governments were also well-inspired. quatid they were trying to eradicate this race from our soil harmful. Thus Catherine I, by her decree of April 20, 1727, Elisabeth Petrovna, pät Pukaze dü 2 December 1762.

The Jews (3) are today making vows to return Eti Palestine: yes, that's where they all want it the real Russians.

(3) P. 98.

Chapter VI. — Introduction to the German translation of book by S, A. Nilus, M, ... D. 09-167

Introduction and Commentary on the "Protocols" The German version is by Mr. Gottfried zur Beek, who is the translator and editor. He is the director of Auf Vorposten. It is thanks to his kindness, we said above, we owe the 1920 Russian edition.

: *
6
Chapter VII. — The Great in the Small, SA Nilus,

| pp. 167-342

This is a reprint of the 1911 edition of the book by Nilus, with the "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion, and their The epilogue, which runs from page 216 to page 294. "Protocols" are therefore only an appendix to the work apocalyptic in which Nilus announces the coming prochain of the Antichrist and the reign of Satan on earth.

We have marked under the heading "Nilus, 1920" the Differences and similarities. From the Russian edition of "Protocols", with the various German translations, English, American, and Polish.

F žk

Chapter VIII. — Speech by a Rabbi.....:.... pp. 342-350

This is the 1880 speech that we have reprinted in the International Review of Secret Societies (October) 1920, on page 80), and which is found on page 19 in the present volume. Finally, the new Russian edition contains, under the Title of Mélanges:

o
Chapter IX. — A remarkable map............... p. 3 50

This map anticipates the completion of the Judeo- work Masonic by the United States of Europe, in the Republic Universal, except for Russia which is marked: "Russia, deserves.

It is reproduced in the German edition at the page 214, with the following caption:

"Enlarged reproduction of a drawing entitled: The Dream" of the Kaiser, which appeared in the weekly newspaper an-English Truth, Christmas issue 1890. The owner-publisher of this newspaper, whose circulation then exceeded one million of copies, was the politician (1) and Freemason Henry Labouchère (MP).

*
**

Chapter X. — The Voice of Israel, by Serge Nilus, p. 353

Shortly (2) before the World War, in a In a large provincial Russian city, an Archpriest received the Frequent visits from a Rabbi.

Invariably, the topic of conversation was the date of the second Coming of Christ.

Intrigued, the Archpriest asked the Rabbi the cause of his concerns. The Rabbi replied, "You know that we await the Messiah; we do not believe in The one you call the Savior of the World. We have always tried to find out the day of his arrival. Trom-In our calculations, we altered the figures of the The Bible differs in the various translations made. before or after the birth of Jesus. Nowadays (3) Our people are growing impatient and are asking us when you will come-

---

(1) In the Russian edition, the legend is the same, but the button is pressed the author's quality as an "eminent politician, who had a high rank in Freemasonry.” Then the Russian author adds:

"As our readers can see, nowadays the Frankish prophecy-Masonic tradition has been fulfilled in a certain way. Obviously, Germany is not yet divided into small republics, as the English newspaper had indicated. Obviously, in Europe, the organization does not yet prevail everywhere republican, as so remarkably indicated on the map, But, on the other hand, our Russia is divided, liquid, pure pieces. If the events continue to develop in the same direction, soon our The homeland will fully justify the prophecy and will be transformed into this desert. which was so cruelly promised to us. The painting depicts four crowned figures — which 3rd return to the English Labour house.

All four have currently lost their thrones; two personally: the Emperor of Germany and the role of Bulgaria, and two in the person of their heirs: the Emperor of Russia and the Emperor of Austria.

"How precise this cruel plan was, conceived some time ago!" Fire @Europe, when will the opposition to the Judeo-Muslim plan begin? "Nice?"

TD P. 353. i

(3) P. 354.

He who is to deliver us from the yoke of the Gentiles and to give us power. We were forced to to answer our people, and that's precisely why I've come to see you.
to compare your opinion with mine. The one that We are waiting, you call him the Antichrist. He is the one who "will deliver us." Thereupon, the Archpriest asked the Rabbi, on what date did the Jews expect the coming of the Messiah. The Rabbi replied that the Messiah was to come. in the period from 1918 to 1923, no later than 1923. |

Strange coincidence with our own calculations (1)).

IV

POLISH EDITION (2) 4919

The brochure is titled:

BACZNOSC! ! – ATTENTION ! !
Subtitles:

“Read and have others read”
1897–1920

On the second page:
“It is a national duty for everyone to read this book and to have it read.”

The titles and subtitles are exactly those of the...

Russian edition of 1920.
| Preface

The purpose of this brochure is to raise awareness of...

---

(1) This study on the Russian edition and the annotations taken from the "Protocols" are due to the pen of Mr. Paul BOURGUIGNON.
(2) The translator is Father EVRARD, ASSOMPT, the "Minutes (Protocols) of the Sessions of the Sa–

"Gives of Zion" (international Jewish organization)... We We translated it from the Russian text contained in a book edited at the Lavra of Saint Sergius, in Russia, by Serge Nilus.

A copy of this book entitled: "He is near, he is "At the door," bought in Russia with great difficulty and for a
The price was very high, and it fell into our hands by chance.
This is a copy of the 4th edition (the first one dates from 1905).

The author writes the following about the "Procé–ver– leases:

"These minutes were given to me in handwritten form," by AN (Alexis Nikolaiewitch) Souchotine, in 1901. Him– he had even received them from a lady he knew who resided usually abroad.

Another copy of this manuscript was sent to Sipiagin, Minister of the Interior, in St. Petersburg, assassinated Siné shortly afterwards...

Serge Nilus showed this manuscript to many influential members of the Russian government. He wanted them They gave a warning, but it was useless. The great Duke Serge Alexandrovis, assassinated shortly afterwards in Moscow, and to whom Serge Nilus had also sent his Manuscript, he replied with these words only: "Too late!"

In Serge Nilus's book, the "Minutes" are followed by "Necessary Explanations". We publish the some and others in that same order; however we
We advise the reader to first read the "Expdications”.
(These explanations are a reproduction of PE pilo-(which we gave on page 126).

Furthermore, according to trustworthy sources, the
A copy of these "Minutes" was stolen from Pappar-occupied in Vienna by Herzl, the organizer of the pre-First Zionist Congress held in Basel, in August 1897. This Herzl, Serge Nilus affirms, is "exilarche", that is to say "Prince of the Exiles” and henceforth leader of Israel. At this Congress of Basel, He presented a strategic plan to the Assembly of Elders of conquest of the universe. The "Minutes" contain-precisely this plan.

Several of our friends, however, expressed doubts.
regarding the authenticity of the "Minutes". In our opinion,
Their cantenu speaks for itself in his favor, and the ev-
The historical events we are going through seem to...
to affirm their importance and the need to pay very close attention to them great attention.

December 1919.
Mr. St. W. (1).

Epilogue of The Polish Translator

Reading this book should inspire many people serious reflections.

Let's focus on its content and try to draw some conclusions from it.
the conclusions that follow from this.

We will mention in passing this fact that, in light of these 24 minutes of the sessions of the "Wise Men of Zion" many events which, in the past, 'naus sem-
What were once incomprehensible become very clear because we
We see in this the consequence of factors ignored by us until now.
than now. This book also has a very particular value-particular because it is the key that allows us to solve a whole series of contemporary problems.

The causes and aims of the Great War that shook almost the entire earth, the development of the Bolshevisma in Russia, the Spartacist movement in Germany, even certain special clauses of the peace treaty, all This is where its reason lies; all of this appears as the logical consequence of the actions of this mysterious
The hand that directs the destinies of the world.

And that hand, that's the Jews.

(t) Initials whose meaning escapes the translator,

On the road traveled by the symbolic Serpent, we we do not find jSo far, among its stages, the
The name of Warsaw. That's perfectly understandable.

When the snake's head, after crossing almost all the capitals of Europe, returned towards the East, Var-
The Soviet Union had ceased to be a capital and was now only the center of a country. Under these conditions, the invasion from Petrograd, the seat of all the administrations, of the offices and chancelleries where everything was centralized, pla-Warsaw was placed within the Serpent's sphere of influence.

Things have changed. Warsaw has become the capital-tale of the independent Republic of Poland, of a State whose population can be estimated at almost 30 million of inhabitants. From then on, Warsaw could no longer avoid the Serpent, whose monstrous body turned back from our side, whose hideous head looked towards the polo- lands naises desiring to surround them with its tortuous rings.

And this is not an empty statement. Let's consider carefully consider the details of our inner life, nationational, our relations with foreign countries, and the simple truth ap-will appear before our eyes in all its menacing glory.

What exactly is this clause in the peace treaty?
rights specific to ethnic minorities in Poland benefits that are not granted to them anywhere else?

And this dispatch of the Morgenthau mission composed, no of impartial Americans but of American Jews who constitute on this occasion a superior court having the right to pass judgment on interlaughter of the Polish state? And this intense penetration Jewish (literally: Jewishly) in the administration, The officer corps, the civil servants? What is it then? finally, that this development of Bolshevism hidden beneath the covered by a whole series of left-wing parties? It doesn't These are the tentacles of this octopus that is preparing the land before taking it over completely.

This is no mystery to anyone, at least not currently- that the Bolshevik currents in Russia cannot not to be considered as the only movement pushed jus-than to the absurdity of a vast liberated people, intoxicated by his victory over Tsarism.

The Jews conquered Russia and now reign there. lying, governing their hundreds of millions of subjects with this inflexible absolutism so lauded in the "Pro- "These verbal reports."

Who, indeed, is at the head of the Bolshevik government? visit? Bronstein-Trotski, Naklamkés-Stieklow, Apfelbaum-Zinowiew, Fiirstenberg-Khanetski, Tséderbaum-Martow, Gouréwitch-Dan and many, many others of these Russian instigators of "the current revolution".

And Hungarian Bolshevism? Since Béla Kohn-Kuhn up to Samuel, again, nothing but Jews.

Similarly, our communists, Polish only because that, alas! they infest Polish lands. Most Some of them are organized into Jewish parties, such as the "Bund" or "Poale-Zion", etc., or even belongment 4 of the advanced parties not having an exclusionary character- Exceptionally Jewish. We could give a whole list here. names. We won't do that, to avoid being accused. of denunciation.

What we have said is sufficient proof to the appthen from our assertion that the shocks and upheavals- The afflictions from which the whole world suffers today are the work of the Jews, that they are the realization of a well-thought-out plan determined, every detail of which has been carefully studied, and which aims at a clearly specified goal. This plan, so learned, was designed by experienced politicians, by people initiated into the secrets of world politics.

If Pon wants to thwart these attempts by a powerful known but elusive, because she is the center of an orsecret organization, we would have to counter them with a self- meticulously crafted down to the smallest detail by statesmen aware of the inner workings of politics external and international. A conference should be convened. the influence of these men who, point by point, would prepare this counter-proposal. The conference decisions should be published in the form of guidelines rather than-all Poles should follow; without exception, as all Jews, without exception, knowingly perform or not the will of their secret leaders.

A direction like this could save the people threatened by an invisible and no less feared enemy ble, and, therefore, save ourselves.

We will not undertake to investigate whether the a meeting of such an international conference is possible. However, it must be acknowledged that the conditions policies of the newly resurrected Kingdom of Poland, make this undertaking completely impossible.

Therefore, only one joint action remains, bringing together all the inhabitants of Polish lands, an action being afraid The goal is to thwart the opposing team's plans. That's the only one 'means of salvation. If we do not know how to use such antidote, all that remains is for us to let them attach themselves by the chains of Jewish omnipotence our hands barely freed from their chains.

From time to time, fate allows certain details the Jewish plan is revealed; a recruitment is then observed the descent of anti-Semitism, pushed to regrettable extremes bloody consequences referred to as "pe"groms." This is a very understandable reaction: the

The spring, when pressed too tightly, relaxes and, at the same time
Time, hurts the hand that held it.

Should we therefore spread antisemitism, push
To organize pogroms, to organize a bloody race war?
Never! Indeed, we see ee At all according to the "Minutes" that any anti-Jewish action is a highly desirable manifestation for Jews and, to Strictly speaking, for their top leaders. Secondly In this place, the consequences of this action are felt almost exclusively.
tively to the little Jewish people ignorant of the goals, the des-breasts of his invisible leaders in whose hands he is merely a blind instrument. Finally, thirdly, even if there were any possibility of using
We should be able to use such means with impunity.

“to abstain out of repugnance for this violence and for the spread of racial hatred.

Our defense must be something else entirely. Just as the Jews are an element hostile to our people and to the Polish state, we we must fight in close ranks for our "palladiums";
we must expel all Jews from our midst, their remove all influence on our affairs, forbid them any predominant situation in any part of our inner life. This is not anti-Semitism.
combative. Indeed, our aim is not to harm to the Jews. That would only be an expression of sentiment strengthened by national solidarity and love of his homeland, of a real love that is not content with words.

Whatever we undertake, whether it concerns the details secondary aspects of ordinary life, or more important matters Aunts, we must always ask ourselves: what I Will what I am going to do be useful or harmful to my country and to my fellow citizens? If we allow ourselves to be guided by the indi-infallible cations that in response to this question, we will give us our civic conscience, we will be invincible targets, we will contribute to the development of our a renewed homeland, and we will be that rock against which the
The gates of hell will never prevail.

As clearly stated in the "Trials-Ver-leases”, Pagent who plays the decisive role in the issues not only economic but also political It's gold, it's that all-powerful money with which Jews succeed in dominating the world. From then on we must, in the name of a legitimate and justified defense of our interests, reduce to a minimum, if it is impossible for us to to prevent it altogether, the exodus of Por from our pockets in Jewish funds. And, again, who can call that harm the Jews? If we acted otherwise, we would be...
We would give weapons to our enemy, which is morally unacceptable.
However subtle it may be, it cannot demand anything of anyone.

From the day when everywhere and always we will be faithful to

This program, we will have established, in preparation for the attacks of the enemy, of the Jew, a most solid entrenchment.

We must then carefully avoid any relationship with the Jews, both in terms of social relations and other matters. And This is again based on the "Official Reports" which we indicate so clearly that the Jews do not let slip no opportunity to spread demoralization among the society they aim to conquer. One of the means
The tools used to achieve this goal are literature.
Jewish woman using the Polish language. Therefore, if the
The author's name is not Polish; that must be the reason.
sufficient reason not to buy, not to read such a book,
so as not to go to the theatre, see such and such a play, etc.

What we have just said relates to economic life and social. In the realm of political life, to give providing directions would be pointless. Indeed, in any work of destruction, disorganization, upheaval we see to reveal the hand of the enemy within our country, the Jew. During the period of the country's formation, his property demands that we renounce settling in a definitive way all social issues, so as not to hinder this work from which the new order of things must emerge in our country. We Poles are all the more so here.

held that to act otherwise would be to walk again the hand in hand with our future assassins and our future The Jews were tyrants.

Moreover, giving indications in this direction is not necessary. All those who sincerely love their country and their homeland, find in their own hearts the indicator infallible showing the way to our common goal all: the prosperity of our State and that of our comatriotes. With the weapons of justice and love for his homeland, we will never err and we will be able to complete a major work: the construction of the polo- state building independent, powerful and, in its power, generous for all those who place themselves under his protection.

This book will undoubtedly fall into the hands Jews. May they understand what a seed of ruinthrow the Judeo-Masonic leaders through the masses ignorant people using them to achieve their goals fantastic, perhaps even completely unrealizable. May this book open the eyes of the Jews to the machinations -of a group of supporters of the idea of absolute power-Jewish faith. May he bring them back to the only path suitable for bringing about a communal life in accordance with the peoples among whom they live.

Poland belongs to the Poles, without distinction of belief. It is not for internal enemies and does not will never become prey to this occult power tenleading to universal sovereignty through universal esclawave.

May God help us.

Digitized by Google

APPENDIX V

We are adding this "Appendix V" to reveal the Judeo-Masonic tactic, summarized in the motto: "Force and HYPOCRISY." In Russia, it is the reign of – force to the point of Bolshevik terror. In France, for the moment, it is the effort of cunning which, in forms undoyantes continues its plen through a cautious diplomacy leuse and treacherous legislation. Ultimately, the pro- The revolutionary gram has as its tangible goal the destruction the Church's function, because it is the last force that modern societies still stand against this farce brutal or hypocritical, which throws them to the ground and which unmasks They refer to the "Protocols": Judeo-Masonry.

Qt

JUDEO-MASONRY

AND THE

SEPARATION LAW

ee

ABOUT RELIGIOUS SERVICES

The three aspects of the Separation Law

| | | j

'The question of "Cultural" institutions, which seemed irrevocably A decision made by His Holiness Pius X is being reopened for discussion. an article in the Revue des Deux-Mondes (1) dealt with it very skillfullyment from a utilitarian point of view, relying, it is said, on this Words from a high-ranking ecclesiastical official: "After all, if "The Church in France wants to starve to death, that's its business!" In this respect, our fate is likened to that of the mayor of Cork.

---

(4) Revue des Deux-Mondes, October 1, 1920, pp. 551-575. The anonymity of The author makes no secret of it for anyone.

and, perhaps, the Church of France would have more right than this An illustrious Irishman famously exclaimed: "Death or liberty!"

In Aquitaine, Cardinal Andrieu, Archbishop of Bordeaux (1) refutes the jurist of the Parisian review. He considers the "Religious" from a legal point of view, and His Eminence receives this well-deserved approval: "After such a blow to club, it is impossible that the governmental paradox and "The diplomatic approach put into use is recovering."

A third aspect is essential, that of the historical point of viewrisk. I] falls within the framework of the International Review of Secret Societies, because of the Law of Separation, from which they are extracted from the "Religious Associations", is of pure essence Judeo-Masonic. This study, although retrospective, connects presently, through the alleged inviolability of secular laws which puts the Catholics of 1920 in the same situation as those of 1905. The war changed nothing in their favor; and the union sacred was never anything but a unilateral contract, solely for the benefit of our enemies, as was recently noted again Bishop Gouraud of Vannes, in a letter of protesttion concerning the minor seminary of Ploérmel:

"What is most surprising," the prelate wrote, "is the audacity with which they (our opponents) claim they have no more a strong desire to safeguard the unity among all French people, at a time when they are perpetuating all the pre-war divisions. Who can we fool? The truth is, we are the only ones to want this union and to provide proof of it.”

Therefore, we will reread a page without any qualms. of History, too quickly forgotten, and yet of crucial importance tale; anxious not to break our conditional guarantees on our side conditions of sacred union, but, at the same time, to disengage, from on the other hand, the uninterrupted pursuit of Masonic disunitynique under the cover of a concordat agreement or a The appearance of legal status, which would make us fools, and Soon, there will be victims.

The Concordat and the "Cultural"

Indeed, we are trying, with this intention, to assimilate the "Cul-

---

(1) We cannot mention here the other protests against the doctrine expressed in the Revue des Deux-Mondes; let us quote: Cardinal Maurin, archBishop of Lyon; Cardinal de Cabrières, Bishop of Montpellier; Bishop Chollet, Archbishop of Cambrai (Religious Week, October 16, 1920, p. 350), including Ja The tight note is also irrefutable, to which must be added, on this date of In November, at least fifteen members of the episcopate.

"tuelles" to the Concordat; that's false. "Certainly," wrote the cardinal Andrieu, the concordat laws were not without flaws, and The Holy See had to protest against some of them that The civil authorities had developed them all on their own. But they were made to support religious sentiment and not to destroy » (1).

This concept is evident from the first sentence of the Report de Portalis On the Organization of Cults, worded as follows:

For a long time, the Government had been concerned with the means of to restore religious peace in France (2).

The Separation Law, on the contrary, falls within the whole of legislation whose sole purpose was to unleash war religious; the one of which the world war was only a consequence cedané, and who, despite false claims, does not There is no peace treaty yet, not even an armistice. tried and tested.

Furthermore, the Concordat was a regression of atheism. which Portalis considers one of the harmful consequences of the Revolution. We also read in his Report:

"The inevitable effect of atheism," said a great man, "is to leading us to the idea of our independence and consequently of our revolt.” What a stumbling block to all the necessary virtues to the maintenance of social order! (3)

On the other hand, the Law of Separation is the formula for atheism. social. Note that this secularism of the State has been claimed said, in the aftermath of the peace, by Mr. Clemenceau saying to Strasbourg:

The secularization laws must be fully maintained.

Then, by Mr. Millerand in these precise terms:

We consider the Republic and its founding laws to be inviolable.
mental, foremost among which we place the law on the Separation and the law on secular education (4).

(1) L'Aquitaine, October 15, 1920, p. 504.

(2) Collection of authentic documents relating to the Concordat, p. 3; Liège Latour, year X (1802).

(3) Lib. cit., p. 20.

(4) Le Figaro, October 26, 1918. It is worth recalling here the definition that Mr. Ernest Lavisse offers secularism, which is the systematic contradiction of the Catholicism:

Being secular does not mean limiting human thought to the visible horizon, nor to forbid the search for the divine. This is not to despise or to want to violate Jesus.
consciences still held captive by the spell of old beliefs; it is refuto give religions the right to govern humanity that endures.

"It's not about hating this or that Church, or all the Churches together:"
It is about fighting religious fanaticism, the cause of so much violence and killings.
and ruins.

“To be secular is to refuse to submit the mind to dog-

However, from the very beginning of the statement of reasons for the resumption of the.
relations with the Vatican, to which the resumption of “Religious,” Mr. Millerand, President of the Council, writes -

The principles of secularism enshrined in the very foundations of our republican institutions no longer exist and can no longer exist.
The Separation regime is under discussion.
entered into our customs as well as into our laws (1).

This regime, once again, is social atheism.

Finally, by the Concordat, "the French Government dealt,. with regard to Catholic worship, with the Pope, not as foreign sovereign, but as head of the universal Church, of which the Catholics of France are a part” (2). These are the very expressions of the Portalis Report.

Whereas, by the Law of Separation, the Concordat, contract bilateral relations were broken off without prior agreement with the Pope, who from now on, was no longer recognized by the Government and at contempt for which the Associations were imposed on French Catholics religious practices. Since then, the situation of the Sovereign The Pontiff has not legally changed in France; and Mr. Noble-the mayor wrote in his report to the Finance Committee.
Regarding the Embassy in the Vatican:

The day the French Ambassador presents his letters of "Debts, it is with him that the entire French legal system will be official-" received (3).

My immutable principles, nor his abdication before the incomprehensible. It is to open a unlimited credit to reason in its quest for truths, to draw from it new lights-young women, do not resign ourselves to our current ignorance.

“To be secular is to believe that life is worth living, to love it, to condemn it.”
the definition of the land as a "valley of tears," not admitting that the Jarmes and that suffering is necessary, beneficial, providential; that is not to rely on a judge sitting beyond life to satisfy those who are hungry, to give drink to those who are thirsty, to comfort those who are weeping rent. It is to take no part in any misery, any injustice, any wrong.

“Being secular means practicing three virtues:

"Charity, that is to say, love for men;

“Hope, that is to say, the premonition that a day will come in the distant posterity where dreams of peace, justice and happiness will be realized what our ancestors did when they looked at the sky;

“Faith, that is to say, the will to believe in the victorious usefulness of effort.”
perpetual human.” (Radical, January 2, 1920).

(1) O pe 12 March 1920, report, p. 524.

(2) Lib. cit., p. 60.

(3) Official, October 26, 1920. “Parliamentary Documents”, p. 2,663.

In an interview with L'Echo de Paris (February 4, 1920), Mr. Noblemaire accentuated the same note: å

"Far from it being a question of revisiting the Law of Separation, if the Governmentment decides to have Republican France officially represented at the Vatican Can, it is this France and its laws that must be there... In short, and the The word has already been said, what I wish, what we wish, is a kind of the "Concordat of Separation." He adds finally: "And you can well imagine that "The confessional point of view means absolutely nothing to me here." It is exactly the reception at the Vatican by a secularized Pope of social atheism sanctioned by a "Concordat of Separation".

Compare these words to the statement of reasons that we From the quotes above, you will logically conclude that, by the “Cultuals”, a Masonic work consecrating the secularism of the France, Eldest Daughter of the Church, or, better, of France, Daughter As the eldest child of the Revolution, they want to impose the recognition of the Law of Separation at the Holy See, which no longer represents, for our Government, as in the time of Portalis and Bonaparte, the Head of the Universal Church, but simply the repository of a moral power, still existing in a society, comparable to similar religious groups, philosophical, artistic or even Masonic, at the Saint-A seat, we say, whose occupant is free from any election divine, free from any hieratic atmosphere, from any magisterial order supernatural, reduced, in a word, to its human proportions is now nothing more than a secularized Pope.

This is the true situation created by the "Cultuals". Their Its origin is Masonic; their organization is an attack on the constitution of the Church, whose aim is their ruin in our country. That's always the plan of the Judeo-Masonic establishment: Destroy Catholic France, which then led to the collapse of the Papacy itself. This last goal is cynically expressed in the "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion as follows:

> When the time comes for us to destroy completely the Papal Court, an unknown hand (1) pointing to the Vatican, will give (2), the signal for the assault.
>
> When, in their fury, the people rush upon the Vatican, we will appear as protectors to stop the bloodshed. By this act, we will penetrate to the very heart of this Court pontifical from which nothing in the world can drive us out until this that we have destroyed the power of the Pope. The King of Israel will become the true Pope of the universe, the Patriarch of the international Church national (3).

Judeo-Magnon map since the 18th century

Such is the Judeo-Masonic plan; without the intelligence of which the revolution that has shaken the world since 1789 remains inexapplicable. However, it is in vain that Barruel and Robison had denounced it as early as the end of the 18th century. It was in vain that at At the beginning of the 19th century, the policeman Devoulx wrote his luminous me-

---

(1) American translation: ..an invisible hand...
American translation: will give to the masses...

(3) German translation: ...of the International Jewish Review. — Review Intern. des Soc. Secr., October 1920; t. IX, n° 6, p. 661.

Memoirs on The Secret Council of Conspiracy and the Revolution French (1). It was in vain that, under the Restoration, Lombard de Langres published his History of Secret Societies in Germany and in other countries, where one read:

> We repeat, the Sect must subjugate the universe; it is no longer The question of resisting him is unanswerable; she already possesses the sword and the power. The vast and the criminal conspiracy she is hatching still needs, however to be supported in some countries by artifice, seduction and the Treachery. Immoral writings, inflammatory maxims where one flatters the vices of the multitude, where attacks are launched from all sides. Forms, healthy ideas, cults, and kings prepare the complementthe formation of the universal revolution, contemplated for fifty years, suddenly stopped in its course by a powerful hand, and returned to her first activity by a fatal chain of events elements which escape human power (2).

It was in vain that, on March 19, 1848, Lamartine responded to the delegation of three hundred Freemasons:

> I know enough about the history of Freemasonry to be convinced that it was from the depths of your lodges that first emanated in the shadows, then in the twilight, and finally in full sunlight, the feelings that ultimately led to the sublime explosion of which we we witnessed in 1789, and of which the people of Paris have just to give the world a second, and I hope a final, performance a few days ago. These feelings of brotherhood, liberty, and equality, which are the Gospel of human reason, have been laboriously, sometimes courageously scrutinized, propagated, professed by you in the specific enclosures where you previously kept your sublime philosophy (3).

It was in vain that, in the second half of the 19th century, CréTineau-Joly published "Secret Instruction and Correspondence" dance of the Haute-Vente", whose motto was: “Don’t "We conspire only against Rome" (4); in vain that Gougenot of Mousseaux published his sensational volume: The Jew, Judaism and the Judaization of Christian Peoples (5); in It was in vain that the Lodges boasted of having overthrown the second Emworse, established the Third Republic, drafted secular laws; in vain that Masonic journals around the world revealed

(1) International Review of Secret Societies, vol. IV, pp. 1351-1397, issue number May 5, 1913.

(2) LOMBARD OF LANGRES, History of Secret Societies in Germany, p. 200; Paris, Gide, 1819.

(3) The Freemason, 1st year, p. 33, Paris 1848, Cf. LAMARTINE, France Parliamentary, V, 194; Paris, International Bookstore, 1865.

(4) CRETINEAU-JOLY, The Roman Church facing the Revolution, IT, 107.

(5) GOUGENOT DES MoussEaux, The Jew, Judaism and the Judaization of Christian Peoples, 1st edition, seized by the Jews, 1869; 2nd edition 1886, Paris, Wattelier.

they emphasized the Sect's leading role in the war dial (1); in vain that the publication of the “Protocols” of the Elders of Zion (2) updates the plot of the centuries-old conspiracy of which the French Revolution and Russian Bolshevism are than separate acts, than the repetition of the immense tragedy final. Despite these warnings and facts, some confessed minds short-sighted or idealistic individuals persist, along with the indifferent masses, unbelievable (3).

A prominent Freemason, Brother Bonnet, gave a masterful... the unity of program and action of the Judeo-Freemasonry at the 1904 Convent, where he was the Orator. Dedicated full of a lie that no longer covers any secrets, he reVendique attributes the Great Revolution to the credit of his elder brothers:

This, he said, is how French Freemasonry was able to fulfill a historic mission, to inspire and sometimes direct events ments. In the eighteenth century, the glorious lineage of the encyclopedists The dists found in our temples a fervent audience which was then The only one to invoke the root word, a motto still unknown to the crowd: Liberty, Equality, Fraternity. The revolutionary seed quickly took root. germinated in this elite milieu. Our illustrious brothers, d'Alembert and Diderot, Helvétius, d'Holbach, Voltaire, and Condorcet completed the evolution minds, prepared for the new times. And, when it collapsed the Bastille, Freemasonry had the supreme honor of giving to humanity the charter she had lovingly drafted. (Applause) (sentences.)

It was our F.:. de Lafayette who, first, at the Constitutional Assembly killer, presented "the draft of a Declaration of Natural Rights of man and citizen, living in society, to form the first chapter of the Constitution.” On August 26, 1789, the Constitution

(1) The International Review of Secret Societies has begun and continues this study in all its issues of the year 1920.

(2) These “Protocols” are published in the October issue of the Review International Office of the Secretaries, 96, boulevard Malesherbes, and in a separate copy deposited at the Emile-Paul Bookstore, 100, Faubourg Saint-Honoré, and at the Bookstore Action Française, 14, rue de Rome.

(3) Regarding the Acts of the Revolutionary Government of Augustin CoChin and Charles Charpentier, Mr. DE Lanzac DE LABORIE (Debates, October 19, 1920) does not want to see any Masonic action either in the Revolution of 1789, or in the error of 1914. The authors on whom he relies have long been refuted. time, and current events may perhaps reveal that it is delayed by one century. The author writes, however: "The intervention of anti-religious sectarianism, undoubtedly grouped into more or less secret societies, this appears indisputable in certain parts of revolutionary legislation or policy, such as the Civil Constitution of the Clergy, the Fructidoran persecution, the opposition parliamentary stance on the Concordat.” These concessions are sufficient for us. As for Regarding the world war, the Kaiser said to the Abbess of Maredsous in 1915: "This "It wasn't me, it was the Jews and the Freemasons who wanted the war."

In 1915, however, the Kaiser counted only on victory. He repeated the
The same admission has been made since 1918; German Masonic journals do not deny it.
but they claim that the Kaiser, in his exile, is influenced by mystical, theosophical, and spiritualist readings. They cannot, however, reporting on Ronald Ludendorf the same explanation, while in his
In his writings, he renews the Kaiser's accusation. (See International Review of Secret Societies, supplement to the July 1920 issue). ' | deadly, of which more than 300 members were Mac.', has definitely adopted, almost word for word, as it had been extensively studied In the Lodge, the text of the immortal Declaration of the Rights of Man. At this decisive hour for civilization, France-French Freemasonry has been the universal conscience and, in the Despite various improvisations and initiatives by the Constituent Assembly, it has not ceased to bring the thoughtful result of the slow elaborations of its Workshops.

The speaker then highlights Masonic work in the 19th century, and he has been relying on the absolute legislative power of the Lodges since the German invasion of 1870. This passage is all the more significant.
It is destructive that it shows the sectarian laws already passed in 1904 and those that will be subsequently so simply because they are desired by Freemasonry. The Law of Separation and of the "Cul-"tuelles" falls into this category.

We have not concealed, said Father Bonnet, our hopes and our work, and we have no reason to remain silent about it. The major reforms carried out over the last twenty years — either on teaching secular, free and compulsory education, reduction of the duration of military service, law on the reduction of working hours in factories, social assistance and welfare laws, etc.
— were studied in our Temples before being debated at the Chamber and Senate. Likewise, it has been a long time since our outfits are used to discuss tomorrow's reforms: separa-the relationship between Churches and the State, income tax, pro-labor protection, pension fund for workers, etc.
Each of us will have the profound satisfaction of having contributed to their achievement, having conducted themselves as good Freemasons, in sincerity Republican, like a true patriot (Loud applause).

These good Freemasons imposed the laws demanded by their Lodges; these sincere republicans created two Frances, according to the expression of Father Jules Ferry; these true patriots have sowed war in 1914 to bring their religious war to a successful conclusion to the crushing of Catholic France by revolutionary France tionary. Father Bonnet makes no secret of it, and his hatred against The Church sheds a unique light on our thesis regarding the law of the "Cul-tuelles", systematically opposed to the Concordat.

My brothers, he adds, events demand of us a redou-
A mixture of caution and energy, vigilance and activity. The Clericalism had invaded France; the Church was stifling the breath of tion, paralyzing the nation's movements. Democracy has slowly tore herself away from this fatal embrace and painfully
She fought her way through the struggle: at every moment, she was threatened. to lose the ground gained and fall back under guardianship. We have just to make more progress in two years than in ten. We are approaching decisive solutions. We still have a tough push ahead.

to give, one last step to take.

And, after noting the suppression of the Congregations,
The speaker arrives at the Separation Lot:

We have passed dawn. The day breaks where another old
The law will soon come into force. The memorable decree of the Convention-tion: "The Republic does not pay the salaries of any religion", will appear in January Next on the agenda of the Chamber: The break with Rome is done. The separation of Church and State will complete it.
One hundred and ten years apart, there is no other way to establish the religious pacification and freedom of conscience, nor salvation to preserve national sovereignty (Applause).

The Concordat was nothing but a huge deception for France.

Brother Bonnet is counting on Freemasonry to defeat the last efforts of the dying Church; then he concludes:

Our foresight and composure will thwart these treacherous schemers.
calculations. We are in a deadlock which, whether we like it or not
If necessary, denouncing the Concordat is the only possible solution.
The contract is void and without reciprocity; the State that observes it does not maintains that by granting the Church full power to rape. This charade has gone on for too long. The separation will end the perpetual conflict between the two contracting powers (Applaud-prolonged periods).

In his relentless struggle against the Papacy, executioner of humanity
nity, and on the eve of liberating the national territory, France-Freemasonry prides itself on having embodied French thought, for having continued the tradition of the Reformation and the Revolution. The
The fiction of the temporal sovereignty of the Roman Pontiff has disappeared.
His spiritual sovereignty will suffer the same fate. A short
The period of separation of Church and State will complete the defeat of dogma, the liberation of minds and the ruin of the Church defeated by indifference. The State, definitively removed from pontifical directives, will regain independence and security (Ap-(pleas).

Finally, the speaker lists the centuries-old crimes of the Papacy,
He welcomes the International Congress of Freethought which is about to take place.

to hold on to Rome, and he concludes by saying:

Representatives from other countries will heed France's call secular, their work will honor civilization. By hastening the dis-the disappearance of religious prejudices and the advent of tolerance universal, they will restore civic peace and the security of rap-International ports. The reconciliation of humanity will eliminate war. The destruction of the Church will usher in a new era of justice and goodness. Through deliverance from dogma and the supernatural will begin the reign of science and reason (1) (Triple salvo (Applause. — The Assembly, standing, acclaims the speaker).

Thus, in the solemn sessions of his Convent of 1904, the Freemasonry has clearly demonstrated that the Law of Separation had no other goal than the breaking of the Concordat, in order to achieve to the destruction of the Catholic Church (2), and that this goal is rat-was linked to the French Revolution of 1789. In other words, the Law of Separation and its "Cultuals" are nothing other than a resumption of the "Civil Constitution of the Clergy", which is itself only a political and atheist emergence of Protestantism.

Protestantism and the Civil Constitution of the Clergy

This is even the core of F. Bonnet's thinking when he speaks of "continuing the tradition of the Reformation and the Revolution"
"lution." Freemasonry is, in fact, the daughter of Protestantism.
It was Pastor Anderson who formulated his Constitutions. His
The objective was the violent separation from Rome and proclaimed it-tion, in France, of the Germanic Los von Rom and of No Popery Anglo-Saxon. One of the historians of the Civil Constitution of the
The most complete clergy wrote:

By the Civil Constitution, the Assembly subjected France to a a religious system which is none other than Protestantism of Henry VIII... she wanted a slave Church and, with a little more Out of hypocrisy, she proclaimed the doctrine of Henry VIII... When one examines the civil constitution both in its spirit and in its
In detail, we are forced to recognize that it rests on a theory essentially Protestant. Like the Anglican Church, it retained an outward appearance of Catholicism, but the doctrines were protestating women. The Ecclesiastical Committee, to legitimize its system of elections, had proclaimed loudly "that the nation cannot be stripped of the right to choose who should speak to her on her behalf God ".

Let us compare these words with those of Calvin: “We hold from the word of God that the vocation of a minister is legitimate when "It is established by the consent and approval of the people."

Isn't the analogy striking? What does the Council of Trent?

(1) We note, in the Parisian correspondence of the Standard and the New York Times (February 23, 1913), the following sentence:

"The goal of the Grand Orient is to destroy all religion, starting with to crush Roman Catholicism in France, to overthrow all hostile thrones and to establish a universal republic, but a republic where its own "High priests would be dictators." Ci. Kevue Iniern. des Soc. Secr., IV, 2025, and V, 2838.

(2) Report of the 190th Convention; closing speech, pp. 447-463. The
The President added: I am certain that I am speaking for the Assembly when I say that you decide on the printing and reprinting of this speech.” (Lively app-(pleas).

Anathema to him who would say that the bishops chosen by authority
The bishops of the Sovereign Pontiff are not legitimate and true bishops...

The so-called ecclesiastical committee, despite all its protests tions, had loudly proclaimed the Calvinist system (1).

The Civil Constitution of the Clergy resumed by the "Cultural"

However, the Separation Law adopted the Constitution.
civil of the clergy. This new adaptation took place precisely in adding in turn "a little more hypocrisy", by Religious associations are the cornerstone of the entire law.
can say, using a word that has been common since the war, that
The "Cultuals" are the Civil Constitution in disguise.

Before Father Bonnet, there was Father Amiable, a writer at the Ministry of Justice.
wrote, in 1882:

`

By advocating for the Separation of Church and State, today
Today, as in 1789, we are reviving a tradition of our Great Revolution.

Then, condemning any union of Church and State, under pre-

---

(1) Ludovic Scrout, History of the Civil Constitution of the Clergy, I, 181, 196
253. The author refutes the claim of the members of the Constituent Assembly who n
They failed to see that the Civil Constitution was leading from schism to heresy. We Let us reproduce this passage, the application of which to "Cultuals" is rigorous-reux:

“But, it will be said, while undermining the jurisdiction of the Church, he (the
The Ecclesiastical Committee of the Constituent Assembly recognized the priestly character.
That's true; but Henry VIII started as the Assembly; it wasn't him who abolished confession in AARC TT. He broke with unity, and by force even shocks, despite his will, despite his violence, the Calvi doctrines-Nists invaded the Anglican Church. He abhorred the marriage of priests, and Yet he quickly infiltrated his church, which, instead of priests schismatics soon had nothing but preachers left. Likewise, also, well Members of the Constituent Assembly cried slander when the Catholics announced

The divorce and marriage of priests were to follow the Cons-civil tuition; they came, indeed, and very quickly, and if the Church

The official government had only lasted ten years; the politicians, who were watching
The priests, acting as mere moral officers, would have ended up putting in place On the one hand, a hypocrisy that has become useless, by treating the ordination as childishness, by to give free rein to their hatred for confession, and the Church constitu-tutional philosophy would have undergone a new and radical transformation at the hands of philosophers.
transformation.

"According to the Civil Constitution, the Church of France did not even constitute..." a separate church, it was simply a collection of departmental churches
"Without connection or cohesion." P. 254.

Regarding the marriage of priests, we read on page 196: “The Assembly had not, in the civil institution, decreed the marriage of priests: an-was it predicted that it would inevitably follow her reforms? She was dealing with of slanderers and disturbers of the public peace those who held of teis discours, and, however, the secular courts, judges of the decisions of constitutional bishops took it upon themselves to impose married priests upon them, and Later, a law came along that vindicated them and pronounced the most severe penalties.
severe measures against bishops who would seek to deprive priests of their positions married. If the Constitutional Church had had a longer existence, well
"Other, even more serious innovations were allegedly introduced there by force."
The Fae Ph S had 50 bishops and

"married priests." (The aration of the state and the Churches, p. 20; Marpon and Flammarion, 1882). pd | ” P Back

text that it only results in "a series of encroachments rereciprocals of the temporal on the spiritual and of the spiritual on the temporal”, the I°.:. Amiable adds:

Both of these constitute violations of fundamental principles.
morals proclaimed by our Great Revolution and which form
the very essence of modern society (1).

Since F. Bonnet, the rapporteur of the Law in the Senate, the F.:, Maxime Lecomte, senator from the North, said, in front of 2,500 guests at the banquet in Saint-Etienne, on October 1, 1905, said Banquet of the Separation, presided over by Brother Henri Brisson, and offered 4th Mr. Aristide Briand, formerly Knight of Labour to Ecouffes Street construction site (2):

It is not in the Senate that the Separation Law will encounter obstacles capable of breaking the agreement of so many obedient wills to the impulses of a necessary evolution. This evolution has had for the initiators, our great ancestors of the French Revolution. It developed amidst the vicissitudes of action and reaction to achieve complete secularization, opposing the theses of Syllabus on the Rights of Man and of the Citizen (3).

Derived from the Civil Constitution of the Clergy, voted on July 12 like in 1790, the Law of Separation of December 9, 1905 betrays its origin in its preparation, content and purpose.

Preparation for the "Cultural Services"

In the 18th century, the Separation was initiated by alienation Church property temporarily replaced by the budget cults that the Convention was supposed to abolish; in the 20th century, the clergy's property was plundered, the budget for religious affairs was eliminated, the Even the requiem masses themselves have amplified this shameless theft. In the 18th century, religious vows were abolished; in the 20th, the religious, and the Government prided itself on collecting for the the people, who haven't received a penny from it, the phantom billion

(1) Louis AmTaBce, The Separation of Church and State, p. 14 and 48; Paris, Marpon and Flammarion, 1882.

(2) Jean Brpgcain, Freemasonry and Revolution; International Review of Societies Secr., V, 2303.

(3) Maxime LecomTe, The Separation of Churches and State, p. 78; Paris, Félix Juven, n.d. — F.*. Dipe, a former Protestant pastor, said in the closing speech of the Convent of 1886: "As you can see, the Separation of The Church and the State must be reclaimed in the name of the traditions of the Revolution French.” (Report of the 1886 Convention, p. 534). The theme of this discourse The course was to establish that the Law of Separation and of "Religious" is "a essentially a Masonic thesis"; p. 519.

of the Congregations (1). In the 18th century, teaching was paorganized; in the 20th century, it was secularized. In both these periods, the preparationtion was the same.

Content of the "Cultural"

The content of the 1790 law and that of 1905 are not very different. In terms, they are identical in substance. On both sides, The Church has been democratized; ultimately, it is the faithful who govern. After having demonstrated, in his Encyclical Veheto lie, from February 14, 1906, the perfidious and long preparation has the Law of Separation through Divorce, the secularization of schools and hospitals, military service for clergymen, the The dispersion and stripping of the Congregations, Pius X complained that, not only the Separation of Church and State "is the very clear negation of the supernatural order," but incore that religious associations are "contrary to the Consthe institution according to which the Church was founded by Jesus-"Christ." This Constitution is theocratic and monarchical. The mystical body of Christ, the Church is governed by the Bishops. under the authority of the Pope, to whom alone it was said: "You are Peter, and on this rock I will build my church” (2); and again: “Feed my lambs, feed my sheep” (3). It is the foundation and the Supreme Pastor.

However, wrote Pius X, "contrary to these principles, the Law of Separationration assigns the administration and oversight of public worship not not to the hierarchical body divinely instituted by the Savior, but to an association of secular people. To this association It imposes a form, a legal personality, and, for all Regarding religious worship, she considers it to have only civil rights and responsibilities in his eyes. Therefore, it is The use of the temples and buildings will fall to this association. sacred, she will possess all ecclesiastical property, movable and immovable property; she will have the right to dispose of it, although of a only temporarily, bishoprics, presbyteries and

(1) At the Lodge of Besançon, on November 3, 1881, Brother Marécnaz proves The Separation would only be capable of destroying the secular clergy if... the plan to seize the billion from the Congregations, and then dissolve them.

"As you can see," he said, "this question is not yet ripe. It must be preceded..." the destruction of religious associations, the annihilation of Jeur colossal fortune. Before the Separation of Church and State, destroyed-First, let's consider the Jesuits, who have everything to gain in the current state of affairs:
raise the moral and intellectual level through widespread education of the masses, and then the solution demanded can come safely.
by Justice." (Le Monde maçonnique, 1881, pp. 364-366).
(2) . XVI, 18.
(3) Joan, XXI, 15-17.

seminars; it is she who will finally manage the assets, regulate the collections and will receive alms and bequests intended for worship religious. As for the hierarchical body of pastors, we do on He remained completely silent. And if the law stipulates that Associations religious organizations must be constituted in accordance with the rules of organization general organization of the cult which they propose to ensure
On the other hand, in this exercise, care is taken to declare that, in all disputes that may arise concerning their property, alone
The Council of State will have jurisdiction. These religious associations themselves-the same will therefore be in relation to the civil authority in a dependent dance such that the ecclesiastical authority, and this is manifest, will not have They no longer have any power over them. How many of these provisions?
will be hurtful to the Church and contrary to its rights and its divine constitution, there is no one who does not perceive it at first at a glance. Not to mention that the law isn't designed to address this point.
in clear and precise terms, that she expresses herself in a very vague and largely open to arbitrariness, and which one can, from Therefore, there is a fear of seeing, from its very interpretation, more major evils (1).

That's the whole point. Let's not claim the benefit of the doubt.
oversight by the Council of State in cases so rare that they do not savewould establish a guaranteed legal precedent; the Council of State has no right to this competence: he is a secularist, and the Church is divine. Let no one say that the "Cultural" services will be composed of... services of priests appointed by the Bishop and under his jurisdiction.
In any religious or trade union association, the bishop was-
He, the president, will be dependent on his co-partners and subject to their votes. The sovereign leadership cannot appear in her hands only in a fictional way, for she will rest in reality-throughout the entire Association. It is always the demonstration-the cratization of the Church, and, consequently, the overthrow of its consecration tita-
the prevention of any conflict in any diocese, nor the need for au-an appeal to the Council of State (2). The authority resides at the bottom and not up there either.

(1) Acts of SS Pius X, 11, 122-149; Paris, Edition of the "Questions ac-
"tuelles", 5 rue Bayard.

(2) The Archbishop of Cambrai, Mgr CnorLer, writes on this subject in a note conclusive:

"As for the Council of State, which is held in such high esteem, we understand by it the Government Commissioner, even in his most moderate conclusions, where he considers as the only priest the one appointed by the bishop, to treat "the minister of the Catholic faith" of "representative of the faithful" and to consider that, in the religious association, "the group of lay people employs the ministry of the priest." So, the whole concession consists of this: that the bishop gives to Father Vestampille, he empowers him. But this does not confer authority upon the Bishop necessary in the religious association. This does not mean that the priest does not remain
"The representative of the faithful." This does not change the responsibilities in any way.
Protestant of the Cultuclles. This does not remove the inadmissibility of the courts competence". (Catholic Documentation, October 23, 1920, p. 302).

In the same note, Bishop Chollet recalls that Pius X brought the Cultucles closer together

x

Purpose of the "Cultural"

Is it necessary to repeat now that the goal of the Associareligious practices are consistent with those of the Civil Constitution of the clergy: both tend towards the ruin of the Catholic Church that. The sincere speakers in the House and the Senate have not wanted to keep it a secret.

In the session of April 10, 1905, Mr. Maurice Allard said:

I stated that I was not hiding my intentions, which should These are the values of all true republicans. It must be said loud and clear:
"There is an incompatibility between the Church, Catholicism, or even the Christianity, and the entire republican regime. Christianity is "An outrage against reason, an outrage against nature."

Therefore, I state very clearly that I want to pursue the idea of the Convention and to complete the work of dechristianizing the France, which continued in perfect calm and the happiest of circumstances... the world's unrest until the day Napoleon concluded his Concordat.

In the same session, Mr. Vaillant emphasized this anti-Catholic, adding:

I'll go further: we shouldn't believe that the separation of the Church and the State, once pronounced, even if it was in the terms of the counter-proposal that I recommend to you – that of Mr. Allard – would have done everything possible in this regard.

No, that would only be a beginning, because secularization is not not finished, because as long as the Church has not completely disappeared, As long as the secularization of society has not been achieved, our
The task will not be completed.

And, I know, this result can only be achieved through revolution.
which will bring about, with the emancipation of the proletariat, the transformation social structure of society. But the separation of Church and State allows us to actively move in this direction.

We must consider, in fact, that our entire civilization, that all
Our legislation is imbued with the religious spirit, with a religion which, by enshrining the institutions of class domination, gave him in the laws, the code, a duration, a survival that keeps them there even when the social causes that produced them have disappeared.
And these laws remain as an instrument of economic domination.
mic, political and religious. I] we must remove from our legisllation these laws of individual and collective servitude.

By separating Church and State, we remove from the institution tution of the State, in the power of the dominant class, in the constitution current family guardianship, property rights, and their guarantees

French and German religious institutions, and that His Holiness affirms that "different-rents were the situations.” Although this rapprochement falls within the part-In the historical context of the issue, we believe it exceeds the proportions of this article, and that the papal decision is proof above all discussion.

religious. As a result, they become more vulnerable, and we we can better attack and defeat them and get them through the legislation, to put into practice the transformations of institutions and the laws that will result from them.

And, two days later, on April 12, when Mr. Louis Olli-Vier criticized this law for professing atheism.
Mr. Meslier launched the following interruption:

Absolutely. As far as I'm concerned, I'm completely
I agree with you on this point. My vote will be a statement. of atheism and the manifestation of the desire to see disappear from our laws and customs, the idea of God, which has never brought,
So far, only misfortune and bloodshed have plagued our country.

In the Senate, we can note in the same vein the dis-
Mr. Clemenceau's lecture at the session of November 23, 1905, and the Mr. Combes' statement, before the final vote of December 9th both leave even less doubt about of the purpose pursued by the law that they both speak of remto address its defects, that is, to aggravate it in order to delay it-undermine religion as quickly as possible and destroy the parishes as the congregations were destroyed.

Moreover, the Chamber and the Senate were no longer, as the
Mr. Lerolle said at the meeting of April 12, 1905, that an office of en-recording of Lodge decisions. Also, we read in the “Counter-Encyclical”, published by the Acacia (February 1906, page 82):

You know, TT°. C. Ce. FF', that the French branch of the Masonic Order, zealously fulfilling the duty of Counter-
The Church contributed to the best of its ability to the elaboration of ration and the vote on this law.

This law applies to all churches: Protestant and to the Jewish woman, as well as to the Catholic woman, but that is not betrayal
It's a secret that the main target was the Catholic Church.

Ultimately, and practically speaking, the Law of Separation tends towards the result demanded as early as 1883 by F.°. Blatin, former President of the Council of the Order of the Grand Orient of France:

Our growing minority may soon become the majority-nation's identity. On that day, Messrs.:. FF.:., our work will have trulytablement fulfilled its destinies. In these lofty buildings of everywhere, for centuries, religious superstitions and to the priestly supremacies, we may perhaps be called, to our turn, to preach our doctrines and, instead of psalms
The clerical sounds that still resonate there are the mallets, the batteries and the cheers of our Order that will resound

the wide vaults and the vast pillars (1). |

What we wanted was to relive those most somber days.
the spirit of the Revolution, with the goddess Reason and the Saturnalia of Notre-Dame.

Are these claims exaggerated? The proponents of es-loyal people wanted us to believe it by relying on certain-certain terms of the law and the explanations of its author, Mr. Briand, in 1905. Today, in 1920, the same ambiguity reappears. Maurice Allard and Vaillant are replaced by the brothers Debierre and Herriot, to whom one should not lend beware, while those who hold power are acquired, at least momentarily. What an illusion! In
In any case, we are happy to reproduce the report here.
of a legal scholar who worked for a time with the authors of the Law of Separation. We had it presented to Pius X in April 1906, to pray to His Holiness to speak before the elections, which did not happen, because his Encyclical only appeared on August 10. It was to this message that F.-. Mornet, avo-general cat, in the lawsuit brought against us by Mr. Clemenceau, in 1907, on the occasion of the sacking of the Nunciature and the papers of Bishop Montagnini (2). Here is this report, the interest of which grew from its absolute application to the current situation and from the author's association with the three editors of the Separation Law, indifferent to the legal aspects, but applying taken to the ruinous extremes they expected in order to de-destroy the Church of France: |

(1) Report of the Convent of 1883, p. 645.

(2) This biased trial was based on this passage from a document entitled:
Funeral Mass: |

"The struggle has begun; let us support it valiantly and in a Christian spirit; and, Let me tell you again, as I did on Inventory Day in January: you must that our grief, however sad and profound it may be, be an armed grief.

"Keeping the faith is no longer enough, it must be defended."

– We find in the indictment of Brother Mornet, who, moreover, has He showed a true patriot in the World War II treason trials.
dispatch from Bishop Montagnini to Cardinal Merry del Val, concerning the "Cultual-
"the"; it is from October 13, 1906; it could be from October 13, 1920:

a What Mr. Denys Cochin says, namely that the arrest of the principle of the Council
A state body establishing case law will be better than a legal text, is incentivized.
Well... Mr. Denys Hin, in wanting to have these questions decided by the Council of State, upholds Article 8 of the law, which establishes the same Judge in this case Council of State, which, precisely, infringes upon the rights of the Church. This good The MP, despite everything, still leans towards a compromise, one way or another.
other than the law, outside of which, he says, one can no longer walk. That is what the same spirit of insubordination that is fostered by the Revue des Deux-Monace.

Report on "Cultural Centers"
Presented to A SS Pre X in 1906

France is going through a very critical period due to the Separation of Church and State. The consequences of this reforms could have extremely serious consequences for the future of the Church Catholic than for the general peace of the country.

Indeed, we must not deceive ourselves about the Separation Law.
is not a liberal law. If it severs the link that unites the State to a p spiritual power, which is the essence of Separation,
It does not guarantee religious freedom; because that is not respectful religious freedom rather than imposing a constitution on Catholics tuition to which they will be forced to submit, if they do not want not to see their drunken stew stripped of the goods that are consecrated to them.
Better than that, it is not respecting religious freedom that to impose on Catholics a constitution independent of the the very constitution of the Church, independent even of individuals who alone legitimately represent it, namely the Pope and the Bishops; this is a schismatic act, a work of disorganization.

religious station.

Respect for freedom in this matter would require that to allow each religion to organize itself as it sees fit, under the condition of common law which consisted of doing nothing contrary to public order, laws, and good morals, and under the condition specifically applicable to all institutions which, pursuing a selfless, religious, moral, charitable, literary purpose, artistic or scientific, in short, a goal of general utility, constitute legal entities, under the condition, I say, to observe some safeguard rules that the State, representing of the public, has the right to establish matters relating to administration and the preservation of the assets that these institutions can collect.

The current law does nothing of the sort; it seeks to substitute the mass of the faithful to the representatives of the Church, she continues the expropriation of the Catholic institution for the benefit of its clientele, who does not request this favor and who, moreover, does not have in this occurrence, no other right than that of giving or withdrawing his adherence to the Church, and who has no qualification to take any part in his government.

The Separation Law therefore does not meet the conditions that should fulfill a law concerned with religious freedom; but It's even worse, and few people suspect how much its provisions, in toned-down and softened terms, cover Perfidies. For those of us who have approached the perpetrators responsible.
of the law with the intention of attempting to make it a work of law, we know that the thought of law, the concern for justice equals For everyone, that was the least of their concerns. What they have what they wanted to do and what they managed to do was obtain Chambers, a political instrument that placed 4 on the discretion of men in power, the public practice of Catholic worship, as they did some time ago for the Congregations using the law on the Associations and on Congregations (1).

To judge the Separation Law precisely from this perspective,
It suffices to note that it establishes no sanction for breaches of guarantees.
which it seems to grant in some parts to Catholics.
This is how the provision of Article 4, the most important of all, under which "religious associations must conform to the general rules of organization of the worship of which they propose to ensure the exercise," this provision which appears Safeguarding the authority of the Church is absolutely illusory, because She does not say how we will ensure that the Associations rem-comply with this condition, and it does not establish any legal recourse for the representatives of the Church, the sole sovereigns in such matters, against the decisions of the Council of State, which has the right to decide difficulties that are beyond his competence.

Catholics have no other guarantees of their freedom religious than the verbal promises made from the tribune of the Room. Every time we wanted to formally register in The law must make these promises a reality and create rights.
The Government and the rapporteurs of the Committees were there opposed and they had the skill to prevent the petitioners from in-sister; these, more often than not, were content to do so voluntarily and quite naively to acknowledge the declarations and pro-

---

(1) Mr. Gustave THÉRyY gives the same note in summarizing the discussion parliamentary article IV of the Law of Separation. (The Separation of Churches) and of the State, pp. 23-25; Lille, Imprimerie de la Croix du Nord, 1906):

"Article IV was one of the most hotly debated in the Chamber; one
It is known that the law passed in the Senate without any real debate. It is very interesting to Follow the full debates in Officiel.

"The far left found the article too favorable to the Church. The rapporteur," Mr. Briand, aided by Mr. Jaurès, a member of parliament, asked his left-wing friends to accept him, and, to persuade them, he showed them the danger of seeing the Church reject the associations religious practices which are the pivot of the entire law: "You want," he told them,
To create a law that is aimed at the Church like a revolver? Ah! You will be You'll be well on your way once you've done that! And if she doesn't accept your law?
If she revolts against her? (Official, Senate 1905, R: 1.678, 3rd column).
But, at the same time, he explained to them what the necessary effect would be in the future.
saire of these associations introduced within the Church: “I was, with the majority-the rapporteur said, concerned about not to leave up for the community of the faithful by the discipline of Rome.” (Id., p. 1.611, col.). Which, in proper French, means: "I have been preoccupied, con-
The rapporteur continues, to leave to this community the broad faculty, the broad right to evolve within and with its organization.” (Ibid.). That is to say:
we are careful to open the door to schism and heresy.

"We will not provoke them; we will even vigorously defend ourselves against it. Not to any extent."
"At that moment," said the rapporteur, "it did not occur to me to incite divisions."
to provoke competition and disorder in the parishes.” (Ibid.). The effect
It will happen on its own, we're counting on it.

“The freedom of the minor clergy,” said Mr. Jaurès, “even the freedom of Catholic laypeople– religious groups, believers who will join religious associations and form groups

Around them, this freedom can develop, which no one has the right to hinder, whose developments no one has the right to control or the means to predict.
This freedom is primarily within the very limits of the Catholic organization.
that it will occur, not through surprises, through more or less substitutions less fraudulent fake religious associations to authentic associations ticks, but by the inevitable pressure that, under the regime of Separation, the
The vast community of believers will necessarily exert influence on the smaller church. of the clergy, who can only live in communication with these faithful.” (Ibid.,
p. 1.639, 2 col.).

"...How do you want it to happen in the municipalities, in the cantons, she (the Church) throws down a perpetual challenge, through its unwavering intransigence at all times, that it perpetually violates the very feelings of this Catholic mass masses. We know from experience with the Congregations what fund one

What can be done based on words that are carried away by the wind, and what scruples,
In this regard, they would be capable of stopping those who, today as yesterday, hold the power, if ever they should Keep it for tomorrow.

Therefore, it is not a small cause for astonishment for those who
They know the heart of the matter, to see prominent Catholics (Appeal to the Bishops: Figaro, March 26, 1906) to solicit Bishops, a fair trial of the Separation Law. He cannot there to have a fair trial of a law made unfairly, of a law which, wanting to control the Catholic faith in its material interests and its outward manifestations, subtracting both to the authority of the legitimate representatives of the Church and hunting in only those who have the power to speak on his behalf.

In this way, the law tends, in accordance with the secret desire of its authors, to sow division in the Church, to provoke Sthism; she seeks to establish secular societies which, in a more future or less closely related, already free from any real legal link, with The representatives of the Church will gradually free themselves from all even moral dependence on them and will claim to choose their pastors, as one chooses an engineer or a doctor, without worrying about whether they will be in communion of doctrine with the Sovereign Pontiff, to one day reach a point where we no longer choose any of them at all and divert from their religious purpose the goods which They will have been entrusted with this assignment.

On the eve of the renewal of the powers of the Chamber of Members of Parliament, public opinion is particularly moved by the results that elections are likely to provide, depending on whether a that, that she can brave today, because she doesn't need to, that she doesn't "She will no longer be able to brave tomorrow, because she will only be able to live by herself." Ibid., 3rd column).

"It is secularism introduced into the Church, it is its hierarchy forced to..."
to cater to the whims of the faithful instead of giving them the direction which is to 'The essence of all government is the destruction of the authority established by Our—Lord Jesus Christ.

"The speaker immediately outlines the prospects for schism that he
He envisions in Pavenir: "That tomorrow," he says, "with these cultural associations" they walk, convinced priests, logically or by illusion, that they pcu—the wind to reconcile Christianity and the Revolution, the Gospel and the Rights of Man, ...let a few priests, democratic at heart or free in spirit, rise up, are supported by their cultural associations, it will be very difficult for the episco—Patee himself, in his region, will only be able to live supported by the consent of public of Catholics, it will be difficult for him to arbitrarily strike and f—
"To droyer ces hommes." (Ibid., 3rd col.).

"Supporting these conclusions, the rapporteur added: 'Freedom! Ah! My—Gentlemen, do not fear her; it is rather for the Church that she can become a dancer.
ger; it will force Pobligera to change profoundly, to gradually become more flexible to the demands of agencies and the very evolution of the militias on which his life will now depend,” Ud., R; 1.645, 3rd col.).

"That is the goal of cultural associations: to substitute power within the Church" the authority of the authorities, the bishops, and the parish priests, to allow priests in revolt to change the Church by replacing the Rights of God

x Human Rights and thus destroy Catholicism for the benefit of the Revolution ution.

"Article IV contains what forms the basis and foundation of all Ja Joi" nn the other articles are merely the development and the conse—

"Article IV was passed by 509 votes to 44."

A majority hostile to Catholicism will return to power, or, that is, to
On the contrary, a truly liberal majority will take the lead business, determined to repair the damage done during the last legislation.

Whether admitted or concealed, the interest in the upcoming legislative elections will focus entirely on this question of Separation. If the Catholics are imprudent enough to forget it, but sectarians, they will not lose sight of it; they will not bring it into the countryside who is preparing has no other concern than that of getting ready able to continue their anti-religious work, by using against the Catholic Church of the Law of Separation, an instrument of destruction that they had the skill to make accepted by the Rooms. It would be a very big mistake to keep illusions about this situation and being taken in by the concessions apparent concessions by the Government. These concessions have only one but, to lull the vigilance of Catholics. They do not, in fact, offer no guarantee for the future, since they do not result expressly from the text of the law; they are at the mercy of men to those in power who, for the moment, have an interest in doing so. Once Once the elections are over, no scruples will hold them back – they will enough has been shown regarding the Congregations – to resume this that they will have, for appearances' sake and due to the circumstances, granted, and to discard all promises.

If, therefore, the Catholic Church aspires to retain in France normal conditions of existence, there is a work of defense immediate action to be taken to ensure the reform of the law Separation in a truly liberal spirit.

Because this is not about repealing the Separation Law.
to continue; it would not encounter any majority in the country, nor in the new Chamber. We will not go back on the Separation: we must resign ourselves to it. What Catholics can and must claim, that is to obtain a revision of the law, capable to give the Church the freedom to which it is entitled like all religious practices and all other institutions of a different nature, but sharing this common characteristic of addressing the public and to form legal entities. This requires that the
The future chamber receives the specific mandate to create for these institutions we were establishing a general legal framework, under the rules of which the Church Catholics will find a way to exist and live as freely as the other institutions.

But on the eve of the elections, the position of the Catholics appears most lamentable due to the differences of opinion which manifested in the writings and speeches of their religious leaders or secular. Opinions of bishops, opinions of politicians, The contradiction erupts everywhere where only one should be asserted.
thought, that of the Supreme Head of the Church, whose reserve in a Such a moment is like a weight for everyone. We're even looking for to take advantage of this by giving the impression that the troops are abandoned to their own devices and delivered to the enemy without unity of direction and lack of cohesion.

The mass of the faithful, in these circumstances, resembles a flock that the shepherd, trusting in the beautiful words of wolves disguised as shepherds, would leave them exposed to their schemes, by reserving the right to determine later whether the wolves have kept their promises, and then act accordingly.

Whatever the lofty reasons for this tactic, stick to it.
could lead, we believe, to a failure that may be irreparable.
When, in fact, the Catholic army is routed, it will be quite It's too late to remedy the problem. It's now that it's needed.
to give the watchword, so that all efforts converge towards a common goal, and that they draw superior energy from the certainty of acting in accordance with the views of the one who alone has the authority to guide them.

This report is as undeniably true in 1920 as it was in 1905. He proves that Mr. Briand did not want to make the Law of Separation the ratio that a political instrument, that various amendments and many ministerial promises have been carefully measured according to the time the perennialism of the deputies and the mentality of the Chamber of 1905, not to further hinder the minister who will apply the law in its rigor that F. Combes was not, by the reservations by Mr. Waldeck-Rousseau. It is indeed a law of strangulation.
that we wanted to do, and do hypocritically, since Mr. Buisson admits that there were only three of them on the Commission who knew the final word on a work that has only a false legal basis appearance (1).

Conclusion

The rigorous conclusion of this historical study is therefore singularly confirmed by such precise statements, and we cannot state too strongly that the goal
The admitted aim of the Separation Law was to radically destroy the religion in France. But, let's reiterate, nothing has changed, neither in the law, nor in the extreme secularism of those who are its custodians silences. Every civil or religious constitution of the clergy is and will inevitably be in opposition to the divine constitution of the Church; and when, in eleven days, they carry him to the Pantheon, the heart of Gambetta, this Jewish-Mason, who did not shake hands with Bismarck, driven by a sectarian and atavistic hatred of Christ, and

(1) We read in the Press Chronicle, No. 592, of the 1st fe-
February 1912:

"We know that, in his previous ministries, the two main collaborators
Mr. Aristide Briand's supporters included the Israelite P. Grunebaum, known as Grunebaym-

Ballin, and the son of Pastor Louis Méjan. Du pence ee jurisconsulte, born in:
The author of the Law of Separation, -.

Frankfurt, March 27, 1871, which was the true Seine Prefecture Council.

d

`

Mr. Briand, by ministerial will, at that time appointed a president of the a

of his work, his battle cry will resound as before in the Romans banquet: "Clericalism, that's the enemy!" Isn't this the post-war religious program formulated in these terms by a prominent Freemason: |

We want religion to be a private matter, like the German social democrats are speaking out. Any influence from clericalism in public life, schools, and, in general, in the vital organs of society, must be banned and eliminated.
Enemies of liberty must disappear from all Latin countries.
This is the program that will apply from Paris to Rome.
The state sacrificed millions for freedom in order to drive out the
The priests of the country; now they've been sent to the front. This will still too good, their influence is not entirely broken;
our program therefore envisions an absolute "clean sweep";
The Lodges will have to ensure its rigorous execution. Our project finally brings true freedom, since all religious privilege must disappear; in other words, there must no longer be a "Christian France". From France, liberty will prevail.
Germany. We aim for the true domination of peoples; by These words should naturally be understood as referring to Masonic domination.
nique. Part of our program has already been printed in Alpina, which invites Freemasons to submit to the work and encourages the action of the FF.:., "because the cassocks are stirring" (1).

One last word:

From both a legal and historical perspective, the Law of Separation is doomed. What remains is the utilitarian point of view which considers acceptance or refusal a matter of life or death of the "Cultural" ones. Let its supporters remember the motto of Judeo-Masonry: "Strength and hypocrisy," inscribed in the “Protocols” of the Elders of Zion (2), and let them take heed that a meager reconstruction does not deliver the last Church resources. Nevertheless, by returning here to the
From a historical point of view, we observe that the Church does not die Never any poverty. If the Jews siphon off all the wealth.
of the world to achieve their plan for universal domination
That makes sense, they only see the earth whose idol is the calf.

(1) This program was presented to the Holy Father in 1916 in a translation German, of which we have a copy from the person who took it to Rome. Discretion prevents us from naming the interlocutor who developed the "post- program" war.” We can say, however, that he played an influential part, along with Jaunext, at the so-called Reconciliation Conference in Bern.

(2) Bishop Journ, The “Protocols” of the Elders of Zion, p. 37 (Excerpt from the Review International Secret Societies, October 1920). — It must not be forgotten that one of the three authors of the Separation Law occupied their leisure time at the beginning of the war, & comto complete the files of hospital communities, under the pretext of a request authorization after the war, but with the avowed aim of a blanket refusal as for religious figures, with confiscation of inventoried property.

of gold. But let the Christians, who are just passing through here below for to leave the land of exile and arrive in Heaven, their true homeland, to... to read into such concerns is perhaps to forget a instantly the Master's words: "Seek first the kingdom of God and his justice, and the rest will be given to you in addition" (1).

In the 111th century, Pope Innocent III saw, in a mysterious dream... Terrieux, the Basilica of the Lateran Street is ready to collapse. Two men supported her: Dominique and François; this They were the founders of two mendicant orders. The Church was saved by poverty.

In the first century, the first miracle of Saint Peter takes place of prophetic proportions. "Gold and silver," he said to the parawell-known lytic of the Speciosa gate, are not my partTagus, silver, and gold are not mine; but what I have, I... Give: In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk "che" (2). The supernatural life of the Church, its forward march, His ascension to Heaven is not based on gold and silver, but on the divine grace of Him who sent his Apostles toto seek the world as beggars, with the power to seal their word by miracles (3); of Him who gave the example first, and to whom Francis of Assisi sang immortally The Hymn to Poverty:

> Remember, Lord, that you came from the abode of the Angels, in order to take Poverty as his wife and have one a great number of sons who were perfect...
>
> It was she who received you in the stable and in the manger, and who, accompanying you throughout your life, taking care that you you had nowhere to rest your head. When you began the War of our Redemption, poverty came to cling to you like a faithful squire; she stood by your side during the battle, She did not withdraw when the disciples fled.
>
> Finally, while your mother, who at least followed you until the and took his share of all your sorrows, while such Mother, because of the height of the Cross, could no longer reach right up to you; at that moment, Lady Poverty embraced you closer than ever. She did not want your Cross to be fat worked with care, nor that there were a sufficient number of nails, sharpened and polished; but she only prepared three; she made them harsh and crude to better serve the intentions of your supaccomplice. And, while you were dying of thirst, she made sure that one He refused you a little water; so that it was in the narrow

---

Marra
(2) Act., NE “AI. 6 6.
(3) Mark, Revelation, 17-20.

> Embraces of this wife whom you breathed your last. Oh! who Therefore, she would not love Madam Poverty above all others. things? (1).

No! Whatever happens, the Church in France will not die of the Law of Separation. Who can even claim that it does not find-will not see in the dignity and virtue of his resistance a source and a rejuvenation of life and resurrection?

E. JOUIN,

Prelate of His Holiness,
Parish priest of Saint-Augustin.

---

(1) A.-F. Ozanam, Works, V, 64; Paris, Lecoffre, 1882.

Digitized by Google

PF Mer JOUIN

THE JUDEO-MASONIC PERIL

He

Judeo-Freemasonry & the Catholic Church

PART ONE

THE FAITHFUL OF THE COUNTER-CHURCH

JEWS & MASONS

p

Price: 7.50 francs

PARIS

INTERNATIONAL REVIEW
SECRET SOCIETIES
Y6, Boulevard Malesherbes

ÉMILE-PAUL Brothers
100. Faubourg Saint-Honoré

1921

(All rights reserved)

I
THE "PROTOCOLS" OF THE ELDERS OF ZION

(5th Edition)
II
JUDEO-MASONRY and the CATHOLIC CHURCH

PART ONE
The Faithful of the Counter-Church: Jews and Freemasons

(These volumes are also available at the Librairie d'Action française, 14, rue de Rome, Paris}.

In press:

PART TWO

Acts of the Counter-Church

Good preparation:

III
THERE

JUDEO-MASONRY and the SOCIAL REVOLUTION
IV
The FUDEO-MASONRY and DOMINATION
of the WORLD

Letter from His Eminence Cardinal GASPARRI to Mgr JOUIN

From the Vatican, June 20, 1919.

Your Grace,

The Sovereign Pontiff deigned to accept with a truly paternal benevolence the man-
A look at your new study on Masonic Warfare.

It is with good reason that in this work you took care to highlight through irrefutable documents and reasoning the inept and essential doctrine-fundamentally anti-Catholic of Freemasonry, a doctrine stemming from deism, itself born-the same as the Reformation, a doctrine inevitably leading, as we see today-from today, to the very negation of God, to social atheism, to "secularism", an ac-
the tutelary of this impiety which, to the great detriment of the people, seeks to banish societies without any trace of religion and any intervention from the Church.

You took particular care to highlight, despite the lies-things that sometimes deceive even Catholics themselves, | identity of the Freemason-Nonsense with itself, everywhere and always. Like your continuation of the sects' plan.
whose aim is indeed the ruin of the Catholic Church,

His Holiness is therefore pleased to congratulate and encourage you in your work.
whose influence can be so fruitful in warning the faithful and helping them to to effectively combat this which tends to destroy social order as well as the religion.

As a pledge of heavenly favor, and in testimony of His paternal benevolence-

Lance, the Holy Father wholeheartedly grants you the Apostolic Blessing.

Thank you for the copy you so kindly gave me, and with My personal congratulations, Your Grace, please accept the expression of my complete devotion to Our Lord.

P. Card. GASPARRI.

The Judeo-Masonic Peril

THE “PROTOCOLS” OF THE ELDERS OF ZION

OVERVIEW

Before undertaking the commentary on the "Prolocols" of the Sages from Zion, we deem it useful to embrace them with a glance of-seems to summarize them in order to fully illuminate their plan.
Their goal, their threat. For, despite the self-serving denials
From Israel, these documents remain a living expression of the situation current world order, which the Judeo-Masonic peril inevitably leads to it will inevitably lead to total ruin if it is not averted without delay.
as if without compromise. In such extremes, it is a matter of the common interest of weighing the value of these minutes and of extract the practical instructions from which the imperatively follows duty of the present moment, unless one no longer has the interests at heart-Loans of family, country, and Church. It is therefore a short summary and analysis of the "Protocols" that we present firstly to our readers.

The "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion have, in fact, just revealed throughout the world, the Judeo-Masonic peril is present today a matter of life or death for all peoples. These "Proto-"Cols" are a notable part of the minutes of the twenty-four sessions held at the first Zionist Congress in Basel, in 1897, under

(1) We cannot deal in a few pages with the historicity of Fauthen-ticité and veracity of the "Proɫocols". We have done this amply in the Introduction and in the Appendices of our edition of this work which found at the Offices of the International Review of Secret Societies, %, Bou-Leviard Malesherbes, at the Emile-Paul Bookstore, 100, Faubourg Saint-Honoré, at the Librairie de l'Action Française, 14, Rue de Rome, and at the Librairie Baston, Berche, Pagis, 69, Rue de Rennes.

the presidency of Dr. Theodor Herzl, called by the Jews "the Prince"
"Exile." These lectures summarize the plan for mon- domination dial developed by the Jewish race since its dispersion, during the capture of Jerusalem by Titus. It would be childish to believe that the "Proto-"Cols" be the first drafting of the aspirations of Israel and its centuries-old efforts; they are merely their more developed expression, as well as being more current, because of contemporary events confirm its realization (1).

These documents were stolen at the instigation of high-ranking officials.
Russian women, and one of the copies was given to Serge Nilus in 1901 by the Marshal of the Nobility of Chern (Central Russia), Alexis Nikolajevitch Souchotin. Another copy fell into the hands by a famous Russian writer and polemicist, C. Bulmi. Nilus and Butmi translated the "Prolocols" into Russian. The translators and the publishers who reproduced these minutes made use of preferably Nilus's translation, because it follows faithfully-the minutes of the twenty-four Zionist sessions.

The main editions of Serge Nilus's works date from 1902. Then, 1905, it is the one from the British Museum that we have collated-
ner. Then 1911, on which Mr. Gottfried zur Beek, the director
A prominent figure from Auf Vorposten, did the German translation.
1917 edition reproduced by Boston American Translations and Polish from Warsaw. Finally, a last Russian edition of Nilus
It was published in Berlin in 1920; we have it.

The Jews deny the authenticity of these "Protocols." It was necessary to...
Wait. But their arguments are not proof. Some they wanted to portray Nilus as an excitable and unauthoritative monk.
Serge Nilus was an esteemed professor who still lived Ukraine at the beginning of the war, and we have witness to this-group of Russians currently in Paris, who frequented him in these recent years. Besides, we said that Nilus is not the sole translator of the "Protocols". Others have claimed that The first editions had no effect in Russia. That's true.
But it must be added that the Jews made them disappear almost completely, especially the 1917 edition, loaded onto a
The wagon was thrown onto the station platform and burned by a group of soldiers.
of men who subsequently disappeared; that the Jew Kerenski, who arrived at power, had all copies of the "Profocols" searched for

(1) We have it on good authority that the "Protocols" were drafted in Hebrew, and that the French translation which was given to Nilus was done because of the ignorance of this Hebrew language by a great name-the meeting of Zionist delegates in Basel in 1897, beginning with Theodor Hertzl and Max Nordau.

Petrograd and Moscow, that it is finally enough, in Russia, to be found Anyone found in possession of this document is to be put to death. Following the articles from the Morning Post, the first English edition was equally It was boycotted in London by the Jews. But what interest would they have in it?
they would act in this way if these Reports were an apo-a cry and without any appearance of truth? (1).

The main objection concerns the implausibility of transcribing from such projects, whose manuscripts can always fall into enemy hands. The objection is more specious than convincing. All A plan could only be developed through writing. The two major Masonic plots that prepared the "Protocols" were certainly the writings of the enlightened J/Weishaupt in Bavaria and The instruction of the High Sales in Italy. Both were researched down to the smallest detail; both were found and more late delivered to advertising.

Most recently, the Hungarian newspapers of August 1920 were learning from Maramarossziget (located in Hungarian territory) occupied by the Romanians) that the Jews there are dismayed.
Unknown hands stole the archives of the local Jewish Society.
a look at world politics. Naturally, this is a flight policy by which the authors sought to gather information on the Israel's international intrigues. Also the Jews of Maramarosszi-
Are they scared and have they promised more than half a million?
crowns to the Romanian authorities if they succeeded in doing to return the highly compromising letters from this ghetto.

This latter case is remarkably similar to that of the "Proto-collars." However, even if their authenticity cannot be proven Strictly speaking, it is powerfully supported by events that they predicted, which we are witnessing today and who threaten to make us the victims of tomorrow. The translator English wrote in its Preface:

> It is impossible to read any part of this volume today.
> without being struck by the strong prophetic note that fills them all, no > only with regard to the holy Russia of yesteryear, but still > from the point of view of certain sinister developments that may occur > server worldwide right now. Gentlemen, beware |

We also read in the German edition:

> What has happened since the publication of Nilus: the world war

---

(1) The great New York publisher, Mr. Putnam, already had at the bookbinder's several thousand copies of "Prolocols" translated into English.
Jews prevented this publication by threatening to ruin the publisher.

> and the overthrow of thrones in Russia, Austria-Hungary and in > Germany; Chaos, the desired goal of the Freemasons, from which will emerge the > Humanitarian League, under the Judeo-Masonic direction projected since
> Two hundred years, all of this appears today in such terrible clarity.
> that there is absolutely no need to explain why we translate and > We publish the "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion. We hope that their publication
> This will open people's eyes to the dangers of Freemasonry and > of the Jewish community and will encourage definitive measures to be taken before > that our homeland and Germanic culture be completely annihilated.

The Morning Post, of July 19, 1920, notes that the "Pro-
"Focals" add to the prediction of the great revolutionary movement already in Russia, Germany and Hungary, the means which de-were what brought it about: wars, the high cost of living, government corruption governments, the use of Jewish agents who are found everywhere and the main ones of which are now known.

Finally, let us note the following passage from the Translator's Epilogue Polish:

> The causes and aims of the Great War that shook the earth > almost entirely, the development of Bolshevism in Russia, the movement-> Spartacist stance in Germany, even certain special clauses of the treaty > of peace, all this finds its reason here, all this appears as the conse> logical consequence of the action of this mysterious hand that directs the des-> world destinations.
>
> And that hand represents the Jews.

What we have said is sufficient evidence to support our assertion that the shocks and upheavals from which our
The entire world's actions are the work of the Jews and the fulfillment of a plan well-defined, every detail of which has been carefully studied, and which tends to a clearly specified purpose.

It is this satanic plan that we present here as an analysis. All Those who discovered it raised the alarm. Even in America-that, as the Boston translator writes:

The intended goal, already indicated in the translation, is to draw attention of the American people on a document that can shed important light-aunt on the international Bolshevik movement which directly threatens the vital interests of the United States.

Suffice it to add that the country on which the heaviest burden weighs
This Judeo-Masonic threat is ours, above all others.
the people, France is the focal point and target of the Jews and Freemasons. Knowing the "Protocols" and thwarting their plan is Therefore, it is an eminently French work. It is up to us to undertake it.
in time and to bring it to a successful conclusion.

THERE
JUDEO-MASONRY IS COUNTER-MORALITY

1° Judeo-Masonic plan for world domination.
This plan is the Jewish supergovernment: (1)

By all these means, we will oppress the Christians so much that they will be forced to offer us global hegemony. As soon as we have Once we reach such a position, we will be able to immediately absorb all the governmental powers from around the world and form a supergo-Universal government. We will replace existing governments.
by a monster that we will call the Supergovernment Administration nement. His hands will stretch out like long pincers and he will have at its disposal an organization such that it will not be able to lack to subdue all nations. (5th Session, p. 59).

This plan has been pursued for centuries and is unchangeable:

We have before us a plan on which a strategic line is drawngic from which we cannot deviate without destroying the work of siege-whole keys. (2nd Session, p. 35).

However, the execution of this plan is nearing its end:

Today, I can assure you that we are only a few steps away from... a few steps from our goal. Just a short distance to go, and the cer-
The key to the Symbolic Serpent, the sign of our people, will be complete.
When this circle is closed, it will surround all the states of Europe.
like indestructible chains. (3rd Session, p. 43).

2° This plan is carried out by the Jews with the help of the Franks-Masons.

The Jews are the chosen people:

"Per me reges regnant, let kings reign through me." We read in the Law of the Prophets that we have been chosen to govern the earth. God gave us genius so that we could accomplish this work. If there were a genius in the enemy camp, he could, however-They could fight us, but a newcomer couldn't possibly measure up to them.
old wrestlers of our kind, and the fight would be between us of a

(1) The pages refer to the second edition of the “Proiocols”.

nature so desperate, that the world has never seen anything like it-
"It is already too late for their genius." (3rd Session, p. 56).

The dispersion of the Jews facilitates their domination:

By God's mercy, his chosen people were scattered, and this scattering
This personality, which appeared to the world as our weakness, has constituted all our power, which has led us to the threshold of sovereignty universal. (17th Session, p. 83.)

But which Jews want to enslave us? We can re-to lay: All. In all their programs, they claim that a Jewish, even if naturalized, even if married Catholic, even if baptized,
It always remains Jewish. Except for rare exceptions, it's true. The underworld
The Jewish people make the revolutions, but it is the Jewish High Bank that supports them. Talmudic Jews have sworn to kill Christians; but the reformist Jews join hands with the Freemasons and the worst socialists. We also read in the "Protocols":

Don't think our assertions are just empty words. Consider the success of Darwin, Marx, and Nietzsche, prepared by us. The demo- effect realizing the tendencies of these doctrines on the minds of the Gentiles, not to-
It certainly shouldn't escape us. (2nd Session. p. 42).

We extract the following passage from a well-documented study on this subject.
following:

Let no one say, as some Christians who are duped do, or accomplices: "Fight against such and such Jews who form the Upper Ban-that, against such or such other Jews who are leading the revolution. But not Don't confuse the good guys and the bad guys in the crowd.

A wretched ambiguity. It is the entire Jewish race "en masse" that is so-Lid of this Jewish program. Beware of the Jewish press and Judaized, the Jewish individuals in power and all the low riffraff of the Eastern ghettos; all are united in this destructive work. A thousand do-Jewish comments (and new ones are coming our way every day) proclaim that the Jewish race must take the lead in the world, and a thousand proven facts wind that she pursues this goal with implacable tenacity.

Are there any honest Jewish individuals and foreigners involved in this program?
Certainly, and we will hasten to put them out of the
As soon as they are recognized, they will fight back; they have one of the easiest ways to do so:
They must fight not only with words but with deeds.
Jewish peril. Otherwise, no.

Let us add that the Jews, relatively few in number (1), will use

---

(1) One should not rely on self-serving statistics about Jews. A large Many claim to be subjects of origin of the nation they inhabit under

The wind of the Freemasons; and just as Satan is the ape of God,
It can be said that Freemasonry is the third order of Judaism:

Until we have attained power, we will strive to to create and multiply Freemason Lodges in all parts ties of the world. We will attract into these Lodges all those who can to adopt, or who are already adopted, the public mentality, because these Lodges will be the main places where we collect our information at the same time they will be centers of propaganda. (15th Session,
p. 98).

It is undeniable that Masonic lodges are multiplying or Their membership has been increasing since the war. Their journals are returning-_they constantly rely on this unexpected increase, hence Freemasonry concluded, especially in England and the United States, that she alone can regenerate the world.

However, Freemasonry is run by Jews:

We will centralize all these Lodges under a single leadership, con-
These Lodges, composed of ourselves alone and constituted by our Sages, will also have... their own representatives, in order to mask the true directions giants. And these leaders alone will have the right to designate the speakers and to draw up the agenda. In these Lodges we will strengthen the bonds of all socialist and revolutionary classes of society.
even the most secret political plans will be revealed to us, and as soon as they are Once trained, we will direct its execution. (15th Session, p. 98).

For a long time now, informed anti-Semites, particularly Gougenot des Mousseaux, revealed the Jewish leadership of the Masonnerie. More and more light is being shed on this point, and the "Pro-"Tocols" will have helped.

This Jewish direction extends to the rest of the Se- Societies crests:

Most of those who join secret societies are adventurers who, for one reason or another, want to forge their own path path in life and who are not of a serious mind.

With such men, it will be easy for us to pursue our goal and

We will get our machine moving for them.

If the whole world is shaken by it, it's because it was necessary for us. to upset it in this way, in order to destroy its excessive solidity. If, at In the midst of this upheaval, conspiracies erupt, this will to say that one of our most loyal agents is at the head of said conspiracies an assumed name. Among those who seriously engage in the study of the Regarding the Jewish question, many believe that this race has reached, in the world The whole figure is between 35 and 40 million.

tions. It is quite natural that we should be the only people to lead the Masonic enterprises. We are the only people who know the to drive. We know the ultimate goal of every action, while the Gentiles are ignorant of most things concerning Freemasonry and do not They can't even see the immediate results of what they're doing. General- They only think about the immediate advantages of the moment and are content if their pride is satisfied by the fulfillment of their intensions, and they don't realize that the original idea isn't theirs, but was inspired by us. (15th Session, p. 99 (1).

Therefore, the Freemasons are only in the hands of the Jews for a few years. instruments that are broken when they become useless or harmful, Hence the Masonic victims:

Every man must inevitably end in death. It is better to hate. this end for those who hinder the progress of our cause, rather than for those who are driving it forward. We are putting the Freemasons to death. in such a way that no one, outside the Fraternity, can have it the slightest suspicion. The victims themselves cannot suspect it. in advance. All die, when necessary, an apparently-natural order. Knowing these facts, the Fraternity dares not protest consciously between these executions.

By these means, we have cut off all protest at its very root. against our orders insofar as the Freemasons themselves are at stake. We preach liberalism to the Gentiles, but, on the other hand, We hold our own nation in complete subjugation. (15th Session, p. 102).

Finally, when the Jews have achieved world domination, They will destroy Freemasonry:

To achieve this goal, we will employ the ruthless means of execution. actions against all those who might take up arms against the state strengthening of our power.

The establishment of any new secret society will also fall. under the threat of death; as for the secret societies that exist-

(1) The Jews need the secrecy of the Lodges:

“Why were we led to imagine our policy and to implant it among the Gentiles? We instilled it in them without their knowledge. to convey the deeper meaning. What prompted us to adopt such a course of action, if not for the fact that, as a dispersed race, we cannot- we would achieve our objective by direct means, but only by Indirect means? That was the real cause of our Ma- organization bullshit, the meaning of which these Gentile pigs have not explored, nor They even suspected the goal. {They are attracted to us in the multitude of our Lodges that appear to be solely Masonic for throwing gunpowder in the eyes of their comrades”, (11th session, p. 82).

tents currently available and known to us, those that serve and have Having served our cause, we will dissolve them and send their members to exile at the ends of the earth.

This is how we will deal with the Freemasons Gen- those who might know more than we need. We hold- we will live in perpetual fear of exile, such as Freemasons to whom, For some reason, we would show mercy. We would not- to pass a law that will condemn all former members of the Societies Crete to be exiled from Europe, where will be the center of our Government.

The decisions of our Government will be irrevocable and no one will have the right to appeal. (15th Session, p. 96).

It is natural that Jews who dream of autocracy cannot to come to an agreement in power with the Freemasons who want the Republic universal. But the means advocated by Israel prove that the plan Universal domination will be achieved through a moral revolution. or rather immoral, which will overturn all the current foundations of the Company.

3. The Jewish Supergovernment is Counter-Morality.
Listen to the Judeo-Masonic principles:

Politics has nothing in common with morality. A sovereign gou-
A morally driven person is not a skilled politician; therefore, he is not upright on a throne. He who wishes to govern must resort to the cunning and hypocrisy. In politics, the great human qualities of honor-Purity and sincerity become vices and dethrone a more sovereign inevitably, his most cruel enemy. These qualities must be the attributes of non-Jewish countries, but we are by no means oblig-
We are going to make them our guides. (fr Session, p. 33).

And again:

Our motto should be: Foroe and Hypoorisie.

Only pure force is victorious in politics, especially when it hidden within the talent indispensable to statesmen. Violence must to be the principle, cunning and hypocrisy the rule of these governments who do not want to lay their wreath at the feet of the agents of a new-
This evil is the only way to achieve good.
Let us not be deterred by the buying of consciences, the impostreason and betrayal, if by them we serve our cause.

In politics, let us not hesitate to confiscate property, if we can-
We will thus acquire submission and power. (11th Session, p. 37).

The reversal of morality is complete: the theft of property and the buying of consciences, the false oath of loyalty, and perjury of betrayal, the end that justifies the means, (1) force that makes the Right, all these astounding lies form the basis of the "Proto"cols" and are established as principles of policy and government.

Also, when we saw the German chancellor from the very beginning of the war...
To compare a treaty to a scrap of paper, one is tempted to to believe in the Kaiser's word spoken in 1915 to the abbess of Mared-Under the heading: "It wasn't me, it was the Jews and the Freemasons" who wanted war.” Yes, war and peace are consistent to the instructions of the "Protocols", and it is indeed the Jews and the Masons who have done both.

Consequently, the Jews work to distort the mind through the spread of false ideas:

We were the first, long ago, to cry out to the people: "Liberty, Equality!"
"Fraternity," words so often repeated since then by ignorant parrots.
quets, who came in droves from all corners of the globe around this teaching
By constantly repeating them, they deprived the world of its prosperity and individuals of their true personal freedom, so well protected in the past of the mob who wanted to stifle him. (1st Session, p. 38).

Such results are obtained particularly by the liberalism:

When we had injected the poison of lihiralism into the organization the state's political makeup changed; states were infected victims of a deadly disease: blood decomposition. Nothing remains.
than to wait for the end of their agony. (10th Session, p. 75).

The goal is to achieve a leveling of thought:

We know, from centuries of experience, that men live and are guided by ideas, and are influenced by these ideas, thanks to education; this can be given to them at any age with the same result, but, naturally, by different means.

Through systematic education, we will take care of making disappear-to recapture whatever might remain of this independence of thought which we have used so extensively for some time now, to achieve our goals. (16th Session. p. 112).

Complete the distortion of mind and character by the dissolution of morals due to the excitement of pleasures, games, of the-Coolness; finally, add the destruction of the family through divorce.
and the advocacy of free unions, neo-Malthusianism, euge-

(4). "The end justifies the means. We must, in drawing up our plans, do more "Pay attention to what is necessary and beneficial rather than what is good and moral."
(re session. p. 35).

nism, and you will understand how formidable and cynical they are the doctrines of the "Protocols" which the Jews put so perfectly put into practice by taking over the press, the theatre, the cinemas mas and fashions. The Jewish government is indeed the Counter-Morale. (1)

JUDEO-MASONRY IS THE COUNTER-STATE

The social revolution is linked to the moral revolution in the Judeo-Masonic plan. To achieve world domination, The Jews must seize all states. If they possess them, then... In their opinion, by right of inheritance, they will only be masters by right of conquest. That's what they want to achieve through triple domination. of possessions, power, and fallen peoples.

1° Control of Property and Fertility,

True descendants of the peoples who worshipped the golden calf at the foot

(1) The following quotation responds well to the Judeo-Masonic traps that They amuse the people and distract them from serious matters. The sporting aspect, with the boy scouts before the war, and the post-school laws after the peace fit perfectly into the same plan. As for the wave of pleasure, it descends... Born in all countries, we see that it comes particularly from Ja itself source.

"To prevent them from discovering a new course of action in po- In addition to the litigious aspect, we will also distract them with all sorts of entertainment: games, hobbies, passions, brothels.

We will soon be placing advertisements in newspapers, inviting the people to take part in all kinds of competitions: artistic, sporting, etc. These new forms of entertainment will definitely distract the public mind questions that could put us in conflict with the public. Like the people will gradually lose the ability to think for themselves, they will howl with us, for the simple reason that we will be the only members of a society capable of putting forward new ideas; these unknown paths will be opened to thought through intermediaries that cannot be suspected to know, to be one of us" (13th session, p. 92).

Moreover, any attempt at independence will be suppressed by the terror that comes to support modern civilization appropriately:

"It will be objected that nations could take up arms against we would be concerned if our plans were prematurely discovered; but, in view of this If possible, we can rely on the activation of a force if formidable, it would make even the bravest men tremble: Until then, some Metropolitan railways and underpasses will be built. in every city. From these underground locations, we will blow up all the cities of the world, with their institutions and their documents.” (9th session, p. 70).

From Sinai, the Jews know only one governing force. ment: Or. The "Protocols" repeat it ad nauseam:

All the cogs in the machinery of the State are driven by a force that is in our hands, namely: gold.

The science of political economy, developed by our scholars, has already proved that the power of capital surpasses the prestige of the crown. (5th Session, p. 57).

Israel possesses this gold:

The greatest strength of our time is concentrated among us hands: that's gold. In two days, we can extract it from our secret treasures, any amount.

Is it necessary, after that, to prove that our government is God-given? Is it permissible that with such vast riches we let us not be able to prove that all the gold accumulated over so long May centuries not be an aid to us in making our true cause triumph for the good, that is to say for the restoration of order under our Go- government. Perhaps violence will be necessary, but this order will be definitively established. (22nd Session, p. 137).

This colossal fortune of the Jews does not consist solely in the trading of gold coins, but she still aims for possession land properties:

The Gentile aristocracy, as a political power, is no more. It is Therefore, there's no need for us to concern ourselves with it from this point of view anymore; but, As landowners, the aristocrats are still dangerous for us, because their independence is ensured by their resources. It is us It is therefore essential to strip Paristocracy of its lands at all costs. To achieve this goal, the best method is to raise taxes and taxes. This method will keep property income to a minimum. mum. The Gentle aristocrats who, by the tastes they have inherited, are Incapable of being content with little, they will soon be ruined. (6th Session, p. 60).

Thus, the new plutocratic aristocracy is Jewish:

On the ruins of the natural and hereditary aristocracy, we raised, by giving it plutocratic foundations, an aristocracy of our own. We the establishment on the wealth held under our control and on the science promoved by our scholars (1st Session, p. 40).

This Jewish science of the safe presupposes a teaching and an organization that we can all too easily observe existence:

We will surround our government with an entire army of economists yours. That's why the science of economics is the 'main subject taught to Jews. We will have thousands of them around us bankers, traders and, more importantly, millions- because, in reality, money will decide everything.

However, as long as it is not certain that the governorships will be filled, In the interest of our Jewish brothers, we will entrust these important positions to people whose background and reputation are so bad that they form an abyss between them and the nation, and to men such as in case they If they disobey our orders, they could expect to be tried and imprisoned. stunned. And all this with the aim of forcing them to defend our interests. until their last breath. (8th Session, p. 65).

However, while this cult of gold constitutes a major force of the Jewish Supergovernment, it is in his hands a means of The disintegration of Christian states, so much so that, according to the "Proto-"Cols," nowadays, "the power of gold has eliminated that of the liberal authorities, and that the time is past when religion governs "vernait." (1st session, p. 32). Then, as a result, we read further :

The struggle for superiority and the continuous speculations in the The business world will create a demoralized, selfish, and heartless society. This society will become completely indifferent to religion and to the politics, which she will even come to loathe. Her passion for gold will be her only guide and she will do everything in her power to obtain this gold which alone can She assures him: the material pleasures to which she has made her true cult. Then the inner classes will join us against our competitors — the privileged Gentiles — without alleging any lofty purpose, or even love wealth, but 'out of pure hatred of the upper classes,' (4th Session, p. 53).

Thus, Jewish gold first made Israel a state within a state. Its use corrupter, who disintegrates the moral forces of a people, opposes to all governments the Judeo-Masonry which becomes the Counter-state.

2° Influence of the Power and the Government.

This governmental power of Judeo-Masonry is too obvious to warrant a long discussion about demonstration.

At the Convent of the Grand Orient of France, in 1904, the orator, the F. Bonnet said:

We have not concealed our hopes and our work, and we

-+

we have no reason to remain silent about them. The major reforms accomplished these last twenty years — law on secular, free and compulsory education gatory, reduction of the length of military service, law on the reduction working hours in factories, welfare laws and pre-social divination, etc. — were studied in our Temples before being debated in the House and the Senate. Likewise, it has been a long time since Our outfits are used to discuss tomorrow's reforms: separation Churches and the State, income tax, protective measures work, pension fund for workers, etc. Each of us will have the deep satisfaction at having contributed to their realization, at having conducted oneself as a good Freemason, as a sincere republican, as a true patriot. (Loud applause) (dissements). (1).

The words are clear, but the facts speak louder than words. In 1904, The laws were developed in the Lodges; in 1921, these laws were cosigned by the public authorities. This is indeed Judeo-Masonry. who governs.

But, outside France, governments, it will be said, are more independent. pendants. That's a mistake. In Parliaments and in ministères, the upper hand is in the hands of the Jews and the Freemasons. Read the “Proto"cols," the Jews boast of unleashing war and making the peace :

We must be able to respond to any opposition with a disdeclaration of war by the neighboring country of the state that dares to stand in its way of our route: but if these neighbors, in turn, were to decide to If they unite against us, we should respond by unleashing a war. world. (7th Session, p. 63).

And if it's about peace:

'We are too powerful — the world must reckon with us. Governments cannot even make a treaty of little importance trance without our being secretly involved. (7th Session, p. 55.)

In fact, not in a treaty of little importance, but at the conclusion of the landmark treaty which ended four and a half years of war, when the three arbiters of our destinies: Clemenceau, Lloyd George and Wilson emerged from the inner circle of their endless After discussions, the mask fell, and they appeared to the entire universe. like the shadow of the three Jews who ruled the world.

Among all peoples, Judeo-Masonry has a dual empower grab by bureaucracy and the press.

Bureaucratic systems put people, even in a state of war, "in

---

(1) The “Protocols” 2nd edition, appendix Y, p. 8.

"Thank you," say the "Protocols" of our countless inter- agents. nationals who have absolutely unlimited resources. So our international rights will sweep aside the laws of the entire world and will govern countries like individual governments gougovern their subjects." (2nd session, p. 41). (1).

Another equally surprising finding is the monopoly The world press has fallen into the hands of the Jews. They admit it. in the "Protocols":

The press, in the hands of existing governments, is a great power by which they dominate the public mind.

The press reveals the vital demands of the populace, informs of its subjects of complaint, and sometimes creates discontent. Free speech is born from the press. But governments have not been able to take advantage of this force, and it fell into our hands. Through the press, we acquired influence while remaining in the wings. (2nd Session, p. 43).

As for the use they will make of this press of which they are the The masters of the parlout, they brazenly confess it:

We conduct ourselves with the press in the following manner: What role does the press currently play? It serves to unleash among peoples the most violent passions, or, sometimes, struggles selfish parties that may be necessary to our purposes. She is often hollow, unfair, false, and most don't understand its true intentions. We will subdue her and lead her with firm reins; we will also need to ensure control of all publishing firms, it would be of no use to us to control the newspapers, if we remained exposed to attacks from the broChurches and books. We will make the product of advertising, currently if costly, an advantageous resource for our government, inintroducing a special stamp duty and compelling publishers and the printers to pay us a deposit to guarantee our governance protection against all kinds of attacks from the press. In case In response to attacks, we would impose fines on all sides. These measures, Stamps, deposits, and fines will be an important source of revenue for The government. Certainly, party organs will not be watching.

to pay heavy fines, but after a second serious attack...
Between us, we will eliminate them completely. No one will be able to do so with impunity.
to undermine the prestige of our political infallibility. To prohibit a publication, we will find the following pretext: — the publication which

(1) On page 76 (10th session), the Jews take their measures so that Presidents of the Republic are always deranged men, "having
They have a history of scandals like Panama or some other shady affair.
of the same kind" in order to make them the faithful executors of their plans. The ap-
The plication is not difficult. Similarly, in the United States, Wilson was 'man-the henchman of the Jew Brandeis; and the newly elected, Harding, is a Freemason, already a pribell of the Judeo-Masonry.

has just been abolished, which, we might say, excited public opinion without... no reason nor any basis. Please note that, Among the aggressive publications will be those that have been created by us in this purpose; but these latter will not attack our policy that on the points where we have proposed a change. (12th Session,
p. 83).

Meanwhile, the press serves the Jews to shape Jewish opinion.
Masonic, to create divisions of classes and parties, to fomentto combat strikes and unemployment, to play the seesaw game like this-He said: "We will increase wages, which will not relieve..." the workers, because at the same time we will raise the price of the goods of basic necessities (1) », to dismantle the government machine-tale and to gradually replace public authorities, because their goal is the social revolution, and Judeo-Masonry is the Counter-State.

3. The Influence of Fallen Peoples:

This definitive takeover of power will not be achieved peacefully:

To bring the society of the Gentiles under our control, in which we have so deeply rooted was the discord and dogmas of the Protestant religion
If necessary, ruthless measures will have to be introduced. Such measures-These will show the nations that our power cannot be defied. We we must not take into account the many victims who will have to be sacrificed in order to obtain future prosperity. (15th Session, p. 97).

Then, during the same session (p. 101):

How insightful were our ancient Sages when they told us that, in order to achieve a truly great goal, we should not stop in the face of the means, nor count the number of victims who must be sacrificed to the cause. We have never counted the vic-times of the race of these Gentile brutes, and, although we had to sato criticize a fairly large number of our own, we have already given our people find themselves in a situation in the world such as they could never have dreamed of. A The relatively small number of casualties on our side saved our nation of destruction (2).

(4) 6th Session, p. 61.
(2) This is what the Jews call peaceful conquests:

“Our State, following the path of peaceful conquests, has the right to subs-to title to the horrors of war less apparent and more executions expeditious measures, which are necessary to maintain terror and produce a Blind submission. Just and implacable severity is the main factor of the power of a state. It is not simply for the advantage that one
We can draw from it, but also from the love of duty and victory that we
We must stick to the program of violence and hypocrisy. Our principles
These methods are as powerful as the means we employ for the

Through the application of these bloodthirsty theories, the Judeo-Masonic-Nerie made the Revolution of 1793 happen in the past:

When the populace realized that in the name of liberty they were being granted all kinds of rights, she imagined herself to be the mistress and tried to seize-power. Naturally, like any other blind person, the masses encountered countless obstacles. So, not wanting to return to the year-Under the old regime, it laid its power at our feet. Remember the Rethe French revolution, which we call "the Great"; the secrets of its pre-The preparation, being the work of our hands, is well known to us. (3rd Session,
p. 49).

Through the application of these bloodthirsty theories, the Judeo-Masonic-nothing is happening in the present, the Russian revolution, including Bolshevism threatens the entire world:

This is how, say the "Protocols," "a leader must emerge, who will suppress-will be the existing governments that sustained a crowd of which we we brought about demoralization by throwing it into the flames of J'anar-
"Shit." (1) This leader will be the king of the Jews, the chosen one of God.

No one will now dispute that Judeo-Freemasonry is
The Counter-State is indeed well-established.

IHI
JUDEO-MASONRY IS THE COUNTER-CHURCH

To the moral and social revolutions, Judeo-Masonry adds Finally, the religious revolution, and in this respect, it primarily attacks to the Catholic Church.

to put into action. That is why we will surely triumph, no only by these very means, but by the severity of our doctrines, and we will make all governments slaves to our Supergovernment-ment. I] It will suffice to know that we are implacable when it comes to to break the resistance." (Session 1, p. 37).

(1) 23rd Session, p. 139. — The most unfortunate peoples will themselves demand-even the Jewish government; if necessary, they will be forced to do so by any means necessary:
"But you yourselves know this perfectly well, so that the multitude
This has led to shouting this demand; it is necessary that in all countries there be disturbance continuously the relations that exist between the people and the government ments, — hostilities, wars, hatreds, and even the martyrdom of the hunger and want, inoculated diseases, and this to such a degree that the
The kind people see no other way out of their misfortunes than to appeal to our money.
and to our complete sovereignty.

“But if we give the nation time to recover, it is unlikely that "It is possible that such an opportunity will arise again." (10th Session, p. 79).

4° Counter-Church in opposition to Catholic Truth.

Judeo- Freemasonry acknowledges "that there was a time when reli"gion rudder (1)". But she destroyed the Credo with morality.
of the Church and faith in souls; for, in order to become masters of the land, the Jews "must abolish all professions of faith” (2). They boast “of having persuaded the Gentiles that the libera-"Lism would lead them to the reign of reason (3)." Isn't that the Reason, who was the true goddess of the Great Revolution, of which they claim paternity? It is still necessary for them then-that they need, in order to reign, to take away from the Catholics even the God's conception:

Freedom could be harmless and exist within governments and the countries without being detrimental to the prosperity of the people, if it rested on religion and the fear of God, on human brotherhood, exempt ideas of equality that are in direct opposition to the laws of creation which prescribed submission.

Governed by such a faith, the people would be under the tutelage of the parishes and would live peacefully and humbly under the guidance of the spiritual pastors We are subject to divine Providence on this earth. That is why we we must uproot from the minds of Christians even the very concept of God and replacing it with arithmetic calculations and material needs (4th Session, p. 52).

This is the entire program of secular laws that our leaders proclaim them inviolable, both before and after the war. In the name of science requires raising secular generations in schools without God. On this point, the Judeo-Masonic work is immense and so persistently continued that it threatens to destroy the Church of France, and that it is no less formidable in all countries.
Therefore, the "Protocols" contain the following admission:

When we had taken away the people's religion, power was thrown into the streets as public property, and we seized them. (5th Session,
p. 55).

2° Counter-Church in opposition to the Catholic Clergy.
This goal and its means of action are clearly expressed:

We took great care to discredit the Gentile clergy in the eyes of of the people, and we thus succeeded in undermining its mission which could have seriously thwart our plans. The influence of the clergy on the people diminute each day.

(1) fr Session, p. 32.
(2) 14th Session, p. 94.
(3) 3rd Session, p. 49.

Today, religious freedom is recognized everywhere, and we are not-my distant relatives, only a few years from the time when Christianity was collapsing Drera will be completely destroyed. It will be even easier to finish off the others.
religions, but it is too early to discuss this point.

We will reduce the clergy and their teachings to such a minor role, and we will make his influence so unpopular with the people, that his teachings will have an effect contrary to that which they once had. (17th Session, p. 114).

Who doesn't recognize in this the violent or covert attacks directed... against the clergy? Who doesn't recognize here the rallying cry of all the Cultural struggles from Bismarck's to that of Great Britain Lodge of France currently in Czechoslovakia? These are the laws confiscating property and exiling religious figures; the laws of separation of Church and State, one of the foundations of the revolution resolution in our country; the barely concealed theft of the resources of the clergy and requiem masses; the infamous rumor, so intense in in the midst of the war while the priests were being killed by the enemy;
the battle cry, finally: "Clericalism, that is the enemy!" which we have bound to awaken by the apotheosis of Gambetta's heart, a Jew and a traitor.

The "Protocols" of 1897 had foreseen all these sacrileges and all these infamies.

3° Counter-church opposite the Vatican.

In the fifteenth session (p. 98), the Jews watch the autocracy
Russian "as their only dangerous enemy", but they add:
"if we do not count the Holy See."

The word is out: the enemy is not only clericalism, is not only Christ, is not only God, it is, before everything, the one who represents the clergy, Christ and God, is the Holy-Seat.

We also read in the seventeenth session (p. 114):

When the time comes for us to completely destroy the Papal court, an unknown hand pointing to the Vatican, will give the si-general of the assault.

When, in their fury, the people rush upon the Vatican, we will appear-truncus as protectors to stop the bloodshed. By this act, we will penetrate to the very heart of this Papal Court from which nothing the world will not be able to drive us out until we have destroyed the power of the Pope.

The exposition of this plan is worthy of Judeo-Masonry and its motto: "Strength and Hypocrisy." These devious methods, these strange-
The camouflaged devices date back a long time, and we can confirm the “Protocols” of the Jews of 1897 by the confession of a high-ranking Freemason.

Mr. Bethmont, deputy for Charente-Inférieure, former first President dent of the Court of Auditors. This deputy met with Bishop Pie, ethan from Poitiers, when the prelate was on a confirmation tour near Bressuire. It was in 1878.

The bishop said: "Mr. Member of Parliament, I believe you want to re-to begin the struggle against the Church; but do you expect to succeed there?
where did Nero, Julian the Apostate, and your great ancestors of '93 fail?

– “My Lord,” replied Father Bethmont, “at the risk of…”
To seem audacious, I would reply that those you are talking about do not have We knew how to handle it: we'll do better than them. Violence doesn't achieve nothing against the Church; therefore we will use other means. We or-
We will organize a learned and legal persecution, we will envelop the Church will be stifled by a network of laws, decrees, and orders.
without shedding a single drop of blood.”

That's still the plan of the "Protocols".

The Jews say, “When we become masters of the earth, we will not tolerate any religion other than our own (1)”. But they They add further:

Our philosophers will expose all the disadvantages of the religions of the Gen-
They, but no one will ever judge our religion from its true point of view.

sight, because no one will ever have complete knowledge of it, at apart from our own, who will not venture under any circumstances to reveal the mysteries. (14th Session, p. 95).

What is this secret, esoteric religion, known only Initiates? This is not the religion of Moses which, in descending of Sinai, broke the golden calf to replace it with the tablets of the Decalogue. On the contrary, it is the religion of the Talmud, which elevates the calf of gold as an idol. Moreover, "the King of Israel will become the true Pope of the universe, the Patriarch of the International Church (2)", and the Super-Jewish government will be above the peoples and above God himself:

Our dominion will be glorious because it will be strong and it will govern will govern and guide, without following the leaders of the populace or of any orators whatsoever, shouting senseless words that they they call for grand principles which are, in reality, nothing but utopias.
Our power will be the organizer of order, the principle of happiness.
The prestige of this power will attract mystical adoration to it.

(1) 14th Session, p. 93.
(2) 17th Session, p. 115.

at the same time as the subjugation of all nations. A true power-Per-
no one will dare approach it with the intention of diminishing it, even if only of a thread. (22nd Session, p. 138).

The Jewish religion will therefore be the reign of gold, strength, and... reason, the glorification of man, Masonic secularism. Of
In every respect, Judeo-Masonry reveals itself as the Counter-Church.

Such is the triple moral, social, and religious revolution, cynical-developed in the "Protocols", which makes Judeo-Freemasonry: Counter-Morals, Counter-State and Counter-Church.
Once again, the Jews' denials do not invalidate the admissions from these reports, no more than our assertions would be able to irrefutably establish their authenticity. All depends here on confirmation that the "Protocols" receive events that separate 1921 from 1897. On the latter date, the Jews were drawing up a plan according to which these events should take place unfold; on the first date, that is to say today, this The plan is well underway. We don't need to authree proofs.

In conclusion:

Judeo-Masonry is Counter-Morality: If you believe in the principle of morality that commands respect for the pro-
Please, if you prefer to keep what little you have, if you Reject the Judeo-Masonic maxim formulated by Brother Proudhon:
"Property is theft," a maxim according to which your neighbor can legally move into your home and evict you; and if,
In light of these events, you can see that the mathematical application-
The application of this maxim has been ongoing for two years in Russia and in countries undergoing revolution, that the same applies in Italy and Sicily, and recently in France an attempt at this This type of thing has been attempted in the Landes department, if you see these things and if you finally understand the warning of the "Proto"cols," confirmed by the facts, unite against the Jews and the Freemasons.

If you believe in the principle of morality that commands respect of oneself and others, if you do not believe that man and the women were born for prostitution, that the family, under the pressure the Judeo-Masonic sion of divorce and free union, must become to establish a phalanstery and a stud farm, instead of remaining, as in the past of our fathers, a blessed sanctuary; and if in the light of the events-

In short, you see the wave of pleasure that is sweeping the world Since the peace, it is merely the obligatory implementation of Israel's plan, and that such a dissolution of morals could drown in a lake of misery and shame are those whom the Jews do not hesitate to call "These Gentile pigs," if you see these things and if you Finally understand the warning from the "Protocols" confirmed by the
In fact, unite against the Jews and the Freemasons.

Judeo-Masonry is the Counter-State: If you believe to the principle of order and authority without which no government could not subsist, if you notice that the advocates of equality have no other goal than to dominate you and reduce you to servitude vage, that the proponents of fraternity are stateless people who ren-open our borders to better introduce foreigners, that the pro-Freedom fighters are sans-culotles who substitute for the real Freedom, liberalism, and the license to destroy society; and if,

In light of events, you can see that these advocates are the mails, that useful and influential places are universally in Jewish and Masonic hands, whether it be the municipal localities, general councils, prefectural councils, administrative bodies ministries, ministries, Parliament, education all levels, from Higher Education, to Grandes Ecoles, to Academies demias, and that the Israelites Archives took pride in last-the idea of having Jewish blood in the Presidency of the Republic; and if, Better still, still in light of events, you see that this state control is preparing according to the Judeo-Masonic plan that the social revolution, formerly called the Great Revolution, named-Bolshevism, which is now the subject of this study, but both ultimately lead to... in 1921 as in 1793, to the regime of Terror, which would fatally add-nowadays foreign war is like civil war; if you see the Bolshevik upheavals starting from Russia, as if from a flight-world can, to convulsively rouse all peoples, if You see these things and if you finally understand the warning
"Protocols," confirmed by the facts, unite against the Jews and Freemasons.

Judeo-Masonry is the Counter-Church: If you still believe in the religious principles of your youth, in your catechism which sheds a unique light on the plan of the Counter-Church, if you don't think that after your death you will be worth less than a living dog, if you feel your immortal soul turning to cer-
For several hours his gaze was turned towards the sky, where the Father awaits us who He created us; if you have faith in the crucified Christ who forgives, who blesses, who consoles, and if you meet at the foot of the cross, in tears but standing, his Mother, who is also your Mother; if your Memories sometimes take you back to the church where you were baptized.

confirmed, received communion, if you feel then, in a shudder of soul, a sweet regret for the past; and if, in the light of events,
You see, for fifty years, we have been determined to break free the crucifix in schools, nurseries, courtrooms, hospitals for to throw them in the street, that the monks and nuns were exiled because that they prayed and that they taught, that an unchangeable law was made Separation, to one day close your churches and drive them out your priests, against whom you may have listened too much to comment-pleasantly the infamous rumors, when they are your best Friends, we have failed to establish an unchangeable law of secular schools for education, we have it, generations without God, the Bolsheviks of de-hand, that ultimately it is Christ, it is God, who has been driven out of France, and that it is indeed the rigorous application of the Judeo- plan
Masonic; if you see these things, and if you finally understand The warning from the "Protocols," confirmed by events, unite-you against the Jews and the Freemasons.

Tomorrow ?

No, today, if you don't want to be surprised by the "Great"
"Evening." A Minister of War, perhaps better informed, seemed to tell us, by submitting his resignation, that the danger was looming for 1921. Beware of waking up too late.

A supreme opinion.

At the dawn of this new year, the Church reminds us of these words of The Gospel: On the eighth day, Joseph named the Child Jesus," which means Savior. Believe that the only Savior is the Christ Jesus; He alone will resurrect the true France, the France of...
France, which is neither Jewish nor Masonic, is a cultural and traditional France.
Catholic France.

E. JOUIN,
Prelate of His Holiness,
Parish priest of Saint-Augustin.

January 4, 1921.

JUDEO-MASONRY

AND

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH

PART ONE

THE FAITHFUL OF THE COUNTER-CHURCH
JEWS AND FREEMASONS

ee

His Holiness Pius X, speaking to one of our friends in 1910, about Freemasonry, concluded some judicious reflections by these words which today take on an accent prophetic:

> When Freemasonry had deprived the Pope of his temporal power, it stopped. 11 It was necessary to familiarize public opinion with the idea that the The Pope, relieved of the administrative burdens of his states, would become more free to attend to the spiritual interests of the Church. But this work The hypocrisy is over, and soon Freemasonry will want to destroy the papal power which she claimed to enhance through her encroachments, including The goal, she said, was to establish the unity of Italy. That day, added Pius X, when the Pope, driven from Rome, passes through the gate From the right, the King will exit through the left door, and that will be the revolution. global.

Could this be the global revolution contained in the "Protocols"?

As a counter-church, Judeo-Masonry attacks the spiritual power to foment religious revolution. A Titled "Counter-State," it attacks temporal power. to foment the national revolution. As a Counter-Morally, it attacks all of humanity in order to foment the social revolution. Now, as this triple religious-religious, national and social is in full march from the East towards the West, reflecting glimmers of light onto anxious peoples fire disasters, she carries the revolution well within her. global predicted by Pius X; and even though it ruins the principal-eternal pillars of order and justice, as well as our societies modern, which are dying in anarchy, efle rises above all against religious power, and first and foremost against the Catholic Church, so that within it Counter-Morality and the Counter-states are at the service of the Counter-Church, which is evident clearly from a reasoned analysis of the "Protocols".

So why dwell on discordant discussions about the authenticity of these documents, when the facts speak for themselves Higher than the words? If you don't see what the Red armies, if you don't hear the crackling of a A world undermined by occult forces, that's what you are, perhaps... to be irremediably blind and deaf. Besides, you are not Not alone, you are the number that still counts today. at least nine hundredths of humanity. But let's not dwell on that. Let's not be mistaken, in the absence of a strong and sudden reaction, we We shall see that from this incredulous and careless crowd, which we hold dear To be part of it, some, the Catholics, will be swept away by the The others, the laypeople, through the right-hand door; the others, the laypeople, through the left-hand door; and, during the more or less prolonged wait for the intervention miraculous from God, the place, somewhat sodden by the The blood of countless victims will remain in our countries of high culture, just as in Russia, to the triumphant Judeo-Masonry phante. |

Because, the two agents, the two factors of this revolution worldwide, are the Jews and the Freemasons. Our simple "An overview of the 'Protocols' highlighted this truth, which events confirm and which our comments. Before addressing them, let's compare these two revolutionary agents whom we will encounter at every engagement-the management of this life-or-death struggle against the Church and society: the Jews and Freemasons are indeed the faithful of the Counter-Church.

I
THE JEWS

The Messiah is the sole reason for Israel's existence.

The entire history of the Jewish people: its glories and its setbacks, its rewards and punishments, grandeur and decadence, the truth of his beliefs and the illusion of his errors, his hopes constant in its inconsistent dispersion, all of this is of a messianic order. Leaving aside the Messiah, the question The Jewish identity becomes an enigma that even the Jews themselves cannot solve. to provide the solution. The Hebrew people, Christ, and the Church The three of them together summarize the history of the world. The Hebrew people in is the principle, Christ is the center, the Church is the end.

A page by Mr. Darboy develops this truth with a rare documentation:

> Your beliefs, he wrote to his parishioners, are six thousand years old, and contemporaries of humanity. Humanity possesses Jesus Christ, that is in hope, or rather, in reality, from the very beginning and without interruption. Forty Centuries have awaited him and greeted him with their wishes. His image was shown from far away to our first parents, driven from paradise, to temper the bitter to remember their lost happiness and to console them in the sadness of this exile, which we call life. Traditional faith in the Redeemer entered into the ark with the family of the righteous Noah, and later became the common heritage of the peoples who carried it to the four corners of the world, by dispersing. But nowhere was it better preserved than among the descendants of faithful Abraham: the fathers instructed their sons, who taught it to subsequent generations, from where it passed down to the great-nephews. God, moreover, provided for this in his goodness: the promise of a Savior made to the patriarchs, he renewed it often by the mouth of his prophets, and wrote it in shining letters in life even and in the miraculous history of his chosen people.

Indeed, national life, the history of the Jews was figurative (1), a true prophecy of action that opened up the horizons of the future for them and at the same time, it was to form, for future races, one of the most solid evidence of the divinity of Jesus Christ. There are, among the facts which preceded the coming of Our Lord and the events that followed it, luminous and striking reports that compel one to admire such a harmony, and to recognize in such an exact correspondence a plan providential, conceived from the beginning, guided through the centuries and fulfilled

---

(1) I Corinth., x, 11; Rom., x, 4.

before our very eyes, to last until the end of the world. Jesus Christ fulfills and honors the entire history of the Jews, and all their great figures They represent him prophetically in some of his traits. It is what the Savior himself and his apostles taught us (1): it is what the Fathers and doctors have explained to us (2), and Bossuet has not done What can be summarized from this lofty doctrine, when he said: “Read the Scriptures Divine, you will see the Savior Jesus everywhere. There is no page where one does not He finds it. He is in the earthly paradise, he is in the Flood, he is on Mount Horeb, it is at the crossing of the Red Sea, it is in the desert, it is in the promised land, in the ceremonies, in the sacrifices-in the ark, in the tabernacle; he is everywhere, but he is only there in figure... the law is a hidden Gospel, the Gospel is the law explained" (3)

"Alongside symbolic history and prophecy of action, march and the spoken prophecy unfolds. A host of characters extraordinary things appear, which, for long centuries, guide their nation on the path of truth and salvation: generous vanguard of the Christian people, they precede this army of witnesses in the shadow of which We walk today in the Church (4). Interpreters of their time and, as historians of our own, they proclaim the hopes of fallen humanity and the miraculous advent of a new order, in seeing the dawn of the day dawning on the horizon of future ages, when Jesus Christ will raise them up. Touched by a superior light and feeling, supported by God who verifies and confirms their mission by making them yield With nature before them, they sketch in broad strokes the destinies of the Church, and speak of its struggles and triumphs with precision and an authority whose claims have never been contradicted. It's based on their word. elevated to the status of an indestructible monument, upon which Christianity is based; They are our ancestors in faith, and, by giving them a helping hand over the At the head of the centuries, we touch, with them, the cradle of our race, as They will touch, along with us and our nephews, that day which is called eternity. unity, and where Jesus Christ will be all in all (5), loved and blessed by his elect transtigated in his own glory.

“For Jesus Christ, the beginning and end of all things, father and redeemer, judge” and remunerating men, such is the constant object, the sole purpose of prophecies. Listen to them, our dearest brothers, and you will admire this They describe him as accurate, luminous, and complete. Note this well, five, ten, twenty and thirty centuries ahead, they say that he is God and man (6); that he will be of the race of Abraham and

---

(1) MATTH., xu, 39-41; Luke, x1, 29-32.

(2) TERTULL,: Adv. Marcion, lib. IV, n. 21; AUGUST.,: from Genesi ad litt., lib. IX, cap. x1, n. 23; In Joan. tractate. IX, n. 2.

(3) Sermon on the characteristics of the two alliances.

(4) Hebr., xu, 1.

(5) Coloss., m, 11.

(6) Isaiah, seen, 14, seq., and 1x, 6, seq.; Baruc., ui, 38.

of the blood of David (1); that he will be born of a Virgin. in Bethlehem, when the the scepter will have come out of Judah (2); that he will appear in the second temple built after the captivity (3); that he will be the expectation of the nations (4), a full king of mercy (5), savior of his people by redeeming them from the dead (6). True God, but hidden God (7); whom he will bring into the world a new law and will support it with miracles (8); that it will be betrayed by one of his disciples and sold for thirty pieces of silver (9); that he will suffer all kinds of insults in his passion, will be crowned with thorns, bound to the gallows, his feet and hands pierced (10), that he will be put to death in the seventieth week of years after the edict ordering recons- to destroy Jerusalem (11); that he will prevail over death and emerge alive from his tomb now glorious and where the peoples of the earth will come to worship him (12); that he will send his Holy Spirit to his disciples (13); and will convert the universe, drawing everything to itself through a divine and victorious energy (14).

"What unity of vision among all these men, so different in genius and of character, and separated from one another by so many centuries! What marvelous harmony, what an exact correspondence between the predictions- tions and events! Everything draws closer, connects, and unites in Jesus-Christ, who gives everything its reason for being, its explanation, and its end. All These combined features form his incomparable figure and represent him in such a perfect way that one is forced to acknowledge it. Nothing of predicted about him that never fully came to pass; nothing in his life that one could can write using the very terms of the prophecies. Now, these prophecies, this We did not compose them ourselves, since they come from us. The Jewish people, who have never ceased to keep and read them. And it is not the Jewish people who supposedly invented or modified them, especially in the case of our own beliefs. They are not the work of men, a A higher hand is felt there. I] must therefore surrender: it is God who

---

(1) Gen., xxii, 18; Psalm., Lxxxvin, 35, seq. ; Isai., x1, 1, seq.

(2) Isai., seen, 14; Mich., v, 2; Gen., xix, 10.

(3) Malach., m, 1.

(4) Gen., xLix, 10; Isai., 1x; xı, 10.

(5) Isai., xvi, 1; Ux, 11; Zachar., 1x, 9.

(6) Isaiah, 1x, 2.

(7) Isaiah, 1x, 6; 1Lv, 15.

(8) Deuter., xviii, 15 and 18; Isaiah, xxx, 18, seq. ; xLu, 1, seq. ; XLII, LV and Lx! ; Jerem., xxxiii, 14, seq.

(9) Zechariah, 11, 12 and 13.

(10) /sai., L, 6, seq. ; Lin, 2, seq. ; Psalm., xXx.

(11) Dan., 1x, 23, seq.

(12) Psalm., in, 6; xv, 10; xxu, xLvI, Lxvil and Cix; [sai 11, 2, seq. ; x, 10.

(13) Joel., 11, 28, scq.; 111, 16, seq.

(14) Psalm., xvi, 5; Isaiah, 0, XI, Liv, LXV, 17; Jerem, xxxt, 6, seq. ; Malach., 1, 11, seq.

He speaks here, he speaks of a God, and he promises a God. to send to earth" (1). |

It is noteworthy that the Jewish writers of our of the time, often skeptical and rationalistic, did not disdain the prophetic destinies of Israel while they are still full illustrious promises, but they reject them as soon as they take on a character of disapproval. We read in Antisemitism from Mr. Bernard Lazare:

> For Bossuet, Judea had been the center of the world; all the events- the disasters and the joys, the conquests and the collapses as the foundations of empire had as their primitive, mysterious and ineffable because of the will of a God faithful to the Children of Israel, and the people in turn Wandering tower, creator of kingdoms and captive, had led humanity towards His sole purpose: the coming of Christ. Ben Hadah and Sennacherib, Cyrus and Alexander seem to exist only because Judah exists, and because he Judah must be sometimes exalted and sometimes cast down, until the hour when he will impose on the universe the law that must emanate from it. But what Bossuet had Designed for the purpose of unprecedented glorification, the Christian anti-Semites They renovate with opposing intentions. For them, the Jewish race is a scourge Nations, spread across the globe, explain misfortunes and happiness. foreign peoples among whom it has taken root, and again The history of the Hebrews becomes the history of monarchies and republics. bliques. Punished or tolerated, chased away or welcomed, they explain, by the In fact, these various policies contribute to the glory of the States or their decadence. To tell the story of Israel is to tell the story of France, or Germany, or Spain. This is what Christian anti-Semites see, and their anti-Mitism is thus purely theological; it is that of the Fathers, that of Chrysostom, of Saint Augustine, of Saint Jerome. Before birth From Jesus, the Jewish people were the predestined people, the beloved son of God; ever since he failed to recognize his Savior, ever since he committed deicide, he is having become the fallen people par excellence, and, after having made the salvation of the world, it causes its ruin (2).

Whether he likes it or not, Mr. Bernard Lazare has very precisely divided the history of Israel: the first stage led to Calvary, from where the second one starts, perhaps to return to it. In Meanwhile, we are forced to acknowledge that from three points of view of race, nationality, and religion, the Jew became, in In general, the enemy of humanity.

(1) Ms" DARBOY: Pastoral Works, 1, 297; Paris, Le Clére, 1876.
(2) Bernard Lazarg: Anti-Semitism, its History and its Causes, p. 230; Paris, Chailley, 1894.

4. The Jewish Race

Race first.

According to the same author, there are no races (1). This thesis is only amply supported for the sake of serving his idea which contains a double error: the non-existence of the Semitic race and that of the Jewish race.

The Semitic race, however, exists just as the Aryan race does. consists particularly of Jews, Syrians and Arabs, and Mr. Bernard Lazare is right to consider it inappropriate the word anti-Semitism taken in effect to mean anti-Judaism (2). The Arabs and Syrians do not claim universal domination saddle, precisely because they do not fit into the cycle of the Messianic development.

This is therefore not a case of "incompatibility of races", as Graetz writes, in the conclusion of his History of Jews (3). On the contrary, Auf der Warte teaches us that we have The "Daniel League," recently founded in Berlin, aims to bring together Germanizing Jews and Aryans, Germans of pure race (4). This alliance is naturally cemented by the alleged

(1) Bernard Lazare, lib. cit., ch. x: The Race, p. 246-272.

(2) Bernard Lazare, lib. cit., p. 2. This passage contains the admission of a anti-Judaism attributable not to anti-Semites, but to the Jews themselves same:

"Wherever the Jews, ceasing to be a nation ready to defend its freedom and its independence were established, everywhere anti-Semitism, or rather anti-Judaism, because anti-Semitism is a poorly worded term. chosen, which only had its reason for being in our time, when we wanted broaden this struggle between the Jew and the Christian peoples, and give it a philosophy as well as a more metaphysical reason than material.

"If this hostility, this very repugnance, had not been directed towards-regarding the Jews, which in a certain time and place, it would be easy to unravel the limited causes of these angers; but this race has been, on the contrary, subjected to the hatred of all the peoples among whom she found herself established. I] It is therefore necessary, since the enemies of the Jews belonged to the of the most diverse races, who lived in very distant lands from one another, that they were governed by different laws, governed by opposing principles, that they had neither the same customs, nor the the same customs, that they were animated by dissimilar spirits did not not allowing for an equal judgment of all things, it is therefore necessary that the the general causes of anti-Semitism have always resided in Israel even, and not among those who fought him."

(3) GRAëTz: History of the Jews, V, 426; Paris, Durlacher, 1897.

(4) Auf der Warte, Leipzig, January 16, 1921, p. 12, col. 2.

need for humanitarian fraternity, but it proves that unity A sacred bond can exist between the two races, Jewish and Aryan.

It is no longer a question of "inferiority or superiority-racial diversity.” Aryans or Jews each have their intellectual qualities legal and moral, and when the latter claim to to link to an origin distinct from other races, that is always depending on their messianic role.

Indeed, prophecies, when misinterpreted, allow these extraordinary claims.

As for earthly possessions, the Jew does not rise above Isaac's blessing to Jacob:

May God give you dew from heaven,
And from the fat of the earth,
And an abundance of wheat and wine (1).

However, the Jew has singularly materialized the divine promises in the dream of a promised land (2), where milk and honey flow, and, failing that, in the reality of a usurious monopolization of the world's wealth which gives it allows the adoration of its age-old idol: the calf gold.

On the other hand, the Holy Scriptures proclaim them a chosen people, and, in this respect, the Jewish race is more than predominant, it is the only one mandated to represent humanity here on earth in the eyes of Jehovah. Apart from the Jews, no one is worthy to bear the man's name, as we shall see when we leaf through the Talmud and the Schulchan-Aruch. It is biblical exaggeration that becomes the religious exaggeration of the Japanese with their Mikado, and Germany's intellectual exaggeration with the superman by Nietzsche.

From this dual starting point: the land and the election of the heaven, the Jew could only arrive at the conception of the hegeworld currency. To the scriptural texts that relate to Messiah, and which Jewish exegetes are careful to apply to a Messiah of glory, and to oppose to Christ who was for them a

(1) Gen., xxvii, 28.

(2) We read, in the Book of Enoch, which dates back more than a century before Jesus Christ:

“But for the chosen ones, to them belong light, joy, and peace; to them belongs the inheritance.”

"terrestrial." MIGNE: Dictionary of the Apocrypha, I, 428; Book of Enoch, vi.

Messiah of misery and abjection, to these texts where the people Foreigners to Israel must join from East and West in the people of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob in this religious society religious, which is none other than the Catholic Church, to these texts illogically adapted to their universal domination, the Jews added the predictions of their apocalypses and their literature apocryphal myth to persuade oneself that after centuries of slavery vage and the punishments from Above, Jehovah would resume his victorious wars, annihilating the four great powers sessions set up against the people predestined to reign, to the grandeur and sovereignty over all nations henceforth enslaved, without hope of returning to freedom. This will also be the worship of the true God, the sole source of humanity's happiness; so that the world will be Jewish or it will cease to exist. Such is the true notion of the kingdom of Israel, perfectly in accordance with its main points are included in the program of the "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion.” Such ambitions do not haunt the Semitic race, but the Jewish race, born from the promise of the Messiah.

For the Jewish race exists, not only as a moral being, but as a physical being, and if we admit the crossings and the combinations that Mr. Bernard Lazare multiplies ad infinitum, he is all the more surprising that it has retained essential characteristics thiels that infallibly betray their subjects. We we will be careful not to emphasize this all-too-obvious truth and Too undeniable to be denied. The forehead, the eyes, the nose, The ears and lips do not deceive a trained eye; and, without By referring to the D'Celticus brochure, one can also add other revealing signs (1). The Jewish imprint seems indelebile; it even dominates in mixed marriages; and, Like variegated plants, the Jew always returns to his primitive type.

This simple data can be found in the following passage from a conference on the Jewish Question:

The Jew constitutes a distinct race with specific characteristics determined: it belongs to one of the branches of the Semitic branch, which formerly included the Phoenicians, the Assyrians and which includes Even today, the Arabs. The Jew is therefore an Asian, an Oriental. And this we must never forget, because it constitutes for us, French, descendants of the Aryan or Indo-European race, a foreigner whose blood is just as different from ours as that of a Negro or of a Mongol. I know very well that today, under the pretext of fighting the racial prejudice, the Jew and, following him, the Freemason, his cousin Germain, along with some humanitarian scholars, want to abolish the race so as to see in peoples only an unspeakable mixture, a general "panmixia", to use the barbaric term of these foreigners. And the reason for this war waged against the race by the Jews and the Franks-The Macons are easy to understand: A foreigner, whether Jewish, Turkish, Chinese or Dahomean, will become overnight, through naturalization, just as good a Frenchman as the old native French;

(1) D" CELTICUS: The 19 visible bodily defects to recognize a Jewish; Paris, 1903.

Nothing will differentiate it from the latter, since races do not exist.
and that a Polish Jew named Fine-Kelhaus, who became Jean Finot for the gullible people of France, dared to write in his book The Prejudice of Races: "that the French, ethnically speaking, are a composite of Mongolian, Negroid, Semitic and generally speaking elements, of all the peoples who have crossed France."

This audacious assertion by a Polish Jew received in our country, does not would not even deserve to be mentioned, if it did not clearly show us Israel's goal: this blurring of racial lines, this removal of barriers nationalities will allow the Jews, a cursed people, to return to humanity and to take advantage, like hornets, of the benefits of a civilization due to the centuries-long efforts of the inhabitants of the land.

And to achieve this goal, the Jew did not hesitate to deny his own race of which he was so proud, he who proudly called himself the first aristocracy of the world, thus proclaiming its superiority over all others peoples.

Wasn't it the Jew Disraeli, who became Lord Beaconsfield, who wrote:
"Race is everything; there is no other truth, and every race must perish." who imprudently abandons his blood to mixtures." Also the Jew
He who denies races, including his own, is careful not to mix his Blood. For two thousand years since it was dispersed, it has been carefully preserved the purity of his blood, and his Rabbis of our day fulminate with energy against mixed marriages. Thus, the Jewish type has been preserved with all its characteristics which make it recognizable among all peoples.

The Jews depicted on the sculpted monuments of Egypt and Assytheir lineage, five thousand years old, is clearly distinct from that of the Assyrians, their congeners, but are, on the other hand, identical to the classic Jewish type of our time. Hebrew of the time of the Pharaohs, Jew of the Middle Ages, or Jew of the
In modern times, the type, despite its variations, has persisted. Whether it be Askenagi or Sephardi, a Jew from Poland, Romania, and Germany, or French and English Jew, Cochinchina Jew, Afghan Jew or
From China, everywhere we find this facial feature, the characteristic of which is the nose.
tick, indelible mark of the Jewish race. We know, on the other hand, that
The Jew has a special pathology; he is afflicted with certain diseases.

Hereditary diseases, nervous disorders, skin diseases. Jewish leprosy was already known in the time of Moses.

Nowadays, and particularly in our Latin countries, the Jewish leprosy is a moral leprosy that eats away at customs, institutions tutions and peoples, and, according to the expression in the "Protocols", infects them with a deadly disease: "the decomposition of the blood," which allows the Jew to await the end of our agony (1). This is clearly the game of an enemy race.

2. The Jewish People

Secondly, nationality.

What we observe from the perspective of race reappears within Jewish nationality. Apart from messianism, lexis-The tenacity of this people becomes incomprehensible. The Diaspora and the Zionism provides convincing proof of this.

The Diaspora

The dispersion of the Jews predates Christianity.
The learned Abbot Fouard conducted a very well-documented study of this first period (2). He identifies "Jewish settlements among the Parthians, Medes, Elamites, Mesopotamia, Cappadocia, Pontus, all of Asia Minor, Syria, Phoenicia, Egypt, Cyrene, the African coast, the provinces of Greece, of Thes-Salied in the Peloponnese; among the islands, Euboea, Cyprus, Crete.
Transplanted as vanquished or simply emigrants, the Jews have always known how to assert themselves and create a favorable situation deranged. "The flexibility of their nature bent them to the most difficult circumstances; the thirst for wealth, a tireless activity to acquire it made them forget the sadness of separation; far from discouraging them, the struggle increased their vigor." The same author makes the remark next: "It is to commerce that the Jews owe so much rapid prosperity: instinctively, they had the genius for it, so this ability, hitherto contained by the provisions of the law, has not ceased from then on to be the distinguishing feature of the sons of Israel" (3).

---

(1) Ms" Jouin: The "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion, p. 76.

(2) Abbé Fouarp: Saint Pierre, ch. 111, p. 51-77; Paris, Lecoffre, 1886.

(3) Abbé Fouard (lib. cit., p. 65) adds that among the Jews of the Dispersion; the pastoral life of the ancestors was belittled in order to exalt the trade. This was the work of the rabbis, and the Rabbi said: "All the "The world's harvests are not worth the trade." (Jebhamoth, 1, 63, 1). This Commercial and financial genius does not, moreover, prevent Jews from coveting a country's land and seizing it according to the pro—

The dispersion of the Jews, spread over five centuries before the era Christian faith reached even the most remote regions, "so much so that at In Strabo's time, there was no city or port where the

gram of the "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion. Cf. Count Yvert: The Jews and Property; Paris, Dumoulin, 1884. Here is the conclusion of this booklet (p. 22): | |

"The considerations we have just read have nothing in common with the ideas generally held today. They are opposed to fashionable economic doctrines, and do not agree with customs of time. The grandsons of the Crusaders consider themselves honored, it seems, to dine in the company of the Israelites, provided they are very rich, and far from While condemning electoral communism, most Catholics cooperated to its revolutionary action. It seems useful, however, to draw the attention of serious minds to points that the prejudices of the century have obscured in a thousand different ways.

"Please consider the preponderant role of property" in the lives of nations; that one observes the constant action of the Jews in economic relations, and we will see that all modern theories originate from the conquering genius of the children of Israel, and aim their universal supremacy. To make themselves useful first through loans. of money, to annihilate the territorial aristocracies through the centralization of power, to obtain civil and political equality, freedom of conscience, to proclaim the sovereignty of the people and impose equality of testamentary divisions, to be as much as Christians in the State for to dominate them surely through his riches, such is the Jew's plan; and Everyone can see the degree of application already achieved by him, especially in France. The Revolution of 1789 was the work of France—Freemasonry, and that of 1870, with the current unrest, has its origin in the socialism; but, in reality, Freemasonry and communism both of the things it engendered come from the same source: Judaism. whose views they also serve, by destroying Christian society for the benefit of the Jews. One striking fact would suffice to prove it: Since the Revolution of 1789, the mobilization of property has taken of enormous proportions in France; the land itself is, so to speak, perpetually in motion, thanks to the code and joint-stock companies. The Jew's share in these incessant movements is that of the lion. As for He, through foreign naturalizations, avoids the fragmentation. of his possessions at the time of death. Now, facing communism increasingly threatening, the Christian landowners hasten to to realize, even more than in the past, their territorial fortunes, in order to try to get them to safety outside of France. New profits for the Jews, and above all abandonment of the homeland, thus left without no defense and at the mercy of cosmopolitan capitalists.

"We can look for many ways to remedy this appalling situation" situation, but a thorough study of the issue leads us to believe that we will not obtain anything important as long as the possession of the property, in France and elsewhere, will not be followed by its natural consequences, which are authority and social, civic and political responsibility.

'

—

=

Even if Jews were not established, there was no place where this tenacious people would not have managed to gain a foothold (1). Their influence was widespread sensing and attracting pagans who believed in Jehovah without to join the Mosaic cult, they were the "proselytes of the door"; others accepted all legal observances and rituals of the Jewish religion, they were called the "proselytes of justice.

Moreover, the Jews of the Diaspora were faithful to their traditions. Every year, they sent a delegation to Jerusalem with rich alms collected in the synagogues guidelines that they took care to establish for all their groups, or, failing that, "prose" which served as their Sabbath meeting places. The few concessions made to the customs of the countries they inhabited, the most important of which was to adopt the Greek language and to translate the Seventy, did not waver in their national loyalty; in short, The Jew of that time, like the Jew of today, always remained

Jewish, and the growing and self-serving dispersion of this people increasingly persuaded, despite local persecution, that he was taking possession of the world through the superior election of his nationality, according to the verses of the Jewish Sibyl:

All earth, all sea is full of you;
If everyone is hostile to you, it's because you excel among yourselves (2).

Until the Messiah, this people felt strong in its unity

"To summarize this study, we will first say, with Mr. Disraeli, speaking of the Jews, that the world is governed by entirely different people swimming that those who don't see what's happening behind can't imagine "behind the scenes." (Coningsby, p. 184).

"Then we will quote the manifesto of the thirty-one members of the
The Romanian State Legislative Chamber, appealing to Europe against the Jewish tyranny: "The rulers (the Israeli capitalists), not feeling With no opposition left to counterbalance their instincts, they create fake genes and seizures, and strive to find, even in the the miseries of the people, all sorts of means of extortion to satisfy their insatiable greed; for misery is productive in favor of those who have the cruelty to exploit it. This is how the most soon arises harsh and the most implacable of tyrannies: the tyranny of money, which, exercised against a people by foreigners, destroys all means of development, hinders the momentum of its generous aspirations, and, without
"The fact that this is noticed deals a fatal blow to his future."

(1) STRABON, cited by Josephus: Antiquitates, xiv, ch. x11; Flavius JOSEPHE, History of the Jews, p. 332; Amsterdam, Schippers, 1681.

(2) Oracula Sibyllina, III, 271, 272.

unbreakable, whether in Palestine or in the universe, and this unity rested, above all, on his messianic expectation which World domination seemed to be attached to it. But the dispersion
The total destruction of Israel, after the ruin of Jerusalem, came to complicate matters.
to address the problem of his nationality and make him almost insoluble. How, indeed, can one explain that a people thrown into four corners of the world, for almost two thousand years, could have to outlive itself, while far more peoples powerful and otherwise developed civilizations have not left no trace, and that for the latter most did not Were they not dispersed, but merely invaded? Mr. Bernard Lazarus invokes the religious unity of Israel. We will discuss this later.
earlier; let us simply recall that it is unique-of messianic essence; the Jewish religion is a religion earthly expectations. But why doesn't religion have Does it produce the same effects in other extinct peoples?
The same author adds to religion the social conditions made to the Jews in all countries, so that they grouped together together: "The day," he writes, "when the Jew was imprisoned in His Jewish quarters, on that day he had a territory, and Israel lived absolutely like a people who have a homeland; it retains, in its special quarters, its customs, its morals and its age-old habits, carefully passed down through education tion which were governed everywhere by the same principles invariable" (1). To make ghettos a territory, a homeland, is Certainly ingenious, but ultimately inconclusive. Furthermore, the ghettos disappeared long ago, more than it took to engulf the ancient peoples. To establish survival of Israel on the commercial or financial relations of the Jews does not exhibit the specific characteristics of a nationality. The appeal to Hebrew is denied by history. Mr. Bernard Lazare, who develops this argument, constantly contradicts himself during his very interesting study;
and we have not forgotten that at the first Zionist Congress of Basel, the promoters Theodor Herzl and Max Nordau were unaware the language of their fathers.

Finally, there remains national consciousness, because, according to Mr. Bernard Lazarus, "the Jews became aware that they were a nation, which they had never ceased to be. When they quilted Palestine in the early centuries before the Christian era

(1) Bernard Lazare, lib. cit., p. 286.

Yours, a link always bound them to Jerusalem; when Jerusalem was engulfed in flames, they had their Exilarchs, their Nassis and their Gaons, they had their schools of doctors, schools of Babylon, schools of Palestine, then schools from Egypt, and finally schools from Spain and France. The traditional chain-
The union was never broken. They always considered themselves like exiles, they were lulled by this dream of restoration of the earthly kingdom of Israel. Every year, on the eve of
At Easter, they chanted from the depths of their being, by

Three times, the consecrated phrase: "Lechana aba lerouchalaim" (Next year in Jerusalem). They kept their old patriotism, even their chauvinism, they looked at each other, despite the disasters, despite the misfortunes, despite the humiliations, despite slavery, like the chosen people, the one who was superior to all peoples” (1). One wonders how chauvinism, that Mr. Bernard Lazare criticizes in all nations, has not Prevented from sinking the Greeks, the Romans, the Gauls and so many
Are there other peoples as vibrant and patriotic as the Jews?
Nevertheless, in the author's opinion, Jerusalem would play the main role as a link between Jewish groups throughout the universe. Now, Jerusalem represents Messianism and Zionism in same time.

Zionism

Zionism is back on the agenda; we are dedicating our attention to it.
one of our appendices. However, it is not of recent date.
since it goes back to the time of the dispersal. The questerritorial division even sometimes appeared before the eyes of the Jews in a broader sense than their former homeland. One of them wrote, in an anonymous pamphlet, at the beginning of this century:

"If the Jews remain among the others for much longer, peoples, without completely merging with them, they become again-will be everywhere as unhappy as in the Middle Ages or at all less as famished as the outcasts,” and the author concluded that, "to avoid perpetual exoduses, it was urgent to to reconstitute the people of Israel, not in Zion, which is a an impossible dream, but in South America" (2).

These Jews, called "Territorialists", make up the Jewish Territorial Organization, designated by the initials ITO, of which

(1) Bernard Lazare, lib. cit., p. 287.
(2) How to prevent the destruction of the Jews? Pertuis, printer.
Innkeeper. .

The leader is Zangwill. In April 1914, the monthly review of The Italian Touring Club published an article entitled: The Mission of PITO in Benguela. This mission followed the one which had aimed to study Cyrenaica, in order to found a Jewish colony, which did not continue, because the Arabs, in particular the Senussi, would not have tolerated this invasion the rise of Israel. On the contrary, for the Portuguese colony of Angola, in the Congo, a favorable report concluded that immigration Jewish community on the Benguela plateau, in the part central Portuguese West Africa (1). One feels that the Territorialists are protected by England. If Zangwill did Surveys in Cyrenaica indicate that this region is bordering Egypt; on the other hand, if Angola were to become populated by Jews, these Portuguese colonies, so jealously coveted by The English, might perhaps later come under their domination. This Anglo-Jewish brotherhood is found always in the business field, so much so that works, more or less documented, claim to trace their origins back to ten the tribes of Israel, the origin of Great Britain, a question which seems, moreover, quite insoluble; but it is astonishing that the English soil saw the birth, in 1717, of the Grand Lodge of London, Judeo-Freemasonry, on which today is founded Today, far more than it appears, the global hegemony of England. rs

The Territorialists are merely false Zionists, eager to reconstitute the kingdom of Israel wherever they will be best off,

(1) We read in the Roma News Agency of June 4, 1914:

"As we announced at the time, the famous “ITO” (Jewish Territorial Organization) sent, shortly before the Italian occupation, a mission to Cyrenaica to see if one could establish a Jewish colony there. The project failed due to a lack of conditions favorable for the peaceful development of the colony. Now, P a Ito » sent a Commission to Portuguese Angola. The
The Commission found that Angola's territorial conditions were suitable perfectly suited to agriculture, which is why the company proposes to... to found a Jewish colony. Obviously, the Masonic government of Lisbon is fully prepared to offer exceptionally favorable conditions he who persecutes Catholic missionaries, his compatriots. No less, obviously, it is a rallying cry of the high sect and high Jewish banking — are those two things? — according to which we see, on the other hand, the Spanish government, fran-Masonic movement since Canalejas, to “lend oneself to the call of the Jews of Balkans for the Maroe.

According to the adage: Ubi bene, ibi patria. Quite the contrary, the true Zionists, whose leader at the end of the last century was Theodor Herzl, claiming Palestine, Jerusalem and Zion as the territory and homeland that belongs to them. It is of them that he speaks. Mr. Bernard Lazare, as mentioned above (1).

As we have seen, their latest ambitions far exceed the tightened borders of Palestine and barely conceal the Jewish Supergovernment of the "Protocols", whose capital It could be Jerusalem, but whose territory would be universal. However, thanks to England, the Palestine is now attributed to the Jews, and that a The Universal Anti-Semitic Alliance, of British origin, saw the day to display this motto: "England for the English, and "Palestine for the Jews." On this issue, the Parliament English, a prisoner of the Jewish bank, was merely the instrument obliged to Zionism, and these words: "England for the English" do not signify anything other than the fear of the Jewish peril which grew across the Channel. But what does "Palestine" mean? "to the Jews"? By what right does this deserted country belong to them? Sometimes two thousand years? They only possessed the Promised Land awaiting the Messiah. The Messiah has come, and the punishment of Their blindness and their deicide led to their dispersal. Their right Messianic passed to the Catholics, the Crusaders, the Franks It was only those who collected this testimony from the astonished peoples: . “Gesta Dei per Francos.” Palestine belongs to the French, and England's attribution of it is a breach of trust.

From the messianic point of view, which can only resolve the Regarding the Palestinian question, if we consider it from a political perspective, Palestine belongs to the Syrian Arabs. However, if it is correct that Sir Herbert Samuel said to a religious man: "Palestine It should belong to you; it is covered with Catholic buildings. and no longer has any trace of the Jews,” and even if this word is fabricated, it still expresses our just attribution of this country belongs to the faithful of Christ and not to his enemies and his executioners. By its very nature, Zionism can no longer be Jewish; it is Catholic (2).

---

(1) We will publish in the appendix a special study on Zionism, as we have already announced. We could not insert it here without overload this general overview of Judaism.

(2) It is obvious that Palestine cannot offer asylum to all Jews. Those whom the leaders of Zionism wish to confine to this Earth, who no longer holds the appeal of the time of Abraham or Joshua, forming at

In any case, we forget that the Territorialists and the Zionists, supporters of Jewish settlements, in Jerusalem or in another part of the world, still have to reckon with the cosmopolitans. These prefer to stay where dispersion has discarded, and it can be stated that their choice is not intended to to support the people who hospitalize them, but to live off them. even if he were to die from it. Mr. Bernard ~ azare notes their existence in these terms:

> Indeed, although often extremely chauvinistic, Jews are of cosmopolitan essence; they are the cosmopolitan element of the family human, said Scheffle. That is quite right, for they always possessed at most importantly, this extreme ease of adaptation, a sign of cosmopolitanism ism. Upon their arrival in the Promised Land, they adopted the language of Canaan, after seventy years spent in Babylonia, they would have forgotten The Hebrews returned to Jerusalem speaking an Aramaic jargon or Chaldean; in the first century BC and AD, the language Hellenic culture penetrated the Jewish quarters. Dispersed, the Jews inevitably became cosmopolitan. They no longer attached themselves to any territorial unit- They were united, and shared only a religious unity. They did, however, have a homeland, But this homeland, the most beautiful of all, like every homeland for that matter, was placed in the future; it was the renewed Zion, to which no land is incomparable, indeed; a spiritual homeland they loved with such devotion. ardent love made them indifferent to all earth, and that each The country seemed equally good to them, or equally bad. They finally lived in such appalling conditions that one cannot ask them to choose a homeland for themselves, and, aided by their instinct for solidarity, they remained internationalists (1).

However, Cosmopolitans are the most numerous, if we must... believe the Encyclopedia Britannica, in which we read:

> Most Jews see their future in 'pro- development progressive of each group within the country it inhabits (2).

The Jewish underworld is at the heart of this. However, a multitude of Polish Jews are still involved. are currently emigrating to France and the United States, in fear of a new war between this country and the Bolshevik Soviets. Why? Aren't they going to Palestine? However, let's add that, in all the In reconstructions, the ruling party is usually an intellectual elite. Let us simply mention, in Palestine, Sir Herbert Samuel, and, in Russia, Trotsky and especially Chicherin, |

(1) Bernard Lazare, lib. cit., p. 301. In the following chapter: “The mind "revolutionary in Judaism," the author admits (pp. 304-305) that the Jews are malcontents and, therefore, catalysts for revolution.

(2) British Encyclopedia, article Jews, t. XV, p. 411.

With such principles, how could they ever accept the
The slogan: "Palestine for the Jews?" That's impossible.
even in England, where the government is so deeply entrenched in it-convinced that he had a biographical apology printed of the principal Jews who are the external masters of the world, because the inner masters, more or less hidden, are the all-powerful kings of the High Bank. In this pamphlet, that we will translate for one of our Appendices, because the
The English government defends its sale and distribution, we
We find the following names: Louis-Samuel Herbert, Edwin-Samuel Montagu, the Earl of Reading, Sir Alfred Mond, in England; Louis-Lucien Klotz, Joseph Reinach, in France; Baron Sidney Sonnino, Luigi Luzzati, Salvatore Barzilai, in Italy; Judge Louis Dembitz Brandeis, Samuel Gompers, Oscar Strauss, Bernard Baruch, Otto Hermann Kahn, Abram Elkus, in the United States; and finally, Paul Hymans, in Belgium.
Add to this list some prominent German Jews, from Austria, Switzerland, Russia, with the names of the great Bankers, you will thus have, in a short page, the consortium of those who determine the fate of nations and who believe, not without some deceptive appearance, that they have done passing from God's hands into theirs the destinies of world (1).

(1) We read in the Conference we have already cited:

"The essence of the Jew is to be cosmopolitan, and we see it every day their "ease of adaptation" that Bernard Lazare speaks of; it is not One of the lesser dangers of the Jewish question. The Jew has no homeland.
This is the obvious fact. If we open his catechism, we read this:
QUESTION: What do you mean by homeland? — ANSWER: I mean by it the country where the man was born and raised, or in which he lives under the guarantee laws that guarantee all inhabitants the peaceful possession of their properties, the exercise of their rights and the enjoyment of the fruits of their work ".

"Chief Rabbi Simon Lévy elaborates on this idea: 'The beautiful name Our homeland therefore does not belong to the land that saw us born, but again to the one who took us under her protection, who nourishes us today of its products and covers us with the aegis of its wise legislationlation... Man must know how to naturalize himself in all places of the globe where it is granted what it needs for the deployment of faculties of his soul. Cosmopolitanism is a true virtue.” In these under these conditions, we have not only the right, but the duty to consi-
To treat the Jew as a foreigner. His homeland is wherever he feels at home.
Today in France, tomorrow in England or Germany. So much the same to say that he doesn't have any. And any government that allows Jews to Let us beware of believing that cosmopolitan Jews are of This leader is truly and loyally committed to the merger. All are separatists, all remain Jewish first and foremost and above all nationality, in the Old World as in the New. It There are no German, Russian, French, Italian, or English Jews.

Americans; that they reside and be naturalized in Germany, Italy, England, America and the
The whole world, there are only Jews, that's all. The rabbi American Schindler wrote in the Jewish Chronicle on the 20th
April 1911 (page 26): | |

For fifty years, I was a staunch supporter of Jewish assimilation
And I believed it. Today, I admit my mistake. The great melting pot of The United States will never be able to achieve the assimilation of a single Jew. There is Fifty years ago, Jews were ready to assimilate with Americans.
But since then, two million of our brothers have come from the East; they
They cling to their old traditions and bring with them their old ideals.
This is an army to be overwhelmed. The hand of God is at work here. The Jew must... to differentiate himself from his neighbor; he must know it, he must be aware of it and be proud of it.

Thus the Jewish people, God's eternal chosen people, see themselves as "the most unified, the most stable, the most impenetrable people, the more irreducible" (1). Territorialists, Zionists, Cosmopo-Lits, all Jews are separatists and exclusivists; all, intoxicated by the foolish pride of their patriotism, they consider themselves citizens of a superior race based on a mission to fulfill political functions, to join the army, the judiciary,

The University is committing a crime against the nation. Moreover, the Jew is lacking absolutely political, since he is cosmopolitan. Speculator and A businessman first and foremost, he is dealing with a political matter according to the same sources.
rules. Only the immediate result matters to him; as for the advantages They elude him in the future. He lives in and for the present, which
This is understandable, since, if his interests require it, he will change his country of origin. That is Why its political direction is immoral and destructive. Time where Israel was a nation, its political regime has always oscillated between Anarchy and despotism. Now that he's camping out on other people's land People, their mentality hasn't changed. Who only sees things with a government Republican like that of France, the Jew, with his corrupting spirit And his gold, does he become the all-powerful master? Through the Lodges, he directs his regardless of domestic policy; universal suffrage is its humble servant,
"And ministers and parliamentarians are nothing but playthings in his hands."
(1) Bernard Lazare, lib. cit., p. 268.

`

divine one who will realize the plan of universal domination of “Protocols” (1).

This plan is nearing its end; the universe, undermined by the substructthe activities of secret societies, bought and corrupted by Israeli gold,

(1) This global hegemony, prepared by the criminal means that advocate the "Protocols", which are found at the heart of all businesses Jewish women in the political sphere. As further proof, we publish the report of the Jewish lawyer Rappoport, from kyiv, to his colleagues in the organization Jewish nisation known as Poale Zion, on the occult and apparent action of Israel's takeover of Ukraine. This report appeared in the newspaper Polish Liberum Veto, from Warsaw, dated November 1, 1919. After some words in which he deplores several regrettable confusions of ideas nationalists and communists in certain circles, the jumper expresses himself Thus :

"Our main goal, as my companions well know, to attract Ukraine (with Crimea, southern White Ruthenia and western, Bessarabia and the western part of the Don basin) in the orbit of our economic construction, by impoverishing its population lation, with the aim of creating sufficient frameworks for the fight against our ideals.

"The breakdown of goals already achieved is as follows:"

a) The trustification and monopoly of large industry by the means of pagiotage in foreign stock exchanges;

» b) The monopolization of large-scale trade by means of discounting;

» €) The unionization of small businesses: Gisn cooperatives (life), Truzenik (the worker) and other unions of small traders;

» d) Monopolization of freight transport by means of monopoly of all communication channels and all means transport.

"To achieve this goal, we encountered two obstacles, but We didn't need a great effort to defeat them, expected that: 1° we encountered only weak and passive opposition from the share of the Christian bourgeoisie; 2° a convulsive opposition of !a Share of Ukrainian national cooperatives: Ukraine Bank, Sojuz Bank (Union Bank), Dniepro Sojuz (Union of the Dnieper) and others.

"The struggle with this first enemy was short, although it was not still completely finished by our companion (the Jew) Tzwibak.
As for the second enemy, the Employees' Committees chosen under our occult influence has prevailed; these people know nothing of it and should not They know nothing about our main goals and objectives.

"The struggles between parties and factions and the rivalry (between Christians)" have so weakened the adversary that, for example, the appointment of companion (Jewish) Marguilés, chief commissioner of PUKrain Bank, was Received by the employees with complete satisfaction. Intelligence was limited.
high, a passion for discussions, obstinacy, and typical psychology of the low-level employee who characterized our adversaries was the pathological basis-Logic that has never failed us. The weakening of the cooperative collapses in filth and blood, and the Jew, leprous and leech of the people, will rise up superbly like a boa

Ukrainian has once again had the result of removing Ukrainian nationalism its economic support. The main role in this regard was played by the (Jewish) discount and loan banks, and their men, the companions Hazert, Glos, Fischer, Kraus, Spindler (Jews).

"The fighters of the communist revolution should express to them their complete gratitude.

"Among the special branches of the territory's economic life" In Ukraine, we focused primarily on the sugar industry. This, we Pavons did this in part to satisfy his companion Piatakoff (Jewish).

v The principal action in this matter falls to the International Bank-national and to its director, our colleague Rodolphe Stolenworker (Jewish), A very shrewd financier and entirely one of our own. His assistants, Grube and Welenrot (Jews), were the authors of the well-known report, written for the journeymen, on the raising of standard prices (calmieri), for sugar and sugar products and cascami.

"The companions Rosenblatt and Rithaus (Jews) then wanted a Sugar registration and mass requisition for sale to be made on the spot at arbitrary prices. The opinion of fellow Jew Gruber. prevailed because it was the best and longest-term tactic. scope.

"The Russkhi Bank for foreign trade (analogous to the Deutsche Bank), which was very weakened during Petliura's time, has recovered its prosperity with Suozif, always so devoted to our goal and who has rendered a colossal service.

"The members of the Council, the companions Jakobson, Barsch, Kaps, Hammermann, Kadin (Jews), having extensive relations with the Hungarians insist on a closer union of the new politics on sugar from Ukraine with our policy on sugar from Budapest; They emphasize intensive exports, and other Hungarian operations would be given to the Russkhi Bank for foreign trade.

"We understand that we are no longer considering the renewal of the sugar campaign, because it would require large expenses, and also because, thanks to factory control, normal production is not Not possible.

"The decrease in the amount of sugar on the market will be an embarrassment-" health only for the early stages, and it is doubtful that it should give rise to a considerable reaction.

"In the meantime, we have created a commission that will take charge" Gradually and imperceptibly, the "Sugar Center". The Bank international will be represented by our companion Werner (Jewish), the "Reunited" by the companions Ettinger and Schulmann (Jews), the Russkhi Bank of Commerce and Industry, by the companion Weinstein (Jewish).

"Our second project, which has not yet been implemented, was the Unionization of commerce. In this respect, anti-Semitism... would be helpful.

"Antisemitism among Ukrainians and Poles was being exploited" gigantic, whose constricting rings enclose, constrict-They destroy and crush the dying world. It is the symbolic serpent-predictive formula in the "Protocols":

through the organization of the aforementioned cooperatives “Gisn” and “Truzenik”. The proletarian aspect that was given as a backdrop to these cooperatives, the Christian employees and a suitable exterior have masked it excellently. our goal was to ensure that Jewish consumers had access to products of Good quality and cheap, saving us a considerable profit in the form of products.

"The ruin of our enemies' industry is achieved with the help of our industrialists, through their (Jewish) penetration, under the guise of business partners in private homes or in cooperatives Christian values.

"It was very easy to break the opposition of the Christian bourgeoisie" through the system of nationalization, requisition, exile and other suitable methods drawn from the companion's arsenal Zwiback (Jewish) and again through the unionization of small industries under our immediate protection and direction.

“First, we gave the entire meat market to our "Sogoz Juz" union.

"My comrade Strusberg (Jewish) was right to say that it is not It is our business to take care of the stability of the moral convictions of Christians and their national solidarity. On the other hand, greed and The betrayal of the goym themselves facilitated the nationalization affair. factories such as Bulione, Polak, Poloschstchouk and others.

"It must be admitted that the commission on preserves known as 'for tea', made with horse meat from dead animals The disease has repeatedly resulted in poisonings by the bacillus. of cimurro (snot). The companion Chaikis (Jew) dreaded the explosion of this epidemic; but, in general, the advantage of these means for our youth, especially thanks to the limitation on the sale of others The products on the market are quite satisfactory.

"Regarding the normal functioning of transport, it is necessary to to know that transport is only organized when necessary, for evacuation the population of localities threatened and invaded by the wave of pogroms. What greatly hinders the functioning of transport is the propagation of major flaw in certain Ukrainian circles, and especially in those that we names "Niezalezniki" (Independents), which are actually and They are surely communists, foreign to us and to our true goals.

“In recent times, we have succeeded in spreading discord.” and the split among the Ukrainian maximalists, which had the effect of to disrupt and weaken this enemy.

"We have decided, these days, to send one of our agents to Human, a named Cschebar (Jewish), known to the companion Israel Koulak (Jewish); he had a mandate to make contact with qualified insurgents, and to take the lead in their movement. With a certain solidarity, The Ukrainians could have had a colossal influence on the peasants.

Today, I can assure you that we are now only at a few steps from our goal. Just a short distance to go, and the The circle of the symbolic serpent — the sign of our people — will be complete.

and the workers, especially now, but we have done everything to to paralyze the development of Ukrainian forces that are hostile to us.

"We will not repeat the mistakes of the 'Protofiz' regarding the Union" Ukrainian.

"Ukrainian intellectuals remained terrorized by the nationalists-" Russian lists, so that they can no longer prevent them from introducing in life our ultimate goals.

"If our colleagues call the French Revolution the second Sinai," Our current economic and financial situation in Ukraine could, quite simply The title, to be called the third Sinai, because we have conceived with all our Soul of our economic omnipotence. Unfortunately, the books of Hussenel, thanks to his treacherous Galician colleagues, managed to get between the hands of Petliura and a small number of Ukrainians, so that our Our goals and secret movements are known to them, as well as the various goals of our global organization.

“But, six companions and colleagues, we can rest easy.” The division of the various parties and then their blindness will cause the mass The Ukrainian will have neither energy nor strength in the fight against us, all at less so in certain branches of economic life. In any case, we we can have access to protective measures. Russian intellectuals, Great-Russians and those called Little Russians, thanks to the hatred that has been kindled under the influence of the companion Ejniskin (Jew) against all things from Ukraine, are ready to serve us, not driven by fear, but of their own free will, solely to create embarrassment for Ukrainians (that is, to the Russians proper and to the Ukrainians) supporters of the Russians against the Ukrainian autonomists).

"You heard the statement of our comrade Tourkestanoff (Jew)," A foolish and biased man, but sincere enough. Therefore, take into consideration... denunciation that similar provisions are found in other few Intelligent and hungry, enemies of the Ukrainian idea. It is certain that These men are not chosen without our involvement in some way. thing.

"The social struggle in Ukraine is being masked by us, that is to say, thanks to to our press; such a struggle appears in the form of the nationality (minority) and vice versa (centralization). This fact produces chaos indescribable, well described in a recent conference on the action of the “Goubprodukt”, by our companions Judilewitsch and Morgunoff (Jews).

"To ideally implement our plan to concentrate all products in our hands (plan of the Moscow Society, founded at the end of 1884), we have greatly contributed to hatred and dissension within the national community Russians, nationalists and internationalists for the Ukrainians.

"The recognition by the Russians of Ukrainian independencenienne, the principle of the anti-Semitic movement and that of the national Church could completely disrupt our plans and force us into major sacrifices.

"On the other hand, thanks to the lack of solidarity among intellectuals"

When this circle is closed, all the states of Europe will be enclosed within its folds as in a powerful vise (1).

Add to this text that the Jews "are preparing the King for the world-"Despot descended from the blood of Zion" (2), that the moment will come crown their "Master of the World" on the ruins of anarchy (3), that this king of the Jews will become the "Patriarch of the World" (4), the “true Pope and Patriarch of the Church international" (5), that this king of the Jews is finally "the Chosen One of God” (6) and “the incarnation of Destiny” (7); consider, on the other hand, that "by the mercy of God, his people were dispersed, and that this dispersion which appeared to the world as a weakness, on the contrary, constituted its strength in the leading to the threshold of universal sovereignty" (8), that already "all the cogs of the State mechanism are driven by a force that is in the hands of the Jews, namely: POr (9,

Ukrainians, thanks to greed, selfishness, and a lack of convictions
We have nothing to fear from Russian intellectuals.
Foolish Russian landowners, led by our press, will be sent,
like sheep to the slaughter, by those who will feed them.

“As a representative of Poale-Sion, I must note with pleasure that the Zionist and Bundist organizations (the Bund is the social-democratic (of the Oriental Jews) have become so many bases of the circle which concentrated within itself all the masses of the Jewish nation and which led all the Russian and Ukrainian animals to the slaughterhouse.

"Consolidating the foundations of our future, we must consider as The first necessity is the organization of a strong, national Jewish society.
imposing with ramifications in all parts and in all the States, to arrive, subsequently, at normal action and development adequate loping.

"Only then will the uninterrupted activity of our (Jewish) nation..." will develop towards a final, historical ideal of the seizure of power global in our hands. May all efforts be directed towards this goal.
our social energy during our two thousand year-long vagabond life.

"RAPPOPORT".

---

(1) M! Jouin: The “Protocols” of the Elders of Zion, p. 43.
(2) Ibid., p. 50.

(3) Ibid., p. 47.

(4) Ibid., p. 109.

(5) Ibid., p. 115.

(6) Ibid., p. 140.

(7) Ibid., p. 142.

(8) Ibid., p. 83.

(9) Ibid., p. 57.

that current government bonds have made of all governments nements the insolvent debtors of the High Jewish Bank (1), that the Press, which "dominates the public mind," has "fallen between the hands" of the Jews (2), that, in order to achieve their goal, they did not will not back down even before the Terror (3), that by ees by these means they will oppress the Christians so much that they will be forced to offer them global hegemony, and that finally it will be the Jewish supergovernment (4); weigh the words and the deeds, and You will understand that the symbolic serpent, more powerful although the runic serpent of the god Thor will encircle, not Europe, but the whole universe (5),
This is the current work of the Jewish people.

3. The Jewish Religion

Thirdly, religion.

The Jewish religion is essentially a messianic question.
naught, and it is this dependence on the Messiah that makes the people
The Jew, the irreconcilable enemy of Christian peoples. For him, the
The religious question ignites the flames of discord for all hatreds and all revolutions. In this sense, Mr. Bernard Lazarus writes:

The Jew is the living testimony to the disappearance of that state which had

---

(1) Ibid., p. 129.

(2) Ibid., p. 43. ;

(3) Ibid., p. 68. | i

(4) Ibid., p. 59.

(5) As the Germans invoked their old God, Thor, the invincibletargeting a warrior, it is curious to bring the Germanic-runic serpent closer together.
of the Judeo-symbolic serpent. We read in the Song of the Sibyl:

"Then will come the illustrious son of Earth (Thor); the firstborn" Odin will come to fight the serpent, and the serpent will succumb to the blows from the defender of Midgard; all men will disappear from world; the victor will stagger away from the monster; he will walk "Nine steps and will fall like the vanquished."

And three stanzas later:

"The Aesir will gather in the field of Mount Ida; they will speak of the immense serpent that encircled the earth and will remember the great works and ancient mysteries of the Most High." (Edelestang) DU MÉRIL: History of Scandinavian Poetry, pp. 110-111; Paris, Brockhaus and Avenarius, 1839).

Of the two serpents, the runic one was in the minds of the poets; but the The Jew is in our way, which is more serious.

at its core theological principles, a state of which Christian anti-Semites They dream of reconstruction. The day the Jew held a civil office, The Christian state has been in peril; this is true, and the anti-Semites who say that the Jews destroyed the notion of the state could more accurately to say that the entry of Jews into society symbolized the destruction of the state, of the Christian state, of course (1).

The author's desires precede events. The State Christianity is only destroyed externally, and the secularization of societies, based on immutable laws, are more apparent than real. But we remember the action of the Jew who "works towards his a centuries-old work: the annihilation of the religion of Christ" (2). Also, the Jew is "always hatefully anti-"Christian," not only as Mr. Bernard Lazare agrees, against the governments of the East, "where an anti-legal Semitism" (3), but against the Christian states of the West tooth, and in particular against France and against the Church Catholic.

Israel enveloped in the same hatred its sons who converted-the Minaeans know, and we read again in the book of Mr. Bernard Lazare:

By deserting the national faith, the Mina people were deserting the fight against Rome and against foreigners; they were traitors to the fatherland, to religion Jewish; they were uninterested in a struggle that was vital for Israel; Gathered around their new churches, they looked with indifferent eyes cause the nation's glory to crumble, its autonomy to disappear, and not only did they not fight against the she-wolf, but they also They irritated the courage of those who listened to them. It was against them, against These anti-patriots, for whom formulas of curses were written; The Jews ostracized them from their society; it was lawful to kill them, as It was permissible to kill "the best of the goim" (4).

In truth, we hardly expected this outcome. The best goim, that is to say Christians, a Saint Francis de Sales, A Saint Vincent de Paul must incur the same hatred as Jews are traitors and apostates, and it is lawful to kill them by the the reason he is "the best." That's the Jew for you, "hateful-"Anti-Christian hatred," a cold, calculated, absolute hatred,

(1) Bernard LAZARE, lib. cit., p. 361.
(2) Bernard Lazare, lib. cit., p. 350.
(3) Bernard LAZARE, lib. cit., p. 351.
(4) Bernard Lazang, lib. cit., p. 290.

embodied in a formula where the condemnation of the masses would be too imprecise, where that of the villain would seem excusable. where all are subject to the same death sentence, since it part of the best, the just, the holy. On reflection, it's the flaw of the Jew. This death sentence for the best of the goim comes from the Calvary, where the Righteous One, the Saint, was nailed to a Cross. With the As a Jew, one must, nevertheless, return to his deicide; his hatred does not It doesn't pursue the worst, but the best. That is the meaning of these words: "As it is lawful to kill the best of the goim" (1).

However, this Talmudic prescription explains precisely the religious hatred of Israel. The Mosaic religion, in fact, does not could not contradict the Christian religion, which has preserved both tablets of the Law of Sinai, including the Canon, more complete than that of the Jews, notes in the Prophets even the smallest characteristics interests of the Messiah, based moreover on his apologetics The Master's words: "Do not think that I have come to abolish the The Law or the Prophets; I have not come to abolish them, but to to accomplish" (2), The law, called the Torah by the Jews, answers to the five books of Moses, the Pentateuch; the Prophets signi-They refer here to the other Books of the Old Testament. "Non veni solvere, sed adimplere"; the word "adimplere" does not mean simply to say that Christ accomplished all that was prophesied of Him in the Scriptures up to the "Sitio" (8), of Calvary, followed by "Consummatum est, all is consumed" (4); but "adimplere" includes the development- the nature of the Jewish religion pushed to its ultimate perfection.

(1) This religious hatred, which no other people is capable of to experience to the same degree as the Jewish people, after having crucified the Christ turned against Paul, the Apostle to the Gentiles. The Jews persecuted him. They traveled from city to city, from country to country, from one part of the world to another, from Damascus to Jerusalem, from Jerusalem to Rome. They incited women against him and his Christian communities. businessmen, pagan soldiers, civil servants, and even Roman governments. They dared to bribe sailors to do it perish during his voyages. The Apetrus already complains, in his Second Epistle to the Corinthians (10:23-33) for having endured imprisonment, the beatings, the floggings, the stoning, three shipwrecks, and these persecuts are often perpetrated by members of his own race, periculis ex genere, and false brothers, periculis in falsis fratribus, that is to say, the doctors Judaizers, who were the irreconcilable adversaries of Saint Paul.

(2) Matthew, 5, 17.

(3) Joan., xix, 26.

(4) Joan., xix, 30.

"Jesus," writes one commentator, "will realize in his person the figures and prophecies; by freeing the Law from interpretations human actions that altered her mind, he will bring her back to her divine ideal; and thus, the new covenant will be established on the old one as if on a divinely prepared base; to the The flower will naturally succeed the fruit, without any abolition not overthrow, but flourishing and progress" (1), This progress in fact the "law of love", formulated by Jesus Himself even in these terms:

You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul and with all your mind.

This is the greatest and first commandment.

And the second is like it: You shall love your neighbor as yourself. Inth.

In these two commandments are contained the whole Law and the Prophets (2).

Thus, the Law and the Prophets, which summarize the Jewish religion, are condensed in the twofold precept of God's charity and of the next. The old Law is complemented by the new; but, while the first lingers in the messiah- The second, nique, flourishes in the fulfillment of promises. of the Messiah; however, the two were never opposed as principles or as morality. Therefore, it is not the law of Moses, who makes the Jew the enemy of the Christian, but his interpretationtation; to such an extent that, according to the words of David, "the Table of "The Law has become a snare for the Jews" (3), because they have altered and disfigured it through adultery and impious transformations. tions; it is the Talmud (4).

The detailed study of the Talmud and the numerous quotations that we will have to borrow from him, they are part of all our work on Judeo-Masonry considered from the threefold point of view of the Counter-Church, Counter-State, and Counter-Morality. It is us

(1) Aug. CRAMPON, The Holy Bible, vi, 21; Paris, Desclée, nd — Cf. Cl. FILLION, La Sainte Bible, xx, 109; Paris, Lethielleux, 1895.

(2) Matthew, 21:38-40.

(3) Ps., Lxvinr, 23. Cf. Rom., x1, 9.

(4) We will talk about the Talmud, the Shulchan Aruch and the Kahal in the second part of this study, which will deal specifically with the Judeo-Freemasonry under the title of Counter-Church. These three sources are a distortion. the interpretation of the Mosaic religion which makes the Jew the enemy of the Christian, It is his irreligion, his anti-Christianity, which does not date back to Sinai. but of Calvary.

It suffices to establish here, within an eclectic framework, a few striking connections between the Talmud and the "Protocols", of so that the authentic veracity of this document finds its written demonstration in the Talmudic books is also clear-

His critical certainty emerges from the events of the present time.

The Talmud and the "Protocols"

The Judeo-Masonic plan of the "Protocols" includes a goal: global hegemony; a means: Por; a result: the Jewish supergovernment. Goal, means, and result are all found in Talmudic books.

No doubt, the Talmudic lifers were not at their apparition as corrupt as they later became. In the letter from the Cardinal of Cremona to Cardinal Palotta, in Vienna, in In 1629, we read:

> It is true, or at least some believe so, that among the Among the early authors of the Talmud, some wrote a good doctrine and in accordance with the mysteries of our holy religion Christian (1).

Also, the Mishnah, completed around the second century, does not Doesn't it present the deviations of the Gemara, which was not than in the fifth; and in this last composition, the The Babylonian Talmud is far more depraved than that of Jerusalem. That is why the Cardinal of Cremona continues his letter in these terms:

> However, those who wrote after them corrupted this doctrine. and the writers who followed have so corrupted and spoiled everything things that each of the volumes contains, not only outrages and execrable blasphemies against Jesus Christ, our Savior, fables and lies that corrupt the true meaning of Holy Scripture, but also precepts and commandments contrary to the law even from Moses, to all the rights of people and to all natural laws that they are, as ordinary men, obliged to observe (2).

Universal Domination

Moreover, this compilation of rabbinic sayings was already being transmitted orally in the time of Our Lord; she

---

(1) Analecta Juris Pontificii, 4 series, vol. II, col. 1,417. We give this important letter is in the Appendices.

(2) Eod. loc.

it belongs to the Pharisaic school, and it was often condemned by the divine Master. The goal of the Jewish people was indeed domination universal in the sense of the materialist exegesis of Pharisees, to whom Christ replied when they asked him when the kingdom of God comes: “The coming of the kingdom God's will not be seen. It will not be said, "He is here or there; for, behold, the kingdom of God is in the midst of you” (1). This was the opposition to the spiritual reign of the Church to the Pharisaical expectation of a conquering and founding Messiah of a universal empire.

Needless to say, Jesus was not understood, not even by his disciples, since on Easter evening the two travelers The people of Emmaus told him: "We were hoping that it was he who was to redeem Israel” (2), and that the Apostles themselves, at At the time of his Ascension, they were still asking him this question: "Has the time come when you will restore the kingdom?" of Israel?” (3). It is this earthly kingdom that the Jews and what the Talmud promises after the ruin of the Church Catholic. To mold the Jewish mentality with these false ideas Messianism encompasses the entire effort of the Talmudic rabbis, who distinguish between Jesus, son of Joseph, and Messiah of misery, and the glorious Messiah who will be the true son of David.

> The Messiah, writes Drach, a converted rabbi, whom the Jews persist in waiting, despite his stubborn refusal to come, must be a great conqueror who will enslave all the nations of the world Jews, these will return to the Holy Land triumphant and laden with gifts. riches taken from the infidels. Jerusalem will be adorned with a new Temple... the smallest stones will be made of diamond (4).

---

(1) Luke, xvi, 20-21.

(2) Luke, xxiv, 21.

(3) Acts of the Apostles, 1, 6. |

(4) The knight P.-L.-B. DRACH: On the Harmony between the Church and the Synagogue, 1, 98; Paris, Mellier, 1844. The author adds: “We dedicate-
We will create a chapter on the extravagances that the rabbis spout at this subject ".

We read in the Analecta Juris Pontificii (I, col. 772):

“These religious and moral doctrines of the Pharisaic sect in which subsequently led to the perdition of all the Jews who were unfaithful to the Savior's call, are found in the Talmud. Rabbi Moses, reporting on the a compilation of this book, written: "The motive that led our holy master to "The fact that he did this meant that he saw the number of students decrease and the workload and the "adversities; an evil kingdom (the Church) was rising and dominating the

Let us open the Talmud itself to find some assertions about the messianic reign and world empire of Jews:

The Messiah will return to the Jews the royal scepter of the world, all peoples will serve him and all kingdoms will be subject to him (1).

Then each Jew will have 2,800 servants and 310 worlds (2).

But this era will be preceded by a great war in which the Two-thirds of the people will perish. It will take the Jews seven years to burn the conquered weapons (3).

The famous rabbi Maimonides also believed in the empire temporal power of the Jews throughout the world (4),

The teeth of Israel's former enemies will grow from their mouths and will reach a length of 22 ells (5).

The Messiah will receive gifts from all peoples and he will refuse only those of the Christians (6).

~

\
Moreover, since Israel and divine majesty signify the "world, and Israel was transferred to the ends of the earth." The subordination of the law revealed to oral tradition, and, to put it more precisely, Abandoning the first for the second is the characteristic error of Talmudists. They say that the study of the Talmud takes precedence over that of the

The Bible, that it is more meritorious. Rabbi Isaac Abuaf teaches that the
The foundation of the Jewish religion is in the oral law (that is to say the doctrines of the Pharisees) and not in that of Moses. Other rabbis, Among them, Abarbanel, say that the oral law of the Talmud corrected the flaws in Moses' Gospel, and clarified its obscurities. The rabbis decreed anathema against anyone who did not believe in the divine origin of their oral law."

(1) Tract. Kethuboth, fol. 111b; Leaflet. Sab., fol. 30 bs; Leaflet.
Sanhedrin, fol. 88b and 99a. In the first two treatises, we read:
"When the Messiah comes, the earth will produce cakes, clothes of wool and wheat, the grains of which will be as big as two kidneys of the largest ox."

(2) Jalqût Simeoni, fol. 56, and Bachai, fol. 168. Cf. Tract. Sanhedrin, fol. 101 a. For Talmudic references, see especially: Aug.
ROHLING, The Talmudic Jew, trans. Max. de Lamarque; Brussels, Vromant, 1888, and I.-B. Pranaitis, Christianus in Talmude Judæorum, Petropoli, 1892. Moreover, we will find the same lesson in our translation of the Schulchan Aruch. Cf. Rev. intern. des Soc. secr., Vu, 433-437.

(3) Abarbanel, Masmia Jesua, fol. 49 a.

(4) Perus Ha-misna ad Tract. Sab. 1. c.

(5) Othioth d'Rabbi 'Aqiba, 5, 3.

(6) Tract. Pesachim, fol. 118 b.

Likewise, according to the Talmud, it strictly follows that The whole world belongs to the Jews. The following text in contains a formal declaration: '

If a Jew's ox strikes a foreigner's ox, the Jew shall be free (that is, irresponsible); but if a stranger's ox does harm to the Jew's ox, the foreigner will be obliged to return to the Jew all the Too bad; for, as Scripture says, God measured the earth, and he gave the Goim to the Jews. He sees the seven commandments of the children of Noah, and Because they did not observe them, he arose and delivered up their possessions to the Israelites (1).

The children of Noah include, according to the Talmud (2). and the other rabbis (3), all the peoples of the earth, in opposition with the children of Abraham. Also, Rabbi Albo (4) and Others, along with him, do not hesitate to say "that God has given to "Jews have power over the wealth and lives of all peoples."

The Analecta Juris Pontificii rightly state:

In accordance with the idea of the Pharisaic school which rejected the true Messiah and his spiritual redemption, the Thalmud commands us to believe that he A great conqueror will appear under this name, who is to found a powerful empire. subjugate enemy nations, destroy all religions dominant, and particularly Christianity. This is the main article of the Talmudic belief. Saint Jerome, who knew the Jewish doctrine, interpreting the passage in Daniel about the small stone who breaks the statue, says: "The Jews who rejected Jesus Christ interpret–they held this stone up in their favor, and convinced themselves that it designated the people of Israel who would be powerful enough towards the end of the centuries to to overthrow all the kingdoms of the earth and reign himself in perpetuity "Tuité." Rabbi Abarbanel, discussing chapter 30 of Jeremiah, said that he refers to the reign of the Messiah awaited by the Jews, in which it will be done a total extermination of Christians and Gentiles. Forbidden. to fix the time of the Messiah's coming. The Talmudic Jews, says one writers, see and expect nothing but the sound of weapons, expeditions Military forces, the devastation of provinces, the overthrow of empires, and victory over all nations, thus paving the way for their glorious return in Jerusalem and the restoration of their former glory. All the Rabbinic commentaries are full of these ideas, which they order to

---

(1) Tract. Baba Qamma, fol. 37 b.

(2) Tract. Meggilld, fol. 18b; Leaflet. Segalim, fol. 7a; Leaflet. Soté, fol. 36 b.

(3) Sepher Cad Ha–qemach, fol. 56, col. 4, and Bachai, ad Genes, 46, 27.

(4) Sepher Halfqqarim, III, xxv, and Jalqût Simeoni, ad Heb., fol. 83, col. 3, no. 568.

to transmit and instill in the entire nation of Israel to prepare it for such a happy event for her and so terrible for all the others nations. which they hope to subjugate and reduce to slavery (1).

But it will be objected that if the accession to this universal empire through the control of states, their upheaval, wars and The total ruin of the world can form the theme of a dream. oriental and haunting the brain of a rabbi, it's a tale of One Thousand and One Nights, which could not pass in the domain historical. Let's not jump to conclusions so hastily.

First, this Talmudic dream has nurtured the hopes of Israel since over 2,000 years. If it were entirely illusory, it would not have It withstood wear and tear and the realities of time. Then, the Talmud promises final triumph to the Jews without mobilization A completely useless warrior against humankind. The great the means of action is the same in the Talmud as in the “Protocols”: that’s POR.

Jewish Gold

We have already mentioned above that in the days of the dispersion, as a result of the various captivities of the Jewish people, Agriculture was undervalued in favor of trade and stock trading. The Talmud did not neglect a teaching if rich in benefits for its nation and so in line with its capabilities Jewish; and, while Rabbi Eleazar said, "There is no "A worse profession than agriculture," Rabbi Rabb added: “All the harvests in the world are not worth trade” (2). These simple words recorded in the Talmud elevate to the the height of a religious precept, the vocation of Israel, already represented by the golden calf. To dispel any qualms about usury, of theft, speculation, and high banking, it was logical that The Talmud attributed to the Jews, by God's will, all the possessions of the earth; and the Analecta highlight the following maxim of Talmudists: i

The properties of the Christian Gentiles are, and they are reputed to be a desert, or like the sands of the sea; whoever occupies them first, will be the legitimate possessor (3).

---

(1) Analecta Juris Pontificii, 1, col. 773; art. of HEYMANS, Brussels, 1849.

(2) Jebhamoth, 1. 63, 1. See above p. 34.

(3) Analecta Juris Pont., I, col. 774.

Maimonides, the eagle of the Synagogue and the greatest man who has appeared since Moses, wrote in his commentary on Chapter X of the Mishnah:

> It is already obvious in itself that the foreign traveler Judaism, which dies without leaving proselytizing sons, is considered without heirs; and whoever first takes possession of his property in will be deemed the legitimate owner.

Always starting from this principle that the whole world belongs to the Jews; the same rabbi, Maimonides, writes that The commandment, "Thou shalt not steal," means that one does not must not steal from a man, that is to say a Jew (1); but he has care to teach something other than the enjoyment of a stolen thing to a non-Jew is permitted (2).

Naturally, "it is permissible to deceive a goi and to to practice usury against him” (3). Restitution is unlawful: "He who returns to the goi what the latter has lost will not find thanks be to God,” for “it is good to give thanks to God.” what he lost" (4).

Maimonides also wrote:

> God commanded us to practice usury towards a non-Jew and not to lend to him of money only in the case where he grants us interest, so that at Instead of helping him, we must harm him, even when it is useful to us (5).

Here's another quote, this one from Rabbi Schwabe:

> If a Christian needs money, the Jew will know how to deceive him like a master; He will add usurious interest to usurious interest, until the sum be so high that a Christian cannot pay it without selling his possessions or until the sum rises to a few hundred or a few thousands according to wealth, and that the Jew begins to file a lawsuit and obtain from the judges the right to take possession of the property of Christian (6).

Instead of a Christian, put a Christian state; instead of a Jewish, put a consortium of dedicated Jewish High-Bank

(1) Sepher Ha-mizvoth.

(2) Jad Chaz., hilch Geneba, 1.

(3) Tract. Baba Bathra, fol. 54 b. See Chosen Mispat, 156, 1.

(4) Tract. Sanhedrin, fol. 76 b, and Tract. Baba Qamma, fol. 113 b.

(5) Sepher mizv., f. 73, 4.

(6) Jud. Deckmantel, p. 171.

In Talmudic financial operations, you will soon an insolvent public debt, the Jewish market will hold the market values and he will realize, what is more serious, the purchase and the decline places, the press, consciences, souls, and for the body, alas! it will be the white slave trade. Isn't that the The plan of the "Protocols"? And what state today doesn't leaning over the edge of this Judeo-Masonic abyss? The serpent Symbolism completes its fatal cycle; where does it come from? From Talmud. What is its name? The Supergovernment of Israel. eS

The Jewish Supergovernment

This Supergovernment is based, according to the "Protocols", Deceit and hypocrisy. These are indeed the principles of the Talmud.

Cunning and lies are particularly prevalent in the oaths of the Jews who are only following the example of their rabbis. 'Aqiba took an oath and thought to himself that he was not valid (1). Jochanam deceived a noble lady at subject of a secret, saying: "To the God of Israel, I do not want to reveal it”; the lady believed that the rabbi was making a commitment before God, while these words meant: “To the God of Israel I will say nothing, but I will reveal it to the people of Israel” (2). According to rabbinic doctrine, mental restraint is sufficient to annul the oath, and it is permitted whenever a A Jew must lend it, even before the law (3). Moreover, the On Yom Kippur, or the Day of Atonement, a simple prayer releases the Jews of all vows, contracts, oaths violated in the year, so that they are never perjured nor in the obligation to repair the harm of which they are guilty (4).

As for hypocrisy, let us quote this simple excerpt from the Analecta:

Another maxim of Pharisaism is hypocrisy. Chapter 23 of Saint Matthew reveals several of the reasons why Our Lord

(1) Tract. Calla II.

(2) Tract. Abod. Zar., fol. 28 a, and Tract. Jomma, fol. 84 a.

(3) Jore Ded, para. 232, 12 and 14.

(4) We do not dwell on Talmudic doctrine in this overview In general, since we need to go into more detail. Here again The diplomatic application of these principles makes all treaties "scraps of paper," and the Treaty of Versailles "a rag," according to Colonel Reinhardt's statement, 4 Berlin. (Headline of L'Action) French, March 23, 1921).

accused the Pharisees of this vice so harmful to society. Agreed with Their masters, the Talmudists, approve of hypocrisy, if it provides some advantage or that it prevents harm; in short, they granttooth for greed, which would be reprehensible otherwise. The rabbi Ascer, speaking of the conduct of the Jews towards the Gentiles, openly said to disregard the rabbis' prohibitions for the sake of some gain. This Hypocrisy breeds adulation towards Christians, protests loyalty, benevolence, and other simulated declarations for the purpose to ensnare others in their web. Rabbinic books approve these diabolical artifacts. In the marginal additions of the Thalmud, the Rabbis object and say: "We can still..." to rely on the foundation expressed in the Talmud of Jerusalem, at The subject of the words in the Mishnah that forbid commerce. The question is asked. Whose words in the Mishnah are they referring to? The answer is that they refertooth the goi, of which the Jew has no knowledge, and which he is moreover It is permissible to trade with the well-known Gentile, because the Jew adores him. Another tradition still exists there. If a Hebrew enters a city and finds there goim rejoicing, he will join in their rejoicing, because that this adulation will earn him their favor.” If we are to believe Davity, The rabbis, authors of the general description of Asia, had for the maxim of allowing their coreligionists to profess externally-Christianity, Islam, and any other religion when their interest demanded it, provided they had inwardly the firm * willingness to die in the synagogue (1).

How many Talmudic sayings illustrate these attitudes of treason :

Man must always be cunning in the fear of God (2).

Hypocrisy, says Rabbi Bachai, is permitted when the Jew has need and that he has reason to fear. Let him honor the non-Jew and say to him: "I love you" (3).

Are such principles of cunning and hypocrisy the solid foundations of a State and can they support the Super-A Jewish government? We're not convinced. But they ensure the decomposition and ruin of peoples, in their introducing, little by little, anarchism, socialism, Bolshevisme. Isn't this the implementation of the precepts of Talmud, according to which "the most honest of men must be killed"

(1) Analecta Juris Pontif. I, col. 776.
(2) Tract. Berach., fol. 17 a.
(3) Sepher Cad Ha-quemach, fol. 30 a.m.

idolaters?" (1). Precepts that summarize the Jewish religion in this commandment:

He who sheds the blood of the wicked (that is, non-Jews) offers a sacrifice to God (2).

This is practically the formula for the absolution of massacres in Petrograd, Moscow, and Budapest. Wouldn't that be not also the announcement of the Asian invasion by Mr. Gaudin de Villaine recently spoke to the Senate in these terms:

What needs to be acknowledged, and what is too often overlooked in France, is that Bolshevism is undergoing a considerable metamorphosis;
He ceases to be a Marxist and becomes a Hunnic; proclaiming to the world the dangerous formula: "Asia for Asians", he is preparing in the steppe, as I said two years ago from this very podium, one of these monstrous tidal bores of the barbaric world against civilization, analogous to the one who once conquered the Roman Empire. Just like the Huns. Attila's forces led the world in their formidable exodus westward. Germanic, current Bolshevism hopes, in passing, to make itself escorted by the Germans, after having broken through the thin polo- barrier naise. For the common goal, Lenin proclaimed it in his speech of Last November 2nd in Moscow, it was the destruction of France. And here Once again, I will quote from my speech of March 26th of last year, because, there again, I was right. You You will see if next summer does not bring about the reality of what I am going to reading your comments:

"It's for next summer," I added, "once Russo-Asian unity is achieved." under the bloody rule of Lenin and Trotsky; the Tartar Empire reconstructed from the Arctic Ocean to the Caspian Sea and from the Pacific to the Black Sea, the invasion of 4 to 5 million Tartars, Slavs, Chinese, Muslims, transported by our neighbors from Germany and coming to defeat the Rhine ditch (3). |

So, if the immediate result is not the Supergovern- the establishment of Israel will certainly be the ruin of Catholic countries. liques tortured by Bolshevism, and, until the hour of the God's revenge: the survivors will remain slaves, the

---

(1) Tract. Abod. Zar., fol. 26 b. Cf. Tosaphoth a I and Masech. Sopharim, pereq. 16.

(2) Jalqût Simeoni ad Pent., fol. 245, col. 3, and Midderas Bamidebar rabbâ, p. 21.

(3) Official, March 23, 1921, Parliamentary Debates, Senate session of March 22, p. 274.

outcasts, the waves of Jews, these masters of the universe, if not by the final grip of their autocratic domination, at least through the possession of the world's gold and the oppression of their formidable diabolical tyranny. Stronger than Islamism and paganism, the The Talmud would then have momentarily triumphed over the Gospel.

The Talmud and the Revolution

It will no doubt be objected that the Church has the following on its side: eternal promises—that's true; however, these promises are not attached to any people. Where to find the communities Christian communities of the East, so flourishing in the early centuries of Christianity? Battered by the storm of the eternal perse- cuts which also fall under the category of eternal promises, the Church's boat can reach other shores; and, whatever However inconceivable such upheavals may seem, they do not are neither impossible nor even unfounded, since they respond to the Judeo-Masonic goal of de-Christianizing the European states still faithful to the faith of their fathers, but already suppressed by secular laws that brutally separate them from Rome, who cast God into exile, and who rely on interfaith collusion which we have felt the harmful effects are even more pronounced in peacetime than in wartime. Mr. Gaudin de Villaine pointed out these anti- infiltrations Catholics in the speech we quoted earlier:

The prevailing directive, he said, imposed on Mr. Wilson by the sect- Judeo-Protestant Islam was to oppose by all means a any intervention by the papacy in peace works worldwide, to protect the unity of the Protestant powers, also by all means and, first and foremost, German unity — you do not You haven't forgotten — to fight relentlessly and in all forms Catholic interests in Europe. And, in these obscure works, Mr. Lloyd George was the most loyal lieutenant of the American President.

Hence the merciless terror in Ireland. Will you find a single a Masonic, non-Catholic leaflet that defends this today Is Ireland, a country ravaged by violence?

Hence the insidious opposition to the reconstitution of Poland, without concern for the security of Europe. You know what events are would have been produced last year — which may well be reproduced this year — without Mr. Millerand's foresight.

Hence the possibility for Orthodox Greece to re-establish its government monarchical system, although the monarch is an enemy of France.

Hence, on the contrary, the opposition to the reconstitution of Austria-

Hungary under the rule of a prince who is a recognized friend of France.
The failure of the separate peace in 1917 had the same causes. I will not dwell on it.
Not for the moment on this issue, because we will have to come back to it.

Finally, the Zionist and anti-French work in Palestine is a last a distant and shameful echo of this campaign across the world against French interests (1).

The religious war against French interests is shaking the throughout the world, and, whatever the Protestant forms, socialists, laborists, Freemasons, Sovietists, or Jews Whatever guise it adopts, it derives immorality from its principles, the
The barbarity of its means, the nihilism of its effects, as described in the Talmud, fundamental code of all antisocial forces which do not enter the human fray, as noted recently Mr. Lloyd George(2), that to accumulate ruins. The Talmudic Jew played the role of poisoner audience.

So we will believe we are making progress by opposing the Talmudic Jew
The reformist Jew. Profound error. All Jews are Talmudic.
dists from a national point of view, if they are no longer so from the point from a religious point of view; and, for this reason, all the Jews are revolted.
tionaries and Bolsheviks. The High Bank provides the funds, like Schiff for Russia; the ringleaders, the fanatics, the common people, executioners whose human hands do not more than inhumane tasks, the plebeians finally rise up and lead the revolutions. Such an accusation will seem Exaggerated. It's not ours, it's a Jew's, Mr. Bernard.
Lazarus. He too observes that the Talmud, which contains "the selfish, ferocious and nationalistic precepts directed against the foreigners," that the Talmud, "which was for the Jews a code, an expression of their nationality, a code that was their soul and by which these statements, cruel or narrow, acquire a force, if not legal, at least moral," that the Talmud is not plus the bedside book of the reformist Jew.

"Among Western Jews," he writes, "among the Jews of France, of An-England, Italy, among a large part of the German Jews, this Intolerant aversion to foreigners has disappeared. The Talmud is no longer read.
by these Jews, and Talmudic morality, at least national morality
The Talmud no longer has any hold on them. They no longer observe the six hundred

---

(1) Official, loc. cit., p. 272.
(2) Speech of 23 March to the Parliamentary Group of the New members of the coalition.

Thirteen laws, they lost the horror of defilement, a horror that they retained
The Eastern Jews; most of them no longer know Hebrew; they have forgotten the meaning of the ancient ceremonies; they transformed rabbi- Judaism nic, in a religious rationalism; they abandoned the observances familiar, and the practice of religion is reduced for them to passing a few hours a year in a synagogue, listening to hymns that they no longer hear. They cannot cling to a dogma, to a symbol: they have none; by abandoning Talmudic practices, They abandoned what constituted their unity, what contributed to forming their spirit. The Talmud had formed the Jewish nation after its dispersion; thanks to him, individuals from diverse backgrounds had formed a people; he had been the mold of the Jewish soul, the creator of the race; he And the restrictive laws of these societies had shaped the Jew. The legislations With the Talmud abolished and scorned, it seems that the Jewish nation had to inevitably die, and yet Western Jews are still Jews. They are Jews because they have kept alive and vibrant their national consciousness; they still believe they are a nation, and Believing this, they preserve themselves. When the Jew ceases to be conscious
He disappears from his nationality; as long as he has this awareness, he endures.
He no longer has religious faith, he no longer practices, he is irreligious, he is sometimes an atheist, but he remains so because he believes in his race.
He has retained his national pride; he still imagines himself to be an individual.
higher duality, a being different from those around it, and this His conviction prevents him from assimilating, because, being always exclusive, he refuses generally, to intermarry with the surrounding peoples.
Modern Judaism claims to be nothing more than a religious denomination;
but he is still in reality an ethnos, since he believes himself to be one, since he has retained its prejudices, its selfishness and its vanity as a people, belief, prejudices, selfishness and vanity that make him appear as a stranger to peoples in whose midst it subsists" (1).

However, this national consciousness, which a modern school deco-would rather be called the subconscious, a fact of every Jew, in At the same time, and sometimes without his knowledge, a stranger and a revolt-tionary. The following pages are too conclusive for abbreviate them:

As for their actions, Mr. Bernard Lazare also writes, and their influence In contemporary socialism, it was and, as we know, is very strong. large; one could say that Jews are at both poles of society contemporary. They were among the founders of industrial capitalism and financial, and they protested with the utmost vehemence against this capital. Rothschild corresponds to Marx and Lassalle; in the struggle for money, the fight against money, and the cosmopolitanism of the speculator becomes proletarian and revolutionary internationalism. It is Marx who gave impetus to Internationalism through the manifesto of 1847, written by him and Engels, not that one can say that he "founded" the International, as affirmed by those who still consider the International like a secret society whose leaders were the Jews, because many causes led to the formation of the International, but Marx was the inspiration behind the workers' meeting held in London in 1864, and from which emerged the association. Jews were numerous in it, and in the general council only we find Karl Marx, secretary for Germany and for the Russia, and James Cohen, secretary for Denmark (1). Many Jews affiliated with the International later played a role during the Commune (2) where they met other coreligionists.

---

(1) Bernard Lazare, lib. cit, p. 291-293.

As for the organization of the socialist party, the Jews contributed to it powerfully. Marx and Lassalle in Germany (3), Aaron Libermann and Adler in Austria, Dobrojanu Ghérea in Romania, Gompers, Kahn and Lion in the United States of America, were or still are directors or initiators. Russian Jews must occupy a place except in this brief summary. The young students, barely escaped from ghetto, participated in the nihilistic agitation; some – among the-which women sacrificed their lives to the cause of emancipation, and to Alongside these Jewish doctors and lawyers, the masses must be placed a considerable number of refugee artisans who founded in London and New-York, major working-class settlements, propaganda centers socialist and even anarchist communist (4).

---

(1) Besides Marx and Cohen, we can mention Neumayer, secretary of the Austrian Correspondence Office; Freiburg, which was one of the directors of the Parisian Federation of [International which made part of Loeb, Haltmayer, Lazare and Armand Lévi; Léon Frankel who led the German section in Paris; Cohen, who was a delegate of the Associationciation of the London Cigar Makers at the International Congress held at Brussels in 1868; Ph. Coenen, who was a delegate to the same Congress Antwerp section of the International, etc.'(See: O. TESTUT: The Internationaltionale, Paris, 1871, and the Internationale outlawed by Europe, Paris, 1871-1872. Fribourg: The International Workingmen's Association, Paris, 1891).

(2) Among others, Fribourg and Léo Frankel.

(3) There are still four Jewish Social Democratic deputies in the Reichstag German; and, among the young socialists, collectivists and communists Among the anarchists, there were many Jews. We should also mention, among the reformers... Austrian amateurs, Dr. Hertzka, the promoter of the colony of Freeland, an essay on social organization. See A Journey to Free Land, pan Theodor Hertzkka; Paris, Léon Chailley, publisher.

(4) In April 1891, the revolutionary Israelites of London celebrated the anniversary of the founding of their Berner Street club. "Since "Seven years," declared the speaker, who then recounted the history of the Jewish social movement,

I have therefore very briefly outlined the revolutionary history of the Jews, I have at least tried to indicate how it could be undertaken; I showed how they proceeded ideologically and actively. how they were among those who prepared the revolution through thought, and those who translate it into action. It will be objected that by becoming The revolutionary Jew most often becomes an atheist and thus ceases to be Jewish. It is only in a certain way, especially in this sense, that the children of the revolutionary Jew blend into the population that surrounds, and that, consequently, the revolutionary Jews assimilate more easily; but in general the Jews, even revolutionaries, have They retained the Jewish spirit, and if they abandoned all religion and all faith, they nonetheless, they have been subjected, atavistically and educationally, to the influence Jewish national. This is especially true for the Israelite revolutionaries. who lived in the first half of this century, including Heinrich Heine and Karl Marx offers us two good models.

Heine, who was considered in France as a German, and to whom, in Germany, criticized for being French, was first and foremost Jewish. That's because that he was Jewish, that he celebrated Napoleon, and that he had enthusiasm for Caesar Siasm of the German Israelites, liberated by imperial will. His Ironically, his disenchantment is similar to disenchantment and to the irony of Ecclesiastes; he has, like Kohelet, a love of life and of earthly joys, and, before being overcome by illness and pain, he He considered death to be the worst of evils. Heine's mysticism stems from the ancient Job, and the only philosophy that ever truly attracted him was the pantheism, the natural doctrine to the metaphysical Jew who speculates on the unity of God and transforms it into a unity of substance. Finally, its sensualism, this sad and voluptuous sensualism of the Intermezzo, is purely oriental, and its origins are said to be found in the Song of Songs.

The same is true for Marx. This descendant of a line of rabbis and of doctors inherited all the logical strength of his ancestors; he was a a lucid and clear Talmudist, untroubled by silly minutiae from practice, a Talmudist who studied sociology, and applied his He possessed innate qualities as an exegete in the critique of political economy. He was animated by that old Hebrew materialism which perpetually dreamed of a paradise realized on earth and always repelled the distant and problematic the hope of an Eden after death; but it was not only a A logician, he was also a rebel, an agitator, a fierce polemicist, and he took his gift for sarcasm and invective, where Heine had taken it: to Jewish sources.

We could still show what Boerne, what Lassalle, what

Jewish revolutionaries appeared, and, wherever there are Jews, to London, America, Australia, Poland, and Russia, there are "Revolutionary and anarchist Jews." (Speaking of seven years, he means especially to talk about the date of entry of Jewish proletarians into the movement revolutionary).

Moses Hess and Robert Blum drew on their Hebrew origins, as did for Israel, and thus we would have proof of persistence, among the thinkers, of the Jewish spirit, that Jewish spirit which we have already pointed out in Montaigne and Spinoza. But if writers, scholars, the Jewish poets, philosophers, and sociologists have preserved this spirit, is the same true of this mass which, currently, comes to Socialism or anarchy? Here, a distinction must be made. Those I'm talking about, these Jews from London, the United States of America, Holland, Germany Magne, from Australia, accept revolutionary doctrines because they are proletarians, because they belong to the class now in struggle with capital and, if they commit to revolution, they do so by by virtue of the social laws that drive them. Thus, they do not provoke the revolution, they adhere to it, they follow it and do not generate it, and yet-within these workers' groups, detached from the old faith, having abandoned all religion, all belief even, no longer being Jewish in the sense Religious in the sense of the word, are Jewish in the national sense. Those of London and the United States who abandoned their country of origin, fleeing Poland and especially in Russia where they are persecuted, they have federated among themselves; they formed groups that are represented at workers' congresses under the name of "Jewish-speaking groups"; they speak a Germanic jargon Mandarin mixed with Hebrew, and not only do they speak it, but they also publish their newspapers and they print them in Hebrew characters (1).
It will be objected that, driven from their homeland and arriving in a country whose They didn't know the language, they were forced to unite, and they continued quite naturally to use the Hebrew-Germanic language which was familiar to them-to link; this objection is quite valid, but it must be noted that in other countries, such as Holland and Galicia, the national working Jews also form special associations (2).

So, the Jew takes part in the revolution, and he takes part in it as Jewish, that is to say, remaining Jewish (3).

This brief outline of race, nationality, and the The religion of Israel is enough to make a Jew a separate being who, despite all the atmospheres, all the environments, all the latitudes, all the fortunate or critical circumstances that it

(1) In London, one of these newspapers is published: Der Arbeiter Freund; In New York, two were published, one of which was a daily: Die Arbeiter Zeitung, and a weekly magazine: Frei Arbeiter Stimme; in addition, a magazine is published monthly: Die Zukunft. These newspapers are either socialist or communist. nists-anarchists.

(2) The Jewish socialists of Holland publish a newspaper whose title Ons' Blad is the organ of the Jewish socialists. The socialist workers Galician Jews publish a newspaper in Hebrew characters in Lemberg. and in Hebrew-Germanic jargon: The Truth.

(3) Bernard Lazare, lib. cit., p. 343 et seq.

Having crossed it, one remains forever a stranger; and, from this This threefold study reveals that, even in the absence of his lost religion, of his vanished nationality, of his fallen race, there is at most deep within himself such an atavistic formation, that to decisive hours, everything rises from his heart to his brain intoxicatingly fueled by the eternal hopes of his fathers, incessantly on the march to conquer the world, and all the ancestral hatreds-trales which, for twenty centuries, have repeated the clamor of the Calvary: "May his blood fall upon us and upon our children" (1:! The Jew is always a Jew, his thought is Talmudic-his despotic will and his deicidal arm. As long as he does not will not kneel at the foot of Christ's cross, he will remain the enemy of humanity.

(To be continued).
E. JOUIN,
Prelate of His Holiness,
Parish priest of Saint-Augustin.

(1) Matthew, 27:25.

APPENDICES

I
Jews and the 'Protocols'

The Jews fought the "Protocols," first by suppressing pressure, then through negation. This dual attitude... raises serious doubts concerning the authenticity of. this famous document; and, in any case, undeniable certainties of its veracity. Israel is caught in its own trap.

The Jewish Suppression of the "Protocols"

Let us briefly recall that in Russia, the Nilus edition was published in 1917 was burned in a train station, and that the Jew Kerensky, having arrived at power, had all copies of the "Protocols" in Petrograd and Moscow (1). In Poland, one tried the same game, and the translator had to keep his name secret for save his life. Similar attempts took place in Germany. Magne and England (2). Finally, the following article from our The New York correspondent is the irrefutable confirmation of the first Jewish tactic opposed to the "Protocols".

The Protocols of the Elders of Zion and Independence American

The famous "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion were brought in America by a Russian officer, Captain A..., towards the end

---

(1) M& Jouin, The “Protocols” of the Elders of Zion, p. 4; Paris, Emile-Paul, 100, Faubourg Saint-Honoré.

(2) More powerful in England than in other countries, the Jews tried to get the authorities to suppress the "Protocols". See La Vieille France, no. 170, May 6, 1920, p. 20.

from 1917. The copy was one of the volumes in the 1917 edition. that Kerensky had burned at Moscow train station.

MS of New York, to whom the book was given, had it translated from Russian to English by his secretary, Ms. B..., and in order to see what would the reaction be on a racially American for whom the Jewish question did not exist, he had the translation to an American officer, Captain H..., who was serving during the war in "Military Intelligence". (Service secret, equivalent to the 2nd Bureau).

It seems that reading this document had an immediate effect about this man who found it urgent to submit him to his superiors. He therefore had a few copies made, two of which were one was given to the War Office, and the other at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs (State Department) Washington, by MH Carpenter.

At the same time, this Mr. Carpenter who still had a copy had shown it to some of her friends, including a lawyer from Washington, MRB... He had it in his hands for a very short period of time, but having understood the im-the weight of the Zionist plan, had used his dictaphone and had acquired in this way the majority of the first eight "Protocols":

In January 1919, this lawyer showed these fragments to friends, and everyone worked together to obtain the copy complete with the "Protocols" from Nilus's book and to find Captain H... who had them. Strangely enough, this officer had been moved, and at the Ministry of War, his whereabouts were unknown. address, or so it was claimed.

Attempts were made with a Ministry official Foreign Affairs resulted in teaching the interested that "the document in question was considered "Bolshevik propaganda," written by a few intellectual drunks people, probably deep in a cellar, but because of the Given the seditious nature of this writing, it was deemed necessary to take all measures to prevent it from being widespread (sic). Indeed, at this Ministry, they kept the copy in a safe.

At the Ministry of War, the disappointment was the same. An officer, the Captain J... had the document in his hands, and during his Upon reading it, he had seen it peremptorily taken from him "by order", and, whatever effort he made to have it again, it was in

Given these bizarre actions, it goes without saying that the research they only became more active and more determined.

Meanwhile, the Senate Overman Committee had begun his investigation into Bolshevism, and Doctor Simons, pastor A Methodist, arriving from Russia, had during his testimony gnage, talking about the Jews and the "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion.

Copies of the document similar to those that were found to the Ministries of War and Foreign Affairs, as well that the Fragments of the first eight "Protocols" had been handed over to the Senators, members of the Committee, but Captain H... who was doing serious research on this subject, was not summoned. However, there is reason to believe that copies were provided by Mr. Boris Brasol, who himself had obtained his Captain H's copy... It is from this translation, moreover, that he used it for the editing of the "Protocols", arranged by him and Made at Small and Maynard in Boston.

Finally, the small group of those involved in the matter, aided by a fairly well-known writer, Mr. Jérôme Landfield, who had managed to find Captain H..., managed to get in direct contact with him. It was then realized that Captain H... was convinced that this document originated from Jews or Bolsheviks and unmasked a diabolical plan by execution process, and that it was urgent to put it in place in front of the American people.

List the people to whom he and others addressed themselves.
to obtain the means to publish these "Protocols" would be Long and interesting. Let's hope MH... will do it himself
One day. That will really highlight the so-called independence Americans. Senators like Mr. Henry Cabot-Lodge, King of Utah, Chamberlain, Borah, Thomas of Colorado, etc...
They read the "Protocols", but did not dare to speak about them.

Financiers, who will be discussed later, promised... then didn't dare to hold on... Professors, like Dr. Nicho-Mr. Butler, encouraged MH as much as possible, but they led to nothing.

The American Defense Society, however, was convinced also that the plan of the Elders of Zion should be made public American, was making efforts which ultimately, thanks to the inter-intervention of some members of the University club and of a few Wall Street financiers, led to the publication of the “Protocols” by Small and Maynard.

As for the printers and publishing houses to which MH... addressed them, the number is legion: Scribner and Dutton are on the list; the New York Herald and the New York Times
Also... In this circle, at the beginning, everyone claimed to be independent. fearing nothing, etc. Some doubted the authenticity-tactfulness of the document, but nevertheless went so far as to say that if a well-known Jew agreed to write the preface (6 inno(cence!), they would publish the work. In this case, one would pronounce the names of Otto Khan, the man of multiple nationalities, or of Julius Kahn, congressman from California, or of Rabbi Simon, from Washington. In the end, they all backed down, and one was never further along.

In the meantime, there were some rather interesting episodes. This one of the Public Ledger, for example. On October 26 and 27, 1919, this The Philadelphia newspaper published what it called the Red Bible of the Soviets. This Red Bible was nothing other than the "Protocols » cooked by Carl Ackermann, a journalist who, between Other lies, he claimed to have obtained the document from a diplomat.
well known, above suspicion, who himself had received from a Russian officer who had removed it from the archives secret Soviets; and Carl Ackermann added that the diplo-Mate was ready to swear to the truth of this assertion. Now here exactly what had happened: MH.. had been put in relationship with James Gerard, former United States ambassador United in Berlin, to which he had given a copy of the "Protocols".
He is the diplomat in question – well-known, yes – but at-Above suspicion, no. – Gerard, therefore, had done many promises of help to MH... and had found nothing better than to communicate the document to Carl Ackermann of the newspaper the New York Times and the Philadelphia Public Ledger. – This the latter had hastened to deface the document and to publish in the form we know. When, some time

Afterwards, he was backed into a corner by MH.., Carl Ackermann.
by admitting his reprehensible conduct, said James Gerard had advised him to speak to MH..., before publishing the "Protocols" like "The Red Bible," but which he had passed besides this advice. – In any case, Gerard didn't either
He didn't rush to tell MH... that he had betrayed his trust.
by having access to a manuscript that had been loaned to him as strictly confidential.

The Public Ledger, having been attacked for publishing a

Such fraud, ceased its articles. The laughable note in this case was given in a letter from the Ledger's publisher, claiming to com-
I apologize, but Carl Ackermann assured him that he had acted in good faith.
Faith. (Letter from Mr. Spurgeon).

To what influence(s) had Carl Ackermann yielded?
And James Gerard? It's easy to guess—for those who had all interest in suppressing the publication of "Protocols" such as that they are.

What is remarkable about this circumstance is that not a single newspaper, not a single voice in the American press everything in the hands of the Jews, did not make the slightest sound protest against the Public Ledger's actions. The real fake one doesn't raised no protest, and the contrast is all the more striking.
It's striking that we see all this same press today Americans rise up en masse when the "Protocols" are published in their entirety. So they find that it's a fake.

It is worth noting in passing that this Carl Ackermann of good faith, repeated this same experience of publishing the "Protocols in the Red Bible" in the English newspaper in Japan, the Japan Advertiser. The response to this new offense was the publication the adoption of the "Protocols" by a Russian company, in order to refute Carl Ackermann's lies.

The second episode is also quite enjoyable.
At the beginning of 1920, a writer, Mr. William Hard, came find MH... and asked him to let him read the "Proto"cols," which was granted to him. He came four times and took numerous notes on the document. He also discussed the subject with MH... who then heard nothing more about it for several weeks. Finally, one fine day, William Hard sent some Washington sent a telegram to MH... telling him that he could not not at all to share his views on the "Protocols", etc...

Indeed, William Hard presented his views in a article published in the Metropolitan of New York, in the month of June 1920; the article is titled: "The Great Jewish Conspiracy", and He ridicules the idea of a Jewish plan as it is expressed in the "Protocols". Moreover, one could not expect better than a writer sufficiently in the clutches of the Jews to to sing their praises in their newspaper Ress the Maccabean, and who wrote "Israel".

However, the "Protocols" were beginning to spread.
In the United States. It was discussed at numerous conferences.

A pastor from Seeattle had obtained a translation from of Siberia and had been so struck by the importance of the the content of this document, that he had gone to Washington, finding It was necessary that the head of state, Mr. Wilson, take note of it.
session. He even managed to show them to him and read them with him during the month of August 1919. If we are to believe the writing-
As mentioned above, Mr. Jérôme Landfield, who had a In his interview with this pastor, Mr. Wilson was reportedly astonished at the reading the "Protocols" and reportedly exclaimed: "Now I understand what Louis Brandeis did to me and how he
He deceived me!

Should we draw a connection between this awakening of Mr. Wil-his and the sudden, strange illness that struck him down as soon as in a speech during his trip to the United States (Sept. 1919),
He dared to speak in a tone that could not please the Brandeis gang.
Baruch, Schiff, Marshall, Strauss and C"?

The "Protocols" speak so clearly of the fate of those who are not docile.... (1).

Would Woodrow Wilson and Paul Deschanel be examples?
Please?....

Other manuscripts of the "Protocols" were arriving from Siberia.
This is how the one who appears in the photograph in the first page from the Becwith edition, recently published in the United States, was brought by a Russian to Mr. Jerome Landfield, in the spring from 1919. That was back when this writer still enjoyed the confidence of the Russians, a little before it was published in The Review newspaper, in its article entitled: "The legions of Lenin's Lying Legions (October 1919); before he had been reprimanded by a stern letter from Mortimer Schiff (son of Jacob), to whom he had to reply in making amends; before he had passed entirely in the service of the despicable Boris Bachmetieff, himself a sellout to Schiff; before finally the Jews, to clearly show that they had subjugated him and now held him completely in their grip their hands, would have forced him to appear at the synagogue of the Fifth Avenue to force him to say it in front of a thousand people of their fellow Jews that the Bolsheviks were not Jews (2).

It is fair to add, however, that even after that, Mr. Jé– Rome Landfield lent his assistance to MH... by retranslating the

---

(1) Mer Journ, “Protocols”, pp. 96, 97 and 102.
(2) See the New York Times of January 19, 1020.

"Protocols" of this manuscript brought from Siberia. Thanks to its happy pen, the document revised by him as it is published now in the "Becwith edition" is by far superior to those published in England and Boston.

In fact, it was this same translation that had been purchased by the Putnam publishing house and was intended to be used for their edition.

Going back a little, it is interesting to follow
In the United States, efforts were made on both sides to reach a common goal: the publication of the “Protocols”.

On one hand, we see the prolonged and almost gigantic effort of a lone man, MH... He's an American, a real one, and he it seems that the Americans who wanted to see the "Proto– "Cols" published in their country should naturally have addressed to him and supported his efforts. By a strange quirk, However, what we are witnessing is a completely different spectacle. It is that of to see a group of American financiers, knowing perfectly well– MH.., an American like them and a proven patriot, seeks to publish the "Protocols" for patriotic purposes, choosing for this job a foreigner who has described himself in turn Russian, Ukrainian, Polish. Why did these Americans
They bypassed MH... and chose Mr. Brasol? Only one explanation...
The cation seems plausible. Had these Americans calculated that by having the work done by a stranger who, for a certain time had given itself the epithet "monarchist", it would be How to leave an open way out in case of forced retirement? A ma–
A rather unique work would seem to prove it: it is the demar– the work carried out by a member of this financial group, MG.., near MH.. during the spring of 1920, to ask him certain documents and offer him financial support if he agreed to to join his work to that of Mr. Brasol, whose edition at this at that time was already being prepared in Boston, at Small and Maynard.

Was the aim to neutralize the only truly American effort?
Who faced all the difficulties in the United States? It was MG.
who has the riddle word.

Nevertheless, he was refused, MH.. holding essen– so much so that his undertaking, if it succeeded, would be in every respect American, made by Americans, for the

After months and months of setbacks, rebuffs, and Refusals of all kinds, the day finally appeared when MH... glimpsed the opportunity to carry out his patriotic work. He chooses for publishers of people who, unfortunately, were not, but who seemed trustworthy to him. It was the house de Wilder and Buell, 225 Fifth Avenue, NY Everything seems– It was going normally, when this small "firm" saw itself to cut the ground out from under them in the following way: They had undertaken and conducted for several months the advertising of Central Relief Committee for Russia (a case which, at the time (as desired, will cause some sensation). Kerensky's ambassador in Washington, Boris Bachmetiel, a slave of Jacob Schill, in was president, while Princess Cantacuzene, whose Mari is in Bachmetieff's pay (1), and was the Director. However, as soon as the latter became aware that Wilder and Buell were going to publish the "Protocols," she immediately told them–

This clearly meant that she felt compelled to break up.
all relations with their home and to cancel the contracts that The Committee was with them. This entailed for these people a Loss of approximately $250 per week... Two other contracts were also broken off with them in a similar manner.

In view of these difficulties and other obstacles created by the Lack of money, the work is already well advanced, since the typographic placards were completely finished, were arrested. The devoted followers of the cause began to despair again. It is Meanwhile, the edition by Small and Maynard appeared, Boston.

Finally, in September, quite by chance, the Major George H. Putnam, returning from England where he had followed the debates caused by the emergence of the "Protocols" and the book "The Cause of World Unrest" World unrest) came to MH... and offered to publish his translation of the "Protocols" which was intended to complement his edition of the book "The Cause of the World Unrest" which he had undertook to launch in the United States.

The printer, ME.., who had done the work for Wilder and Buell, who had not been paid, sold everything to Mr. Putnam through MH.., and we learned with joy that finally the "Protocols" were going to be published by Americans.

But alas! the Americans, independent when they are or when they were among themselves, they are no longer so since their country

---

(1) See the New York Tribune of October 27, 1920.

fell into the hands of the Jews, and Major Putnam of the great and the old American publishing house Putnam, has just...
to notice.

On October 1, 1920, the book "The Cause of the World"
"Unrest" had appeared, edited by Putnam, with the announcement of the immediate publication of the "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion; (it
It is worth noting here that the newspapers and magazines of New York had unanimously refused to insert this advertisement). In fact,
By that date of October 1st, there was practically nothing left, than to connect the volumes. One can therefore imagine MH's joy... and his friends who were going to see the results of their three years of effort incessant, crowned with success.

But what will be hard to imagine is the dethe arrival of the unfortunate MH.., when he suddenly received a letter from Major G. Putnam informing him that the Jews had exerted such pressure on him that he felt compelled, to forgo the publication of the "Protocols" and that it would be even probably forced to suspend the sale of the book
“The cause of the World unrest”.

And this is what happened to an American, a veteran of the Civil war, to Major George H. Putnam who, all his life, believed, and sincerely believed in the INDEPENDENCE OF THE AMERICANS CAINS AND THE UNITED STATES!

What will now become of this "Becwith" edition?
which has just been published? It's a pleasure to acknowledge that the
The text, the photographs, everything in short, is due to the effort of the valiant lant MH.., since they are the same tests, prepared by the printer E..., who had worked for Wilder and Buell.

There are still some Americans who believe that as soon as their compatriots will realize that their independence and their country has been taken from them, they will use every means to win them back. May they not be disappointed!

However, it cannot be denied that the States-
The United States did not escape the domination of the British Empire.
that in order to fall under the yoke of the Zionist empire; and as Today these two empires are one, because who says English said Jew, so the Americans fell from Charybdis in Scylla.

And what about Independence?

This can be judged by the letter of explanation and apology that This poor Major Putnam was forced to address his masters and persecutors and that they reproduced in their Jewish Guardian, January 7, 1921.

Will they also drag him to the Fifth Synagogue?
Avenue for him to ask for forgiveness?

After the writer Jérôme Landfield, why not the publisher?
Major G. Putnam?

The "Protocols," as Weisshaupt stated in his Statutes of Enlightened, they clearly state in the passages where they deal with the press that Jews must become masters of writers and publishers, taking care to add that anyone who wants to resist. That's true.

After all, the Jews would be wrong to hold back, they buy Slaves at such a low price!

America definitely needs a second Mrs. Beecher Stowe to write "Uncle Sam's Cabin" and produce a new effort by which white and black Americans would unite in order to free themselves together from the Semitic invader, the true corrupter who enslaved them.

Only then will they regain their independence.

Heaven forbid it be soon!
| L. FRY.

k

This history of the publication of the "Protocols" in the United States proves the importance that Jews attach to their suppression.
In truth, if this document lacked any authenticity and It did not impose itself through its veracity; nothing would explain a such tenacious perseverance, such costly corruption, and the pro-
A series of humiliating retractions. The same conclusion.
concludes the introduction to the Italian edition of "Protocols", due to the sustained efforts of the excellent journal "Faith and Reason » (1):

Any honest and intelligent reader of the "Protocols," writes the author of This introduction will remain striking in light of the application already begun.
accurate and in some respects detailed in many aspects of the program it contains. No doubt, one can always say that with a persistent, intelligent study of the statements and Jewish tendencies, expressed more and more clearly since the

(1) Fede e Ragione, March 27, 1921. This weekly review, of which the
This reading will be most useful to those who believe in the Judeo-Masonic peril.
is published in Rome, 437, Corso Umberto.

From the French Revolution to the present day, it would have been possible to trace this Subjective summary. Genius writers like Krasinsky, in his Non-Divine Comedy, Benson, in his Master of the World gave to the public a brilliant intuition of the global tragedy that has happened today at a crucial time. But, all things considered, the present case is different. The "Protocols" offer a terrifyingly interconnected series of details impossible to foresee so clearly from the very beginning of our century, and which present themselves, are verified today, one alongside the the other, and precisely as the "Protocols" predicted. And that would be It's really strange to claim that at 7 PM, an unknown genius existed.
a genius so great and so unknown that he was able to foresee one by one the cannon shots and revolver shots that Israel fires today at the world of the goim. — In fact, that would be absurd.

There's more: the reader is struck by a mixture — quite strange for our European mentality — of the most subtle, most Mephistical realism — tophélique, in the art of weaving the great net, and the most fanciful unbridled in the Weltanschauung, the conception of the world. That is Jewish, inimitably Jewish. Therein lies the whole Jew: the Jew who has invented the bill of exchange, and he who dreamed of the millennium of the kingdom Messianic. Cunning as an old fox, nervous as a young one Like a monkey, the son of the ghetto leaves an indelible mark wherever he goes.
The first of these two stigmata allowed him to continue for two
A thousand years of underground work that transformed the former outcast into the master of the world; the second stigma will not allow him to resist for long to the nervous jolt of the triumph finally achieved. Well!
"Protocols," from beginning to end, proclaim this infallible sign of their authentic Jewish origin, at least in their essence. They tell us show the whole of Israelite perfidy combined with supreme mastery that a thousand years' worth of business experience had given Shylock, the spiral satanic expands and rises in an unexpected way, (but logical for this Semitic brain) in a fantastic girandole which, by rays-Multicolored displays show us the enchantment of a Solomonic empire, with a prophet-king, a kind of Mahdi, surrounded by sheikhs who govern the world subjugated to Israel.

This explains the outburst of fury from the synagogue and the ghetto in the face of the publication of the "Protocols", fury proportional to the neurasthe endemic thenia of this people, fury which led them to demand, in The British Parliament, in full session, banned this book. The Jews have hoped that Lloyd George and Balfour would take obedience that far, While the Reinachs attempt to confuse the public by asserting the
The falsehood and absurdity of the "Protocols" exposes Israel's hand.
in the bag, in his desperate efforts to make this disappear...
absurdity.

He had, in fact, recognized his own ideas, his own style in the document published by Nilus.

In conclusion, we will therefore say that, whatever the true origin, However obscure the vicissitudes the document has gone through, it does not is no less authentic in terms of its foundation, and that it reflects a program which is rapidly being realized through global upheaval.

It is our duty to make known the terrible danger, thus strongly-presented and described, which threatens us. Israel wants to subjugate and exploit the whole world. But the whole world will rise up for its Supreme defense. The fate that was foretold for the Arab Ishmael is now He who awaits his Talmudic relative: "His hand will be raised against all, and the hands of all will be raised against him.” Today, it is his hand that embraces us, that seizes us by the throat, a well-deserved punishment the fate of a world that has renounced its thousand-year-old Christian civilization; but i] It is not certain that today's victim, in a final effort, will not She too will not raise her hand to render it permanently harmless The age-old enemy. He wrote his own sentence in the law. mosaic. Without hatred, without bias, we invoke the great deli-France of the Christian world.

The Jewish Denial of the Authenticity of the Protocols

Since the removal of the "Protocols" was unsuccessful, the Jews denied their authenticity. A denial, even if it was a men-dreaming is always easy. The Jewish press of all countries has cried "forger," without providing the slightest proof of this. Statement (1), L'Univers israélite (December 31, 1920, p. 392) attack our French edition of "The Protocols" in the name of the sacred union, and goes so far as to threaten. "Thus, men of the Church, writes the author, under the pseudonym Judæus, recommend-They are starting the propaganda of hate and defamation. That's good. And we are at peace. The truth will prevail, and if The Church emerges from the battle discredited once again; it will be "Too bad for her."

Similarly, the Tribune juive of February 25, 1921, attributed-was implementing the Law of Separation of Church and State in response to the attitude of clergy and the Dreyfus affair. According to L'Univers Israelite, the position we have taken with regard to the “Pro-"Tocols" will earn us a new anti-clerical law. Very well; but one could not indicate more explicitly than such laws are the work of the Jews who claim them for themselves alone "sacred union", excluding the goim; Jews who have, In every country, Grunbaum Ballin employees are at their service. Also

---

(1) We note in the World Jewish Movement the main denials from Israeli newspapers, particularly in France; it would be It would be pointless to repeat it here.

Can we affirm, with the "Protocols", that Israel is indeed the Counter-Church.

In turn, Brother Morcombe, one of the Masonic writers the most prominent in the United States, according to estimates, such as the Alpina of Switzerland, that the "Protocols" are a fantastic story launched by the ultramontane press (1). American Freemasonry-Caine is sectarianly anti-papist. When Mr. Ch. Johnston wrote the sensational article on Caillaux that we have reproduced in the January 1920 issue of the Revue Inter-National Society of Secret Societies, Brother Morcombe accused the Jesuits were not the instigators. Mr. Ch. Johnston refuted this. the accusation, while admitting that he had used a book An anti-Masonic text written by a clergyman. To better understand to confuse F.'. Morcombe, who attacked our Review in 1913, we asked Mr. Ch. Johnston the name of this ecclesiastick and the title of the work. He replied that it was The veil lifted by Abbot Lefranc. The veil lifted designated his author of revolutionary hatred, so much so that Abbot Lefranc was massacred at the Carmes in 1792. Who knows if the Freemasons The Swiss and Americans did not find the "Protocols" in The ultramontane press prior to the French Revolution? In any case, it is certain that they are not the work of the cleric-modern calism.

That is why intelligent Jews are content to deny the authenticity of the "Protocols". This is the conclusion of a article by Mr. Salomon Reinach in the Revue critique d'histoire and literature, reproduced by the Israelite Universe (2). It is similarly, the Address of the American Jewish Committee regarding which we read in the Dearborn Independent (3).:

The "Response" signed by the Jews themselves – list of signatures which shows, as a panorama would, the close solidarity and the energy the esprit de corps of the Jewish race in this country – does not contain a the only fact that might shed some light on the matter. This, the Jews' "Answer" is almost tantamount to an admission of defeat. total alation. But, alongside his impotence, one notices an absolute lack of candor. She refuses to confront the issue, in order to to fail to address any of the alleged grievances, either in the "Protocols" or

---

(1) F.'. MorCoMEe: Trestle Board, January 1921, p. 32.

(2) Critical Review of History and Literature, April 1, 1921, p. 131. Israelite Universe, April 1, 1921, p. 701.

(3) Dearborn Independent, January 29, 1921, p. 8.

during our series of articles. She dodges, evades all the either it's a concrete subject, or it evaporates into a cloud of negations. Now, if a statement is false, it is possible to prove it. falsehood, especially when it comes to things one encounters during of everyday life.

The Jews' embarrassment is so great that denial is followed by The lie. The following short article is taken from the Tribune. Jewish, No. 65, p. 10:

The forgery of the cipher in the "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion. — The Judische Presszentrale Zurich received from one of the members of the Zurich Museum a society belonging to academic circles, a communication of which we quote the following lines:

"The author of the pamphlet The Jewish Peril declares that his booklet is the An exact reproduction of the first edition, which appeared in 1905. For To increase the scope of the brochure, he indicates that the original from 1905 was acquired in 1906 by the British Museum and registered under number 3296 and 17. (The figure is 3926 d 417).

"Being convinced that at least the prophetic passages of the pam- Phlebitis had been introduced there after 1905, I asked a scholar a Christian, living in London and whose honesty is beyond question, but that Antisemitism didn't affect me; I found the book in question and... say how much a copy would cost. The result exceeded my expectations. The British Museum does not have this book. The author of the pamphlet had the audacity of counterfeiting the museum's figure, assuming that no one would not bother to investigate this matter. As proof, I am attaching the document Original from the Museum with the inscription: Cannot be found from particular (sic) given.

Perhaps more concerned with the truth than the Jews "belong- "reaching out to academic circles," we have also tasked a Christian scholar to verify the edition of the "Protocols" at British Museum. That day, the librarian found the book, which our correspondent described to us. We have reproduced in our Introduction to the "Protocols" as He follows:

In London, the Russian copy is in the library of the British Museum. 3926 d 17; it bears the entry stamp: British Museum, August 10, 1906. This The Russian copy is a handsome octavo bound in morocco leather black; it has 417 pages. The "Protocols" form, in the work on Serge Nilus's Antichrist, Appendix XII, under this title: "Of An- Techrist as an immediate political possibility. The "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion, 1902-1903, rr. They are divided into twenty-four "Protocols," including, according to the Morning Post of July 17, 1920, approximately 30,000 words. They are paginated from number 305 to number 7. i.e. 112 pages (1).

These details are sufficient to refute the blatant lie. from the Jewish Tribune and its correspondents; they are the proof that the "fake" is not in the figure of the "Proto- nor in the revelations of these overwhelming accounts, but in cynical denials Jews, to whom Christ Jesus was already saying:

You are the sons of your father, the devil, who speaks of his own funds when he utters a lie, for he is a liar and the father of the lie (2).

Hence, no doubt, Voltaire's precept:

You have to lie like the devil, not timidly, not to a time, but boldly and always... Lie, my friends, lie (3).

Closer to home, in the midst of the Bolshevism of Hungary, the Jew Bela-Kun said:

I have always maintained that I know neither morality nor immorality; I I only know what is useful and what is harmful to the proletariat. I I am prepared to lie when dealing with the imperialist-capitalists, and I I will lie so well that I myself will blush at my lies; but he It would be ignoble and wretched to be sincere when dealing with the bourgeois (4).

Jews today use this favorite weapon of the menthought against the publication of the "Protocols", where they can to draw from them the method and the example. One can say of them, as Humanists, whose advice is at the same time "the "forge and the market of lies" (5). The Judeo- lie Masonic, in use and honored among the Humanists, the Philosophers and Freemasons, never displayed themselves dearly we too brazenly as in the anti- development

---

(1) Ms: Joux: The “Protocols” of the Elders of Zion, p. 2.

(2) Joan., VIII, 44.

(3) VOLTAIRE: Letter to Thiriot, vol. LXIX, p. 36. Printing house of the Literary and Typographical Society, 1785.

(4) Le Pesti Hirlap, May 3, 1919, reproduced by La Liberté on May 18. Speech by Bela-Kun to the Council of Workers and Soldiers.

(5) GUIRAUD: The Church and the origins of the Renaissance, pp. 158 and 309; Paris, Lecoffre, 1902.

The Catholic and antisocial aspects of the plan revealed by the "Protocols." Didn't the Judeo-Masons sell their lies and hold public market 4 the rise of an unprepared pre-war period deliberately through the lie of anti-militarism, to the the rise of a war indefinitely prolonged by lies from betrayal, to the rise of a decadent peace of concessions through concessions made by the lie of socialism?

And why? To destroy Catholic France. The before-war delivered her to Jaurès; war, to the Lutheran William II; Peace, to Presbyterian Wilson. These three names sum it all up. the Masonic plan; and if the last one, that of Brother Wilson, appears Even more debatable, one only needs to read this page to be convinced. Mr. Aulard's work on the "secular papacy," "the religion of humanity" "Unity," "the secular Catholicism of the League of Nations." It is always the market of lies, where the masons sell to The auction of Catholic France and the Church of Christ:

At the same time, and in admirable contrast, this role of herald and The role of defender of truth, which the Pope dared not assume, was taken on. boldly and superbly filled by a layman, by a non-Catholic, by the great leader of a great state, by President Wilson, who, like almost all of his truly educated fellow citizens, he, poul the use of his soul, broadened and as if secularized Christianity, or rather He humanized it, without stripping it of the trappings of ancient formulas, of in a way of transforming it almost into this religion of humanity, dear to so many French people, former disciples of Pierre Leroux, yesterday of Auguste Count, now belonging to Mr. Loisy, and who, moreover, had already been fordriven, at the very time of the American Revolution, by the Anglo-American Thomas Paine.

President Wilson's words were heard and listened to by all humanity. It made all hearts beat faster, illuminated and warmed by light of new times. In a world so afflicted, it has given rise to sublime and fruitful hopes. It has swayed the entire population of the States-United in risking death to save humanity from slavery. She has She made the German tyrant tremble on his bloodied throne. She has proclaimed in advance the true human city, the League of Nations. Yes, While the Pope remained silent or stammered diplomatically, it was She, the great secular word, who gave men the good news.

Another form of Catholicism is taking shape, where there is room for all our fellow citizens. citizens of France and the world. This is the voice of a free man, and not that of a pontiff of the past, who will have guided us towards a future of fraternity and peace to this poor humanity torn apart by the most atrocious of wars (1).

---

(1) Le Pays, May 10, 1918, “The Pope and Wilson”, by A. Aulard.

This intellectual who "humanized" Christianity is indeed the descendant of the "humanists", this "Christian by origin and of education,” which prepares another Catholicism is indeed the son philosophers and emulators of Robespierre with his cult of "Supreme Peter"; this Protestant who, through sectarian evolution of free examination, transformed the religion of Christ into the religion

The Freemason faithful to the Constitutions is indeed the embodiment of humanity.
of 1723, which contained in embryo the final word of the Macon-Nonsense: secularism.

See 1° A. Loisy, The Peace of Nations and the Religion of the Future, Paris, Nourry, 1919. 2° Le Gaulois du Dimanche, June 1, 1919, “The Magisterium “President Wilson’s spiritual advisor,” by François Maurice. The editor points out that the new secular Pope is "the servant of servants of democracy"; that he suffered "the demands of his religious faith-
"Gious" to choose Geneva instead of Brussels as the headquarters of its League of Nations; that in this fact there is "the new alliance of the reformed religion and universal Freemasonry"; and, ultimately, it depends "on the powers of the flesh and the powers of money," while that the true Pope derives his power from God. As for the title of Frank-Mason of Mr. Wilson, here are some indisputable references: 1° Review Infernal of Secret Societies, II, 184, year 1913; 2° Weekly Bulletin Lodges of the Paris region, November 1st to 15th, 1918: "Sunday, 10
November 1918 – G.'. L.'. D'. F.'., La Fidélité, Temple, 8, rue Puteaux:
The End of Secret Diplomacy through the Politics of Our FC President Wilson, Conference by F.'. Lucien Le Foyer, former deputy of Paris;
3° The Algerian Freemasons to their Brother Wilson (Algerian Dispatch of the 30th) December 1918): Algiers Masonic Vigilance and Action Committee voted to send the following telegram to President Wilson: “At the time Upon your arrival on French soil, the Freemasons of the four
The Lodges of Algiers, meeting in plenary session on Sunday, December 8, send to their illustrious Brother Wilson their most fraternal tributes and their warmest congratulations for his Masonic work in the "War of the law and freedom of peoples."

They received the following reply from Mr. Wilson's secretary:

“Paris, December 17, 1918. – The President has ordered me to you conveying one's deep appreciation for the kind words of welcome expressed in your telegram of December 13th."

In this regard, let us recall that in Brest, the Grand Lodge of France did to greet President Wilson with an F.'. Taugourdeau of some kind.

In La Foi catholique (May 30, 1919), Canon Gaudeau adds:
"Note that this response formally ratifies, approves, and confirms-lyrically, on behalf of Mr. Wilson, the congratulations addressed to this Franc-Macon by his brethren for his Masonic work in the war and in peace.” See the commentary on these texts in Mr. [Name]'s brochure.
Canon Gaudeau: Brother Wilson, his Masonic work; Paris, 25, Vaneau Street, 1919; 1 fr. 10.

-

Such are the forge and the marketplace of Judeo- lies Masonic traditions whose mark is so deeply imprinted in the "Protocols" that she alone detects their origin.
Isn't it written in the very first report: "Whoever wants "Must governing resort to cunning and hypocrisy?" (1). This This principle is essential for defending Israel's plan. But negative-tions, lies, diversions (2), fictions, too apparent to to give the impression, have only divulged and confirmed the "Protocols." The latest trial balloon was launched by the principal-Catherine Radziwill ceases in the World Review of March 15 1921. According to this intriguing account, the "Protocols," inspired by the General Orgewsky, written by three agents of the secret police Russian, Rachkowsky, Manassevitch – Maniuloff and Mathieu
Golwinsky, were made in 1905 with the aim of deceiving
Nicholas II. The first plan dates back to 1884, to influence Alexander III.

But what becomes of Nilus? The Jews are already converting him to the state of myth. They forget that the "Protocols" are only a appendix to his book on the Antichrist, which cannot be the work of the Russian police.

Moreover, an article in Plain English refutes the non-value of the testimony of the World Review and the state of

(1) Ms Journ: The “Protocols” of the Elders of Zion, p. 34.

(2) One of these diversions consists, according to Mr. Ch. MAURRAS, in the Einstein's Jewish trip to America:

“Yesterday we admired the prodigious driving force of ideas” national events around the world. In the same issue, our colla-
Roger Lambelin, a writer and friend, recounted, according to Jewish newspapers,
The wonderful story of Einstein's trip to America. The vigou-
Mr. Ford's recurrent anti-Semitic propaganda worries the Jews. The Jews
They think about defending themselves, and what do they do? There is a scholar in the world of their race, which is much talked about. Professor, he has not yet addressed than high mathematics. German, he carefully refrained from any policy; he even refused, at the beginning of the war, to sign the manifesto of the ninety-three. Of more abstract and better minds Locked away in the ivory tower, very little is known about them. So it must be him that the Jews will seek in order to push him like a pawn on the chessboard of American races. Mobilized like a soldier and lined up like a man, here is our inhabitant of the Ether (whose, moreover, (He very judiciously denies its existence), precipitated into the heart of the harshest Civil debates that are stirred up under the moon! He's going to leave. He's leaving, that's it. The Jewish Guardian, which announced it to us, will strive to show and to make tangible the value, the importance, the dignity, the rank hierarchical, the human rating of the race to which men are due depreciation of the character who brings it (1). We had it already insinuated based on firsthand information that We were getting them from Italy. There's no need to insist further.

Therefore, it is in vain that the Jews want to deny the authenticity of the "Protocols"; not only do they not discover the “Forger”, but they only offer us “fakes”.
Let us conclude with a critical study of these minutes, a study extracted from the Dearborn Independent:

The documents most frequently cited by those interested in the question of Jewish world power rather than the current exercise of this power in the world, are the twenty-four known documents under the title of "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion.

The "Protocols" have attracted considerable attention in Europe; they are which became the focus of a vigorous agitation of public opinion in England very recently; but, in the United States, their discussion has been limited. are these the same documents about which the Department of Justice was conducting an investigation more than a year ago, documents which were published in London by Eyre and Spottiswoode, official printers of the Government.

It is unknown who gave these documents the title "Elders of Zion". It would be possible, without seriously mutilating the documents, to remove everything that bears the trace of Jewish origin, while retaining the features essentials of a very extensive program of world conquest, the most vast, the largest that anyone has ever known.

And yet it must be said that eliminating all traces of Jewish origin, this would give rise to a number of contradictions that do not exist not in the "Protocols" in their current form. The goal of the plan revealed in the "Protocols" is to annihilate all (existing) authority in order to establish a new authority in the form of an autocracy. Such a plan cannot emanate from a ruling class that is already in possession of authority. However, it could emanate from the anarchists. But the anarschism does not present autocracy as the ultimate goal towards which it tends. The authors could be conceived as a troop of destroyers. French authors such as existed at the time of the French Revolution, headed by the infamous Duke of Orléans, but this would result in a contradiction diction with this fact that the program exposed in these "Protocols" like him. He will be the living advertisement of the twelve tribes, and the "rage" Mr. Ford and his followers may perhaps soften when the doctor Einstein will make the music of the spheres resonate with their intelligence surprised and delighted, because, at that very moment, some interested but "A sententious woman will come and point out that the Jews have some good in them."

(1) Plain English, April 2, 1921, p. 276. Cf. L'Actualité catholique, 17 March 1921, and April 7, p. 184; and La Vieille France, April 14, 1921, p. 22.

continues to be executed smoothly, not only in France, but still throughout Europe, and that it manifests itself very visibly in UNITED STATES.

In their present form, which is manifestly, undeniably, In their original form, there is no contradiction. The obligation of a Jewish origin seems essential for the unity of design of the plan.

If these documents were the work of a forger, as claimed The Jewish apologists, the forgers, would certainly have taken the trouble to give them such a strongly marked Jewish character that it would have made it easy to discover their antisemitic aim. But the word The word "Jew" appears only twice. When one has read them further further than the average reader ordinarily does for From such topics, we arrive at plans for the institution of an Autocrat global, and only then is its origin discussed.

But throughout the entire body of documents, there is not a trace of doubt about the people against whom the plan is directed. The plan does not target the aristocracy as such; he is not targeting capital as such; he does not It does not target the government as such. Measures defined with the most Great precision is prescribed for the education of the aristocracy, of the capital and the government for the execution of the plan. No, the The people in question are the Gentiles. This is the frequent reference to The kind people who actually determine the purpose of these documents. Most destructive types of "liberal" plans tend to enslave the people as an auxiliary, while this plan proposes to work towards the dege- The people's descent into madness, so that the people fall into confusion of mind (intellectual chaos) and thus becomes an easy subject to manipulate. We will consider popular movements of a certain nature "Liberal." All destructive philosophical conceptions in matters of religion, economics, politics, and domestic life will be sown and watered with the aim of disintegrating social solidarity, which will allow a certain plan to be carried out without anyone noticing.

as laid out here, which will allow the people to be molded according to this plan, when
The fallacious nature of these philosophies has been demonstrated.

The common formula is not: "We Jews will do this" or that," but: "The good people will be led to think about doing this or that.” With few exceptions, which are found in the latest “Pro– "tocols", the only distinctive racial term is the word Gentiles.

To clarify this point, let us cite the first indication of this kind:
It is found in the first "Protocol" in these terms:

"The great qualities of the people – honesty and frankness – are essentially vices in politics, because they dethrone more Surely, more certainly than the strongest enemy. These qualities are features of Gentile government; we certainly must "Don't take them for guides."

And one more thing:

“We have established on the ruins of the hereditary aristocracy of Gentlemen, the educated aristocracy of our own class, and above
The entire aristocracy of money. We have established wealth as the basis of this new aristocracy, which we dominate, as well as science guided by our Elders.

And again:

“We are increasing wages, which however will not be of any advantage for the workers, given that at the same time we determine–
We will impose a price increase on basic necessities, citing that it is due to the decline of agriculture and livestock farming. We We will thus mine the sources of production with art and profanity, in by insinuating anarchic ideas to the workers and encouraging them to consuming alcohol, while at the same time we take measures to drive all the intellectual forces of the Gentiles out of the country."

A forger, endowed with anti-Semitic malice, could have written this.
any period of the past five years, but These words were printed at least fourteen years ago according to the witness– gnage which results from the deposit made at the British Museum in 1906 and given the fact that they were widespread in Russia several years before that date.
The "protocol" in question continues as follows:

"So that the true situation would not be noticed by the Prematurely kind, we will mask it with a simulated effort in view to serve the working classes, and by promoting the great principles economic objectives for which active propaganda will be employed by means of
of our economic theories."

These quotes will show the style employed by the "Protocols".
to refer to interested parties. They use the word "we".
for the authors, and the word "Gentle" for those about whom they write. This appears very clearly in the fourteenth section:

"In this difference between the Gentiles and us, for the skill to
To think and to reason, the seal of our election is clearly manifested.
as a chosen people and our quality as superior human beings, in contrast with the Gentiles who only have purely physical intelligences tinctive and animal. They observe, but they do not foresee; they They invent nothing (except perhaps material things). That's clear. that nature itself has predestined us to govern and to lead the world."

Such, quite naturally, was the Jewish method of dividing the species humankind since the earliest times. The world was not composed than Jews and Gentiles, everything that was not Jewish was part of the category of Good Guys.

The use of the word "Jew" in the "Protocols" can be explained by This passage is taken from section 8:

"For the time being, until there is no danger in giving..."
jobs involving responsibility in government, to our Jewish brothers, we will entrust them to people whose past and reputation
"so that there is a chasm between them and the people."

This practice is the one we know; it's the use of "fronts" "nice people," a method practiced on a large scale around the world today's financial system, to highlight the indicators of Jewish control. The progress made since these lines were written can be appreciated based on what happened at the San Francisco convention, when Judge Brandeis's name was put forward for the presidency. One can it is reasonable to expect that the public has become increasingly familiarized with the idea of a Jew occupying the presidency, — i] There will then only be a small step to take from the degree of influence that the Jews currently hold, up to the highest office in the government. There is no exercise of the presidential function. American society where Jews have not already secretly collaborated in a very broad degree. The actual arrival at the presidency is not necessary for the increase of their power, it is necessary to accomplish certain things that come very close to the plans outlined in the "Protocols" that we have before us.

Another point that the reader of "Protocols" will notice is that These documents completely lack a tone of exhortation. Here, no propaganda, no effort to stimulate ambitions or activity characters to whom one is addressing oneself. These documents have a coldness The realism of a procedural document, the accuracy of a statistical table. One does not Nowhere is the exhortation found: "Let us rise, my brothers"; it is not there never said, "Down with the good guys," in a hysterical tone. The "Protocols," if they are truly the work of Jews, and they were entrusted to Jews, or if they contain certain principles of a Jewish program mondial, were certainly not designed as incendiary devices; They were written for carefully prepared and tested initiates, initiates of higher groups.

Jewish apologists asked: "Is it conceivable that if there existed They truly have such a global program on the part of the Jews; they put it into practice. "They would put it in writing and publish it?" But there is no proof. that these "Protocols" were formulated in a way other than verbally by those who drew them up. The "Protocols," as we possess them—gifts, appear to be notes taken during conferences by which—than one who was present. Some of them are lying down, some others are brief. The assertion that has always been made about the "Protocols" Since they have been made public, it is because they are notes taken from lectures given to Jewish students part in France or Switzerland, presumably. So the effort made to To give them the appearance of being of Russian origin is absolutely contradictory. annihilated by the point of view, by the allusions to certain dates, by certain grammatical indications.

It is clear that the tone confirms their assumption for starting point of the lectures given to students (1), because their goal is clearly not about getting a program accepted, but about provide information about a program represented as being already in progress. There is no invitation to to bring people together in groups, to formulate opinions. And besides, it is declared categorically, no discussion or assessment is requested. (All By preaching liberalism to the Gentiles, we will maintain our agents in an obedience that will not question). (The plan of administration) "The translation must originate from a single brain." ("Therefore, we must We need to know the action plan, but we mustn't discuss it, for fear of to destroy its unified character"). ("The inspired work of our leader Therefore, it should not be thrown to a crowd to be torn to pieces; should not even be delivered to a limited group").

Furthermore, by examining the "Protocols" according to their apparent value, we will clearly see that the program outlined in these conference notes Rences was not a new program at the time when the conferences were made. It contains no indication of a recent arrangement. One finds there recognizes the tone that a tradition, a religion, takes, of a from one end to the other, as if it had been passed down from generation to generation-ration through certain specially tested men and insiders. Nothing resembling a new discovery is recognizable. nothing betrays the fresh enthusiasm; all one sees is the language assured and calm of long-known facts, and of politicized mysteries Ticks confirmed by long experience.

The question of the program's seniority is addressed at least twice times in the "Protocols" themselves. In the first "Protocol", we Find this passage:

"Even in ancient times, we were the first to proclaim the words Liberty, Equality, Fraternity, in the midst of the people; these words have have been repeated many times since by unconscious parrots who flocked from all sides to this lure, thanks to which they destroyed the prosperity of the world and true personal freedom. The Gentiles, those who might be presumed wise and intelligent, did not understand the symbolism of words spoken aloud; they did not grasp their contradictory meaning; they failed to notice that equality does not exist not in nature.

---

(1) Translator's Note. — The word "students" used here is "in pairs". reprises renders the meaning of the English word "students" very imperfectly which refers both to young people who attend courses at a Faculty or a higher school and all those who deal with intellectual matters technical, scientific, literary, historical research, etc. It is

It is in this latter sense that the word "students" should be taken here.

The other allusion to the program's objectives is found in the thirteenth "Protocol”:

"However, political matters are not permitted to anyone," except for those who outlined the policy to be followed and who directed it for many centuries."

Could this be an allusion to the secret Jewish Sanhedrin, which would have perpetuated through co-optation within a certain Jewish caste, From generation to generation?

But it must be said, the manufacturers and the leaders to whom he belongs what is being alluded to here cannot, at present, be a ruling caste. because everything the program has in mind is directly opposed to interests of such a caste. Nor can there be any question of a a national aristocratic group, analogous to the German Junkers, because the The methods that are proposed are the same ones that would reduce to The impotence of such a group. Nor can there be any question of anything else something that a people without a government, a people who have everything to gain, nothing to lose, and can remain intact at In the midst of a collapsing world. There is a group that responds to this description, and there is only one.

Another point: reading the "Protocols" clearly shows that The speaker sought no honor for himself. There is an absence complete with personal ambition from beginning to end of the document. All The plans, all the projects, all the hopes are drowned in the future. of Israel, a future which, it seems, can only be achieved by subtly ruining certain global ideas held by the Gentiles. The "Protocols" refers to what has been done, what is being done at the very moment. where they talk about what remains to be done. Nothing can compare to them. for the care taken to complete the details, the breadth of the plan, the understanding Intimate, profound, the hidden motivations behind human actions. They are truly terrifying in their mastery of revealing the secrets of life, also terrifying in their certainty of possessing this mastery. They deserved truly the appreciation that Jews have recently shown towards them. namely that they were the work of an "inspired madman", but we can tell them to respond that what is written in the "Protocols" is also in current life, not through words, but through actions and trends.

The passages in which these "Protocols" describe the stupidity of Kind criticisms are fair. It's impossible not to agree. down to the last iota in the "Protocols" when they talk about mentality and the weakness of the Gentiles. The wisest of the Gentile thinkers are allowed to be duped to the point of accepting ideas of progress that have not been insinuated into the human mind only through such insidious propaganda God, that systematic.

I] It is true that here and there a thinker emerged who declared that the self-saying science was not science at all. It is true that here and there A thinker emerged to say that the so-called economic laws, too those of the conservatives, as well as those of the radicals, were not of the All laws, but artificial inventions. It is true that from time to time Another astute observer asserted that the recent luxury extravagance and extravagance was in no way due to the natural impulses of people, but that it was the effect of systematic stimulation, that it gave them was inoculated intentionally. It is true that a small number of people have discerned that more than half of what passes for "public opinion" is merely a venal approval, a paid advertisement, and the spirit The public remains indifferent to it.

But these warnings, given here and there, and almost always ignored, have never been given in a sustained and coordinated manner by those who had their eyes open, and who could therefore trace their way back to the sources from which these warnings originated. The main reason for the the power with which the "Protocols" have seized the minds of leading men from various parts of the world for several decades, that's what they explain about the origins of all these disastrous events influences and what they tend towards. They provide the common thread in The current labyrinth. It is time now for the people to know. That whether the "Protocols" are regarded as proving or not proving While there is a certain thing about the Jews, it is no less true that they constitute a series of lessons on how one can do maneuvering the masses, directing them like a flock of sheep, at a means of influence they don't understand. It is almost It is certain that once the principles of the "Protocols" are fully understood known and understood by the people, the criterion they apply with Accuracy in the spirit of the people will have lost all its value.

In the upcoming articles of this series, we propose to study these documents and to draw answers to all the questions that questions arise about them.

Before undertaking this work, there is one question that needs to be resolved:
"Is there any likelihood that the 'Protocols' program" can it be fully realized? However, the program has already has been partially realized; it is already a reality in many of its phases the most important ones. But there's no need to panic, because the main weapon to be used against a program of this kind, so much in what he has already accomplished and in what he still has to accomplish, it is a Brilliant publicity. Let the people know. Excite the people, alarm the to appeal to the passions of the people, such is the method which...
The plan outlined in the "Protocols" is simply... to enlighten the people.

That is the sole purpose of these articles. To spread light is to dispel prejudice. It is just as desirable to dispel prejudices about the Jew as to dispel those of the Gentile. Jewish writers too readily admit that all prejudices are on one side. The "Protocols" should to achieve the widest possible circulation among the Jews themselves, so that they be able to prevent things that attract distrust towards them

name (1). |

---

(1) Dearborn Independent, July 24, 1920; Introduction to the “Pro-
"Jews," p. 109.

MS, a consulting engineer in financial studies, wrote to us lately :

"...I will take this opportunity to share a thought with you."
which may seem to you, in its financial technicality, of some interest in finding a solution to the problem of the authenticity of "Protocols".

"Without listing here the reasons which, in my opinion, should tip the scales"
In support of this authenticity, I will cite one that may have been overlooked:
These are the improprieties of certain terms, not to mention the shortcomings visible, though not typographically emphasized, of certain passages, and the fragmentary and discontinuous nature of the text which we is given. All this seems to prove to me that there has been, not a a very skilled forger, the originator of the "Protocols", but well, in the chain of language and gender elaborators, we are told having been the transmitters of the text, a number of rings incompetent people who have not grasped either the importance or the meaning of certain passages.

"Thus, this was removed, as it was probably of little interest." which must have been mentioned in paragraph 6, concerning monopolies: Royal Dutch, Standard Oil did not yet seem very interesting in Russia.
in 1905; today we would emphasize that.

Another example, this one of misunderstood translation: it is at the para-Graph 2. It should read: "Currently, all national loans are supported by money from floating debt (debt with a term of more or (less next). This money comes from the General Treasurers or the Savings banks (or, in France, the Caisse des Dépôts et Consignations) gnations). As it is at the disposal of the Government, the latter
"It uses it for the payment of its foreign obligations, and replaces it"
"automatically into its coffers through its own state funds (which it buys back in (Stock exchange for this purpose, which artificially supports its prices); and this "These are state funds (increased, automatically bought back at too high a price for "Minors and incapacitated persons, through notaries, for depositors, through the
»

»

Caisse des Dépôts, savings banks, etc.) which partially mask-
"The deficit in public coffers."

"I obviously paraphrased somewhat, but I conveyed the meaning."
certain of the author. However, it is clear that this meaning has escaped one of them.
less so than the drafters of the text given to us. It is therefore few
It is likely that he is a talented forger; on the contrary, he is
It is very plausible that the first copy of the documents, or their first translation, was done by a woman, as we are told believe ".

THE JEWS AND THE "PROTOCOLS" | E)

The Jewish Denial of the Veracity of the "Protocols"

The crucial point of the Jewish question lies in the truth "Protocols." No one is fooled. Without going back any further higher than the first Russian edition of 1901 (1), this document contains such luminous achievements since the war of 1914, that its veracity is manifest, and, on the other hand, some revelations

lations so unforeseen as a whole that their Prediction becomes inexplicable without detailed knowledge of the Jewish plan as we have presented it. Also, the writers In renown, the Reinachs and the Wolfs of all countries strive– they first had to persuade their readers of the non-existence of any idea of Jewish world hegemony, and subsequently, of the party– the predominant role of Jews in Bolshevism, especially element in Russia (2).

The facts refute these two enormous lies from Israel. We will provide ample evidence of this when discussing Judeo-Masonry as a Counter-State. In the meantime, he It will suffice for us to respond here to the first lie with the publication of an English pamphlet entitled: The Jews among the Heads of the Entente; and, secondly, by this other brochure: Who governs Russia? Bureaucratic staff Soviet.

FIRST DOCUMENT

The booklet on Jews among the Entente Leaders has It was printed by order of the British government. is not for sale. Secondary characters there would find their place marked, if only in England, that the Jew Sassoon, at whose home Lloyd George likes to gather the visible leaders of the Entente; and, in France, the Jew Mandel, the more prominent in Clemenceau's Jewish court. Similarly, The real masters of the situation are not among those in this short exposition. A special study on the High Jewish Inter- Bank only the national government can untangle the knot of the plan

---

(1) We have in our hands this Russian edition of 1901, plus Nilus's translation is more complete than any other. We will dedicate a future article to it. article. '

(2) One of the factums of this Jewish literature is the Open Letter to the One Hundred Blacks of Russia, by J. Isaimvitcu, prefaced by Salomon RBEINACH; Lausanne, Ruedi, 1920.

"Protocols." Finally, this booklet dates from 1918: Herbert Samuel was not yet in Palestine, nor was Lord Reading to India.

We are not reproducing the preceding photographs. each biographical note, but we indicate their publishers.

The Jews among the leaders of the Entente (1)

PREFACE

This small brochure aims to present a sketch of the careers of some of the leading Jewish figures among the nations of the Entente, and the share they contribute in the cause of the Allies in this global struggle.

For the Jew, the current war interests and affects him to a certain degree. triple point of view. As a member of a nation that has suffered cruelty and oppression taken to extremes limits during the last 2,000 years, he can appreciate perhaps more completely than any other people sacred nature of the work of struggle for freedom and justice. As a loyal citizen of the country where he lives, he is obviously willing to make the ultimate sacrifices for his family and his mother homeland. And finally, last but not least, "the Great British Charter of Freedom for the Jews," thus which was rightly called the "British Declaration" relating to Zionism," makes him feel that his destiny, as that Jewish identity is inextricably linked to the Allied victory, and that it is only through the triumph of the Allied cause that The future of the Jewish community is assured.

Much has been written about Jewish heroism on the battlefield. battle, that of the corps of Jewish muleteers, that of the battalions Jews in England and America, that of the countless Jewish heroes scattered throughout all the new Jewish regiments of the armies of the Entente. It has been calculated that, of all the English Jews of At birth, ten percent joined the army and in the navy before the Derby project came into effect. A a proportionally considerable number of Jews received decorations for bravery on the battlefield, and six

---

(1) The Jews among the Entente Leaders, London, R. Clay et fils, Ltd., 1918.

Jews received the most coveted of all honors: the cross of Victoria.

We hope this little brochure will give you some ideas of the competition that the Jews ee to the Allied cause behind the battle lines.

The Earl of Reading, on his mission to the United States, for strengthen the spirit of brotherhood between the two great races of English speakers on both sides of the Atlantic, Mr. Baruch and Mr. Samuel Gompers, responsible for administering and controlling the resources of the United States to support this fight worldwide, and Mr. Kahn, who, although of German origin, has shook off the yoke of Prussian militarism, and showed itself to be the absolutely devoted and enthusiastic supporter of the cause of Allied by his liberal munificence and the testimony he has rendered to justice in this case, are merely representatives thousands of Jews, each of whom plays an individual role a role that is not to be disdained in the allied nations for the triumph of democracy and freedom.

Let us hope that the current unity of efforts among the representatives Jewish sympathizers of the Entente powers are the symbol of a a larger unit that will emerge after the war, not in a but of annihilation and destruction, as the thing is inevitable at the moment, but for the creation of a world better and happier, in which the great ideals Hebrews of equity and justice will prevail (1).

The Right Honourable Herbert-Louis Samuel, Member OF PARLIAMENT
(Photo Russell and son)

Born in Liverpool in 1870, Mr. Samuel, immediately after his release from Oxford, where he received first-class honors, and even Previously, he had plunged headlong into politics. He entered in Parliament (Cleveland Constituency) in 1902, after

---

(1) This Preface could be placed at the beginning of the "Protocols". It is an apology for the Jews, an affirmation of their predominance in the political and financial world, the discreet prediction of their super-tomorrow's government. Let's not forget that the brochure is published by order of the English Government; the conduct will be less surprising Lloyd George's attitude towards France: he is a prisoner of the Judeo-Freemasonry. (Translator's note).

two unsuccessful attempts, and, a little over three years later, he obtained a government job.

Four years later, Mr. Samuel joined the Cabinet. successively parliamentary undersecretary for the Department Minister of the Interior, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (with a seat in the Cabinet), Director General of Posts, President of the Local Government Office, and Secretary of The Interior.

Although he is no longer in office, Mr. Samuel occupies one of the most prominent positions in the House of Commons, and those who are qualified to judge it and who have followed his Career experts expect an even brighter future for him. than his past.

Mr. Samuel is a member of one of the most favored families- well known in Anglo-Jewish public life and has enthusiastically dedicated to the interests and pursuit of goals of Zionism.

THE Right Honourable Edwin-Samuel Montagu, Member
OF PARLIAMENT
(Photo-Sport and General)

Born in London in 1879, Mr. Montagu was the second son of the late Lord Swaythling, better known as Sir Samuel Montagu, which was, for a Setar! a column of Anglo-Jewishness.

After leaving Cambridge, Mr. Montagu entered the Parliament for the Chesterton constituency, in 1906, and immediately became Mr. Asquith's private secretary, then Chancellor of the Exchequer.

In 1910, he was appointed Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for India, and, four years later, he entered the Cabinet as Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster. Since then, Mr. Montagu served as Financial Secretary of the Treasury and Minister of Munitions.

He is currently the Secretary of State for India. Few
Some time after taking office, he visited India to study there the political and social conditions and preparing to introduce them to implement far-reaching reforms in a liberal direction and democratic.

The Honorable Earl of Reading, PC, GCB, KCVD
(Photo Russell)

Born in London in 1860, Lord Reading created a great number of precedents. He is the first attorney general
The British man who secured a seat in the Cabinet is the first Jew to become attorney-general, viscount, earl, and who attained the dignity of Lord Chief Justice of Angleland. He is the first English Jew to whom an embassy has was entrusted; he is the first English ambassador to whom one has entrusted him with powers as extensive as those he enjoys in Washington. And Lord Reading is not at the end of his career.

The story of this anite reads like a novel. Being While still a very young boy, he ran away to go to sea.
Later, he went to the Stock Exchange, where he failed. This did not dis-
He was furious; he resolved to study law and began at
He was admitted to the bar at the age of twenty-seven. He quickly made up for lost time.
lost and quickly made a name for himself in the first rank, so much so that he became one of the most brilliant lawyers and achieving the most success that England possessed.

In 1898, when he was still simply Mr. Rufus Isaacs, he became King's Advocate (public prosecutor); in 1904, he was appointed a member of the Middle Temple; in 1910, he was appointed solicitor-general, and, after a few months, he became attorney-general. Three years later, he was elevated to the rank of Prime Minister President of the Court (Lord Chief Justice). He had been elected to the Parliament by the constituency of Reading, in 1904, and he kept this seat until the day of his elevation to the House of the Lords, that is to say nine years later.

Before his appointment this year as envoy extraordinary and British high commissioner to the United States United, Lord Reading's special talents had earned him, Since the outbreak of war, to be employed by the State, which had already sent him on a mission to the United States.

Lord Reading, although his time was very much taken up by the affairs, has always been eager to put his good offices to service to the Jewish community, ef, in several circumstances In his remarks, he chaired meetings held with the aim of defending the interests of Jewish institutions. In the United States, he has supported the Zionist movement, not only as a representative feeling the weight of his government, but still speaking in his own name.

The Right Honourable Sir Alfred Mond, Baronet, MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT
(Photo Elliott and Fry)

Born in Farnworth, Lancashire, in 1868, Sir Alfred Mond is one of the most important authorities in England.
land in all matters of economics and science social issues. Before accepting a government job Currently, he has interests in the largest industrial companies.
trielles of the world. He was the effective director of the house of Brunner, Mond & Co., Limited, and Chairman of the Mond
Nickel Co. Ltd., which had been founded by his father, Dr.
Ludwig Mond, member of the Royal Society. He was president from the Chemical Industries section at the Franco-British event that took place a few years ago in London.

He wrote extensively on trade issues, politics, economics, etc. He entered Parliament in 1905.
as a representative of Chester, and, since 1910, he has represented the Swansea constituency. He is a member of the Privy Council and a baronet of the United Kingdom. In 1917, Sir Alfred Mond became First Commissioner of the Workshops, under the Ministry of Mr. Lloyd George. Sir Alfred is one of those English Jews who are proud of their Jewish heritage, and a very energetic support for the Zionist movement. He is the president of the section of the Swansea Anglo-Jewish Association.

Mr. Lucien KLOTZ
(Photo Gerschel)

Born in 1868, member of one of the Alsatian Jewish families who emigrated to France after the Franco-Prussian War, Mr. Klotz practices law and publicist, and, at Barely twenty years old, he founded the first of the three newspapers that he created during his career.

He has been a member of the Chamber of Deputies since 1898. after two electoral defeats.

Mr. Klotz first entered the Cabinet in 1911, and he was part of three successive ministries as Minister of Finance. In 1913, he moved to the Ministry of the Interior Ministry; but, in 1917, he took over the Ministry of Finance. which he still retains, despite a change in the Presidency Council residence.

Mr. Klotz's parliamentary duties do not absorb all his activity. He found the time to write a book Offline, titled The Army, in 1906, and he devotes a lot of time to charitable works.

Mr. Joserx REINACH
(Phoio Gerschel)

Born in France in 1856, Mr. Reinach is one of three brothers illustrious in the contemporary annals of France and the Jewish community. His second brother, Solomon, is a philosopher and a distinguished archaeologist. The youngest of the three, Theodore, is also distinguished as a scholar.

Mr. Joseph Reinach occupies a prominent place in French life as a publicist and politician. He is A lawyer by profession, but from the very beginning of his career, He devoted his entire career to journalism. In this This situation attracted the attention of Gambetta, who made him his Private secretary. After Gambetta's death, Mr. Reinach He became the political director of the French Republic. Mr. Reinach's writings extend to an immense number of Subjects: politics, biography, constitutional history, literature erasure, foreign affairs, education; he is absolutely It's impossible to even list the titles of his books.

He was elected, for the first time, to the Chamber of Deputies, in 1889, but he lost his seat in 1898, due to his fervor in defending Captain Dreyfus. In 1916, he was re-elected by his former electoral college in Parliament. Mr. Reinach is always remained an isolated member, but he distinguished himself as member of numerous committees where the value of his The work was recognized from all sides. In 1886, Mr. Reinach was named a Knight of the Legion of Honour.

Baron Sipney Sonnino
(Photo Record Press)

Born in 1847 in Alexandria, Egypt, son of a Jewish immigrant Baron Sonnino of Livorno practically dedicated all his life in foreign affairs and politics. After taking After obtaining his law degree from the University of Pisa, he entered the Diplomatic career. Baron Sonnino he turned to journalism. In 1878, he founded and directed the Rassegna Settimanale (the Weekly Review) which, four years later Later, it became a daily newspaper, and, later still, it created the Giornale d'Italia.

During this same period, he had entered the Chamber of Deputies Members of Parliament, where he immediately specialized in finance and foreign affairs. His election to Parliament had as preface to a study on the economic situation of Sicily, undertaken with the collaboration of another Jew, the baron Leopold Franchetti. Baron Sonnino also wrote about other economic topics and on Dante, such as delassowing.

In 1893, he became Minister of Finance, and, the year next, Minister of the Treasury. His work, during this period, was regarded as the foundation of prosperity Italy's financial situation, and the inauguration of the era of surpluses budgetary. Ten years later, Baron Sonnino was appointed prime minister. He was the first Jew to hold this high office.

charge. In 1909, he was called upon to lead for the second time. of a ministry.

In November 1914, upon the death of the Marquis of San Giuliano, Baron Sonnino was appointed Minister of Foreign Affairs, and, despite numerous cabinet changes, he kept this office until the present day. So Italy was not still involved in the war, but, under the leadership of the baron She took Sonnino's place a few months ago at on the side of the Allies, and she always remained a reliable ally in their successes and their setbacks.

LE Sianor Luiai LUZZATTI
(Photo by Pierre Petit)

Born in Venice in 1841, Signor Luzzatti was nicknamed "The admirable Crichton of Italy." He had barely surpassed During his adolescence, he was taking a course on Economics in Venice. city which at the time belonged to Austria and from which it was forced to flee for political reasons. At twenty-two At six years old, he was a professor of political economy in Milan, and years later, still being too young to enter the Par- Previously, he was the Secretary General of the Ministry of Agriculture.

Signor Luzzatti was elected to Parliament twice before of having reached the legal age to be part of it. Since the day where he was allowed to take his place, he never ceased to be there to sit. From 1891 to 1906, it was almost uninterrupted. Minister of the Treasury and Finance. During part of During this period, he held both jobs simultaneously, and Under his leadership, his country's finances reached a new level. of prosperity previously unknown.

In 1909, Signor Luzzatfi became Minister of Agriculture, of Industry and Commerce, and, a few months later, first Minister. For the past thirty years, every time that Italy had a trade treaty to negotiate, this task It was entrusted to him, and he has twenty-six treatises of this kind to his credit.

Signor Luzzatti is an economist even more than a man Politics. The introduction of the People's Bank into Italy from the North and the Cooperative Societies movement in Italy is owed to him. He was the first statesman in Europe to establish a Ministry of Labour. Both in the exercise of its functions that, as a private individual, he devoted himself ardently to the cause of social reform. Freedom of conscience has been also one of his concerns. ` a Signor Luzzatti wrote on a wide variety of subjects. He holds the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honour and he was elected, as Gladstone's successor, a member of the Institute of France. When the Italian Order of Labor was created, the Signor Luzzatti was the first to be honored with this, in recognition of his extensive work on behalf of the working classes Italy!

Signor Luzzatti belongs to an Italian Jewish family ancient and distinguished, and he has always shown a lively He expressed sympathy for the Jewish people in their suffering. He gave to Zionism evidence of its sympathetic interest.

SIGNOR SALVATORE BARZILAI
(Photo G. - Brogt)

Born in 1860 in Trieste, son of the famous orientalist and archaeologist Giuseppe Barzilai, who was also secretary of the Comu- Signor Barzilai, a Jewish man from Trieste, is known in Italy.

under the name "Deputy of Trieste", because it was due to his ardent zeal for an irredentist Italy led to his election in Rome, in 1890; he represented this city as a Republican, at Montecitorio.

At the age of eighteen, Signor Barzilai was arrested by the Austrian government for high treason. After having been Held in prison for a year, he was tried and acquitted, but He immediately left Austrian territory and settled in Italy.

In Italy, he studied at the University of Padua and at the University of Bologna, joined the editorial staff of La Tribuna, exercised the he practiced law, and he soon became one of the Italy's most renowned lawyers.

In Parliament, Signor Barzilai devoted his attention especially at the Foreign Ministry. Although a Republican leader, he received several job offers which he declined until day he accepted the position of Minister without portfolio in Signor Boselli's study.

Juce Louis DEMBITZ BRANDEIS
(Photo Press-Portrait Bureau)

Born in Louisville, Kentucky, in 1856, Mr. Brandeis He had been a practicing lawyer since 1878 and pleaded in some of the most famous Jes trials that took place during this period. He was tasked with defending the interests of the Trade Commission between the different States of the Federation and the United States Government, but He is best suited to serve as an advisor to the American people. known. It is in this role that he has been seen in numerous occasions, in matters of decisive importance for the The prosperity of Americans. Mr. Brandeis wrote about the economy political and Jewish issues.

His election to the Supreme Court, despite resolute opposition and relentless "interests", gave rise to a letter of President Wilson, in which he expresses how much he appreciates Mr. Brandeis's opinions in all matters concerning which he has spoken out on. Since his election to the Court supreme and his installation in Washington, he was one of the the President's most favoured and closest advisors. Not only was he consulted on all matters relating to the commercial and industrial problems on which it is an authority recognized in the United States, but also its Sound judgment is sought by the President when it comes to the international situation.

An unofficial committee, composed of Colonel House and Mr. Brandeis was appointed to study the problems global in order to outline the broad outlines of policy American at the Peace Conference. It is understood that the Colonel House studies Western problems, while Mr. Brandeis was chosen to deal with the Middle East; his knowledge of the situation in Palestine and the interest it They have prepared him for this job.

Mr. Brandeis's adherence to the Zionist movement was announced in 1913. Almost immediately afterwards, he became the leader of this movement in the United States, and, shortly afterwards, he was one the rare statesmen in whose hands the leadership of The movement was entrusted.

Mr. Samuel Gompers
(Photo without publisher attribution)

Born to Dutch parents in 1850 in the ghetto district From London, he emigrated to the United States at the age of thirteen. but he had already started working three years earlier. His trade was cigar making; at the age of fourteen years ago, he helped organize the International Union of cigar manufacturers, of whom he became, through the pales, the secretary and the president.

In 1881, he was a delegate to the first convention of the American Federation of Labor; the following year, he was elected President of the Federation. He has been re-elected every year, at a with one exception. In 1901, Mr. Gompers was appointed representative sensing the interests of Labor at the National Federation civic, of which he later became first vice-president.

In 1918, he went to England as a representative, or . rather, in reality, as an ambassador for the Labor of the States-United with his fellow Labour delegates from the countries allies.

Mr. Gompers played a key role in the establishment the eight-hour workday for workers manuals and daily papers in the service of the Government, and of the a maximum of ten hours of workday for workers tramways. He also worked on the legislation that regulates the child labor and the "sweating system" (control of excessive work).

THE HONORABLE Oscar S. STRAUSS
(Photo Topical Press)

Born in Otterberg, Germany, in 1850, he came to the United States United at the age of four. Mr. Strauss is the first Jew who had held a position in that country at the ministry. He was first a lawyer, but, after practicing for eight years, he he withdrew and entered his father's trading house.

Mr. Strauss served as United States ambassador on three occasions United in Constantinople. The first time, he was appointed to this position by President Cleveland, a Democrat; the second time, by President McKinley, a Republican, and, for the third time, by President Roosevelt, a progressive. From 1906 to 1909, he was Secretary of the Department of Commerce in the Cabinet of President Roosevelt. Previously, he had been appointed representative of America to the Permanent Court of Arbitration of The Hague.

In the United States, Mr. Strauss held countless jobs public. Until recently, he was president of the New York City Public Service Commission; he is a former president of the League's Bureau of Commerce and Transport national primary, and of the National Service Association American socialist, founder and vice-president of the Federation national civic and international law association.

He has lectured and written on a wide variety of Topics: philosophy, politics, religious freedom, public service diplomacy, international law, history of Jews in America, among other things. Not only does he occupy a position of the most prominent in Jewish life in the United States, but also he can be considered one of the most Jewish leaders influential figures of modern times.

Mr. Strauss is the youngest of three brothers. The eldest, Isidore, a member of Congress, a distinguished economist and philanthropist, has
He lost his life along with his wife in the sinking of the Titanic.
The second brother, Nathan, has earned a lasting reputation in the philanthropic annals of the United States and Palestine.

Mr. Bernanp BARUCH
(Photo Topical Press)

Mr. Baruch is American by birth. He is the president of the United States War Industries Bureau, of which he was former member. It falls to him to a greater extent that no other United States official has the honor of success of the Entente cause.

The Bureau of War Industries is fully charged of war production in the United States, and, to the appointment From Mr. Baruch, the powers of this Bureau have received a great extension. Not only is this office the production agency, Furthermore, he acts as an intermediary for Allied purchases.
and it virtually controls the world's supply of essential raw materials. Mr. Baruch has, in fact, regu full powers over all industries in the United States.

President Wilson, in the letter in which he appointed him, described as the universal inspector of all branches in the industrial sector. Mr. Baruch was, previously, a top-tier Wall Street financier. His salary in His current job pays one dollar a year.

Mr. Orro HERMANN KAHN
(Photo Happé)

Born in 1867 in Mannheim, Germany, Mr. Kahn... particularly distinguished by his accusations full of conviction regarding Germany's methods and policies, things he knows thoroughly, as a man who was born and who has been raised in Germany, who served in the German army, and spent five years doing business in this country.

Mr. Kahn lived for several years in London, where he was naturalized; but later, when he arrived in New York, he became an American citizen. When the war broke out, he offered his residence, a veritable palace, in Saint-Dunstan, Regent's Park, as a refuge for soldiers who had lost their sight. Mr. Kahn is part, as a partner, of the banking house nen Loeb and C", from New York. |

He is particularly interested in music. During During his time in London, he was an honorary director of the "Royal Opera House, Covent Garden. He is the president of the Company

Metropolitan Opera and the "Century" Company Opera," & New York; Vice President of the Company of Grand Opera, of Chicago; treasurer of the Company of New Theatre and director of the Opera Company, of Boston.

Mr. Kahn was made a Knight of the Legion of Honour in 1918.

Mr. ABraM J. ELKUS
(Photo Topical Press)

Born in New York in 1867, Mr. Elkus held the positions of the United States ambassador to Constantinople during a a very short period . He succeeded his fellow believer, Mr. Henry Morgenthau, shortly after the war had broken up, and he was recalled very early on, in 1917, when The United States had declared war on Germany.

Mr. Elkus is a lawyer by profession and he has fulfilled the functions special attorneys of the United States and also those of the council of the New York State Commission for Factories. It holds several important positions in the community Jewish.

Mr. Paut HYMANS
(Photo Elliott and Fry)

Born in Brussels in 1865, Mr. Hymans was the son of a former member of the Belgian Parliament. He is a lawyer and has also been representative of Brussels in the Chamber of Representatives sentients since 1900. He is also a professor at the University from Brussels and vice-president of its office.

Mr. Hymans was appointed Belgian Minister of Foreign Affairs managed at the end of 1917. Previously, he had been an Extraordinary Envoy-diner at the Court of Saint James since 1915. Before the war, He was the leader of the Liberal Party in Belgium.

Printed in Great Britain by Richard Clay and his sons, limited. Brunswick Street, Stamford Street. SEI and at Bungay (Suffolk).

Second Document

WHO GOVERNS RUSSIA
SOVIET BUREAUCRACY STAFF

(Publication of the Association "United of Russia". — 121 East 7th Street New York Cily, 1920).

PREFACE

The brochure presented here is of major importance to the public, despite its brevity. The question: Who governs the Russia? receives a categorical answer through the simple enumeration-ratio of government officials responsible Irresponsible Soviets. The data contained in this brochures were carefully collected from the organs Bolshevik officials, such as the Investia, the Golos Trouda, the Red Gazette and others. It can also happen that, in in very rare cases where a person is marked as Russian, she happens to be Jewish, or vice versa. But the fact The fundamental point remains undeniable: the Soviet bureaucracy is almost entirely in the hands of Jewish men and women, while the number of Russians participating in the government The Soviet Union is ridiculously weak. Impossible to evade this fact which stands as a warning solemn before the countries and states that claim the name of Christians who believe in national ways of life, in contradiction with the unlimited internationalism in which The Jewish nation is the dominant power.

Association "Unity of Russia"
(121 East 7th Street, New York City)

Designations: Jewish, Armenian, Polish, Latvian 'German, Russian.

Council of People's Commissars:

1 President of the Council OULIANOrr (Lenin)............. Russian
2 Commissioner for Foreign Affairs CHITCHÉRINE .... —

3 — to the Affairs of Nationalities D3OUGACHVILI. Armenian

4 President of the Supreme Economic Council™ Louis (Larine) 'Jew

5 Commissioner for Reconstruction SCHLICHTER.......... –

6 – to Agriculture PROTIAN .... Armenian
7 _ to the War and the Navy Bron–

STEIN (Trotsky) .... Jewish

8 – to the State Control LANDER.............. –
9 – to the KAUFMANN State Lands.......... –
10 – to the Works V. SCHMIDT................ – 11 – at the Social Relief E. Litina (Kniggissen).... Jewish 12 – to Public Instruction LOUNATCHARSKY (Mondelstam) .... Russian
13 – to Religions SPITZBERG .... Jewish 14 – Inside APFELBAUM (Zinoviev)........ –
15 – to ANVELT Social Hygiene............ –
16 – at the Ministry of Finance, Osodore Goukovsky........ –
17 – to the Press VOLODARSKY (killed)............ –
18 – at the OURITSKY Elections (killed)............ –
19 – to Justice I. STEINBERG.............. –
20 – at the Evacuation of the FENIGSTEIN Refugees.. –
His assistants: Ravitch and Zaslavsky... Jews

Out of 22 members:

Russians .... aeh 3

Armenians ....ssesesssesosssoeso 2

SUS Geshe See be sea os eee 17
TOTAL 2152 72

Commissariat of War

1 Commissioner for War and the Navy BRoON–

STEIN (Trotsky) .... Jewish
2. Vice-President of the Revolutionary General Staff of The Northern Army A. FISHMANN.......... =
3 Commissioner for Military Justice of the 2nd Army Romo. –
4 – Policy of the 12th Army MEYTCHIK...... –
5 – Policy at the General Staff of the 4th Army –
LIEVENSON :::::- 8 heer hee odes dare –
6 Chairman of the Soviet of Armies of the Western Front
POSERN :.:::4-... ses Bane agra Gk 2s
7 Political Commissar of the Moscow Military District GOUBELMAN bones –
8 – Policy for the Vitebsk District (DAIBE). – 9 – – to the military requisitions for the city from Slutsk KALMANOVITSCH............. Latvian 10 – policy for the Samara Division
BECKMANN moons ees ueniis ste Jew
11 – Military personnel for the same GLOUZMANN Division – 12 – to the requisition detachments in the Moscow district ZOUSMANOVICH ...... –
19 Chairman of the Central Military Soviet in Moscow Bron– STEIN (Trotsky) .... –
14 His assistants HIRSCHFELD .... –
15 – SELIANSEY ....-...--: Rd die =
16 Members of the aforementioned Soviet SCHORODAKH .........-....-.: –_
Latvian

17 – PRTCHE ......sesesssosecooe

18 Military Commissar of the Government of Moscow

STEINHARDT 4442.
19 – Military of the Moscow Government
DOUMIS: © S065 oad ess mas RAAR ENSA
20 – at the GLEYSER Border Guard School....
21 – Policy of the 15th Soviet Division
DZENNIS 525: 9.36 SH EGE ROA OO RES
22 – Policy of the 15th Soviet Division
POLONSKY. 5145 saeuareseuse
23 – of the Military Soviet of the Armies of the Caucasus
LEGHTINER: 36 sca cio ewes eees ed ecewa Ses
24 – extraordinary for the eastern front
SCHUMAN i535 644566 users
25 – extraordinary for the eastern front
BRUNO 5: ludo ideas

26 Members of the Kazan Soviet Military ROSENHOLTZ......
27 – , – MAIGAR ....
28 – – NASENHOLTZ. .....
28 Political Commissioner for the Military District of Petrograd GUITPIS ....
30 Chief of Military Communications in Petrograd TsBIGER........
31 Commander of the Red troops during the revolt at Jaroslaw GUEKKER ....
32 – of the eastern front against the Czechoslovakians
Slovaks VANZETIS ....
33 Chief of the Moscow Military District, Butous..........
34 Member of the Soviet of Military Commissars
PP: LADER 5:50 r ieai ii heads
35 Head of the SR of the ELKAN Military Commissioners SALOMONOVICH KOLMAN (former Austrian officer)........
36 Military Commissar of the Moscow Military District
MEDCASR: 5 dits sise saw dia na eds tes
37 Commander of the Crimean Defense A ZAKB......
38 – from the Kursk front SLOUSIS............
39 His assistant SILBELRMAN............................e
40 Political Comm. of the Romanian Front SPIRO.............
41 Parliamentary envoys tasked with negotiating peace with the Germans DAVIDOVITCH (military doctor)......
42 SCHDBOUR (candidate) ....
43 SMIDOVITCH (soldier) ....
Out of 43 members:

RUSSIANS: iin oe hee eee es 6

Tellons: sine cd ess: a

Germans: ::45 2242.00 1

JUS dre ui aussi se 84

| TOTAL ss ssuins 43

Interior Ministry

1 People's Commissioner ApreLBAUM (Zinoviev)....... ae

German
Latvian

Jewish Latvian

Jewish

Jewish

2 His assistant, head of the Extraordinary Comm. OURITSKY

(assassinated by his supporters)........................ Jew
3. Head of Propaganda GOLDENROUDINE................ –
4 President of the Economic Commission of the Petrograd Communities

Vo ENDER tate ea er este ae ==
5 Vice-president of the Comm. of Hygiene A. ROUDNIK...... –
6 Comm. for the evacuation of refugees J. FRNIGSTEIN.... –
7 His assistant ABRAHAM KROKHMAL................... . =
8 Press Service Comm. of Petrograd Volo-

DARSKY (ASSASSING). s-desco eevee ritro pEn S ES arian –
9 Mayor of Petrograd G. SCHNBRIDER....................... –
10 Mayor of Moscow after the First Revolution MINOR.... –
11. Press Service Comm. from Moscow KRASSIKOFF...... –
12 Police Comm. in Petrograd FAYERMANN................ –
13 Head of the Press Office MARTINSON.................. –
14. Public Security Commission in Moscow, K. Rosenthal.

Members of the Extraordinary Commissariat from Petrograd

19 MEYNKMANN orones ipei nada factories EA ewes ee Jew
160 GULLER 210 he ee ani Na dei a aE aa –

11 KOZĽLOVSKÝ 12 The of Raid ee EE cove –

10 MODEL. ates, ccs eee aan eo AS ee are OW aa be obus prar

19 I. ROSMIROVITCH 1.250003 den LIU BS –
20 DIESPEROP 225-525 man Soe LIN Ow eee Res Arménien
21 VSSILEVITCOH: (020.4 als sie sui OSE EES SRS Jew

22: KRASSIBOR: 5:45 ge Sawada ae Re Bee OASIS –
29 DOURHAN Sa nr en baci de BES eRe Ree Raed Armenian 24 MERBIS 626042026 mat held in Co Nee CAR eee eens Latvian 20 PAYKESS 1:53 ma bees sas tw Cee ee ea als at –

AG ANWELT 21: mali ana ui ei ee ose German

Members of the Petrograd Municipality Soviet

17 ZOREA 5.210 ain sch ba tio ae eek Oe eee Jew
28 RADOMYSLSKY 6656.55 4S Ss WERE COR EAT SES OSA REY ASARSEES Latvian Members of the Extraordinary Commissariat of Moscow
29 President DZERJINSKY ....,...... Polish
30 Vice-President. PETERS: 62246 ci64240056464.060.000 584.60 Latvian Members:

31: SCHKLOVSEY~ sein venales ed ii kate e aes Jew
32 KNeiriss (later President of the Extraordinary Commission in Kyiv).. –
33 ZEISTINE. nissan ee Pe eS re re –
34 RASMIROVITGCH. is: rete eke ei SS OSs HEA ESS Sees – 35 KRONBERG (later President of the same Commission in Orcha and

In Smolensk) 65205.4.508454.44044650 4684004500885 Lao –
DO: KAHAIRINA isa con side ss CAIN in Worst Jew
37 KARLSON ...... iso is Site sise uns eau Latvian
38 SCHAUMANN =: issues below omen

THE JEWS AND THE "PROTOCOLS"

39 LEONTOVITCH .... DA TEE EE
40: RIVERINE- sriain eae E TAA anne
41 ANTONOF 20th le dora rune ore eee
42 DELAPABRE 11.15.14 8 id nEn EREDE eee ee oes
A3 TSITRING intro mue on Ves ees ae eee wes
44 E. ROSMIROVITCH .... eee
45° G. SVERDLOFF 12:20 84k RE eR Eee
20 BiBSENSEY® spec cccssin dee bee ae EE ae bee aie
47 BLIOUMKINE (assassin of Count Mirbach)...............
48 ALEXANDROVITCH (his accomplice) ....
49 I. Move. (President of the Committee of the Trubetskoi Bastion) at the Saint-Pierre-Saint-Paul fortress) ....

DO REUTENBERO embodies eo oe ALAR ESOS eS
DL: FINES ina NS era See aes
52 SACHS 1:23 ie ride Gaase eed ieee ede LE
* 53 JACOB GOLDING .....:..::,. secs ewes case es Sins A 91 GALPERSTEIN oesreste do wad G ae cossmatia sine ets .
55 KNIGGISSEN .... aus E
DO LATZIS ln ed ce Re ea a does 57 DATPOË 5.2 a St sein medion Sige tere E EE
00 SEASON serienr eTa ew tonte eae hee
59 DEYPKENE lui te Eee eR
60 LIEBERT (Director of Taganska Prison, in Moscow)....
61 VOGEL .... OC er et ete ore ee ee me ere 02 ZAKIS AIDS Ramadan IN 63 SCHILLENKUSS: 42nd dramas, wae ea killers
GA- JANION oraa ie usa oe AeA EERO dima

Russians ee ok eS aes a

Polish 66% development sut 1

Armenians 3

Germans....................... 2

Lettons si awe oa uen 11

POLS. 3 a jen dolotuects sions 45

TOTAL ...... ee ree 64

Foreign Affairs Committee
1st People's Comm. TCHITCHÉRINE ....
2 His assistants KARAKHAN ....e...s..
3 – FRITCHE: united ease
4 Director of Passport Offices MARGOLINE ....
5 Ambassador to Berlin IOFFE ....
6 Attached to the Embassy in Berlin LEVINE (executed in 1919, while he was Commissioner of the Soviet Republic of Bavaria)... ndiuuse ni sees bia ia kwiee eases
7 Head of the Press Office and Information Service
For the Ambassador in Berlin, T. Axelrod.............

Latvian
Armenian
Latvian
Jewish
German
Latvian

Jewish

Latvian

Russian
Armenian
Latvian
Jewish

8 Ambassador (unrecognized) to Vienna and London

ROSENFELD (Kamenef) ....s....
9 Extraordinary Delegate to London and Paris (not recognized) BECK ....s..osesssocssssseseee 10 Ambassador to Christiania BEUTLER (was arrested by the (English) .... EE EEEEE

11 Consul in Glasgow (usurper, condemned by the English)
(five years in prison for Bolshevik propaganda)
MALKIN. 2.6 i665 66s 6 Nw Oe goose ean ae

12. President of the Peace Delegation in Kyiv, CAIN RAKOVSKY.

13 His assistant MANOUILSKY ....

14 Lawyer ASTCHOUB (Ilsen)..................................

15 Consul General in Kyiv GRUNBAUM (Kjevinsky) ....

16 Consul General in Odessa A. BECK ....

17 Ambassador to the United States Lupwia ACK MARTENS..

Out of 17 members:

Russians ::-::.:02iu, 1 pile s 1
Armenians.......sssosceseccoososo 1
Latvians ......ssssesesssoscoosessos 1
JULES. s oierercce resuena isen ES 19
Germans 560% 4,566,068 use os 1

TOTAL sc sae ees 17

Treasury Department

1 First Comm. MeEnrsvinsky (dismissed for processes suspects from the "Union Bank" in Paris, where he was working Commission) .... Seed atewe saree 4% Beda kanes

2 His assistant Don SoLover (pharmacy assistant)........... .
3 A future Comm. IsipoR GouKovsky (second accountant of the Petrograd branch of the Nobel House)......

4 His assistant I. AXELROD ....sssseceee
5 C. Sacus (Gladnef), Director of the Chancery of

Borrowings ....,. see sos EALES
6: BOGOLEPOF siisiicwiens coveted ue cee TIDERS pe eat area es 7 KHASKINE, Secretary-General .... at “is 8 BERTHA KHINEVITCH, Assistant Secretary ....
9. President of the Financial Congress of the Soviets, Mr. LATS818........
10 His assistant WEITSMANN ....s..sc +.
11. Commission for the settlement of Russo-German accounts

FURSTENBERG (Ganefsky) ....,,........
12 First employee of said Comm. KOGAN ....
13. Director of the People's Bank MICHELMANN ..
14 SACHS: 6-5 ced weaves dessas PETER ere eee ss rene
10 ABBLING: 5 dos ease Ue CRIA eee Cees asser eves
16 AXELROD 2. ssestotsenteee dose ua diese:
17 SADNIKOFF ii: ou ire PERETII ree

Finance Officers

18 LANDAU, in Berlin .... doses rio sde

Jewish

German

Polish
Jewish

19 VoRovsky, in Copenhagen ....
20 Abraham SCHENKMANN, in Stockholm ....
21 Inspector General of the People's Bank KAHN ......
22 His assistant GORENSTEIN ....
23 Chief Commissioner for the Liquidation of Former Banks private ANRIR 5 eus dN sl otherwise 24 Advisor to the aforementioned: Comm. Moïse KOVCH ....

Members of the Technical Commission for the Liqui– donation of former private banks

29 PLIACHEVIICH :::..113i5.34.–cia0lelis ana iianse
26 G: GIFETLICH bsp os oo ee bo Ga Se RA a se ii

27 28 29 30

1
3
4 5 6 7 8 9

11 12

A. Rocow

240082252956... +0 8 e 2 2 eevee

Latvians ::::2:.3ui.muni eres cess

JUS iceri vendita Sir ans 2e

Justice Commissioner's Office

People's Commissar I. STEINBERG ....
2 Comm. of the Moscow Court of Appeal A. SCHREIDER......
President of the Revolutionary Tribunal in Moscow, I. BERMANN.
Commission to the Senate in Petrograd BEER ....

President of the Supreme Revolutionary Council of the Republic

BRONSTEIN (Trotsky) ....
President of the Court of Inquiry for the Special Tribunal

GLOUSMANN 55.66 606065840 idiin inean has this SOS
Examining Magistrate of the said LEGENDORF Court ......
Examining Magistrate of the said Tribunal SLOUTSKY........
Attorney General FRIDKINE ....
10 GoOINBARK Senior Coding Clerk...........
Secretary General of the People's Commissariat CHIRVINE ....
Communications Assistant, of the LOUTSKY People ....

Public defenders

13 G. ANTOKOLSKY ....eeoueoeosesesure ss
V. RONOVITCH ooo i is in Me ea ee

14 15 16 17

L BEYER ..
R. BISK ...

A. GUNDAR

2220688028: 90.255 26 te 80.0 ee 89 ee = ee © © © esse 2 8 6 0 20 88849905 90 ee 200 00 0e ee ©

See se 0 06809 00600800 0:92 00 0 02 tt 9 29 00 ss

18 G DAVIDORF (oii 5:56 So ee wee bie Ras Lee 19 R. KASTARIAN,........o.coo. born on island A AET

116 | APPENDICES

Out of 21 members:

Rüsses heise eG eS terba er auasi 0
Armenians 1
DUIS: a EE oes saeee des aes 18
TOTAL. 5th: 19
Hygiene Commission
1 Commis. PI DAUGE .... German
2 Head of the Pharmaceutical Service REPORT .... Jewish 3 His helper FUCHS 64 ic caceiekae de tien ete cheese tait —
4 Director of the Commission for Disease Control venereal diseases PS WEBER .... —
5. Director of the Commission on Infectious Diseases
WOLFSON 5. ei 5 see aa Gai ma

Russians ::::1:/ Sad bed eee eee ex 0
Germans 1
Jews — hose sword lee Mews we end 4

Public Education Commission

1 People's Commissar LUNATCHARSKY............... Russian
2 Comm. for the Northern District ZI GRUNBERG........ Jewish
3. Chair of the Commission for Educational Establishments

T: ZOLOTNITERKY: <6 306625 ew demain nee denduerdiests —
4 Head of the Municipal Section A. LOURIE .... —
5 Head of Visual Arts STERNBERG .... —
6 Secretary General of the Commission Mr. EICHENHOLTZ.... — 7 Head of the OZ Theatre Section Rosenrge_p (wife of

KamMenef) (ssseo ach eis oe ele Cee RE et eee RAE ae Jew
S Sound: help —SATZ cieri erii Erka SENSE ROS NO eee en
9 Director of the 2nd Department GROINIM................. Jewish

Members and professors of the Socialist Academy

10 REISSNER ii his anime EN seal is seine German IL FAITSCHE 1 lea ca aun itunes tee Latvian 12 GOIENBORE. 625.075 dae EAEN EEEn EEN E EEEN Russian
13 M. PORROYVSEY 96666054564 S240 S00 55 See heehee. 0S Jewish 14 WELTMANN © 5:51 remuaueiole See Reese wee ees —
15 SOBELSON (Radek) .... —
16 KROUPIRAL serrat E ana Nasa Jew
17 NAKHAMKES .... SVG ro or ets near res Jewish 18 PI STOUTCHKA ....,,....... solos ieee pee
19 NEMIROVSKY .... PTEE EAS —
20 1. RAROVSKT meaning to sine EE E ree —
21 K. P, LEVINE uses: penny Sri drink Belews —
22 MS OLSHANSKY: sisi GC oe OMe wees ens aicen —

THE JEWS AND THE "PROTOCOLS" (17

23 ZR TETENBERG | :.:.:::.:. Us feeb te Raw ck sees ewan tex Jew
24 GOURVITCH .... ce rece cer ccc eeeces Dakta —
25 LOUDBERG .... Re —
26 ERBERG .... ee ET EEE TE ETE bS —
27 MELTOUUAN: 25. uit Saunas reach Hungarian
28 GROSSMAN (Rostchine) ....,.. Jew
29 KRATCHEOVSKY .... under sosooeseeeoseses —
30 OURSINEN. 3: rs A wed cin cade nas an enr ets Finnish
SL 'ROUSSINEN. dry boxes UNEREN oe
32 TONO SPROLLA 6.66 ios 254s 06 ese el eke S eas —
33 ROSINE .... wild Misia ha neo Bisa oe UNS US eas eee ru Jew 34 DANTSCHEVSKY «= 435.566 %6—0.4 sid eddmhe eau cate bal es sie et — on: OLESEN combines and weaves —
36 GOLDENROUDINE .... shakes. —
BU DOUDINE laugh iu din Oo RESUS Be ET E asie —
OG ROTSTEIN 650364656 edi eee tilcitewe tees ee ee —
39 CHARLES RAPPOPORT .... essences —
A0 LOUIS ind less ad ii i oh years —

Honorary Members

41 Rosa LUXEMBOURG ....s.ososcsersosesee Jewish 42 CLARA ZETKINE .:.:.:: wea ha SL es KR —

43 MEHRING iii lin tie eh aan nee era German 4A HAASE 5523 oil no ban ladies Jew Literary Bureau of the Proletariat. – Speakers from Moscow
45 EICHENHOLTZ missiles e dat iii ee of the Jew
46 POLIANSKY (Lebedef) .... –
47 KHERSONSKAIA .oensessessoresosnsssescserossevosecsooe Jewish 48 B. ZAITSEFF 1:15. 1408 de wee Rw ee ds Jew
19 BRENDER ::iuetic tien nus eed a eo ess –
50 KHODASSEVITCH ...... ccc cece ccc c ccc cscs ccccvccere ARPE –
S1 SCHWARTZ isa mr 65:55 SEN o era yaw Pi TI Aw Oh eee –
52 Director of Department I. POSNER................. – 63 Director of Commissariat Affairs ALTER .... –
Out of 53 members:
Russians ii Shi nee Ne rs 2
Latvians ook ke eek sec tune 1
Finnish 8
Hungarian thigh issues. . 1
Germans ....,... 2
Jews woreda oes de ore déceuesnue 44
TOTAL 6.65255 bie cas 53
Social Welfare Commission
1 People's Comm. E. LiciNA (Kniggissen)............. Jewish
2 Director PAULNER .... ous uousssee $ –

3 Secretary General E. GELFMANN ....cccccccccaccose =

4 Assistant Secretary ROSA GAUFMANN .... Jewish 5 Director of Pensions LEVINE .... Jewish 6 Head of the Chancellery KF ROSENTHAL............... –

Out of 6 members: 6 Jews

Works Committee

1 People's Commissar V. SCHMIDT................... Jew
2 His assistant Rapus (Zenkovitch) .... –
3 Head of the Public Works Department, GOLDBARK.... –
4 Public Construction Company MW ELTMANN...... –
5 His assistant KAUFMANN .... German
6 Secretary General RASKINE .... Jew
7 Member of the KOUCHNER Commission................. –
8 ZARKH Explosives Director .... –

Out of 8 members:

Russians DA DOS RON USSR SNS

Jews nor do I laugh seriously

Commission for the Reconstruction of the City Jaroslaw

1 President ID TARTAKOVSKY .... “is Jewish
2 Main contractor ISIDORE ZABLOUDSKY .... –

Of the 2 members: 2 Jews

Delegates of the Bolshevik Red Cross

1 In Berlin, SOBELSON, (Radek) took part in the movement
Spartacist and was expelled for this reason along with 18 others
BUT EEEEEE earn ae OEEE Jew
2 In Vienna, J. BEERMANN (arrested and expelled with 13 others)
Jews, members of the Communist Party, 2 million and Half a crown was found on him.

3 In Warsaw, A. KLOTZMANN ....essseses... –
4 – ALTER. e0$ics i355 4ieesee Vedado' ere re –
5 – VESSELOVSKY (expelled with 5 other Jews, 3 million rubles were found on lul iii diuesns nee Stateless Sieur te – 6 In Bucharest, NEISSENBAUM traveled with the passport of Belgian citizen Gilbert ....,........... – :
7 In Copenhagen, A. BAUM .... –

8 President of the Central Committee of the Red Cross in Moscow, Benjamin Mosseivitch SveerDLOr (brother of Jacob) Sverdlof) ee 92:00 0060... –e

Out of 8 members: 8 Jews

Provincial Commissioners

1 Comm. in Siberia KHAITIS ....
2. President of the Soviet of Workers of Syzran, J. BERLINSK.
3. President of the Kazan Workers' Soviet: SCHENKMANN (killed
(by the Czechoslovakians) ....:...............
4. President of the Don Lievenson Mines Soviet..........
5. President of the Narva Workers' Soviet, DAUMANN........
6. President of the Soviet of Workers of Jaroslav SACKHEIM....
7 President of the Soviet of Workers of Tsaritsyn ERMANN (killed during the uprising) ....
8 President of the Orenburg Workers' Soviet WILLING......
9. President of the Penza Workers' Soviet, Lieberson...
10. President of the Soviet of Workers of Tauris, A. SLOUTZKY.
11 Comm. of Finance of the western district SAMOVER....
12 Comm. of the Republic of Donetz Isaac LAUK ....
13th President of the Kiev Soviet DRELLING......................
14 His assistant GINTZBERGER (Naoumof)..................
16 Pres. of the Duma of Belaia—Tserkoy ROUTHAUSEN ....
16 His assistant LEMBERG ....
17 People's Comm. of the Donets Republic RAICHEN—STEIN (shot by officers of the detachment of the Colonel Drosdovsky) ...:.........................
18 SCHMUCKLER © 2.1 idas seine;

Office of Professional Unions

10 RATES eek hese ie Oe da AN TU ex x
20— DAVIDSON: 66366—6245 saw cae encase ea A ea dons
21 GINFZBERG: 545.2 eee Nee eee AN AEEA
22— BRILLIANT oor hs ete ee ok ee ee ee eee
23 SMIRNOFF (professor) .... ——

Out of 23 members:

Russians sun ho hie bes 1
Latvians 55:25 limits in dera 1
DOS thts ewe cee ees ur soi 21
TOTAL is Sco sees 23
Journalists

1° Attached to the newspapers “Pravda”, “Izvestia”, u Financg i narodne Khosiaistwo »

THE DENN: 66 beset AND ee a eee Ce ese

Latvian
Jewish

Jewish

Russian

Jewish

OLA: TORBERT 1240 2 Ni a nt err errr
TI: B. GONE 4555 at HRW Se DENS Se hee eee es
SO DINER: Lenin based Caden} ar 2nd dance
9 E. ALPEROVITCH .... SEE SNA Marea ENT

11 NAKHAMKES (Steklo) .... è
12 “TSTIGER: (liine) :: 5:32 CER Sah he daa oe OHS ORS
13 GROSSMANN (Rosine) .... wan
14 Lourie (Roumiantsef) ....
15 MAXIM GORKI msi sus tery ios helene eek eee ds Russian

V SACHS > oho ees an ii ea momo EO es eee Jew
2 POLIANSHY inert ris Los —
I OR OU A eaaa aa aa ossi —

t STEINBERG MR denies aa a eee E ees Jew
2 LANDER 625s is oor ibe eeu aneia aaaa E ee —
J— PAROSLAVSEKY <2 a6 i000 cea Sew cer Dia detente te SRS BOSE —
FE ULPRON 532 des err Sts ee eS RES ee Rete None —
S— B:— SCHUMACHER 35224 sua ein lin Nadia es —
6 LEVINE nulls ena ao canes bw aaa E EA — T BILCLINE Lise LS ii Ni E Le a eee eo eee aE —
8 DAVIDSON Hi Hrsmiseite mie das danse Danemarke — 9 Maxim Gorky, editor of "Pravda" .... Russian

4° Attached to the industrial and commercial journal

BERNSTEIN: 620050635.4.66. 65—08 oe egos sai Jewish asylum
KOGAN is from Sr A of the De imac

“IA OO DD
Q
©
(D
;

8 KOULICHER .... House EEE EE
9 SLAVENSON ....,.. Sabie Byers teeta din A 10/1 "GUBLLEN lose nn deu auodasenedaescesce
11 GAUCHMANN ....,..... PS re
12 SCHULCHMANN .... bone bo Sioa ds
18 P. BASTEL .... HOT teen
14 TO: PRESS: eer ue radis ee er er ere Durs
11 To: MOCH ice igo oh se ee ene sees
16 LS ELIASSON .... E ETEN EET ETT

Of 42 journalists: 41 Jewish, 1 Russian

Commission of Inquiry into Former Officials
f of the Empire

1 President MOURAVIEFF @eeerveeeveveeeGeasceseeGeoeeseseoevoeeaenre Russian

2 Members SOKOLOF ....e..os..es ps —
3 — IDELSÖN iss un ni li aia eee Rk Jew
4 — GRUSENBERG ....0cceccccceccecceccees oer
5 — SALOMON GOUREVITCH ....ccecccccccecess —
6 — GOLDSTEIN 66 666606055554 EWS EOS CS ESS —
7 — TAGËR willed: a friend of the Ee ESTE —
Out of 7 members:
Russians sc 6 ene eu G awe RTS 2
Jews AND oh ebsea beeen ees 5
TOTAL 023606354005 ae 7

Commission of Inquiry into the Assassination of the Emperor

| Nicholas II
T SVERDLOF ni 8 oe notons rage stingin Juif
Z’SOSNOVSKY 5:11. oho Big hk eR EE eee eet es —
3 TEODOROVITCH .... MD RES a —
4 SMIDOVITCH 566—55 eh Rh Gia a eho ORES —
5 ROSENHOLTZ liters RRR ESS Back ana ss —
OROSINE" Their oral lai anne desde anis —
7 VLADIMIRSKY—HIRSCHFELD .... D dude es NS —
BA VANESOR 1:25 Italiana cie ones Ina nre EES Armenian 9 MAXIMOFF 6568 Hiei si 0 ee onu Ge EE ewe Russian 10 MITROFANOF 36:55 bik oe ie ok, Ee a ie Ss Se Se —
Out of 10 members:

Russians iii iris deu ie ess sa 2

Armenians ....cccccccccccecs 1

Jews cos ees eas Seaweed wawe ss 7

TOTAL 566 inh esa ee 10

Supreme Council of General Economy

1 President of the General Economic Council in Moscow, RYKOFF, Russian
2 Same official in Petrograd EISMONT............. Jewish 3rd Vice—President in Petrograd LANDEMANN .... —
4 Director in Petrograd KREINIS .... —
5th Vice—President in Moscow KRASSIKOF .... —
6 Director and Secretary General in Moscow A. SCHOTMANN...... —
7 His assistant O. KHAIKINA ...., Jewish

8 Head of Department of the Reconstruction Section KITSCHWALTER 411: owes SiN were Jewish 9 Comm. in charge of Reconstruction NA ROSENBERG .... iz
10 His assistant SANDITCH .... —
11 Head of the Petroleum Committee TAVRID................... —
12 Head of KLAMMER Fish Farming.......... — 13 Head of the Coal Section ROTENBERG .... —
14 Head of the Transport Section KHIRSAN........... Armenian
15 His assistant SCHLEMOF .... Jewish

16 Head of the Metallurgical Section A. ALPEROVITCH...... Armenian

Office of the High Council of the Section economic

17.KRRBITMANN, 7,115,140 ic ul iii Jewish esters
18 “WEINBERG: 2.53 ns ERG ORE els ete —
DOOR RASING. EE EE E ana EE EE OE Russian 20 LOURIE (Larin) 265656 Sek SEW PRU NG eaa Jewish 21— TEHOUBAR paaro aae NE ATAS —
22: GOLODLATT 5: Soe A bs aa ees —
AT LOHOR. Siaya TV TUNEAR AS Russian
Ok ALPEROVITCH siero isolate anise din aies Jew
29: RABINOVICH weaves shui seine — Donets Committee
26 Kocan (Bernstein) .... Jewish 271A; Te OFCHEIS 2:02 Oe nb eas Ne En seen — 28 POLONSET (oon een 55s EAn aE er A iA —
AO BIER Behe eea we cee eae need NN EERS Latvian
OR KLASSEN: 56650023 Goes Bs ee ht cee ae eee —
Ol LIVSCHITZ © nha re eee Gee sie en dre ade ber chee ee Jew
Oa KINSCH SE iii ee ee ee ren une code ew eeu wen German
SO KRUIER in nds eee SEOs e NL Si —
34 VICHTER oo iia na aa a See aa Jew
35 ROSENTHAL :::::2 04: ss EENES TEISESE ARESA | —
BO. SIMANOVITIOH: 5th etar Enean E te Resa see See —
Members of the Cooperative Section
37 LUBOMIRSET socorro eS ee ees haw eee tie Jew
SS KHINTCHOUK 266s. os ae hi ees Caan aoa swe straight — 59 SÉDELHRIM 55:44 230 ot Sie haa See eR 1S OOS Bee as — 40 TAGER nor dede to SS AS OS kill aid ed eee —
41 HEUKINE peccicccieeiosreen ows Sa Ca Chee See — 42 HATIEVSRT sin sein seine tal teeth —
Members of the Mining Section

AT IN ASSIOR 6655) 655 readers ieee sane aera Jew
AD GOLDMANN ini ciidamauetiatiatsdiiatre taste —
AG LENONIX 2115 rn ee ae He ee eae ee a ewe es å —
46 HOLTZMANN viori ow dicaisuensowusseesadews NANA ERRA —
A] SCRNIDT 555 a dass OE a EO wee German
48 SMIT FALKNER 5.5: oct iauenasedesee god veo Jew
49 ROUDSITAK .... Re —
50 SORTEL.. 6220s. uses insists Sani —
5I REINSVET Hs ei ds ads tienaa Ea a — 52 BLUM/ eka ni whee Sata sed ob see eee aes =
DI KATEL uyroeedre asaue nA aae a Na —
SE SUL 45 ss Fee eR eA aea wa Sey EANO —
55 TCHETEOF ...... org. eb wa tend Savers er Bi euavere wars ee ea Russian

Out of 55 members:

Russians «640,284 ok Seed Ceewcaeetetas 4
Armenians.......sessssesesssseso 2
Latvians es sin setess sous 2
Germans 1.460430 ices sarees 3
Jews Shoe hh bos nee eet cee ese 44

Office of the First Soviet of Workers and Soldiers

from Moscow
1st President of the 1st Soviet of Soldiers Lerpa KHINTCHOUK........ Jew
2nd President of the Soviet of Workers and the Red Army SMIDOVITGH: 3646564446 Sees 36a nega eee dass —
8 Pres. of the 1st Soviet of Workers and Soldiers MODER ...... —
Members:
I SARKI 0663454 reae wiped EAE EANES Sees wes Jew
5 KLAMMER, 354 $452 sane Leese eka ea eae ees cease —
6 GRONBERG 1:55. ui ee ow Be aa os Me whee =
T :SCHEINKMANN:. : ele ui med duel als mes dents
8 ROTSTEIN ii: Sn 4 S54 Gta tk alee Saree Ss athe eyes — O LEVINSON sterriou teams E eaa aS — 10 KRASNOPOLSKY ....sesssesesssesosesecoseoseses —
11 ZEDERBAUM–MARTOFF ....o...sseese —
12 RIVENE 2nd: pr race eirasesianben taste —
13 SIMSON iii: esae eE ee we eee Ree —

14 TAPEKINE 245564065 Gasset ooh eet. ee ees oe Vase eds omen
15 SCBIR 555s S6 ye eae ee boc wees ese keke Sheu se —
16 FALE io ewes REN Saw Se. Bulk A EA RSE ES —
17 ANDERSON ulead ees Haddad. Latvian
18 VIMNBA 6568 cs bce Sees sm touascastiseséoor saone —
19 —SOLO 25 ins axe one A cetera ite TEE Gis ==
20 MICRELSON ::.:::1 5 wis Hew hha goose See sees eae Jew
21 TER—MITOHAN '5. eS oie ee bee eae shee tees ed Armenian 22 Secretary of the KLAUSNER Office .... Jewish 23 Director ROSENHOLTZ ....sosossosouesses —
Out of 28 members:
Russians so eh Shs ek ee ist ees 0
Armenians ....ccccccccccene 1
Latvians. ::53...:::2;::4i0u ete 3
SONG: sun santa iae 19
TOTAL 2244... 23

Central (Executive) Committee of the Fourth Pan—Russian Workers' Soviets, Red Army, and Peasants and Cossacks.

1. President JM SVERDLOF .... Jewish

2 ABELUANN: 155.101: essuie eveaess wesee sa Juif
3 WELTMANN (Pavlovich) ....s.... — A AXELROD Lt ids Mews bt She Ooo See OL es —
5 ZEDERBAUM (Martof) .... —
6 KRASSIKOF .... ae eae say —
1 LUNDBERG ins uen 6 oerda eS ee oA eee eee ee —
8 'VOLODARSKT 5: yi islands soeredete tends: —
9 ZEDERBAUM (Levitsky) .... —
10 OURTTSEN :.::::113:12 audiences ide egses —
11 OULIANOFF—LENINE ..:.....:.40..4 cee ewes eee cae ee eee Russian (?) 12 ZmNovierr (Apfelbaum) .... Jewish
13 BRONSTEIN (Trotsky) .... —
14 SIROTA .....sssossseso. ERI EAEE ea Cae eS —
15 GIMMER (Soukhanof) .... dare —
PG RIVERINE die in ani die ee E o A asia er ee —
17 ZEÖUT ii: tiss ss eae EE EE G ` —
10 RATNER: 1.591124 eee bre wae as Scaled hace sou —
19 BLEICHMANN (Solntsef) ....,.......... —
20 A. GOLDENROUDINE ....sesoseesse eee —
21 KRHASEINE 51053300 idem RUS Os Chew eea ess: —
22 LANDER 5... coe eae ee eb wo ie NG susosemauoesesme i —
23 ARONOVITCH 2: invi uen bé dye; —
24. KATZ (Kamkof) isc ob ad hac een eae oN SESS SHEER ES ==
25. FISHMANN 5.5 ee Eee aa a aaia Ree Sete is sehen . ae
26 ABRAMOVITCH issues SERBS Cae geese ss —
27 FRITCHE .... Re ; — 28 GOLDSTEIN (Illine) ....0.. dE =
2D LIR HATCH: 2:12 hb See RR GS Bate pete Saw te Melee n
30° KHINTCGHOUK. ji: emilie aan nee —
Sl. ÞBERLINKAUVT sorire rer 60 6 OSG EREN E ee ee i oak 32 DISTLER > =: 20th nat ESS Shee eee bone
33 TCHERNILAVSEY: 55:53:42 i 6554S a ladies teens
34 BEN SMIDOVITCH | ese rating 11152406 Bes ea OS ESS eS —

Of the 34 members: 33 Jewish and 1 (?) Russian

Central Executive Committee of the Fifth Congress (Pan—Russian) of the Soviet of Workers of the Red Army, of Peasants and Cossacks.

I BRUNO 515) dan ii er E Latvian
2 BRESLAU 66354—8246 bee 2 Saleh ea ee a EE Aa eee E r —

J BABTCHINGRY® sour ea ee eee ns tas ete EENET è Jew

4 BOURHARIME 1412 Tenn CENERE ERNANNT ER Russian
5 WEINNERG, 52:52 Ai di oe eee a bee ees Jew

B GAISS sesh Bk eee ee ee diese ee TEE —

T GAINZBERG sisi eae oe teen eke venales nude =

8 DANICHEVSKY ocx eased a Deere td oon dr TOO bise ewan oS aS German
OM STARE: saamea AO Se ieee ate re Gea eee eee ees Jew

10 SACHS) 676.6045 ke ais ek a oS RSNA eh Cie ia nay

11 SCHEINMANN: sorepricasrerics ow 20Ek CEs ee wR rates —
12: ERDEING goes Link li deniers feels — 13 LANGAEVA oo eines ewe ewe) OSS OSES UAE Ree ds —
14 GINGER meoradi iri dei ie et es Ne tee een _—

15- WOLACH 55 dwarf us their ani Czech Trail
TO: DIMANTATEIN 222222 en eue dass destine dans Juif
7 LEVINE Ne a Sas Ae wd ee i Pineapple —
—8 healthy ERMANN) duel of dan eee ss —
19: JOFFE oooi e EE nee enr lead amuse —
20 KHARKLING :..:::5:5 Saw bce Ret wake nan set ose ere = 21 KNIGGISSEN 5: A a aA a Jewish
22 ROSENFELD (Kamenef) ....,............. Jew
23 APFELBAUM (Zinovief) ....o..scccse. —
24. KRILRENKO dira anime username Reen Russe
25 RRASSIROFRF :::.::2544:chcdseoceiidenc ess OS ee RW ele Jew
20 RAPNIR. perdorni owe eee eee This we Meh ee eee ESS —
21: MAOUÛUL. 263550 hab sis ss oe ui isa ils nes Latvian 28 OQUILANOF (Lenin) ....o.se..sssoe Russian 29 LACKS. Sidi ins a ee hae ea taste are Jewish 30- LANDER in sen 46 Ae oe oe se ee sans —
31 LOUNATCHARSKY issues soso dus tics neue cet Russe 324: (PETERSON? cirrosa aukeri ini workshops TES Latvian 33 PETERS 2... nus ia iii th —
34 ROUDZOUTAS eec S528 ns GN sue deg sosie A —
00: ROSING. redonata earar raa hae tae ioe AEAN R Jew
36 SMIDOVITCH ....o...e. eT ee ba keane —
I STOUTCHKA li niet toa ee areteariiiheetuttes st —
BO SVERDLOF' iii hide RES real se —
J9 OMILOCHA, L Ps: CARES SSS Wa OER ERO sen —
40 NAKHAMKES (Steklof) .... sine cunnen ° —
41 SOSNOVSKY .... Sidi es EEE EE _
AZ SERYPNIB coset itoni ria eco park sie ue í —
43 BRONSTEIN ©: born its 65 64S WENs 05H SORES SEED EONS —
44 TEODOROVITCH ....,..... Kei ieee ies wheal Meee aus —
40: TERAN. ic bee pan sae haw Ait ii asso bald acai Se Armenian 46 OURITSEY .... ee ere ee TEET Jewish 47 TEGUELECHKINR .. 0... ccc ccc cee ose $ Russian 48 FELDMANN ....,,... EAEE EEEE TE Jew
49 FROUMRINE 12:52. unis taea aaa —
50- SOURUPA: 5 inside the killing spree. The Russian laugh.
D1 TaIVTSIVADRR. css raw hesitation above Georgian 52 SCHEIKMANN ....,.. is ica ated diag as Beggar a econ ees a hes Jew BF ROSENTHAL:-:::1,. Eight the aden aaa —
DA: ACHEINASI. 55064 66sp05e.6 boa SSE h os OES OI49 54 ses Imeretian
55 KARAKHANE .... radladioet does Karaim
56 ROSE .... PE RETETE sus ads dE Jew
57 RADEK (Sobelson) .... os. —
58 SCHLICHTER .... ss E eT ee —
59 TCHIROLINI ... 1.0... ccc ces cee cens roe rer ina —

126 APPENDICES

62 Secretary of the AVANESSOF Committee............seesessusse.ee Armenian

Russians sonona ANEUK stars
Latvians. sci 550i init
German Sri iii sense oes
Czechs. issue Enesa ri TERNA
Armenians ......secsssssosscseseso
Georgians or bailiffs ChE eaae
Imeretians << 40 soe eee Kaw Cs be tes
Karaims......sesesesscsccesessoso Jails - lta caress ores a sn

CO mt p = D9 = = AO

Bb

Central Committee of the Social Democratic Party

Workers
1 BRONSTEIN (Trotsky) ......,...............,....,... Jewish
2 OULIANOr (Lenin) 5.541: ee BS a Wale we he SEAS RTS 8 Russian
8 APFELBAUM (Zinovief) 1.0... cece cece ween ccc resveseees Jew
4 LOURIE (Lartne) sus i556 sew Aes BU OR EOE de —
5 KRYLENKO 644540440606 e0sws eeu w ars EREE eine FT Russian
6 LOUNATCHARSKT 2125 eds ane er ere ve —
7 OURITSKY: (killed) sis sus eens ces sew eee tees ee Not aes Jew
8 VOLODARSKY (killed) .... ouch —
9 ROSENFELD (Kamenef) .... Linie PE EESE 6b asad —
10 SMIDOVITCH 21: cie Kees See tee eae eet —
11 SVERDLOFR .....e..sesessososo RS TT —
12 NAKHAMKES (Steklof) .... —
Out of 12 members:
RUSSIANS ua resda ivii eek 3
CONTINUED: kine bn ee ie number Y9
TOTAL Cevasco 55% silk

If we add up all the state employees, that is to say all Those who, in fact, govern Russia, arrive at the following figures:

Total number of people listed: 545 distributed as follows:

POIONAIS 2. rsiss rue tay eas
TENGUES 2 situ isa
Karalim 9626580460565 wee eases
LAHODS he yeah bucket Finnish ....
RUSSIANS sisi S eevee ees
Armenians..........,....., Dis
Georgians ...., Lmeretians ....

oo Qo
pmi mi DO © CO M pd D9

bond

THE JEWS AND THE "PROTOCOLS" 427

Hungarian Leone ene aes ees 1
Germans........................ 12
JOILS 36h bo ecb deal ss 447

TOTAL ....s..e 545

Below is a summary of the parties that claim to be in opposition to the Bolsheviks:

Central Bureau of the Communist People's Party

1 RAPPOPORT .... bone eeu ate ewes Jew
2 GREBNER 5... ll dei a EE ee –
3 VILKEN 0.0... 0... .... ee... se –e
4 DIAMOND: ooren 0586 EEEE EEEE –
5 KAUSNER 6... 0... eevee 0... –e
6 SHATROF .... EEEE EEEE EE ea a eee ae Russian
Out of 6 members: i RUSSIANS 5: caused 1
JR Se Dis esa aes é 6
TOTAL :.i.: 555 6

Central Committee of the Social Democratic Party.

Mensheviks (Workers)
2:N; GIMMER coicciur 0065 Side stop ess these units ess r –
8 STRAUSS .... in pina Se Cie ee onda –
4 RATNER .... AO DU UN dti dates ss –
D LARDER say lots ones codes isa –
O SOUND fn laughs let Oe ee eee š –
4 DANN ii is tiueunn si iontiasdissses dice enesstoste axm
S GOTE srin oprime GEENE SAE EAA –
9 REPORT ....00. due ee ee ee eR –
10 ZEDERBAUM (Martof) ....sse –
11 ZeEDERBAUM (Levitsky), brother of the above-mentioned .... _

Of the 11 members: 11 Jews
Central Committee of the Revolutionary Socialist Party

Right-wing
1 KERENSKY (A. Kirbis) .... os socsosecsneossee Jew
2 ARONOVITCH .... ad eli de ess tea eo cts seu ss ms
S GISLER Sion as oes Sheena dete denkuna wba =æ
4 LVOVICH DAVIDOVITCH ....ccccsccsccee bear ideas – § GOUREVITCH .... Sie wwe bareeals Stade ess cza
6 ABRAMOVITCH ....sssccsesocsooccsoseccssssososesooe s –
7 GOLDSTEIN –.......... ER EE os Gia eieeiaeie ba Gaw Saou es –
B IRHATOH oerion irea is issued helene tea –
O HHINTCHOUR if issues are states here sito ==
10 BERLINROUT .... eee Create ee ere ree ee T ee –

128 APPENDICES

IE DISTLER 5: ted a Suomi eS eles were ees –
12 TCHERNIAVSEY 1.155540 in uns nee st –
13 ROSENBERG: 2:12. outo ui hentai ss –
14 TCHAIKOVSEY 2:50 u timid ass teeth Russian 15 I RATNER: 5–2 ni MS Sen ere oh ca danto idiote Jew

Out of 15 members: 1 Russian, 14 Jews Central Committee of the Socialist (Revolutionary) Party left

1 STERNBERG ieor eG ROSS ok ae ES EASES Jew

2 LEVINE obs Get ee oot eh eens Ba ee dune OR Sa –
3 FISCHMANN 25:54 ir Enan N dl a wee alee wees ' –
IN LENDBERG. 64 9 bones: nan ment ees Pee AAE A –– D– SITSTA of cree a ewe Uo eee etre seas Caner ewe ee –
6– LiNDER 2 85 sh cuansadersubeod es ot Ee eS –
7 KAGAN .(Gresser–Kamkof) .... ==
8 KATZ, (Bernstein) oink oh deeb Se ES Lae ES wh =
9 FEIGA OSTROVSKAIA ....oseo.eesssoee.. Jewish TO: NAFCHMANN 52.2 ai Don bons ND oursons Juif
11 KARELINE 5:20 ni ul san lines ee ea wees Russian
12 MARIE SPIRIDONOVA ::::..:5 54 seen ase eRe Cee ea ee =
Of the 12 members: 2 Russians, 10 Jews
Moscow Anarchist Committee
1 KROUPENING | 15. ares in dite dote us Russian
2 JACOB GORDING: 2: suusaincssonudian sine Jew
3 LEIBA: TCHIORNY :.::.::: side ions: Haas =o
4 BLEICH MANN: year 50054 born in PASS nae:
5– TAMPOLGEY. cocarro nasede aE ie Se ERS Ee OS aes ==

Of the 5 members: 1 Russian, 4 Jews

Central Committee of the Polish Commune Party

1 SOBELSON (Radek) ....
A SINGER: ae ides ok ke steel shelter Ter etes dir
S DERION | .594.26855 64.9 e Shee ERA U SORES Ae Estonian
A FINES 426062460 Gees iN hewn bane 08a eee eee eee
5 GAUSNER suicides This EE EEE ee EE
6 MANDELBAUM .... EPE A TE OEE oes
T PANSEY 525 sucks orian eae ee ee ee etes ce eee
8 GEIDMANN: Lies issues waiting return
O TEUTELMANN mens ithe ons Na bia awe eee ee
10 WOLPP 3 rssioretilssinsaristisdau ist sea ses se
11 KROKHMAL (Zagorsky) ....scse..
12 SCHWARTZ (Goltz) .....,,........ Cece recencennes TETTE

Out of 12 members: 12 Jews

Gang IIIIIIIIIIIÉ

The Russian state is currently dominated by the nation
Jewish.

THE JEWS AND THE "PROTOCOLS"

IN RUSSIA

The High Commissioners of Moscow

129

Pseudonyms – real names and nationalities of the High Commissioners Bolsheviks from Moscow according to a list published by the Morning Post.

Pseudonyms

The EENINE: its 080600855525

2 TROTSKY.............,....
3 STEKLOFF.......02–ccc0e8 š
4 MARTOFF..... E ES
5 ZINOVIEFF................

11 GOREFF.........,.......
12 OURITZKY............. sees
13 VOLADARSKY.......,......
14 SVERDLOFF........... TOR
15 KAMKOFFs... born
16 GANEZKY bones
17 DANN oreto dass
18 MESHKOVSKY.......... dares
49 20 21
22 TCHERNOMORSKY'...... Foci
23 PIATMTZRY. uses
24 ABRAMOVITCH........c000. >
2D LOINTZEFF..... E TE 26 ZVERZDITCI .... di
27

30 KOLONTAL..ccrccosccs—sccee

3l PETERS... notte sae esse
32 MACLAKOWSKY........... :
33 LAPINSKY .... ire
34 VOBROFF............ se
35 ORTODOKS.............. ee
36 GARINE. ... ss...
37 GLASOUNOFF..... sidi g
38 LEGEDIRVA............. a 39 JOFFE... . ccc ccc ieee ences
40 KAMONSKY........ done

Names

Oulianoff. ....

Bronstein..................., Nachamkess.................
Zederbaum. .... is Apfelbaum........... Seen oe
Drapkin ...... TATT ERT T
Rosenfeld............ ea 6es wa
GHIMIME Rss coi insets scausses Krachmann. .... peeled Silverstein. ....

KOMEN 226 sinus ass
Sverdloff.:............, follow
Kat? sis screens ses ete Furstenberg ....,.... of Gourevitch............ rss
Golder é6 essences er
Gelphanal.:ssss.s sos ; Goldenbach..................
PAE gentlemen tree
Chernomordick............ ` Levine....

Rosenblum..............
Levenson..................e è Natanson...................

Gerfeldt.;:s.teis sa hike
SCHUITÉS Sri teks:

Hoffmann....... see

Nationality

Russian of Jewish mother
Jewish

Russian

Latvian
Jewish

AL NAOUT pieces dare daw eer dese Ginsbourg ....,....... —
42 ZAGORSKY.........soo.... Krachmalink .... j —
43 ISGOEFF.............. Goldmann.....s.ss..scssess —
44 VLADIMIROFF...sccscocscee FéldManissusssssus eves fig —
45 BouNskorr:...,..,......... Foundamentsky .... — 46 MANOUILSKY.. see... . —
47 LARINE. Susan: LOUFiCs sses sis Bees tea ek — 48 KRASSINE..sescoeseseseseo Russian 49 TCHICHERINE........ sos —
DO GOUKOVBKY .... soso. —

To confirm these two documents, we are adding the article following the Excelsior (March 14, 1921), with regret that to be able to give the accompanying card:

HOW BOLSHEVIK PROPAGANDA IS ORGANIZED WORLDWIDE

It is divided into three distinct networks:

OFFICIAL NETWORK

Diplomatic delegations ques or commerolales Soviet offices press, tele- agency
"Roeta" graph,
Russian station of T.
8. F.

SECRET NETWORK A

A multitude of agencies subordinates by groups to such and such diplomatic mission Soviets in foreign countries

ger.

SECRET NETWORK B

Dependent agencies from a single entry to the foreigner, having their proper connection and directiongées chaoune by a representative of the Tohé-Ka.

The organization of Bolshevik propaganda dates back to 1917. And, one year later, at the time of the Peace Conference with Ukraine, to kyiv, one of the members of the Soviet government delegation could assure that the Bolsheviks possessed a more powerful weapon machine guns, gas, rifles and artillery: propaganda.
And it was true. Constantly perfected from the very beginning, the Bolshevik propaganda has now become a means of action without Likewise. It is thanks to her that the masters of communist Russia hope to overcome the armaments of the old bourgeois world, and thanks to her that they obtained results superior to those they are indebted to the red divisions. Inside as well as outside, the Propaganda is a terrible weapon.

According to the Bolshevik formula, "all means are good, provided that they succeed.” Therefore, engaging in propaganda does not mean merely spreading communist theories also means weakening to bluff the adversary, to disintegrate his rear line, to shake his resistance, To prepare for the victory of the Red Armies. Originally, the government of Moscow had created this organization for the exclusive needs of the inlaughter. It was only later that he developed it and extended it outside. Here is how it currently works:

The All-Russian Central Executive Committee has a propaganda office divided into three sections: 1° domestic propaganda; 2° propaganda in the army; 3. propaganda abroad. The latter is subdivided into two Subsections: the Eastern section and the Western section. The subsection Eastern Europe comprises eight groups: China and Korea, Japan, India, Afghanistannistan, Türkiye, Persia, Caucasus, nomadic peoples. The western subsection Dentale is made up of nineteen groups: Germany, Poland, countries Baltic states, Scandinavian countries, Austria and Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Romania Mania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Italy, Greece, Spain, France, England Ireland, United States, Netherlands, Belgium and Switzerland.

| The propaganda committee

The central propaganda office is placed under the orders of a committee composed of Zinovieff, Radek, Chicherin, Lunacharsky, Litvinoff, Krassine, etc., and who directs the entire organization, itself divided into three distinct networks: 1° the official network: diplomatic delegations or Soviet commercial offices abroad, press offices, agency "Rosta" telegraph station, Moscow radio stations, Nikolaev, Sebastopol, Feodosia, Odessa, Rostoff, Baku, Saratoff, kyiv, Imerinka, OrenBurg, Chelyabinsk, Petrograd and Kharkiv; 2° the secret network A: a a multitude of agencies subordinated in groups to this or that mission diplomatic abroad; 3° the secret network B, composed of agencies of propaganda dependent on a single center abroad, a service special liaison and intelligence agencies each headed by a representative of the "Che-Ka" — extraordinary commission for to combat counter-revolution, speculation and sabotage.

The Official Network

It would take too long to explain in detail the workings of an organization like the official network. It will suffice to say that, from Reval, the representative-feeling Soviet, Litvinoff assumed the top management of the offices of propaganda attached to diplomatic or commercial missions.
The Moscow government believes, in fact, that Reval is the most convenient for use as an outpost of communist action in the West.
He therefore installed everything that could be used for propaganda: printing presses, information offices, goods depots in case of regrouping chement with foreign countries, etc... The centers placed under the control of Litvinoff are, in addition to Reval: Helsingfors, Riga, Kovno, Prague, Vienna, Rome, Stockholm, Copenhagen, London, Berlin.

The attitude of certain states towards the Soviet government makes
It is true, the link between Reval and the missions in is quite complicated.
Europe. However, it is ensured either by diplomatic correspondence official communications, either through secret couriers. A transmission station was established.
Berlin, for example, allowed Litvinoff to maintain constant contact meeting with the heads of mission from Vienna and Prague.

Russian gold, intended to fill the coffers of Soviet missions to
The foreigner follows the same path as the ideas: from Reval, where it is deposited, Litvinoff sends it either to the missions with which he corresponds directly-either in Berlin, which in turn forwards it. In addition to the interview
These funds are used for missions and the expenses of two secret networks.
A and B, as well as to subsidize foreign communist groups affiliated with the Russian Bolsheviks. These groups exist everywhere, but mainly in Vienna, Prague and Berlin, where the heads of missions Bolsheviks are much less concerned with concluding commercial contracts
It is very important to welcome new recruits every day under the communist banner.

The Berlin agency

Berlin, understandably, holds the top spot among the official centers of Bolshevik propaganda abroad. Moscow agents are everywhere.
The head of the department is Mr. Vigdor Kopp, who is temporarily absent and is being replaced by Mr. Youkovsky, special delegate. Also present were: Messrs. Raich, seere-Mission leader; Erlanger, assistant secretary; Grouzenberg, Boutetti and Lazareff, members of the diplomatic section; Chonine, Nikolaev and Tomson, members of the technical section; Broussilovsky and Sopliakoff (Géleznoff), lawyers; Razviansky (Loustchikh), second secretary; Boukhmanoff, head of liaison; Gordon, member of the Soviet of Com-Petrograd mune; Anokhine, member of the all-Russian “Tché-Ka” and its representative for Germany, excluding Upper Silesia and Prussia oriental; Mesdames Loboff and Kantorovitch, propaganda agents and Information. Numerous, as we can see, and richly endowed, the mission Soviet officials in Berlin subsidize the communist newspaper Die Rothe Fahne.
It also maintains a red press office: the "Kommunisticher Pressedienst” (Berlin, Munzstrasse, 24) which publishes bulletins in German, "Korrespondenz" circulated throughout the Europe in enormous quantities. A German communist, Mrs. Anna Geyer is in charge of this office.

The secret network

But outside of official propaganda offices and intelligence-groups operating openly with Soviet embassies
In some countries, the Bolsheviks possess, as we have said, a vast secret network, network B, very well organized, extremely active and whose

The task is to prepare for the world revolution. Without it, there is no world revolution.
the Bolsheviks themselves admitted, the communist regime established in Russia cannot be considered stable.

Between the official Soviet offices abroad and those of the secret network, there is a very big difference. The first ones don't-employ only methods that are more or less acceptable; the latter do not consider that the goal is there and they don't look at the means.

The secret network was established in 1918 under the auspices of the famous "Tche-
"Ka," already named, and whose director, the sinister Dzersinsky, continues always 4 to bloody Russia. In 1919, the network passed under the orders from the propaganda office of the All-Russian Central Executive Committee, who developed it in such a way that at the moment there is no scul European countries where there are no agents of the network.

We have stated our goal: world revolution.
To reach him, the offices of the secret network resort to all means.
Possible actions: provocation, sabotage, fomenting of strikes, economic crises issues and disturbances, defeatism, etc... The agents must also to provide detailed information on European events.
on figures hostile to Bolshevism and, more generally, on anything that might be useful to the Soviet government.

Moscow runs the secret network

The secret network is headquartered in Moscow, under the orders of of the propaganda office and in contact with the "Che-Ka" and the council Executive of the Communist International. Its leaders were named Zinovieff, Dzersinsky, Zatzis, Avanessoff, Larine, Kaménieff, for the questions military personnel. The list of members of the steering committee includes-core: Kabaktchieff (Bulgaria), Rosmet (France). Bekker (Switzerland), Van Leven (Netherlands), Lévy (Germany), Rouzniansky (Hungary), Thomane (Austria), Bukharin (Russia), Frayn (United States), Fruis (Norway), Mac Leyne (England), Ai-ou-yan (China), d'Aragon (Italy), Fack (Korea), Mering (Dutch East Indies), Aylen (British East Indies), sultan Zadé (Persia), Copolile (Ireland), Slanitzky (Türkiye) and Victor (Latvia).

Seven lines of communication

Seven communication lines connect central Moscow with the rest of Europe. These are: 1° Moscow-Murmansk-Vardoë-Bergen-Iull; 2° Moscow-Petrograd-Yamburg-Narva-Reval-Svinemunde-Berlin; 3° Moscow-Minsk-Warsaw-Krakow-Teschen-Prague; 4° Moscow-Kiev-Gitomir-Rovno-Kovel-Warsaw; 5° Moscow-kyiv-Proskouroff-Ramenietz-Padolsky-Khotin-Czernovitz-Bucharest; 6° Moseou-kyiv-Odessa-Akkerman-Galvatz-Bucharest; 7s Moscow-kyiv-Odessa-Varna-Sofia.

The dryness and monotony of these enumerations can be excused. have their eloquence. Better than any sentences, they show what is the formidable organization created by the Bolsheviks and placed by them in the heart of Europe like a gigantic and fantastic canvas of araignée.

To return to the lines of communication, the Moscow-Hull line does not is used very rarely, while those of Moscow-Reval and Moscow-Prague operates almost non-stop. Between cities with agencies from the secret network of couriers, supplied by liaison stations. in the most diverse aspects. Reval, which connects Moscow to Berlin and to Copenhagen is one of the most important of these liaison posts and Litvinoff personally directs it with the assistance of numerous agents.

But let's get to Berlin, the headquarters of the secret network for Europe, with the exception of Finland, Estonia, Latvia and of Lithuania, which depend on Reval. There, an entire staff surrounds Vigdor Kopp; Eydoux, member of the all-Russian "Tehe-Ka", official organizer of the repatriation of prisoners of war and civilians massacres of officers in Vologda in 1918; Peters, of the "Che-Ka" also, in charge of counter-espionage; Ansky, of the information service mation; Spilman, of counter-espionage; Bobrovnitzky, of liaison; Marthe Zaralska, known as "Baroness Nitz", a famous German spy in Russia. During the war, the baroness had managed to infiltrate the intelligence service of the Russian 7th Army. She became friends intimate with one of the heads of this department and, in agreement with him, made prior-excellent services to the Germans. In 1918, during a brief appearance In Kyiv, during the German occupation, she took part in numerous looting. Currently, she operates within Berlin's high society. She It represents it very well, actually.

Kopp's agents

Among Vigdor Kopp's most active agents, it is worth mentioning David Rosenblum (aka Karl Kerner), claiming to be a translator, and who, all as part of the Polish intelligence service, worked for the Bolsheviks' account. Let us also mention the infamous Parvus-Kelphand, agent provocateur of the Wilhelmstrasse; he is the one who secretly runs things. the propaganda service in the occupied regions.

The center of Berlin has considerable resources. It sows gold in profusion. Its budget is "colossal". Shouldn't we pay for a whole... an army of agents, informants, couriers, journalists, to provide at the maintenance costs of cooperatives, clubs, newspapers, and libraries? Vigdor Kopp subsidizes up to a navigation company gation, supposedly founded by Russian émigrés, but intended in the reality is to ensure the link between German ports and Reval.

Fully aware that, in some cases, propaganda Openly communist could be dangerous, Vigdor Kopp (of his (real name Kopélévitch) organized in Berlin and other cities more moderate Russian groups, but nevertheless committed to the Soviets.

Such is, for example, the Berlin association "Mir i troud" – Peace and Work – led by Professor Stankévitch and the journalist Golubzoff. She urges the Russian émigrés to reconcile with the Bolsheviks and to work for Russia, without concerning themselves with the government existing birth.

Twenty-one letters in one month

After Berlin, Prague is the second most important post in the network secret. Just yesterday under the authority of Dr. Hillerson, currently in Disgrace, his activity was of the highest order. He is the point of connection capital on the Moscow-Paris route. There, the mail from Moscow... transform into peaceful traveling salesmen, into artists, into ou-workers, as tourists with pockets overflowing with money... and ins-Berlin's instructions regarding the tasks to be carried out in France.

According to a report by Dr. Hillerson dated November 18th-to deny, just during the month of October 1920, twenty-one Secret couriers arrived from Moscow to Prague; twelve left from Prague to Moscow; eight made the Prague-Paris journey and six the journey Paris-Prague. These letters follow the Prague-Leipzig route. (mail observation and control post), Stuttgart, Munich, Zurich, Geneva, Lyon, Paris.

The Milan post, and not the Rome post as is commonly believed, commands the Italian, Swiss, and Yugoslav sectors. Its temporary head is Pietro Savanti, side for agents Luigi Vincent, comrade “Carlo”, pseudonym under which a recently arrived Russian refugee seems to be hiding converted to communism, and Mendelson, a Russian subject who, in 1919, stayed in Lugano. Milan is the rallying point for the agents who travel between Zagreb, Belgrade and Sofa, between Brindisi, Athens and Marseille, and finally between Zurich, Geneva, Paris and Madrid.

Equally important posts operate in Rome, Zagreb, and Belgrade, in Sofla, Adrianople and Constantinople, all under the direction general of a committee residing in Adrianople. While being very good Organized, the Bucharest post is headed by Chiffer, the head of the post of Budapest. But Romania is being "worked on" specifically by the post of kyiv, commanded by Christian Rakowsky, president of the pan-Soviet-Ukrainian, implacable enemy of Romania with which he has Accounts to be settled.

Zurich's post

In the West, one of the best-established posts is that of Zurich, which secoride that of Paris and, if necessary, replaces it, as is the case during the proceedings against Abramovich-Zalewski.

The London post, placed under the command of Comrade Rybalsky, has also an extensive action. I] commands the Hull-connecting lines

Bergen-London-Copenhagen, as well as the secondary Sheffield-Manchester, Liverpool, Cardiff (via Bristol), Plymouth, Southampton, Portsmouth and Dover, as well as the Irish sector of Belfast and Dublin, Queenstown. The London post, with its Anglo-Irish sector, makes part of the Paris network.

This Paris network benefits, unsurprisingly, from attention very special from the leaders in Moscow. In 1920, they ordered-They were sent to Reval and Berlin to carry out the action in Paris with the maximum of energy, without regard to cost. Documents show that the Bolsheviks consider France to be the main obstacle to expansion the spread of communism in Europe and the Sovietization of France The future of Russia depends, to a large extent, on it. Until December In 1920, the center of Paris was run by the communist Parfenenko-Parkhomenko. Since his expulsion, it's the Humbert Droz group, from Zurich, which is in charge of directing the movement, which has ramifications in Cherbourg, Brest, Nantes, Bordeaux, Tours, Orléans, in Bourges, in Toulouse (connection with Spain), in Marseille, Toulon, Saint-Etienne, Lyon, Grenoble, Strasbourg, Metz, Roubaix (connection via Brussels) (with Amsterdam). Finally, the Paris post depends on those of Belgium. and of Holland.

To conclude this account of Bolshevik propaganda in Europe, a An interesting detail: a Bolshevik courier with proper documents. It takes seven to eight days to make the journey and cross the Galician border (Tarnopol post) and Paris. There are usually two mail trains per week. Those from Berlin are more frequent. They cross the border in the area around Metz, at least three times a week. These are the couriers who bring into France the stocks of narcotics that sold on major boulevards, as evidenced by the bottle of cocaine reproduced above — product of German origin, is there any need to say it.

XXX.

APPENDIX II

THE JEWS & THE FATHERLAND

The Jewish question is at the heart of all the problems. The Jew is everywhere. Nowhere is his presence passive; it is increasingly active. When, on all sides, patriotism and Nationalism is asserting itself; this Jewish action is surprising and shocking.

It irritates. Here is a people who do not assimilate to any one group. It is Yet they are not a nation of stateless people. The stateless are those who renounce all homeland and all that this word signifies.
Jewish action provokes and exploits these apostasies. But the Jew has a homeland. It's ideal, that's true; but he demands one, which to be like everyone else. What, then, is the nature of patriotism?
Jew, and what is the purpose of this? What is the position of the Jew in with regard to patriotism as it has been understood, felt, and lived until present among the peoples belonging to our civilization? What
What is the Jewish role in the evolution that this patriotism is undergoing?
These questions, and others, would form the basis of a Timely, but considerable work.

This is just a brief overview.

s+

On April 25th, the Critical Review of Ideas and Books gave an interesting excerpt from Memories, still unpublished works by Jomini. This page was published by the great-grandson of that Swiss man who served several countries and truly lived a cosmopolitan life.

When France, the eldest daughter of Christian Civilization elder sister of the nations, was in her rightful place in the Family of peoples — Family, we say, and not “Society”, which corresponds to the ideas, institutions, and customs of a a very different order — there was, between the homelands, an air of Kinship. A shared atmosphere, a common domain —

high-ranking — moral, intellectual, even worldly, lent themselves to the existence of a cosmopolitan society. It was a hotbed of civilization, where certain exchanges took place. In the 19th century, This cosmopolitanism has gradually taken on a new form, with more extensive. According to Dora Melegari's remark, it "has modified in its essence and manifestations. Why and How so? It's because "the preponderance acquired by the "Plutocracy caused him to deviate from his path." That's the Jew.

But let's get back to Jomini.

"He is undoubtedly flattering," he says in this fragment of His Memoirs, quoted by Mr. Xavier de Courville, "he is flattering, no doubt, belonging to a country that adds to independence Your character and the independence of your position. This is very well when not being served; but if one wants to follow a For a public career abroad, it's good to add the mobile phone.
from the homeland to that of his personal duties."

This is an admission of the shortcomings of this intellectual cosmopolitanism and worldly when it comes to no longer bringing the elites, but to provide relevant services. Therefore, he declares Jomini, you have to put down roots; you have to choose this square of the a civilization where we will discipline ourselves, where we will build. We must to choose a homeland.

“Think carefully about this truth,” Jomini continued, addressing of his descendants; "and, if fate destines you to settle down Far from your homes, choose an adopted homeland where you you will find both the dignity of a Swiss citizen and the honor to serve a great people. Will you do it without turning back and without ulterior motive, for there is no more deplorable condition at a certain age than to find oneself condemned to die on a foreign soil without any family or national ties."

Man does not choose his country. That is the general truth.
However, under the impact of such a personal or family event, under the influence of such states of mind or
In such roles, he may be required to move from one country to another.
to another. This is called naturalization; but it the fault "without turning back and without ulterior motive", and it must be characterized, and therefore justified, by "services" rendered to people of which one wishes to become a member, services related to the area of this people to which one gains access.

These themes of cosmopolitanism and naturalization do not do not resemble those that Jewish times have made prevail.

Cosmopolitanism is no longer, today, a kind of adornment.
and like the bond between nations; it no longer serves them. It tends to them to direct them, to dominate them, to subordinate them, to erase them.
The cosmopolitanism of the new era no longer sways anyone to take root. On the contrary, he works to uproot the nationals. It is not a relationship between nations; it is a weapon of dissension and ever-increasing perversion embedded in the brain, the heart and the side of every homeland.
Effects, all of this, logical and merciless effects, of The "grand" principles of the so-called French Revolution. These principles lead to the emancipation of the individual, to his divinization. This total rupture of age-old and necessary ties saires determined, practically, and by a backlash curious and fatal to the same principles, an enslavement the completeness of the individual, and the divinization of this assertive force screw itself, which first took the name of State, and, now, through a natural evolution that favors and leads to the unprecedented perversion of the human word of which we We are the witnesses and the victims, and it takes the name of Society.

+
++

Let us open a Jewish book: Moses, Jesus, and Muhammad, of which The author is Mr. Simon Lévy, Chief Rabbi of the Jewish Consistory. The Gironde litigant. He accuses Catholicism of being the enemy The formidable and stubborn nature of the human person! This No one else, it is Judaism alone that confesses her, liberates her, proclaims it, invests it with life and glory. On such pages of this book, it is true, – and this goes without saying, – the rabbi implies clearly that what is crucial in the Christia- crime An ideology against man is one that is directed against the "body". All of this is shrouded in theses that are both obscure and brilliant, awkward, and frivolous; but one can guess very quickly what the Jew means, and we must remember this when he tells us speaks, with emphasis, of the "personal dignity" reduced to nothing, it seems, by the religion of Our Lord Jesus-Christ.

So, he writes: "The periods of ardent faith in Judaism have always been times of wars of independence and of liberation from all servitude, whether national or "foreign." The rabbi, having established this, articulates a distinction where

His entire system is revealed. What is excellent about the civilization, this stems from Judaism which brought it through the The Bible, a source from which Christianity has drawn extensively. The bad thing is what comes from Christia alone. nism, which, "because of its spirit of condescension towards "Pagan error has fallen short of biblical truth!" And the characteristic of times born from the triumph of the "great princes" "Cipes" is the liberation and renewal of Judaism; it is its supremacy, which must be constantly and increasingly accused, on Christianity.

Mr. Simon Lévy further asserts: "If in Europe the feeling of personal dignity – (this, let us repeat, is about pure individualism) —– tends to regain its dominance, despite the existence of dogmas that we believe are not very favorable to its Development is that the truths of the Bible are more universally widespread.

This Biblicism, a catalyst for the dissociation of everything that was the product and at the same time the support of Christian civilization, it is to the sects that they gather, a formless and bahelic flock, Protestantism, to which we owe its spread, to this extent conducive to the universal sedition that Judaism incites and used.

Mr. Lévy continues: "Currently, it is clear that the Christianity leaves, in the new constitutions of the peoples, less from their own fund than from the common fund borrowed from the "Bible" as interpreted by Judaism. the inherent dignity of man or his natural rights, if you will To call them that is rather affirmed by the Synagogue than by the Church!

And this would be the appropriate place to recall Mr. Ferdinand's thesis. Buisson during the debates on the laws which, in the name of Liberty of Man, decreed null and void the vows agreed upon ganists, freely consented to however, but which were not worth No, since no organized freedom is worth anything against the goddess. Liberty, who, with her breath, overturns all these laws and all these disciplines of which Saint Paul said that accepting them To comply with it is truly to be free.

Mr. Lévy continues: "So that the first (the Synagogue) is truly at the forefront of states that are regenerating themselves, while the second (the Church) is more often at war or have little agreement with these same states.” The point is clear.

central and culminating in the perversion pursued, it is all in causes the pyramid to overturn.

“It is the spirit of the Bible,” Mr. Lévy continued, “that breathes today, it affects nations without their knowledge. And if the Christianity, chained by dogma, cannot always to promote the expansion of this spirit, — (Christianity not chained, that is to say Protestantism, and everything related to it (from him or proceeds from him, contributes to it, on the other hand, doesn't it?) at least he has the glory of having already prepared a third of the genre human beings are visited by it. It's having helped to make a good part of the task, as much as what he could allow "He sucked good from Judaism." But "to the latter, the completion of the work.

This thesis makes the following assertions of the
The same Jewish author: "The Bible sanctions the new rights
— (This refers to human rights, the rights of peoples) —
With her broad principles, she could, if asked, to implement it, — (it is clear that this is about the restoration-a ration of Judaism, but a Judaism emptied of everything that Catholicism has gathered there, from an outrageously Judaism distorted, of that Judaism which the Messiah clashed with and which was the first enemy, the first persecutor of Catholicism, which he has never ceased to pursue with his hatred since then), — because it responds and will always respond to successive aspir-rations of humankind rising and purifying themselves under the action
"Progress continues."

Let us remember even more clearly what follows immediately: “When of the Revolution of 1789, the Bible was able to applaud both hands to the proclamation of equality before the law for all subjects of a State, whatever their religion or position
"social." Our Jew remains silent on the constant fact and the character special of Jewish nationality, and, by doing so, he distorts the problem of the status required by presence, within a people, of foreign elements. "Since then, the Bible has been able, on its own movement, helping in the painful birth of freedom in all countries where it has been agreed to do it to be born.” An admission of the preponderant role of Judaism in the revolutions that shake the old homelands, and of the scope anti-Christian of these "upheavals". — "From now on,
She will be ready to greet, no matter which way she appears.

the dawn of universal peace that will invite all men to to live together as friends and brothers."

That is the goal: men freed from their homelands, and, in this which were the homelands, liberated from all other societies that subjugatedweave into dogmas or disciplines "dignity personal.” A little further on, our rabbi professes that the Freedom is "the foundation" of law and the entire body of law.
duty. And the consequences of this are easy to see-
To receive. How many events, moreover, have we had them?
made more sensitive since the publication of Mr. Lévy's book, that is, since 1887.
f ! oe

Mr. Lévy's official thesis was already outdated. All Democratic literature had insinuated it, stated it, spread it, and Michelet, in particular, had written, among other assertions in accordance with the themes and conclusions of the rabbi of Bordeaux:
"Little by little, the inherent strength within man will free him," will uproot it from this land. It will emerge from it, push it back, the
He will tread. He will need, instead of his native village, his city, from his province, a great homeland for which he counts himself even in the destinies of the world. The idea of this homeland, idea abstract, which owes little to the senses, will bring him, by a new effort, in the idea of the universal homeland, of the city of the Province
"denial." We feel (and tense up at our best) everything
This vocabulary reveals sacrilegious confusions, but We can see how much it serves, by this very fact, the advent of Judaism Again, how much it testifies to a victorious permeation, through Jewish ideas, French, Latin, European minds.

The homeland is an abstraction. It soon gave way to another abstraction, also tasked with promoting the progress, also presented as an instrument of access-
The movement of progress, namely the Revolution. In the name of the Revolution, all homelands must be as if they
They were not. They no longer matter. The Revolution dominates them, absorbs them, dissolves them.

Before, or with, the word Revolution, the word Republic-
The republic fulfills the same function. This is what, in 1870, made write to a certain W. Raymond: "If we believe our memories, we who lived in Germany for a long time, the
The Holy Republic is worshipped there, just as it is in our country...”. Hence, this conclusion that if France were to proclaim a Republic,

The German soldiers would tell Wilhelm, "throwing away"
Their weapons were still damp with the blood of their brothers:
"Enough carnage already! Before us, we have more than brothers who think like us, who have the same

Our goal: the liberation of humanity... Remove-you, and let us extend a hand to our brothers in France. who have preceded us on the road to progress and "Liberty." They established the Republic in France, and neither did the Germans They neither disarmed nor dismissed William. But the Jews took a further, and serious, step on the path of their progress In France.

This is just one feature among a thousand. Similarly, it is by hundreds of definitions of the Fatherland could be counted and Patriotism which, in these last fifty years, for not to go back any further, were produced, in all the From all walks of life, official or unofficial, cultured or not, everyone is in the public gallery. and in all circumstances, and who speak of this feeling and as a result, in such a way that imperceptibly the minds in conceive an erroneous notion, from which practically result disastrous attitudes.

All these definitions carry, with varying degrees of relevance, the Jewish mark. And this leads to the articulation of the theses internationalists of today, theses which must be named more exactly anti-nationalists. Internationalism is not, By definition, the enemy of nations. Catholicism, by For example, the International of Souls is at this point respectful of the nations that it is the safest home of patriotism ism, even in the most jealous and proudest. That's the thought Jewish woman who gave Internationalism a definition and a unpatriotic scope.

Last year, the Jewish People quoted some opinions on the homeland. “The homeland entails, above all, an acquiescence "individual." That is the assertion of a certain Jean Marnold. We are now far removed from the teaching given by Jomini to those of his lineage. Jomini spoke, and nobly, of certain cases individuals who transport a man from one homeland to another other. And he acknowledged the imperious, and precious, force that pushes man to fix himself "without ulterior motive and without return” to a homeland other than that of his ancestors for to "serve" there and to root all his descendants there. The thesis

Jewish, it is that "individual acquiescence" is at the base patriotism.

Therefore, this great feeling, this attachment, can cease. the totality of being to a land, to a history, to a people, when we no longer acquiesce. Mr. Georges Pioch, one of our Judaizers 'the most proven ones,' he expressly states in a collected text, Moreover, he too, by the Jewish People: "It's the choice, better than birth itself, and especially better than submission and habit is the conscious and deliberate choice that underlies the "Fatherland." What treacherous language! The choice thus exalted does not establish not the homeland; he dislocates it, he destroys it, quite the contrary, constantly,

It is true that, according to another, named Topinard, "the nation is a political association generated by circumstances "Responsibilities." Therefore, circumstances can get us out of this situation, and, as an association is obviously a contract in by virtue of which one gives in order to receive, by which one does not commit that conditionally, we always find, when we want to escape, any pretext will do.

Likewise, even if we accept this thesis, and similar theories, Given the abundance of these resources, one should, in the evolution of public law and of private law thus triggered, leading, on the road to progress, to the official establishment of the association as a basis of the homeland, and, consequently, stipulate that every man will choose his homeland at a certain age, and will not be able to leave it that under certain conditions and will be able to do so himself, under such conditions others, to be automatically rejected.

But if such a regime is ever to be instituted, the virus The Jew, continuing his sinister work, will shatter these frames artificial and unstable, because patriotism, as it Ultimately, it is considered incompatible with any organization. with any institution. A socialist writer, Mr. Lucien The Foyer, on this subject, offered some formulas worthy of Note: "The homeland," he wrote, "is above all the race." These are the generations that pass on the knowledge from one to the next. sacred torch... The homeland is made more of the future than of the past. Race is more precious than land. Life, not death. characterizes the triumph of the fatherland.” Formulas that want to be clear and precise, and which are only imprecision and confusion. a

Let's reopen Mr. Simon Lévy's book. On the last pages, He told us: "Wherever there is something of us: ashes of our fathers or our children, guarantees of our franchises and our freedoms, the source of our moral and intellectual well-"Locally, that is our homeland." This, at least, is unambiguous.

The Jew, who has ancestors everywhere, because everywhere he has was spread under a special punishment and also a a specific mission, a mission he carries out without knowing what it is.
or, when he knows her, by detesting her and striving to... to thwart; – the Jew who, with all the wars he has provoked or will provoke, has already and will have more and more everywhere the ashes of his children; – the Jew who, advancing, in all the forms that his cunning can take, behind the "Modern principles" is on the verge of being able to claim everywhere, special charters grant it franchises.

privileged; – the Jew, therefore, according to this thesis, will be, if he does not
He already is, at home in all his homelands.
Rabbi Lévy continues: "Man must know how to be natural– to achieve in all places on the globe where it is granted what is necessary for the deployment of his faculties soul." – We know what lies behind these faculties, and everything what the Jewish soul carries with it, or rather, what

She has a very special body.

Our rabbi concluded: "Cosmopolitanism is a true virtue, because this word does not mean being indifferent to everything, but to love everything, to be attached to everything that puts us in a position of to fulfill our mission on Earth. And that is precisely the cosmopolitanism that the Synagogue saved, preached and encouraged enraged, wanting by this to affirm the obligation in which man is to devote himself body and soul to the country that grants him aid and protection and promotes the development of its noblest aspirations.

These fine phrases poorly conceal the truth of the facts: the Jew, an intruder everywhere, demands everywhere the same rights as the native, and, from then on, dominates and rules. The Jew, according an expression of the Israelite Alliance, which vigorously gathers Fortunately, the very teaching of the rabbi of Bordeaux is of an "inexorable universalism." Such is his patriotism.
real. As for submitting to patriotism such as civilization Christian faith established it, made it flourish, and, after the current crisis, will restore it even more magnificent and more fruitful, must we to think that the Jew will ever be able to do it?

In his book The Jews and the War, Mr. André Spire, who is Jewish, he wrote: "To give Jews the right of citizenship, – (that is to say, a true son of a city, a true child of this city of cities that is a homeland), – I see only one the means, which is to cut off their heads in one night, all of them, and to give them another one in which there is not a
"The only Jewish idea." That's the answer. And again, after having...
Having changed their heads, should we also change their hearts?

se

We are currently witnessing the apotheoses legitimate and grandiose gifts that are lavished on all sides Heroic deaths of the Great War, in skillful attempts, insidious, eloquent, aimed at establishing a kind of religion, of a kind of cult of the fatherland, which, far from corresponding to the truth of fact and of the feeling of homeland, tends to seize hold of this feeling and therefore adding to the mental turmoil and moral. Thus erected, thus praised, thus on the altar of the fatherland surrounded, thus becoming the platform for solemn speeches, which ring false, and the theater of solemn demonstrations full of misunderstandings or traps, what do we Wouldn't we be more inclined to sacrifice if we couldn't rely on these profound reactions stemming from both Christian and national sensibilities oppose Jewish labor more and more each day, and who which never fails to disconcert the perpetrators and accomplices of Judaism!

In 1903, preparations were underway, under the auspices of the League of Human rights, so totally and cynically Judaizing, to maneuvers of this kind. This happened in December, at Trocadero. A French general had been appointed by our people– public views, whose sustained and growing complacency is well known health towards Jews, to preside over this ceremony, organa–
A ceremony was held in honor of the conscripts. A Jewish conscript, called Godfein stepped forward and read, on behalf of his comrades, for the
The vast majority are sons of the soil and blood of France, but poisoned and subjugated by Judaism, a Declaration containing this:

"...In the independence of my thought, conscious of my duties, at the time of performing the first of them, anxious to earn my rights, in the presence of those near who I grew up with, parents and educators of my youth; in front of the symbol of French liberties, I affirm. My resolution to have as a guide to my actions the solidarity that unites me to my family, to my fellow citizens, to all men... Man, I I want to be the brother of all men; citizen and soldier, I

I want to defend the Republic and oppose its dismemberment.
In short, obey the laws in force and those that will be established the representatives of the people... ». p N

This is what the Jew wants to put in our heads instead of of what national and Christian patriotism has put into it. The Jew needs to constantly push this disruption of our minds to advance his business. He has no country. He wants that no one has any. From then on, he will have conquered the universe and his universe will be his homeland where all those who toil for his benefit will do so.
who, until then, were heirs and continuators of their own homeland,
They considered him an intruder.

Mr. Morris Myer, director of the English daily newspaper The Jewish Times made that perfectly clear. After having recalled that "France is the classic country of emancipation"
"Jewish," he observed that this emancipation has not all of not even "brought the full freedom which the Jewish people have
"Need." For, he said, in Le Peuple Juive, January 24, 1919,
"It has served Jewish individuals more than the (Jewish) nation."
It strengthened the economic and civil situation of Jews, but It diminished the originality of Jewish life, weakened its side national, its culture.

And that is what must now be liberated, enthroned, established.
above all. "Every Jew," he said, "as a Jew, does not will be completely free only when the entire (Jewish) people are "Completely free as a people." — The Jewish people!
But the elements are scattered throughout the universe. So?

So, here it is: We declare that the satisfactions obtained by Some Jews are not enough, nor are those that could be, here and There, granting further favor to the Jewish individual. This is printed, quite simply: "The day of the Jewish grand dukes, so to speak, (a self-made dynasty that has done bankruptcy) is now over." And, "our nation," said Mr. Morris Myer, being a nation on the same footing as all the other nations", it must be given a "home", that is—that is to say, to grant him Palestine. There is the Jewish homeland, there is the Jewish home.

But this homeland, this home, cannot bring them all together, the to contain, and, endowed with this home and this homeland, they do not will remain no less scattered throughout the world.
Thus the Jews hear, in some point of the universe whatever it may be, to be there only as Jews, whatever the designation national (according to the old historical style) that they can to receive due to their habitat,

"We need both: political rights in the countries that we will continue to inhabit, and Palestine for those who will be able and will want to go to Palestine to rebuild our "Home." That's how Mr. Myer puts it. So it's something else entirely.
The only thing now that has been granted is this emancipation, in France first, to the Jews under the guise of this "equality of cults", in the name of which so much disorder has been provoked.

*
++

On June 8, 1919, in Paris, Mr. Braunstein, in a meeting
A Jewish man, in honor of Russian Zionists, said that the time is coming to break free from the situation agreed to by the Jewish Sanhedrin assembled by Napoleon I." This Sanhedrin, the speaker explained, has falsely proclaimed that Judaism no longer formed that a religion and that, for this reason alone, the Jews must enjoy the same rights as all other citizens.

"No," said Mr. Braunstein, "the question is no longer posed in that way.
As it stands, the formula of the Jewish problem is narrow; it is "False." So what is the true doctrine? It is that the
The Jewish people cannot abdicate as such and who, as such, must live in the fullness of his nationality clean, at the very heart of other nationalities. That is to say that the Jewish people are the sovereign people. Palestine is his home; but the universe is his domain. In the parts in this area where, for one reason or another, he is oppressed Again, the Jew is permitted, by "modern principles", to rebel.

On March 22, 1919, in YO pinion, Mr. André Spire wrote: "...As soon as a certain number of men, while not having not the majority, represent a certain percentage of the population lation, and when, on top of that, they find themselves geographically-Physically grouped together, they want to keep their customs, their language, their religion; and if the government does not grant them a minimum franchises, they organize political oppositions ticks, and, when they can, revolt."

This principle and this method were advocated by the Jews. in all countries, and, by that means, they consumed, a little everywhere, not bad empire collapses and upheavals. But the The crucial and supreme advantage they claim to derive from it is that This way of thinking and acting is more readily accepted by them. than to anyone. It was on the occasion of the creation of the new states, in Central and Eastern Europe by the treaties that followed the Great War, which Mr. Spire vendic, for Jewish minorities, this right to insurrection and this right to remain strictly Jewish within nationalities. The Jews do not want to "renounce their nationality" ethnic. They intend to remain Jewish.

All this, "in the name of the will to endure." But, this even with a "will to endure", nations are not permitted of washing and practicing it, since she could not assert herself by excluding the Jewish element, by definition and position foreign element. However, it is the latter that must prevail. Let us repeat that, in the Jewish thesis, he only owes it because that they are the chosen people, the sovereign people, the people who have been appointed silence of the promise of the "kingdom of God", which, all In fact, through Jewish works, the kingdom of Devil.

on

The ongoing events around the world, the Jews have either determined or aggravated. In any case, they do, in all parts, under all pretexts, in all ways, effort for use them, to turn them to their advantage. Nordau, in the his campaign in this regard, conducted in all countries, has gone so far as to to articulate this, during a meeting, 4 London, on January 11 1920: "The war that has just shaken the world has been a war waged against the Jewish people. This seems paradoxical. It is Yet it's true. We are approximately 13,000,000 Jews. We we provided 900,000 men, seven percent of our total population; this percentage has been reached by few peoples and surpassed by only one: the French people. We have had 80,000 dead, and our total losses were 200,000. All The other peoples knew perfectly well why they were fighting. They had a concrete purpose. Their driving forces were motivated by criminal selfishness and desires for domination on the part of some, by the legitimate right of defense for others. But the Why did the Jews fight? Of course, we have We fought to defend the countries where we were born. we went to war with enthusiasm in the countries that who give us justice and grant us freedom, and we We did our duty, even in countries that reject us. the most basic justice, without joy, no doubt, but with of Stoicism.

All of this, even taken literally, doesn't tell us how The war was "a war waged against the Jewish people." The argument-Max Nordau's approach, to grasp it at its starting point, would tend to prove that the war was "a war made to the French people," since it is he who has the most suffered. But here is what our Jew is getting at:

"However, we are entitled to ask ourselves if these (Jewish) soldiers who lost their lives had the satisfaction of Did they know their sacrifices were appreciated and recognized? Did they return? "Destroyed by their death the honor of the Jewish name?" — Well! And the French? What would we say if we considered let's laugh and measure the "satisfactions" given to our Sacrifices? — But this concerns the superior race, this concerns Jews, and Nordau exclaimed: "Even in the regions Despite advances in the West, we are seeing a wave of anti-Semitism. stemming from atavistic hatred and the resurgence of chauvinism nism, spreading like asphyxiating gases and condensing in an atmosphere that had become unbreathable for Jews surrounded by suspicion. Hatred often degenerates into a genuine persecution. And, if this is the case in the countries in the West, in several regions of Eastern Europe, this This is no longer anti-Semitism, but a furious outburst.

of savage hatred... ».

Hey! Perhaps it's because, in both Europes, The Jew has, in one way or another, thwarted nationalism. old or nascent nationalism. He who ignited so much wars, he who unleashed so many revolutions, why He is surprised to experience it. And harshly, sometimes, the counter-

Blows? The reactions of the people may even, one day, to take on an even more energetic air. An uprising Unanimity is possible. The Galician Jew Leon Reich proclaimed, Formerly: "The Jewish people will break their centuries-old chain." Does he believe that the Christian people are incapable, when the weight He will become too sensitive and the shame too intense, to shake The yoke of the Jews? Mr. Zangwill, speaking in London, declared, in case the Jews, "after all their sacrifices and their hopes" would be dashed, this threat: “Who could say the results of such a disillusionment? Are there not already... "Has Europe had enough hotbeds of despair, anarchy, and chaos?" But, if from these homes the Jew suddenly appeared as The creator and the profiteer, who could say what the results would be? against the Jew, from such a discovery?

+
$+

What then is the hope cherished by the Jews, and who leads them now to exercise, by all means, a Such pressure on people and governments? That's the Palestine for the Jews, that's the Zionist demand. On this The point is, there are several schools of thought, and they are quarreling. The school that it seems to us that the question is brought to its ultimate conclusion, which is the one which Asher Ginsberg (Ahad-Haam) — who is said to be the author of Protocols — says the trends in his book At the Crossroads, the first edition of which, published in Odessa, dates from 1895.

Ginsberg argues that what matters is less about opening the Palestine to the Jews rather than returning Palestine to Judaism. This will restore to the Jews "national consciousness" and will that Jews will cease "to be Jewish individuals." Then, he said, "when Hebraism has returned to its source and when from all the lands of dispersion, and even from the sanctuaries In a more peaceful state, the Jews will turn their hearts towards the Jerusalem presents the self-emancipation of Judaism. will arise of its own accord, as a necessary product of the the feeling of love of the Jews for Hebrew culture and for their land”.

Political Zionism appears to deviate from this conception. But, in his name, however, Mr. Weizmann, on July 24 In 1918, he placed the twelve on Mount Scopus, near Jerusalem. the first stones of a Hebrew University which will be the "Hebrew cultural center." This aligns quite well with the thinking of Ginsberg.

What they want to do in Jerusalem — Rome and Jerusalem, two opposing views, taught the famous Moses Hess, — It is the development, codification and promulgation of a Hebrew legislation, which will consecrate "the unity of the people "Jew" and who will rule all peoples. Then, the revenge of the The conflict between Jews and Christians will be consummated. Then Judaism will have expelled Christianity, will have rejected it, and Jesus will be defeated, everything that was born from his thought and his life, from his his word and his passion being finally annihilated or reduced to the servitude or silence, delivered to corruption or obscurity no going back.

This great, this magnificent, this magnanimous patriotism universal that Christianity established, which serves as a link to peoples with their own distinct personality and traditions are respected, Judaism will disperse it in this way, y substituting his own, the one that ruthlessly imposes on everyone the peoples the Jewish mark, the Hebrew seal, and, to better to ensure this primacy of the Jew, establishes and aggravates without respite absolute individualism, which is the death of families and of homelands and which no longer allows any associations whose The rules and direction are in the all-powerful hands of the Jew.

Mr. Weizmann, summarizing one day what the Allies — who have Judaized in their successive conferences and the various Treatises given by them, resulting in so much bloodshed and piled-up ruins — have conceded to the Zionists, he declared: "The most important point is the recognition of the Jews." of Palestine and the foreigner as a single entity and a whole. Palestinian Judaism recognized as a political unity embracing not only the Jews of Palestine, but also all those who inhabit it in their minds."

These words are related to those of Mr. Edmond de Rothschild: "Even more than the earth, we we want, following the example of our fathers, to cultivate the great principles of ideals and justice, and to spread them throughout the world. For us, Israel's mission is not finished, and that is the reason why which we joyfully welcome the establishment of the home of Palestine.

Christianity has its own language, which, without bearing the slightest harm, quite the contrary, to no other language, serves to the direct and constant communication between the authorities, otherwise among the faithful, and which, above all, preserves, in its form to this it is a given that she is said to be dead, when in fact she is particularly boundly and supremely alive, the dogmas and the precepts. Judaism, in its dream of domination universal, wants to impose its own, too. To Latin, Hebrew will be substituted.

Last year, in Paris, a Russian Jew, Mr. Slatopolsky, the president of "Hebrew Culture" delivered a speech in Hebrew, saying: "Only the Hebrew language can to serve as a link between Jews around the world…." He explained the need to create, without delay, in all the major centers, Jewish schools, starting with Paris. In Russia, He asserted that large-scale Hebrew meetings could already be held. where the entire audience understands Hebrew. At the Conference of Peace, Menahem Ussichkine, Zionist delegate, spoke in Hebrew. In all countries, efforts will be made to obtain For Hebrew, all licenses. And last year, Mr. Eliachar, grandson of the chief rabbi of Jerusalem, candidate for the School central, was authorized by the Minister of Education public of France, to make its composition in Hebrew.

s%

On December 15, 1918, in Paris, during a meeting Zionist, Mr. Aimé Pallière, who is not Jewish, but who has He became an ardent proponent of Judaism, exclaiming: "The War has only destroyed what was obsolete; on the contrary, it has brought back to the world stage that which was alive, awaiting the hour "Reparations." That, you guessed, is the Jewish people. And Mr. Pallière proclaimed: "The hour has come. Eretz "Israel will be reborn, with all that this word implies."

Notice to nationals of all nations. Notice to members of the great, vast, and august Christian kinship. May all They finally glimpse the rising tide, the scourge that threatens them, The rumbling volcano. And everyone is prepared for the danger. The Jewish city would be a return to paganism, even an aggravation of This one. That is what a whole powerful beam of forces, the most formidable of which are and remain hidden, the Jewish movement, the reality of which cannot escape any look, but it is important to grasp its meaning and denounce it and render the perpetrators and accomplices powerless.

The nations will undoubtedly be even more shaken, tomorrow, by such a flood, as they have never been by any kind of excitement. Many can sink. But the Church does not tremble before the Synagogue. does not fear being broken, annihilated, replaced by this one. She has the words of eternal life. And it is from her that When the time comes, the lights and the men will appear. capable of bringing the lost and troubled world back to the rights paths of justice and peace, of order and harmony. That day, as we are led to believe and to affirm so many great past adventures, to second, to carry out, to complete the work of salvation which The Church has the secret and the means; France will be there—that of Clovis, Charlemagne and Saint Louis, that of Genevieve and of Joan of Arc, that of the Sacred Heart.

PAUL COURCOURAL.

APPENDIX III

MACROPROSOPE

AND

MICROPROSOPE

The English edition of the "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion, published published in London in 1920, under the title The Jewish Peril, bears, in head, an engraving with this legend: "Jewish emblem-Bolshevik surrounded by the symbolic Serpent"; and the author refers to Protocol III. It reads, in fact:

Just a short distance to go and the circle of the Symbolic Serpent-The symbol — the sign of our people — will be complete. Another version says: “This symbol of our people” (1).

We do not know to what extent the serpent emblem that which bites its own tail can be taken as representative of the Jewish people, but it is certainly a symbol of the high Occult initiation: it appears in the Society's coat of arms Theosophical and in many pentacles (2). The great initiation is indeed given — at least by all the masters of Occult science affirms it — within the Astral plane, and we Let us read what one of them had to say:

Astral light is represented in ancient symbols by the Snake biting its own tail (3).

(1) Ms* JOUIN: The Judeo-Masonic Peril, p. 43.

(2) The word "pentacle" is a generic term that refers to the figures symbols of occult science, Kabbalah, Hermetic alchemy ticks, talismans, etc., etc. Some authors only use it to designate the Pentagram or five-pointed star.

(3) Evipnas Lévi: Dogma and Ritual of High Magic, vol. I, p. 218.

SYMBOLIC PENTACLE OF THE ANTICHRIST

Future King of the Jews
According to Serge Nilus's interpretation

Digitized by Google

In any case, the author of the English translation of "Protocols" did not indicate the exact source of the pentacle it He reproduced it, let alone offered an explanation. We Let's try to fill these gaps.

The first edition of The Secrets of the Elders of Zion appeared in Peterstown, in 1902. Serge Nilus had included it in the second edition of his book entitled: The Great in the Small and the Antichrist as a possibility imminent government (1).

However, Serge Nilus writes in this work. We translate from Russian: |

To conclude this arduous—I would even say: this painful work of revelation of the great mystery of iniquity, of the Judeo-Masonic conspiracy, I will describe a characteristic drawing taken from a book published at the commencement from the second half of the last century and containing a study of the Dogma and rites of high magic. This drawing represents the Tetragrammaton of the Masonic seal of Solomon — the seal of the Antichrist — under the form of two men who look like old men fighting together and surrounded by the symbolic serpent whose head joins the tail. The old man whose pale face was crowned with a papal tiara bearing the cross, is turned upwards, obviously in vain, of to push away with her dark and gaunt hands the embrace of the hands clear and powerful from the second old man. This one, with his hair styled like the The ancient Magi turn their dark faces downwards. The figures of these two old men fighting amongst themselves are divided by a Maltese cross, of which One half is dark and the other half is light.

All around, in an oval bordered by the serpent, is a inscription which can be read as follows: Quod superius macroprosopus sicut inferius, and backwards: Quod superius microprosopus, sicut inferius macroprosopus. Which in translations will mean (Russian translation): The higher God is, the lower the devil, and vice versa. The old man with a fair face and dark hands, wearing a tiara with a cross, represents God and Christianity, good at first glance (clear face), Bad in reality, according to his works (dark hands). The other old man represents the devil and Freemasonry, evil at first glance (face dark), and good in reality (clear hands) (2).

Such is the mystery of Babylon, the great Prostitute!

Let us note, in passing, that the very title of the volume: The Great

(1) M!" JOUIN: The Judeo-Masonic Peril, p. 3.

(2) We cannot bring ourselves to include the drawing itself here, because it constitutes sacrilege. (Author's note).

in the Little Book, is the translation of the Seal of Solomon, and that This expression, which we will return to later, is taken from the Kabbalah.

⁂

The book to which Serge Nilus refers is none other than Eliphas Lévi's work: Dogma and Ritual of High Magic, and the engraving which he describes briefly, interpreting it in a more or less accurate way, is found on the frontispiece from the first volume of this famous classic of occultism. Let us add that Eliphas Lévi did not create this pentacle; it comes from old Kabbalistic manuscripts; it has often been reproduced with a few variations that do not change the meaning. It is the Macroprosopus and Microprosopus of Jewish Kabbalah, the Great and the Little Shore of the Zohar. Eliphas Lévi only gives one A very brief explanation, conceived as follows:

The Great Symbol of Solomon. — The double triangle of Solomon, represented by the two old men of the Kabbalah; the macroprosopus and the micro-Prosopus; the God of light and the God of reflections; the merciful and the avenger; the white Jehovah and the black Jehovah.

The two small figures on either side are analogous to main subject (1).

We find the same idea expressed, in a different form slightly different, in two plates from another work of the same author and which have the titles: "The Magic Head of the Sohar" and “The Great Kabbalistic Symbol of Sohar” (2).

The following texts, borrowed from the Kabbalah, are inter-Remarkable points to note, among many others:

The divine image is twofold. There is the head of light and the head of shadow. The white ideal and the black ideal, the upper head and the lower head. One One is the dream of the God-Man, the other is the supposition of the God-Man. One represents the God of the wise, the other the idol of the common people...

For the elder elder called the macroprosopus or the great The creative hypothesis is also called Arich-Anphin, that is to say, the face immense. The other, the human God, the shadow figure, the microscopic prosopus, That is to say, the restricted hypothesis, is called Seir-Anphin, or the face shrunk.

(1) EvipHas Lévi: Dogma and Ritual of High Magic, vol. I, p. 5.
(2) Evipuas Lévi: History of Magic, pp. 41 and 53.

When this face looks at Do's face, it is doubled and becomes harmonious... (1). |

We also read: l

The Ancient of Ancients is in the Macroprosopus, the light is hidden In the shadows, the large is represented by the small... (2).

The form of man encompasses all forms, so many things superior than inferior things (3).

And because this form summarizes and represents all that is, we we use it to represent God in the figure of the old man supreme.

Then, in accordance with this figure and like its shadow, we imagine the Microprosopus.

And if you ask me what the difference is between the two Old men, I will answer you that the two represent a single and Same thought...

But these secrets are accessible only to the harvesters of the field sacred... (4). :

We will show that, without claiming such a title
At a certain level, it is possible to find the explanation for these mysteries.
Let us first indicate that one can consult on the large and the small face — the macroprosopus and the microprosopus — the large (Makros) and small (Mikros) figure (Prosôpon).

Idra Zouta, Zohar, III, 287 b - 296 b, John translation de Pauly, t. VI, p. 79 et seq.

Idra Rubba-Kadischa, Zohar, III, 127 b, John translation
de Pauly, t. V, p. 331 et seq.

Siphra Di-Zenioutha, Zohar, II, 1766, translation John de Pauly, p. 137 et seq.

The Key to Onan by Albert Jounet, p. 5 et seq., p. 172 and so on.

The Kabbalah, by Ad. Frank, me im, p. 168 et seq.; ch. v, p. 228 et seq.

(1) Evipsas Levi: The Book of Splendors, pp. 9 and 11; The Idra Suta or the Great Synod, commentary on the Siphra Dzeniûta, by (Rabbi) Schimeon Ben-Jochai. | i

(2) Title of the book by Serge Nilus.

(3) That is why Swedenborg, who borrowed his entire doctrine, not not to a particular revelation, as he claims, but to the Jewish Kabbalah gives the sky the form of a great man.

(4) Exvipuas Lévi: The Book of Splendors, pp. 80 and 81. Speech of the Rabbi Shimon. pd po ï

+s
The Latin motto: Quod inferius microprosopus quod superius macroprosopus sicut is nothing other than the
The first maxim of the Emerald Tablet, attributed to Hermes, and which is the basis of all hermetic occultism:

What is below is like what is above, and what is above is like that which is below to do the miracles of one thing (1).

The translation is therefore: That which is lowest, the smallest face, is like that which is highest, the great face;
And if we take the theological meaning of the Greek word prosôpon: This
That which is below, the little man, is like that which is above.
the great man.

This is the formula for Regeneration — or rather, Reintegration — of man through the Great Work of alchemy hermetic which aims to "make man a God" (2).

Indeed, a master of modern alchemy writes:

Alchemy is divine, human, and material. To possess the secret of Mercury of the Sages, the key to the cubic Philosopher's Stone... so it is... to achieve the regeneration of man...

Alchemy boils down to the Great Work of the Universal Restoration.
saddle (3).

The pentacle described by Serge Nilus represents, in fact, under the traits of a Gnostic Patriarch, the regenerated man, become God after his "transmutation" through "putrefaction" or fermentation in the "mercury of the Sages." It is also the image of man fallen into matter, according to theoso- occultism phique, reintegrated by Gnosis into its original power, and became a mage or Grand Initiate.

The Magician is truly what the Hebrew Kabbalists call the Microprosopus, that is to say the creator of the little world + (4)

(1) Cf. STANISLAS DE GUAITA: The Serpent of Genesis, vol. II, pp. 106 and following; The Veil of Isis (January 1921), The Emerald Tablet, by the D” R. ALLENDY, p. 22.

(2) An Adventure Among the Rosicrucians, by FRANTZ HARTMANN, p. 83.

(3) JOLLIVET-CASTELOT: Natura Mystica, pp. 66 and 69.

(4) EvipHas Lévi: Dogma and Ritual of High Magic, vol. I, p. 116.

Macroprosopus is the Adam Kadmon of Jewish Kabbalah, the celestial man; the microprosopus is the magician.

The macroprosopus is Kether, the crown of the Sephirotic tree-Rothic; the microprosopus is Thipheret, Beauty (1).
The man who acquires Wisdom, Hocma, and Understanding, Bina, through Gnosis.

The heads and arms of the two old men form a pentacle Very well known in occultism: the Seal of Solomon. It consists of of two interlaced triangles: one black with its point facing downwards, White pole, the top at the top. It is the great symbol of the High Hermetic Initiation, with multiple meanings.

For all Hermeticists, Kabbalists, Rosicrucians or Theosophists represent the symbol of reintegration through Gnosis.
or Luciferian science, opposed to Redemption through death of Christ.

Redemption says to man: be virtuous, be humble,
Be resigned and you will find yourself again, after having passed through death.
expiation for sin and thanks to the merits of Jesus, Paradise that you lost through the disobedience of your first father.

Reintegration, the work of Lucifer, tells man: Be Learned one, be proud, learn Gnosis and you will find on this earth, even the powers you had before the fall,
You will see God.

Occultism, Hermeticism, and Theosophy are based on this opposition of Reintegration against Redemption; of the Luciferian Gnosis in the Christian Gospel; from Jewish Kabbalah to the Bible.

Eliphas Lévi writes:

These two triangles joined into a single figure, which is that of a
The six-pointed star forms the sacred symbol of the Seal of Solomon, the star brilliant of the macrocosm (2).

The idea of infinity and the absolute is expressed by this sign, which is the grand pantacle, that is to say the simplest and most complete abridged version of the science of all things...

What is above resembles or is equal to what is below...

Paracelsus, this innovator in magic who surpassed all other initiates

(1) See the Zohar, translation by Pauty, frontispiece of TI

(2) The pentacle of the microcosm is the pentagram or five-pointed star Branches, this is the blazing star of Masonic Lodges. Eliphas Lévi
It is written as "pantacle", but the correct spelling is "pentacle".

through the achievements he alone has secured, he asserts that all the magical figures and all the cabalistic signs of the pentacles to the-
Which ones the minds obey are reduced to two, which are the synthesis of all the others: the sign of the Macrocosm or the seal of Solomon... and that of the Microcosm, even more powerful than the first, that is to say the pentagram (1).

Everything that is said in the occult science of the macrocosm and of the microcosm — the big and small world — applies to macroprosopus and microprosopus, large and small face:
The man before and after Reintegration.

If the Seal of Solomon, or six-pointed star, is the symbol of man become God, — Stola Dei, — the penta-
The gram, or five-pointed star, is the symbol of man not yet reintegrated by Gnosis.

Occultists teach that pentacles have three meanings and seven explanations (2); and several of them do not stick to them Not here.

We read in the Ritual of the Martinist Order:

The pentagram is also called the sign of the microcosm, and it represents what the Kabbalists of the Book of Sohar call the microprosop (3),

The Seal of Solomon, or six-pointed star, represents the Universe and its two Triads, God and Nature, and is for this reason called the Sign of the Macrocosm, or Great World, as opposed to the Five-pointed Star points, which is the sign of the Microcsome, or Little World, or Man. It is composed of two triangles. The one whose vertex is above represents everything that rises; it symbolizes fire and heat... it expresses the natural return of forces, moral and physical, to the Principle from which they emanate. The triangle, with its point downwards, represents everything that descends; it is the hermetic symbol of Water and Humus. combined, these two triangles represent the Generation and the Incessant regeneration by water (w) and by fire (A), that is to say the Putrefaction... The Seal of Solomon is therefore the perfect image of the Creation (4).

The black triangle still represents the fall of man, and

(1) Dogma and Ritual of High Magic, vol. I, p. 189. Cf. id., p. 187.

(2) Eliphas Lévi: Dogma and Ritual of High Magic, vol. II, p. 99.

(3) Cf. HARTMANN: An Adventure Among the Rosicrucians, pp. 88, 84.

(4) Ritual of the Martinist Order, drawn up by Teper, under the direction of the Supreme Council of the Order, p. 88.

– – _–

the white triangle its regeneration or reintegration, according to Saint-Martin.

The white triangle of our pentacle bears a Latin motto: Stola Dei; that is to say: Stola of the God.

The stola was a dress worn by noblewomen. Roman, and, by extension, the word also serves to designate a noble lady (1).

The first meaning indicates that the Seal of Solomon, the Wisdom, divine knowledge, is the garment of the regenerated man. became God.

The second meaning leads to a more isoteric interpretation Again.

Note the interlacing of the two triangles formed by the head, shoulders, and arms of the two old men. It is the symbol of the most Pepina mystery of hermeticism and of the Gnosis. A Sr To RNY

The black triangle of Solomon's Seal, whose point is directed downwards, is the symbol of the male God (Osiris in the Egyptian theogony, etc., etc.; the white triangle, Stola Dei, The Lady of the God is "the feminine Hypostasis of the hermaphroditic God-"phrodite, the androgynous Dea Deus of the Luciferians" (2). This is Helen-Ennoia of the Gnostics, Isis of the Egyptians, etc. It is also the letter G of the Blazing Star of Freemasonry-nerie, whereas the Yod in the Delta represents Hypostasis masculine of the androgynous God of hermetic philosophy.

*
* *

Two small emblems are located to the right and left of the macroprosopus; they are reflected in the bath of "Mercury "of the Wise Men," from which the microprosopus originates. We remember that Eliphas Lévi merely states that they "are analogous to main topic.

Indeed, the two triangles on the left, joined at their base, form the Seal of Solomon; on the right, it is easy to recognize- The Tau was born.

(1) Cf. Dictionary of Roman Antiquities, word: “Stola”.
(2) Charles NicouLzLauD: Masonic Initiation, p. 202.

This is the distinctive mark of the hierophant who has reached the highest degree of initiation. He personifies the Egyptian god Thoth, the the universal demiurge of the Platonists; the craftsman par excellence, the architect of the Gnostics; the Hermes Trismegistus of the Neoplatonists, the Master of occult sciences (1).

These are therefore once again symbols of the macroprosopus and the microprosopus.

The figures of the two old men of the Kabbalah are reunited. by a Maltese cross. It would be a serious mistake to see in it a Christian emblem.

It is the tetragrammaton which, along with the triangle of the Seal of Solomon and the pentagram, is one of the great pentacles of occultism. The tetragrammaton symbol is formed by a cross with equal arms. In hermetic science, the cross has a specific esoteric meaning:

The Cross is the image of the quaternary law, itself concealed in the Kabbalistic formation of the Tetragrammaton or incommunicable name-four-letter cable. This knowledge forms the pinnacle of all the Schools of Initiation, whatever their names or Rites (2).

Eliphas Lévi does not suggest the incommunicable name four letters that everyone knows, — yod, hey, vau, hey,
— but the esotericism of the tetragrammaton, when he writes:

The Cross of this unity composed of two, which divide each other to form four; the Cross, that key to the mysteries of India (3) and of Egypt, the Tau of the patriarchs, the divine sign of Osiris, the Stauros (4) of the Gnostics, the keystone of the temple, the symbol of Freemasonry occult.

And a little higher up:

The Kabbalistic tetragrammaton Jodheva expresses God in humanity and humanity in God (6).

(1) Charles NicouLLaup: Masonic Initiation, p. 168.
(2) Martinist Ritual, p. 86.

(3) Swastika and Sauvastica (wasting crosses).

(4) Stauros: Cross, in Greek.

(5) Dogma and Ritual of High Magic, vol. I, p. 161.

That is to say, the reintegration of the old, fallen human God, man restored to God through hermetic science and Gnosis Luciferian.

Such is the esotericism of the macroprosopus and the microprosopus which, Eliphas Lévi tells us, are "the elements of the Jewish Kabbalah (1).

N. FOMALHAUT.

(1) Dogma and Ritual of High Magic, vol. I, p. 171.

APPENDIX IV

Astrological Chat

OUT OF 1921

What will the year 1921 be like? In a work published at the beginning ofcement of 1914, in the Judeo-occultist section of the Review (1), we have shown that it was possible to indicate the year 1921, and the month of October, for some very curious predictions taken from the Centuries of Nostradamus. Here is what we said after quoting the texts of the famous astrologer:

In the spring, there will be a revolution that will be the beginning of extremism.
Changes and permutations of governments, and all of this will end in October, after seventy-three years and seven months, where a trans-
A greater and more extraordinary action will be taken. Meanwhile, the
The second revolution, the miserable offspring of the first, will proliferate.

And again, according to another text:

The Revolution, which had been driven out once before by the Restoration-
The ration of the legitimate monarchy will return to power again.
His enemies will be called conspirators. His deadly triumph will be more long and will unfortunately last seventy-three years.

Commenting on these two passages, we added:

The revolution that took place at the end of February 1848 was followed by extremes changes and permutations of governments, republic, empire republic, war of 1870, etc., etc. Meanwhile, the sects anarchic, wretched daughters of the first Revolution, and of the Holocaust The bloody caustic of 1793 will proliferate. But, after seventy-three years and

---

(1) International Review of Secret Societies, issues of January 5, February 8 and March 5, 1914. This study was compiled into a single volume: Nostradamus, his Prophecies; Academic bookstore, Perrin et C', 35, quai des Grands-Augustins, Paris, 1014.

Seven months of this unfortunate domination, there will be, in October, an extraordinary new change that will put everything back in order and Everyone in their place.

Now, if we add seventy-three years and seven months to February 1848, we obtained October 1921 (1).

Readers eager to know what the events are predicted by Nostradamus, for this period, will be able to refer to the volume or issues of the Journal indicated: It is not within the scope of this work to discuss the latter. point. We only want to investigate whether the astro- data Logical assumptions concerning the year 1921 can be used in the calculations. taken from the centuries of Nostradamus.

The Veil of Isis gave certain astrological predictions

Spring Equinox
2/ March 1921
3 a.m. Slm, Greenwich Mean Time

Farts. .

LE 2° 20°16" = 9m. 205.3
Hp. 48°50'N
Core. 238° /2'

id Dominateur de l'Annec.

omalhaue, $c.

---

(1) International Review of Secret Societies, March 5, 1914, pp. 391 and 892. — Nostradamus, his Prophecies, pp. 237 and 238.

for the year 1921 (1). They are the result of the work of four modern astrologers, Messrs. Barlet, Blanchard, Boudineau and Tamos. Unfortunately, alongside very scientific data interesting and in line with classical teaching of ancient astrologers, this work contains parts which depart completely from tradition and come more efforts of imagination and intuition rather than erudition. These purely personal conceptions have increased the inherent chances of error in all astrological work gics.

These gentlemen took as their starting point for the year the winter solstice, and they drew up the theme, or the state of the sky, for the Sun's entry into Capricorn. However, traditional teaching-tional is formal: the astrological year begins at the spring equinox, that is to say at the time of entry of the Sun in the sign of Aries. This should not be confused Occult Freemasonry and the legend of Hiram-Scolaire, following Ragon, with astrological science, of which this Master Macon was unaware of the data.

Speaking of a phenomenon, which we will have to deal with Further on, the astrologers of the Veil of Isis write:

Firstly, it is a rather rare conjunction between the two planets. higher. Jupiter and Saturn, which repeats every 30 years, but which does not occur at the same point in the Zodiac except once every 240 years approximately (2).

Here, the error is not astrological, but astronomical. The The meeting of Saturn and Jupiter occurs every twenty years. approximately. The previous one took place on November 29, 1901, at 13° 59 minutes of Capricorn. There was one in 1881.

and the previous one had taken place on October 21, 1861, at 18° 22 minutes of the sign of Virgo. Now, she who will be produced on September 10th, at 4:15 a.m.
will take place precisely in the sign of Virgo, at the 26th degree 35 minutes. The amount of time that separates these two encounters being in the same zodiac sign is therefore sixty years old and no, 240 years. We'll talk about teaching later.
astrological significance of these very important conjunctions.

(1) Le Voile d'Isis, January 1921 issue.
(2) The Veil of Isis, p. &.

Messrs. Barlet, Blanchard, Boudineau and Tamos give to planets of meanings not taught by tradition astrological.

It would be easy to point out other causes of errors which explain how the predictions made do not fit with the events that have taken place. We note, for example, for February 1921 (1): Violent strikes, heated debates at Parliament, serious accidents in mines, crimes passionate, serious epidemic that should divert attention from Politics, threats of war with Germany. For the March: Important reforms proposed to Parliament; Socialism opposes it, it undermines the ministry and produced violent riots among the people.

These errors, which are found in all predictions, do not detract from the value of the work published by Mr. Ch. Barlet and his collaborators; it contains some very interesting things.
But in astrology, one shouldn't try to be too precise and asking more of science than it can give. All the
The world does not have Nostradamus's clairvoyance, nor his knowledge sessions in experimental magic.

We will retain from the work published in the Review of Messrs. Chacornac brothers, this prediction given in broad strokes—tères, in order to better emphasize their importance:

THE YEAR 1921 WILL OPEN A PERIOD OF SOCIAL TRANSFORMATION (2),

If we add "political" to the word "social," it fits quite well.
with the predictions of Nostradamus.

*
es œk

According to astrological tradition, one can obtain some information on events that will happen in the year, — that is to say, between two returns of the sun to the beginning—cement of the zodiac sign of Aries, — by examining the state of the sky at the precise time when the spring equinox occurs and at the time of major eclipses.

The year 1921 will see four eclipses: two solar and two of the moon. The most important is the annular solar eclipse,

(1) Cf. The Veil of Isis, pp. 11 and 12.
(2) The Veil of Isis, p. 9.

which took place on April 8th, at 9:04 a.m. She was in A large part of it was visible in Paris. The spring equinox has taken place It took place on March 21, 1921, at 3:50 a.m. We give the astrological theme of these two phenomena, that is to say the exact state of the sky at the time they occurred.

solar eclipse
April 8, 1991

Oh. km. from the main, T. de Green

Paris
LE 2°20'14" s 9m. 205.9
Hp. 48° 50' N.
Soul. 334° 24
Dominant.

fomalhavt sc.

The astronomical phenomenon of these two themes, the most Important, from an astrological point of view, is the conjunction of Saturn and Jupiter. It will be perfect on September 10th; at 4:15 a.m.

Astrologers attach great importance to the encounters of Jupiter and Saturn.

The slightest conjunction is the meeting of these two planets in the sign of memory, it takes place approximately every twenty years.

The advantageous conjunction is the meeting in a trine sign different. It occurs roughly every two hundred years.

Finally, the great conjunction is the meeting in a fire sign after emerging from a water sign, it takes place every eight hundred years, at a few years (1).

The 1921 meeting is a lesser conjunction, since The previous one, in November 1901, took place in Capricorn. sign belonging like the Virgin to the earth trine.

If we direct the ascendant of the equinox chart of spring in the places of the Zodiac occupied by Saturn and Jupiter, this gives us, for the time when the will be accomplished events which we will discuss at the end of September and begin-October cement.

The location of the conjunction is ruled by the planet Mercury. whose influence extends to France and England. Mercury signifies relationships; it occupies the sign of Pisces in the Two themes; this indicates instability in friendships. The place the conjunction is in the fourth house in the chart of Véclipse, which means: reversal of position by things secret; this place is the sign of the Virgin whose influence extends on Greece, Crete, Asian Turkey, Cilicia, Asia Minor. The conclusion, as we can see, is easy to draw.

Mercury, dominating the conjunction of Saturn and Jupiter, Announcement: Political and religious changes in the laws.

If we continue our analysis of the two themes, we Let us see that the places affected by the eclipse are, astrologi-[Quantity]: Germany, England, Italy, Asia Minor.

Nicolas Bourdin, in his commentary on the Centilogue Ptolemy says that the ascendant of the astrological chart of Paris is the 15th degree of Virgo, and the midheaven the 11th degree of Gemini (2). The capital of France is therefore particularly under the influence of the conjunction. This Its influence is felt most strongly on men and those whom govern.

In the theme of the eclipse, the position of the Sun and the The Moon in the zodiac gives the same indication, with, in Furthermore, a clarification concerning priests and matters of the religion.

The planet Mars, dominating the themes of the equinox and

---

(1) FOMALHAUT: Manual of Spherical and Judicial Astrology, p. 221.
(2) Cf. FoMALHAUT: Astrology Manual, p. 206.

The eclipse, a harbinger of violence, wars, and revolutions, seditions, major fires, sudden deaths fevers affecting men in their prime malignant diseases that can become epidemic. The position of the Moon The equinox also indicates: wars and popular revolutions areas, which is further clarified by the situation of Saturn and Jupiter in the same chart. The position of Neptune in the Two themes foreshadow maritime accidents and revolts. among seafaring people.

It should be added that Jupiter has a fairly large share of dominance over the theme of the eclipse, all these movements will have a favorable ending: that which conforms to the predictions made of Nostradamus. But, if we judge from the position of the Sun and Mars in the equinox chart and by that of Saturn and Jupiter in the eclipse, that won't go without leading to losses of movable property and destruction of immovable property bileries.

In all these indications, there is no intuition. personal and even less clairvoyant; it's simply and literally the result of applying the given rules by ancient authors, as summarized in the Manual of Spherical and Judicial Astrology, published under the Fomalhaut's pseudonym.

| CHARLES NICOULLAUD.

APPENDIX V

DOCUMENTS ON THE WORLD JEWISH MOVEMENT

DURING THE FIRST QUARTER OF 1991

SUMMARY :

INTERNATIONAL GENERALITIES: The "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion. The wave of anti-Semitism, the "Jewish Peril." — Article by the Princess Catherine Radziwill. — Forgery committed by a Swiss Jew. — Max Nordau. — Jewish Association for the Propagation of the Idea of the Society of the Nations. — The League of Nations, a Jewish instrument. — The Jew has always been revolutionary. — A Jewish tribute to Wilson. — 4th edition of the Jewish Peril. — The Zionist National Fund.

GERMANY: Anti-Semitism in Bavaria. — General organization of German Jews. — The Neue Jüd. Press, in Cologne. — The popular party-

—Jewish pular in Bavaria. — Brochure by Mr. Otto Friedrich on the "Elders of Zion." — Universal Anti-Jewish Alliance. — News Jewish organization of Dr. Max Nauman. — Professor Kalischer, President of the German Jews. — Kuntze, President of the Social Party German anti-Semite.

ENGLAND: The Earl of Reading (Sir Rufus Isaacs), Viceroy of India. — Anti-Semitism in England. — The League of Converted Jews. — Zionism and the Labour Party. — The League of Nations and the Rabbis English. — The Jewish Masonic Order of B'nai Brith in England. — Major Percy C. Simmons, Chairman of the London County Council.

AUSTRIA: Expulsion of foreign Jews. — Anti-Semitic conference international.

EGYPT: Statistics on the Jews.

SPAIN: Alfonso XIII and the Sephardic Jews.

United States: Lecture by Mr. William Taft at the Anti-Defamation League, on antisemitism and the "Protocols." — One Hundred Americans against Antisemitism, prominent figures. — Letters of support from Mr. Robert Lansing, from Cardinal 0' Connell, from Mr. Bryan, from Mr. Harding. — Manifesto of the Jewish Organizations of the American Jewish Committee against anti-Semitism and the "Minutes of the Elders of Zion". The "American Committee for Minority Rights" against propaganda Great anti-Semite, names of signatories and excerpts from the manifesto. Bill against anti-Semites. — New Jewish newspaper, Fatwas, at Philadelphia. — Jewish Statistics. — Letter from Chief Rabbi Wise on Bolshevism. — The Knights of Columbus are campaigning Philosemite. — Permanent presence of the American Jewish Congress.

France: Steering Committee of the French Zionist Federation. — MH Prague, anti-Semitism, and the Dreyfus Affair. — Jews and death by General Mercier. — The persecution of the Catholic Church is a Jewish revenge. — Articles from the Mercure de France on anti-Semitism, by Mr. Georges Batault. — Second volume of the History of the Alliance Israelite. — Death of Mr. Joseph Reinach. — The “undesirable Jews”. — Open Letter to the Hundred Blacks of Russia, preface by Mr. Salomon Reinach. — The Jews in the Senate. — Jewish immigration to France. — The French authorities in Mainz against anti-Semitism. — The Jews and the Briand ministry. — The body of the "Unknown Soldier" is, Perhaps Jewish. — Nominations of Messrs. Marcel Lehmann and Camille Bloch. — Peace and Law, journal of the Universal Israelite Alliance. — The "League of Human Rights" protects "undesirable Jews". — Jewish internationalism, speech by the Chief Rabbi of France. — Jewish bankers, Bolshevism, anti-Semitism, and police reports Zionists.

HoxGRi£: Mr. Polnai's house and the American Jewish bankers.
ITALY: Birthday of Mr. Luigi Luzatti.

PALESTINE: Reconstitution of a Grand Sanhedrin by Sir Herbert Samuel, British High Commissioner. — Mendel Beilis. — Draft of the British mandate, Jewish criticism against France.

Polence: The government fears international Jewish bankers. Situation of the Jews. — Trade in religious articles — The Jews Polish converts return to Judaism. — Jewish officers are Excluded from the army. — Clericalism and the General Father of the Jesuits. — The Jewish industrialists of Upper Silesia.

ROMANIA: Jewish statistics.

Russ: The Israelite Universe and the assassination of the imperial family. The Jews and the Russian Revolution. — Jewish officials of the Soviets. — The Jews in Russia enjoy an advantageous situation; they benefit from the Revolution.

SWITZERLAND: The naturalization of Jews. — Jewish approach to the Nations League. — The Swiss Federal Council refuses to intervene against pogroms. — Jewish statistics.

INTERNATIONAL GENERALITIES. — Under this title: “No one is

"A charlatan in his own country," S. Poliakoff writes in La Tribune Jewish, dated January 7, 1921:

The monk Nilous, author of the famous "Zionist Verbal Proceedings" It could never have moved Russian public opinion...

Why, then, did the Jews have the Russians seized draconian measures to prevent the disclosure of "Protocols"? — S. Poliakoff also writes:

To attract attention, Nilous's "Zionist Minutes" have had to leave Russia. And to make a bit of noise, they had to cross the Ocean...

"Police reports" were very widespread in the United States, thanks to to the energy of foreign anti-Semites powerfully supported by the sno- the billionaire Ford's biism...

Just recently, a London newspaper, the Spectator, put forward the idea of to form a parliamentary or governmental commission of inquiry in order to examine without bias the question of whether it exists in the a secret Jewish organization worldwide proposing to fight against the Christian culture with the aim of dominating the Aryan world. The idea is strong significant. It is the result of the demoralizing influences of foreign antisemitism and the sound English tradition of impartiveality... We would have blessed the Spectator's efforts if they could be crowned with success. But we have doubts, alas, as to the project implementation... Examine whether governments and parliaments and the press in Europe are blind instruments of a plot "Judeo-Masonic?" Only the idle and ignorant, who have emerged from the depths of despair, would think so. What civilization could have made such a crazy and inept proposal...? It's a shame that the English government cannot follow the advice of the Spectator. A

Indeed, it is not clear which English government, For the moment, it is under the thumb of the Jewish plutocracy international, to successfully conduct such an investigation.

— La Tribune Juive reproduced, in its issue of the 14th January 1921, p. 4, an article published in the r English magazine The Nation; we extract the following passages:

A new wave of antisemitism is sweeping the world. In their nationalist frenzy, the Poles attempted to exterminate the three millions of Jews who live in their country; the Pan-Germanists, dang petulant impotence in their defeat, they sharpen their old weapons of reaction. A violent English pamphlet, "The Jewish Peril," appeared in, the "Dearborn Independent", a newspaper that is said to express ideas by Henry Ford, and was diluted in a whole series of articles; letters open anti-Semitic undertones are beginning to appear in our conservative press; anti-Jewish meetings were held in the streets from Brooklyn...

The main responsibility for the resurrection of this shameful cam- The loincloth is incumbent in America & Henry Ford...

The common source of Mr. Ford's propaganda, from the pamphlet "The "Jewish Peril" and "The Cause of the World's Anxiety," a pamphlet An anonymous post published by CP Pasman's Sons is envious and absurd. a lie that Mr. Lucien Wolf has sufficiently exposed in the London's "Spectator"...

And the Jewish magazine gives this new source to the "Protocols »: |

The old forgery, known as the Protocols of the Scientists, of the "Elders of Zion" was re-exhumed by a Prussian postal worker who had himself been dismissed from the service for forgery in 1868. An edition Russian version of this work, attributed to a certain Professor Serge Nilus, has served as a pretext for pogroms during the Russian Revolution in 1905 and A French edition of this work was published in 1911. It is the book of this fabulous Nilus which served as the basis for "The Jewish Peril", to articles by Mr. Ford and to "The Cause of World Concern".

The readers of the Review are too familiar with the issue. for it to be necessary to discuss it; it is enough to record it the anxieties and variations of Jewish writers.

— L'Univers Israélite, March 25, 1921, p. 677, reproduces a article published in the Revue Mondiale, March 15, under the signature- The "Princess Catherine Radziwill" turmoil. It is about fighting the effect produced worldwide by the revelations of "Protocols of the Elders of Zion." The following excerpts show what the thesis supported by the "Princess" is philosemite, under Jewish inspiration:

This Nilus, if he truly existed and if he truly was what some Russians claim, that is to say, a president of the district court- Moscow's secession seems to have been duped by skilled police agents secret Russian at the time, who used him to launch into the world a ready-made excuse to justify the persecutions they had the intention to launch against the Jews in Russia.

If the Russian imperial police had invented the Protocols, they would have arranged things so that Serge Nilus' book did not go almost unnoticed upon its publication, and The Jews could not have prevented its dissemination.

Princess Catherine Radziwill wrote in 1905 she lived in Paris, on the Avenue des Champs-Élysées; however, the Social directories from 1905 contain no trace of a Princess Radziwill is staying on the Champs-Élysées. This tends to to make the story she tells, concerning the alleged visit of a Russian police officer in charge of to create the protocols. The article ends with these lines: |

Being one of the few people who know the origin of the famous "Protocols of the Elders of Zion," I believe I am fulfilling a duty of loyalty. by publishing what I know about them and telling how they have They were fabricated by zealous and dishonest agents of Tsarism. wanted to use it not only to discredit a race that they hated them, but also and above all — and this is perhaps the most important point important in this affair — to seize the fortune and the the remains of people they could easily discredit and ruin their profit.

Ms. Princess Catherine Radziwill can rest assured; this The last plan failed, the Jews are not ruined.

Let us add that, according to the novel by the Russian princess, the The protocols are said to have originated from a report drawn up in 1884. or 1885 by General Orgewsky, head of the Third Section at the beginning of the reign of Tsar Alexander III.

All these tiresome explanations, more or less sincere and disinterestedness — rather less than more — does not prevent that we were not witnessing the execution of the Jewish plan revealed by Serge Nilus. The whole question lies there, and nowhere else.

— Under this title: “The forgery of the cipher of the “Protocols” of the “Sages of Zion,” La Tribune Juive, March 25, 1921, p. 10, publishes the following note: ; +

The Zurich Jewish Press Center received from one of its members Zurich Museum Society, belonging to academic circles, a communication from which we quote the following lines:

"The author of the pamphlet The Jewish Peril declares that his brochure is the An exact reproduction of the first edition, which appeared in 1905. For To increase the scope of the brochure, he indicates that the original from 1905 was acquired in 1906 by the British Museum and registered under number 3296 and 17 (1).

Being convinced that at least the prophetic passages of the pamphlet had been introduced there after 1905, I asked a Christian scholar, living in London and whose honesty is beyond question, but whom the anti-Mitism didn't affect me, to find the book in question and tell me How much would a copy cost? The result exceeded my expectations. The British Museum does not have this book. The author of the pamphlet had limpu-the decency of counterfeiting the museum's figure, counting on no one would investigate this matter. As proof, I am attaching the document Original from the Museum with the inscription: Cannot be found from particular given (2).

Here we see firsthand the Jewish method, the false Jews. and the doctored photographs of the "Dreyfus Affair" recom-are beginning. Serge Nilus's book exists perfectly at British Museum, shelfmark 3926 d 17 (3), with the entrance stamp August 10, 1906. Mr. Jouin provides a bibliographical description. complete photograph, made from the actual copy, in Le Judeo-Masonic Peril, p. 2. And the forger, since he is false y a, is the correspondent for the Jewish magazine in Zurich.

— We read in Le Peuple Juif, January 21, 1921, p. 9, at Subject by Max Nordau:

Nordau was born in Budapest, where he spent his youth. But the good The Hungarians, those great "friends" of the Jews, considered him a a fierce German who dedicated his genius to German culture, while the Germans, for their part, regarded him as a Jew, comme French, as a Zionist and, during the war, since the declaration of Balfour, as a friend and admirer of abhorred England... Each The country saw him as both an enemy and a friend of the other side.

This portrait of the Jew, drawn by a Jewish pen, is not lacking no interest and happens to be closer to the truth than the Perhaps its author believes it. The Jew is always and above all cosmopolitan.

The Committee of Jewish Delegations, in the session it held

(1) The actual British Museum reference number is 3926 d 17. (N. de la R.)

(2) The text is faulty; it should be particulars; the translation is: cannot be found according to the information provided. Which does not mean that the volume does not exist.

(3) We will again note the difference with the rating given by the Jaive magazine.

held on January 8, decided to create a Jewish Association for the propagation of the idea of the League of Nations. The The committee decided to launch an appeal to the Jewish people on this matter. (See Le Peuple Juif, January 28, 1921, p. 10).

— The League of Nations is a Judeo-Masonic concept-nique, conceived for the greater profit of the Jews, as as indicated by the following lines taken from The Universe Israelite, January 7, 1921, pp. 413 and 415:

The League of Nations (this was our thesis during the war) is the only one qualified to alleviate Jewish distress, immensely painful-laudable, prodigious challenge to human justice and civilization... The The salvation of the Jews lies nowhere else. Only the League of Nations can to prevent or punish oppression and pogroms.

— We read in La Tribune Juive, January 28, 1921, p. 4, under the signature of A. de Nesselrode: |

Yes! The Jew thirsts for clarity! His race, intellectual above all others, seeks the rays of truth in the still flickering glow of knowledge human, and, in the good fight that he has always waged and that he He continues to support, and has sought and is still seeking allies. who share his aspirations. The free thinkers who demand for each person has freedom of conscience, the Freemasons who fight for the triumph of justice and truth, and, finally, the conspirators of all eras, ready to sacrifice their lives to achieve the noble goal glimpsed, were among those whose principles, impulses, and desires responded-they cared most for their own. Therefore, it is often — if not almost always — within their ranks that he leads the campaign.

The admission is valuable. It's enough to justify the campaign.
led by anti-Semites against the eternally conspiratorial Jews failures and destroyers of society.

— We read in Le Peuple Juif, March 11, 1921, p. 6:

TRIBUTE TO WILSON. — At the moment when the former President of the United States transfers the direction of the affairs of the Great Republic to other hands Republic, we Jews have a duty to greet with fervor this noble figure who occupied at one time — with what grandeur, with what dignity! — the world stage.

Through the influence that Wilson exerted on the events of his time and which will have repercussions for many generations, Wilson is a true Hero, in the sense that Carlyle attributed to that word. This influence, he exercised it also through the part he played in the entry into the war of America, through the ideas it promoted as the basis of peace talks. It was in the service of justice and the law that he had I heard about putting the formidable force of the American armed forces to use, and that's on justice and law, which he wanted to establish as the new law of peoples.

History will tell to what extent he succeeded; but even now, he
It is accepted that Wilson was a Soul, a Character, a Conscience.

All this lyrical enthusiasm could have been advantageous-the sentence was replaced by this simple phrase: "The President Wilson did good work for Israel." The French find,
On the other hand, the great influence that we so naively let to take this sick, theosophical, enlightened, and Freemason, a was much less profitable for France. — And others People think so too; that is perhaps one of the reasons, added to many others, the global wave of anti-the semitism that so many Jews complain about.

— The antisemitic newspaper Hidden Hand announces that the “Jewish Peril”,
The Jewish Peril is already in its fourth edition. (La Tribune Juive, March 18, 1921, p. 12).

— During the year 1920, the Zionist organization received, for its fund National, 9,567,000 francs compared to 5,552,000 francs in 1919. Forty-five countries provided their subscription. The United States gave 3,392,000 francs; England, 1,172,000 francs; the Argentine Republic, 918,000 francs; the Mesopotamia, 621,000 francs; Germany, 494,000 francs; Czechoslovakia, 245,000 francs; Romania, 194,000 francs; Austria-Hungary, 171,000 fr. ;
Belgium, 128,000 francs; Italy, 92,000 francs; Switzerland, 83,000 francs; France, 51,000 francs; Alsace-Lorraine, 46,000 francs (See Jewish Archives, 10 March 1921).

It seems that for Jews, Alsace and Lorraine are not
Not in France! They're ignoring the departments of Haut-Rhin.
from Bas-Rhin and Moselle.

GERMANY. — The Jewish Universe notes that Bavaria was from all the countries that constituted the German Empire the one where Jews had the least to suffer from anti-Semitism ism; but that, since the collapse of Germany, by
On the other hand, Bavaria is the one of the countries of the Reich where anti-Semitism-
The terrorism raged with the most violence. There was fear there for a time.
Russian-style pogroms; they were prevented by the governor-nement. The Israelite Universe does not give us the cause of this This change did not occur without reason.

— We read in Le Peuple Juif, February 4, 1921:

A "General Organization of German Jews, which will include all Jews, even foreign ones registered in a community for a year. Women are admitted to the vote.

— La Tribune Juive, February 4, 1921, announces that, since On January 1st, a Jewish daily newspaper, the "Neue Jüd. Presse", was published.
in Cologne, to fight against anti-Semitism.

— A Jewish popular party was founded in Bavaria, com-taking on Zionists and liberals, Oriental Jews and western Bavarians (Tribune Juive, February 11, 1921).

— We read in the Tribune Juive, February 18, 1921:

In addition to the works of Professor Strack, which the Tribune Juive has already reviewed spoken, a pamphlet by Mr. Otto Friedrich on the "Elders of Zion" has recently published in Germany.

The author states that he is "neither Jewish, nor a philosemite, nor..." "service to the Jews," but the Tribune Juive did not write about it. less :

Mr. Friedrich then established that almost all the content of the proceedings The verbal skills are the product of the imagination of the famous secret agent Nilus. also provides irrefutable evidence that the "minutes have were manufactured to serve specifically the policies of the last Romanof".

Mr. Friedrich demonstrates not only the falsification of the documents in question, but also their absurdity and vulgarity. They represent- "They smell," he said, "of the typically Russian fantasy of a spy."

According to the German author, the "Elders of Zion" were, in part, borrowed from a work, The Rabbi and the Goim, which appeared in the weekly Michel wach auf (Michel, wake up). The book "The Rabbi and the Goyim" itself- even if it were only a chapter in Goedche's novel: Biarritz, with the subtitle: At the Jewish Cemetery in Prague, published in 1868. All this simply demonstrates that the noise makes The Jewish peril surrounding the Israelites greatly inconvenienced them.

One will also notice how much the Jews and their defenders go to great lengths to find explanations which, from The rest contradict each other, each trying to outdo the other.

The clearest result of all these efforts is to put in place The growing distress caused among the Jews of all countries through the revelations of Serge Nilus.

— Extract from Le Peuple Juif, March 4, 1921, p. 9:

A UNIVERSAL ANTI-JEWISH ALLIANCE. — The Association of Societies German nationalists (deutschvolkisch) publish an appeal for the foundation The formation of a universal anti-Jewish alliance. The appeal is addressed to the Arians. of purebreds from all nations and proposes to prepare a session international antisemitism from all countries. In this international of the Judophobia: Pan-German anti-Semites want to collaborate, even with the French, the English, so hated by them.

— Dr. Max Nauman, author of the pamphlet The German National Jewmand, wants to create alongside the Central League of German citizens of The Jewish religion, a new organization. Jews will be part of it. who want to show their national character even more clearly Germans. (La Tribune Juive, March 11, 1924, p. 9).

— We also read in the same issue, p. 10:

In Berlin, an organization was founded uniting all German Jews 323 representatives from 669 communities gathered to to create a body to manage the internal affairs of the Jews Germans and to represent them abroad. A steering committee having Professor Kalischer was elected to head it.

The main issue to be examined was the transformation of the League German Jewish communities in a single Jewish organization Germans. The question was answered in the affirmative.

— A new anti-Semitic party has just been founded in Berlin. D is called the German Social Democratic Party; its chairman is Mr. Kuntze, the notorious anti-Semite, and his program can be summarized in these words: "Destroy Jewish domination in Germany". (La Tribune Juive, March 18, 1921, p. 12).

ENGLAND. — The Earl of Reading, Sir Rufus Isaacs, Lord Chief Justice (the supreme head of the English judiciary) was appointed Viceroy of India.

The Jewish Universe, dated January 14, 1921, provides the information The following information about his fellow believer:

Born in London in 1857, son of the late Mr. Isaacs and nephew of Sir Henry Isaacs, who was Lord Mayor of London, Rufus Isaacs — who became Lord Reading — had made his debut in his father's business. But he Feeling he had no business vocation, he studied law. He had an exceptionally brilliant career, first as a lawyer – he pleaded with great success a number of famous trials, – then as He had been appointed to the position of Advocate General and Attorney General. supreme magistrate in 1943. He had been a member of Parliament since In 1904, he was granted the peerage by virtue of his appointment as Lord Chief Justice. During the war, the English government sent him to Washington as ambassador extraordinary.

The choice of a Jew for such a mission is curious in It should be noted, by the way. The Jewish magazine adds:

It is interesting to note in this regard the prominent role played by Jews The English took control of the administration of India. Sir Lionel Abrahams was Financial Secretary to the Minister of India; Mr. Kish currently holds these functions and Mr. Montagu holds the position of Secretary of State for India.

– In the Jewish Archives, January 20, 1921, MH Prague also reports that his cousin, Mr. Hartog, has been placed, as rector, at the head of the University of Dhaka, newly created in the province of Bengal. He recalls, Furthermore, that Sir Herbert Samuel, the English governor of the Palestine is Jewish. We also read in the same article:

We know that for some time now, certain opinion outlets, especially those belonging to Lord Northcliffe's group, such as The Times and the Morning Post launched a fierce press campaign against the Israelites.

The British Cabinet was unmoved by this war of anti-Semitic plums.

MH Prague does not tell us what the reasons are for this surge of anti-Semitism in England, which until now had been a the most philo-Semitic countries on earth.

– Under this suggestive title: “It Exists”, The Jewish Do, February 4, 1921, gives the following news:

The London-based "Catholic Times" reports that "the Jewish League" converts have decided to undertake a pilgrimage to Rome, to see the Pope to whom a golden book containing the names of all the Jews will be given converted throughout the world. From Rome, the members of the League would go to Jerusalem, where, on the Mount of Olives, they would erect a church.

– From the Tribune Juive, February 4, 1921:

At the last Poaleï-Sion congress in Manchester, Mr. Alexandre Cameran, chairman of the Executive Committee of the English Labour Party, has declared that Jewish national aspirations find a complete sympathy within the Labour Party.

– From the Tribune Juive, February 11, 1921:

Lord Robert Cecil addressed a letter to the Chief Rabbi of England where he lists all the actions of the Nations League. The letter proposes to the English rabbis to inform their flocks of the activities of the League.

Further evidence, added to many others, that the League of the Nations is indeed the work of Judeo-Masonry and that it its aim is the establishment of Jewish power in the world. This report, transmitted to English Jews, is significant. fictional and requires no lengthy commentary.

– La Tribune Juive, February 25, 1921, reproduces the article The following appeared in issue 2703 of the Jewish Chronicle:

Of all the charitable works for the Jews, the Independent Order of B'nai Brith deserves one of the top spots. Founded in New York in 1843 and represented by numerous lodges in Europe and the East, it is currently the main Jewish organization in the United States.

This is the London lodge, presided over by Dr. M. Epstein, of which these Lately, the action has been the most energetic and effective...

Dr. Epstein, speaking of the Lodge he presides over, says that it has always, despite being criticized in some circles for his oppositional spirit, was ready to cooperate in any useful Jewish work, which she constantly tasked with attracting all young intellectuals into the orbit of Jewish action Jewish agencies and to spur on their enthusiasm for the common work.

The lodge has fought and continues to fight antisemitism, not by responding to individual attacks, but with the aim of informing public opinion through the publication of popular works.

By adding a Women's Committee as an auxiliary, the Lodge was able to to develop the help it provides to children. Many ladies help–Liaires worked in Central Europe and brought back many children.

The Order seeks to extend its activities to other cities in England, and steps have already been taken to establish new lodges in Liverpool, Leeds and Birmingham, which are centers conducive to a work that is as necessary as it is useful.

The Order of B'nai Brith, as we have already said, is a Freemasonry is very closed, exclusively reserved for Jews. It reportedly has one million members and 426 Lodges spread throughout the world. Among the members of Executive Committee: Messrs. Morgenthau, Brandeis, Mack, Warburg, Elkus, Krauss, Schiff, Marshall. Cf. La Vieille France, no. 219, April 14, 1921, p. 11).

– Major Percy C. Simmons was unanimously elected president of the London County Council. This is the first time an Israelite has held this position. these high functions. (L'Univers Israélite, March 25, 1921, p. 691).

AUSTRIA. – We read in Le Peuple Juive, March 11 1921, p. 8: |
QUESTION OF THE EXPULSION OF THE JEWS FROM AUSTRIA. – The Council of the

The League of Nations adopted a report by Mr. Balfour stating that he no rule of international law exists, nor any stipulation of Treaties preventing Austria from expelling people from its territory not possessing Austrian nationality.

– From the Tribune Juive, March 11, 1921, p. 12:

We are sending word from Vienna to New York that we are planning to convocation of an international anti-Semitic conference. Invitations were sent to all countries.

EGYPT. – The number of Jews in Egypt has reached, according to a recent count, 59,581, out of a total population of 12,718,255. Cairo has 29,207 Jews and Alexandria 24,858. (The Jewish People, January 14, 1921, p. 12).

SPAIN. – We read in an article entitled "Spain and the Jews," published by FE Israélite, February 25, 1921. p. 591: |

Alfonso XIII frequently received Israelites in his palace, accepts the honorary presidency of their associations, takes an interest in their companies, follow with interest their current conflicts in the East and respond affectionately to their addresses and compliments.

This eagerness on the part of the Spanish monarch and government, for everything concerning the interests and aspirations of Sephardic Jews from the East, had the opportunity to perform and manifest itself to others resumptions and provided real benefits to your coreligionists. Spain has notably granted several of them protection, or even naturalization letters.

These lines are taken from a speech given in Paris on November 8, 1919, by Mr. Angel Pulido, Vice-President of the Spanish Senate, and champion of the cause of the return of the Jews called "Sephardim" in Spain.

UNITED STATES. – The Jewish Tribune, February 4, 1921, reproduced the following dispatch, published in the Herald of New York, 24 December 1920:

Chicago, Dec. 23: "The so-called Protocols of the 'Elders of Zion'" those published in Henry Ford's Dearborn Independent have no counterpart in literature than the fantastical tales of Baron Munchausen." William Taft has just spoken as follows in a speech on the an-

Semitism, uttered before the "Anti-Defamation League", founded by the B'nai B'rith:

"One of the main causes of suffering and evil on earth" is racial hatred, and any man who incites such hatred must bear the responsibility. When he does so by spreading His accusations are unfounded and unjust, making his fault even more reprehensible.

"It's impossible to say to what extent Mr. Ford was responsible for the initiative in writing these articles." himself, or if, by consenting to their publication, he only gave in to the demands of others. But in any case, he is the one responsible for suites.

Examining the accusation, based on alleged protocols, of a cons-
Jewish aspiration tending towards world domination by Jewish bankers internationals, Mr. Taft added :)

"No precedent for the exercise of such global control power is not cited as evidence. The author's conclusions are supported only by based on his own statements, on his confidence which fully satisfies him."

Readers of the International Review of Secret Societies know – and we as we just mentioned earlier – that the B'nai B'rith
These are very secretive and very closed Masonic lodges.
exclusively reserved for Jews, and accepting no member of a different race or religion. This removes, perhaps-Being, in any case, valuable to Mr. Taft's demonstration. It was not no less curious to point out, if only for to show how frightened the Jews are to see their plans occult aspects of universal hegemony brought to light by the great day by the revelations of Serge Nilus.

"Authoritative American voices" protest against anti-Semitism," the Jewish Tribune, 11 February 1921, publishes a statement at the bottom of which its

The author, the socialist writer John Spargo, managed to bring together the signatures of one hundred non-Jewish Americans, including:

Woodrow Wilson, William Taft, Cardinal O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston, Newton Baker, Bishop Brewster, William J. Bryan, Nicholas
Buttlers, Bainbrodge Colby, A. Garfields, Lindley M. Garrison, John Dalmer
Gavit, editor of the Evening Post, Bishop Patrik J. Hayes, Hamilton
Holt, editor of the Independent, Franklin R. Lane, Robert Lansing, ET Meredith, William F. Morgan, Theodore Roosevelt, Thomas J. Shahan, Rector of the Catholic University, George W. Wickersham, ex-attorney general, Bishop Charles David Williams, etc., etc.

The Jewish Tribune reproduces some letters of membership received by Mr. Spargo. They come from Messrs. Woodrow, Wilson, Warren Harding, Cane William O'Connell and Robert Lansing.

We read in the letter of this dai;

I remember that the "Protocols" were brought to my attention while I was still serving as Secretary of State when I examined them.
and referred back to the office that deals with this type of matter, declaring that I saw no proof of their authenticity and that personally-I initially considered them to be fakes. This investigation took place some time ago.
a year, maybe even two; for the moment, I am unable to to say exactly. In any case, these documents are entirely without evidence. If I can still be of any use in this campaign against the enemies of the Jewish race in this country, I will be happy to be able to do it.

In his letter, Cardinal O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston,
He simply positions himself on American soil. He writes, in effect:

Such a campaign is in complete disagreement with the best traditions of the American ideal... He is completely anti-American to incriminate either a race or any religion, and that is why I request to raise my protest against any anti-Jewish campaign...

One could respectfully reply: "That the Jews first cease attacking society through Bolshevism and the socialism, and the Church through Freemasonry, as they They do it all over the world; then antisemitism will lose its "raison d'être."

– La Tribune Juive, January 28, 1921, reproduced from the December 1920 issue of the Commoner, a letter from
Mr. Bryan, presidential candidate, whose statement is as follows:

The anti-Jewish pamphlet that has been circulating recently, based The argument about the so-called "minutes" is as absurd as it is cruel. IJ is It's surprising that anyone would want to base anything on a publication. An anonymous accusation against one of the greatest races in history.

I have carefully read the "Minutes" and I believe they have been manufactured by an enemy of the Jewish people or written by a fanatic demented, and the first case is the most likely. They represent the fantaisances of an unbalanced mind; it would be profoundly unjust to to launch an attack against Jews in general. The diabolical nature of The conspiracy theory is sufficient to mark it as senseless or bad faith (1).

No conspiracy of this kind could be plotted by a a considerable number of people, not to mention the impossibility of the to bring to fruition. It would require the united efforts of all the leaders of the race to turn it into a real conspiracy, and who are the prominent Jews worldwide who might be suspected of designing a A similar crime?

I have the pleasure of knowing many distinguished Jews intimately, among them – to mention only a few – the Jew Brandeis, of the Supreme Court; the great lawyer, Samuel Untermyer; the eminent jurist, Judge Mack; Nathan Strauss, the universal philanthropist famously known, and his brother Oscar, also distinguished as a diplomat as an advocate for peace; Rabbi Wise, intrepid preacher of Justice; Julius Rosenwald, businessman and humanitarian; the ambassador Morgenthau, who until very recently was the representative of the States-United in Constantinople; Otto and Julius Rabe, Bernard Baruch, Sigmund Zeisler, A.-J. Eliasch, etc.

Could any Jewish project succeed in this country without help? of these representatives of the race? And which Christians would be more em-would have been in such a hurry as they were to denounce such a conspiracy if they had one Never heard of it?

The pamphlet, however irritating, cannot cause lasting harm. will soon be forgotten.

Mr. Harding is less explicit; he simply did Send the following note to the Jewish newspaper Tageblatt:

Senator Harding strongly condemns all persecution against the Jews, as in general with all injustices and violence. President Harding will establish the principle of equality for all men at the very foundation of its government policy. (See La Tribune Juive, (~January 5, 1921, p. 8).

---

(1) The diabolical nature of Bolshevism does not prevent Lenin and his acolytes of doininer and ruin Russia (Editor's note).

La Tribune Juive, January 28, 1921, p. 8:

– The American Jewish Committee convened a conference major Jewish organizations in the United States for examine what attitude the Jews of the United States should to take action in the presence of the anti-Semitic movement that has won their country through the publication, in particular, of the famous "Trials-"Verbal judgments of the Elders of Zion" and by the accusation of Bolshevime carried out against the Jews. Jewish organizations have decided, following their deliberations, to publish a manifesto, reproduced by the Tribune Juive, December 31 1920, and L'Univers Israélite, January 14, 1921, p. 448. We Let us borrow the following passages from the latter, which suffice to show how preoccupied and embar- Jews are reassured by Serge Nilus' revelations:

Speaking as representatives of the Jewish people, familiar with the history Regarding Judaism, we solemnly declare:

4. The minutes are an infamous forgery. There was never any organization Jewish nisation known as the "Elders of Zion", or bearing any similar designation. There has never been a secret Jewish group or another having the purpose indicated by the minutes. The Jews have not never dreamed of establishing a Jewish dictatorship, or destroying religion, or to halt industrial prosperity or ruin civilization. The Jews have never conspired in any way with the Freemasons or with any other band.

He who tries too hard to prove proves nothing; which is to say that the The Jews have renounced the coming of their Messiah. And we find not in contemporary history a conspiracy, a revolution, a secret organization or society in which one does not reveal the hand and inspiration of the Jews. – That which does not want to say that they are always the agents of execution, on the contrary. Therefore, American Jews are very poorly advised when they claim to draw an argument against the "Protocols" from this that their origin remains mysterious and their author unknown; This alone bears the Jewish mark. And if one wants proof of the bad faith shown in their defense by the Jews of American Jewish Committee, it can be found in the passage following from their manifesto:

The official reports were fabricated in Russia under supervision of the bureaucracy, and the ammunition with which this campaign is the weapons carried out were supplied by the arsenal of imperialist Germany and by those who seek to restore the Habsburgs, the Hohenzollerns and the Romanovs on their ancient thrones.

So it's no longer with billionaire Ford's money, he We need to come to an agreement.

— We read in Le Peuple Juif, January 21, 1921, p. 11:

The American Committee for Minority Rights “published an appeal to the inhabitants of America, signed by Messrs. Taft, Charles A. Elliot, Bryan, Lansing, Marshall, Hoover, Elkus, Cardinal Gibbons, and others, against the anti-Semitic propaganda being carried out in the country by people hateful and irresponsible. The appeal lists crimes attributed to Jews and demonstrates their absurdity.

L'Univers Israélite, January 28, 1921, p. 493, still gives the names of Messrs. Morgenthau and Oscar Strauss, former ambassadors sadeurs; Louis Marshall, president of the American Jewish Committee, and Stephen Wise, rabbi.

La Tribune Juive, January 28, 1921, p. 5, gives the text of this appeal from the "American Committee for Minority Rights" religious order”, whose headquarters are at 70, 5th Avenue, published by the Herald, of New York, December 24, 1921.

We extract the following from it:

Among the disconcerting events that followed the war, it is worth noting a resurgence of religious persecution in a large number of countries...

We do not forget that the motives are political, economic, or racial. have often been involved, but we must remember that the alleged state interests have always served as an excuse for the authorities to the persecution of minorities...

America and Great Britain are, of all countries, those where the existence of hatreds based on religion or race had never been presumed, because these countries have always prided themselves on their civil and religious liberties. And yet, while we were in train to examine the rights of religious minorities in other country, we were surprised and humiliated by the emergence of a Anti-Jewish propaganda in England and the United States...

The key point of the accusation is that, for a century, there has existed among the Jews a conspiracy to bring about the revolution, the communism and anarchy, to seize world hegemony, that this is in reality a conspiracy against civilization and that the movements Bolsheviks in many countries, as well as numerous strikes female workers from the armistice until today — so they say, not one Not a week has passed without a strike — these are due to this conspiracy, no matter the gateway where the unrest took place, whether in Russia, Poland, or in Hungary, Austria, Portugal, France, Great Britain or In America, the culprits are everywhere, these master conspirators. Everywhere the unrest, even that of the Turkish revolution, would be the work of the Jewish conspiracy...

We are ready to acknowledge that the Jews distinguished themselves in movements that are dangerous for society and governments, but It must also be noted... that non-Jews take part in all the dangerous innovations...

The following is the complete list of signatures:

The Rev. Dr. Arthur J. Brown, President; Linbey V. Gordon, Secretary; the rev. Henry A. Atkinson, Rev. Nehemiah Boynton, William J. Aryn, — Henry Sloan Coffin, D” Charles W. Eliot, Abram I. Elkus, James, Cardinal Gibbons, Hamilton Holt, Herbert Hoover, Charles E. Hughes, rev. FrédéRick Knubel, Rev. Lanritz Larson, Robert Lansing, rev. J.-.H. Frederick Lynch, Bishop William F. Mc. Dowell, Rev. Charles S. Mac-Farland, Louis Marshall, rev. William P. Mereill, Henry Morgenthau, Alton B. Parker, rev. Joseph Schremps, Oscar S. Strauss, William H. Taft, rev.

Worth, Tippy, D" James, J. Walsh and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise.

It is quite obvious that non-Jews take part in revolutionary movements in all countries, but what is— What does this prove? The question is, what is the power? occult which instigates and subsidizes these companies against social order and the Catholic religion. And the simultaneity of all these revolutions or attempted revolutions, made everywhere at the most opportune moment, clearly proves that this A secret direction exists. To cite just one recent example: Would the Jews have succeeded in carrying out the Affair? Dreyfus, if they had not been able to gather numerous complicities non-Jewish cities worldwide? And within the troupe For Dreyfusards, the Jews were only a minority, but a ruling minority... and paying ones. It's still the same in Current time.

— La Tribune Juive, February 4, 1921, wrote:

We read in the Bulletin of the "Jewish Correspondence Bureau":

“In a speech addressed to a delegation of the “Daughters of Jacob,” the Judge Otto Rosalsky stated that he was developing a draft of law that would classify the publication of a pamphlet as a criminal act against any race, sect, or class whatsoever."

One might easily find traces of this project law against the crime of "lèse-Jewish" in the "Protocols" "Wise Men of Zion"?

A Jewish periodical has just been published in Philadelphia. A monthly magazine in English, entitled "Faths". It aims to to fight against Ford's anti-Semitic newspaper. (The Tribune) Jewish, February 25, 1921).

— According to the Jewish Yearbook of America, there are, in New York, one and a half million Jews. The total number of Jews in The world reaches fifteen million. (La Tribune Juive, January 7) 1921, p. 12).

— Excerpt from a letter by Chief Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Regarding Bolshevism, reproduced by the Tribune Juive, 11 March 1920, p. 7: |

Whatever other people may think and say about Bolshevism, As an American and as a Jew, I have particular reasons for it. to be considered harmful and threatening...

As a Jew, I cannot help but deplore the fact that Jews are accused of leading Bolshevism, when I know... that it is not comparatively actively that a small number of Jews occupy important positions or prominent in the Bolshevik movement. Yet I have reasons to to fear that when the time comes for sobering up in Russia and that Bolshevism will have fallen, many Jews will have to pay for the participation of a small number of them in the leadership of Bolshevism.

The fear of pogroms is the beginning of wisdom. And the history of Israel is entirely made up of these reversals. populations against the Jews, enemies of all civilization and destructive par excellence of national traditions among other peoples. Only, today that the goal pursued by the Jews, it is achieved, that Tsarism is overthrown. Russian Bolshevism becomes compromising and "threatening" for the safety of Jews in other countries. That is why we would like to disown him.

— The Knights of Columbus are waging a campaign against Pan-Semitism; at least, that is the news we have We find in the Tribune Juive, March 11, 1920, p. 11:

According to the New York Tribune, the Knights of Columbus will to begin a vigorous campaign in the Eastern states against extremism.

Mr. James A. Flaherty, the Supreme Knight, stated that the investigation

This fact had demonstrated how much the radical agitators took advantage the current situation's turmoil is intended to sow seeds of discontent in the country.

of discord. The campaign that will be undertaken will establish that the preventions Anti-Catholic and anti-Jewish sentiments provide weapons for propaganda red.

This attitude of the Knights of Columbus has nothing that can to be surprised, given their good relations with France Masonry. But we shouldn't try to bind, for the
The greatest profit of the Jews: two absolutely essential questions distinct, both in substance and in the people involved. Those who attack the Catholic Church, sectarians of all kinds
And Freemasons of all stripes are not anti-Semitic.
Quite the opposite.

– The American Jewish Congress should be organized as an institute-permanent tuition, due in particular to the situation of Jews in Eastern Europe and the development of the mouantisemitic movement in the United States. (Univers Israélite, March 4) 1921, p. 620).

FRANCE. – The annual conference of the French Federation
The Zionist Catholic Church has renewed its Steering Committee. The following were elected:

Dr. Marmorek, Dr. D. Jacobson, H. Cherchevsky, N. Hermann,
D. Franckel, D. Léon Fildermann, Enric F. Braunstein. Bernfeld, Fridmann, D. Marcus, S. Roukhomovsky. (Cf. Le Peuple Juif, February 4)
1921, p. 10).

– Speaking of the fight against anti-Semitism in the United States-
United States, MH Prague writes in the Jewish Archives, 17
February 1921:

What a difference between this American opinion... and the attitude taken in France, when antisemitism launched its first attacks. Here...
This public opinion remained indifferent to the attacks for a long time.
violent, savage atrocities to which we were subjected... Let us remember the resistance the criticisms she leveled against generous minds, concerned about the rights of the justice and truth that strove to enlighten him about the origins suspects of the infamous accusation brought against Captain Dreyfus.

The Jews are very wrong, especially after the findings of the last war concerning German espionage, to speak Thus, on every subject, of the Dreyfus Affair. They force us to to remember and remind them of certain facts.

L

Mr. Alfred Dreyfus's guilt is not in question and The anti-French crime of the Jews is not that they tried to to prove his innocence. That's not what France is about.
will demand an accounting from them; but it is good that they did not back down from exonerate their fellow believer and deliver our defenseless country to Germany's attacks. All our counter-espionage destroyed, all our agents burned, our secrets handed over to the big boss Today, our military leaders are discredited, vilified, and insulted.
by the Jews and the writers in their pay, France itself thrown to the wolves of all foreign countries, slandered at will continuous, etc., etc. That's what allowed Germany to to prepare, in complete safety, for war and its sudden attack by Belgium; to install in our country, in complete peace, platforms for its heavy artillery; to spot the "Creutes" of Champagne where his troops took refuge after the First Battle of the Marne and to establish, without encountering obstacles, spies in all our cities and even in the smallest villages. If the Kaiser hadn't seen He wouldn't have believed that Jewish gold could do anything for us.
the degradation, the abasement of the French people, and would have, Perhaps, he hesitated to declare war on us. That's the work criminal of the Jews, the "general upheaval" of our national defense, according to the expression, it is said, of Mr. Joseph Reinach, who has just died and who was, Ga Pun of the great leaders of the Affair.

The Germans are burdened by both the declaration of war and the satanic way they conducted the struggle. The Jews will always be in the eyes of good French people and before Impartial history, responsibility, not for having defended
Mr. Alfred Dreyfus, but for having disarmed without Shame on France and delivered our homeland to the blows of its age-old enemy. The Jews would do wisely, in their interest, by not obliging us to develop this theme, their allusions to the Affair, as inappropriate as they were shameless Dreyfus, who did so much harm, through their conscious fault, to France. We could also ask MH Prague
Why are the Jews, who did so much for Mr. Alfred Dreyfus, are abstaining for their fellow believer Ulmo. Is it because that military counter-espionage was such a nuisance to Germany

Having been destroyed, the countryside no longer held any interest for The Kaiser? — If we want blood spilled on the fields

The battle erases these painful memories, that we at least have the prudence of not waking them up in the Jewish camp and that one leaves us in peace with Mr. Alfred Dreyfus and his pseudo-innocence. The matter has long been settled on the In substance, in form, and in means.

— Moreover, if the above observations needed We would find a justification in the following note, published by L'Univers Israélite, March 11, 1921, p. 636:

General Mercier died last week. Last week Only? He was thought to have been dead for a long time, and even, according to a This aphorism from the Midrash raises the question of whether he ever actually lived. In any case... In that case, he was politically dead. Have you noticed how men Politicians compromised in the Dreyfus affair have disappeared from circulation. lation? That is already the judgment of history.

No, impartial history will reach a completely different judgment. on Israel. She will say that, in order to exonerate a fellow believer, The Jews of France joined forces with Jews from all over the world. countries to disarm France and deliver her to the blows of their hereditary enemy. And history will add that thus the Jews bear a large share of moral responsibility in the war world of 1914.

— The law against the Congregations, the brutal break of diplomatic relations with the Vatican, the Separation of The Church and the State were the result of Jewish revenge. The Tribune Juive, February 25, 1921, wrote, in fact:

We know that the campaign waged not long ago against the Church Catholicism and support for the separation of Church and State are explained by the the sad role played during the Dreyfus affair by a section of the clergy, who Indeed, he threw himself into the political fray and took a determined stance...

The Dreyfus affair having revealed the degree of decay within the clergy, the The opposing camp began an offensive against the Church. The objective historian It is clear that the clergy is responsible for everything that happened then...

And the Jewish newspaper predicts further persecution against the Church, because some members of the clergy are open- antisemitic remarks, adding:

The priests who are conducting shameful propaganda within Action Française do more harm to the Church than all the Atheists in Europe combined.

The Jewish Tribune should appoint the priests of the Action French. So far we have not seen it appear in the sheet royalist, the name of an ecclesiastical editor.

— In the Mercure de France, January 15, 1921, Mr. Georges Batault publishes an article on the "Renaissance of the Anti- "mitism." In the Tribune Juive, February 4, 1921, MJ Delevsky criticizes him for having mainly drawn from arguments and facts from anti-Semitic authors.

(See also: L'Univers Israélite, February 11, 1921).

Mr. Batault published a second article on "Exclusivism" "Jew." (Cf. Tribune Juive, March 11, 1921, p. 2; L'Univers) Israelite, March 25, 1921, p. 680).

— Jewish journals report the appearance of the second volume of the History of the Israelite Alliance:

Fifty years of history: The Alliance Israélite Universelle (1860-1910). by N. Leven. Volume II, with a foreword by Mr. Salomon Reinach and An alphabetical index of the two volumes. Paris, Félix Alcan bookstore, 108, boulevard Saint-Germain, 12 fr.

— Mr. Joseph Reinach died in Paris on Monday, April 18, 1921. He was born in Paris on September 30, 1856. His body was cremated at Père-Lachaise cemetery on Wednesday, April 20th, at one o'clock of the afternoon.

— Mr. Emile Cahen writes in the Archives Israélites, 6 January 1921, regarding "undesirable Jews":

We readily admit that serious monitoring must be established with regard to a population whose unjustified misfortunes may to have atrophied the moral sense. All foreigners, Jewish or not, who come- Those who live in our country have no right to interfere in our domestic politics. and the more or less disguised emissaries of the Soviets to some cult that they belong to must be arrested or returned to our borders.

The thesis, the hypothesis, is that we must not touch to the Jews, even the most undesirable ones. Just read the pro-Semitic newspapers can confirm this.

— La Tribune Juive, February 4, 1921, reports a pamphlet published in Lausanne, in French, under the title: "Letter open to the "Black Hundred" of Russia — section outside Russia. The author, MJ Isaievitch,

The author, MJ Isaievitch, tells the Russian reactionaries, who, under the benevolent protection of foreign anti-Semites, they announce that Bolshevism was engendered by the Jews.

Let us add — and this will suffice — that Mr. Salomon Reinach has writes the preface to this brochure.

— The Senate has five Jewish members:

Mr. Schrameck (Bouches-du-Rhône); Mr. Crémieux (Gard); Raphael-Georges Lévy (Seine); Paul Strauss (Seine); Lazare Weiller (Bas-Rhin). (L'Univers Israélite, January 14, 1921, p. 443).

í
— MH Prague wrote in the Jewish Archives on the 13th January 1921, p. 5:

If the flow of Jewish emigration headed towards France, it is because that the French shipping companies drained, supplanting their competitors from abroad.

And the Jews form "Committees for the Relief of Israelites" territories of the former Russian Empire” in the 3rd, 4th”, [10th 11th and 12th arrondissements of Paris. EU Jewish people, 14 January 1921, p. 12).

— We read in L'Univers Israélite, January 21, 1921, p. 472:

D results from news we have received from Mainz that the French authorities have repeatedly demonstrated the greatest spirit of liberalism and have notably banned or suppressed the publication of newspapers and brochures with anti-Semitic tendencies.

Mainz, along with Frankfurt, is one of the centers of pluto- Jewish cracy. This explains that. We can add the note next:

__ Mr. Emile Cahen writes in the Archives Israélites, 20 January 1921:

The Georges Leygue ministry was overthrown last week and replaced on Monday by a new Aristide Briand combination. With Neither of these parliamentarians, French Judaism has anything to do with fear of his opponents. If, with the former Prime Minister, whose The family ties are known to everyone, we were in In complete safety, with its successor, we are also at ease, because The former leader of La Lanterne would never tolerate anti-Semitism.

— The Jewish People, January 21, 1921, complains that the Government- The French government expelled 12,000 people during the last year. foreigners, mostly Jews, and he adds these words which no comments are being made:

And who knows if the body of the "unknown soldier" that all of France has celebrated with such pomp a few weeks ago, by burying him under The majestic Arc de Triomphe is not that of some little foreigner that a A tender Jewish mother is currently mourning in some Polish village or Lithuanian or even in this Parisian ghetto where Mr. Steeg's agents proceed with their triumphant roundups, in search of undesirables, carriers of the microbe that causes disease number 9?

— Mr. Marcel Lehmann, former chief of staff Ministry of Pensions, is appointed Inspector General of External services of the Ministry of Pensions.

Mr. Camille Boch, Inspector General of Libraries, is appointed director of the Library and War Museum. (L'Univers Israélite, January 28, 1921, p. 491).

— The Alliance Israélite Universelle has resumed publication of a newsletter, which has been discontinued for six years. It publishes a monthly magazine entitled: Peer and Law. The first The issue was published at the beginning of February. The offices are at the headquarters of the Alliance Israélite Universelle — whose president is Mr. Sylvain Lévi, — 45, rue La-Bruyère.

— In Le Peuple Juif, February 25, 1921, ML Mertz, President of the 4th section of the League of Human Rights, He addresses an appeal to the "Undesirables." He tells them:

Upon arriving in Paris, they must immediately go to the Prefecture and to apply for a residence permit by bringing all their documents in order. Arm yourselves against injustice and we will be able to defend you better. more safely. Remember that we are the League for the Rights of Man, and that we always want to defend rights.

Finally, all foreigners must come to the League; it is their duty to register there. I] no other power exists in France capable of defending them and protecting them against illegality...

We know that the League of Human Rights was founded to defend the rights of Mr. Alfred Dreyfus and the interests Jews.

— We borrow the following from the report, given by L'Univers Israélite, March 4, 1921, p. 613, of the speech delivered by the Chief Rabbi of France to the assembly general of the Mount Sinai Society:

It seems there are Israelites who believe that their duty, in this Quality stops at the borders of France. As for our coreligionists belonging to other countries, they would be foreigners to us and we we would have no more obligations towards them than towards the Chinese or the Hottentots. We cannot believe that those who share this way to see them, though many are there, but however sparse they may be, it is important to tell them that they are seriously mistaken.

Our wise men once wondered why Revelation was made in the Sinai desert and they declared, with a breadth of vision to to which homage must be paid, that the Law of God was given to Israel in the desert because the desert belongs to everyone. Thus, all of humanity is called upon to participate in the benefit The moral of the gift of the Law.

But if Israel has a humanitarian role in this way, since it must to communicate to all men the benefits of the religion of which he is the deposit, all the more so should it know no borders when It is the great duty of Jewish charity and solidarity that is at stake.

Replace "Jews" with the word "Catholics" and suppose that these words were spoken by a French bishop, What cries would be raised against the international? black, by all the sectarians of Freethought and of Franc-Freemasonry, which strives daily to criticize the Catholics objected to having a foreigner as their leader. But to the Jews, everything is permitted and the Lodges, or the League of Human Rights, they will be careful not to protest, nor will they speak of the reconstitution of the Great Jewish Sanhedrin in Jerusalem.

— We read in the Tribune Juive, March 11, 1921, p. 2:

The antisemitic conception is fundamentally hostile to any doctrine profound social and political common sense. A man who believes in The agreement between the bankers and the Jewish Bolsheviks is not capable of grasping the premises of some kind of social conception. A man who believes

Zionist records will never understand the most basic principles simple things on which international politics rests. These men are blind and they light dim lanterns in broad daylight; At every step they stumble, fall, and break their heads.

With the Jews — as with the Freemasons, the two are one and the same — we must take the opposite view of what they they say, if one wants to penetrate the truth, and know how to read thought The esoteric lies behind the exoteric word. It's here, or never. The case. And the number of good French people increases every day. who no longer allow themselves to be "brainwashed" by inventions and Judeo-Masonic theories.

HUNGARY. — We read in the Tribune Juive, March 11 1921, p. 10: | | | |

: ai

The Hungarian delegate Polnai, who was preparing to leave London for America was forced to return to Budapest, having become convinced that its attempts to find financial support from American Jews didn't have much chance of success. That's why, back in In Budapest, Mr. Polnai requested a meeting with Mr. Teleki, the president of the Advice, in order to obtain from him a statement saying that he was unaware of the acts arbitrary acts committed against interned Oriental Jews — which may to favorably influence public opinion abroad.

Hungary, which experienced the Bolshevik regime, does not want let the Eastern Jews work freely to bring back the Social revolution. International Jewish bankers close their scholarship. What better demonstration of agreement? global Jewish affairs, as outlined in the "Protocols," could- What to produce? The very means are advocated there.

ITALY. — The Jewish People, March 18, 1921, writes:

Luigi Luzzatti, the famous Italian statesman, has just celebrated the eightieth anniversary of his birth... Let us remember that ML Luzzatti is a good Jew and he did not fail to raise his voice in favor of his persecuted brothers.

History will tell if Mr. Luigi Luzzatti has always been this good Italian, as he demonstrated to the testimony of his coreligionists. international associations "good Jew".

PALESTINE. — The Israelite Universe publishes, in its issue of January 7, 1921, p. 424 et seq., analysis of a report, presented by a study committee, for the organization Jewish religious leader in the Holy Land. This report is addressed to

i

Sir Herbert Samuel, British High Commissioner to Jerusalem. The aim is to bring together the Ashkenazim and the Sephardim to form a Great Sanhedrin, under the name of the Rabbinical Council.

On the other hand, we read in the Archives Israélites, 17 March 1921: |

Sir Herbert Samuel, High Commissioner in Palestine, would he like to renew- 'replicating the gesture of Napoleon I', to revive the ancient institution of the grand Sanhedrin? In any case, he convened the meeting in Jerusalem. A conference that included 71 rabbis (that's the traditional number) e, 3 laypeople. He opened it in person on February 25th, and it's our Mr. Bentwich, head of the judicial section at the governor- the establishment of the Protectorate, which led the debates of this assembly at during which the creation of an appeals court was decided. At the The rabbis Kuk, representing the said tribunal, were placed on the bench. Ashkenazi communities and Jacob Meir, representative of the communities Sephardic Jews. This "Beth Din HaGadol" will comprise eight members; its jurisdiction will extend to all Judeo-religious matters.

\

Let us remember that the idea conceived by Napoleon I" was never fully realized. (Cf. Memoirs of Chancellor Pasquier, t. I, ch. x, p. 270 et seq.). Baron Pasquier was a member of the Commission appointed by the Emperor to examine this affite. We read this curious anecdote in his Memoirs:

|

"The [Jewish] commissioners were, in general, deeply moved." the sincere desire I expressed to them to see us emerge from our debate; a truly useful outcome for them... they ended to ensure that before he was six months old, there would be no their brothers in China who did not know what all the The Jews owed me gratitude for the good I did for them. I wanted to do it, and for the excellence of my actions towards them.

"This sentence has always struck me as quite remarkable in this regard." that it demonstrates the extent to which these men, widespread _ on the face of the world, at such great distances, living under such different skies and amidst such divergent customs-blables, maintain relationships with each other, identify with interests of one another and are animated by the same spirit”.(Op. cit., p. 279).

Let us read in the Tribune Juive, February 11, 1921:

“Di Zait”, Mendel Beiliss, once accused of ritual murder

by the Tsarist government and acquitted by the Jury of Kieff, who lived living in extreme poverty with his family in Palestine, he left with them for America.

– The Jewish People, February 18, 1921, publishes the translation of "Official text of the Draft British Mandate for the Palestine submitted to the Council of the League of Nations.” document contains twenty-seven articles and the French translation The translation is based on the text given by the Jewish Chronicle.

The Jewish Chronicle is not satisfied and raises a number of names numerous criticisms, then she adds:

It would be unfair, however, to reject the responsibility of a tale situation regarding the English government; it falls rather on the Jvifs anti-nationalists who have done everything in their power since the Balfour Declaration to transform a great national triumph into a mere half-measure Jewish integration and nothing more. Add to that difficulties of an "oligarchic" nature. tick on the part of France in particular, whose ambitions in the East are well-known concerns on the Arab side, not forgetting the other that was committed by conducting the negotiations so secretly that public opinion The Jewish public could not express itself in a way that would have any influence on the balance.

As we can see, we cannot count on the Jews for the Defending French interests in the East. [The plutocracy] global is not for us, any more than, for that matter, the international revolution.

POLAND. – During a meeting at which he had invited representatives of the press, (Mr. Daszynski vice-president – since resigned – of the Council of Ministers, expressed themselves in these terms regarding the attitude that the the Polish government intends to take action against Jews:

The internal and external difficulties we are facing The struggles force us to take a clear stance in The Jewish question... It is impossible for us to have a foreign policy, to obtain external financial and economic assistance by practicing at the same time an anti-Semitic policy internally. Neither Anjleterre, nor Neither America nor France will be willing to provide us with the aid that is essential for a young state. If we continue to militate the Jews, to tear out their beards, and if our press continues its campaign of bestial anti-Semitism.

(L'Univers Israélite, January 7, 1921, p. 417).

The "Protocols of the Elders of Zion" do not speak otherwise on the power of Jewish gold.

– La Tribune Juive, January 28, 1921, publishes, according to the Jewish Guardian of December 17, information on the

The situation of Jews in Poland. We extract from it what follows:

A letter from the "Joint Foreign Committee of the Jewish Board of Deputies" and of the "Anglo-Jewish Association" addressed to the Polish Delegates to of the Council of the League of Nations, dated November 29 and signed by Mr. Lucien Wolf, secretary and special delegate of the "Joint Foreign The Committee notes that, according to the news received from Poland by the Committee, if the persecutions against the Jews continue, we can no longer to speak of "pogroms" proper and that this is said to vigilance exercised by the government. Yet, the general insecurity of the Jews persists and often crimes are still committed which unfortunately remain fortunately unpunished. The Jews are victims of a widespread boycott organized, thanks to anti-Semitic propaganda....

– The Polish government has forbidden Jews from trade in Christian religious objects. (L'Univers Israélite, January 7, 1921, p. 426). The Jews call this persecutting.

– La Tribune Juive, January 21, 1921, p. 11:

The "Haint" reports that many Jews converted in Poland They have recently returned to Judaism. Sometimes they are driven by the desire to obtain a divorce which is forbidden by the Catholic religionlique.

– The government has decided to exclude Jewish officers of the Polish army. (Law of November 17, 1919). Questioned by the Jewish Parliamentary Group, on this subject, the Minister of Guerre Sosnowsky replied:

By creating the army, which is not only for defense, but also the As the foundation of the State's solidity and strength, the government calls for responsible positions, that is to say, officer positions. The people remarkable for their love of country and capable of sacrifice: (See La Tribune Juive, January 28, 1921, p. 10).

– The Jewish newspapers are outraged because Poland does not does not want to be governed by an Israelite. The Jewish Tribune, 11 March 1921, reproduced this extract from Morgenstern:

Father Lutoslawsky's black wings cover the land. All of life the government bears the imprint of clericalism. So that there is no There is no doubt about Rome's domination in Poland, the democrats popular movement proposed and had the Diet accept that the President of The Polish Republic could only be Catholic.

– Is it Jewish influence that makes England shows so favorable to Germany on the question of the Upper Silesia? Or should we look for the reason for this English bias in the following note published by the same newspaper:

The English publishing house, Allenand Hawin, published a book by Mr. Sydney Osborn, entitled: The Upper Silesian Question and Germany's coal problem (1).

The author is an American (not Jewish) who studied the situation on the places and who noted the enormous role played by Jews in the development economic development of Upper Silesia. It was Jews who founded the main industrial companies, which have made Upper Silesia the jewel of East German industry. The author cites the names of these companies and those of their founders. This list is very long. and fully allows us to affirm that the industry of Upper Silesia that Germany and Poland are currently fighting over a Jewish work.

Between Catholic Poland and Lutheran Germany, the International Jews naturally prefer the latter. And we see the result of this preference in the attitude of the English government. The great Silesian Jewish industrialists want to remain German; we will see if the Conference will bow to this desire.

ROMANIA. – The former Romania comprised approximately 250,000 Jews. The new Romania will have a population Jewish community of 850,000 people. The annexed territories include, Indeed: Bessarabia, 267,000 Jews; Bukovina, 102,000; Transylvania, 64,074; Banat, 14,529; Koros region, 52,763; Districts of Marmaros and Szatmar, 93,396. (See The Universe) Israelite, January 28, 1921, p. 492).

Russia. — We read in the Israelite Universe, January 7
1921, p. 414:

"Then a handful of murderers descended upon what had been the

(1, The Upper Silesian question and the problem of German coal.

Majesties and Highnesses, and suddenly made a horrible pile of corpses out of it.
vres, just as they acted, not so long ago, in the ghetto of a town
Polish soldiers and police officers of these same Majesties, of these same Your Highnesses, so sure of impunity in your palaces, in the midst of your — regiments of the guards.

Yes, Nicholas II, his tsarina, his tsarevich, his grand duchesses have
They were ignobly murdered, without any possible defense, without any useful protest, exactly as Nicholas II and the Tsarina had approved, provoked, wanted the murder of men, women, boys, girls Israelites, who were certainly not Majesties and Highnesses, but, Still, they are human beings. A tragic, appalling return.
things |... The autocrat subjected to pogroms like a simple Jew!

In France, Jewish vengeance persecutes the Catholic Church—fique; in Russia, she assassinates the imperial family and the Jews around the world are shouting like jackals and hyenas sneering over corpses.

— The Jews are making every effort to repel the responsibility which falls to them in the Bolshevik movement—visit. We note in the Israelite Universe, March 11, 1921,
p. 637, the following passage from an article published for this purpose, by the second issue of Peace and Law, the new organ of the Universal Israelite Alliance:

The vast majority of Russian Judaism, in the face of the war, was Cadet or Menshevik. She enthusiastically welcomed the first Revolution who, with a stroke of the pen, abolished all the restrictive laws which weighed upon her. To this enthusiasm, mixed with gratitude, were added all the major Jewish organizations in the world, which demonstrated their sentiments expressed through countless telegrams addressed to the government provisional. :

Every revolution is a single entity; one cannot separate the parts from it.
stages. The storming of the Bastille heralded the Reign of Terror. Similarly,
In Russia, Bolshevism and the revolution were carried out for the benefit of Germany is a whole for which the Jews will bear the responsibility stability in the face of history, because they were its agents the most active. The Russian betrayal is their doing.

— We read in the Tribune Juive, March 11, 1921, p. 4:

As for the Jews who are Soviet officials, they obey the same mobile phones as all other civil servants. Most recently, Mr. Salomon Reinach demonstrated that in many places the Jews dominate among Soviet officials for this simple reason that the Soviet government needs a literate and sober staff.

In any case, most Jewish Soviet officials are despite themselves, and the percentage of ardent communists there is very low.

To remain true to the truth, we must remember this observation.
from Mr. Salomon Reinach and to receive explanations regarding the fact for what they are worth, that is to say, as very prone to Caution. In fact, Bolshevism is the realization of the projects denounced by Serge Nilus, in the "Protocols of the Elders of "Zion," we cannot overstate it.

— We read in Le Peuple Juif, March 18, 1921:

Having returned from a trip to Soviet Russia, Dr. Eder, who had as mission to make contact with Russian Zionists, given to the Jewish Chronicle: interesting information...

Dr. Eder recounts that the general situation of the Jews, apart from the
The economic conditions inherent in the system are excellent.
of antisemitism. The Rabbi of Moscow, Mazé, told him that the future
The situation for Russian Jews is brilliant if the current regime survives... The contrast Their situation under the Tsars is enormous.

From this it appears that the Jews are on very good terms with the Bolsheviks; and that, in Russia, as elsewhere, the revo-

The revolution was carried out by the Jews and for their benefit. This justifies antisemitism, but that doesn't stop Jews from crying out against persecution, when the peoples whose institutions they disrupt-social and religious institutions seek to protect themselves and to defend oneself!

SWITZERLAND. — The Grand Council of Zurich has decided to establish a minimum waiting period of fifteen years for the naturalization of Oriental Jews. (La Tribune Juive, February 25, 1921).

— According to the Jüdische Presszentrale Zurich, Mr. Guinsburger, Chief Rabbi of Geneva, |' "Alliance Israélite" and the The Joint Foreign Committee had a conversation with Sir Ernest Drummond, Secretary General of the League of Nations, and Mr. Albert Thomas, Director of the International Bureau-National Labour Council. (La Tribune Juive, February 25, 1921).

— We read in L'Univers Israélite, March 4, 1921, p. 619:

The Swiss Federal Council refused to act on a proposal inviting him to intervene with the League of Nations regarding the anti-Jewish pogroms in Poland. He alleged in favor of the non intervention that this was a matter of internal order of a foreign State and that he had no business interfering.

— The last census that took place in Switzerland in December accuses a Jewish population of 21,000 souls out of 3,877,840 inhabitants (1).

E. D'YLBERT.

(1) The other promised appendices will appear in the next volume on "Freemasons in Judeo-Masonry".

We will also return to the Jewish denials of the "Protocols » when discussing the 1901 edition which destroys the attacks Mr. du Chayla's case against Nilus, since the latter is not the author of this first edition.

L. CLOIX Printing Works, 17, Avenue Georges-Clemenceau — Nevers.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

l. — THE JUDEO-MASONIC PERIL. — THE “PROTOCOLS” OF THE SAGES OF SION, — OVERVIEW (E. JOUIN)........... 1

1. Judeo-Masonry is Counter-Morality...... 5

2. Judeo-Masonry is the Counter-State........... 44

3. Judeo-Freemasonry is the Counter-Church.......... 17
COMPETITION Sorana ELETEN ATEA TEA AER 21

II. — JEWISH MASONRY AND THE CATHOLIC CHURCH. — First Part: The Faithful of the Counter-Church, Jews and Freemasons

(Es JOUIN] sc en ni Les Bie Si Dossier encens pA
The Jews and the Messiah................... rere cnc enc ecccesesesces 26
1° The Jewish Race.......cccccccccccsccecs located at 30
2. The Jewish People. — The Diaspora.................... 34 os Zionism 0.00... 38
3° Religion Juve soon isn isiiiiseai tes 49
— The Talmud and the “Protocols”. 53
— Universal Domination...... 53
— DOP JUIR:: 54.113 67
— The Jewish Supergovernment..... 59
— The Talmud and the Revolution.... 62
APPENDICES:

1. — THE JEWS AND THE “PROTOCOLS”...........,...,............ 69
1. Jewish suppression of the "Protocols"............. 69

The Protocols and American Independence
(Ls FAT): read loves ten 69

The “Protocols” according to the Revue Fede e
Ramone 12:04 steep: 78
2. Jewish denial of the authenticity of the "Protocols"... 80
Critical study of the "Protocols"............ 87
3. Jewish denial of the veracity of the "Protocols"..... 95
Jews among the leaders of the Entente........ 9G

Who governs Russia?.................... 109

Bolshevik Propaganda Organization
worldwide..................... 130
II. — The Jews and the Fatherland (Paul Courcoural).................. 137
JIT. — MACROPROSOPE AND MICROPROSOPE (N. FOMALHAUT)................... 155
IV. — ASTROLOGICAL TALK ON 1924 (Charles Nicoullaud).... 166

V. — DOCUMENTS ON THE WORLD JEWISH MOVEMENT, first quarter of 1924 (E. D'YLBERT).............................. 173

Digitized by Google

—International Review of Seoretical Sects

NEW SERIES —o— JANUARY 1920

The International Review of the Sooletes Seoretes was founded in 1912 by Bishop JOUIN, Parish priest of Saint-Augustin (Paris), well known for his numerous works of scholarship concerning Sects and Freemasonry. This is the publication... more complete and the richest in documents of all kinds on the Societies Cretes and their actions worldwide. No anti-Masonic body can to support comparison with this Review, neither in terms of documentation, nor in terms of... scholarly works.

Due to the World War and the role played by secret societies during the years that have just passed, the studies undertaken by the editors of The Review has become of paramount importance in judging the past and predicting the future. letter from His Eminence Cardinal Gasparri, on behalf of Pope Benedict XV, glorious- the reigning oath, which he kindly addressed to Bishop Jouin, shows what value is attached in Rome for work of this nature. She came to confirm what had already been in- diqué le Bref announcing to the Curé of Saint-Augustin the prelature to which His His Holiness had raised him on the occasion of his golden wedding anniversary in 1918 (1).

The Revue's collection comprises seven large volumes which are an inexhaustible source of information. Information box on Sects: Freemasonry, Occitanism, Spiritism- me, Théosopnie, etc.

The difficulties arising from the war — the most serious of which for this type of work was the establishment of the Censorship — forced the founder of the Review to add- suspend publication. Today, despite the high cost of everything, the moment came to take it over. But, at least initially, it is necessary to walk slowly, so that you can continue safely.

The Review will be quarterly until subscriptions allow for it to be published every two months, or better yet, every month. A doeu- Index The retrospective commentary will contain documents from July 1914 to the end of 1919.

We are making an urgent appeal to all our former subscribers and to all the people who understand the importance of the task imposed by the Popes: de- to conceal the Lodges and their subsidiaries, and to expose their harmful activities in all areas branches of religious and social thought.

---

1. Here are a few lines from the Brief Praestantes animi laudes, given under the Fisherman's ring, on the 33rd Mare 1913, to the Parish Priest of Saint-Augustin:

“Benedict XV, Pope. — Dear Son, Greetings and Apostolic Blessing. The eminent qualities that You have manifested yourselves brilliantly throughout your long priestly career... we decide without It is difficult to honor you with such illustrious dignity. We know, in fact, that you are fulfilling your sacred ministry in an exemplary manner, that you have the most fervent concern for the eternal salvation of faithful and that you have consistently and courageously affirmed the rights of the Catholic Church — no without risk to your life — against the sects hostile to religion, so that you spare nothing, nor labors, nor expenses, to disseminate your works on these matters to the public. Since this is the case, We are all the more pleased to offer you a token of our goodwill because, as you have just done celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of your priesthood, our papal congratulations are the crowning glory. the wishes of all good people ~.

Editions of the International Review of Sectarian Societies T

96, Boulevard Malesherbes — Paris (17th arrondissement)

International Review of Secret Societies
» Year 1912, 12 issues
» ` » 1913 22 » » 1914 14 » > months suspended during the war), » » 1920 6 »
» A released RE number Le Franc-Catholique, Year 1915 » » 1916
A number
The Morality of an Incident ((Clam Case i Paly).
by A. Pinus. 4 fascicles in-6° each.
An anti-Masonic episode, by Ch. Nicouttaup.
Masonic Ideas at the 1913 Convention.
by Ch. NicouLiaur broch. in 8° l:
The Theosophical Path (Continuation of the Danish Initiation) Secret Societies) 4 issues published. 3rd issue.
by Ch. Necounratn. 2nd »

(currently being published) | 3° »
4° and 5a,
The Venerable Bernadette (Lourdes. The War and Bernadette). Broch. in-8°. oe
The German Freemasonry during the War. — 1st Military field lodges. Broch. in-8°. ae Luther's Quattrocentenary and the Bicentenary naire de la F.:. M.:., by Canon Journ, Parish priest of Saint-Augustin. Broch. don't dr ae
The anti-Masonic struggle. A necessary uproar.
by Jean BIDEGAIN. Broch. 1n-8°:
The Franc-Catholic League.— I. Staluts. II. Hi | Statutory Lions. II. The Anti-Masonic Federation.
Study on American Freemasonry, by A. Preuss (Translation A. BarRAULT.) .
The Judeo-Masonic Peril, by Bishop Jou.
I. The “Protocols” of the Elders of Zion (5¢ edilion).
If. Judeo-Freemasonry and the Catholic Church.
The Faithful of the Counter-Church: Jews and Freemasons.
An overview of the "Protocols" of Bishop Jouix.

'

CQ p
S

NNN mà pd ë hb Qt
©

The National Flag of the Sacred Heart. History.
Doctrine. Enemies. By Canon Jovin and Mr.
Canon GAUDEAU. One volume, octavo.

The Sacred Heart of Jesus and the Masonic Heart.

The two Standards, ar Mer Jovin and M le Canon GACDEAU. A pamphlet, octavo.

The Masonic War. I. (Extracted from the * Catholic Faith-(lique” from December 1918 to February 1919), by Bishop Jovin

480

Ms. Jouin

THE JUDEO-MASONIC PERIL

l |
| | It

Judeo-Freemasonry & the Catholic Church

d

PART ONE
The Faithful of the Counter-Church: Jews & Freemasons
II

THE MASONS

Price: 7 CHF BO |

Se
PARIS
INTERNATIONAL REVIEW ÉMILE-PAUL Brothers |
SECRET SOCIETIES 100 Faubourg Saint-Honoré
96, Boulevard Malesherbes = 1921

(All rights reserved)

I
THE "PROTOCOLS" OF THE ELDERS OF ZION

(5% Edition)
II
Judeo-Freemasonry and the Catholic Church

PART ONE
The Faithful of the Counter-Church: Jews and Freemasons

(These volumes are also on sale at the Librairie d'Action française, 14, ru?
Rome, Paris}.
This first part comprises volumes 11 and III

In press:
PART TWO

Acts of the Counter-Church

In preparation:

IT:
THERE

JUDEO-MASONRY and the SOCIAL REVOLUTION
IV
The Fudeo-Masonry and Domination
of the WORLD

Letter from His Eminence Cardinal GASPARRI to Mgr JOUIN

From the Vatican, June 20, 1919.
Your Grace, |

The Sovereign Pontiff deigned to accept with a truly paternal benevolence the man-mage of your new study on the Masonic War.

It is with good reason that in this work you took care to highlight based on irrefutable documents and reasoning, the inept and essential doctrine the anti-Catholic nature of Freemasonry, a doctrine stemming from deism, itself born-the same as the Reformation, a doctrine inevitably leading, as we see today-Today, 4 the very negation of God, to social atheism, to "secularism", an ac-
the tutelary of this impiety which, to the great detriment of the people, seeks to banish societies without any trace of religion and any intervention from the Church.

You took particular care to highlight, despite the liesges which sometimes open the Catholics themselves, Videnlité of the Freemason nonsense with itself, everywhere and always, like your continuity of the sects' plan.
whose aim is indeed the ruin of the Catholic Church.

His Holiness is therefore pleased to congratulate and encourage you in your work.
whose influence can be so fruitful, Qi, to warn the faithful and help them to to fight effectively against what tends to destroy social order as well as the religion. :

As a pledge of heavenly favor, and as a testament to His paternal benevolence-
Lance, the Holy Father wholeheartedly grants you the Apostolic Blessing.

Thank you for the copy you so kindly gave me, and with My personal congratulations, Your Grace, please accept the expression of my complete devotion to Our Lord.

P. Card. GASPARRI.

L

THE JUDEO-MASONRY

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH

PART ONE
THE FAITHFUL OF THE COUNTER-CHURCH: JEWS & FREEMASONS

oe

II
THE MASONS

According to the "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion, the Franks-Freemasons are in the hands of the Jews, who print a single direction to the Lodges spread and multiplied by their care throughout the universe. These Masonic Lodges, moreover, will be eliminated upon the advent of the Supergovernment of Israel; from there, it will suffice to make it disappear at the appointed time a few troublesome personalities. As for the role of Freemasons, it boils down to spying on the police international Judeo-Masonic; in the mobilization of socialist, anarchist and communist forces; in disguise the power and action of Judaism that they cover as if from a screen: they are spies, revolutionaries and masks (1). The second part of this study, devoted to

(1) Mer Journ, the “Protocols”, pp. 46, 52, 96, 97, 98, 99 and 102.

to Judeo—Masonry under the title of Counter—Church, will put these Truths brought to light. The Freemasons are, along with the Jews, the faithful of this Counter—Church: they are subject to the sole direction of one global anti—papism; their espionage and their Bolshevism represent the implementation of the Talmudic motto:
"Strength, cunning, hypocrisy"; the mystery with which they shroud
The Jewish community is an extension of the veil that hides their societies secret, so that, according to the degrees of this anti— hierarchy Catholics, the Freemasons make up the Third Order of Mendicants Jews, and, since they are the masks of the Jews, they represent quite a lot pitifully the penitents of the South covered in their hoods. This devaluation of Freemasonry barely puts it _in his place.

According to the Freemasons, on the contrary, there is no kinship, nor brotherhood between the lodge and the ghetto. Moreover, they say,
The "Protocols" are apocryphal and fall under the protection of the law.
the talion of Jewish communities in the United States, under the lana—theme of Israeli periodicals in England, France and in Germany, and amidst sensational revelations, but a not too late, of Jewish or Judaized figures, such as a Princess Radziwill (1). This outcry

(1) We talked about this princess in the April supplement from the International Review of Secret Societies, p. 310. On the other hand, one She shared her biography with us: Princess Catherine Radziwill, born “Jurowska”, in 1858, married to Prince Wilhelm Radziwill (the Gotha gives the date as October 36, 1873), from which she had five children; four would be still alive; the third, Gabrielle Ella, born in 1878, who
She is not married and is currently the secretary of the "League of Nations".
Princess Radziwill was separated from Wilhelm Radziwill around 1896, and She would have lost her fortune in unfortunate speculations towards 1901. She left for South Africa. She met someone on the ocean liner.
Cecil Rhodes... Since that time, the princess has written, to make a living, sometimes under his own name (his Memoirs), sometimes historical books under the name of Walewski or Wassilieff. She is said to have last married a Jew.
from Munich, named Kolb, brother of Anetta Kolb, novelist; this Kolb lives in Sweden. The princess lives in the United States where she continues to to write,

Since then, another opponent has appeared, Mr. Alexandre du Chayla, on which we were provided the following biographical note:
"It was recently published in the Russian newspaper Poslednija"

Novosti (Latest News, No. 331—332) a series of articles by Count Alexandre du Chayla, where he disputes the authenticity of certain documents, against the "Protocols", following the Judeo— attacks Masonic opposition to the work of Doctor Wichtl is the best—

Their proof of their truthfulness. Silence, contempt, the mask
In short, is usually the only response from the Jews and the Freemasons. When they deviate from this attitude, it is because they are They are deeply wounded, for the veil of the Temple is torn; for they because they had been received through an intermediary character unable to inspire confidence.

"If we base our doubt about the veracity of a document on the morale of the person from whom it is assumed to have been supplied, one must also to take an interest in the person who is criticizing it.

"That's why I'm taking the liberty of telling you, quite simply, how and under what circumstances I met the Count du Chayla.

"Usually spending the summer season at my property in White Russia, in a fairly large town not far from Mogileff, where there is a very well—known convent in this region, I received one day,
About ten years ago, the visit of the Superior of this convent, the arch—Mandrite Arsène, who introduced me to a young man, saying that it was his friend, the Count of Chayla, sent on a mission to the convent to study the Russian language and the Orthodox religion, of which he said he was very enthusiastic Siasmé.

"I learned from the count that he had studied at a college of Jesuits, and had later converted to the Orthodox religion out of sincere conviction, which led to a break with his family,

"Before his arrival in Russia, he was loved and protected by Mr. Sabler," who invited him to come to Russia and sent him to the famous monastery from Optima Poustine, from where he was sent to our convent, to serve as an example of anti-Catholic propaganda.

"It must be admitted that he rose to the occasion, and..." showed himself to be more orthodox than the patriarch himself. Thus, it was thanks It was to him that a delightful sculpture was removed from the convent chapel. of Renaissance angels, which he found too Catholic (our convent having (formerly belonging to the Carmelites). He told me with rapture With what pleasure he smashed those angels with hammer blows; then, I told him I reproached him for his vandalism, because his intransigence was evident in everything. especially in the hatred he professed at that time against the Jews. I often heard him say this: "We need to make a good "Pogrom (massacre of Jews) in Russia." Imagine my astonishment. when I read in his articles a false accusation of propaganda pogroms against the volunteer army, which he now seems to blame, him who so professed their necessity. It was through his words that I learned of the existence of DRUMONT's books, of which he made the greatest praise and recommended that I read it in order to be able to judge it to what extent the Jews had conquered France, and he predicted the same fate befalls Russia, if they ever manage to obtain the slightest rights civic. | l

"Great was my surprise when I read his current accusations against

to Judeo-Masonry under the title of Counter-Church, will put these Truths brought to light. The Freemasons are, along with the Jews, the faithful of this Counter-Church: they are subject to the sole direction of one global anti-papism; their espionage and their Bolshevism represent the implementation of the Talmudic motto: "Strength, cunning, hypocrisy"; the mystery with which Ns shroud The Jewish community is an extension of the veil that hides their societies secret, so that, according to the degrees of this anti- hierarchy Catholics, the Freemasons make up the Third Order of Mendicants Jews, and, since they are the masks of the Jews, they represent quite a lot pitifully the penitents of the South covered in their hoods. This devaluation of Freemasonry barely puts it _in its place. |

According to the Freemasons, on the contrary, there is no kinship, nor brotherhood between the lodge and the ghetto. Moreover, they say, The "Protocols" are apocryphal and fall under the protection of the law. the talion of Jewish communities in the United States, under the anatheme of Israeli periodicals in England, France and in Germany, and amidst sensational revelations, but a not too late, of Jewish or Judaized figures, such as a Princess Radziwill (1). This outcry

(1) We talked about this princess in the April supplement from the International Review of Secret Societies, p. 310. On the other hand, one She shared her biography with us: Princess Catherine Radziwill, born “Jurowska”, born in 1858, married Prince Wilhelm Radziwill (the Gotha gives the date as October 38, 1873), from which she had five children; four would still be alive; the third, Gabrielle Ella, born in 1878, who She is not married and is currently the secretary of the "League of Nations". Princess Radziwill was separated from Wilhelm Radziwill around 1896, and She lost her fortune in unfortunate speculations towards 1901. She left for South Africa. She met someone on the ocean liner. Cecil Rhodes... Since that time, the princess has written, to make a living, sometimes under his own name (his Memoirs), sometimes historical books under the name of Walewski or Wassilieff. She is said to have last married a Jew. from Munich, named Kolb, brother of Anetta Kolb, novelist; this Kolb lives in Sweden. The princess lives in the United States where she continues to to write,

Since then, another opponent has appeared, Mr. Alexandre du Chayla, on which we were provided the following biographical note:

"It was recently published in the Russian newspaper Poslednija" Novosti (Latest News, No. 331-332) a series of articles by Count Alexandre du Chayla, where he disputes the authenticity of certain documents, against the "Protocols", following the Judeo- attacks Masonic opposition to the work of Doctor Wichtl is the best- Their proof of their truthfulness. Silence, contempt, the mask In short, is usually the only response from the Jews and the Freemasons. When they deviate from this attitude, it is because they are They are deeply wounded, for the veil of the Temple is torn; for they because they had been received through an intermediary character unable to inspire confidence.

"If we base our doubt about the veracity of a document on the morality of the ia person from whom it is assumed to have been supplied, one must also to take an interest in the person who is criticizing it.

"That's why I'm taking the liberty of telling you, quite simply, how and under what circumstances I met the Count du Chayla.

"Usually spending the summer season at my property in White Russia, in a fairly large town not far from Mogileff, where there is a very well-known convent in this region, I received one day, About ten years ago, the visit of the Superior of this convent, the arch-Arsène Mandrite, who introduced me to a young man, saying that it was his friend, the Count of Chayla, sent on a mission to the convent to study the Russian language and the Orthodox religion, of which he said he was very enthusiastic Siasmé.

"I learned from the count that he had studied at a college of Jesuits, and had later converted to the Orthodox religion out of sincere conviction, which led to a break with his family.

"Before his arrival in Russia, he was loved and protected by Mr. Sabler, | who invited him to come to Russia and sent him to the famous monastery from Optima Poustine, from where he was sent to our convent, to serve as an example of anti-Catholic propaganda.

"It must be admitted that he rose to the occasion, and..." showed himself to be more orthodox than the patriarch himself. Thus, it is thanks It was to him that a delightful sculpture was removed from the convent chapel. of Renaissance angels, which he found too Catholic (our convent having (formerly belonging to the Carmelites). He told me with rapture With what pleasure he smashed those angels with hammer blows; then, I told him I reproached him for his vandalism, because his intransigence was evident in everything. especially in the hatred he professed at that time against the Jews. I often heard him say this: "We need to make a good "Pogrom (massacre of Jews) in Russia." Imagine my astonishment. when I read in his articles a false accusation of propaganda pogroms against the volunteer army, which he now seems to blame, him who so professed their necessity. It was through his words that I learned of the existence of DRUMONT's books, of which he made the greatest praise and recommended that I read it in order to be able to judge it to what extent the Jews had conquered France, and he predicted the same fate befalls Russia, if they ever manage to obtain the slightest rights civic.

"Great was my surprise when I read his current accusations against

They are well aware that a little daylight would reduce them to nothing; to the seeing, they would produce such nausea and such reactions that they would be disqualified by public HP and swept aside of any human society.

Anti-Masonic reaction

This national appropriation has already begun in Hungary, where the dissolution of the Lodges, the disclosure of several documents, the refusal of their reinstatement have

Drumont, whose literature he describes as provocative and deceitful. He had admired him so much! Closely following the development of I was always amazed by the extraordinary speed of his life in Russia. that his political and ecclesiastical career was taking. That is how he is very quickly became a close friend of the bishops known for their extreme orthodox clericalism, whose most advanced ideas he preached absolute sacred power of the Russian monarch, as well as implacable hatred of all the foreigners. We saw him settle in as an intimate figure among the bishops Antoine de Volinie and Eloge de Holm, as well as in the famous salon of Countess Ignatieff. As he gained more his field in influential circles of Russian society, his activity was changing direction and increasingly leaving the domain of the religion. He began to concern himself with purely political matters, and became a follower of Count Bobrinsky, a well-known leader of the Pan-Slavist party, by to which he was sent, in Austria, on a secret mission to the Galicians, where he was arrested on charges of espionage,

"Back in Russia, he was seen turning with unprecedented violence." against the small peoples who were part of the Russian state. It is above all the Poles and Finland, who were the target of his campaign of the most relentless press. As he was always in trouble of money, I introduced him to the (President of the Commission) of Finnish Affairs, Mr. Korevo, who used him for the the anti-Finnish propaganda he was waging in the foreign press. The beginning of the war caught him by surprise as a student at the Ecclesiastical Academy. He was stationed in Petrograd, but soon he was appointed head of a detachment. sanitary order of the Holy Synod, formed by Bishop Pitirim, with money which was said to come from the famous Rasputin. Since then, I've lost track of him. and his name reappears after the Revolution in the White Army. as a propaganda agent, in order to incite the Cossacks against the Army voluntary, under the pretext of detaching the regions inhabited by them from their his former homeland. In 1919, brought before a court-martial, he underwent a conviction for seditious articles and propaganda and paid for by the enemies of the Volunteer Army. It was published in the Crimean newspapers.

"Great was my surprise to find his name in an article by a..."

proved that there is a Jewish question and a Masonic questionnique, and that the two are inextricably linked.

This is what emerges from the open letter of the MP, Mr. Julius Gombos, addressed to the President of the Hungarian Council, Count Paul Teleki, in which we read(1):

> The Royal Government of Hungary has, as everyone knows, dissolved Hungarian Freemasonry because some of the Members of this organization participated in the preparation of the The October Revolution and the work of systematic destruction that followed a place against the interests of the people and the State of Hungary. And there was, According to investigators' statements, among these people were men who were among us the representatives or agents of Jewish tendencies with a view to universal domination, and who dreamed in the silence of secret, to lull national sentiment, in order to make a documentary triumph an anti-national trine which is foreign to us, but which is dear to them.
>
> We also know that it was the Lodges who initiated the struggle

---

Russian newspaper in Paris, known for its ambiguous position regarding A reconstruction of Russia.
TATIANA FERMOOR.
June 9, 1921, Paris.

(1) Mr. Gombos had been approached by an agent of the Freemason-Merie to work on his recovery in Hungary. This attempt was the occasion for his open letter. We remember the letter written in the same goal by Mr. Berthelot to Count Albert Apponyi. All the Freemasons-Global negativity echoed and pressured to achieve this very important result for her. The Hungarian government did not give in. When questioned about this, Minister Ferdinandy responded indignantly that he had not taken no measures in this regard and that he had absolutely no intention of leaving Freemasonry is re-establishing itself in Hungary. The liberal press claims that Freemasonry is innocent in every respect. It is necessary to establish, in contradiction with this assertion, that already the archives of the Hungarian Freemasonry has been studied extensively, and that of documents have been published. The minister pointed out forcefully that in 1886 Hungarian Freemasonry had submitted its regulations to the Minister of the Interior for review. According to these regulations, the Lodges They were not supposed to concern themselves with political or religious matters. However, It was found and established by irrefutable evidence that the Regulations submitted for review constituted only a paragraph of the actual regulations of Freemasonry, and that outside of this paragraph, there were eleven others, who had not been subjected to the approval ministerial bation. Even though there would be no need to take into account the revolutionary work, a grievance established in a way that leaves no doubt, this single circumstance of the concealment of the regulations would be sufficient to authorize the dissolution of Freemasonry and to to oppose its reinstatement. (Kira, February 4, 1921).

> against what is called clericalism, because of the power of the idea Christian and the organization of Christendom were an obstacle to the achieving their goal.
>
> In its time, the Move, and with it, I believe, a large part of The Hungarian Christian society welcomed with joy the decree of government ordering the destruction of Freemasonry, and It was with even greater joy that we entered the mysteriously arranged premises of the Grand Symbolic Lodge. We we have no intention of abandoning them, for we would see in this abandoning the annihilation of the current work of our national safeguarding.
>
> Considering the history of the organs of Hungarian Freemasonry and the diversity of worldviews, neither we, nor I believe the Government-We cannot do anything other than maintain our point of view. of prohibition. Although the decision on the fate of Freemasonry The Hungarian situation is, in my opinion, a matter of internal order. Your Your Excellency would render a great service to the country if she enlightened foreigners. on this question and on another related one, the Jewish question, so that foreigners do not get the wrong idea about the measures measures taken to defend religion, morality, the people and the nation (1), |

The Hungarian MP is right to assert the indivisibility of the a double Masonic and Jewish question, so that the first is dependent on the second and that both primarily concern themselves with the defense of religion, of the morality and society, in particular the safeguarding of Christian peoples. Should it be said that Freemasonry is the daughter of The Jewish quarter? That wouldn't be a mistake, but a lack of To be precise: Judaism is the grandmother of Freemasonry. which falls under the immediate paternity of the Renaissance, of the Philosophy and the Reformation. But Jewish influences are striking in Humanism, Philosophy and the Protestantism; and because this subject falls within the second As part of this study, we will limit ourselves here to the testimony. from a justly famous Jew, James Darmesteter:

> The Jew (of the Middle Ages), he writes, is adept at revealing the vulnerable points the Church's rables, and he has at his service, to discover them, besides the intel- The authority of holy books, the formidable sagacity of the oppressed. 1) is the doctor of the unbeliever; all the rebellious of the mind come to him, in in the shade or in the open air. He is at work in the immense studio of blasphemy against the great Emperor Frederick and the princes of Swabia and (H Kea. February 3, 1921. — See Appendix F. p. 190.

ba

> d'Aragon; it is he who forges this entire deadly arsenal of reasoning and irony that he would bequeath to the skeptics of the Renaissance, to the libertines of the great century; and such sarcasm from Voltaire is only the last and resounding echo of a word whispered six centuries earlier, in the shadow of the ghetto, and even earlier, in the time of Celsus and Origen, in cradle of the religion of Christ (1).

The Julfs in the preparation of Freemasonry

In a few decisive strokes, James Darmesteter shows us the Jew "from the cradle of the religion of Christ" mixed with all heresies, all skepticisms, all liber- Tinages, tireless blacksmith of the "deadly arsenal" who will to the point of irony, to destroy the Church and gather its enemies in a single force. From these efforts was born the Macon- this definitive mobilization of anti-Catholic forces, whose emergence forms the original substitute for paganism the Renaissance, from the mocking doubt of Philosophy and of free examination of Protestantism.

Moreover, if the four Lodges of London, in 1717, did not have that a Protestant frontispiece and if the editor of their "Cons- "Institutions" must have been Pastor Anderson, Freemasonry modern, however, is linked not only to Macon- operative nery where honorary members have slipped in who transformed it into speculative fiction, but also into sects, into secret, occultist and cabalistic societies, which predate him children and in which we find the Jewish element. This is how the Italian Academies of the 15th and 16th centuries were, on the one hand, the strongest supporters and representatives undisputed cornerstones of Humanism, that is to say, of the idea of "pure Humanity," accused by their adherence to Platonism that they were exaggerating, and that, on the other hand, they gave birth to groups and free, literary, scientific unions technical or artistic elements that were merely a disguise for Masonic lodges. A German Freemason, Brother Ludwig Keller, a close advisor to Archives 4 Berlin, took advantage of the documents that were entrusted to him to thoroughly address this subject (2). Now, the author concludes that the Academies of the 15th and

---

(1) James DARMESTETER, A Glimpse into the History of the Jewish People; Paris, 1881. i

(2) L. KELLER, The Italian Academies in the 18th Century and the Com-

16th centuries, the Companies of the 17th and 18th centuries on the model of the "Trool" of Florence, the philanthropic societies monastic monks, like the "Apollo" of London, were all humanists, and that their Freemasonic system, independent- counterpart to the Grand Lodge of England, figure "the system "Jatin par excellence," so that the Masonic idea propagated In Latin countries, it stems first and foremost from Humanism and has It therefore retained, from the beginning, its Jewish and pagan character of the Renaissance.

Similarly, Judeo-Masonry has its antecedents in England. land before 1717. In the Neue Reich of April 2, 1921, the Dr. Friedrich Trenken writes about the Anti- Congress Semitic Vienna and the anti-Jewish reaction caused in Hungary and in Bavaria by Bolshevism:

> This development in the Danube countries is just one episode, in short although tragic, the defensive struggle of Christianity against the Jewry that aims for universal domination. Let's take a look here at the past. The first Masonic Lodge was founded as early as Cromwell's time. nic which began the shaking of the solidarity of Christian peoples This relates to the Jewish question. The Jew, who obtained as a prize for his participation The right to settle in England during the anti-monarchist revolution had found, at the same time, an open door to settle into life social class of the Aryans: this gateway fled from Freemasonry, which never ceased to grow in power.

Cromwell was, in fact, the founder of a secret society revolutionary who remained the type of the Illuminati of the High-Sale, of the Carbonari and the Bolsheviks. Under this title: "The "Freemasons in England and Cromwell," we read in Sects and Secret Societies, by Count Lecouteulx from Canteleu: |

We have seen that with the destruction of the Order of the Temple, the Franc-Freemasonry, protected by the English, was all-powerful in Scotland, and that, as early as 1150, the great assembly of the Brethren took place in Kilwinning. Henry I and John Lackland protected her, and Robert Bruce gave her a new impetus in Scotland; with the help of the refugee Templars, he reformed beginnings of Freemasonry in Latin countries and countries of the North. This pamphlet appeared in the Conferences and Essays of the Society Comenius; Berlin, Weidmann, 1905. See also, by the same author, in the Monthly Memoirs of the Comenius Society (1902): The Societies cult practices of the German Mastersingers.

the Order and founded Scottish Freemasonry, basing its initiations on that of the Order of the Temple. James I and James II continued to them protect. All these unfortunate sovereigns had little idea where secret societies could lead them, and what power they would wield could become if they fell into the hands of a man Intriguing and secretive; their descendants were to make a cruel one of them. trial. The Parliament of England had, however, outlawed the Franks-Macons in 1425, and Elizabeth, anticipating the danger with her keen eye political, renewed harsh measures against them in 1561.

Cromwell, lost in the army ranks and long unknown, a high-ranking initiate of Masonic mysteries, resolved to use it for to organize his vast conspiracy. His politics and his genius drew from a part of their strength lay in the depths of its concealment, and compelled, to achieve his goal of uniting a multitude of sects: the Presbyterians, The Independents, the Levellers, he played the role of an inspired figure. "How "Do you want," he said to Fairfax, "only porters from London and..." shop boys resist disciplined troops led by The ghost of honor? Let's present them with a greater ghost, the Fanaticism. Our enemies only fight for the king; let us persuade them to Our people are fighting for God. Give me a patent, I I will raise a regiment of murderous Brothers, and I tell you that "I will make invincible men of them." He knew the heart all too well. humane so as not to feel that his morality would deify his disciples, too He never disclosed it openly. He divided the company into three classes, imagined new signs and emblems, and completed his organization by oath and secrecy. So that the core of his thought became impenetrable, he demanded a republic, in order to become king. Charles I and Hamilton executed, all of England was covered in secret committees composed of his supporters who, imperceptibly, formed corporations, which each person strove to join, some by cruelty, the others through flattery or vanity; but, as always, the The secret remained among a small number of initiates. Having come to power, Cromwell initially relied on his old friends, the Levellers, whose The first symbols had been the square and compass; for a moment, we one could believe that he dreamed of liberty, equality, and natural law, for, for his propaganda, to which he allocated considerable funds, he shared the land in four large divisions. Freemasonry had served and powerfully contributed to this revolution; she emerged from it all-powerful and restored; but soon it would be overtaken by the Levellers, the boldest, most fervent, most powerful of the republicans who, avee Harrison, were going to conspire against Cromwell (1).

Are Cromwell's Levellers sons of the Templars and

---

(1) LECOUTEULX DE CANTELEU, Sects and Secret Societies, p. 104-106; Paris, Didier, 1863. | |

Fathers of the Freemasons? (1) It's possible; in any case, they They are related to them, and the Jews, with their revolt-the lutionary that Mr. Bernard Lazare attributes to them, had their place among the London Levellers, as they must have later at the head of the Nihilists of Russia. During the regicide of Charles I", there remained in the ghettos of England only low-class Jews whom the edict had not reached of Edward I", and who were capable of all tasks. Moreover, taking advantage of this troubled time, Israel offered to Protectorate £500,000 for the Commonwealth or British Republic. Jews flocked from Holland and (Germany and Rabbi Menasseh Ben Israel received from Cromwell's permission to found a new one in London colony (2). This return of the Jews to England was a seizure of inalienable possession. In 1666, Charles II formally authorized-how Jews could settle in England, and, in 1680, one printed the first Jewish catechism in London. James II (1685-1689), export rights were relinquished to the children of Israel, which constituted for them a considerable privilege maple, and did not prevent it from supplying two million pounds sterling to William of Orange to overthrow James II and reign in England from 1689 to 1702. This betrayal... earned broad protection from William III, continued by the Queen Anne, from 1702 to 1714. They took advantage of this to drain the lor English through shady speculations of which they are the secret; also, in 1720, under George I," during the great financial crash called South-Sea-Bubble, not a single Jew was a victim of this disaster, and their fellow believer Sampson Gedeon, close friend Horace Walpole remained the king of finance of that era (3).

(1) F.'. J.-M. Racon, in his Philosophical and Interpretive Course Initiations (pp. 30-31; Paris, Berlandier, 1841) claims that the The Templars received a Jewish doctrine from initiates of the East, and that These knights spread Masonic mysteries throughout Europe with Jewish formulas and the veil.

3) Cf. Henry Fixck, The World's Great Restoration, or Calling of 'xs Jews, The Great Restoration of the World or the Vocation of the Jews.

8) In 1753, Parliament authorized the naturalization of Jews, and, by Consequently, their emancipation. This law of Jewish naturalization is recorded in these terms in the parliamentary archives of England: “An act to permit persons professing the Jewish religion to be naturalized by parliament.” Madame de Pompadour wrote about this to Duke of Mirepoix: j

“The step taken by the English Parliament, in naturalizing the

The Jews at the origin of Freemasonry

However, modern Freemasonry dates from 1717, and although no Jewish name does not appear on the Grand Lodge's list at that time. From England, it is easy to believe that the Jews did not remain foreigners to a movement in which they were expected to participate following the direction. We read in Antisemitism, of Mr. Bernard Lazare:

What were the relations between the Jews and secret societies? That's what... It is not easy to elucidate, because we lack reliable documents. Obviously, they did not dominate in these associations, like the claim the writers I have just named, they were not necessarily the soul, the leader, of the Grand Master of Freemasonry, thus as Gougenot des Mousseaux affirms (1), /l is certain however that he There were Jews at the very cradle of Freemasonry, Jews Kabbalists, as evidenced by certain preserved rites; very probably-clearly, during the years preceding the 'French Revolution,' they entered the councils of this society in even greater numbers. and founded their own secret societies. There were Jews around de Weishaupt; and Martinez de Pasqualis, a Jew of Portuguese origin, organized numerous Illuminist groups in France and recruited many a group of followers (2) whom he initiated into the dogma of reintegration. The Lodges The Martinezists were mystical, while the other orders of the Franc-Freemasonry was rather rationalist; which allows us to say that secret societies represented both sides of the Jewish spirit: practical rationalism and pantheism, this pantheism which, as a meta- reflection the physics of belief in the one god, sometimes leads to theurgy of Kabbalah. listic. It would be easy to demonstrate the agreement between these two tendencies, the al-alliance of Cazotte, of Cagliostro, of Martinez, of Saint-Martin, of the count

Jews, astonishes all of Europe: the old marshal says that religion, the The laws and customs of the Israelites render them incapable of being good citizens and good subjects; it is always a separate people that forms a state within a state, and to which privileges should only be granted with discretion. It is assumed that gold, like love, makes all that men are equal is the strongest argument the Jews have used. on this occasion. France has long known that this precious metal is all-powerful in England, and everything there is for sale, peace, the "War, justice, and virtue."

The English people forced the king to repeal this law in 1764; but the Jews had now acquired an influence that was bound to change gradually into a sovereign preponderance. (Cf. THBo-Da@DaLus, L'An-Jewish England; Paris, Fontemoing, 1913).

(1) GOUGENOT DES MoussgEaux, The Jew, Judaism and Judaization Christian Peoples, p. 31; Paris, Wattelier, 1886.

(2) M. MATTER, Saint Martin, the Unknown Philosopher, Paris, 1862.

from Saint-Germain, from Eckartshausen, with the encyclopedists and the Jacobins, and the way in which, despite their opposition, they arrived at the same The result, that is to say, the weakening of Christianity, is yet another times, would only serve to prove that the Jews could have been the good agents of secret societies, because of the doctrines of these societies agreed with their own doctrines, but not that they were the initiators. The case of Martinez de Pasqualis is quite special, and However, it should not be forgotten that before organizing his Lodges, Martinez was already initiated into the mysteries of Illuminism and Rosicrucianism (1).

While not exhaustive, these admissions are already very significant. They established an alliance between the Jews and the encyclopedists. But, On the other hand, the encyclopedists and the Freemasons are closely united, particularly in the gigantic work of the Encyclopedia. The following page, by Papus, provides one conclusive proof:

We have said that the facts to which historians primarily focus These were most often merely consequences of clandestine actions. However, we believe that the Revolution would not have been possible without efforts considerable efforts had not previously been made to guide in a a new path for the intellectual life of France. It is by acting on the cultivated minds, creators of opinion, are preparing for social evolution. And we will now find conclusive proof of this fact.

On June 25, 4740, the Duke of Antin, Grand Master of Freemasonry nerie for France, delivered an important speech in which announced the major project underway; witness the following excerpt:

“All the great masters in Germany, England, Italy and elsewhere, urge all the scholars and artisans of the brotherhood— the ternity of uniting to complete the materials of a universal dictionary and useful sciences, with theology and politics being the only exceptions. We have work has already begun in London, and, through the meeting of our colleagues, "We will be able to bring it to its perfection in a few years."

Messrs. Amiable and Colfavru, in their Study on Freemasonry In the 18th century, they fully grasped the importance of this project, since, after having spoken of Chambers' English NE (London 1728), They add:

"The work published in France was far more prodigious, consisting of..." both in 28 folio volumes, including 17 of text and 11 of plates, to which came five more volumes were then added, a work by the author The principal figure was Diderot, seconded by a whole host of elite writers. But having collaborators wasn't enough for him to carry out his

---

(1) BERNARD Lazare, lib. cit., p. 339.

The work was completed successfully: it required powerful protectors. How did they What would he have achieved without Freemasonry?

Moreover, the dates here are demonstrative. The Duke of Antin pronounced his speech in 1740. We know that, as early as 1741, Diderot was preparing his great company. The privilege essential for publication was obtained in 1745. The first volume of the Encyclopedia was published in 1751.

Thus, the revolution is already manifesting itself in two stages:

4. Intellectual revolution through the publication of the Encyclopedia due to French Freemasonry under the strong impetus of the Duke d'Antin (1740);

2. Occult revolution in the Lodges, largely due to members of the Templar rite and executed by a group of Franks Freemasons, expelled, then granted amnesty (Lacorne group). Foundation of the Grand Orient, under the strong leadership of the Duke of Luxembourg (1773) and presidency of the duchy of Chartres.

The patent revolution in society, that is to say, the application to the The Society of Constitutions of Lodges will not be long in coming (1).

Mr. Bernard Lazare also acknowledges "that there were Jews at the very cradle of Freemasonry, Jews Kabbalists, as evidenced by certain preserved rites." Let us compare this remark with a passage from a recent article in a Masonic journal in the United States:

The author (of this article) has often noted how curious, a Jewish brother, raised in Jewish orthodoxy, receives the light Masonic. It seems that symbolism or ritual offers him nothing. that little was new. Some Brothers coming from European countries, where the Jewish race is subjected to active persecution, find the Masonic light and freedom are so comforting that they believe in them to rediscover pure Judaism, just as some other Brothers believe that which is pure Christianity.

Perhaps this way of seeing things. From the science of the star, confirmed by the numerous allusions that historians make to the fact that, it is said, he It is believed that two versions of the Masonic ritual existed at the beginning of the 16th century, and that the Jewish version was eventually adopted as the purer by those who then revived Freemasonry.

'But the real reason why the Jewish Brother instructs in the Scriptures and the Ritual of his religion is familiar with the details that the The oldest Freemasonry offers him is that Jewish ceremonies reproduce-

(1) Papus, Martinès de Pasqually, p. 144; Paris, Chamuel, 1895. Let us note in passing that Philosophism, which formed the encyclopedestrians, it falls under the jurisdiction of both England and France.

currently all our signs, most of our symbols and a a large part of the very phraseology of Masonic degrees.

After citing a few examples, the author adds:

There are a number of other traits that are found in the Ritual Masonic and which are no less striking than the previous ones; But our Jewish brothers are very reserved in the information they they give us, and we have imitated their discretion in the allusions that we did (1).

Finally, let us add the assertion of Dr. Isaac-M. Wise, put as noted in our edition of the "Protocols":

Freemasonry is a Jewish institution, whose history, regulations, The homework, passwords, and explanations have been Jewish since the beginning to end, with the exception of a single second ruledaire and a few words in the commitment (2).

Dr. Wise's conclusion seems decisive. That this Jewish ritualism of terms, signs and symbols had come to Freemasonry through Humanism tainted by The Cabal, by the Templars, by the Rosicrucians, by the Cromwell's Levellers, or simply by the Freemasons operational, it is evident that this heritage is of Jewish origin and that Israel could not remain indifferent to the sects it had created practically in its image. Viewed in this way, the MaconNerie is indeed an institution marked from its very birth by a Jewish imprint, with its dual deicidal character and satanic.

But what about today?

(1) Square and Compasses (New Orleans), February 1921, p. 13. The admission that "our Jewish brothers are very reserved in providing information" "that they give us" is quite naive; if the Jews did not keep their If they were secretive with the Freemasons, they would no longer be in control.

(2) Më" Joux, The "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion, p. 100 (96, bouLeviard Malesherbes) and Emile-Paul; 100, Faubourg Saint-Honoré. Quote from Dr. Isaac-M. Wise; The Israelite, August 3 and 17, 1855. See Samuel OPPENHEIM, Jews and Masonry in New York, 1910, no. 19, pp. 1 and 2. i } ' i

The three stages of Freemasonry

Today, we're using yesterday's tactics and their results. acquired. First, the alliance of the Jews with the Freemasons; then the selection. Jewish in special Lodges to constitute the general staff of domesticated Freemasonry; finally, the leadership, not to mention the absorption of Masonic forces and Masonic. This strategy perfectly addresses the "Protocols," and its success allowed the Jews to announce the advent of their supremacy and their super-government birth.

Note that these three steps make up the processes currents of our adversaries towards us, methods which point to any attentive and discerning mind. As far as we are concerned, the Judeo-Masonry does not usually resort to violence except after to have become mistress through cunning and treachery. When the The final engagements in this life-or-death struggle will have come to an end. Many will realize, too late, alas! that the union sacred, seemingly bilateral contract, but in fact only to the benefit of our enemies, was merely the concealed influence of Catholic resources and activities to gradually arrive to direct them and, in a final effort, to squander some and to stifle others (1). During the war, our submission,

(1) L'Echo du Cher (April 3, 1921), speaking of those who answer us:
"These questions don't interest us," or even: "Leave it alone,"
"Everything will be alright," he applied to them, using the following fable of the Parrot without worry : '
"It will be nothing," some people say.
When the storm is coming:
Why grieve before the harm comes?
Why? To avoid it if there's still time.
A ship's captain,
A very brave man, but not very prudent.
He put to sea despite the wind.
The pilot kept telling him
That he risked his life and his possessions,
Our man just laughed about it.
And he kept repeating: "It will be nothing."
A parrot belonging to the crew,
By constantly hearing these words,
He remembered them and said them throughout the entire journey.
The lost ship drifted with the waves,
The food supplies were running out.
No more neighboring land and soon no more bread.

encouraged by some official flattery, left free
he was prone to infamous rumors and he made compromises interfaith meetings whose obvious goal was to put on the same footing, as if on the same platforms, the ministers of all faiths and authorities, notoriously hostile.
the confused mixture, so particularly sought after, was only the discrete application of Anderson's formula, the author of Masonic Constitutions: "Only obliging to religion in which all men agree" (1), and which calls it "universal religion" (2). On the one hand, the truths are diminished, blunted, decapitated, veritates diminutæ sunt (3), said the psalmist; on the other hand, errors aggravate-
They say religions embrace, and sometimes theosophy and Spiritism, of Masonic origin and essence, is almost tolerated by this hybrid and unexpected fraternity. Thus... consumes leveling of all beliefs in the field of faith, while awaiting the antisocial and antire- leveling religious figures of the "Protocols".

Rest assured that the revolutionary plan has not changed of a line. oi

For us, wrote La Lanterne, on January 8, 1917, in an article on "War and the Vatican," clericalism has never ceased to be the...
Nemi, no misunderstanding was possible and we have, today as Yesterday, the right to acknowledge that we have always denounced, by dedicating the Church, to the execration of all patriots, a great republican peril and

Each of the passengers is saddened and worried;
Our captain remains silent.

"It will be nothing," cried the parrot.

The calm continues; life goes on as best it can:
There is no more poultry left;

We eat the birds, a sad and last resort.

Parakeets, cardinals, cockatoos, everything goes there.
The parrot, head down,

He said more softly: "It will be nothing."

He could still escape, as his cage had a hole in it;

He said, "He was indeed strangled."

And, dying, he cried out in a hoarse voice:
"That... That will be nothing."

(1) ANDERSON, The Constitutions of the Free-Masons, art. 1, p. 50;
London, William Hunter, 1723.

(2) ANDERSON, lib, cit., art. VI, p. 64.

(3) Ps. 11:2.

also a national peril against which we must be constantly in guard.

Six weeks later, Bataille called for socialism

In defense of Judeo-Freemasonry:

> To fight clericalism is to fight for the triumph of socialism. lism; to fight the black followers of Christ is to fight for the realization of the beautiful dreams we all cherish, and tomorrow, once With the German threat averted, we will be able to, once again and more than ever, to exclaim: "Clericalism, that is the enemy."

On the eve of the armistice, October 2, 1918, the Journal du People, in turn, commented on Gambetta's famous remark and called for a resumption of armed struggle in these terms:

> Religion—and I mean all religions, because they are also each as harmful as the next — religion, that is the enemy he will We must fight. That is where the poisoned source lies. Humanity would eventually die out if we didn't manage to dry it up.

Finally, in the midst of peace, or at least in the midst of triumph, our unrepentant secularists, more than convinced Gambettists, accentuated the same note with the procession to the cenotaph which, as a reliquary, contained the heart of this Jew, who had become Bismarck's lackey and, at the same time, a traitor to France because she is Catholic.

No, nothing has changed: same men in power, same protagonists of secularism, even the same religious zealots, even the same separatists Ratists, same religious struggle, same hypocritical tactics graduated in three stages. First, to unite with the Catholics-schemes to carry out selfish calculations of political interests and financiers; secondly, to separate from Catholics by the resounding affirmation of the inviolability of secular laws Separation and Education; thirdly, to break free Catholics through the ruin of the Church and of France. Our-Did not the Lord himself denounce the Judeo-Masonic plan? screw by warning us against wolves in sheep's clothing sheepskins, which remain disguised as long as they are not masters of the flock, but who then discard their burdens borrowing to devour sheep stupidly abused?

18 JUDEO-MASONRY

Alliance of Jews and Freemasons

The Jews were the sowers of heresies and revolutions. From which Freemasonry was born. If they did not sign his act by birth, they nonetheless betray their paternity natural, by their doctrines and by their actions. Isn't that so? we were saying, thanks to Cromwell's revolution, that they returned to England to become its undisputed masters tested? But isn't this revolution a Masonic experiment? before the letter? So the Jews owe their entry into our modern societies to the French Revolution, which completes Today, the world tour that had been predicted for him.

It is now a commonplace truth to state that the Great The Revolution was the work of Freemasonry (1). We will have This provides an opportunity to revisit the topic by discussing the Counter-State. Regarding the "a Judeo-Masonic plan since the 18th century," we are told-tions the testimony of F. Bonnet, orator of the Convent of Grand Orient of France in 1904:

> In the 16th century, the glorious lineage of the encyclopedists found in our temples a fervent audience which was then alone in invoking the Radicuse's motto, still unknown to the crowd: "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity" "Unity." The revolutionary seed quickly germinated in this elite environment. Our illustrious brothers d'Alembert, Diderot, Helvétius, d'Holbach, Voltaire, Condorcet, completed the evolution of minds, prepared the new times. calves. And, when the Bastille fell, Freemasonry had the the supreme honor of giving humanity the charter that it had drafted With love. (Applause).
>
> It was our F. de La Fayette who, first, at the Constitutional Assembly killer, presented "the draft of a Declaration of Natural Rights of "man and citizen living in society," to form the first chapter of the Constitution. On August 26, 1789, the Constituent Assembly, of which more than 300 members were Freemasons.", definitively adopted, almost word for word, as it had been studied at length in the lodge, the text of the immortal Declaration of the Rights of Man. At this decisive hour for civilization-lisation, French Freemasonry has been the universal conscience and, in the various improvisations and initiatives of the Constituent Assembly, she has consistently delivered the thoughtful results of the slow elaborations of its workshops (2).

---

(1) Henri Martin was already writing in the middle of the 19th century: “The Freemason-nerie remained with us, until 1789, the general instrument of philo-"Sophie and the ANNE laboratory," History of France, 16th century, 535; Paris, 1860, 4th edition.

(2) Ms Jovin, Judeo-Masonry and the Law of Separation, p. 7.

The Masonic spell cast by the encyclopedists finds its additional information can be found on the Papus page we quoted earlier. Top: The Freemasons were merely the public criers of ideas Jewish.

Listen to the lesson from "The Protocols":

We were the first, long ago, to cry out to the people: Liberty, Equality, Fraeternity, words that were so often repeated during the revolutions and the most diverse upheavals, either by people who wanted the a true common good, either through others who only sought to satisfy to cater to the whims of the people. With these words, they deprived the world of its prosperity, and individuals of their true personal freedom so well formerly protected from the mob who wanted to stifle her...

Our call "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity" brought into our ranks, From all corners of the world, through our secret societies, entire legions who carried our banners with enthusiasm. However, these words were gnawing worms that devoured the prosperity of the goyim, destroying- They sought peace, calm, and solidarity through obedience to the laws, ruining all the foundations of their states. You will see later that it is preprecisely this contributed to the triumph of our system of conquest peaceful world. This state of affairs has provided us with the possibility to obtain the abolition of the privileges that formed the very essence of the aristocracy of the goim, of that aristocracy which was the natural bulwark peoples and homelands against our actions. On its ruins, we have established an aristocracy of upstarts who derived their titles of nobility in science and in wealth.

Our triumph was made easier by the fact that in our dealings with men who were indispensable to us, we have always supported on the most sensitive chords of human nature – calculation, the rapacity, the materialistic spirit of men. Each of these weaknesses, Taken separately, it is capable of killing any personal initiative, delivering the the will of men at the disposal of the buyer of their activity.

The abstract notion of freedom made it possible to convince the masses that their government is merely the manager of the country's owner, who is the people, and that one could change managers as easily as worn gloves. The The administration's mobility delivered it to us and clearly demonstrated its choice. in our hands (1).

This passage from the "Protocols" sheds a unique light on the Statements by Brother Bonnet. The Masonic motto, inscribed on all our public monuments: "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity"

---

(1) Mf' JOUIN, "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion, pp. 38 and 39. The quotation the text on page 39 is taken from the 1901 Russian edition, which predates that of Nilus. i

"Unity" comes from the Jews; the Freemasons were merely its collaborators. "Enthusiastic" authors. What delirious enthusiasm, indeed! produced, in 1789, the word "Liberty!" What a sudden explosion! departed from the Lodges where the aristocrats and the clergy themselves They had gone so terribly astray! What a feeding frenzy of privilege! of possessions, of age-old traditions thrown pell-mell to the slaughter Revolutionary! What an irreparable collapse of the old regime as preparation for the Judeo-Masonic conquest of the world! What a decline in morals and character! leading to individualism which barely conceals venality of our politicians, slaves and worshippers of gold almost entirely in the hands of the Jews! That's what Israel contributed to Freemasonry. It was the declaration of rights of man against the rights of God; the declaration of sovereignty the people's sovereignty against the legitimate monarchy; the declaration tacit sacred right of Bolshevism against our societies modern; the Supergovernment's disguised declaration Jew against the world government of the goyim, was he a universal republic. In return, the Jews asked the three hundred Freemasons of the Constituent Assembly, their emancipation, which was voted on September 27, 1791. From that day dates the triumphant entry- the Jewish community, not only in French society and the Christian states, but throughout the world whose conquest was finally going to become a reality for them.

Freemasonry and the Emancipation of the Jews

Father Joseph Lémann, a Jewish convert, wrote about this:

Freemasonry's obsequiousness towards Judaism was not long in coming to show off.

In what way?

The question of Jewish emancipation arose before public opinion public, Louis XVI will generously undertake and put it to The study: Well! If difficulties arise, Freemasonry takes care of deciding them.

It would be premature to present evidence here of this hidden aid; it will suffice to lift a corner of the veil:

When the examination of the question, taken from Louis XVI by the Revolutiontion, will come before the Constituent Assembly (1789–1791), the deputies Those who will be responsible for passing it on will all be Freemasons.

It was Mirabeau who would lend him the persistent support of his eloquence, and Mirabeau is a Freemason, in the high ranks, intimate with Weishaupt and his followers, present in Germany in the year following the Wilhelmsbad convent, and, on the other hand, its connections with Judaism from Berlin, although less well-known, are undeniable.

And when, after two years of hesitation, the Constitutional Assembly killing, having reached its final hour, its penultimate session, hesitating Tera again, it will be the Freemason and Jacobin Duport who will demand his vote, brief and with a threat on his lips.

This will be the first hidden service rendered to Judaism by the Freemason. line. After this one, others will come. She is, ultimately, the formidable corridor by means of which the Jewish question is sure to find a issue, the very dark corridor through which the sons of Israel will be to find their way easily into society (1).

– In another work, the same author explains the genesis laborious drafting of the Constituent Assembly's decree under the persistent effort guardian of the Jews:

While not all of them honorable, he writes, the means to which we have seen the Jews resorting to, the supplication of their requests, the insinuation toclose to the presidents, the conclusion, sometimes arrogant, that they drew from the Declaration of Rights, even, to some extent, the use of gold, were justifiable means; but recourse to the Commune and to The suburbs represent an illicit detour and a phase of Jacobinism. Pure in Louis XVI's study, troubled before the Constituent Assembly, the The Jewish question will become murky with the Commune. Habits concealed from a mistreated and degraded race, the slowness of the Assembly Nationally, the confusion and disarray that were beginning to reign byeverything, finally the fear or the applicants were of seeing their request challenged definitively postponed after two years of proceedings and adjournments, They explain this indirect recourse, without excusing it.

Our greatest sadness was meeting Cerfbeer there (2).

The Jews addressed themselves to the 60 Parisian districts (3) including They received unanimous approval, except in one instance.

(1) Abbé Joseph LÉMANN, The Entry of the Israelites into French Society French and Christian States, p. 356; Paris, Lecoffre, 1886.

(2) Abbé Joseph LÉMANN, La prépondérance juive, p. 196; Paris, Lecoffre, 1889.

(3) We read in the National Gazette or the Universal Monitor of the Tuesday, February 9, 1790 (vol. II, p. 158):

"The General Assembly of Representatives of the Commune, after having deliberated on the purpose of the Delegation of Jews from Paris and on the Decree of the District of the Carmelites, relating to the admission of Jews to the civil registry;

"Considering that all men domiciled in an Empire, and subjects of this Empire, must participate in the same titles and the same that of the second-hand dealers. Then the Commune presented the "Address" following in the National Assembly "on the admission of Jews to the civil registry: s di

Gentlemen,

The fate of most of the Jews in the kingdom is still undecided. Perhaps you were waiting for a strongly held opinion to emergeto strengthen your generous intentions and hasten the moment of your justice. We are pleased to be the first to share this opinion with you: it is not only ours, it is that of the many districts of this capital; and it is all of Paris that is speaking to you at this moment through our organ.

…At the time of the Revolution, the Jews of Paris, through their courage, Their zeal, their patriotism, have earned them a right to recognition public.

We saw them with us, decorated with the national emblem, helping us to conquer — and every day they help us to preserve — our common heritage.

"Ah! Gentlemen, if they contributed to the conquest of liberty, to—" rights; that the difference in religious opinions should not put them at risk.

none in civil existence; and that it is at the moment when a
The people give themselves to a Constitution which they must hasten to shake off.
yoke of prejudice, and to restore the disregarded rights of legality;

"Considering, moreover, that the Jews established in Paris have always conducted with integrity and zeal; and that, especially in this Revolution, they have given the most meritorious proofs of patriotism;

» Stopped:

"1° That a public testimony would be given to the Jews of Paris and authentic of the good conduct they have always shown, of the patriotism, of which they have given proof, and virtues that have been known that they practiced in secret, according to the testimony of the District of the Carmelites beds, within whose enclosure lives the greatest number;

"2° That the wish for their admission to civil status and to all rights
The active citizens' desire would be highly pronounced; but that it would not be carried to the National Assembly only when he had received the Sanction of Districts that would be invited to convene an extraordinary meeting for this object, both because it is in the Districts that truly resides all power in this regard, because it is the wish of all the Districts will be a more authentic and solemn vow for the Jews than the vow of the only Assembly of Representatives of the Commune.

» Signed: Battty, Mayor; MuLoT, President; GUILLOT DE BLANCHEVILLE, CELLAR, BERTOLIO, CHANLAIRE, CARPENTER, Secretaries.

Will they be condemned to be deprived of the enjoyment of their own work? If they
They are true citizens, why should they be denied the title? We dare we say that they would deserve it as a reward, if it were not for them not due as an act of justice.

In the name of humanity and country, in the name of social values Jews, their patriotic virtues, their fervent love of liberty, we beg you to grant them the title and rights which they would be entitled to.
It's unfair that they should be deprived any longer. We look upon them as Our brothers, we long to call them our fellow citizens. Ah! Already we We treat them as such; our self-interest makes it our need to be confused with them, our interest gives us the right to claim your Justice for them and for us. Hasten their happiness and ours.

Arrested by us, Commissioners appointed by the Commune.

City Hall, this 24th of February 1790.
Signed: GODARD, Abbot BERTOLIO, DUVEYRIER, Abbot FaAUcHET (1).

— (1) Abbot LEÉMANN, lib. cit., p. 210. — We read in the Universal Monitor from Monday, March 1, 1790 (vol. II, p. 243):

"A delegation from the Paris Commune (Abbé Mulot carrying (the speech) begs the Assembly to extend to Jews residing in Paris the Decree which declared active citizens the Jews known under the denomination mination of Portuguese, Spanish and Avignonois.

"Mr. President, the National Assembly has made it its sacred duty." to restore to all men their rights; it decreed the conditions necessary to be an active citizen: it is in this spirit, it is by bringing these conditions closer to those it will examine, in its justice, the reasons that you so touchingly present in favor of Jews. The National Assembly invites you to attend its session.

For the Jews of Bordeaux, see the Moniteur Universel of Saturday the 30th
January 1790 (vol. II, p. 119): |

"The Jewish residents of Bordeaux, Bayonne and Avignon gave gives rise to a discussion on whether the individuals of this Nation, which has possession of civil status in France, will be considered as active citizens.

"These Jewish nations have neither laws nor courts of their own."
or individuals; they are not exempt from any obligation; they have cooperated in the appointment of deputies; they serve the National Militias, and from occupy, without distinction or exception, day or hour; and they were naturalized by letters patent of 1550, which were renewed in each reign, notably in 1776.

"The Bishop of Autun, who reported on this matter, on behalf of The Committee proposed to decree that Jews who had been naturalized French citizens, or those who have the status of Citizens of France, will be there. . maintained; that consequently, those among them who will gather the

Father Lémann adds: | |

This petition, which is quite imperative, is extremely curious. Let's say... first note the signatories: two abbots, Bertolio and Fauchet; with the president of the Commune, Abbé Mulot, who led the delegation necessary conditions to be eligible or voters will be admitted in this quality in all future assemblies.

Mr. Rewbel said that the admission of the draft decree proposed by the The committee would be the indirect repeal of the decree that postpones the issue. on the state of the Jews in France, without prejudice. He added that if one decreed in favor of the Jews of Bordeaux that they would enjoy the rights of active citizens, soon we will have to issue the same decree for those from Alsace, because both have the same privileges, and that the question of Alsace would be judged by that of the Jews of Bordeaux, the both having letters patent that allow them to live according to their uses.

"Abbot Maury proposed a decree aimed at ensuring that the Jews residents of Bordeaux provisionally enjoy the local rights which are theirs granted by letters patent and of which they are in possession.

"The Viscount de Noailles adopted this motion, removing the the word "provisionally".

"Mr. Le Chapelier said that we cannot make the state dependent on the Jews of Bordeaux, those of Alsace; the question is whether one will extend to the Portuguese Jews, from Bordeaux and other cities, the rights of citizens. J] established that there was no connection between the state of the Jews of Bordeaux and those of Alsace; that it is a matter of preserving for the former their condition, instead of giving it to others who do not have it. He concluded by requesting priority for the draft decree proposed by the Committee.

Mr. de Beauharnais proposed another project in these terms: "That "The Jews of Bordeaux will continue to enjoy the rights they have" "enjoined until now by virtue of letters patent."

"The question of priority arose between the project proposed by the Committee and the one proposed by Mr. de Beauharnais.

"The Committee's project did not receive priority."

"Mr. de Séze proposed to decree that the Jews of Bordeaux continue—" will be unable to exercise the rights of active citizens, but the priority has been granted to the editorship of Mr. de Beauharnais.

"So several amendments were proposed. Mr. de Beaumetz has" proposed extending the Decree to the Portuguese Jews of Bayonne.

"Mr. Grégoire requested that the Decree apply to all Jews" Portuguese, Spanish, and Avignon Jews. As for the German Jews, i] a requested a postponement to a fixed date, intending, he said, to refute the fallacies of Abbé Maury and others.

"Mr. de Séze said that by demanding justice from the Assembly for the Jews, he was fulfilling a very pressing wish of the city of Bordeaux; his country.

"He highlighted the services rendered to the nation in various ways."

In fact, three priests, out of five deputies, came to demand... the emancipation of the Jews.

We should also note this phrase, this admission, perhaps embarrassing, As we have said, regarding the Jews: "They contributed to the conquest of Ja "Freedom." What does that mean, if not that they were able to have a hand in all the serious events of 1789 and 1700?

Finally, we note this statement of humility from the signatories:

important occasions. I] quoted Mr. Gradir, a Jewish merchant in Bordeaux, who missed being the Representative of by only three votes Bordeaux in this Assembly.

"Mr. President S.—Fargeau proposed a wording which he said to contain the various proposed amendments; it stipulated that the Jews Spaniards, Portuguese and Avignon residents who, by virtue of letters patent, enjoy special privileges, will exercise all rights in the future of active citizens, if they meet the other conditions prescribed by the Constitution.

"The preliminary question was asked about the amendments."
Mr. de Lameth observed that they could not be understood in a single deliberation, because they are not alike.

"The Assembly decreed that all amendments will be adopted" a Se to the votes. l

"The first amendment was to add the words 'Spanish Jews,'" Portuguese and Avignonois. The preliminary question was proposed and rejected;
then the amendment was decreed.

"It has been proposed to add to the second amendment the right to be admitted to municipal offices, as in the past, for those who will have enjoyed.

"It was observed that it was necessary to first determine whether they would be citizens." assets.

"This amendment was put to a vote, but the first test by Having found the sitting and standing tests to be inconclusive, a second test was conducted;
She did no better: so a roll call was requested.

"It formed in the part of the room to the right of the President."
a group of several MPs who have consistently opposed to this call. Each time the Secretary began the roll call,
A murmur arose to interrupt him.

"Most of the Assembly viewed with sorrow a time precious to lose himself for the fatherland and desired to compensate by the conti-
The session wasted due to the obstinacy of a few.

"A whole hour had passed in this state, when the Duke de Liancourt said it was the duty and honor of the Assembly to no longer delay the roll call; he demanded the rule according to which a deliberation begun must not be interrupted.

“Several of the members who were standing in the room opposed it.” saints and requested a postponement, on the grounds that several
The prelates and priests had gone to dinner.

Finally, after much patience and EEA on the part

"Our self-interest makes us need to be confused with them." Alas!
It was unfortunately a prophecy. How many degenerate Christians...
They will subsequently have no qualms about being mistaken for Jews!
The signatories even called it a need (1).

The Commune did not prevail before the Assembly.
Constituent Assembly. From February 26, 1790 to May 7, 1791, three new
The attempts failed. However, on September 27, 1791, in
In its penultimate session, the Constituent Assembly finally issued the Emancipation decree worded as follows:

The National Assembly, considering that the necessary conditions for The conditions for becoming a French citizen and for becoming an active citizen are set by the Constitution, and that any man who, meeting the said conditions, lends the civic oath and undertakes to fulfill all the duties that the Constitution-tuition imposes, entitles one to all the benefits it provides;

Revokes all adjournments, reservations and exceptions inserted in the previous decrees, relating to Jewish individuals who will lend the civic oath.

We command and order all administrative bodies and courts that They shall have these documents recorded in their registers, read, and published.
and display in their respective departments and jurisdictions, and execute as law of the kingdom. In witness whereof we have signed these presents, to which we have affixed the seal of the State.

I | Signed: Louis.
And sealed with the seal of the State.
And, further down, MLF pu Port (2).

The roll call, by a majority of the Assembly, has begun; Interruptions ceased and, by the result of the votes, the amendment was adopted.

"The result of the roll call was 374 votes to admit amendments."
dement which grants to the Portuguese, Spanish and Avignon Jews the rights of active citizens, and 224 against the amendment.

"The main motion was then put to a vote with the various Amendments accepted, and the Assembly issued the following decree:

"The National Assembly decrees that all known Jews in France,
"under the name of Portuguese, Spanish and Avignon Jews, will continue "-to enjoy the rights they have enjoyed until now, and which are
"consecrated in their favor by letters patent; and, consequently,
"They will enjoy the rights of active citizens when they gather elsewhere"
"the conditions required by the Decrees of the Assembly."

(1) Abbé LÉMANN, lib. cit., p. 212.

(2) Abbé Lémann, lib. cit., p. 246. — The second vipiatuts is that of Marguerite-Louis-François Duport-Dutertre, who was executed with

This decree was removed by Adrien Duport. The Moniteur uniVersel of Thursday, September 29, 1791, only "contents these few" lines: |

Mr. Dupont. — I believe that freedom of worship no longer allows that no distinction be made between the political rights of citizens because of their beliefs. The question of the political existence of the Jews was adjourned, however the Turks, the Muslims, the men of All sects are allowed to enjoy political rights in France. I requests that the adjournment be revoked, and, consequently, that it be decreed that Jews would enjoy the rights of active citizens in France. (On applauded).

Mr. Rewbell asks to oppose Mr. Duport's proposal.

Mr. REGNAULT. — I demand that all those be called to order who will speak against this proposal, because it is the Constitution itself-even that they will fight.

The Assembly adopts Mr. Duport's proposal (1).

But we read in the session of the following day, Wednesday the 28th september :

Mr. Duport was involved in drafting the decree issued yesterday regarding the political existence of Jews in France.

Mr. Broglie. — It is necessary that the Assembly take preprecautions to ensure that this decree does not have a negative effect in Alsace; because, Based on the intrigues whose influence is already being felt, he could... to have very bad results. It is therefore necessary that it cannot be misinterpreted. and let it be said that the taking of the civic oath, on the part of the Jews, will be regarded as a formal renunciation of civil laws. and policies in which Jewish individuals particularly believe submitted.

Mr. Broglie's amendment is adopted.

Mr. REWBELL. — The manner in which the decree was issued yesterday, without disConcussion, without prior drafting, without examination, the disadvantages which The consequences could be determined, I hope, by the Assembly to me to allow today some reflections on this writing. (On murmur).

Mr. CHABROUD. — I request that there be no further discussion since The decree has been issued.

Mr. REWBELL. — We are proposing a new essay today.

Barnave, in 1793. It was his namesake, Adrien Rae, who had the law passed. Decree of emancipation of the Jews.

(1) Le Moniteur Universel, September 29, 1791, wanes of the Assembly national of Tuesday, September 27 (vol. V, p. 1.132).

You will probably not want to dismiss considerations that relate to the very execution of your decree; for if you are not informed of the localities, you will do nothing reasonable. If you refuse to listen In any discussion, rest assured that, in my country, the enemies of public property will lead residents to believe that the usurers have found Paris has powerful protections. You revoked the decree issued in favor of free people of color, born of French blood. (There is a murmur). Well, if the Assembly does not want to be informed, I hold it responsiblesand of all the troubles that yesterday's decree may cause in Alsace, at a time when refractory priests are intensifying their intrigues of fanaticism, and where the kingdom will find itself momentarily without authority...

THE PRESIDENT. — What do you want to talk about?
Mr. REWBELL. — I request to know the true state of the question.

Mr. PRUGNON. — I request that instead of putting: “Will be looked at "as a waiver of their civil rights," etc., we put: "Will be "viewed as a renunciation of their privileges," because the laws The civil rights of Jews are identified with (their religious laws, and it is not with the intention that they renounce their religion.

Mr. Rebbell. — You want your decree executed; but the real A way to have it done without jolts or disturbances has been suggested to me. by the Jews themselves, and by those who are interested in their fate. For forty years, continuous convulsions have resulted from the oppression usurious system in which the poor class of the people groans. The Jews They themselves feel that they cannot live alongside these unfortunate people. before all these trials are over. The notebooks of the three estates have instructed the deputies of Alsace to request that the Estates General take precautions to liquidate these debts: therefore ensure that so that we can finally tell our fellow citizens that you wanted to come. to their aid, and that the National Assembly is no less well-intentioned not intended for them but for the Jews.

I therefore propose that we decree that within one month the Jews of Alsace will give to the district directorates of the domicile of their debtors of detailed statements of their claims, both principal and in interest, and that the district directorates will take all the information necessary information on the means of releasing debtors, so that based on the reasoned opinion of the departmental directorates, the legislative body can decide on the means of liquidating these debts.

This will be the only way to calm this large and unfortunate class-Reuse, who lives under the usurious oppression of the Jews. She will see that we have preoccupied with his fate. The Jews in Alsace are currently creditors. of approximately 142 to 45 million, both in principal and interest, of this class of the people. If we consider that the meeting of debtors does not possess not 3 million, and that Jews are not the kind of people to lend 45 million out of 3 million valiant people, we will be convinced that there is at least on These debts amount to 12 million in usury. The Jews themselves say, "If we..." If they were given # million for all of these debts, they would be very pleased. By the means I propose, we will know the truth. table of the value of the receivables, and we will give what it is possible to Give. Without that, you alienate minds against your constitution. "Look at this Assembly," people will say, "it has done everything for usurers." And she didn't think to help us out of our misfortunes.

The states in question will be very easy to create; for the Jews had already been obliged to provide them to the former sovereign court from Colmar, and two-thirds of this work is done.

I am obliged to use the term "class" in my writing. of the people, who are currently very quiet, but who are found in the old regulations relating to this type of claim.

Here is the draft decree that $e is proposing: j |

"The National Assembly decrees that, within one month, the Jews of the the former province of Alsace will give to the directorates of the districts of The debtors' domicile, the detailed statement of their debt, both in principal that in terms of interest, on non-Jewish individuals denounced in the old regulations of the former class of the people of the same province;

"2° That the district directorates will immediately take all the necessary steps" information necessary to observe the known means of debits to settle these debts, that they will 'pass on this information-comments with their opinion on the method of liquidation to the boards of directors departments of the 'upper and lower Rhine'; 2)

"3° That the directorates of the departments of the upper and lower Rhine don-will promptly give their opinion on the method of liquidation, will communicate this notice will be sent to the Jews, along with their observations. to the legislative body, so that whatever the case may be decided."

This draft decree is adopted.

The wording by Mr. Duport, amended by Messrs. Broglie and Prugnon, is decreed in these terms: i

"The National Assembly, considering that the necessary conditions The conditions for being French citizens are set by the Constitution, and that all man who, meeting the aforementioned conditions, takes the civic oath and undertakes to fulfill all the duties that the Constitution Dee: a right to all the advantages it provides;

» Revokes all adjournments, reservations, to inserted in the previous decrees, relating to Jewish individuals who will lend the civic oath, which will be regarded as a renunciation of all privilege and exemption previously introduced in their favor."

Mr. DuBols-Crancé. __ I request that, according to the same principles, it be decreed that the Negroes shall be free from the moment they enter in France. | i

Mr. LANJUINAIS. — This law, which formerly existed, was always violated. through privileges obtained from the admiralty: it is important to the restore. IN EE

Mr. DANDRÉ. — I request that it be decreed in general "that all A man who reaches French territory will remain there irrevocably. free.

Mr. Dandré's proposal is adopted.

Mr. EMMERY. — I request that, notwithstanding the statement of the principle established by the previous deliberation, it is formally decreed that every man, of whatever color, of whatever origin, of whatever country that he may be, shall be free and enjoy the rights of an active citizen in France, if he moreover, it meets the conditions required by the Constitution.

Mr. Emmery's proposal is adopted (1). | to

Thus the Jews led the Blacks in their wake; and the France, overturning its borders, became the promised land of freedom, at least Jewish freedom. By a cruel irony, the The director of this romance, Adrien Duport, was the author of the revolutionary plan of the "Terror", of which all the crimes were planned by the Propaganda Committee of the Lodge Les Amis Réunis (2). o |

Adrien Duport, writes Bertrand de Moleville, who was perhaps the one members of the Assembly who had most studied history and tactic of all revolutions, ancient and modern, was admitted in the most secret meetings of this philosophical faction, and had taken charge of drafting the plans. I] read in this circumstance-
He wrote a memoir in which he depicted the character and discussed the interests of all the sovereigns of Europe, so as to conclude that none of them would take the slightest part in the revolution that was about to begin to take place in France, and for which it was as necessary as it was urgent to to adjust the course and determine the goal through a wisely combined plan. He then proposed the one which, he said, had long been the object of his meditations. Its main foundations were the same as those which were adopted in the Constitution of 17M. After lengthy discussions-
We were discussing this memorandum, Mr. de Lafayette, who was also present at this

(1) Eod. loc., p. 1.138.
(2) N. Descnamps, Secret Societies and Society, II, p. 142. Cf. G. "Good," Freemasonry in France from its origins to 1875, I, 358.

The committee, if we are to believe Mirabeau, took the floor and said to Adrien Dupert: "That's undoubtedly a very great gjan; but what are your Means of execution? Do you know of any that are capable of defeating What are all the resistances that should be expected? You don't specify any. "None." — "It's true that I haven't spoken yet," replied Adrien Duport, with a deep sigh; I've thought about it a lot... I know some for sure... But they are of such a nature that I shudder. I myself have to think about it, and I cannot bring myself to tell you. to make it known that, as long as you all approve of my plan, that you will be well convinced that it is essential to adopt it, and that it There is no other way to ensure success. of the revolution, but the salvation of the State."

After the Assembly, whose snosi he had thus aroused, had Having given all the assurances and praise he desired, he pretended He still hesitated to explain himself. "I would never dare," he continued, on Je ton the most hypocritical, will offer you ways that will hurt your humanity. Alas! They tear mine apart. However, if you demand "Absolutely..." — "Yes, we demand it," his listeners.” — “Well, gentlemen, I will obey you… To appreciate The means that I am going to develop, we must not lose sight of a single one The terrible position we find ourselves in is just a moment away... Unforeseen events have plunged us, against our will, into a revolution that will produce the greatest misfortunes, the greatest crimes, which will drag us all down, if we do not hurry to to seize it, to moderate and circumscribe it; it is too far advanced so that we can demote it. That would be a loss, perhaps for Never before has the opportunity arisen to make the most advantageous changes. However, It is only through the use of terror that one succeeds in bringing people to heel. head of a revolution, in order to govern it. There were none. only one, in any country whatsoever, that I cannot cite the support of this truth. It is therefore necessary, however repugnant we may be to it, to support it. let us all resign ourselves to the sacrifice of a few people. "Quantities," he suggested that Mr. Foulon should naturally be the first victim, because for some time now, he said, we People were talking about him a lot in relation to the Ministry of Finance, and that everyone

The world was convinced that its first operation would be bankruptcy.
He then pointed to the intendant of Paris. "There is only one cry," he said, "against the intendants; they could place great obstacles to the revolution resolution in the provinces. Mr. Berthier is generally hated: one does not cannot prevent him from being massacred; his fate will intimidate his, colleagues, they will be as flexible as gloves. | Pe. og

The Duke of Larochefoucault, a philanthropist by inclination more than out of vanity, a man without talent, but not without some education, always wanting to do good on principle, without being able to do it, and always lending themselves to evil out of convenience, through the absolute lack of all this kind of energy, the Duke of Larochefoucaut, I say, was very struck by the reflections of Adrien Duport, and ends, like all the other members of the

The Committee, by adopting the plan and means of execution that it proposed.
Instructions in accordance with this plan were given to the principals agents of the insurrection department, which was already organized, and to which Adrien Duport was anything but a stranger; the execution followed up close. The massacre of Messrs. de Launay, de Flesselles, Foulon and Berthier, and their heads paraded on the end of a pike, were the
The first effects of this philanthropic conspiracy. Its successes
The various revolutionary parties soon rallied together, and remained so for a long time.
brothers who were beginning to distrust each other, but who, seeing all the obstacles, smoothed by this horrible measure, came together to I cannot cite any other evidence to support this account.
proof, from any authority other than the confession made to the king and to M. de Montmorin by Mirabeau, who recounted this same anecdote to other people, and in particular to the president of Frondeville (4).

This page from 1791 is also from 1921.

The revolutionary plan of that time was nothing more than the Bolshevik plan.
of today.

Remember, say the "Protocols" of the French Revolution, which we call "the Great"; the secrets of its preparation, being the work of our hands, are well known to us (2).

The Jews might add: These are the secrets of the preparation—the basis of a world revolution that erupts in Russia and which ferments in all peoples.

The main tactic of 1793 was the "Terror". It was also Bolshevism's favorite weapon.

We are the source of universal terror (3).

This terror, advocated by Adrien Duport, was imposed by the assassination. Then we could count the victims: of our
The number of days is incalculable. That, moreover, is the word of the order of the Judeo—Masonic plan: |

To bring the society of the Gentiles under our control, in which we

---

(1) A.—F. BERTRAND DE MOLEVILLE, af islets de la Révolution de France, IV, 182; Paris, Giguet, 1801.

(2) M!" Journ, “Protocols” of the Elders of Zion, p p. 60.

. (3) Eod. lib., p. 68.

have so deeply rooted discord and the dogmas of religion Protestants, ruthless measures will have to be introduced.
Such measures will show nations that our power cannot be defied. We must disregard the numerous victims.
which will have to be sacrificed in order to obtain future prosperity (1).)

Finally, what can be said about the society of the 17th and 20th centuries?

On both sides we find sccuviers, leaders,
Maximalists, who are the coaches, and hesitants,
The shy ones, the minimalists, who are the trained ones. That's Bertrand de Moleville wrote about them:

At the time of the union of the orders, these philosophical revolutionaries phiques, who initially only wanted reforms, were first They were as embarrassed as they were astonished by the speed of their successes; they saw themselves engaged in the great revolution which they had not conceived Empty and before which their little projects were now nothing more than insinuations.

Nonsense. This undertaking frightened them. All the powers, All authority was at their discretion; they knew neither what they they were to take some, nor what they were to leave for the king, nor what government to establish; they feared the resistance of the princes, the opposition the situation of the first two orders and the aid that the powers foreign countries could supply the king (2).

In these moments of hesitation, there is always a trainneur, an Adrien Duport, whose plan will lead the king to the guillotine; a Lenin and a Trotsky who will have assassinated the tsar.

But the "first two orders" that the Lodge feared
The Friends Reunited, what did they do? Nothing. The Judeo-Masonic plan-Nike had already infected them with the deadly virus of liberalism “that the Jews preach to the Gentiles” (3), They believed in good words, minor concessions, and combinations political, to the overwhelming awakening of dormant majorities, to the
The all-powerful sheer number of a decapitated royal bloc. Poor things.
Fools! After having been masters, they were reduced to Serfdom. The Jews of the "Protocols," who boast of having made the "Great Revolution" and prepare for the "Great Night",

---

(1) Eod. lib., p. 97.
(2) BERTRAND DE MOLEVILLE, lib. cit., IV, 181.
(3) Ms" Jouin, «Protocols» of the Elders of Zion, p. 102.

do not hesitate to apply to these liberals of all centuries
the comparison to Christ that we mentioned earlier:

> The Gentiles are like a flock of sheep — we are the > wolves. And do you know what sheep do when wolves penetrate-> Thirty in the sheepfold? They close their eyes. We will bring them to > do the same, for we promise to give them back all their > freedoms, after having enslaved all the enemies of the world and obtained the > Submission of all parties. I hardly need to tell you how much
> They will have to wait for the return of their freedoms (4).

Jews, Freemasons, and Napoleon I

The Catholics had lost their freedoms; they were the heritage of the Jews. This is not, however, that the decree the emancipation of September 27, 1791 would have effected the merger of Israel with the society that accepted it on this equal footing.
Following Mr. Bernard Lazare, Father Joseph Lémann notes that the Jew always remained a Jew and that his private conscience or national is eternally molded, after as before its nationalization, in the crucible of its Talmudic precepts.

> "By their own authority," he writes, "the rabbis added and added more." > to the Law of Moses, and these heaps of additions have become a jumble > inextricable: their union constitutes the Talmud, filled with decisions where > the Spirit of God is absent, amidst a jumble of cumbersome things, and > ridiculous and endless subtleties. Didn't the rabbis decorate > these additions of the name "hedge" to the Law, as if they had received > mission to protect it. Alas! Never has a name been more fitting.
> found, but with a grim meaning. The poor Jews were > literally enclosed, imprisoned by this hedge, they who had > enjoyed the grand avenues of the Bible. Ah! indeed, the Talmud is not > a wall of flowering hawthorn, but rather a bristling hedge, > impenetrable, favorable to snakes, theft, plunder, and behind > which dangerous decisions could have been made out of hatred for > Christianity. If not, why would the Popes and Kings be so important?
> Would Christians have so often ordered the destruction of copies > of the Talmud? FE |
>
> Now, — to return to the persistent circumspection of Christians > and Jews despite the liberating and fraternal decree of 47%, — she
> This is explained by the maintenance of the detestable hedge, the undergrowth being > still as inextricable and as dangerous. The people who live

---

(1) Eod. lib., p. 82. xr == > in the undergrowth, behind the hedges, they are exposed, almost despite > them, to dishonorable professions, like the gypsies: thus in > Were there Jews who clung to their Talmud, even after emancipation from > 179; is it surprising that, for their part, the Christians have hardly > concerned about doing business with people who had not repudiated anything > of their distrust and their habits? That's the real cause of the > mutual circumspection (1). |

In this work, Abbot Lémann studies the work of organi-the mission that Napoleon I attempted for the Jews, a work that did not

It doesn't fit within our scope. But we want to record it. The admission that concludes this study:

Here's the culprit: they went to ask the companies for help secrets.

It is beyond dispute today that Masonic societies have had their hands in Napoleon's lapels, after having helped him in his triumphs. "During the first part of his reign, until 1809, Napoleon encountered energetic support in all the countries he invaded. his genius "The military was aided by the betrayal of the leaders he was fighting" (2). Then the Lodges withdrew from him, when they understood that the imperial despotism was entirely concentrated in a per- ambition sonnelle ct of family interests, and that Freemasonry had not been For him, it was nothing more than an instrument. From that moment on, the fight against Caesar - infidel{3) was decided; the Tugendbund was its expression (4), word German which means bond of virtue.

However, the Jews had been complicit in the secret societies in Napoleon's triumphs: "At Frankfurt and throughout Germany, As a renowned historian recounts, the Jews acclaimed him as the Messiah. so aware were they of the collapse of the Christian social order which was accomplished by his arms" (5),

Were they not accomplices of the same secret societies when Did they turn against their idol? Indeed:

(1) Abbé J. LÉMANN, Napoleon I and the Israelites, p. 7; Paris, Lecoffre, 1894.

(2) Descnamps, Secret Societies, vol. II, book II, ch. VII, no. 6: "The "Revolution on horseback and its accomplices in Europe."

(3) "The Masonic Order considered Emperor Napoleon I" as an instrument designed to overthrow all European nationalities; After this gigantic excavation, he hoped to more easily carry out his plan of a universal republic." Ibid.

(4) Ibid. no. 7: "Napoleon abandoned by the Secret Societies, 1809-1815 From |

(5) Janssen, Zeitund Lebensbilder, 3rd ed. Herder, Fribourg, p. 23.

There is a coincidence of dates, which is a charge.

Napoleon's decree against the Jews, which so exasperated them, described by them as "infamous", it dates from 1808;

And the decree of the secret societies declaring Napoleon abandoned is from 1809(1)., :

This coincidence of dates can be explained by the coincidence of grudges:

"He deceived us!" they shouted feverishly in the Lodges;

"He deceived everyone, how could he have kept his word to the "Jews?", the Jewish historian would write, on behalf of his coreligionists. Graetz 2). i '

Being shrewd and prudent people, the Jews entrusted the Lodges with their grudges and reprisals to be carried out. It wasn't the first time. that the Lodges and the Jews met hand in hand. When the Constituent Assembly, in 1790-1790, lingered and almost refused to promulgate the decree of emancipation in favor of the Israelites, these they addressed the Lodges who sent representatives from the suburbs of Paris to support to the Assembly their friends the Jews(3); now that it is not a question of to report (one wouldn't dare!) but to punish an exceptional decree, the The lodges are still showing good cooperation.

This explains the historical sequence of events:

In 14808, Napoleon's decree and the anger of the Jews;

In 1809, the decree of the Lodges and the about-face against Napoleon (4),

(1) Descnamps, Les Sociéfés secrètes, t. II, liv. 1], ch. VII, n° 7: a Napo- "Leon abandoned by the secret societies, 1809." - Cantu, Hist. univ. t. XVIII, p. 287.

(2) Gragrz, History of the Jews, vol. XI, p. 302.

(3) Jewish Preponderance, Part One; its origins, Chapter VI and VII.

(4) Abbot LÉMANN, lib. cit., p. 302. - Cf. Memoirs of Chancellor Pasquier, t. I, p. 271-289; Paris, Plon, 1894. - Albert LEMOINE, Napoleon I* and the Jews; Paris, Fayard, 1900. - A. de Borsanpnk, Napoleon antisemite; Paris, anti-Semitic bookstore, 1900.

Chancellor Pasquier was appointed, along with Messrs. Molé and Portalis, as commissioners salaire in the Jewish affair, under the First Empire.

Mr. Molé, the president, was hostile to the Jews. "The Emperor," wrote the chanCelier Pasquier commissioned a work from him entitled: Research on the political and religious state of the Jews from Moses to the present day. This work was completed without delay and was inserted in its entirety into Monitor, where it occupied eighteen columns; it was an indictment against the Jewish nation, in which it was established that usury was not born of the misfortunes of the Jewish people, as had too often been affected to believe it, that it was not only tolerated, but even commanded by the law of Moses and by the principal doctors who had interpreted it; that this prescription of the Hebrew legislator had the purpose of to complete the separation between his people and other nations; that from at that time, the vice of wear and tear had to be regarded as inherent to the character of

Who could say today how much the war of 1914
And the peace of 1919 covered up Jewish betrayals?

Judeo-Masonic Lodges in the United States

Moreover, the fusion, which does not exist between Jews and States Christians, was secretly sealed in the Lodges between Jews and Masons. | E TO

A recent article in the Masonic Observer (1) recalls the discovered in his youth in 1839 by NH Gould, who became later the Venerable Master of the Saint John Lodge, in Newport, of a document that would prove that Freemasonry was imported to United States by Dutch Jews, in the second half of the every true Jew, and so deeply rooted that no power in the world would never succeed in eradicating it."

We have decided against including Mr. Molé's report as an appendix, which adds nothing to our work on Jews in our previous study.

Messrs. Portalis and Pasquier, on the contrary, were in favour of the Jews. They were not indifferent to this, and we read, not without astonishment, the following lines in the Chancellor's Memoirs: "One day the expan- their gratitude went to a point that would be difficult for me to forget. It was following one of the conferences where Mr. Molé had been even more bitter than usual, and where I had tried to destroy the the negative effect of some of his words. Several of them They came to see me the next day, and not knowing how to express their Out of gratitude, they finally assured me that before six months had passed, there would be no would not even have their brothers in China who did not know what all the The Jews owed me gratitude for the good I wished them. to do, and for the excellence of my processes towards them.

"This sentence has always struck me as quite remarkable in that it mato what extent these men, spread across the face of the world, at such great distances, living under such different skies, and in the middle Despite their different customs, they maintain relationships with each other and identify with one another. to each other's interests and are animated by the same spirit. truth, when we compare the results of all the ancient legislations and modern ones with those of the legislation of Moses, one is struck with astonishmentfaction, seeing how strong the political and religious ties, including He knew how to embrace his people, and it was great, since a dispersion of twenty centuries have not been able to break them.

The chancellor's reflection is all too well-founded, global solidarity The plight of the Jews is all too real. Mr. Pasquier had no idea of the serpent. symbolic.

(1) Masonic Observer (from Minneapolis, Minnesota), March 26, 1921, p. 1

17th century, around 1658 (1). The author of the article concludes in saying:

The evidence for the authenticity of this document appears to have been deemed sufficient by the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts in its survey of 1870, as well as by J.I. Gould of Connecticut, who, in his manual entitled Guide to the Chapter, published in 4868, grants to Rhode Island seventy years of Masonic priority over the MassaChusetts. No facts have been presented to date that are of a nature to cast doubt on NH Gould's discovery, or which allow to attack the authenticity of this document.

The wording of the document and the names it contains have... to be noted in the History of Freemasonry, published by a Boston society (2). This agreement of the various American Freemasons proves at least the existence of a Judeo-Masonic fusionnique from the very beginning of the Order in the United States.

(1) We read in R. Freke Goui.p (The History of Freemasonry, IV, 416; New York, JC Yorston, 1889):

“Thomas Oxnard, Provincial Grand Master of Boston, granted, on the 24th
In December 1749, a charter was issued for the founding of a lodge in Newport; it conferred mastery upon Caleb Philips. This is how the was introduced Freemasonry in this state, as much as we have tangible evidence. There is has a tradition that traces its existence back to an earlier date in Newport, and they still show the house in which, according to this Traditionally, the Freemasons met for a very long time.
born. Although it is likely that the said tradition is not without foundation-
"It contains no other details."

(2) History of Freemasonry and Concordant Orders, p. 250 (Boston 1907): |

"Rhode Island. — Among the many traditions that are remembered" concerns the introduction of Freemasonry into the United States In New England, there is one mentioned by the Rev. Edward.
Pecterson, in his History of Rhode Island and Newport, namely that during the spring of 1658, Mordecai Campannell, Moses Peckeckoe, Levi and others, fifteen families in all, arrived in Newport, coming from Holland. They brought with them the first three degrees of Freemasonry.
laughter and they worked on them in Campannell's house, and continued to to do so, as did their successors until the year 1742. Documents corroborating the above, they would have been found in the possession of F.'.
Nathaniel H. Gould, formerly of Providence and currently of Texas.
states that the terms used in the document are as follows:

"The (day and month erased) 1656 (the last digit could be an 8)," we gathered in the house of Mordecai Campanell, and after the
"In the synagogue, we gave Ab" Moses the degrees of Freemasonry."
(The English spelling is archaic).

Moreover, more precise information from the highest levels
Our interests are provided by the work of Samuel Oppenheim:
Jews and Freemasonry in the United States before 1810. This
This booklet aims to prove: 1° that Freemasonry improved-
The American institution is a completely Jewish institution; 2° that Jewish immigration to the United States was, especially in the
In the early days, a Masonic immigration. Here is the introduction, with the author's notes: - ; ,

In an article in Monthly Magazine, Moore,
Vol. XV, p. 183 (Boston, April 1856), the editor, commenting on the opinions religious figures from several Jewish ministers, took the opportunity to make the
The following remarks on what had been said by the late Mr. Noah.

We learned that Dr. Noah was a bricklayer, but we didn't we don't know how it happened (1). po Lo oe

Given his liberal views, there was certainly nothing in Freemasonry, which may have inspired him with reserve. A large number of The most prominent of his Jewish brethren held offices during his time High and honorable in the Fraternity. The Grand Lodges of Massa-Chusetts, Rhode Island, New York, and Louisiana, and perhaps
A few others have, at different times, raised distinct members
They were the fords of the Jewish religion to the dignity of Grand Masters. They were gentlemen, Freemasons with broad views, with a liberal spirit who, by the exercise of a spirit of tolerance and the courteous way in which they welcome milk those who differed from them in matters of conscience, had They knew how to win over their Christian brothers. They had made a powerful contribution to raise the social position of those who were united to them by ties blood.

On the same line as the first part of this passage we can include an editorial article published by Dr. Isaac M. Wise (2) in the magazine The Israelite, April 3, 1855:

(1) MM Noa was admitted as a member of the Independent Lodge Royal Arch., No. 2, in New York, in 1825. Cf. By-laws and List of Members of that Lodge.

(2) Dr. Wise was a Macon. Cf. Reminiscences of Isaac M. Wise, by the Revd. David Philipson, p. 264. — We read in "Preuss", Study on American Freemasonry, p. 257: "Regarding the Temple
From Solomon, Dr. Mackey's remarks are certainly interesting:
“In Freemasonry,” he said, “the Temple of Solomon played a most important role.” important. There was a time when every Masonic writer admitted, without to hesitate, that: Freemasonry received its first organization there; that there, Solomon, Hiram of Tyre, and Hiram Abiff presided as High Priests.
Masters of the Lodges they had established; that there the symbolic degrees were instituted, as were the systems of initiation, and that, since this

"La Magonnerie is a Jewish institution whose history, duties,
The passwords and explanations are Jewish from beginning to end.
finally, with the exception of a single secondary grade and a few words in the oath formula" (1).

In another editorial (August 17, 1855), Dr. Wise said:

"The beauty and pride of Freemasonry consist in its universal character, in its aim of fraternizing the human species and in that it is free from the elements that have been causes "effective acts of hatred, persecution, fraud and brutal barbarity."

The connection of the Jews to Freemasonry in the early days
The timing of the United States' history would have been advantageous for them, too.
While this is probably true, it is beneficial to the progress of the Order.
although Jewish historians have written very little on the subject.
The examination of the various publications that could be obtained here relating to Freemasonry reveals the names of Jews who were often mentioned in works dealing with their race and who have were representative men in their respective states. We find

From that era to the present day, Freemasonry has quietly passed through The flow of time in an uninterrupted succession and in a form always the same. But the modern method of historical research has swept away this edifice erected by the imagination, with such a brutal hand and with an effort as powerful as that made by the king of Babylon when he demolished the temple upon which all this rested. No writer concerned about his rep-
A critical historian would not want to try to defend this theory.
However, it did its work. During the long period in which The hypothesis took the place of fact, its influence was exerted to sink the Masonry in a mold closely linked to all the particularities of the Solomon's Temple and the events that took place there. So much so that almost all the symbolism of Freemasonry still derives from today dhui of the "Temple of the Lord" in Jerusalem. Between them, the link is so so close that one could not try to separate them from each other without compromising to secure the future of Freemasonry. Each Lodge is and must be a symbol of the Jewish Temple; each Master on his seat represents the Jewish king, and every mason personifies the Jewish worker.

"It must be so," he continued, "as long as Freemasonry lasts."
We must accept the myths and legends that link it to Temple, not, certainly, as historical facts, but as allegories; not as real events, but as symbols boles, and we must take these allegories and symbols for what their creators intended them to be: like the foundations of a system of morality."

(1) Freemasonry is further linked to the Jews through Kabbalah.
The famous Brother Albert Pike, aided by a number of Freemasons, sought to to develop Kabbalah in the United States within the Ancient and Accepted Rite.
See Kabbalah in Freemasonry, by Rev. Coney-Crump, New-Age, September 1920, p. 426.

their names in lists of members of Lodges and Grand Lodges of a large number of the thirteen original states. However, they did not constitute that a tiny minority in the small number of Lodges to which they were affiliated. Among their companions (of the Lodge) or people with which they were connected to through Freemasonry
There were prominent men involved in the affairs of the nation.
knows that several Jews were part of the Lodge to which it appeared Governor Oglethorpe of Georgia was holding it. There was a Jew, like We will see him again in the Lodge of which Washington was a member.
as there were several in the one to which they belonged Edmund Randolph and John Marshall of Virginia and De Witt Clinton from New York, Jews who were all Grand Masters of their Grand Lodges Their respective lodges. We encounter the names of prominent non-Jews.
mixed with the names of Jews in the membership lists of the Lodges of Rhode Island, Pennsylvania, and South Carolina. The reports Jews' ties to the Order naturally brought them into more direct contact. with their Christian brothers; the respect and esteem with which they were treated individually, the members of the race were all to the advantage of their coreligionists taken en masse. We can follow the reports of the Jews with Freemasonry in letters written to President Washington, in 1790, by the Jewish Congregations of Newport, of New-York, Philadelphia, Richmond, and Charleston, given that a
A large number of the members of these Congregations were Freemasons, as Washington himself. Eo g

It is said that Freemasonry was established as a regular institution Lodges in the colonies through legally constituted Lodges, deriving their authority from the Grand Lodge of England, around the year 1727, although prior to that date it could have been practiced without that one should be concerned with having a title, a charter. The current work of The Order, as an independent American organization, did not begin however, during and after the Revolution, when the Republic of The United States began to live. According to a written account, which confirms a tradition that Masonic historians refuse to admit, considering it to insufficiently established, whereas in other cases they accept traditions being considered authoritative, it can be said that the Jews had the honor of being among the first, if not the very first, to work
ee. if ee in this country, after having brought them upon their arrival in Rhode Island in 1658. This subject will be discussed later.

The result of the limited research that the author was able to to be among the printed documents that are in the Library the library of the Grand Lodge, at Masonic Hall, in New York, and in ja Astor Library, Columbia University, in Lenox, finally in the Libraries of the New York Historical Society, was coordinated in this work, which does not claim to be complete.

It's in the states of Rhode Island, Virginia, and Carolina from the South, New York, and Pennsylvania, where they had settled in large numbers, which the Jews deployed, in the latter part of the 18th century, the greatest activity in Freemasonry. The names of many influential members of Jewish congregations in these states
They are included in the lists of members of Masonic Lodges.
Massachusetts, Maryland, North Carolina, and Georgia four-
They also provide proof that they were in contact from the very beginning with the Order. There is also the issue of Jews in New Jersey, New Hampshire, Connecticut, and Delaware, where they were not produced in large numbers. Printed documents from Maine and the Vermont has no Jewish-Masonic names, which one could not to draw a certain conclusion that he did not have it(f). |

After this introduction, the author reviews the various States of the Union, indicates the time and circumstances of the entry of Jews into the Lodges and concludes thus:

An examination of what we have reported here shows that it is probable that the Jews were the first to introduce Freemasonryrie in the colonies, and that the period of their greatest activity like the Freemasons in the history of the beginnings of the Republic takes place between 1780 and 1810. The Jews mentioned in the Present work involved men of value and character who distinguished themselves in the Jewish Annals of Young America. Without Without a doubt, their connection with the Masonic Order was advantageous.
to their fellow believers as well as to themselves; she put them in contact with many people who were not of their race, who occupied a high position in the official and civil life of the country, and who were also members of the Fraternity. Almost all were part of the Jewish congregations in the cities where they resided. Although it is not argued that, by virtue of their status as Masons, they worked at addresses sent by their various congregations & Washington, cn 1790, nevertheless the facts presented here allow us to accept the hypothesis that their affiliation with the Order doubly inspired them the desire to participate in the welcome extended to the head of the nation who is a Freemason like them. A singular fact that deserves to be What was highlighted was that in Newport, the Venerable Master of the Lodge, a Jew, delivered, on behalf of the Lodge, the first Masonic address addressed to Washington as President, at the same time as he spoke on behalf of his congregation. A large number of the members of the congregation-

(1) The Jews and the Masonry in the United States before 1810 by Samuel OPPENHFIM, Memoir of the American Jewish Historical Society,
No. 19 (1910), New York. 94-page octavo brochure.

Jewish congregations of New York, Philadelphia, Richmond, Charleston and Savannah, who sent addresses to Washington, were also Freemasons. Many among the Jewish Freemasons, of whom he was It is mentioned that they served in the army and probably met with Washington, exchanging the Masonic greeting with him. Some-Some of them served as aides-de-camp in his general staff. Many held public office.

The number of Jews in our early history was relatively weak. Apart from the indication concerning Rhode Island in the 16th century.
century, we have seen that they were attached to the Order from its reappearance-Revolution in America, around 1727, and before the Revolution. Among them, we we find some well-known names: Daniel and Moise Nunes (1733-1734);
David Nunes and Abraham Sarzedas, in Georgia (1757); Isaac Da Costa (1753), in South Carolina; Jonas Philips and Aaron Hart (1760); Moses M. Hays (1768); Myer Myers and Isaac Moses (1769), in New York; Moses Isaacs and Isaac Isaacs (1760), David Lopez (1762).
Jacob Isaacs and Moses Lopez (1763), Isaac Elizer (1765), in the Rhode-Island; Salomon Pinto and Ralph Isaacs (1765), in Connecticut; Isaac Salomon (1762) and Abraham Franks (1772), in Pennsylvania; Daniel Barnett (1765) and Jacob Hart (1773), in Maryland; Hezekiah Levy, before 4774 in Virginia... Among the Grand Masters, we should mention Moses M. Hays, in Massachusetts (1788-1792); Moses Seixas, in Rhode-Island (1802-1809), and Salomon Jacobs, in Ja Virginia (1810-1813).
Many were Grand Treasurers and held other offices prominent in the Grand Lodges(1). noe wm M to

(1) Page 94, which concludes this memorandum, contains the following note on one of the reformers of Freemasonry, Brother Laurence Dermott, author from the Ahiman Rezon, and on F.'. Léon. We believe it useful to reproduce this note:

"Hughan argued that it was unlikely the Jews would have encouraged-" enraged the Order in the 17th century. Nevertheless, there is in a work from the 18th century, which has a lot of credibility, an allusion to a 17th-century Jew who is referred to with the title of "F.°.". Laurence Dermott, in his book Ahiman Rezon speaks of Rabbi Jacob Jehudad Leon of Amsterdam, nicknamed Templo, because of a beautiful model of Solomon's Temple that he executed. Dermott speaks of the "Hebraist scholar, architect, and brother," and says that he saw, In 1759, the original design of the armorial shield, which is still in use today the Grand Lodge of England, drawn by Leon and described by Dermott. (Cf. Jewish Encyclopedia, au mot Léon, t. VIII, p. 2, and Transactions of the Jewish Historical Society of England, vol. II, p. 156). Léon was in England land before 1678; he was a colleague of the Dutch rabbi Manasseh ben-Israel, which was also in England before 1658. The latter was a colbequest of Rabbi Isaac Aboab of Amsterdam, which Gould mentions, but without to give a reference. Hughan himself seems to have looked at Leon as being connected with the Order, for he presented to the Grand Lodge of New-York for its collection of Masonic antiquities, catalogued in 1905, of

From the very beginning, American Freemasonry was therefore Judaized. An article by Friedrich Wichtl: Jewry in Freemasonry American mania (1), amply proves that this alliance is tighter than ever. However, such a statistic does not can only be established on site in a precise and unattackable mannerquable; we leave that to the Dearborn Independent.

In his chapter on American Freemasonry, the F.'. Reghellini of Scio quotes a Masonic prayer for the reception of an Israelite. It provides further evidence of the union of Jews and Freemasons in the United States, so close, to To say of this author, "that we would never finish if we wanted to recappiter all the connections between the Jews and the "Masons" (2). Here is this prayer: |

Lord, you are excellent in truth; there is nothing greater in Compared to you, to you alone is due homage and blessing all the works that have come from your hands since eternity.

Guide us in the true science of Freemasonry. We beseech you. through the misfortunes of Adam, your first man; through the blood of Abel, one of your saints; by the knowledge of Seth 4 which you applaud; by I am the covenant of Noah, builder of the Ark, by whose work he has We beseech you, finally, to save the offspring of your beloved ones; not to confuse ourselves with those who are ignorant of the statutes and the Mysteries of the Secret Cabal. Ho Tea

(But grant our request, and ensure that the one who leads this Lodge is endowed with wisdom to instruct us and explain the mysteries more hidden, as Moses, our Holy Brother, did in his Lodge, to Aaron, to Eleazar, and to Sthamar, Aaron's sons, and to the Seventy Elders of Israel; and grant that we may learn, understand, and keep pure and intact, until the end of our lives, the commandments of the Most High High and Holy Mysteries. Amen, Lord (3).

photogravures of objects mentioned by Dermott in his Ahiman Rezon, and, among these engravings, of a portrait of Rabbi Leo, made in 1641, and illustrations of a model of Solomon's Temple drawn by this Rabbi. See also on Léon and Dermott the Ars Quatuor Coronatorum, t. XII-XIII, p. 150 et seq.

(1) D" Friedrich Wicut.L, Jewry in American Freemasonry, According to official Freemasonic sources. Article published in the Neue Reich of April 10, 1920, p. 559.

(2) F.'. M°. R.'. de S."., Freemasonry considered as the result of Egyptian, Jewish and Christian religions, 11, 188; Paris, F.'. Dondey-Dupré, 1833.

(3) F.°. Mo. REGHELLINI DE Scio, lib. cit., I, 194.

The commandments and mysteries of the Jews are handcontained in the Talmud, the Zohar, the Shulchan Aruch and the Kahal, and very cleverly diluted in Freemasonry.

Three-person lodges in Europe

In the Old World, where speculative Freemasonry took In this form, Jews entered the Lodges later. It was enough for them, moreover, to be largely the promoters occult figures in the organization of secret societies, to have an influence capable of obtaining from them and through them their emancipation, and to trigger, with the help of this mobilization gigantic of all the forces of evil, the first upheaval–

The revolution transformed the world. That was the role they didn't have
He hasn't stopped playing since then. We also read in Claudio Jannet:

The anti-Semitic movements in Russia and Germany, some recent events that have highlighted the financial dominance of Israelites on the stock exchanges of London and Paris, have strongly called attention to the role played by Jews in the modern era and especially on their connection with 'Masonry.

11. It is impossible not to be struck by the fact that the main nihilistic and communist agitators, whom the recognized leaders of the parties radicals in Germany, Russia, and Switzerland are Israelites.
The author of a remarkable article published in the Nineteenth Century, of January 1882, under this significant title: "The dawn of a revised era-"lutionary," he expresses himself thus:

"The most remarkable feature of all the upheavals which While the events taking place on the continent are largely the preponderant role of the Jews.
that a large part of them seize the major financial powers Ciers, and other individuals of their race, are the leaders of this movement revolutionary that we have outlined… Those who consider the Jews as a conservative force in society must change their point of view" (1).' T

However, even before the Revolution, Israel was witnessing the Masonic deliberations to better prepare for the assaults

(1) Claudio JANNET, Freemasonry in the 19th century, p. 22; Avignon, Seguin, n.d. Cf. Freemasonry and the Revolution, by Louis D'Estampes and Claudio Jannet, p. 27. — See also in the first ouvrage (p. 658), the famous letter from J.-B. Susonnu, overwhelming for the Judeo-Masonry.

formidable destinies for the overthrow of the throne and the altar.
As early as 1723, according to F. Don Martinez Pasqualis, a Jew Spanish, his father was said to have been the Venerable Master of the Lodges of Aix and of Marseille. He himself received, on May 20, 1738, the power to to establish Lodges of Charles Stuart, King of Scotland, of Ireland and of England, G.'. M.'. of all the Lodges spread over the surface of the earth (1). What is certain is that the F.'. Martinez-Pasqualis is the founder in France of the Martinism or Illuminism, whose most prominent figure
The Count of Saint-Martin, known as "the philosopher," was of particular importance.
"Unknown." The Illuminati of France, of Jewish origin, Freemasons and cabalists at the same time, corresponded with the Illumined from Bavaria by Weishaupt; they took part in the Convent of Wilhelmsbad, and the Jews, consequently, had a place among the French and German Freemasons.

On the other hand, we read in the Preface of the book The Freemasons crushed: (2)

I saw three Jews being received in Amsterdam by Mr. [Name], who was presiding.
at the Lodge, they swore oaths on the Gospel of Saint John, and I know that everywhere and of whatever religion the Aspirants may be, the Oath is the same. 1] It is true that, as I have the good fortune to be a Christian, the
The oath would not be void with respect to me in that respect. But my last-
This last remark nonetheless proves that it is very defective, since it is powerless compared to so many of those to whom it is lent them money, which allowed them to reveal everything without violating any rights.
A promise that was an oath to them.

These various testimonies prove that the Jews were not not systematically excluded from Freemasonry, neither before, nor after the Revolution; and our last quote highlights this trait it was ironic that the oath sworn on the Gospel did not bind them in no way, without needing to resort to mental restraint or to the absolution of the Yom Kippur holiday.

Joseph de Maistre wrote a few pages seriously

(1) La Chalne d'Union, 1880, pp. 277-280: Historical research by the F.'. DE LOUCELLES.

(2) The Freemasons Crushed, continuation of the book entitled The Order of Freemasons Betrayed, translated from Latin, p. XXIV; Amsterdam, 1847.
Le Br.". Thory, Acta Latomorum, I, 354, attributes to Abbot Larudan, The Order Freemasons betrayed and the secret of the Mopses revealed; Amsterdam 1745.
Others believe that the author of both works was Abbé PÉRAU.

thoughts and quasi-prophetic reflections on Illuminism, which was not that Judeo-Masonry, these pages go back to the earliest

19th century years: |

There is, he said, a third class of fanatics, very bad, very dangerous, very active, and one on which one cannot breathe too deeply.
the attention of governments.

True illuminism is modern philosophism grafted onto the Protestantism, that is to say, on Calvinism; for one can say that Calvinism devoured and assimilated all other sects.

That's why Enlightenment is much more ferocious in Germany than elsewhere, because the Protestant poison has its main focus in These lands, it is also in this country that the name of the great sect originated. The conspirators named, in their language, auffilarung, the action of the new light which came to dissipate the darkness of old prejudices; and the French have by this word by that of Enlightenment. | | 4

The first question that arises is whether this sect resembles others, which are united only by the community.
of opinions, or if it has formal corporations.

It seems certain that she started from the first male iana that from the midst of an innumerable crowd of scoundrels, he rose up then the more guilty, and more cunning, than the others, who have formal societies were established.

In Bavaria, there is no doubt. Its leader is known; his crimes, his plans, his accomplices and his early successes
They are too; the sect's regulations have been seized and published by the Government, translated into French, and reprinted by the abbot Barruel in his interesting History of Jacobinism. Thus, at this
In that respect, there is nothing more to say.

The company has further made a name for itself in Italy in a rather striking, since its regulations were seized by the Senate of Venice and transmitted to France in the most official manner. They are today in this capital, and, judging by appearances, they are known to Her Majesty: otherwise, they are always at his command.

There are several Lus that, in a city inhabited by the author of this memoir, a foreign scoundrel, attacked at the inn by an illness mortal woman experienced happy remorse; he summoned a priest, and,
In front of him and others who were in his room, he confessed aloud "that he was a member of a society established to overthrow him-the establishment of Christianity and monarchies.

Finally, in an exceptionally curious letter from the famous Metastasios, written to Prince Chigi on June 17, 1768, we see that even then he was already pressing-
